"Has anyone realized that this house appears like a person who is lying on the ground?" The police officer had started treating Chen Ge nicely. He followed Chen Ge around loyally; where Chen Ge went, there he would be.

"A person?"

"Yes, the room that we first entered in is the head. The rooms on the left and right are the arms. The rooms below are the legs. The corridor in the middle is the body, and the altar at the end appears like it's being stepped on." The police officer's comment inspired Chen Ge.

"If the whole building corresponds to a person, then the whole layout is using the energy of a living person to hinder the altar."

"A person stomping on the power of the altar?" A shine glazed the police officer's eyes, and he shouted excitedly, "I get it now! A person literally stepping on the god! That's why there is a pair of red high heels inside the altar!"

The first part of the analysis was okay, but the second half was all over the place. Chen Ge wanted to correct the man, but the police officer was too excited to share his discovery with the rest of visitors. Just as the other visitors were discussing this among themselves, Chen Ge stood quietly in the corridor.

“The theme of this place is a curse, and a curse can be a reincarnation. Spreading from the malice of the first person, to clear this scenario, we will need to understand what has happened here. I found the camcorder inside the first bedroom. It recorded the history of the seven young people staying overnight at this house. The camcorder did not show the ending of the seven people, but the chance of them surviving is negligible. Those were seven human lives.

“The second bedroom is filled with a bunch of clothes, and they are all covered in dirt like they had just been picked out from a swamp. Compared to the words mentioned by the owner of the house, his parents died in a landslide, and his whole family died in the cave in. So, it would be natural for the clothes on their bodies to be covered in soil. Therefore, the clothes in the second bedroom probably belong to the parents, and the reason behind their car accident may have something to do with the altar as well.”

Chen Ge scratched his chin and slowly sifted through the known information in his mind.

“Based what the owner of the house said, on the day of their parent’s accident, it was raining heavily. The road to this mountain village is hard to navigate, and the villagers’ reaction showed that landslides are a common occurrence. Since the owners were local, they should have known about that. If that’s the case, why did they venture out that day?”

The answer was quite clear. Chen Ge turned to look at the altar.

“They probably opened the altar, and even if they didn’t, they would have discovered something dangerous and been forced to leave! But they did not expect, even after escaping from this house, they still couldn’t escape from the shadow of death. That should be the power of the curse.

“Then comes the third bedroom. I found a toppled over sacrificial table, and on the table was a black and white picture of an old man. Strangely enough, the man was facing away from the camera, so his face couldn’t be seen. Other than that, I found many children’s toys in the third bedroom, and they are all hidden under the sacrificial table. The items in that room reminded me of the story told by the man in the camcorder. On the day of the grandfather's burial, the grandson looked into the altar and mysteriously disappeared. If the grandson also died, then we have another two more dead lives.

"The similarity across these stories is that someone has probably opened the altar."

The first three bedrooms had items once belonging to the victims, but starting from the fourth bedroom, things changed. Read more chapter on vipnovel.com

"I found traces of a fire in the fourth bedroom. The bedroom walls are heavily charred, and the items are seriously burned. Who lit a fire inside the room? Why would they burn up the bedroom?"

Chen Ge temporarily skipped over the question because he did not get it.

"The fourth bedroom aside, the fifth bedroom is also very weird. This should be a woman's room. There is a mirror by the wall, many traditional clothes are in the closet, and there are make-up boxes. The owner should be a young woman, but why would a black and white picture of an old woman be placed in a corner of the room? The feeling of the fifth room is discrepancy. The strange thing is that the old woman's picture is facing the room like she is smiling while looking at the stuff inside.

"The picture of the old man in the third bedroom was taken from the back, but the picture of the old woman was taken from the front—why? What has happened to this family?"

Just as Chen Ge was murmuring about that, that child's voice appeared again. "Losing its wings, a butterfly will be in great pain, so why would they tear out the butterfly's wings?"

This sudden appearance of the voice startled Chen Ge. "They are probably envious of the butterfly's beauty. Some ugly people like to ruin things that are more beautiful than them. That way, they hope to feel prettier."

"Ugly people? But grandma is not ugly..." the child mumbled.

"Grandma? She was the one who tore off the butterfly's wings?"

“Yes.” The child sounded sad.

“You must be alone here, right? Can I be your friend?” Chen Ge tried to keep his voice warm.

“I have my grandpa, and he doesn’t like it when I run about. He is afraid that grandma might find out about me, so he had me hide in my room.” There was an innocence in the child’s voice.

“So, the scariest person in this house is grandma?” Chen Ge slowly lifted his finger. He wanted to confirm something. A chill came from his fingertip. There was something standing next to him, and it was not a projection!

“Can you bring me to go meet your grandpa?” Before the child could answer, he was interrupted by the sound of a wind chime. This was the third time that it had chimed.

“Grandma is here. I should go back.” The boy’s voice dwindled. Chen Ge used his Yin Yang Vision to look and saw a boy of about five running back into the third bedroom. He was going to chase after him when he felt the wooden floors around the corridor shake. A giant spider larger than a man crawled out from the room filled with talismans. Screams echoed everywhere. The spider crawled speedily on the ceiling and wall. Her arms were like human limbs, and she had a dried human head.

“A projection?” The monster looked so real that Chen Ge was feeling numb. “No wonder they call this hellish difficulty. This is more than scary; it gives people biological discomfort.”

The spider seemed to have her eyes on Chen Ge and crawled rapidly toward him. Chen Ge saw this and led the spider to meet up with the other teammates.

Chapter 965 - They Turned Actual Ghost Stories into Scenarios

Chapter 965: They Turned Actual Ghost Stories into Scenarios

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Don’t just stand there! Run!”

...

If it was another projection, Chen Ge would have ignored it, but this spider was too spine-tingling. Even Chen Ge did not want to have any contact with it. When the other visitors saw the spider crawl out from the room, the fear collected before this exploded, and their screams filled the whole scenario. Some had their souls sucked out from them, and they collapsed on the ground.

“Get inside the room. Hide inside the room!” Regardless of its effect, Chen Ge ran inside the third bedroom. The police officer and the girl called Xiao Ling followed behind him. “Close the door!”

The door could not be locked, so Chen Ge and the police officer used their bodies to block the entrance. The corridor slowly quieted down. Every visitor had run to hide inside the bedrooms.

That should be a projection. An actual spider would have made crawling sounds and left marks on the wall.

Chen Ge signaled for the police officer to guard the door while he walked over to the sacrificial table.

Earlier, the boy ran inside this room.

Chen Ge was sure that the boy was no projection; he should be a lingering spirit.

Lingering spirits have to attach themselves to something. Even in a place with great Yin energy, they cannot leave that item for too long.

Bending down, Chen Ge looked at the toys under the table.

Could he have possessed one of the toys? Read more chapter on vipnovel.com

He studied the toys one by one. He placed them in his backpack and then took them out. There was nothing out of place throughout the process. His inspection was unique but effective. If there was a lingering spirit on the toy, it would be afraid.

If it's not the toys, where could he be?

Chen Ge's eyes moved around until they settled on the picture on the table. The picture frame had been left on the ground earlier. When he entered this room previously, he had replaced it on the table. The old man in the picture was turned away from Chen Ge. After looking at it for some time, it would feel like the old man might turn around at any moment.

Pictures are common objects for Specters and spirits to possess. The key here is the dead old man depicted in the picture...

As that thought passed through his mind, a child's head poked out from behind the old man's body, but he was quickly pulled back by a pair of old, wiry hands. It happened so fast that he almost thought he imagined it.

Staring at the picture, Chen Ge narrowed his eyes.

I think I understand why the picture of the old man was taken in this manner...

There were two lingering spirits inside this black and white picture—the old man and the child. The old man showed his back, but he was actually protecting the child; the child was hiding in his embrace!

The child opened the altar. To prevent him from being taken by the monster, his grandfather has been protecting him.

Chen Ge took the picture and walked to the corner of the room. He whispered to the picture, "How did you guys end up inside this Haunted House?"

The story inside the camcorder was created by the central computer, but the grandfather and his grandson were actual ghosts!

Even though they were weak spirits and any Red Specters could have vanquished them, their appearance here led to many problems.

"I have my own guesses, but if you tell me the truth, I am willing to protect you in the future." Chen Ge stared at the picture, but he got no response.

"What are you looking at? Is there a problem with this picture?" Xiao Ling walked over. Earlier, she had wanted to surrender, but she had been stopped by another woman. Currently, she was not in a good condition.

"It does look weird. Who would take a black and white picture from the black?" Chen Ge's voice returned to normal.

"This picture doesn't look like it is a prop made by the Haunted House. It's one of the old objects the owner salvaged in Eastern Jiujiang." The girl leaned against the wall, and her face was pale. "You'd better put it down. I hear these things will bring misfortune."

Xiao Ling had been holding her arm. She had already given up; she just wanted to leave.

"I knew it." Chen Ge looked at Xiao Long. "Why have you been covering your arm?"

"You might not believe me, but when I opened the closet earlier, I saw someone hiding inside, and he dragged me into the secret room." Xiao Ling let go, and Chen Ge saw a faded bloody handprint left on her arm.

"It should be one of the workers here..."

"It wasn't an actor, really..." Xiao Ling rubbed at her arm like she was traumatized. "None of you saw it, so you won't believe me! But I am sure that's not an actor here. He was very scary! Damn it! Why can't this blood stain be removed?"

Even though her arm was turning red from being rubbed, the bloody handprint remained. If anything, the color had deepened.

"Don't waste your time. You can't remove these things with conventional methods." Chen Ge stared at Xiao Ling. "You seem to know this Haunted House well. Have you visited this place before?"

Xiao Ling held her arm and looked at the police officer at the door but did not say anything.

"Perhaps your friend works here, and you have heard something from them?" Chen Ge even provided her with an excuse. "My livestream is still blocked, and there are no cameras in this room. No one will know if you tell me anything. Think about it. The only person who can help you now is me."

Xiao Ling was eventually persuaded by Chen Ge. She held her head. "I told them. I told them this would happen."

"What would happen?"

"I have a friend who handles the props of this Haunted House. She knows some inside information. When the Haunted House was being built, the upper management had a disagreement. Some of them thought it wasn't necessary while others thought that the theme park cannot leave any chance for the competition to grow. In any case, the haunted house was built. And then another disagreement happened. Some thought that it should be enough to use all projections, and there was no need to rely on physical props. The other party insisted on retaining some authenticity, and they found various objects in Eastern Jiujiang that are related to urban legends."

"These old objects were gathered before the Haunted House was completed?" Chen Ge felt that something was wrong. This group of people sounded like they had purposely built this Haunted House to store these old objects.

Could there be a problem with one of the managers of the futuristic theme park?

Chen Ge had interacted with the shadow in Eastern Jiujiang before. The man was cunning and ruthless. Li Wan City was just one of the ghost fetus' many projects.

"Instead of saying that the old objects were used to decorate the Haunted House, it was more like several scenarios were made specifically for these old objects," Xiao Ling said. "The designers generate scenarios through the central computer, and the scenarios include those old objects. The computer then works to mesh the objects perfectly with the generated scenario."

"They have turned actual ghost stories into a scenario and placed the cursed objects from those scenarios into the Haunted House. Sometimes, my friend worked overtime. She often heard strange noises coming from the scenarios at night. She notified the managers many times about this, but the response she got? 'Doesn't that mean we will be able to draw more visitors to come visit?'"

“Cough! Cough!” At this most crucial part, the police officer suddenly coughed, and Xiao Ling shut up.

“Don’t be afraid. I have just one last question.” Chen Ge looked Xiao Ling in the eye. “In this scenario, what are the old objects that have been taken from Eastern Jiujiang?”

“The two black and white pictures, the wind chime, and the altar.”

Chapter 966 - The Undulating Curse

Chapter 966: The Undulating Curse

The situation at the futuristic theme park was more serious than Chen Ge had anticipated. He initially thought they had just stuffed some old objects into the Haunted House, but through the conversation, he realized that they did more than that; they made use of the haunted house to provide the old objects with a home. They assimilated objects with real spirits into the Haunted House, thus giving the Specters possessing the objects a new chance at 'life'. The key difference from Chen Ge's Haunted House was that the Specters possessing these objects were not brought under control, and they were free to attack the visitors. These Specters were shapeless, and after the visitors finished their tours, they would not realize what had happened to them in a short period of time, but the symptoms would appear after some time.

"You guys are so irresponsible toward your visitors." Chen Ge wanted to meet the leader responsible for the Haunted House. That person had to be hiding something.

...

"Xiao Ling's friend is a bit too sensitive, and that's why she said something like that. As you know, when someone is under great tension, it's normal for them to see stuff that's not there." The police officer was afraid that Chen Ge might have misunderstood.

"My friend is telling the truth, but no one cares. Everyone knows that there are no ghosts in this world, but the problem is, how can you explain the things that she saw?" Xiao Ling argued with the police officer. Chen Ge leaned against the wall and listened with interest.

Before he arrived, he had known that the futuristic theme park would have their workers act as visitors, but he did not expect the workers to be so unprofessional. Perhaps combining forty hellish scenarios was too much and broke their mental defense, or perhaps the process of building the Haunted House was too, so the basic workers knew about its hidden trapping. In conclusion, many factors had likely led to this situation, where the ‘visitors’ argued among themselves, and the real visitor became the leader.

“Stop arguing. We’re here to visit. If you do not wish to give up, we’d better work together.” Chen Ge’s voice sounded particularly sensible at that moment. His presence was like a ray of light, bringing people warmth and reliability. Xiao Ling ignored the police officer and turned her face away.

“We’re all friends here. There’s no need to get into an argument due to a small misunderstanding.” Chen Ge consoled Xiao Ling before cutting to the chase. “Does your friend know the story about the objects here? These objects, especially the altar, where did they come from?”

“They were taken from a village near the dam at Eastern Jiujiang. It had nice scenery, but the place was a bit secluded, and the locals were hostile against outsiders.”

“When they went to take the objects, did the people in the village say anything?” Chen Ge did not mind the other items, but the altar was the key problem. It was the source of the curse.

“Not many people were left at the village, and most of them were aging elders. After my friend explained her reason for being there, they chased her out. Then my friend’s manager gave a young man from the village two hundred RMB to have the man lead us into the village in the dead of the night.” Xiao Ling remembered many things.

“The village wasn’t that big, and many houses were empty. The altar was in the oldest home in the village, facing away from the sun. It was the biggest home in the village, and it had been abandoned years ago.”

“The young man that was our guide told us that many bad things had happened there.

“A few decades ago, the owner of the house married the daughter of a rich family. Even though the daughter was ugly, she came from money, and she had a good life. Then the daughter got pregnant. They hired a maid from outside to come take care of her, but strangely enough, after the maid arrived, she was never seen again. The villagers initially did not think much of this. After all, the husband and wife were kind. The real tragedy came about several weeks later when a thief sneaked into the home, but that thief went insane after he got out.

“No one knew what the thief saw inside the house. The excuse given by the man of the house was that he was too fluttered when he saw the thief. In the moment of panic, he grabbed a wooden staff and hit the man’s head, and that knocked him senseless. It was a lawless era. The man threw some money around, and people stopped asking question.

“But that was when the rumors started to fly. Some said that the owner got into an affair with the maid when his wife was pregnant. The wife got so angry after she found out that she murdered the maid and buried her in the yard. Some said the maid was actually the owner’s old flame. The wife purposely tricked her into going there because she was envious of the woman’s beauty, and she wanted to swap faces with her.

“No one knew the truth. A few months after the maid’s disappearance, the wife became half insane. She would be found yelling and scolding the mirrors and walls around midnight. Then the owner hired a travelling priest, and it was that man who built the altar inside the old house.

“Several years later, the wife passed away. The owner raised four kids alone and was always kind to the other villagers. The villagers soon forgot about this until the day of the burial for the owner, when his youngest grandson opened the altar out of curiosity. It was a sunny day, but suddenly, winds gathered, and the rain clouds hung low. It didn’t take long for the rain to pour. The burial time had been decided, and it couldn’t be changed, so the family conducted the ceremony in the rain.

“When the coffin was lifted, the four pallbearers found it impossibly heavy, like there were several dead bodies lying inside. The family didn’t know what to do. In the end, they spent more money to hire four more pallbearers and finished the burial.

“After they went home, they realized that something was wrong. The old man had turned around in his white and black picture, and the youngest grandson that he cherished had disappeared. The family searched for days, but they couldn’t find him. There was no body. Later, someone said that the grandson drowned at the lakeside.

“The family was certain that something was off about the house, so they sold it at a low price. They thought that could spare them from the ill fortune, but I heard from my friend that they all had a terrible death.

“The tragedy did not end after the family moved away. The new family that moved in was flushed into the dam along with their car due to a landslide. Only their eldest son who was studying in the city survived it. The eldest son inherited the old house. One summer, he invited his friends there for a holiday. That night, like the old man’s burial, it started to pour. No one knew what happened that night, but all seven that went there for a holiday were never seen again.

“The old house lost its owner, and the villagers knew to stay away from the place. My friend and her colleagues were the first to visit it in about five years. You know what happened next. With the young man leading the way, they got some old objects out of the house and used it to create this scenario.”

Xiao Ling’s story was long, but it was chronologically clear, and it helped Chen Ge understand many things.

The maid was the first to die there. After her death, she cursed the old house and was trapped by the priest inside the altar. The scariest Specter here shouldn’t be the grandmother but the maid. It is her Specter that is possessing the altar!

Chapter 967 - Sacrificial Teammates

Chapter 967: Sacrificial Teammates

“Nothing happened for so many years when the old man raised the four children, but once the youngest grandson opened the altar, tragedy struck. Everything that happened later was also related to the altar. Once the altar was opened, the people present were struck with misfortune, and there was no escaping the curse.” Chen Ge turned to look at the police officer. “When you played on medium difficulty, none of you opened the altar, right?”

“Yes.” The police officer nodded.

...

“Looks like opening the altar is specific for hellish difficulty.” Chen Ge waved the police officer and Xiao Ling over.

“This scenario is unique. There are at least four ghosts here. The kind and innocent grandson, the grandfather who wants to protect his grandson, the envious grandmother, and the scariest maid. The grandmother is trapped inside the room with the talismans, the maid is inside the altar, and the grandson and grandfather are inside the picture. All those are cursed items; touching them will curse you.” Chen Ge placed the old man’s black and white picture inside his backpack. “But if you do not use your hand to touch it, it’ll be fine.”

“I don’t hear any commotion from outside anymore. Shall we go take a look?” The police officer was afraid, and after hearing Xiao Ling’s story, he only got more fidgety.

“You can leave after you come up with a way to clear the scenario.” Chen Ge arranged his thoughts. “This scenario’s themed is curses. The first curse came from the maid. The second came from the grandmother. Her personality is twisted, and her heart is filled with envy and hatred for the maid. After her death, this house gained her curse. Then those innocent people who opened the altar must’ve felt wronged, and that imbalance in the heart would soon have been twisted into a curse. In conclusion, everyone who perished here has left behind hatred and curse, creating this unbreakable cycle.”

“What should we do?”

“Either we solve the curse from its base, or we become part of the curse.”

“I don’t quite understand what you’re saying.” The police officer had no idea what Chen Ge was trying to do.

“The curse continues to reincarnate due to hatred. Since tragedy has found me, I must ensure that this tragedy finds others to accompany me. But if someone is cursed and is kind enough not to spread the curse to the next person, instead turning it into a kind thought, won’t we be able to say that they have ended the cycle of the curse?” Chen Ge’s words confused the police officer and Xiao Ling.

“And your point is?”

“As long as each of us can stand on our ground and not get disturbed by the curse, things should turn better.” Chen Ge took out the remnants of the scrolls that he found in the bedroom. The five elements were written on them. “There are five bedrooms, counting the hidden room with the talismans and the living room. This scenario has seven rooms in total, corresponding to seven individuals. The police officer said earlier that the layout is like a person stepping on the altar. I’m thinking, if we stay in separate rooms alone, doesn’t that mean every room is filled with the energy of life? The whole scenario will come to life, and the force of the living will be strong enough to inhibit the curse from the altar.”

The police officer and Xiao Ling thought that Chen Ge was being ridiculous, but for some reason, he seemed to have a point.

“It’s not that scary when the visitors stay together in the Haunted House, so they will always try to separate them. The designers understand that. When the central computer comes up with this highest difficulty scenario, it will have that in mind. We will follow their wish then. Even though it’s dangerous, it might be the solution to this problem.” Chen Ge raised the scrolls that he was holding. “The scrolls should be able to protect us, but that is also where the brilliance of this scenario shines. There are only five scrolls, so there is bound to be an argument among the visitors.”

“The scrolls aside, based on what you said, someone is bound to be in the hidden room alone. Isn’t that a bit unfair to that person?”

“It’s more than unfair; it’s cruel.” Chen Ge smiled. “So, I suggest the person going into the hidden room can have one more scroll.”

“I can’t make this decision. We’d better get everyone to discuss this.” The police officer pushed open the door a sliver. The big spider had disappeared.

“Everyone, come out now. We don’t have much time!” Chen Ge shouted. “The key timing here is the windchime. When the windchime rings, the scenario will change. When the spider appeared, it was the third time that the windchime rang. When the windchime rings next, the ghost from the altar might come out.”

Chen Ge and the police officer shared the solution with the rest. Everyone felt it was rather preposterous, but there was no better idea. Staying there and doing nothing would only make things worse.

“We agree with you, but who is willing to stay inside the talisman room?” The man with glasses was brave when he was with the rest, but when he was left alone, he too would be afraid. “If you are willing to volunteer, we...”

“I’ll be in that room then.” Chen Ge took two scrolls. “I’m here to clear the scenario. I don’t want anyone to hold me back.”

“You’re still thinking about that?” The man shook his head. He felt like Chen Ge was dreaming. “We have no problem with you staying in that room, but you cannot take two scrolls. There’s a limited number of scrolls, and you wish to take two? What about the rest of us?”

“Fine, I’ll take one.” Chen Ge placed the scroll on the ground. Throughout this process, not one ‘visitor’ argued for his safety. The visitors got their assignment. The police officer would stay in the living room, and the woman with the long hair would stay in the bedroom next to the hidden room. After everyone got into position, the windchime rang again.

“Xu Yin.” Chen Ge stood in the middle of the talisman-filled room. He contacted Xu Yin immediately, but he did not summon Xu Yin to stand beside him. He was waiting for a chance.

“A Red Specter can move about freely. Where will the maid go?” Chen Ge smiled as he talked to himself. “Opening the altar triggers the curse. I've helped you separate all who have triggered your curse. Can you resist and not do anything?"

When he first entered this hidden room, Chen Ge realized that there were no cameras, so he did not hold back. Actually, when he found out that the Specter inside the altar could fight against the red high heels, he was determined to find her. A normal Specter was different from a Red Specter. Even if he could not bring her back to the Haunted House, consuming her would highly increase Xu Yin and the headless woman's power.

The spider projection brushed past Chen Ge through its fixed trajectory. It crawled out the closet, and a scream came from outside. Then, the scenario returned to normal. Just as the visitors recovered from the visit by the big spider, a scent of blood permeated the air.

"She's here!"

Chen Ge grabbed the closet door, and he heard a wailing song sang by a woman coming from the corridor.

Chapter 968 - Moving Forward

Chapter 968: Moving Forward

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Standing at the door of the hidden room, Chen Ge focused his ears on the song. The woman's singing voice was strange, and she was singing some old folk song that had long disappeared from Jiujiang. Through the walls papered with talismans, just listening to her voice, when he closed his eyes, he could practically see green tiles and blue roofs, mantles of various colors like he had been transported to the past. Taking a deep breath, his lungs were filled with a scent that was unique to rouge.

"She has a surprisingly mellifluous voice. This Red Specter is rather unique." Chen Ge snapped out of it. "My Haunted House still doesn't have a worker who knows how to sing classical songs. If she is willing, I can help her."

...

The woman's voice was alluring and she was singing in a local dialect. Chen Ge could only understand some of it and thus had no idea what she was singing about.

"Which room will you choose? The hidden room is the most dangerous. Will you come here?" Chen Ge's hands tightened, and right then, he heard the door wiggle. The door of the bedroom outside of the hidden room was opened!

As the door opened, the woman with long hair who sat in the room alone screamed.

"Xu Yin!" Chen Ge pulled open the closet door, and he saw a thin woman wearing a bloody stage costume standing at the bedroom door. Her fingers were pressed on the door, and hatred pooled in her red eyes. Her body leaned against the wall, and the skin exposed through the costume was covered in wounds.

"Careful!" Chen Ge yelled at the woman in the room as he grabbed her by her arm and pulled her behind him. While he blocked her from danger, Chen Ge also blocked her view. Before she could recover from the fear, Xu Yin rushed out from the hidden room and charged at the Red Specter in the costume.

“The red high heels is hindering the altar, and Xu Yin will be chasing after you. Where are you going to go?” Chen Ge glanced behind him. After Xu Yin and the Red Specter left, he stood up. He was about to leave when someone grabbed his shirt.

“Don’t... don’t go. The woman in the stage costume isn’t one of the workers!” The woman went through a lot before she could say that. Her hair was disheveled. The woman who had a bad opinion of Chen Ge finally had a change of mind. When she was in danger, the man stood before her, putting himself in danger for her. The business competition aside, the man was a morally upstanding man.

“How do you know she is not a worker here?”

“I...”

“Don’t worry, perhaps she’s just a projection. After all, this place is a combination of forty hellish scenarios. Any strange projection can appear.” Chen Ge pretended not to notice the change in the woman’s room and ran out of the bedroom. The other visitors who heard the commotion ran over, but the Red Specter had already disappeared.

“Where have they gone?” Chen Ge was not worried about Xu Yin and red high heels; they could fend off even Top Red Specters, much less a normal one.

Now I can confirm that there is indeed a Red Specter at this house, but the Specter is in a strange state, completely different from the other Red Specters I’ve met.

What was the difference? Chen Ge could not tell. The only thing he could do now was find a way to control that Red Specter.

“The ghost was inside the altar!” the police officer yelled to grab everyone’s attention. “The altar’s door has been opened! The pair of red high heels disappeared too!”

With the police officer’s aid, a beautiful misunderstanding was formed. All the visitors thought that the red high heels were the ghost in the cursed scenario. They did not think of the other possibility.

“Look! The exit!” Xiao Ling pointed behind the altar. The place was originally sealed by wooden boards. But when the Specter appeared, the boards had been moved away. The chilling wind caressed the group, and a dark path appeared behind the altar.

“The cursed house has no door. The exit should be hidden behind the altar.” The young man scratched his chin and played with his stubble. “We have not solved the puzzle, but the exit appeared on its own. Could this be a trap?”

“When I visited here last time, this was where the exit was, but when I came in earlier, I gave it a try. The board behind the altar couldn’t be moved. It’s probably because we hadn’t satisfied the conditions then.”

As if afraid that the rest would not believe him, he ran to the altar. “Look, there is a pattern on each board, and they correspond to the hint on the scroll. If we arranged them according to the scrolls, we should’ve been able to open the hidden door. But I tried that earlier. It wouldn’t work!”

“If you knew the way to leave, why didn’t you share it with us?” Chen Ge stared at the police officer. He realized that these people still planned to cheat him. “Looks like you still haven’t experienced the deepest despair, never mind.”

When everyone realized that this was not a game but it was placing their lives on the line, they would listen to Chen Ge and help him. If Chen Ge had not come to visit and they continued to work with Red Specters, they would have faced the threat of death every day. Now, Chen Ge was there to help them solve this problem, and in return, they would have to sacrifice something.

“Come, finding the exit is a good thing. We shall move on then.” Chen Ge carried his backpack and ran into the bedroom to quickly stuff the other black and white picture into his pocket. “I’m missing the windchime. Oh well, I’ll come and find it next time.”

What Chen Ge wanted was not the objects but the lingering spirits possessing them. He had the comic. With enough time, he could bring all the spirits with him and leave the objects behind. After getting the item, Chen Ge entered the dark path.

“The puzzle of this scenario hasn’t been solved, but the exit has been revealed just like that. Is it really fine for us to enter it?” The guy with the glasses looked at the police officer. Honestly, none of them felt like trying another scenario.

“Finding the exit is a good thing. What? Are you scared?” Chen Ge walked ahead alone. As ‘visitors’, the rest could only follow him. When he saw that everyone had entered the new scenario, Chen Ge showed a satisfied smile. These visitors could provide him with hints. Plus, they were free labor and could help him prove some speculation. Most of all, these visitors were all witnesses, and their eyes would help wash Chen Ge off any dirty accusations.

“Even though Xu Yin and the red high heels aren’t here, I still have the stench and the headless woman. I can guarantee my own safe.”

Beyond the cursed house was a long corridor. Without any proper lighting, just using flashlight on the phones, they could see several wordless tombstones sitting along the corridor. This appeared to be a mass grave. There was a sign with the name ‘Public Dormitory’ hanging at the end of the corridor. Behind the old doors, the interior was huge.

“Is this the new scenario?” Chen Ge was the first to arrive, but he stood at the door and did not enter. After everyone entered the dormitory, Chen Ge reached into his backpack to get the comic. He silently summoned the stench and had the boy replaced the boards that led back to the cursed house. After the boy left, Chen Ge closed the entrance to the dormitory. From that moment onward, the visitors had no way of turning back.

Chapter 969 - Twelve Zodiac Signs

Chapter 969: Twelve Zodiac Signs

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

When the doors snapped shut, every visitor jumped. They all turned to look at Chen Ge.

“Not closing the door makes me feel like something is going to come in after us. To prevent us from being cornered, this feels better.” Chen Ge found a random excuse and turned to the police officer. “Have you been here before?”

...

“Yes, the dormitory is a safe zone. It’s for the visitors to relax. After the next scenario, the tour will end.” Hearing the police officer say that, everyone felt rejuvenated. This nightmare-like visitation was finally over.

“A safe zone? Meaning this scenario is not scary?” Chen Ge rarely saw people build a safe zone inside a haunted house.

“This scenario does not have ghosts. There are twelve rooms in total, and one room is hiding a murderer. We only need to avoid the murderer and find the hidden path to exit.” The police officer did not hide anything. He wanted nothing more than to leave this haunted house.

“Where was the hidden path when you visited last time?”

“The location is randomized. Each room has a hidden path, but only one room’s hidden path is not locked. This scenario is luck based. The first room we try might get use the unlocked hidden path, but it might also lead us to a murderer.” The police officer opened his arms. “I’ve told you everything I know. If there’s another accident, it’s really not my fault.”

“Medium difficulty has a murder and an unlocked path spread among twelve rooms, but for hellish difficulty, we might have all locked hidden paths and twelve murderers, one in each room.” Chen Ge stood at the bar counter and turned to the glasses. “Detective, did you get a hint?”

“Yes, I got the message when we entered the scenario.” The man showed the message on his wrist band to everyone—‘Do not open the doors randomly.’

“Looks like Chen Ge is not wrong. All twelve rooms might be hiding a murderer, and that’s why the message told us not to open the doors randomly.” The police officer laughed drily. If that was the truth, the information that he had provided was completely useless.

“Shush, keep quiet for a minute.” Chen Ge suddenly raised his hand. Using Ghost Ear, he could hear footsteps and a woman’s maddened laughter. The sound was weak, and it came from underground.

“This dormitory is more than it looks. There might be several floors to it. This ground floor is just the surface. The difficult part is at the basement,” Chen Ge said in a low whisper, causing the listeners’ hearts to shiver.

“How do you know that?” the woman with long hair asked. She now had a new appreciation for Chen Ge.

“A real haunted house seeking the experience of terror will not set up a safe zone. An endless wave of terror is the real aim of the designer.” Chen Ge would not tell the visitors that even if the designers intended to have a safe zone, when the scenario was filled with Specters, the safe zone was useless.

“The police officer’s information is that by opening the door, we will find the exit, but the detective’s hint is to not open any doors. That is very contradictory, so who should we listen to?” Chen Ge turned to the youngest man. “Everyone has revealed their occupation, except you. We’ve been through so much, yet you still don’t trust us?”

The young man shook his head. “It’s not a matter of trust. My ability is key, and it can only be used once.”

Chen Ge did not press. Due to the limited time, the visitors split up to examine the dormitory, and they soon found many strange things.

The dormitory was the largest scenario that they had encountered. It had three floors, two floors above ground and one below ground. Each floor had six rooms, but the path that led to the basement was locked behind a steel door. There were two staircases at the sides of the lobby. They looked normal, but upon closer inspection, one would see signs of them being banged by blunt objects, and there were nails left on the door and uncleaned blood stains left on the ground.

Other than that, Chen Ge found many torn pages from detective novels. Red paint was used to highlight the time and the way of death for the characters. Complicated symbols hid in the corners of the rooms like the scrawling of a devil. Even though the scenario was not as professional as Chen Ge's Haunted House, it would score quite high; the atmosphere was well built.

"There is no exit, and the path to leave should be like what the police officer said, hidden in one of the rooms." The visitors gathered together. They were discussing whether to try their luck and open one of the doors while Chen Ge stood to the side and said nothing.

The police officer noticed this and asked Chen Ge, "What are you thinking about?"

"The clock on the wall has been moving." Chen Ge pointed above the bar counter where an inconspicuous clock hung.

"Isn't that normal?" The police officer was confused.

"Look closer. The clock is moving backward. When we entered, it was 3 am, but now it's 2:54 am."

"A clock that is moving backward? What does that mean?"

"I have no clue." Chen Ge shook his head. "Ignore it for now. Earlier, you said that the hidden path is hidden inside the rooms. To leave, we must open the doors. I've paid special attention to the twelve guest room doors and realized that each door has been stabbed with nails to create some small holes."

"Holes? Is it for us to look through?" The visitors naturally moved to gather around Chen Ge.

"Unlikely. There is another layer behind the door, it blocks the interior of the room from view." Chen Ge took out his phone. "The locations of the holes on each door are different. Some looked familiar to me, so I tried to link them together, and I made a surprising discovery."

"What discovery?"

"The holes represent stars, and connecting the dots forms a celestial sign. The first door is Aries, and the second door is Taurus. These twelve doors correspond to the twelve zodiac signs.”

The visitors listened to Chen Ge’s analysis, and they were shocked. They felt like even though they were in the same place, they were playing different games.

1

“Then... what is the hint behind the zodiac?” The police officer was afraid of interrupting Chen Ge, so he only asked in a whisper.

“That’s the troublesome part. The twelve zodiac signs can represent many things. They can be celestial signs, they can be times, or they can be a code.” Chen Ge looked at his phone. “The term comes from Greek. The original meaning is zoo, and it’s definitely not humans kept at a zoo. Is it warning us that the tenants inside the rooms are not humans? That would match the message received by the detective.”

Shaking his head, Chen Ge frowned. “I’m not good at puzzle-solving. This scenario stumps me.”

Seeing Chen Ge troubled, the other visitors did not dare to speak.

Chapter 970 - Time for Doctor Skull Cracker [2 in 1]

Chapter 970: Time for Doctor Skull Cracker [2 in 1]

2

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Is there anything that we can help with?” The police officer looked at the frowning Chen Ge and leaned over with the eagerness. The visitors all depended on Chen Ge to lead them out. The mission that had been given to them by theme park had long been forgotten. After all, in this situation, their own lives were more important than the order from their superiors.

...

“The twelve zodiacs could be some kind of code. This scenario does not depend on luck but the ability to think analytically and solve puzzles. As long as we can resolve the mystery of the twelve zodiacs, we should be able to tell which room is safe and which room is hiding the murderer.”

After Chen Ge said that, his tone changed. “Unfortunately, the Haunted House’s central computer possesses an immense amount of data. The puzzles that it can come up with will be impossible for a single person to solve.”

“So, we still need to depend on luck after all?”

“The information that I can confirm at the moment is very little.” Chen Ge showed the group the detective novels that he had found. There were pages on them that contained the information about the time of death and the name of the victim circled in red ink.

“Assuming that the details on the pages are real, it means that at these specific times, a murder will occur, and the crime scene will be inside this dormitory. Originally, there should’ve been nothing to be afraid of regarding murders that have already occurred in the past, but as I pointed out earlier, the clock on the wall is moving backward, so there is a high chance that the murders will be reconstructed inside the dormitory.” Chen Ge raised one finger. “This is a new cycle of reincarnation. The reversing time is like a blade that dangles over our heads. The murders that have already happened are a kind of advance notice, warning about our imminent deaths.”

Opening his arms, Chen Ge placed the pages on the bar counter. “There are seven pages that I have found, and there are seven of us. Each of us possibly corresponds to one time of death. When the time arrives, the executor will appear, and that person will die.”

Hearing Chen Ge’s analysis, the few visitors started to panic.

“When we arrived, it was 3 am. It is now 2:52 am. The latest murder recorded by the pages happens at 2.50 am, and the cause of death is being cut into pieces by a saw.” Chen Ge put the pages away. “Now, we have two options. First, we will kill off one of our teammates ourselves, so only six people remain. That way, the executioner of the seventh person will not appear.”

“How could you even possibly come up with an idea like that?” The man with the glasses was obviously not happy with this suggestion.

“The other option is for all of you to listen to my orders.” Chen Ge did not give the other visitors any time to think as he put away the seven pages. “There is one more minute left to 2.52 am. Time is literally ticking away. Other than the guest rooms, there are no places in this dormitory that we are able to hide in. Therefore, our only choice is to pick a room to hide in.

“Now, I need all of you to move to the staircase on the left, and I will open the first door from the staircase on the right. After I open the door, only two things can happen. If there is a murderer inside it, I will run over to meet up with you. If we maintain a safe distance from the murderer, he won’t be able to do anything to us.

“Assuming that there is no murderer inside the door, you will all run over to me, and we will hide inside the room and wait for the first time of execution to blow over before we decide what to do next.”

“Okay, I agree.” The man with the glasses and the young man both agreed easily. After all, Chen Ge had volunteered to take on all the risk, and he would be the closest to the danger, so they had no reason to say no. With limited time, both parties started to move. The six visitors stood at the left stairwell, watching Chen Ge as he opened the door by the right stairwell alone.

“There’s no one?” Chen Ge waved at the group, and all the visitors ran over to him. When all of them entered the guest room, a door opening suddenly sounded in the quiet corridor.

“The murderer has appeared!” All six visitors held their breath, and only Chen Ge walked to the door. With his Ghost Ear, he could tell which door was open, and from that, he could confirm the room where the murderer was hiding. As if trying to scare the visitors, a string of heavy footsteps and the sound of a electric saw slowly approached from the end of the corridor. The murderer did not seem to know where the visitors were hiding. He wandered aimlessly around the dormitory before the sound disappeared into one of the guest rooms.

He did not return to his own room?

When the door slammed shut, the visitors all sighed in relief, but Chen Ge thought that this was weird.

Could the police officer be right? This scenario is just a trial of luck? Whenever the murderer opens the door, the thing to check is whether the visitors have found the unlocked hidden path? No, that’s impossible. A hellish scenario should not be that simple.

Chen Ge studied the room they were in. There were many things lying inside the room. There was a mannequin of a dead body that was missing a limb. The floor underneath the body could be moved, but it was sealed by a large lock. The table next to the path was splayed with poker cards, and each of the cards had English words written on them. This looked like a puzzle. Inside the table’s wooden drawer, there was a document, a will.

Upon opening it, they found that the will only had one sentence—‘If I die, it is definitely not from suicide.’

The room was not that big, but it had been turned into an actual puzzle.

“Do we need to stay here to find out the truth?” The police officer looked at things inside the room and had a feeling that everything had to do with solving the puzzle.

“Looking for the truth is the job of the police officer; I am just a volunteer worker.” Chen Ge looked at the time. This scenario needed to do a lot of puzzle-solving, and that would exhaust plenty of time. However, he did not plan to waste any more time. This visitation indeed made him learn many things, and it gave him a glimpse into the true power of the futuristic theme park. They were valid competition because they did such a good job in a territory that they were not supposed to be that familiar with. Only by admitting that and facing the competition head on would he have the chance to overcome the competition. That was one good thing about Chen Ge—he would never underestimate his opponent.

“The time for relaxation is over. It’s time to get working.”

The few visitors did not notice the change in Chen Ge. They still followed naturally behind him.

“This room has already been confirmed as safe, so we can go and open another door. We will repeat what we did earlier.” Chen Ge had all the visitors run to the corridor on the left while he stayed on the right side of the corridor. After everyone assumed their position, he reached into his backpack to flip through the comic.

“Finally, there is no more need to hide.” The reason Chen Ge had directed all the visitors to the left right was because the stairwell on the right side was closest to the dormitory door, and the visitors who were cornered at the left side staircase would not be able to see what was happening there. This meant that Chen Ge was able to gesture freely with the Stench Red Specter in the other visitors’ blind spot. “The way out of here has been sealed. It is time for him to feel the real sting of despair.”

The door of the dormitory was pulled open, and Chen Ge nodded at the boy with the Stench with a smile. A stinging stench permeated the air, and everyone could hear the sound of ‘water’ dripping on the ground. It was the sound of blood dropping against the door, leaving behind a horrifying and shocking trail. The stench did not hold back and unleashed the horrible air that surrounded him. Soon, the rest of the visitors noticed that something was out of place. They all turned to look at the bar counter.

Several seconds later, a fat monster wearing a bloody clothes crawled out from behind the counter!

“What... what is that?” With the scream from Xiao Ling, every visitor’s heart jumped to their throat.

“Chen Ge! Behind you! Look behind you!”

Chen Ge, who just walked out from the visitors' blind spot, lifted his head and saw the monster. His face paled, and he gritted his teeth and started to run.

"Run!" His legs carried him away very quickly, but he was still caught by the monster behind him. Without anywhere else to run, he made the decision to push open one of the rooms and run into it before the eyes of the other visitors. Something even more startling happened then. The scary monster followed Chen Ge and entered the room. Two harrowing screams then came out from the room! One was made by Chen Ge, and the other belonged to a stranger.

Before the visitors understood what had happened, the scary monster charged out from the room. He looked around, spotted the visitors, and went after them!

"What is this? What is going on!" The visitors split up in panic, and no one noticed that the door that Chen Ge had run into earlier had slowly been closed from the inside.

"Things went far more successful than I thought." Chen Ge looked at the actor that played the 'murderer' who had fainted on the ground, and a childish smile appeared on his face. He had memorized the room that the murderer had retreated into and led the boy with the stench into the it. The actor who wanted to scare Chen Ge had been so excited when he heard the doorknob being jiggled. He had rushed over to stand behind the door with excitement. But before he could assume his position, he had seen the Red Specter following behind Chen Ge.

The heart chilling scream was made by this poor actor. To trick the other visitors, Chen Ge also screamed once to show solidarity with the poor actor. The two collapsed after the scream, but the 'murderer' really was knocked unconscious. While he was supposed to be 'unconscious', Chen Ge was studying the room. After ensuring that there were no surveillance cameras, he stood up and went to close the door.

"The security cameras at the futuristic theme park are so numerous like they are free. I don't have the freedom to do anything, but now, things will change." Chen Ge removed his jacket and took out the comic from the backpack. He then removed the actor's jacket, hoodie, and so on and put them on himself.

"Let me show you how to play a real murderer."

Putting away the comic and recorder, Chen Ge covered the fainted actor with his own jacket and then placed his empty backpack next to the actor. He then removed his wrist band and strapped it around the actor's wrist. After all the preparation was done, Chen Ge picked up the electric saw and kicked the door open.

His eyes scanned the surveillance cameras in the corner. Chen Ge stood under the camera holding the electric saw. "After the visitors realize that their exit has been cut off, they might select to give up, so I need to move fast."

The saw sliced against the wall. This saw had been specifically modified. It was twice as large as a normal saw, and thus, it was very heavy. The sound that it made when it was running was very loud, but the chains had been dulled, probably for the visitors' safety. The jacket covered with blood hid Chen Ge's body, and the hoodie made from metal and bones shrouded his head. From the outside, others could only see a pair of dull, icy eyes.

"The visitors have been split up after being chased by the stench. I hinted at them earlier that the first room that I opened is safe. I wonder if some lucky visitor has chosen to hide in there?" The metal bounced against the wall. The emotionless eyes scanned the small room. The dead body that was missing an arm was hanging above the hidden path. Poker cards littered the room. The will had been trampled on, but there was no one in the room. Chen Ge switched on the recording function on his phone and started to walk out.

When he walked to the door, he closed the door loudly before sneaking back to the side of the closet. Holding his breath, he raised the saw above his head. Several seconds later, a woman's voice came from inside the closet.

"Has he left?"

"I think so. Let me go take a look. This space is too small to fit two people."

Creak...

The doors of the closet slowly opened, and the shadow loomed over them. The screeching sound of saw boomed above their heads, and a pair of cold eyes stared at his prey.

“Ah!” Xiao Ling shrank back out of instinct, and her body knocked into the table and chair.

“What’s wrong with you!” the other woman inside the closet screamed out loud. Then she heard the closet being rammed into by a heavy object. Unable to grab a purchase, she fell to the ground. She did not expect the murderer to be waiting for them outside the closet. Her eyes were filled with terror.

Chapter 971 - He's Moving Too Fast

Chapter 971: He's Moving Too Fast

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

But in a few seconds, some calmness returned to her eyes. “We’re allies! We’re all workers here! I am Lee Li, and she is Zhang Ling. You must not have received the notice, right? Both of us followed a visitor to enter this place! This is my worker...”

The slender hand raised the worker ID shakenly. Then the worker ID was yanked away by brute force. The heavy electric saw smashed into the closet. The woman’s face that was assaulted by the spray of wooden chips was slowly twisted by fear and terror.

...

“Die!” The voice of death came out from the hood made from bone and metal. There were no human emotions in the eyes; they were the eyes of death!

Yin Yang Vision!

Screams echoed through the room. The heavy saw waved above her head. Xiao Ling, who could not suffer anymore, used the last of her strength to run out from the room.

“Zhang Ling!” The despairing voice was piercing. Lee Li, who had been abandoned, slid to the ground. She lost the energy to even stand up on her own.

“We... we are your colleagues. Other than that Chen Ge, we are all colleagues here. I’m telling you the truth!” Lee Li was still screaming. The sound of blood dripping suddenly filled the room. A thick scent of blood closed around Lee Li’s neck like a pair of invisible hands. Blood dripped out from behind Chen Ge. He held the saw with one hand, and his other hand reached behind him to grab a handful of black hair.

“You...”

When Chen Ge’s hand pulled back, there was a woman’s skull sitting prettily in his palm!

The blood dripped, the eyes were round, and they stared resentfully at Lee Li!

Chen Ge tossed the head right next to Lee Li. She could clearly see that the mouth on the woman's head was still moving!

"This is not supposed to happen! This is not supposed to happen!"

Her body convulsed, and Lee Li found that she had lost her voice. Her pupils rolled back in her eyes, and she finally collapsed to the ground. Chen Ge ended the recording on his phone. He picked up the head of the headless woman and rubbed the saw against his jacket. Holding the headless woman's head in one hand and the electric saw in the other, he walked out of the room with heavy steps.

Everyone in the dormitory heard Lee Li's horrifying scream. Other than the 'visitors' who were being chased by the stench, the rest was keeping watch over the situation. They desperately wanted to know what had happened inside the room. The scream soon stopped. When Chen Ge walked out from the room, everyone had an answer in their heart. Holding the head in his arm, with blood on the saw, it seemed that the man had really lost his mind!

"Of the six of you, none of you will escape!"

Chen Ge turned to look down the other side of the corridor. The youngest man was dragging Xiao Ling, who was unable to walk on her own, down the stairs. The man with the glasses was with them as well. When Xiao Ling saw Chen Ge walk out of the room with a bloody female head, her mind broke. She thought about hundred possibilities, but there was one that she did not even dare to attempt to think about.

The Haunted House designer can observe the situation inside the scenario through the cameras. Even if they aren't watching this, the employees will have immediately asked them for help. Unfortunately, I already had the stench seal up the way back, so if they do not wish to 'die', the only way left is to continue forward.

The combination of the scenario is done through the central computer, but there should be a way for the human designer to intervene somehow. They will open a way for the employees to pass, for them to save themselves. That way, I will be able to follow them as well.

Chen Ge looked at the camera.

I am now one of your employees, and my ghosts are the ghosts that possess the old objects that your futuristic theme park has brought from Eastern Jiujiang. Are you ready to face the consequences of your actions?

Even if they gave the visitors a running start, even if he was dragging the heavy electric saw, Chen Ge was confident that he would be able to catch up to them. His confidence in his physique came from the many Trial Missions that had been given to him by the black phone.

2

Chen Ge picked up his pace. The saw dragged against the wall, and Chen Ge started to sprint. The closing terror squeezed the hearts of those being chased. The man with the glasses dropped Xiao Ling's hand without any hesitation and chose to run away on his own. After a moment's hesitation, the young man decided to do that same. He dropped Xiao Ling on the ground and went after the man with the glasses.

"This is so unfortunate." Chen Ge slowly approached Xiao Ling. The heavy scent of blood fuzzed up Xiao Ling's mind. Her vision blurred before her focus ended on the face of the woman's head in Chen Ge's embrace.

"This... this is not real..."

Once Xiao Ling's eyes closed, Chen Ge turned to chase after the young man and the man with the glasses. The door to his side suddenly opened. A monster with a butcher's mask and his body covered in fake wounds stood at the door waving a cleaver. "Scream at the top of your lungs! Struggle as much as you want! The taste of organs filled with fear is the most delicious!"

Before he finished his line, he saw Chen Ge with the saw and Xiao Ling who had already fainted.

"Brother Yi? Why are you still here? It's already 2:40 am. It's my turn now." The butcher's eyes finally saw the blood on the saw and the decapitated head. He was frozen for several seconds before he silently closed the door. "You seem busy. Perhaps my watch is a few minutes fast."

Bang!

The room door was kicked down, and the saw howled. The stinging scent of blood rushed into the room!

“What are you doing? Help!”

Chapter 972 - Who Are You?

Chapter 972: Who Are You?

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Dragging the large saw, Chen Ge slowly walked out from the room that had gone quiet. Blood slid down the chain, and the pair of lifeless eyes looked at the ground floor. The young man took out a ring of keys from his pocket. He grabbed the man with the glasses, and they ran toward the steel door that headed underground.

Why would have the key? Is it due to his occupation? No, the man is cheating. He probably has both the key and the things. No wonder he was able to maintain his calm no matter what.

...

From the start, the young man was different from the other ‘visitors’. He had probably been given a special task by the manager to disturb Chen Ge at crucial moments. The six visitors each had their own job. The futuristic theme park had it well planned, but they did not expect there to be a visitor like Chen Ge. They had made the most basic mistake. Chen Ge went down the stairs, and the stench was returning from the entrance. The police officer and the woman with the long hair had been scared senseless. The two of them ran out of the dormitory and planned to retrace their steps, but their way back was blocked. They screamed for help, but there was no answer. Finally, they fainted next to the wordless tombstone in the corridor.

“I’ll go chase after the two of them, and you’ll stay here to watch my back. There should be other actors in this scenario. Try to make them faint as well.” The door to the basement had been opened. The man with the glasses and the youngest man ran into the door. “The way out is indeed hidden underground.”

When he entered the scenario, Chen Ge had guessed that the hidden paths on the surface were probably a distraction. Even if they found the key, they would not have escaped. To exit this scenario, one had to find the key that led underground.

Since the door was pushed open, the scenario presented the visitors with multiple options. The right option would move the plot forward, and the wrong option would kill them. The twelve zodiacs had another layer of meaning. He was a murderer whose name had not been exposed. This scenario's theme was puzzle-solving and murders. If the visitors thought that the murderers were just the ones hiding inside the rooms, they would be heavily mistaken. The real killer in this scenario was the clock. The murders that had already happened could not be undone, so time was the true hidden killer. If Chen Ge was not in a hurry to leave, he would have experienced this nicely and try to solve all the puzzles in the room, but he did not have time. A normal visitor would at most visit three to four scenarios at the same time, but Chen Ge had meshed forty scenarios together. To clear so many scenarios in the limited time, he would have to blaze a path that others had not attempted before.

"Run for your life. I will stay closely behind you." The saw roared. Chen Ge hugged the human head, dragging the saw while charging full speed ahead. The two floors aboveground were guest rooms, but the basement was a prison, and they were imprisoning several sets of skeletons.

"He's coming!" the man with the glasses screamed, and he broke out in cold sweat. He and the youngest man stood at the deepest part of the prison. They were trying to open one of the cells.

"Quick! He's coming! Soon!"

"I know! Don't rush me! Don't f*cking rush me!" The youngest man grabbed the keys with both hands, but his arms were shaking. The more he was urged, the more difficult it was for him to find the right key. The scent of blood snuck into their nostrils, and screams crawled into their air. It symbolized the slowly approaching footsteps of death.

"It's not this one! Not this one!" The man grabbed the keys and stuffed them into the keyhole. His eyes were bloodshot.

The modified saw ground against the cell bars. The clinging of metal sounded like the howling of fate. Chen Ge slowed down, and his icy gaze stared out from the metal and bone hoodie.

Crack!

"It's open!" the man screamed with excitement. He grabbed the man with the glasses and ran into the last cell.

The door slammed against the wall. The door was grabbed by a hand. Chen Ge looked into the cell. Behind a closet was a staircase that led upward. “Not bad, but you’re still too slow that I have to wait for you.”

Chen Ge held the saw and continued his chase. The stairs led to a changing room. The rows of lockers were covered in fresh, bloody handprints.

“A public bathhouse?” Before he continued to move forward, he heard the lockers jiggle as if something inside was trying to get out. The strange noise was getting louder and louder, covering Chen Ge’s footsteps. Just as Chen Ge was about to move forward, a locker next to him suddenly opened, and a human arm fell out. “A prop?”

To not lose the visitors, Chen Ge ignored it. After running out from the changing room, Chen Ge saw a barber who was shaving a person’s head. The man was facing away from the Chen Ge, and from the mirror placed before him, one could see the appearance of the barber and the customer he was surfacing.

Looking from the mirror, the barber seemed to be played by a real worker, but Chen Ge soon noticed something wrong. When a normal visitor walked in, it would be fine for the barber to maintain his serenity. However, he was wearing the costume of a serial killer, yet he barber’s tone and expression had not changed. That was strange.

“Customer, are you here to shave your head? It’ll be your turn soon. Please sit over there and wait for a while.”

In the mirror, the barber was focused on shaving his customer’s head, but in reality, the barber’s hands and shoulders had not moved. He kept his head lowered, and it was unclear what he was doing. Chen Ge was too lazy to respond. He just wanted to chase after his prey.

Holding the saw, Chen Ge walked toward the barber. The exit from the male bathhouse was next to the barber. But hearing his footsteps, the barber who was facing away from Chen Ge spoke again. “My dear customer, please don’t be impatient. I will be done with this customer soon.”

Chen Ge completely ignored the man. Just as he was about to reach the exit, the barber suddenly reached out to grab Chen Ge. His tone turned angered and indignant with a trace of madness. “Didn’t I tell you to wait? Didn’t I tell you exactly that? I was shaving his head!”

The barber whipped his body around. His palms were covered in blood, and he was holding the male customer’s decapitated head in his hands!

The barber's face was covered in wounds made from razors, and his expression was eerie. He reached his hands that held the human head before Chen Ge's face.

His fingertips touched the mask made from metal and bone. The head in his palm got knocked out of his grasp. The chilling sense of touch confused the barber. He was too deep in his role to realize what was happening. He continued to use a scary expression to look at Chen Ge in the murderer's costume.

“Who are...”

The scent of blood rushed out from behind Chen Ge. He slowly bent down and picked up the rolling customer's head and then stuffed it inside the barber's arms.

“Did you drop this man's head?” The chilling voice came from under the mask as the pair of deadly eyes stared closely at the barber. “Or this woman's head?”

Chapter 973 - The Extreme Experience

Chapter 973: The Extreme Experience

“Wo... woman’s head?” The barber felt a chill climb up his spine and enter his brain. He turned to look next to him, and there was a bleeding woman’s head lying next to him. Her eyes were open, and the bloody lips were moving like she was laughing!

“Ah!” The barber knocked into the fake costumer. The chair slipped, and he knocked against the table. The installed device appeared to be knocked out of the place, and the projection on the mirror disappeared. It was unclear whether it was from the pain or shock, but the barber fainted just like that.

“They need a better training. The futuristic theme park relies too much on technology, so they ignored the training of their workers. These workers were probably working somewhere else but were temporarily moved here for my visit.”

...

Not everyone had the quality to become a Haunted House worker. There was a big difference between an old worker and a newbie, like their ability to handle sudden emergencies. Chen Ge walked out from the male bathhouse. There were two routes outside. One led to the female bathhouse, and the other led to the bathhouse exit.

“There are footprints that led to both the exit and the female bathhouse. Have the two learned how to trick people?” After some close observation, Chen Ge noticed something through the direction of the footprints. “They first went to the exit, but they seemed to realize that the exit was locked, so they turned back to the female bathhouse. But if the young man is a cheater and has the keys to all the scenario, why can’t he just leave this place?”

Chen Ge was reminded of what the police officer had said earlier. The dormitory was a safe zone, and clearing another scenario would lead them out of the Haunted House.

“The police officer was describing the scenario if this was a medium difficulty tour, but I am challenging a tour that is a combination of forty hellish difficulty scenarios. In other words, perhaps there is no way out from the beginning!” Chen Ge had too little information on his hands. He had no idea how the central computer operated and had no idea how combining the forty scenarios would affect the central computer.

“But if there is no exit, that would be perfect.” Chen Ge dragged the electric saw and entered the female bathhouse. There were blood and water stains left on the ground. The footprints of the man with the glasses and the young man could be spotted easily. “Where could they have hidden themselves?”

The bathhouse looked dilapidated. Each shower was surrounded by wooden panels, forming individual cubicles. Pushing open the first cubicle, Chen Ge saw that the stained walls were covered in vicious curse words. He was not interested in that. He opened all the other cubicles close to him. When he reached the middle of the bathhouse, he heard the sound of running water like someone was showering. Soon after the water sound appeared, a woman’s voice came from the cubicle in the corner.

“Is someone there?” The woman’s voice was mellifluous. Between the softness, there was a trace of fear and pity. Just from her voice, one could imagine a poor little thing who needed help from a big strong man. Dragging the electric saw, Chen Ge pushed the cubicle doors open one by one. He did not see the man in the glasses and the other man anywhere.

“Can you lend me a hand?”

After opening a few more cubicles, Chen Ge only had four cubicles left that were unopened. The woman was inside one of the four cubicles.

“If the man with the glasses came here, he would have informed the other employees about me. The barber and the woman in the cubicle should have escaped and wouldn’t wait here to scare the supposed ‘visitors’.” Chen Ge prepared to leave, but something changed his mind. “One shouldn’t underestimate the ugliness of human nature. There’s a possibility those two b*stards purposely hid information about me from their colleagues and planned to use their colleagues to slow me down.”

For the safe of security, Chen Ge walked to the cubicle. Hearing the approaching footsteps, the woman began again. “Can you lend me some shampoo? I appeared to have forgotten to bring mine.”

The woman’s voice was pitiable, and that made it hard to deny her request.

“You want to borrow something?” Chen Ge was reminded of an urban legend related to a bathroom. A woman was killed inside a bathhouse, and her body was dismembered inside it. Later, whenever the bathhouse wanted to close for business at night, there would be a woman’s voice. Initially, she would ask to borrow shampoo, a towel, and then the body parts that she had lost.

“My hair is dirty. I have been washing it for a long time, but it refuses to get clean.” A gap was pushed open through the cubicle door. A fair and slender arm reached out from the cubicle. Her fingers landed lightly on the door. They slid down slowly, the supple fingers caressing the rough wooden surface. “My clothes are hanging outside. I can’t reach them myself. Can you please help me?”

“Of course I can help you, but I don’t think your hair will ever be clean again. How about I lend you a new head. That way, you won’t need to worry anymore.” When the woman pulled her hand back, Chen Ge tossed the headless woman’s head over the top of the cubicle and then stood waiting, leaning against the cubicle door.

A scream came out from inside the cubicle. The door behind him shook violently, but Chen Ge was thinking about something else.

The men’s footprints appeared inside the bathroom and walked through both the male and female bathhouses before they disappeared in this female bathhouse, so the exit must be somewhere around here. They didn’t even notify their other colleagues about me. Perhaps they were in such a hurry to escape that they forgot about it, or they did it on purpose.

With a cautious mind, sharp senses, a superior physique, and an appreciation for detail, the killer that Chen Ge played would bring an indescribable sense of pressure to the ‘visitors’.

“You won’t be able to escape.”

The commotion inside the cubicle quieted down. Chen Ge opened the door and picked up the headless woman’s head. He took a glance at the female actor who lay in a pool of fake limbs.

“Even though my livestream has been banned several times, but none of those time have been related to the fact that I have any remotely sexual content. This is a good haunted house. I hope you guys won’t go down the wrong path.”

Chen Ge went to the cubicle where the man with the glasses and the young man had disappeared. The showerhead dropped to the ground, and curses were written on the wooden walls. The ink for some of the words was heavier than others, and they were all related to human anatomy.

Knocking on the wooden wall of the cubicle, Chen Ge realized that the wooden boards with the heavier ink could be moved, and the wooden wall of the cubicle was pieced together. With some moving around, a gap could be formed in the middle, just like the wooden wall inside the cursed Japanese house.

“The clue to solve the puzzle should be inside the scenario.” Chen Ge narrowed his eyes and looked around. An answer rose in his heart. “There is no security camera installed here.”

Bang!

The saw knocked through the wall. Chen Ge hugged the headless woman’s head and looked down the dark hospital corridor that showed up behind the wall.

“A new scenario?” His gaze scanned the many sickrooms that lined the walls before they landed on the man with the glasses and the young man huddled at the other end of the corridor who were planning to make a call.

“Found you!” Even though Chen Ge’s mind was quick, his senses were sharp, and he had absolute attention to the smallest detail, he personally hated taking on more trouble than was necessary. The saw howled, and Chen Ge charged forward at full speed!

Hearing the sound, the man with the glasses and the young man knew that something was wrong. As both of them turned around, they happened to meet Chen Ge’s eyes. The sense of helplessness and despair swamped their bodies. The two continued to run with tears practically streaming out of their eyes. The young man had the ring of keys, and the two were forced to run into the next scenario. With the two leading the way, Chen Ge experienced the surgery room at midnight, the sickroom of Patient Zero, Minghun, Death Library, and a few other scenarios.

When they came to a scenario that looked like an old mansion, Chen Ge went to chase after the two visitors who were at the verge of a breakdown, but he stopped to slowly assess his surroundings. From the surface, this scenario looked much more normal than the other scenarios, but Chen Ge heard Xu Yin's voice here.

“The Red Specter with the stage costume has escaped here?”

There were no decorations at the old mansion. It appeared as if they had moved the entire mansion from the wilderness into the Haunted house.

After the man with the glasses and the young man tripped and crawled their way into the mansion, Chen Ge moved to follow them.

“The other scenarios were made from wooden boards and other modern materials. Only this scenario uses actual materials.” Chen Ge communicated with the headless woman and carefully followed behind the two ‘visitors’.

Chapter 974 - What Zhang Ya Wants

Chapter 974: What Zhang Ya Wants

4

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The mansion was rather old, and the floor was tiled with mottled stones. The walls were stacked with green bricks, and yellow talismans were stuffed between the bricks. The mansion looked normal, nothing special about it, but it gave off an uncomfortable feeling, probably due to the talismans.

...

As Chen Ge pushed open the red door. A thick moldy stench drifted out from within, and yellowed paper money littered the ground. A white calligraphed character 'fortune' was pasted onto the pillar inverted, and tons of paper dolls were dangling from the ceiling. As he walked further into the lobby, there was a large bronze mirror placed in the middle of the hall. Ritualistic characters were written on the surface of the mirror, and before the mirror were the decapitated heads of a cow, goat, and pig and a bronze ritual bowl with three snapped joss sticks.

"Are those animal heads real?" Before he got close, Chen Ge could smell the decaying smell from the sacrificial heads. However, the theme park did not seem like they planned to replace them. "I'm surprised the theme park would have such a traditional scenario."

Avoiding the bronze mirror, Chen Ge looked around. There were twenty-four scrolls of evil Specters hanging on the wall of the hall. In every painting, the Specter was missing a body part. Some was missing eyes, others legs.

"Why are all the Specters handicapped? Are they afraid that if the painting is completed, the Specter will come out from the scroll?" The scrolls looked quite ancient and not duplicated. Chen Ge walked up to the scrolls, and the more he studied them, the more familiar they felt. "They look familiar to the devil that Doctor Gao carved on the door in my haunted house. When Chang Wenyu wanted to destroy the door of the School of the Afterlife, a similar picture to these Specters was seared on her back. But the difference is, both Chang Wenyu and Doctor Gao were working with the real deal, but the Specters here are all missing something. Their soul is not complete.”

1

Holding up the headless woman’s head, Chen Ge asked if she could sense something from the scrolls. She looked at them for a long time and even used her blood vessels to touch them but did not find anything strange.

“The whole mansion is permeating with this uncomfortable feeling. I cannot recognize many of the ritualistic characters, but I do not think that they are meant to pray for blessings or safety.” Chen Ge wanted to study things further, but the sound of things falling came from the side hall. Holding the saw, Chen Ge pushed open the door. There were blood stains on the ground, causing the dyed paper money to stick to the ground. Once he entered the room, Chen Ge felt overwhelmed by discomfort, like something had enveloped his body, causing him to have difficulty breathing.

Something’s not right.

He did not continue to move forward but stood at the door. It did not take long for him to hear the voice of the man with the glasses. “Move faster. That man might be here soon.”

“I know, but I don’t think I have the key to this door.”

“Didn’t you say you can open all the doors inside the haunted house?” the man with the glasses asked urgently, but he did not dare raise his voice.

“Before we came in here, I memorized all the guides to the scenarios, but I have no memory of this scenario at all! Really, I regret ever stepping in here. I have no recollection of this scenario at all.” The young man’s voice was quivering.

“There is no record of this scenario on the computer?”

“Yes, you keep telling me to open the door, but I don’t even have the corresponding key, so how do I do that?”

“That’s impossible! Could the information be mistaken?”

“The document was given to me the day before Bai Buhui went to visit Western Jiujiang Haunted House. Do you think there'd be a problem?"

"With Manager Bai's cautious nature, there shouldn't be a problem," the man with the glasses said. "What do you think went wrong?"

"When our haunted house was first built, part of the scenario was handled by Qing Ming and Director Jiang Jiu. Perhaps they added this scenario without telling the rest," the young man said. "That director Jiang Jiu has always been a mysterious character. He probably knew that our haunted house would one day get really haunted, and we're his sacrificial lambs."

1

"Jiang Jiu? I think I remember him. Initially, our theme park didn't want to build a haunted house, but it was at his insistence that the upper management agreed."

"Yes, that's him. He sure has harmed a lot of people with his decision." The two discussed the matter softly. Their voices came from outside the side hall.

They don't have the key to this scenario? The mansion is not in the haunted house recorded?

Chen Ge did not chase after them. With his Ghost Ear, other than the voices of the two 'visitors', he could also hear Xu Yin and the sound of someone singing a traditional tune.

Xu Yin is a reticent person. To be able to make him speak, this must be a powerful opponent.

Chen Ge did not dare to imagine that he was inside a working theme park. People crowded the theme park, and the number of visitors reached into the millions. In such circumstances, he had run into a Red Specter who could rival Xu Yin.

The two visitors are trapped inside the courtyard, and Xu Yin and the stage costume Red Specter should be outside the yard wall. Chen Ge sighed. The two visitors are indeed lucky. If they had the key, they might open the door to witness the fight between three Red Specters. Then it would not be as simple as fainting; their world might be turned upside down.

Through the two visitors' conversation, Chen Ge knew that this was the scenario that he was looking for. He did not need guides. When the stench caught up to him, with the accompaniment of two Red Specters, he pushed open the door to the side hall. At that moment, the man with the glass were squatting next to the wall, and the young man was stepping on his shoulders. He appeared to intend to jump over the wall. The two were caught in this posture when they saw Chen Ge as well as the headless woman and the fat stench that followed behind him.

The man with the glass shook the young man off. Chen Ge ignored them. He raised the saw and slammed into the locked courtyard door. It felt like he was being chased as well. After the door flung open, Chen Ge ran out. The man with the glasses and the young man were collapsed on the ground and stared right into the eyes of the two Red Specters.

Chen Ge ignored the screams that came from behind him. He jogged out from the courtyard. The first thing he did was guard himself with the saw and lean against the wall. After ensuring that he would not be attacked, Chen Ge used his Yin Yang Vision to study his surroundings. The Red Specter in the stage costume was surrounded by Xu Yin and the red high heels. She was on the losing side, but even facing the attacks, she did not dodge, opting to face them head on.

She seems to be protecting something.

After shifting to another angle, Chen Ge noticed that there was another altar behind the Red Specter. The altar looked the same as the one inside the cursed house, but there was a decapitated mud statuette inside this altar. The statuette was covered in crimson blood, and the statuette had Chen Ge's name carved into it.

1

Why is my name on the statuette?

Before Chen Ge recovered from his shock, his heart started to beat. The shape of the shadow behind him started to change. There was a voice in his mind that told him to get close to the altar and grab that statuette.

Chapter 975 - Nine Rivers

Chapter 975: Nine Rivers

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Is that a curse?” Seeing a statuette with his own name being decapitated, anyone would feel bad, and Chen Ge was no exception, but he did not act rashly. When the headless woman and the stench joined him and surrounded the Red Specter with the stage costume, Chen Ge took steps forward.

“Is the altar your item of possession?” Seeing no response from the Red Specter, he took another step forward. “This initially had nothing to do with me, but the statuette inside the altar has my name on it. Someone is trying to hurt me, so I have to get to the bottom of this.”

...

The Red Specter appeared to understand Chen Ge. She shook her head as if trying to say that the statuette and the altar had nothing to do with Chen Ge.

“The statuette has the name Chen Ge carved into it, and my name is Chen Ge.” Chen Ge put down the saw. “You won’t be able to face four Red Specters on your own, and I do not wish to harm you. Please stand down.”

Pressured by four Red Specters, the woman in the stage costume finally surrendered and moved to the side.

“Xu Yin, get the statuette for me and bring the head as well.” This altar was the biggest secret at this Reincarnation Haunted House. Chen Ge was afraid of a trap, so he did not go and grab it personally. The pale hand reached inside the altar. Xu Yin’s hand closed around the statuette’s body, and at the same time, all the ‘death’ characters inside the altar started to leak blood. Blood capillaries stuck to the statuette like the altar refused to let it go.

“Go and help.”

With the joint effort of the headless woman and Xu Yin, they finally took the statuette out. The statuette looked normal, like one a child would make with mud by the river. It barely looked like a human.

“Let me see.” Chen Ge reached toward the statuette, but Xu Yin moved away from him. He pointed at the black blood stain on the statuette and shook his head, as if warning Chen Ge that the stain would harm him greatly.

“It’s covered in curses? Then hold it well and let me take a look.” Chen Ge walked to Xu Yin’s side. When he was closer, he realized that other than Chen Ge, the word ‘death’ had been carved into the statuette. However, they were so small that they were hard to notice.

Looking at the statuette caused Chen Ge to shiver. “This doesn’t really look like me. It’s covered in death, so it’s more likely a representation of the ghost fetus.”

Chen Ge did not know why this thing was inside the altar and did not know why this Jiang Jiu person wished to build such a scenario inside the Haunted House, but he knew that Zhang Ya seemed to want the statuette.

“Place the statuette on my shadow.” Xu Yin followed the instruction. After he placed the statuette on Chen Ge’s shadow, the blood stain on it slowly lightened, like the thing that it possessed was slowly being sucked away by Chen Ge’s shadow. “I once saw a wooden box at the ghost stories society. Zhang Ya cared a lot about the black blood stain inside it as well. The society went through a lot to take that out from behind the door. Could this statuette come from behind the door as well?”

After entering the world behind the door many times, Chen Ge knew that it was difficult to take anything out from that world. That was why such items were so rare in the real world. The blood stain on the statuette slowly disappeared, and the death characters seemed to embed themselves deeper into the statue. The blood appeared to have been protecting the statuette, but now that it had been sucked away by Chen Ge’s shadow, the death characters jammed into the statuette like nails.

The woman in the stage costume wanted to stop this, but once she got close to Chen Ge’s shadow, she felt something, and without the interference from Xu Yin, she astutely returned to her place. The last blood stain disappeared, and the statuette cracked and shattered. Chen Ge’s heart rate returned to normal, and the voice in his heart disappeared.

The black blood taken from behind the door seems to help Zhang Ya a lot. I should pay notice to this.

When the statuette cracked, the death characters inside the altar slowly returned to normal. The person who created the altar appeared to want to use the altar to absorb something and control the mud statuette so that it would not go out of control. That was a good idea. A normal visitor would not go there, but he did not expect Chen Ge to go to visit on their second day of opening.

If the statuette is really related to the ghost fetus, this is serious.

Chen Ge picked up the statuette. After losing the blood stain, it was just a normal broken statue.

Looks like I need to have a chat with this Jiang Jiu. He must have a reason for doing something like this in Eastern Jiujiang.

Putting away the statuette, Chen Ge had Xu Yin and the red heels study the altar. After ensuring that it was now free of threats, they surrounded the woman in the stage costume. The woman should know the truth about the altar, so Chen Ge decided to have a chat with her. “Are you being threatened by them, or is this altar yours and they have taken it away from you?”

Hearing Chen Ge, the woman shook her head before nodding. She appeared to be very afraid. She kept glancing at the altar like the altar represented something very scary.

“I have limited time, so it seems that I’ll have to ask you to come with me for now.” With the persuasion from four Red Specters, the woman was sent into the comic. “You will love your new home.”

3

Chen Ge walked around the altar. He did not notice anything, so he gave up. He led the four Red Specters into the last room of the mansion. There was a complete devil painting hanging on the wall, but the body was pieced together. Even though it was not lacking any body parts, it looked so disconcerting. Behind the painting was a sacrificial table. On top of it were nine paper dolls. Eight of them were unnamed, but the first one had the name ‘Jiang Jiu’.

“It’s this Jiang Jiu again.” Chen Ge looked at the paper dolls. “If Jiang Jiu is really helping the ghost fetus, do these nine dolls mean that there are eight more people like Jiang Jiu?”

Staring at the paper dolls, Chen Ge soon discovered something else. If the table was overlaid with the map of Jiujiang¹, the nine paper dolls were placed strategically along the nine rivers that crisscrossed the whole of Jiujiang. The city was surrounded by nine big rivers, and the old generation would say that this was a rare Feng Shui location that gave the city good fortune.

“Jiang Jiu in reverse is Jiu Jiang. Could this be a fake name?”

Without any useful information, Chen Ge summoned back all the Red Specters. He took the ring of keys from the young man and pressed on. The actors in the Haunted House appeared to have been notified. Chen Ge did not see any actors along the way, but there was an explosion of projections. They were so close to each other, and he saw one every few steps. The visitation hour of one hour was already over, but Chen Ge was still exploring the scenarios. It was not that he did not want to leave, but there were too many things to see.

This was the first time that the central computer had done something like this. Most of the scenarios were forced to be created before their completion, and there was some danger to that. Chen Ge cleared a few more small scenarios. The difficulty had been tweaked to go over the room, and the frequency of the ghosts lowered. He believed that he was getting close to clearing all the scenarios, so he found a blind spot and removed the murderer's costume.

It was fun playing at the actor, but he could not walk out like that. His aim had been accomplished, so it was better to keep a low profile.

“In the end, I am the only visitor left. This is so lonely.”

Chapter 976 - The Only Survivor

Chapter 976: The Only Survivor

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The scenarios joined together to form a big maze. Some of the scenarios were huge; others were just a single room. Chen Ge wandered aimlessly around the haunted house with the keys. He realized that most of the scenarios were interconnected, and they had different ways of clearing the scenarios.

“Didn’t the visitors say the haunted house has been filled with many old objects? How come I haven’t encountered any? Or are most of the old objects not possessed and Jiang Jiu moved them in here to cover up for the altar and the old mansion? No wait, I missed one thing. There was that windchime in the cursed house. There was something in it.”

...

Chen Ge did not want to have any regrets, so he took a shortcut back. He first returned to the dormitory to grab his wrist band, clothes, and backpack and then removed the wooden boards to get back into the cursed house. Once he entered it, Chen Ge noticed that something was not right. The lights in the corridors were flickering, and many people were gathered and heading his way.

“The other workers finally gathered their courage to come in here.”

The tour was not forced to stop, and the central computer did not shut down. Under those conditions, the manager of the Reincarnation Haunted House had to gather fifteen people before they dared to get into the haunted house to initiate the ‘rescue’.

“Be careful! All employees have lost contact! Be careful of anything!”

“Boss, from the surveillance, I notice that some of our workers are in serious trouble. Are we sure we’re not calling the police?”

“This the second day our theme park has been open for business! If the police arrive, do you know what that means? Many people are already suspicious about our theme park’s technology, thinking that this kind of immersive experience will harm the brain and senses. If we call the police, won't we be admitting that they're right?"

"But..."

"If the problem becomes serious enough, I will call the police. I don't need you to tell me that! Now, just follow my orders! Right! Some of you go and chase away the reporters that have gathered at the entrance!"

"Brother Jiang, we have investigated the actor who played the saw murderer. His name is Lee Xiaoyi. He's one of our old workers."

"Why would an old worker suddenly go on a rampage? Has he gone to the mansion in the middle of the haunted house?"

"No clue..."

Hearing these people's conversation, Chen Ge knew that he would not have a chance to find the windchime, so he slid away quietly.

Could the Brother Jiang the employees refer to be Jiang Jiu?

There was no reason for Chen Ge to stay, so he prepared to leave.

...

Opening the rusted door, the wandering projections dispersed. The crying and laughter inside the haunted house slowly dwindled away, and a spotlight shone on Chen Ge. He saw a staircase that led upstairs. Moving up the steps, Chen Ge returned to the surface.

"Someone's coming! Someone's coming out!"

"After everything that's happened, someone's finally managed to come out safely!"

"This haunted house at futuristic theme park is too scary!"

The commotion was about to go through the roof. After his eyes got used to the light, Chen Ge looked around. He was standing at the exit of the haunted house, and he could see the entrance from where he was standing.

At that moment, many workers were moving 'visitors' that had fainted from inside the haunted house. This was pretty common at New Century Park. The haunted house was surrounded by bustling visitors and several reporters. Everyone took videos and pictures on their phones, saying how scary the haunted house was. Fainted visitors were continuously being ferried out from the entrance, and Chen Ge, who stood alone at the exit, caught the attention even if he did not wish to. The crowd rushed toward him and surrounded him in the middle.

“The visitors that went in with you have all fainted! You’re the only one who is still conscious. Can you tell us how you feel now?” a reporter asked Chen Ge. There were a few other visitors who were taking pictures of Chen Ge.

“The visitors that went in with me?” Chen Ge looked at the people who were being carried out from the haunted house. He shook his head and took out his phone. “There were six people who entered the haunted house with me, but they are not normal visitors. They are theme park’s employees! This is nothing but a self-directed play.”

Pushing the play button, Chen Ge played the recording before all the visitors and reporters.

“We’re allies! We’re all workers here! I am Lee Li, and she is Zhang Ling. You haven’t received the notice, right? Both of us followed a visitor to enter this place!”

“We... we are your colleagues. Other than that Chen Ge, we are all colleagues here. I’m telling you the truth!”

Chen Ge had many similar recordings, but he chose two of the most critical ones.

“Seven people went in on the tour, but six of them were actually workers at theme park. I am the only real visitor. I really don’t know how to describe what they have done.” Chen Ge stood at the exit and looked quite angry. “The thing that confuses me the most is, they knew that they cannot stop me, so they did something to cause their own employees to go unconscious to create this impression of how scary their haunted house is.”

“Move it, move it!” After hearing the commotion on this side, the designer Qing Ming squeezed through the crowd. When he saw Chen Ge standing at the exit, it was like he had seen a ghost. His face was filled with disbelief. The combination of forty hellish scenario had jammed the computer, so how did he survive?

“Chen Ge?”

“Your timing is perfect. Come and explain yourself. Why, of the seven supposed visitors, did you include six employees from the theme park? To scare me, you surely have put in a lot of effort.” Chen Ge took out his phone and played the recording again.

“Put in a lot of effort?” Qing Ming grumbled bitterly. “All we did was learn the dirty trick from you.”

When he saw his own people scared unconscious, he had come up with the solution. If all the visitors had fallen unconscious, it would prove how scary the haunted house was. Since everyone had fainted, he could say anything he wanted, just like how Chen Ge did at his haunted house. But he did not expect all the workers to have fainted but the only real worker to have walked out from the exit. Just as he thought things could not get worse, Chen Ge took out the evidence of the worker IDs that he had snatched from the other ‘visitors’ to show everyone.

1

“There must be a misunderstanding here. Please stop taking pictures.” Qing Ming wanted to drag Chen Ge away from this gauntlet of media and to help himself calm down, but this man who was of average build was far more powerful than he thought. He failed to drag him away but instead was dragged back into the spotlight by the man.

“Qing Ming, you haven’t given us an explanation.” Chen Ge grabbed Qing Ming. “Why did you order six other theme park workers to join me on this tour?”

The camera flashes and the voices from the visitors blurred Qing Ming’s mind. His forehead was covered in sweat, and he was starting to envy the workers that had fainted.

Chapter 977 - Hidden Job, The Volunteer

Chapter 977: Hidden Job, The Volunteer

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Why don’t you say something? So many people are waiting.” Chen Ge grabbed hold of Qing Ming. No matter what the man said, he had come up with something to counter it. Even if Qing Ming pretended to faint before the crowd, he had ways to resuscitate him.

“Everyone, please give me some time.” Qing Ming was desperate. He had a few excuses, but none of them seemed valid. For Qing Ming, every second standing next to Chen Ge was torture. He looked at Chen Ge pleadingly, hoping that Chen Ge would forgive him, but Chen Ge opened his own livestream on his phone. “The ban has been lifted. This is perfect.”

...

Chen Ge broadcasted the evidence before the millions of online viewers and ‘reconstructed’ the whole event. Chen Ge was a visitor and had gone to challenge the futuristic theme park’s Haunted House alone, but in the end, the six fake visitors were rendered unconscious, and he was the only one who survived.

The whole thing stank of fishiness. But no matter which perspective one took, Chen Ge was the real victim. Taking on the Haunted House alone, going to the other person’s territory, he was powerless if the futuristic theme park wanted to play dirty, and play dirty they did. But reality always took a funny turn. When the employees from the futuristic theme park went to visit Chen Ge’s Haunted House, New Century Park’s old fans had opened bet to see how many visitors would faint this time.

But the next day, when Chen Ge went to visit the futuristic theme park’s Haunted House. The online users had been betting how worse for wear Chen Ge would be after the ordeal, but in the end, it was the actors who were scared witless. The old fans finally got the lesson. Whether it was New Century Park’s Haunted House or another theme park’s haunted house, should Chen Ge visit, someone would faint. The man was like a walking taser.

1Chen Ge was happily chatting with the viewers, but Qing Ming was at his limit. Thankfully, another manager from the futuristic theme park came over, and Qing Ming was rescued. After some persuasion and tact, they finally pulled Chen Ge into the themed scenario. When they noticed that Chen Ge was still on the livestream, they wanted to cry, but there were no tear left.

“Boss, you have already finished your tour. Our employees went to your haunted house to create trouble. As awful as that was, they have already received the punishment they deserved. After Liu Gang wakes up, we will urge him to publish an apology video.” Qing Ming had surrendered. He just wanted Chen Ge to leave.

“So, it will end up being Liu Gang’s fault for the whole thing, right?” Chen Ge looked at Qing Ming with a smile. “I promised to visit your haunted house alone, but you weren’t satisfied with that and found six other actors to work together to bully me. Isn’t that a bit too much? Didn’t that cross the line?”

“It’s mainly because you combined forty scenarios at once. We haven’t dealt with something like that before. We had them follow you because we wanted them to protect you.” Qing Ming had come up with this excuse after some time. He was quite a clever person, but when faced with Chen Ge, his tongue was caught by the cat. “It’s about noon. How about we take a break for lunch? We both need some time to calm down, and we can continue this conversation later. How does that sound?”

“It’s not even 11 am yet. Why are you talking about lunch break?” Chen Ge held the phone and dragged Qing Ming into the camera. “Don’t worry, I am a reasonable person. As long as you give me a satisfactory answer, I won’t keep hounding you.”

Chen Ge removed the wrist band. “I’ll return your stuff first. I remembered you saying that the points will be shown on the big screen outside the Haunted House.”

“I did.” Qing Ming accepted Chen Ge’s band and keyed in Chen Ge’s ID on the computer. Moments later, a number that stunned him appeared—4,200 points!

“So, how did I do?” Chen Ge was quite curious himself. Clearing one hellish scenario would nab him one hundred points, and he had combined over forty scenarios.

“There seems to be a problem with the computer. Let me recover the data...” Before Qing Ming could do any funny business, Chen Ge grabbed his hands.

“At least have some honor.” Chen Ge could see things from Qing Ming’s perspective. The current first place visitor had 105 points. It meant that Chen Ge’s name would stay on the scoreboard for a very long time unless the futuristic theme park cheated.

“Our visitation time is sixty minutes. You have seriously gone over the time limit, so this doesn’t count.” Qing Ming flung Chen Ge’s hand away. “We’re only following the rules.”

“It doesn’t count because I went over the time?” Chen Ge extended his hand toward Qing Ming. “Then give me back the wrist band.”

“What do you want to do?”

“Keep the forty scenarios combined. I’ll speedrun it in sixty minutes. This is perfect. This will give the viewers a chance to follow me on this journey.” Chen Ge put the wrist band on and turned to the camera. “The camera might be shaky because I’ll start running.”

“There’s no need to do that. You just came out, so you need to rest...”

“It’s fine. Visiting your Haunted House is just the relaxation that I need.” Chen Ge stood at the entrance. “You’re only following the rules, right? I have millions of viewers watching.”

1...

Thirty-nine minutes later, the leader of the futuristic theme park was answering the media’s questions when the crowd suddenly quieted down. The leader was stunned. He followed the crowd’s gaze and almost lost his soul. “Why is it you again?”

“Just ignore me and do your thing.”

Chen Ge walked out from the haunted house’s exit the second time. “During my first challenge, the manager here said that they won’t key in my points because my time was overboard, so I speedran it.”

1“Why did he refuse to key in your score?”

“A Haunted House can be speedrun?”

“Please wait!”

Walking through the crowd, Chen Ge removed the wrist band and handed it to Qing Ming. “This time, I’m sure it’s within sixty minutes. If you still have any problems, I can clear it again. After all, I have nothing better to do today.”

“I have no more problems. Since you have finished the tour, please return to your own haunted house. We know you are a busy man.” Qing Ming honestly keyed in Chen Ge’s score. “How did you speedrun such a high difficulty scenario? Are you born without fear?”

“The reason I can do that is because you have given me the random occupation of volunteer worker. The job looks normal, but it has a hidden buff. When your people try to challenge this, tell them to give it a go.”

“The volunteer? The most useless occupation was actually the most powerful?”

Chen Ge was just joking, but Qing Ming memorized it clearly.

Then yelps of surprise came from outside the Haunted House. Chen Ge’s name appeared on the big screen. He dominated the ranking with 8,400 points. He was over eight thousand points ahead of second place.

2“Qing Ming, does the leader that is speaking outside have the surname Jiang?” Chen Ge sidled up to Qing Ming with the phone.

Qing Ming truly hated Chen Ge. If Chen Ge was not livestreaming, he would have asked the security to throw Chen Ge out. “Why do you want to know that?”

“I heard that your theme park initially didn’t plan to build a haunted house. It was at the insistence of someone by the name of Jiang Jiu that this project was approved. I believe that he is a Haunted House aficionado, so I wish to have a chat with him.”

“Manager Jiang is not someone whom you can meet freely, but his son is helping out at this haunted house. If you’re really that interested, go and find his son, Jiang Ming.”

“Jiang Ming?” Earlier, Chen Ge had run into a worker with the surname Jiang inside the Haunted House. The man looked about his age, and he was responsible for the rescue. The other workers called him Brother Jiang.

Chapter 978 - Red Specter's Favored

Chapter 978: Red Specter's Favored

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Chen Ge remembered the name Jiang Ming. He was about to ask something else when Qing Ming took out his phone that was inactive from his pocket and ran out as if he had to leave to take an emergency call.

“Is that necessary?” As a visitor, Chen Ge was abandoned at the theme park. It was as if a message had been given to all the futuristic theme park workers—they were to stay away whenever they saw Chen Ge, and they were not to talk to him. “I feel like I’ve been ostracized.”

...

Chen Ge’s livestream was still ongoing. The viewers who saw this felt tickled, and they kept mocking Chen Ge in the chatroom.

“Looks like the futuristic theme park has made the decision to ignore me. Does this count as a silent surrender?” Chen Ge felt like it was pointless for him to stay. He walked out from the Reincarnation Haunted House. The moment he left, his phone suddenly vibrated. “Everyone at theme park knows that I’m livestreaming. Who would be calling at a time like this?”

Chen Ge normally only used one phone. He glanced at the caller ID, and he quickly answered it when he saw that it was Lee Zheng.

“Inspector Lee, what can I help you with?”

“I heard that it was you who reported that there had been a hidden murder at Eastern Jiujiang’s Jiang Yuan Apartments?” Lee Zheng did not waste time on pleasantries and cut straight to the point.

“Yes.”

“We’ve found the body. Where are you now?”

“No wait, even if you’ve found the body, what does that have to do with me? I'm not the killer." Chen Ge did not know whether the chatroom could hear his voice or not. When he accepted the call, he did not close the livestream. After all, a stream that had more than a million viewers could earn him a lot in donations.

"Come to Jiang Yuan Apartments now. We found your hair at the crime scene."

"My hair? Impossible!" After Chen Ge thought about it, he believed that it was his hair that got stuck on the jacket when he lent it to the female ghost.

Last night, I kept my eyes closed. I have no idea what the female ghost looked like, and I have no idea what appeared before me...

"Stop wasting time. If you do not arrive in an hour, the next call that I'll make will be quite different."

"Understood. I am in Eastern Jiujiang, so I'll be heading there now." Chen Ge was still livestreaming. If the viewers saw him being taken away in a police car, he would not know how to explain that. After hanging up, the livestream returned to normal. Chen Ge ignored the chat, gave a few random words to the viewers, and logged off.

It felt right to have visited the futuristic theme park this time. It not only helps me relax, I managed to find clues related to the ghost fetus.

Chen Ge looked at the comic inside his backpack. When he entered the Haunted House for the second time, he finally found the windchime in the cursed house. It was possessed by a little girl's lingering spirit. The spirit seemed to be related to the woman in the stage costume, so without wasting time, Chen Ge 'invited' the girl to join him in the comic.

3 "It's time to leave." Chen Ge turned to look at theme park behind it. The visitors were still coming. It was almost noon, but there were still buses coming to unload batches of visitors.

Without the haunted house, there is no chance New Century Park can even compete with this big beast.

Chen Ge put away his phone and took out the black phone.

Previously, I always make the lucky draw at my theme park. I should try it once at someone else's theme park. Perhaps there'll be a surprise.

Clicking open the Wheel of Misfortune, Chen Ge saw the familiar rules.

With the wheel, there's a chance that I'll get a Specter, but there's a higher chance that I'll get something else.

Walking to the entrance of the futuristic theme park, Chen Ge squeezed through the crowd. He lifted his head to look at the sun and purposely chose a spot where the sun would hit him squarely.

Time to try my luck.

Chen Ge spun the wheel. When the needle stopped, the black phone vibrated.

1“Congratulations Specter's Favored for winning a special item—a faceless picture!

“Faceless Picture: The first time I forget you is when I look at your picture. I cannot remember who is in the picture. I only know that he is important to me. I asked you, and you told me that it's you. Later, I cannot remember how many times I've forgotten you until the day you stopped appearing, and I have forgotten what I should have forgotten.

“Congratulations Specter's Favored for drawing your fifth Specter. Your title has been upgraded to Red Specter's Favored!

“Red Specter's Favored: Misfortune, bad luck, pressure, pain, and the embrace of a Red Specter equals to a shadow that you cannot shake for life. You will gain the truth and lose everything at the same time.

1“Warning! Red Specter's Favored, your title will upgrade again after you've drawn another ten Specters!”

1The sun shone on Chen Ge's body, drawing his shadow long. Chen Ge, who melted into the crowd, stood where he was, holding the black phone. No one paid him notice, and no one understood his feelings. For Chen Ge, being favored by Red Specters was a good thing, but the description that the black phone had for this title was again too ambivalent. Chen Ge knew that the title would influence both Specters and Red Specter, but the extent or nature of the influence, whether it was good or bad for him, Chen Ge had no idea.

“Based on the description alone, it sounds like a reward, but it could also be a hidden punishment. No wait, if this happened to a normal person, it would be the cruelest punishment.”

Chen Ge initially wanted to draw ten more times, but he decided against it after he calmed down. The Specter drawn from the black phone would be related to an object. To gain the help of said Specter, he had to personally find the Specter and help them complete their wishes first. Putting the black phone away, Chen Ge left the futuristic theme park and hailed a cab to get to Jiang Yuan Apartments.

Twenty minutes later, Chen Ge got out of the taxi, and two police officers headed toward him. Chen Ge had no idea who they were, but the officers recognized Chen Ge with one glance. In a way, Chen Ge could be considered a celebrity of sorts in a certain circle.

“Inspector Lee is on the twelfth floor.” Many tenants were standing outside their rooms. The two police officers led Chen Ge as they cut through them. The three reached the twelfth floor.

“Brother Zheng!” Chen Ge was quite happy to see Lee Zheng, even though they had just met each other two days ago. “Has the man who collapsed at the mental hospital woken up? The patient called Chang Gu, he only has one eye.”

“We can talk about that later.” Lee Zheng grabbed Chen Ge and led him to the deepest part of the twelfth-floor corridor. “Were you here last night?”

“I was.” Chen Ge did not know what Lee Zheng was going to ask him.

“Did you know about the murder that happened here before you came last night?”

“Is that important?”

“If you knew about the murder before coming here but chose not to report that to the police, instead opting to do your own vigilante investigation, I will drag you back to the police station now and have you reflect on what you have done for a few days.” Lee Zheng gripped Chen Ge by his shoulders. “The day before last, you fainted at the mental hospital, and last night, you came to this countryside apartment area to conduct an investigation on a murder case that no one knew about. I can understand your urge to look for your parents, but this is too dangerous, way too dangerous.”

“I did not know about the murder here before I arrived; I can promise you that.” Chen Ge patted Lee Zheng lightly on his shoulder. “Brother Zheng, I would only conduct my investigation when I am ninety to one hundred percent confident, so you do not need to worry about my safety.”

“I know that you won’t listen to my advice, and I do not know how to correctly advise you, but it feels like you are being constantly chased by something, and you have been using all the energy that you have to keep on running forward.” Lee Zheng had years of experience at his job, and thus, he could read people very well. “Actually, you can trust us. You can choose to rely on us.”

Chapter 979 - My Name Your Name

Chapter 979: My Name Your Name

“Of course, I understand.” Chen Ge was appreciative of the law enforcement at Jiujiang. The police might not represent justice one hundred percent, but Chen Ge knew that at least Captain Yan and Inspector Lee had been trying their best to uphold the principle of justice, and they had lent Chen Ge a lot of help in the past.

“You say that, but you will repeat the same mistake next time.” Lee Zheng shook his head helplessly. He was sincerely trying to persuade Chen Ge. Compared to him, who had the support from his family and his other colleagues, all Chen Ge had was himself.

“Let’s not talk about that anymore. Brother Zheng, how did you find the body?”

...

“Based on what you told us, the investigation was not that difficult to do. There was no tenant living on the twelfth floor, but the monthly electric bill is suspiciously high. We naturally targeted this place. After opening the door, as expected, we found the dead body inside the freezer.”

“Then, has the culprit been captured?”

“The suspect should be the tenant. The victim is the tenant’s girlfriend, who suffered from anorexia. We’ve already got news on the tenant’s whereabouts and have sent people after him. If there’s no accident, we should be able to capture him and bring him to the station by tonight.” The police of Jiujiang was efficient in their work. In a way, that had to do with Chen Ge as well.

“That would be great. At least I will be able to give her some justice.”

“Justice?”

“Can I go in to take a look? This is probably not the first crime scene, so you don’t need to be afraid of me messing up the evidence.”

After he got the permission from Lee Zheng, Chen Ge entered the room. The room was not that big, and the girl's last moments were spent in this dingy place. Walking past the living room, Chen Ge entered the kitchen, and he saw the fridge and the freezer that were placed next to each other. He was reminded of the words that the girl had told him that night, and his heart felt sad and uncomfortable.

"The person that hurt you will be punished by law soon. He will not be able to escape."

Once Chen Ge said that, there was a light knocking inside the room. Lee Zheng turned to look behind him subconsciously, but with the help from the Ghost Ear, Chen Ge immediately turned to the freezer. Opening the lid, Chen Ge saw a thin girl curl inside the shadows of the freezer. She hugged her shoulders with both hands. Her head was slightly lifted upward, and her pale face was stained with tear. The sun hit her face, and her body turned fuzzy. But she did not seem to mind it. She appeared to want to spend the last moment of her 'life' bathing in the sunlight.

"Don't cry. You deserve a better life." Chen Ge reached into the freezer, wanting to help her wipe away her tears, but he could not touch anything. The sun shone between them like a gap that could not be crossed no matter what.

"Everything is fine now. I will take you home." Before the girl dissolved in the sun, Chen Ge took out the comic and pulled her into it. Looking at the empty freezer, Chen Ge stood there quietly for a while.

"What are you looking at? The dead body was discovered inside there, but everything has already been moved away." Lee Zheng walked over.

"It's nothing." Chen Ge picked up his backpack and waved at Lee Zheng, "If there's nothing else, I'll be leaving now."

"Do you think I called you here for a chat! Now, tell me in detail what you came here to do last night! After leaving your statement, when I decide that there is nothing else, you can go back and wait for the next summon!"

...

When Chen Ge returned to New Century Park, it was already late afternoon. Running between Eastern and Western Jiujiang, combined with a lack of sleep, the man was fatigued, and it was taking a toll on his body.

“No wonder they say home sweet home. It is my haunted house that’s the most comfortable.”

Lying in the staff breakroom, Chen Ge drifted off before he realized it. Without anyone to bother him, when Chen Ge opened his eyes again, the sky outside had already darkened.

“It is already 8 pm? I will need to set an alarm next time.” Chen Ge picked up the thin blanket that covered him and looked toward the door. The place was quiet. It sounded like all the employees had gone home. He placed the white cat that had been lying on top of him to the side. Then he noticed a note left on the table. Based on the handwriting, it should be from Xu Wan—‘We have already cleaned the place. Take a good rest and remember to have your dinner on time.’

Putting down the note, Chen Ge carried the backpack out of the staff breakroom and took a tour around all the scenarios. After making sure there were no problems, he went to the prop room and found the picture that he had drawn from the Wheel of Misfortune that morning on the wooden box in the corner. It was just a normal picture; there was nothing haunted about it. On the back of the picture, a date was written, December 21st. The front of the picture featured a young boy about ten. He wore a white, long-sleeved shirt, and his face was blurred out, but overall, he gave off a feeling of an obedient boy with a sunny disposition.

“How am I supposed to start looking? There is not even an address!” Chen Ge first memorized the date before he studied the picture closer.

“Wait, a fountain with lights? That looks like the garden in the city!” Without any other clues, Chen Ge decided to go to the city to take a look. After getting the black phone, Chen Ge had not been to the city in a while because the phone always directed him to some deserted area. Chen Ge did not remove the stuff from inside his backpack. Chen Ge placed the picture inside it and carried the backpack as he ran out from the haunted house. Hailing a cab to the city, when Chen Ge arrived at the park in his memory, he realized that his path was blocked. The park was undergoing construction, and only a small path was left open.

“Sir, why is the park blocked off? Can I still enter it?” Chen Ge found a man who was wearing a safety helmet near the park and asked him those questions.

“Why do you want to enter it? This park is about to be demolished. Can’t you see that all the trees inside have already been moved away?” The construction worker seemed like a good person to talk to.

“It’s being demolished?” Chen Ge had found this place through the picture. If the park was levelled, then this was where Chen Ge’s trail of clues would end.

“I hear they plan to build a mall here, but I do not know more than that.” The construction worker waved at Chen Ge. “We are doing some heavy duty work inside. You’d better not go in there now.”

“My friend left me a picture of the park. He’s not been feeling well recently, and he wished for me to take a few pictures of the park for him.” Chen Ge walked toward the small path. “I will be out in a minute.”

There were giant holes everywhere inside the park, and the tiles had been all turned up. The valuable aged trees had all been dug away, and all that remained was dirt and grass. Chen Ge held the phone, and based on his childhood memories, he walked through the park. He used to go to this park to play when he was small, but since it was so far away from Western Jiujiang, he did not go there often. He walked around for a while before Chen Ge finally found the place that was captured in the picture. However, the fountain was no longer pushing out water. The lights that surrounded it had also been removed, and only the rusted frame remained.

Weeds grew through the gap. The small shop that sold ice cream and cotton candy in the picture was gone. Comparing the picture and real life, the only thing that matched was the long bench next to the fountain.

“It is indeed the same place.” Chen Ge walked toward the fountain and looked around it before he sat down on the bench. “Now, what am I supposed to do next?”

He looked at the picture in his hand. His attention was fully drawn to it when he heard a woman’s voice in his ear.

“I’m sorry, but do you know Fang Yu?”

Chen Ge turned his head to look, and he realized that there was quiet looking woman standing behind him. The woman was about the same age as Chen Ge. Her skin was fair and her cheeks, neck, and arms were all filled with tattoos. All the tattoos had the same two characters—Fang Yu.

Chapter 980 - Fish With One Day Memory

Chapter 980: Fish With One Day Memory

A light drizzle started to fall, and in this small park where it was about to get demolished, Chen Ge encountered this strange woman.

“Excuse me, do you know Fang Yu?” That appeared to be the only sentence she knew. She looked at Chen Ge. Her eyes were like a lake in the mountains, clear as pure ice.

“Fang Yu?” Chen Ge took out the picture and showed it to the woman. “Is this him?”

...

Holding the picture with both hands, the woman looked at the boy in the picture. She looked for a long time before shaking her head. “I don’t know.”

“The picture was taken here at the park. The boy is facing the camera, so the person who took the picture should be standing here.” Chen Ge stood up to stand next to the fountain. “Does that jog your memory?”

The woman stood where she was with emptiness in her eyes.

“Okay, perhaps I was wrong.” Chen Ge returned to the bench. Some time later, the woman also joined him on the bench. She smelled like shampoo, and she was dressed cleanly, not like a person who could not take care of herself.

“Er... can I ask you a question?” Chen Ge turned to the woman. The woman had a beautiful side profile, but her cheeks were mostly covered up by tattoos, so under her beauty, there was a trace of horror about her. “Why would you come here so late at night to search for Fang Yu?”

“I remember coming here every day, but I cannot tell you why.”

“Then, do you know that this park is getting demolished? You won’t be able to come here anymore.” Chen Ge held the picture and focused on the woman. Hearing that, the woman did not answer but stared at the name tattooed on the back of her hand quietly.

“Why are you looking for Fang Yu? Is he your family?” Chen Ge tried to communicate with her, to get her to open up. Only then could he help her.

“I cannot remember, but I tattooed his name all over my body. That is probably because I do not wish to forget him.” The rain pattered down on them. In the old park, two strangers sat on the rusted bench.

“Actually... I know Fang Yu.” Chen Ge lowered his head, and the woman turned to him in shock.

“You know Fang Yu?” The woman stood up. “Can... can you bring me to go see him?”

“I can, but before that, I have to confirm something with you.” Chen Ge showed the picture to the woman again. “Do you really have no memory of this boy at all? Earlier, I noticed that you were studying it for a long time.”

“I have no memory of this person, but...” The woman pointed at the faceless boy in the picture. “He seems important to me.”

The woman’s words struck Chen Ge like lightning. He was reminded of the black phone’s introduction for the picture. The first time I forget you is when I look at your picture. I cannot remember who is in the picture. I only know he is important to me.

“Keep this picture.” Chen Ge shoved the picture into the woman’s hands.

“Why are you giving me this picture?” The woman was baffled.

“The faceless boy is Fang Yu.” Chen Ge observed the woman’s reaction.

After knowing that the boy was Fang Yu, there was some life that entered the woman’s eyes. She was like a baby who first opened her eyes to the world, and her clear eyes focused on the faceless boy in the picture. “Can you help me find him?”

“I can, but it is getting late. It’s too dangerous for you to stay outside alone. Why don’t I get you home first?”

Chen Ge was sure that this woman was no ghost; her body was warm. Holding the picture with both hands, the woman hesitated before nodding. “Okay.”

She did not put the picture into her pocket and held it by both hands as they walked out from the park. The woman had a presence about her that caused people to move away from her, and she appeared to be shy around strangers. She kept to the shadows with her head lowered as if she did not want to trouble anyone with her presence.

Chen Ge had the woman walk on the inside of the pedestrian walkway and he on the outside. He accompanied the woman silently past various blocks before stopping outside an old apartment building at the old part of town. All along the way, the woman kept her head lowered and her eyes on the picture, wordless.

“Xiao Yu!” When they got to the building, a rather large aunty ran out from the stairwell with an umbrella. “It started to rain. I was about to go get you!”

The aunty stopped next to the woman, and she regarded her like a mother would regard her daughter.

“It was you who walked her home, yes? Thank you so much, kind young man!” The aunty smiled at Chen Ge. “Xiao Yu, you should thank the man, too.”

“Wait a minute.” Chen Ge latched onto a detail. “Aunty, what did you call her?”

“Xiao Yu, is there anything wrong?” The aunty opened the umbrella and grabbed the woman’s arm lightly as she pulled her into the building. But to her surprise, the woman did not want to follow her and flung her grasp away. The woman did not seem to resist the aunty before, and this unusual behavior confused and confounded the aunty. “Xiao Yu, it’s raining. We’d better get inside.”

As the aunty tried her best to advise the woman, the woman suddenly turned. Gripping the picture tightly, she shouted loudly, “I am not Fang Yu! You got the wrong person! I am looking for him too!”

“How are you not Fang Yu? Who told you that?” The way the aunty looked at Chen Ge suddenly turned hostile. She could not deal with Fang Yu, so she turned on Chen Ge. “What kind of nonsense did you feed her? What kind of perverse person would find joy in bullying a girl like that?”

“Aunty, I think you’ve misunderstood something. She is really not Fang Yu.” Chen Ge concluded that from the black phone’s introduction. He did not think that the black phone would give him false information.

“What are you talking about? Take a look at this!” The aunty reached into the woman’s left pocket and took out a faded red wallet. She fished out the woman’s ID from it. “I don’t know what kind of sick plan you’re scheming, but I’m telling you, it’s not going to work with me around!”

Chen Ge took a glance at it. The woman’s name on the ID was indeed Fang Yu.

“She is Fang Yu?”

“If she’s not Fang Yu, who is? You?”

“But isn’t she looking for Fang Yu?”

“That’s how you tricked her, isn’t it?” The aunty stood protectively before Xiao Yu. “I don’t what you’re planning, but leave now, or I’ll call the police!”

Hearing the argument, a window on the first floor opened. An old man stood at the window. “What’s the ruckus about? What’s happening?”

“Someone wants to bully Xiao Yu!”

“Bully Xiao Yu?” Without even closing the window, the old man soon appeared at the entrance in slippers, holding a wooden sword used in Taoist ceremonies. “Is he the one who wants to bully Xiao Yu?”

“Please calm down.” Seeing the misunderstanding getting bigger and bigger, Chen Ge quickly tried to explain himself. “I didn’t bully her. I just want to help her.”

Chapter 981 - Will Never Forget

Chapter 981: Will Never Forget

“You can help Xiao Yu?” The aunty and uncle studied Chen Ge closely. “What are you? A psychiatrist?”

“I own a haunted house, but please believe me.” Chen Ge looked at the two sincerely.

“What nonsense are you talking about now? Leave!” The old man waved the sword. “Before I pull the sword on you!”

...

“Please calm down and give me ten minutes, okay? Just ten minutes.” Chen Ge used his phone to search for the news article where he had helped the law enforcement in Jiujiang. “Look at this. I am the one in the picture with the police. I really am a good person.”

“A helpful citizen that has helped the law enforcement many times?” The aunty and uncle compared Chen Ge to the man in the article a few times before they believed him. “What do you want from Xiao Yu?”

“I just want to help her. Can you bring me to meet her parents?” After Chen Ge realized that the woman had body temperature, he understood that the ghost that he was looking for was the boy in the picture.

“Xiao Yu was raised in an orphanage. She doesn’t have parents.”

“Does she have any other relatives? Who takes care of her, and who provided her with a home?” Chen Ge felt like it was quite hard for the woman to live independently in her current state, so she should have a caretaker.

“We have never heard Xiao Yu talk about her family before. She was abandoned here about a decade ago. She was just a little girl then, standing in the middle of the road. A few officers and I sent her to the police station, and then the people from the orphanage came. They were so reluctant to take Xiao Yu back. I couldn’t stand the look on their faces, so I allowed Xiao Yu to temporarily stay with me.” The aunt was kind and generous.

“A decade ago?” This time skip was so large that Chen Ge did not know where to start. Ten years was a long time for anyone, enough to forget about the pain and joy that one had experienced, and even the most precious memory faded with time.

“Has she always been like this for this past ten years?” Chen Ge looked at the woman holding the picture, staring with such focus at the faceless boy in the picture. She seemed to be remembering, but there was no recollection in her eyes.

“Yes, Xiao Yu suffers from memory loss. To get to the bottom of the truth, I’ve personally been to her orphanage to ask around. They told me that Xiao Yu’s memory has been bad since she was young. She couldn’t even remember the names of the other orphans, and that caused her to make a lot of mistakes in her chores.” The aunt sighed. “I don’t know whether they told me this on purpose or the illness got worse as she grew older, but after Xiao Yu moved in with me, her illness did worsen.”

“Her memory loss became more prevalent?”

“Yes, she would forget everything until she couldn’t even remember her own name. It was that day...” The aunt stopped to look at Xiao Yu with some sadness in her eyes. “It was that day that she started to tattoo her own name on her body. The name seems to mean a lot to her, and she refused to forget it no matter what.”

“Who gave her this name? The people at the orphanage?”

“No, I heard that when Fang Yu was abandoned at the hospital, there was 271 RMB in her pocket and a letter. The letter said that her name is Fang Yu.” The aunt remembered these things very well. She was truly concerned about Fang Yu and had done many things for her.

“That letter...”

Before Chen Ge asked, the aunt knew Chen Ge’s intention. “The letter has been lost for who knows how long already. Now, the only way to help Fang Yu find her parent is her name, Fang Yu.”

“That’s why she tattooed Fang Yu all over her body? No, there must be something you’ve missed!” Chen Ge stood in the rain. “A person wouldn’t spend so much effort to look for a parent that she hadn’t met. There is someone that she refused to forget at the deepest part of her memory. She believed that the person's name is Fang Yu, and she didn't want to forget that person!"

Chen Ge signaled for the uncle and aunt to get close to the woman. "Do you recognize the boy in this picture?"

"He doesn't even have a face. How are we supposed to tell?"

"You can get many information from the height, build, head shape, and so on. After Fang Yu moved here, has a boy like this appeared around here? Chen Ge asked.

"Fang Yu rarely interacts with others, but she goes to the nearby park every night. How would she know a boy that way?"

"She goes to the park every night? Are you sure about that?"

"Yes, Fang Yu only goes to the doctor in the morning or stays at home. Even for the tattooing, she only goes there at night."

"This information is very important." Chen Ge understood something. "Before moving here, Fang Yu knew this boy in the picture, and they went to the park."

Fang Yu looked about the same age as Chen Ge. The boy in the picture looked about eighteen, so ten years ago, Fang Yu should have been slightly younger than the boy.

"Fang Yu lived at the orphanage before this, so the boy in the picture probably grew up at the orphanage as well. They were childhood friends." The rain started to get heavier, and water slid down Chen Ge's face. "Fang Yu, do you know which orphanage Fang Yu comes from?"

"It's Jiujiang's Children's Home. It used to be a private orphanage and very unprofessional, but it's gotten much better in recent years."

"Jiujiang's Children's Home? There's where Fan Yu stays now!" Chen Ge prepared to take the picture, but the woman suddenly refused to let go.

"Fang Yu, I know that you wish to meet the man in the picture, and I will go get him to come meet you now!" Chen Ge pressed on the woman's hands lightly. "Perhaps he also has been waiting to meet you."

The woman slowly let go. Chen Ge put away the picture and ran away through the rain.

“Wait a minute!” The aunty had Fang Yu enter the building before she ran over with the umbrella. “Take this. Who knows when will the rain stop?”

“Thanks.” The backpack had the comic and picture, but Chen Ge did not deny the kindness.

“There’s no need to thank me. I saw it clearly just now. You wanted to take away the picture, but Xiao Yu refused to let go. This is the first time that she has cared about something so much.” The aunty handed Chen Ge the umbrella and took Chen Ge’s hands. “You have to help her, you understand? The first day she forgot her name, she broke the teacup and used the edge of the shard to carve the name Fang Yu on her body. When she woke up the next day, she forgot and repeated the whole process. No matter what, she has to remember that name, to stop her from injuring herself. It was me who took her to the tattoo artist.”

“I understand. I will get to the bottom of this.”

Chen Ge looked at the building. The woman was standing on the steps, staring blankly at the names carved on her arms. For other people, ten years would be long, but for her, it was just a mere repetition of the same day over the span of ten years.

Chapter 982 - The Past [2 in 1]

Chapter 982: The Past [2 in 1]

Holding the umbrella, Chen Ge walked into the raining city. He could not tell whether he was doing this for the mission or really wanted to help the woman. Perhaps it was a mixture of both.

He took a taxi to Jiujiang's Children's Home. Even though it was already way past the visiting hours, due to various reasons, Chen Ge knew the guard that was posted at the door and the teacher who looked after Fan Yu at the Children's Home. After waiting for a few minutes outside the door, Chen Ge was led into the children's home by that same teacher.

"Are you here to see Fan Yu? The child has gotten so much better compared to before. I do not know what happened, but he stopped closing himself up inside his own world, and he started to attempt to interact with others. The paintings that he draws are no longer that scary. Other than black and red crayons, he has started to use other colors as well." The teacher was very happy, and she could not stop praising the improvement that Fan Yu had shown.

...

Chen Ge had no idea whether Fan Yu's change had anything to do with the painter at the School of the Afterlife or not. Perhaps the knot in his heart had been undone, or perhaps the painter had gone to visit Fan Yu after he snuck out from the door. Anything was possible because the painter was an entity that Chen Ge could not understand.

"Actually, I am here for something else." Chen Ge followed the teacher into the building. He put the umbrella away and took out the picture from his backpack. "Do you mind leading me to the headmaster at the children's home? I have something important to ask him."

"The headmaster has left already. You can ask me any question that you have in mind. There is nothing at this children's home that I do not know about."

"The thing that I wish to know is from ten years ago. At the time, this children's home was still a private orphanage. At the time, you would've been at school, right?"

"Ten years ago?" The teacher thought about it before saying, "How about you go and ask the guard? He's the employee that has been on the payroll the longest. He has been watching the gates since this place was a private orphanage."

"Okay." Chen Ge invited the guard into the room, and he passed the picture to the old man. "Do you have any memory of this boy?"

"He does not even have a face. How am I supposed to tell?" The guard took the picture and placed it close to his eyes, his wrinkles folding together. "Besides, who can remember things that are from ten years ago that clearly?"

"Try to think about it. At the time, the orphanage should have had a girl with very bad memory. This boy should be the girl's best friend."

Hearing the information provided by Chen Ge, the wrinkles on the elder's face deepened. He thought for a long time before suddenly tapping Chen Ge on his arm. "There was such a girl! Let me take a gander at that picture again!"

The guard held the picture by both hands and studied it for a long time. "I cannot remember the boy, but I have some recollections of the girl that you mentioned. She was abandoned by her parents when she was very young. Apparently, the reason was because she had a congenital deficiency of the brain. She had a poor memory and problems doing normal chores, and her intelligence was stunted."

"Congenital deficiency of the brain?" That was a new term for Chen Ge.

"That was what I heard. The girl was quite pretty, and she was obedient, but she kept forgetting things. Many other children were adopted, but she was the only one left at the orphanage." Looks like the elder's memory was being jogged. "From the age two to around ten, she had spent more than ten years at the orphanage. Perhaps she missed the crucial period to cure her disease. The girl's illness and symptoms became graver and graver.

"Initially, she could remember the names of her friends and teachers, and with the teacher's training, she could not only live on herself but also help around the orphanage. Even though the girl had a bad memory, but she was very hardworking. She never complained when she was bullied, so the orphanage ignored the problems and allowed her to stay to help around.

“But who knew her conditions would get worse until she could not recognize people’s faces anymore? All she could do was the basics to keep herself alive, and anything else was beyond her capability. She was already too old, and she was no help around the orphanage. In fact, she needed other people to spend time to help her. Slowly, the people’s attitudes toward her changed.

“The children at the private orphanage were all still young, so she stood out even if she did not want to. After that, I do not know what got into the boss’ mind. He knew that the girl had problems with her memory, but he assigned her to watch the gates with me. The leader said that was so that she had something to do, and she would not waste the place’s resources, but I have a feeling that the real intention of the leader was to abandon her. He probably even hoped that she would go away on her own and get lost.”

At this point, the elder sighed.

“Hope that she would go away and get lost? How could you tell that was the leader’s intention at the time?” If that was really the case, everything changed. Chen Ge felt like Fang Yu’s change started then.

“The management kept sending me away to distant locations to deliver documents. I would run all over the city, and she would be left behind alone to watch the gates. There was one time after I returned that I realized the girl wasn’t inside the booth or the house. I ran all over the orphanage and its surroundings to look for her, and I finally found her under a big tree near the mountain behind the orphanage. At the time, I was so angry. I demanded to know why she wandered away from her post. She told me that she saw a kite that flew very high in the sky.

“I was so scared for her. Thankfully, the kite ended up stuck in the tree and did not fly away.” Even after so many years, when the elder thought about it, he still sighed with lamentation. The girl had left a deep impression on him.

“Sir, when the girl was guarding the gates with you, did any boys come to accompany her or treat her very nicely?”

“No, she was always alone.”

“This is hard.” Chen Ge looked at the picture in his hands and thought back to what he was told to find any clues that he might have missed.

"Sir, when you said that Fang Yu got lost the first time, she saw a kite and ran after it. But according to her personality, she was not someone who would do that, so why did she chase after the kite after she saw it? Did she like kites a lot? Could the kite have been some kind of symbol for her?"

"You're making this to be too complicated." The elder was about to deny him when his eyes suddenly widened. "Wait a minute! Yes! The kite! There was a boy at the orphanage who was very close to Fang Yu. The boy was such a chatterbox. I believed he suffered from some kind of illness as well. He had a tendency to repeat the same thing. It was fine the first few times, but hearing him repeat the same thing every day would drive anyone nuts."

"So, it was the boy who found Fang Yu?"

"Yes, Fang Yu has a bad memory, and she would forget what the boy repeated the next day. Every day was like a new day for her." With the prompt from Chen Ge, the guard finally started to remember things from back then. "The two of them should have been friends, but they had different destinies. As Fang Yu got older, her illness worsened, but the boy's illness became better as he got older. But even after the boy became normal, he liked to stay with Fang Yu. He was three years older than Fang Yu, and whenever anyone dared to bully Fang Yu, he would be the first one to defend her."

"But what does that have to do with a kite, and where is that boy now?" Chen Ge had a feeling that the ghost he was looking for was that boy.

"I cannot remember which year it was, but that year, the teachers took the children from the orphanage for a spring outing. They were flying kites at the dam in Eastern Jiujiang. The boy and Fang Yu's kites both got lost in the woods. They both went searching for it, but the boy got lost, and we only found Fang Yu, who'd fainted."

"The boy got lost?" Chen Ge frowned. If the boy had gotten lost, his trail might have gone cold.

"After Fang Yu woke up, we asked her what happened. She said that she and the boy went into the woods to find the kites. They saw a path that led to a house that was surrounded by flowers, and the laughter of many children came from inside it. The kites dropped on the fence of the house. When they reached for the kites, a group of unknown kids came to grab them, wishing to drag them into the house. At the last moment, the boy pushed Fang Yu out of the way before he was dragged through the door, and he closed the door from the inside.”

The elder’s words might not have meant anything to other people, but it was different for Chen Ge. He had been to the little house with flowers next to the Eastern Jiujiang’s Dam before!

At the time, he had been studying at primary school, and it was the first year anniversary after he moved from Eastern Jiujiang to Western Jiujiang. His parents had forbidden him from going to Eastern Jiujiang, but that day was an exception because it was a school field trip. It was at the Eastern Jiujiang Dam, and it was the same house with the flowers and children laughter inside the woods.

Chen Ge managed to survive that ordeal was thanks to the doll that he had made, which he carried with him at the time. Director Luo’s daughter was living inside the doll, and she was now New Century Park’s guardian spirit.

“It should be the same place!” Chen Ge did not expect Fang Yu and the boy to have been to that place as well. Their past had somehow crossed his own past.

The object that I have drawn this time does not appear to be that simple. Chen Ge picked up the backpack, but he did not act rashly. “If you don’t mind, I still need one more thing from you.”

“Say it.” The teacher had a good impression of Chen Ge. She believed that Chen Ge was a very kind and loving person.

“Can you find me the information on the boy? I have a date here. I believe it is his birthday.” Chen Ge turned the picture around. The date written on the back was December 21st.

“I will try my best, but please don’t get your hopes up.”

“Thank you for your help.” After saying goodbye to the teacher and the old guard, he opened the umbrella, swung the backpack over his shoulder, and ran out of the children’s home.

It is not too late to take revenge for the incident that happened to my primary school self.

He did not stop for rest. He hailed a cab to Eastern Jiujiang’s Dam.

Whenever I come to this kind of isolated place, the weather is horrible. It's either raining or howling with winds.

The taxi drove away quickly after dropping Chen Ge off outside the dam. He walked by the roadside for a long time with the umbrella. The memory of his childhood was blurry, but thankfully, the surroundings had not changed that much. The dam water rippled quickly, and the rain pelted his body. The surroundings were dark, but thanks to his Yin Yang Vision, even without a light, he could see clearly, and it appeared like Chen Ge had melted into the darkness.

I remember walking into these woods.

Chen Ge had no idea what had happened around the dam for the past decade, but this place had gotten even more deserted than before. The few locals that stayed here had moved away, and the woods had expanded to cover the mountain.

Activating the recorder and flipping through the comic to summon the headless woman and the boy with the stench, Chen Ge finally made his trek into the woods.

The raindrops fell on the leaves, and it created a rhythmic sound in Chen Ge's ears. The world inside the woods seemed to be a different world compared to outside.

Not too far into the woods, Xu Yin appeared silently beside Chen Ge. Chen Ge did not call his name, but he appeared on his own. This meant that he had sensed something dangerous, and the thing could have killed Chen Ge before he had the chance to appear. There was nothing strange around them, but the few Red Specters acted strangely, like the danger was hidden around them.

The leaves danced in the wind, and the rain slid down the leaf veins. Chen Ge walked for quite a while in the woods until he lost track of the passage of time. The deeper he went into the woods, the lower the temperature and the quieter it became. Xu Yin led the group. Red blood mixed with the rain. He moved away the rotten branches, and a well-beaten path appeared before them.

Wilted flowers ran down both sides of the path, and at the end of the road, a gray little house could be seen through the gaps in the trees.

"When I was small, I came here with my own handmade doll. You didn't kill me, only heavily injured the doll. I have always been a fair person. Today, I will not kill you, but I will beat you to your last breath and then take you away in the comic.”

In the raining night, the few Red Specters followed behind Chen Ge as they moved quietly forward. “Not everyone can discover this place. If not for Xu Yin leading the way, I probably wouldn’t have found it so quick.”

As he approached the little house, Chen Ge’s memory started to overlap with real life. What he had forgotten surfaced in his mind, and his memory had never been so clear before.

“Be careful.” He had almost been killed there, so Chen Ge could not be more careful. At the same time, though, he felt as if he was getting closer to the truth. The fence of the house was toppled over, and moss grew over it. There were many empty vases left in the yard. The vases were interesting. They were the same size, and they would fit the skull of an adult perfectly.

Other than the vases, there were some toys left outside in the yard. There was a broken wooden horse, a rusted seesaw, and a swing missing a rope.

Chapter 983 - Monster Carrying the Altar

Chapter 983: Monster Carrying the Altar

“This place seems to have been abandoned for a long time already.”

It was a good thing that it was abandoned. That meant that no children would be harmed again.

Walking down the muddy path, Chen Ge pushed open the door of the gray house. A horrible stench rushed out from inside the house. Chen Ge’s nostrils twitched. He stood at the door and did not go in. “I once smelled this in Li Wan City. It’s a very unique smell and hard to describe. It is not as thick as the smell of decay, but it contains a chill to it as if after you suck it into your lungs, your whole body will shiver.”

...

Using his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge looked into the room. Most of the furniture had been destroyed, and the floor was littered with broken plates and torn children clothes.

“This house didn’t look like this at the beginning.”

Chen Ge looked at the dilapidated room, but another image appeared in his mind. It was this same room, but it was surrounded by the laughter of children. Light blue and light pink wallpaper was pasted on the walls. The table was not high, and it was filled with toys and delicious food.

“Has the ghost who once stayed here left?”

Chen Ge was about to walk into the room when his phone suddenly vibrated. The caller ID showed an unknown caller.

“I have both Inspector Lee and Captain Yan’s numbers, so this should not be the police. Who would call me at this moment?”

He accepted the call, and a boy’s voice came through the line. “Chen Ge, when will you bring me home?”

“Fan Yu?” Chen Ge was confounded.

“Mr. Chen, it’s me. We just met not long ago.” Another familiar voice appeared. It was the teacher from the Children’s Home. “Fan Yu, let me talk to Mr. Chen for a moment.”

“Did you discover something?” Chen Ge had left his number with the Children’s Home, so he was not surprised that they would contact him. But Fan Yu, who did not like to speak, voluntarily called him by his name. Other than surprise, he was quite happy.

“We found something huge. All the files and medical treatment files before the Children’s Home was taken over by the government were locked inside the warehouse. We searched for information related to Fang Yu, and we realized that the information about a child in their class was missing.”

“The information for one of the children is lost?”

“Yes, it’s like his presence has been wiped out. You might not believe this, but according to the research we’ve done, there is always one person missing in the total count. In the class picture, there is a boy’s face that is blurred out, just like the picture that you showed us!” The teacher had given Chen Ge a valuable hint. “I just called a few seniors who worked at the orphanage back then, and everyone remember this chatty boy. They all know about him, but no one can remember what he looks like.”

“Everyone has forgotten what he looks like?”

“Not only his looks, even his name and age.”

“Other than that, did you find any other clues?”

“I heard from one of the seniors that the boy used to be very chatty when he was young, and he slowly became normal after he grew up. Everyone thought that he had gotten better, but that was not the case.” The teacher had revealed another secret. “His illness had actually gotten more serious. But after he grew old, he was wise enough to understand that people did not like when he ran his mouth off, so he tried so hard to suppress his nature.

“The senior once saw that the boy would often run to an unoccupied corner and talk to himself like he was unloading the words that he couldn’t say before others. Other than that, he formed the habit of keeping a diary. She once stole a look at it, and the diary was filled to the brim with words, but none of them made any sense. It was impossible to tell what the boy was trying to express.”

“Is it possible to find that diary?”

“That will be hard. I’ll try to make some more calls. If I find anything, I’ll call you back.”

The teacher hung up. Chen Ge stood at the door and looked at the house that was different from how he remembered. “No one can remember his name and looks. Why is that?”

Almost everyone had forgotten him except Fang Yu, who had the poorest memory. She had been looking for him. After entering the room, the smell thickened. The first floor was for the children to play, so Chen Ge did not find anything there. With Xu Yin by his side, he climbed to the second floor. When he came to the wooden steps, Chen Ge covered his nose. The unique smell came from the second floor.

“Let’s go up together.” The wooden steps had been built many years ago. They creaked noisily when he walked up them, and it felt like the stairs would crumble at any moment. As they moved up the steps, Chen Ge realized that the steps started to have words carved into them. They appeared to be dug out with bloody fingernails.

“Fang Yu?”

The handwriting on the steps became more intense. When Chen Ge reached the second floor, his eyes widened, and he was stumped. The floor, ceiling, walls—every crook and corner was filled with the name ‘Fang Yu’.

At that moment, not far from Chen Ge was a man who was lying on the ground, using his bloody finger to grate at the ground.

He was so fully focused that he did not notice Chen Ge. He was kneeling on the ground, carrying an altar on his back.

The altar looked similar to the one that he had seen at the futuristic theme park, but the mud statuette inside this altar was not decapitated. Furthermore, it did not have Chen Ge’s name, but instead, it was covered in Fang Yu’s name.

Chapter 984 - Special Power

Chapter 984: Special Power

“Be careful of the altar he’s carrying.” The altar from the futuristic theme park had appeared again. Chen Ge seriously suspected that there were more altars hidden around Eastern Jiujiang. “A Specter beyond the Red Specter is a Demon God. I can understand building an altar for one, but why would they place a mud statuette inside the altars?”

The mud statuettes should have been made by the same person. The handicraft was rough, like they were made by children, and the shape of a human was barely discernable.

“Altar, statuette, who is behind all this? They seem to be targeting children. Is there a ghost that specifically feeds off children in this world?”

...

When Chen Ge was thinking, the man kneeling on the ground finally noticed him. The hand stopped moving, and he slowly turned his face to reveal a featureless face. It was like a piece of white paper that had nothing on it. On a rainy night, in a room carved with names, a faceless monster knelt, guarding an altar. If not for Xu Yin, Chen Ge would have run away when the man lifted his head.

Since there was no face, Chen Ge could not tell his emotions and could not predict his next move. The monster had no ears, so Chen Ge could not tell whether he could hear him or not. The monster had no mouth, so the most basic communication was impossible.

After a temporarily pause, the monster suddenly pushed his hands against the ground and charged at Chen Ge on all fours.

“Xu Yin!” Even before the order from Chen Ge, Xu Yin had already stepped in front of Chen Ge. His upper body leaned forward, and black capillaries appeared on the back of his hand as he held the monster’s head back. Blade-like fingers cut into the monster’s face. The skin was cut through, but no blood leaked out. Black threads crawled out from the monster’s wound and curled around Xu Yin’s fair hand.

“A curse?” Each thread was marked with a wailing human face. This was similar to what Chen Ge had seen when he encountered the shadow in Li Wan City.

“Such a venomous curse hid under a pure, featureless face. I should have known that the vilest spirit would often hide under the purest appearance.”

Xu Yin was not familiar with dealing with curses, but Chen Ge had one Specter who was. He took out the pair of red heels from his backpack and placed them on the ground.

“You seem to feed on curses. Give this one a taste. See if it matches your appetite.”

Keeping the headless woman by his side, Chen Ge did not give the faceless monster any chance. He summoned Xu Yin, the red high heel, and the stench at the same time. Surrounded by three Red Specters, the faceless monster was immediately cornered. Threads of blood vessels covered the space around him like spiderweb, but they were as sharp as a blade.

The web surrounded the monster, and if he tried to move, his body would be shredded into pieces. That did not mean that the monster had surrendered, though. He did not seem to possess self-consciousness and would not feel pain or sadness. Even though the wounds on his body increased, he continued to attack the three Red Specters.

“This man is not a Red Specter, but he is surprisingly tough. He appears to have been given some kind of command to guard the altar.” Chen Ge had interacted with so many Specters that he spotted the problem immediately. “Ignore him for now. Take down the altar, but be careful to not break the mud statuette inside it.”

When the target changed from the monster to the altar, the house started to change. The names carved in the building started to bleed, and in just a few second, the whole second floor was dyed red. The smell in the air thickened, and the monster started to struggle. He tried to tear through the web of blood vessels, causing his body to be covered in ghastly wounds.

Endless black threads seeped out from the wounds and gathered together to wrap around the altar like a tongue. Chen Ge thought that he would have an easy win with four Red Specters, but as time moved forward, things became more complicated. The curses all rushed toward the red high heels. As the number of wounds on the monster increased, the curse that came out from his body became scarier.

The red high heel that was covered in bandages became the monster's main attack target. If that was all, Chen Ge would not have minded it. The curse of the entire second floor could only stop the red high heels. Xu Yin, the stench, and the headless woman were not targeted by the curse. With three Red Specters on his side, Chen Ge would still win. The difference between a baleful Specter and Red Specter could not be overcome. Even for Yan Danian, who could control many Specters at the same time, he was only a Lesser Red Specter.

Soon, however, Chen Ge realized that something was wrong.

The stench and Xu Yin that attacked the faceless man were getting weird, and the headless woman next to him was acting strange as well!

The stench of blood thickened. Other than the red high heels, the three Red Specters stopped hiding their bloody presence and show off their bloodiest side.

"Is there danger around us? Have they sensed something dangerous?"

The room was still the same. With Ghost Ear, Yin Yang Vision, and Spirit Ear, Chen Ge was sure that there was nothing coming toward them. They were the only ones there.

"Why would they act this way if there's no danger?" After staying for some time at the haunted house, these Red Specters would hide their natural presence out of habit. They would try to forget about their past pain and despair and used a new method to accompany Chen Ge. Of course, this had not been achieved overnight. It was done step by step with Chen Ge, building mutual trust. But now, the trust appeared to have been severed by something, and the most precious thing had been shattered.

A chill ran down his spine. The way the headless woman looked at Chen Ge became confused. Red and pale colors twirled in her eyes. Something was influencing her, causing her to forget who Chen Ge was. If it was not Chen Ge standing before her but a normal person, what would she have done? What would a normal Red Specter suffering from endless despair do in that moment?

The answer was quite clear. Chen Ge tried to communicate with the headless woman, trying to help her keep her sense, but the effect was lacking. The headless woman was staying far away from the faceless monster and the altar, so she was not affected that much, but Xu Yin and the stench who were reaching to take out the statuette were different. Their conditions were worse. Ghastly faces appeared on their bloody clothes, and the two Red Specters were on the edge of going on a rampage.

“This monster has a power that can affect Red Specters?” Chen Ge had not experienced this before. Even Yan Danian, who was recognized by the black phone to be the strongest Specter under the Red Specters, could not influence a Red Specter that much.

“The consciousness of these three Red Specters has been affected. The faceless monster’s power can influence a Red Specter’s consciousness, huh? No, based on the situation with the headless woman, the way she looked at me turned unfamiliar, like she had forgotten who I am!” Chen Ge felt unsettled, and a speculation surfaced in his mind. “The monster’s power allows him to dilute certain memories?”

Chapter 985 - The Second Mud Statuette

Chapter 985: The Second Mud Statuette

The reason Chen Ge could think of that was due to Fang Yu. As Fang Yu grew older, her memory became worse.

“The monster’s power should be related to memory. With the aid from the altar and the curse, his power gained some sort of improvement.” Chen Ge found the key immediately. “All the curses in the room rushed toward the red high heels. So, it’s clear that he knew his power is weakest on the red high heels, but why would the red high heels be immune to his power? Does this mean his power is a kind of curse itself?”

Regardless of the reason, Chen Ge knew that he could not allow this to drag on any longer. The man gave everything to protect the altar, so if Chen Ge wanted to turn this around, he had to target the altar.

...

“Xu Yin! Remove the altar from the man!”

Hearing Chen Ge’s voice, the pain in Xu Yin’s eyes intensified. He forced himself to grab at the edge of the altar, but once his hand landed on the altar, something unexpected happened. The mud statuette inside the altar suddenly opened its eyes. The death characters inside the altar started to bleed, and the statuette’s chest area where the name Fang Yu was carved started to crack.

When the statuette opened its eyes, other than the red high heels, all the other Red Specters became more crazed. They seemed to be reliving their despair, reexperiencing that painful memory. Wounds appeared on Xu Yin’s clothes like a blade was trying to split him in half. The headless woman held her neck like there was an invisible gash around her neck. The worst was the boy with the stench. His body kept growing, and his eyes were filled with black blood. The conditions of the three Red Specters became more serious. This was out of Chen Ge’s expectations.

“Only a Demon God should be able to wipe away the memory of three Red Specters at the same time. This monster’s ability affects memories, and with the aid of the mud statuette inside the altar, he is able to wipe away Red Specters' memory temporarily."

Even at this moment, Chen Ge kept his composure.

"This effect should be temporary. When he stops using his power or when the mud statuette inside the altar is destroyed, the Red Specters will recover their memories."

The memory wipe was temporary, but even so, it placed Chen Ge in a dangerous situation. Red Specters who were reliving their hatred and despair might kill Chen Ge directly!

"The monster's power is getting stronger, and the condition of Xu Yin and the rest is getting worse."

Chen Ge had two choices. The first was to wait. The statuette had started to crack. This power was placing a lot of burden on the statuette. When the statuette crumbled, the monster's power would be neutralized, but this choice was basically handing his life over to others. Chen Ge did not like that, so he chose the second option, which was to find way to remove the mud statuette from the altar himself.

"I regret not bringing the hammer with me. After a few days' peace, I've become too careless. I must learn from this." The second choice was dangerous, but Chen Ge decided to take this risk. Be it Xu Yin, the Stench, or the headless woman, they were Chen Ge's family. Seeing them in such pain, Chen Ge felt like he had to do something.

"I have gone through so much to help them see the light in this world, and you wish for them to forget that?"

Chen Ge did not want the Red Specters to relive the worst periods of their lives. He used his Yin Yang Vision to follow the trace of the black threads.

"All the curses are going after the red high heels. There is no curse between the stench and Xu Yin, and the monster is pressed to the ground, so he shouldn't be able to attack me. The inside of the altar is filled with the word 'death'. The statuette is stained with some black blood. I must stay away from these two things." Chen Ge looked into the altar that was open. "If I knock into the altar from the side, perhaps I can knock it off the monster or knock the statuette out from inside the altar."

If this continued, even if one Red Specter went on a rampage, Chen Ge might be injured in the process. He had to take this risk before the Red Specters' memory was completely removed.

Taking one step forward, Chen Ge suddenly picked up speed to rush toward the altar. Before he made the next move, the monster pressed onto the ground suddenly raised his wounded face. Seeing that faceless face, Chen Ge was confounded for a moment, but he snapped out of it. He rammed heavily into the altar. The statuette inside the altar teetered. The altar was much heavier than Chen Ge had anticipated. He failed to tip the altar over.

A thick scent of blood mixed with a horrible stench drifted over. A giant hand slowly rose, and the boy who had grown several times in size set his eyes on Chen Ge. Chen Ge appeared in his blood red eyes, but compelled by pain and anger, the Chen Ge in his eyes slowly changed into an unfamiliar middle-aged man.

"Father... don't hit me! Don't hit me! Don't hit me!" The raised arm slammed toward Chen Ge's head. A man's dried skull appeared in the middle of the pain. The Red Specter moved too fast, so Chen Ge did not have the chance to evade. The hand grew larger in his eyes when a figure suddenly stood before him.

Bang!

Blood spurted everywhere. Ten fingers as sharp as a blade cut off the stench's hand from his wrist.

"Is it painful?" The lanky Xu Yin lowered his arms. The wounds on his body were completely open. His face was twisted from pain, and there was only madness and despair in his eyes. He had lost his sanity, but even so, he knew to protect Chen Ge. Without moving an inch, the red heart in his chest kept beating. Many blood vessels bloomed inside the room like a flower in the middle of a nightmare.

Suppression! Absolute suppression that belonged to Xu Yin!

There was a crisp sound that came from inside the altar. Perhaps due to Xu Yin's resistance, there was a clear crack that crossed through the statuette. Chen Ge did not expect Xu Yin to still guard him even after he had lost his memory. Perhaps from a certain moment, he had become the only person that Xu Yin could trust in this world. Not wanting to lose this opportunity, Chen Ge rammed into the altar again.

The cracked statuette fell into the altar's door, and that seemed to affect the death characters on the wall. The headless woman who was the furthest away was the first to recover her memory. She remembered Chen Ge's earlier request. She blinked to appear before the altar and took the statuette out from it.

The moment the statuette left the altar, all the characters in the room returned to normal. The curse that surrounded the red high heels started to disperse.

The headless woman held the mud statuette. The faceless monster struggled on the ground, but all his limbs were pulled off by Xu Yin.

The boy also returned to normal. The broken hand dissolved into blood vessels. Looking at his new arm, there was regret in his eyes. As if to show his apology, the boy picked up the monster from the ground. He was about to kill the man when he saw that there was another face hidden under the monster's wounded face.

The face was wreathed inside the curse. His eyes were screwed shut, and his expression was pained.

"Slow down. Can you guys remove the man from the curse wrapped around him?"

Chapter 986 - She's Forgotten Her Name, But She Hasn't Forgotten You

Chapter 986: She's Forgotten Her Name, But She Hasn't Forgotten You

The most dangerous thing in the room was the mud statuette. Now that it was in the headless woman's clutches, there was no victory chance for the man. The faceless monster had almost killed Chen Ge even though he was under the protection of four Red Specters. Yes, the altar and statuette had played a big factor, but it also proved how powerful the faceless man's own power was. He could wipe away certain memory, and if used wisely, it could come in handy for Chen Ge.

Specters with such power are very rare, and the crucial point is that he's not a Red Specter. Should he become one, his power will only get scarier.

From how Chen Ge saw it, if Yan Danian was the most powerful Specter under Red Specters, the faceless man would be the second most powerful.

...

The Specters that I draw from the wheel are getting better in quality.

After consuming the remaining curse, the red high heels and the stench worked together to pull the man out from the faceless monster's shell. There were cursed threads stuck to his body like he had been stuck inside a cocoon of curses earlier. When all the threads disappeared, the man collapsed to the ground. He was thin and did not look too old. In fact, he looked like he had just reached puberty.

"Can you understand me?" Chen Ge squatted next to the man. After the man was cleansed of the curse, his body faded like he could disappear at any moment. "I did not come to save you out of pure sympathy; I'm here on someone's behalf."

The man kept his eyes closed like he had heard this speech before. He used to being made a fool, and he had given up hope.

"It's Fang Yu who told me to come find you. She tattooed your name all over her body, and she visits the city park every night, sitting on the bench to wait for you.” Chen Ge’s voice became louder. “Now that the park is getting demolished, last night should be the last time she could go there to wait for you.”

The man’s expression did not change too much, but his eyelids fluttered.

“Fang Yu’s condition is getting worse. Perhaps before she dies, her biggest wish is to see you one last time. She has many things she wants to tell you. You are her best and only friend.”

Chen Ge did not know which sentence finally cut through the man. Perhaps it was the mention of Fang Yu potentially dying. The eyelids twitched before the man finally opened his eyes. His pupils were incredibly unique; they were like a cat’s. There were two vertical lines in the middle of his pupils. Look at them too long, and he might be sucked into them.

“Fang Yu, Fang Yu...” Repeating that name, the man slowly returned to normal. After so many years, perhaps it was this name that had kept his spirit lingering. After a long time, the man lifted his head to look at Chen Ge, with his lips moving. “She has not forgotten me? Once she remembers me, the person will go find her. That is the curse that person left on me.”

“Her memory is horrible, but even if she has forgotten her own name, she hasn’t forgotten you.”

It was a simple statement without any embellishment. After Chen Ge said that, the man lowered his head slowly and closed his eyes again.

“For this past ten years, she has been reliving the day that you left, she experiences the same pain every day. Even if you don’t do this for yourself, at least do it for you. Do you really think your choice is best for her?” Chen Ge sat next to the man. He kept the man alive because he believed that the man’s power was very unique. However, he also wanted to take him to meet Fang Yu.

“I am protecting her. A dangerous Specter has his eyes on Fang Yu! You don’t understand how scary he is. You don’t get it...”

“Is that Specter a shapeless shadow?” Chen Ge paid attention because the man was giving information about the altar.

“He is like a person’s shadow, but he can grow, and he has a physical body. The crucial thing is that he's despairingly strong." The man lay on the ground, and tiredness laced through his voice. "The man is looking for a suitable candidate to possess their body. When I was playing with Fang Yu, Fang Yu often heard someone calling her name. The voice came from the eastern side. Initially, I didn't mind it until the day we went to play at the Eastern Jiujiang Dam. Fang Yu heard the voice again. She seemed to have lost herself. She kept walking into the jungle, and I followed behind her.

"Then we saw this house. The door opened, and there were many children inside staring at us with scary smiles. I felt that something was wrong, so I dragged Fang Yu away, but she seemed frozen to the spot, and both of us were pulled into the house. At the time, I didn't think too much of it. At the last moment, I pushed Fang Yu out and slammed the door shut."

Chapter 987 - A Bright Choice [2 in 1]

Chapter 987: A Bright Choice [2 in 1]

The man's body was fading like his spirit was leaving. He was not long for this world. It was only a matter of time before his spirit dispersed into nothingness.

"My nightmare started then. The house was surrounded by fresh flowers and filled with laughter, but it was really a house of nightmares. We were all the shadow's playmates, but everyone's laughter was forced. The shadow planted the curse on everyone, but since I let Fang Yu go, he hated me a lot, and for that, he planted many curses on me. I suffered more pain than anyone else but that also made me stronger than the rest. In a way, the shadow didn't act like a Specter. He was in fact growing like a real person.

"Eventually, he stopped having any use for imaginary friends. What he needed was a guardian. He slaughtered all his previous 'family' because he only needed one survivor.

...

"After surviving the most pain and curses, I was the last 'survivor', the shadow seemed to like that a lot. At the time, I didn't know why, but later, I realized that it was all part of his plan. The shadow kept coming and going until the day he brought this altar."

The man glanced behind him. "There was a mud statuette inside it, and it had Fang Yu's name on it. When I saw her name, I had a bad feeling. I needed to leave this place and tell Fang Yu to leave Jiujiang, but everything was within the shadow's calculations. He purposely let me get close to Fang Yu so that the curse could be planted on her and her body could be made into his."

The man's words surprised Chen Ge. That was something Chen Ge did not expect. "The shadow wanted to turn Fang Yu into his own body?"

"Yes, there appeared to be something else inside his body. The thing possessed his memory and emotions. He seemed like he wanted to use Fang Yu's body to nurture that thing."

"A ghost fetus?"

“Yes, I think I heard the shadow mention something like that.” This time, it was the man’s turn to get shocked. “How is it possible that you know that?”

“You don’t need to know how I know that. Just keep on telling your story.” Chen Ge kept his focus sharp and pointed. He refused to miss even the smallest word. This was the chance that he was given to get as much information as he could on the shadow and the ghost fetus.

“The shadow appeared to be being chased by someone or something, but as he continued to grow, he stopped caring about those things that had been chasing him. Of the entire Jiujiang, there was one place that he did not dare to go—Western Jiujiang.”

The more Chen Ge listened to the man’s story, the more he felt like the shadow in the story was the shadow that he had encountered in Li Wan City. But the shadow in the man’s story still had not separated himself from the ghost fetus, and his power was at its prime.

“The shadow searched all over Jiujiang and found nine altars in total. The one behind me is one of them. The nine altars contain nine mud statuettes that he personally made with his own hands. Each mud statuette relates to one person. Each represents one of his bodies.”

“Wait a minute, I do not think I get what you are saying. What do you mean by each mud statuette represents one of his bodies? Does it mean that I will have killed the shadow if I manage to destroy all the mud statuettes?” Chen Ge now had found three altars. There were two altars inside the futuristic theme park, but one of them did not contain a mud statuette, so that was probably a fake. They probably made a replica of the altar from the real altar that the shadow or someone from the management at the futuristic theme park had moved into the Reincarnation Haunted House.

“I have no idea what will happen after you destroy all of the mud statuettes, but I would advise you not to do that. The shadow is different from any other Specter. You won’t be able to kill him. No one is able to kill him.” The man did not hold back any information. After all, he had nothing to lose. He was going to die from the curse that the shadow had planted on his body. He told Chen Ge everything he knew. “I have been carrying this altar for many years. Eventually, I noticed that the shadow left his presence on the altar, like the altar is an extension of the shadow itself. I suspect that the shadow is using the altars to have the mud statuettes inside them get used to his presence so that it will be more convenient for him to attach the ghost fetus to the candidates.”

His voice was getting softer and softer, his breath getting ever weaker. “This altar used to be very scary, but some time ago, I don’t know what happened to the shadow, but the presence around the altar suddenly weakened, and it became a lot more normal.” This period that the man mentioned should be around the time when Chen Ge cooperated with Doctor Gao to deal with the shadow in Li Wan City.

Looks like the shadow’s death has caused a certain influence on the ghost fetus.

Chen Ge stood up and looked into the altar. The inside walls of the altar had the word ‘Death’ carved all over then, but different from the altars at the futuristic theme park, there were nine blood soaked paper dolls stuffed inside this altar at the old house.

“Yet another nine paper dolls?” There was nothing on the paper dolls. They had no names, and they all looked about the same. “Nine altars, nine mud statuettes, and nine paper dolls. What is the ghost fetus planning to do with all these?”

Chen Ge’s brows creased in thought. He tried to put himself in the shoes of the ghost fetus and see things from his perspective. “If I were the ghost fetus, at the most important moment when I’m about to reincarnate into a living person, I will ensure that there is no interruption from the outside world...”

Chen Ge felt like he had touched upon an important clue, but he did not have the time to figure it out because the man on the ground was about to fade away. Chen Ge turned his focus back to the man and tried his best to help him.

“You do not need to care about me. Just leave me be. The shadow’s curse still lingers on my body. When I exposed this information to you, it was destined that I would fade away and die.” The man seemed to have accepted his fate. “I thought I would surrender to the curse in the end, would be forced to do something that would harm Fang Yu, but this... this is the best ending that I could have hoped for.”

“You have injured both me and my employees, and now you wish to leave just like that? Do you think that is possible? Do you think I will allow that to happen?” Chen Ge had the red high heels look after the man and help him pull out the curse from his body little by little. “There are people who still remember you in this world. You are her anchor that attaches her to this world, so no matter what, you have to go and meet her.”

“As I told you earlier, I cannot!” The man’s attitude suddenly changed. Some fight had returned to the man. “The moment she remembers anything about me, the shadow will trigger the curse that he has been planted on both of us, and she will die!”

The man was very adamant about this. His protectiveness over Fang Yu was probably what had kept him going for so long under the shadow’s torture and the curse that was planted on him.

“I told you earlier, the shadow tricked me. When I saw Fang Yu’s name on the mud statuette, I sneaked out to find Fang Yu. I am a ghost. Being under the sun is like jumping into a pit of fire, but to suppress the curse on my body from harming her, I insisted on meeting her during the day. The orphanage was no longer safe; the entire Jiujiang was not safe. She had to leave.

“I knew about what had happened to her, and I knew how difficult it will be for her to just get up and leave, so I tried my best to teach her how to survive on her own, how to live independently without relying on anyone else. I taught her to sew everything that she needed to do daily on her clothes. I tried to make her cultivate the habit of putting her wallet, ID, and contact number into her pocket before she slept. Everything I did, I did so that she could survive just fine without me. But I did not expect that was exactly what the shadow expected me to do. Those who were selected by him appeared to have to agree to cooperate with him to complete the final step, and the shadow was using me.”

The man had lost the energy to struggle. There was anger, regret, disappointment, self-reprimand, and despair in his eyes.

“When the trace of the curse started to appear on Fang Yu, I did not know what to do. The only thing I could do was make her forget me, and that should be the simplest thing that she could do. I cleaned away my information from the orphanage and wiped away my faces from all the pictures. When I met Fang Yu at the park for the last time, I told her a lie.

“Every time she met me, she would have to ask for my name again. After hearing my answer, she would be very happy because it would have proven that she had not forgotten me. But on that last day, when she asked for my name, I did not tell her my real name; instead, I said her name. I told her that my name was Fang Yu. This was because I hoped that she would always remember herself and would never lose sight of herself. We stayed at the park until very late that night. That night, I did not walk her home. I watched her walk past the junction, and I stayed where I was at the park.”

The story the man told filled the last piece of the puzzle, and Fang Yu’s whole life appeared fully in Chen Ge’s mind. Fang Yu and the boy had grown up together at the orphanage. One had a very bad memory, and she would always forget the past; the other had a language problem and would keep repeating the same thing. The two formed a bond and became best friends. Everything was fine until they went to the Eastern Jiujiang Dam, when the boy sacrificed himself to save Fang Yu.

Traumatized by that event, Fang Yu’s condition worsened. But it was also during this period that boy fell into the shadow’s plot. He sneaked out from the little house by the dam and wished to take Fang Yu away from Jiujiang. Based on the recollection of the old guard at the Children’s Home, it was during this period that Fang Yu disappeared from the Children’s Home. When he asked Fang Yu, Fang Yu only mentioned the word ‘kite’.

Thinking back, on the day the boy disappeared, it was on the day of the spring tour for the orphanage at the Eastern Jiujiang Dam. Everyone was flying kites. The kite itself was an important clue, but the guard did not think too deep into its significance. He could not make the link.

The boy knew that he was carrying the curse and could not accompany Fang Yu anymore, so he kept trying to help Fang Yu learn how to live independently. That should be the happiest moment they had spent together, but it did not last long. After the boy found out about the shadow’s plan, the only thing he could do was make Fang Yu forget about him.

The boy returned to the small house and must have been tortured endlessly by the shadow. The shadow planted so many curses on him and turned him into a faceless monster.

On the other hand, Fang Yu, whose memory became worse and worse, went to the small city park and waited for the boy to appear every night. Slowly but surely, she forgot who she was waiting for. She forgot the voice and the face of the person she was waiting for until there was only one name that was left in her mind—Fang Yu. Because that was the name that he had told her.

Now, the park was about to get demolished. When she thought that she would never wait for that person to return, Chen Ge found her. Their story was not that beautiful, but it touched Chen Ge.

He stood up and extended his hand toward the man lying on the ground.

“If you are worried about your curse harming Fang Yu, I will help you remove the curse. If you are worried that about revenge from the shadow and the ghost fetus, why not work with us to kill them? That way, no one will be able to harm the two of you anymore.”

The man did not think that Chen Ge could really harm the ghost fetus; he was just trying to console a dying spirit.

“The shadow that you are so afraid of has already been torn apart in Li Wan City. Let me try to remember the exact date.”

Then, Chen Ge gave an accurate date, and it was that day that the shadow’s presence on the altar had weakened. In his story, the man did not tell the exact date to Chen Ge, but Chen Ge had named the exact date himself; only then did he realize that Chen Ge was not lying to him.

His eyes wandered between Chen Ge and the four Red Specters. The man finally reached out to touch Chen Ge’s hand. “What do you want me to do? I will listen to you.”

Chapter 988 - I'm Sorry, But Do You Know Fang Yu? [2 in 1]

Chapter 988: I'm Sorry, But Do You Know Fang Yu? [2 in 1]

“First, you need to follow me to meet Fang Yu. I have promised her that I will bring you to meet her.” Chen Ge opened the comic. “I believe that you want to meet her as well too, right?”

The man nodded. “Yes, but I am afraid.”

“You want to meet her, and she wants to meet you; that is enough. We will work together to overcome any difficulty on the way.” Chen Ge communicated with Yan Danian and pulled the man into the comic. Taking out the black phone, Chen Ge had not received a new message. Even though the man agreed temporarily to listen to Chen Ge, he had not become an employee at the Haunted House. That was probably because he did not completely believe Chen Ge.

...

“Let’s go. This trip to the dam has reminded me that one can’t be too careful. This period is a very sensitive period; the ghost fetus is about to be born, so I have to stay on my toes.”

Chen Ge felt like there was a need for him to keep Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer on him at all times. He did not have any actual physical power that could threaten a ghost, but if he had the hammer, at least he had a chance to strike back. As the number of Trial Missions he had completed increased, Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer changed. Thin threads of blood vessels appeared on the grip, and the blood grooves in the hammerhead had collected some deep dark substance.

“It will be inconvenient to bring the hammer around everywhere with me, but now is not the time to be concerned about that.”

Putting away the red high heels and the boy with the stench, Chen Ge and Xu Yin once again returned to the altar. This time, without any other interruptions, they planned to give the altar a close study. The altar was definitely ‘older’ than Chen Ge. The shadow had probably found it from some blasted place, and it was not made by the shadow himself.

“Perhaps there was originally some Demon God that occupied the altar, but currently, the shadow has taken over their homes.”

Chen Ge was reminded of the painting that he had seen at the futuristic theme park, the completed evil demon that was constructed from the body parts of twenty-four other demons.

“If these nine paper dolls correspond to the nine missing evil demon pictures, can I establish that the ghost fetus is trying to use these nine paper dolls to construct his own body? The picture of the demon has appeared at many places before. Both Doctor Gao and Chang Wenyu knew about it. And now even the ghost fetus has dabbled with the use of this demon. It appears like this demon is a symbol of something important.”

Without any evidence and with too few clues, Chen Ge could only make some speculations. He wanted to take the altar home with him, but he was stopped by both Xu Yin and the headless woman. Getting such a reaction from the Red Specters surprised Chen Ge. The altar that was filled with the death characters appeared to be a very cursed object. Without touching the altar, Chen Ge placed the mud statuette with Fang Yu’s name on his own shadow. The black blood on the mud statuette slowly disappeared as if it was being absorbed by Chen Ge’s shadow.

“There must be more than these few altars in Jiujiang. I will try my best to find more mud statuettes. Hopefully, that means Zhang Ya will be able to wake up earlier.”

Chen Ge was somewhat stressed inside even though he did not show it on the surface. Normally, after a Red Specter consumed another Red Specter, they would hibernate for a long time, but due to many various reasons, even after Zhang Ya had a feast, she would only need a short time to rest before she returned to normal. Other than that, there were times that she had awakened from her hibernation due to certain incidents like when they were at the School of the Afterlife.

Even though the shadow had been separated from the ghost fetus, the shadow himself was a Top Red Specter. After he was split and ingested by Zhang Ya and Doctor Gao, Zhang Ya had awakened after a few days of hibernation, this caused serious damage to the Red Specter. Taking a tour around the house, after making sure Chen Ge did not miss any clues, he left the place. He was unable to get a taxi near the damn. To get back to the city as early as he could, Chen Ge raced down the highway.

Finally, he ran into a van driver who was kind enough to drive him to the city. Chen Ge returned to the residential area where Fang Yu stayed at around 11:45 pm. The sky was still drizzling, and through the hazy yellowish glow from the streetlights, the scenery took on a sepia tone. Chen Ge had no idea which floor Fang Yu stayed at. He first knocked on the door of the elder, and then with the elder leading the way, he went to the fourth floor. The fat aunty had not gone to sleep; she had been waiting for Chen Ge to come back with news.

The doors were pushed open. The aunty's expression became very excited when she saw that it was Chen Ge. "Did you find the person?"

Chen Ge first returned the umbrella to the aunty and then looked into the room. "Is Fang Yu here?"

"She lives in the innermost room. I'll get her."

"There is no need." Chen Ge took out the comic from his backpack. He walked to the bedroom door and knocked lightly on the door. "I have found Fang Yu."

The door was pulled open in that instant. Fang Yu, who was dressed in pajamas, stood at the door. Her exposed skin was tattooed with the name Fang Yu. The first impression it gave was horror, but as he looked at it longer, he felt something like pain and sadness.

"Where is he?"

Chen Ge's gaze leaped over Fang Yu and looked into the room. Inside the room that was not that big, all the items were neatly organized. There were paper notes stuck to wall, and the notes contained reminders that could not have been more normal for a person. 'Put on your clothes after waking up', 'brush your teeth', 'wash your face', 'place your identification card inside your wallet', 'place your wallet inside your left pocket'...

Fang Yu tried her best to live her life, repeating every day that was a new day for her. Taking one step forward into the room, Chen Ge closed the door and locked it. He pulled the curtains shut. Sniffing the scent of flower in the room, he reached out to switch off the light. With Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge could see Fang Yu clearly in the dark. Suddenly being placed in the darkness, Fang Yu was quite afraid. Flipping the comic pages, a man's figure appeared in the bedroom.

The streetlight filtered through the curtain, and it shone a weak light into the room. The gentle light fell on the spot behind Chen Ge, and the silhouette of a man could just about be picked out. Ten years ago, when they parted at the junction, the man had retained the look from that day, and Fang Yu had been repeating the memory of that day. The man that appeared inside the room at that moment overlapped with the person from Fang Yu's memory.

When they last met, Fang Yu had stood at the junction. She had turned back to look like usual, but she had failed to find the man who was supposed to stand there. She had stood alone at the junction before she was swallowed by the bustling city crowd. A decade had passed, but time did not seem to leave any trace on these two individuals. The room was very quiet. No one spoke, and it passed like that for several minutes.

The man and Fang Yu suddenly looked at one another, and they both uttered the same name.

"Fang Yu."

"Fang Yu."

Chen Ge very astutely walked to the corner and took out the pair of red high heels. Once the curse was triggered, he would have the red high heels suppress the man immediately. The room became quiet again. The two of them made one hell of a couple. One had retained his look from ten years ago but had experienced a torture that lasted for a decade; even though the other was no longer the young woman from ten years ago, her memory was stuck on that day from ten years ago. One had lived the past ten years suffering every single day in different kind of torment, but his appearance had remained the same; the other had whiled away ten years, with the decade leaving a clear toll on her physical body, but in her mind, only one single day had passed.

"I... was unable to walk you home that day because I had something else to do." The man lowered his head like he did not want others to see that he was unable to control his emotions. "You don't blame me, right?"

Fang Yu shook her head and she walked toward the man. When she took the first step forward, the man moved one step back. Fang Yu moved faster until she finally stood before the man. The distance of three meters took her ten years to complete. She raised both of her arms to give the man a tight hug like she wanted to grab him tight so that he would not escape from her again. When the hand touched the man's body, bitterness and chill came from the palms. The woman ultimately only managed to pull the hug around herself.

Small dark threads crawled out from the man's body, and his face was locked in an ugly grimace. The many curses that the ghost fetus had planted in him were triggered, and he was trying his best to control himself. The black threads that were yelling with pain rushed at Fang Yu. Just as they were about to swallow Fang Yu, drops of blood dripped from the ceiling, and they sealed the curses in their path.

"I'm so sorry."

The curse implanted at the deepest part of his soul was triggered. The man's body became more and more vague. He used his last shred of energy to whisper a final apology to Fang Yu. Then, his body shattered, and he was sucked back into the comic.

Fang Yu stood blankly in the darkness. Her energy seemed to have left her, and she slowly dropped to the ground. The weak light shone on her face. The clock struck midnight, and Chen Ge walked to switch on the light in the room.

"Are you already?"

Hearing his voice, Fang Yu turned around. Her pair of red eyes looked at Chen Ge. Her lips moved, and the tears that she could not control started to slid down her face.

"I'm sorry, but do you know Fang Yu?"

Fang Yu appeared to have lost her memory again. Chen Ge helped move her to the bed and poured her a glass of water. "I am good friends with Fang Yu. He will be busy for a little while, but when he is not so busy anymore, he will come visit you."

Fang Yu, who was lying quietly in bed, looked at Chen Ge. For some reason, she had an implicit trust in this man, and she felt like he was not lying to her. For reasons that she could not explain, Fang Yu knew that this man beside her bed would not lie to her and would make things better soon.

"Get a good rest and try not to worry over unimportant things too much. What you need to do now is focus on taking good care of your body. I am sure Fang Yu will return soon."

The body had just received a huge trauma. After one dropped down from such a high point in terms of emotion and agitation, it was easy to feel tired, so Fang Yu drifted off to sleep quite quickly. Chen Ge switched off the light and slunk out from the bedroom. The fat aunty was guarding outside the room.

“Is Xiao Yu feeling better? It sounded like she was very excited earlier. Have you really found that person?”

“Yes, I have found him.”

“Can you tell me where he is?” The aunty looked like she was about to dole out justice on Fang Yu’s behalf. “A man just went and abandoned Xiao Yu because she lost her memory. We will go and get him now. I have to teach him a lesson, or else I will not rest easy tonight!”

“The man has his own reason for staying away. The pain that he has suffered is no less than Fang Yu’s suffering,” Chen Ge said with a sad smile. “Aunty, thank you so much for having taken care of Fang Yu for so long. I will come and visit her more often during this coming period. One day, I might even be able to cure Fang Yu’s illness.”

“You mean her weak memory?”

“Yes.” Chen Ge placed the comic inside the backpack. “I won’t disturb you anymore. See you later.”

“Hey! You need to explain it clearer! And it is still raining! Take the umbrella with you!”

...

Carrying his backpack, he jogged out from the building. The rain fell on his body as Chen Ge rushed through the streets. The yellowish streetlights stretched his shadow as the man raced through the city that was already asleep. Before he left, he turned back to look at the apartment behind him. “There are bad guys in the world, but there are quite a number of good guys as well. A city in the night hides many cruel and gory madmen, but there is also plenty of quaint and normal beauty.”

Taking a cab back to New Century Park, Chen Ge carried his backpack and went straight underground.

Chapter 989 - Life and Death

Hide and Seek

Chapter 989: Life and Death Hide and Seek

“Is Doctor Wei around?” Chen Ge had the phone spirit Tong Tong summon the doctors from the underground morgue. “I need you guys to examine this person. He is not doing so well.”

Flipping through the comic, Chen Ge released the man and the red high heels.

“Xiao Chen, the knowledge that we have accumulated is to help cure the living’s illnesses. Even though in the spirit of research, we have started to inquire into ways of curing ghosts, the process of that is going very slowly.” Doctor Wei looked at the man that was about to dissipate. “The core that maintains the existence of a spirit is their fixation. Once that disappears, the ghost will cease to exist. This gentleman possesses a very strong fixation to this world, but there is something else that has corrupted that fixation, causing him to waver in his conviction. This is a very rare situation indeed.”

...

“What’s corrupting his fixation is the curse that was left behind by the ghost fetus.” Chen Ge knelt down next to the man. “Have some faith in yourself, okay? I will help you remove the curse so that you will be able to guard Fang Yu again, and you will never be separated from her anymore.”

The man’s body was wavering. He chuckled faithlessly. “I am really appreciative of your help, letting me see Fang Yu one last time, but you saw what happened earlier. As long as I am alive, I will harm Fang Yu. Furthermore, even if you manage to remove the curse, the ghost fetus will still come get me. Is it really worth it for you to anger the ghost fetus just for me?”

“I am not going to lie to you. Between myself and the ghost fetus, one of us will eventually have to die. Now, do you understand what I’m saying? Without you, he will want to kill me, and helping you is essentially me helping myself.” Chen Ge was not lying. He was exuding sincerity with his every word. “Cooperate well with this Red Specter to deal with your curse. After the curse has been removed, we will work together to deal with the ghost fetus.”

“Actually, you can just toss me away now. I have the ghost fetus’ curse on me. He will come after me the moment he is able to do...”

“Please don’t worry about things that are beyond you. Focus on removing the curse from your body. When we face off against the ghost fetus, I am afraid no one will even have any time to pay attention to you.”

After saying that, Chen Ge stood up and prepared to leave.

“Wait a minute!” The man collapsed on the ground. He hesitated for a long time before he decided to tell Chen Ge something. “We do not have much time left. The ghost fetus has spent ten years looking for the perfect candidate. He is going to come soon.”

“The ghost fetus has found the perfect candidate?” Chen Ge stopped moving. “What do you mean?”

“The shadow’s fixation is to become a living person. He wants to have a family, to possess happiness, to enjoy everything a normal person could, but at the same time, he hates everything that is good in the world. To complete his own desire, he has already parted from the ghost fetus and kept burying the fetus’ seed into many children. But most of the children were unable to suffer the pain that was brought upon them by the ghost fetus. Only those who were born in a family of nightmares, children who had already gotten used to the nightmare, had a trace of opportunity to assimilate the ghost fetus.”

“Shadow, children, seeds?” Chen Ge was reminded of the events that he had encountered in Eastern Jiujiang before he started the mission in Li Wan City. The memories were now being joined together to form a more logical timeline.

“The ghost fetus spent ten years in his search before finding nine children who could sustain his pain. The nine children correspond to the nine mud statuettes inside the nine altars.” The man’s voice was very weak, as if revealing these things would cause him great damage. The curse inside his heart was eating him up. “This project took ten years to complete. The nine children are from different age groups, they have different personalities and appearances, and the ghost fetus is currently growing in one of them!”

When the man said that last sentence, black threads crawled out from his eyes and mouth. If not for the red high heels, who was an expert at dealing with curses, the man would have crumbled and disappeared already. Not long after the man said that, the black phone in Chen

Ge's pocket started to vibrate. Taking out the phone and clicking on the app, Chen Ge clicked open the new message.

"Congratulations, Red Specter's Favored, for obtained a new special Specter, Zhang Yi!

"Zhang Yi (Cursed): A strong fixation gifted him with an extremely rare power. He can deprive living humans and ghosts of their memories. He is brimming with potential."

The black phone rarely praised the ghosts that Chen Ge had befriended, but for Zhang Yi, the black phone had stated quite clearly that he had a lot of potential.

"Looks like I need to spend more time in the future to try to upgrade Zhang Yi and Yan Danian into Red Specters. Both of them have immensely scary powers, but one is being tortured alive by curses, and the other has such low confidence in himself that the only thing he wants to do in life is draw."

Chen Ge was about to put the phone away when he saw that there was an unread message on the black phone.

"The new employee tab for Zhang Yi has already been unlocked. Why is there another unread message?"

Chen Ge clicked on the message. He had just read the first few lines of it, and his expression dropped.

"When the curse inside the altar was broken, the ghost fetus became aware of your arrival! Four-star Trial Mission 'Ghost Fetus' has been forcibly triggered!

"With the whole city as the stage, this is a life or death version of hide and seek!

"The nine altars represent nine children, and the ghost fetus is hiding inside one of them! You need to find him within nine nights, or you will definitely die once he turns into a ghost!"

"Mission hint: Lucky Red Specters' Favored, you are just one step away from finding out the whole truth!"

Reading the messages on the black phone, Chen Ge was frozen in place for a very long time.

Chapter 990 - Jiang Ming

Chapter 990: Jiang Ming

It took Chen Ge ten minutes just to digest the new information on the black phone. He had been silent, holding the phone. He knew that the ghost fetus was dangerous, and he knew that their conflict was inevitable, but he did not expect it to be so soon.

“Only nine days. If I can’t find him in nine days, I will die.”

The black phone never lied; all the information it had given had proven to be true.

...

“The four-star Trial Mission has been forcibly triggered, but this mission is different from the School of the Afterlife or any of the Trial Mission that I’ve done before. It doesn’t have a fixed location and doesn’t provide accurate information. It only gave me a general range—the entire city is the stage.”

Chen Ge frowned as he read the message on the black phone repeatedly. It was a four-star Trial Mission, but the introduction was so small, and the mission hint was only one sentence.

“The time limit is nine nights, and the phone specifically highlighted the nights. Does this mean that the children that are possessed by the ghost fetus will be weakened only at night?”

Chen Ge had played hide and seek many times in his life, but this would be the first time that he had placed his life on the line.

“At the moment, I only know the number of altars and children. Finding the ghost fetus that might be anywhere within Jiujiang with this is too difficult.” Chen Ge put away the black phone and took out his own phone. He opened the contact list. “I have limited resources, and now is not the time to take this on alone. I need to mobilize all the forces that I can.”

Chen Ge first turned to Lee Zheng and Captain Yan. After cooperating multiple times, Jiujiang’s law enforcement could be said to be Chen Ge’s reliable back up support.

“The police are better than me at finding people. Now, I might need to clarify the uniqueness of these children and the possible danger that one might encounter during the search.”

The game had already started. After the black phone triggered the mission, an hourglass appeared on the mission page. After it turned nine times, the ghost fetus would go to find Chen Ge.

“The black phone said that I will definitely die, which means the ghost fetus is probably also a Demon God. He has stolen nine altars and occupied them without the owners’ permission. Perhaps the altars’ owners have all been killed. The owners of the altar should be quite scary, but they were still no match for the ghost fetus. That proved that even among Demon Gods, the ghost fetus is a powerful one.”

Without any clues, Chen Ge could only make his own prediction.

“These nine days might be the only time I have left in my life.”

Chen Ge did not pull Zhang Yi back into the comic but had Doctor Wei and the red high heels cure him. The curing was just the red high heels pulling the black threads that represent curses out from Zhang Yi’s body. It was unknown how many curses the ghost fetus had planted on Zhang Yi’s body. To help him, this was the only way.

“I’ll leave him to you.” Carrying the backpack, Chen Ge returned to the ground. When he passed the Prop Room, he grabbed the hammer and shoved it into his backpack. “For the next nine days, I’ll have to carry this with me.”

To not influence the work at the Haunted House, Chen Ge custom-made a wooden ‘Skull-Cracker’s Hammer’ for Xiao Gu, the actor of Doctor Skull-Cracker. After he was done, it was already 3 am. He returned to the staff breakroom, but he could not sleep no matter what.

“It is hard to imagine that the four-star mission has already started, but I will spend the first night sleeping at home.”

Chen Ge got out some paper to list down all the information that he knew.

“Now I have found three altars. One of them corresponds to Fang Yu. Based on Fang Yu’s current condition, the ghost fetus is most likely not on her, so I can eliminate her. The second altar corresponds to me. There is a decapitated mud statuette with my name inside the altar, and it is covered in the word death. The ghost fetus hates me so much that anger and envy have caused him to lose his sanity.

“The futuristic theme park has two altars. If one is for me, who is the other one for?”

Initially, Chen Ge thought that the futuristic theme park only had one real altar and one fake, but he could not guarantee that to be true.

“The Haunted House at the futuristic theme park was built under the insistence of a Director Jiang. His adopted son, Jiang Ming, is about the same age as me. These are all suspicious points. The pair of father and son definitely know something. Perhaps they have done something to the altar without a mud statuette.”

With that in mind, Chen Ge activated the recorder to summon Xu Yin and then flipped through the comic and summoned all the Specters and spirits that he had found at the cursed Japanese house. Eerie wind gathered in the breakroom. The white cat dragged Xiaoxiao by her dress into the bedsheet. The cat and Xiaoxiao poked their eyes out from the darkness to observe the situation.

The little girl from the windchime and the grandson were the first to appear. They were holding hands like they were afraid of Chen Ge. Then the chair before the table slowly turned, and a sturdy looking old man appeared. He was facing away from Chen Ge, refusing to show Chen Ge his face like in the black and white picture.

The scent of blood thickened. Following a sad and resentful song, the woman in the stage costume appeared.

“Lian...” The man turned his head slightly. The woman’s body was flickering. She looked at the old man and started to move toward him.

“Do you think this is some dating game?” Chen Ge held the hammer and glared viciously at everyone in the room. “I don’t care about what you do in the future, but now I need you to answer a few questions honestly.”

His Yin Yang Vision swept the old man and the woman. He did not let the two children off the hook either. “The scenario that you stayed in had an altar. Tell me everything you know about it.”

With Chen Ge’s interrogation, he gained some important information from the old man. The woman in the costume had met the ghost fetus before. To protect the grandson and the girl, the woman had promised to help the ghost fetus protect the altar. In a way, she was like Zhang Yi; they were both protecting the altar. But the problem was, the woman promised the ghost fetus that she would only protect the altar with Chen Ge's statuette in it, and she did not need to care about the other altar.

The old man said that the altar with Chen Ge's statuette was the real altar originally in the cursed house. The altar that Chen Ge later saw inside the house was placed there by a young man named Jiang Ming. The key problem was that the replacement altar also had a mud statuette inside it initially. It had Jiang Ming's name carved on it, but it disappeared without a trace later. It had probably been taken away by Jiang Ming.

"I am the first, Fang Yu is the second, and from the current clues, it looks like Jiang Ming is the third."

If he left at that moment, he would arrive in Eastern Jiujiang at dawn. So, Chen Ge did not make his move immediately but chose to rest.

"Tomorrow, I'll have to visit the futuristic theme park again, but I won't get past the security with the hammer. That's a problem."

Chapter 991 - Hidden Clue [2 in 1]

Chapter 991: Hidden Clue [2 in 1]

Chen Ge believed that with how the people at the futuristic theme park viewed him, even if he went there, he would not be able to get any information from them. The workers there evaded him the moment they saw him. In their eyes, Chen Ge was probably as scary as an actual ghost. Chen Ge had a feeling that they had misunderstood him a little bit, but with the time crunch, he did not have time to explain the situation to them.

“Since I can’t go through the theme park’s security with the hammer, I should head to the hospital.” Chen Ge turned his attention to his previous victims. “When I went in for the visitation, the futuristic theme park arranged for their people to follow me on the visitation. They experienced the terror for themselves, so they should have some connection with me.”

People were the most fragile when they were sick. Chen Ge planned to have a chat with the workers who had fainted inside the Haunted House at the hospital tomorrow, but of course, the premise had to be that they had already woken up.

...

“Worrying will not change the situation. I’d better get a good rest while I can.”

He set an alarm and then drifted off to sleep. At 8 am the next morning, after brushing his teeth and washing his face, he summoned Ol’ Bai and Doctor Wei. “I will leave the management of the Haunted House to you. I have something else to do in the morning.”

“Xiao Chen, what kind of problem are you facing?” Doctor Wei only needed one glance to realize how different Chen Ge was from normal. “Yesterday, I heard from Zhang Yi that the ghost fetus is going to come soon. Is that what you’re worried about?”

“I am slightly worried about that, but the problem is not as serious as he made it out to be.” Chen Ge flashed a bright smile. “Just take good care of the Haunted House and leave the rest of me.”

“Actually, you can rely on us when you need it. After all, this is place is our home too.”

“Okay, don’t worry.” Chen Ge had Doctor Wei and Ol’ Bai return to their respective scenarios. He opened the gates of the Haunted House and walked out. Since it was the holiday season, the employees had arrived earlier than necessary.

“Go in and do your make-up. For the next few days, I might not be around the Haunted House during the day, so I will leave everything in your capable hands.”

“Boss, doesn’t you normally go out at night? Why are you suddenly changing it to the day?” Gu Feiyu was a man without much cunning, and he asked that question directly.

“I have something to deal with. It should be able to be completed within nine days. After that, I will give everyone a chance to have a good break.” Chen Ge entered the dressing room and applied the make-up on the few employees seriously. “Thank you so much for all of your dedication.”

The competition between the New Century Park and the futuristic theme park had reached its climax. The workers had prepared a long time for this, so Chen Ge would not go and trouble them. He went to greet Uncle Xu. Before the theme park opened for business, Chen Ge carried the heavy backpack and left the theme park. He stopped a passing cab. Once he got into the car, the smile on Chen Ge’s face slowly disappeared.

“Where are we going?”

“The major crimes unit of the city police station.”

...

When Chen Ge arrived at the station, he glanced at the guard and then at the backpack he was carrying. After a moment’s thought, he decided not to barge in just like that but pulled out his phone to give Lee Zheng a call.

“Brother Zheng, it’s me.”

“Chen Ge? How can I help you?”

“I am outside the station now. Can you fetch me? There are certain things that I need to confirm.”

“You are the first person who dared speak in such tone to an inspector from the major crimes unit. Wait a minute, I’ll get you in a bit.”

Ten minutes after hanging up the phone, Lee Zheng appeared at the door.

“So, tell me, what do you want to confirm?”

“Can we go in and talk?”

“We do not allow normal citizen into this place.” Lee Zheng glanced at Chen Ge and then slightly shook his head. “Never mind, come with me.”

The two entered the station, and Lee Zheng led Chen Ge into an empty conference room.

“Everyone is working. It’s not too good for people to see you inside the building even though everyone knows you.” Glancing at Chen Ge’s backpack, Lee Zheng had a guess what was inside it. “Relax, do you want something to drink?”

“Brother Zheng, I have two things to ask you.” Chen Ge got to the chase immediately.

“Go ahead.”

“Has Chang Gu woken up?” Chen Ge cared a lot about Chang Gu. He was a director, and he specialized in using ghosts as actors in his movies. Other than that, he was the person who knew Chang Wenyu the best in this world. At the School of the Afterlife, Chang Wenyu had sacrificed herself to destroy the door, but she had ended up being ‘killed’ by the combined effort of several Top Red Specters. Theoretically speaking, her soul should have been torn apart already, but the black phone still had Chang Wenyu’s page even after her ‘death’. The black phone said that Chang Wenyu had not officially died. Chang Gu was Chang Wenyu’s only family, so if Chang Wenyu had to place her trust on a person in this world, that person would definitely be Chang Gu.

Chen Ge wished to get in touch with Chang Gu to find out what Chang Wenyu had held back, how she had managed to stay alive. It was never wrong to be too careful. To be able to reach the top among the Red Specters, she should not be underestimated. That was what Chen

Ge had gained from his past experience.

“The physical wounds on his body have been healed, but he has not woken up. The doctor has done an MRI scan on his brain, and they did not find any problems.” Lee Zheng felt that Chen Ge was being exceptionally severe that day. “What’s the second thing?”

Chen Ge took in a light breath and then turned to Lee Zheng. “Inspector Lee, do you still remember Li Wan City?”

When Li Wan City was mentioned, Inspector Lee’s expression slowly changed. He moved his chair to sit before Chen Ge. “I only remember parts of it, and I have forgotten a lot.”

“That day, you were chasing after Jia Ming and entered Li Wan City. Then you ran into me inside the small town. In the end, it was me who carried you out, but in that chaos, Jia Ming managed to escape.”

Chen Ge had no idea how much Lee Zheng remembered about that night. That was an unspoken truce between him and Lee Zheng. After leaving Li Wan City, neither of them had asked the other about what happened on that night. Lee Zheng’s eyes moved away from Chen Ge. He looked at the vapor that rose from the hot water inside water glass. No matter what had happened that night, there was a truth that could not be changed. It was Chen Ge who carried the fainted inspector out from Li Wan City. The young man before him had saved his life.

“Of course, I remember all that. Actually, we have been continuing our search for Jia Ming. All the signs point to the fact that he has not left Jiujiang.” Lee Zheng stood up. “Jia Ming’s case is being personally handled by Captain Yan. I will take you to meet him.”

The two left the conference room, walked down the corridor, and reached an office on the third floor. When they knocked on the door, Captain Yan was talking to someone on the phone. The man whom Chen Ge associated with patience and kindness had a bright red face from anger. At certain agitating points, he even slammed his fists repeatedly on the table.

Two to three minutes after the phone call ended, Captain Yan slowly returned to his jovial self. When he saw Chen Ge, a smile naturally appeared on his face. “Lee Zheng, why did you bring Xiao Chen over today? Is he here to ask for more reward money? We are not the finance department. You’re at the wrong place. Haha.”

“Captain Yan, Chen Ge is here to ask about the case with Jia Ming.”

As if worried that Captain Yan might refuse to answer, Lee Zheng added kindly on Chen Ge's behalf, "After all, he was present during the event. He is one of the victims and also one of our witnesses. I do not think we should hide the details of the case from him."

"Currently, the case has gotten so big that it involves too many things." Captain Yan had Lee Zheng close the door of the office before he continued. "Thirty-six hours after Jia Ming escaped from Li Wan City, we found Jia Ming outside a residential house very far away from Li Wan City. But the problem was that he was not alone."

"Jia Ming has reappeared?" Chen Ge remembered that Jia Ming should still be trapped inside the door. This time, he was here to persuade the police to help him with something else, but he did not expect to get a surprise discovery like this. "Captain Yan, where is this residential building that Jia Ming reappeared at? I wish to go take a look."

"It was an old building. A fire once happened there, and it was right next to Pei Zhi Academy."

"It has been burned before?" One would need to go through a door to leave the red world. Chen Ge knew that there was a door in Eastern Jiujiang inside a building that had been razed by a big fire before. Ghost Fire! The scenario whose door pusher had been consumed by Doctor Gao!

Captain Yan pulled out a document from the lowest layer of his drawer. "There were four people who appeared alongside Jia Ming. There was a young man about twenty, a middle-aged man about forty, a woman who seemed like she suffered from a mental illness, and a child about four to five years old."

Flipping through the document, Captain Yan had already confirmed all their identities. "The young man's name is Bei Ye. He killed his own father and younger brother, Bei Wen. His mother shouldered the blame on his behalf and is currently locked up in prison."

"The middle-aged man around forty is a gambler. His name is Zhen Chun. He has no fixed occupation. There have been many complaints about his attitude, and he has been booked several times for domestic violence, shoplifting, and drunk driving. We have a thick case on him."

"The woman's name is Wang Qing. She is not a local. Her family does not have any history of mental illnesses, so her mental problem should not be hereditary but caused by some kind of trauma."

“Last is the boy. Strangely enough, we cannot get any information on him. We have visited all of Zhen Chun’s previous neighbors. They could only tell us that the family had a daughter, but the daughter went missing a few years ago. They were shocked when we told them that Zhen Chun actually had a boy as well.”

Chen Ge had an impression of all the people that Captain Yan had mentioned. Needless to say, he remembered Jia Ming. There was another evil spirit living in him, and he had once served the ghost fetus. The family of three were once the passengers on the Hearse, and they entered Li Wan City with Chen Ge. Last but not least, Bei Yu was a local of Li Wan City. He was a murderer that once hid himself in the hotel with the cannibalistic owner.

How did the mix of them end up together?

Jia Ming was exceptionally cunning, and Bei Ye was a mentally unstable killer. How could the two of them even tolerate hanging out the family of three? In Chen Ge’s mind, of the family of three, the father was a worthless person who bullied the weak but was fearful of the strong; the mother never spoke to anyone and would not give any response to any outer stimulus; the boy was very cute, but that was everything to him. In the eyes of a murderer and a madman, being cute would not save him. If anything, it would only invoke the cruelty and madness hidden inside their hearts.

Jia Ming and Bei Ye did not kill the family of three?

To understand the logic of a murderer, one had to look from the perspective of the murderer and see the problem from their angle.

Li Wan City was not that far away from the scenario of the Ghost Fire. It was not that close nor that far. So, how did this group of injured, old, and defenseless people pass through the world behind the door safely?

Chen Ge’s brain started to spin, and various speculations appeared in his mind.

Perhaps one of them knew a safe path. It could be Bei Ye or Jia Ming. They slithered away during the commotion, and their aim was to find the other door.

The family of three were normal citizens, but Jia Ming and Bei Ye wasted so much energy to protect them, going so far as to bring them out of the door. They have to be after something. The middle-aged man is a gambler. To obtain the thing that he wants, he could even do something like sacrificing his own daughter. Bringing him around is just a burden.

As for the circumstances around the mother, she seemed to have been through a huge trauma. She was just a walking human shell. Since both of the adults are so normal, it is quite clear that the reason Bei Ye and Jia Ming protected the family of three to escape from the world behind the door was the child!

Chapter 992 - I Know What He Looked Like as a Baby

Chapter 992: I Know What He Looked Like as a Baby

There has to be something special about the child. But what could it be that would cause Jia Ming and Bei Ye to willingly risk their lives to help him?

Chen Ge slowly narrowed his eyes, and only one possibility came to mind.

The child is one of the candidates for the ghost fetus. The ghost fetus is possibly in possession of that child.

...

Based on all the known information, Chen Ge came to a conclusion that was very close to the truth.

“Chen Ge, what are you thinking about?” Captain Yan prompted Chen Ge seeing how silent he was.

“It was nothing. I was just thinking how weird it was that the family of three would end up together with two wanted individuals.” Chen Ge looked at Captain Yan. “And the strange thing is that it does not feel like the family of three are being taken hostage, but they are being protected by the two.”

“We have considered this. Our top priority is to capture Jia Ming and Bei Ye.” Captain Yan took out another document. “They have been moving around different hiding places over this period of time, but strangely enough, they did not leave Jiujiang, like there was something very important to them in this city. Even with the risk of being captured, they refused to leave this city.”

The more Captain Yan said, the more unusual Chen Ge felt the child was. The boy had to have some kind of connection with the ghost fetus.

“Captain Yan, we mustn’t give them any more time to escape from the judgement of the law anymore. I have a very bad feeling about this. We have to bring them in as soon as possible.” Chen Ge was really running out of time. He currently had so little information that it was practically impossible to find the ghost fetus within eight nights.

“We have already started to triangulate their location, and the range is slowly being drawn closer and closer. We will have them in custody within the next three days.” Captain Yan was personally handling Jia Ming’s case. This proved how serious he treated the case. After all, Jia Ming was wanted for very serious crimes. He had murdered his wife, attacked the police, and taunted the law enforcement more than several times.

“Within three day?” Chen Ge nodded lightly. “Captain Yan, can you bring me along on that operation?”

There was an evil spirit hiding in Jia Ming, and the boy could be related to the ghost fetus; Chen Ge was worried about possible injuries on the police’s side.

“You’d better stay quietly at your theme park. I heard that your theme park has recently gotten in serious competition with the futuristic theme park, so you should focus on that and stop running around aimlessly.”

“Fine.” Chen Ge gave him promise verbally but used his Yin Yang Vision to scan the documents that had been left open on the table. He realized with some shock that of the three locations that the police had been watching closely, he was very familiar with two of them. One was Li Wan City, and the other was Jiang Yuan Apartments.

“If there is nothing else, you can go for now.” Captain Yan seemed to notice that Chen Ge was stealing looks at the documents on his table, but he did not stop him. Perhaps he was using this method to help Chen Ge. It did not technically violate the law, and it did not go against his own principles.

“Actually, there is one other thing.” Chen Ge did not hide the information from Captain Yan. “I wish to look for a person at Jiujiang.”

“What kind of person?”

“He should be younger than me...”

“Is that the only clue you have? There are so many people who are younger than you—how do you expect we help you with that?”

Chen Ge felt helpless, hearing Captain Yan's reply. The information that he had was limited, and part of what he knew could not even be shared with the police.

"I know what the person looked like when he was a baby. With a photo comparison, you should be able to find that person!" Chen Ge revealed yet another piece of information. Back on the rooftop of the building at the edge of Li Wan City, the shadow had been surrounded by Zhang Ya and Doctor Gao. In the end, he had needed to borrow strength from the ghost fetus, and during the final phase of the battle, there had been the skull of a baby that appeared on the chest of the shadow. The baby's face had been twisted in a horrible grimace, consumed by curses and anger. The baby was supposed to represent the birth of new life, but its eyes were filled with venom and the wish for destruction.

Chen Ge had a deep impression of that baby's face. At the time, he had considered that he might run into the situation like this, so he had memorized the baby's face as best as he could. This was the most direct clue that he possessed regarding the ghost fetus; he knew how the ghost fetus looked like when he was still an infant.

"Chen Ge, these two clues that you have are too general. Just looking through the database will exhaust a lot of manpower and time, and it might not even give us any real results." Captain Yan tapped the surface of the table lightly. "I can help you, but you have to give me a reasonable reason that will be able to persuade me to do so."

"Someone wants to kill me, and the killer left behind three clues. He is younger or of the same age as me, I know what he looked like when he was very young, and he leaves behind altars that contain mud statuettes inside them."

Since he was there to seek help from the law enforcement, Chen Ge would not hide too much information from them. He had seen many horror movies in the past, and he did not approve of the actions of the many main characters where they only thought about finding help from the police when the danger was right before the eyes. The ending would be that the phone could not be connected because the telephone line had been severed or something along those lines.

But Chen Ge was different. The mission that he had only lasted for nine nights. On the first day, he went to the police for help. He would leave no chance for any accidents to occur.

Chapter 993 - Trap or Opportunity

Chapter 993: Trap or Opportunity

Chen Ge told Captain Yan and Lee Zheng all the information that he could share with them. Once the two heard that someone planned to take Chen Ge's life, their expressions changed immediately. They knew that Chen Ge would not joke about something like that. Since he said that someone was out to get him, it could only be true. Furthermore, Chen Ge had to be under a lot of pressure from the threat, or else with Chen Ge's personality, he would not have gone to the police for help without any concrete evidence.

They talked for another hour, and Chen Ge told the police everything that he could. Then Captain Yan called over the station's profile expert. Based on Chen Ge's description, they drew a picture of the ghost fetus when he was a baby. After leaving everything with the police, Chen Ge left in a hurry to the next location.

"The child with Jia Ming probably corresponds to one of the altars. He knows the shadow and the ghost fetus better than Zhang Yi. After he is captured, the fog around the ghost fetus will disperse."

...

After taking the cab to the hospital, Chen Ge went to the hall for fainted patients. There were many patients who had left after they woke up, but their empty beds would quickly be taken by new patients. As the popularity of Chen Ge's haunted house continued to grow, there would occasionally be times when there were not enough beds, and they would have to add new beds temporarily. Carrying the heavy backpack, with the nurse leading the way, Chen Ge was brought to one of the sickrooms.

The employees from the futuristic theme park enjoyed good benefits. The upper management at them park had arranged for their six workers to share a private room at the hospital. After knocking, Chen Ge entered the room. The police officer, Xiao Ling, and the woman with the long hair were playing cards. When the three saw Chen Ge, they shivered on instinct and the memory that they had forgotten with difficulty had started to surface.

However, they were different from the visitors that had fainted at Chen Ge's haunted house. These workers did not think that their horrible nightmare had anything to do with Chen Ge. One thing that confused them was why everybody had fainted but Chen Ge was able to walk out from the haunted house on his own two feet.

"I visited a haunted house with them a few days ago, and what we are going to discuss will involve the business secrets of the two theme parks, so..." Before Chen Ge finished, the nurse nodded to show that she understood, and she left the room.

"Chen Ge, sorry for what we did that day. We have made such fools of ourselves." The police officer thought that Chen Ge was quite a reliable person. If not for their employers, they might even have been friends.

"There is a problem with your haunted house." Chen Ge sat down beside the three with a serious expression. "I hope that you will not tell another person what I am about to tell you."

"Okay."

"I came here just to confirm one thing with you." Chen Ge's eyes scanned the three in the room. "Did we run into actual ghosts... that day?"

The three workers from the futuristic theme park did not say anything, but their expressions were complicated. Chen Ge dropped his backpack in the corner of the room and then took out his phone and placed it on the table. "Don't worry. I am not recording any sound bites or videos. You can search my body if you want. I just want to clarify what happened that day."

The police officer and Xiao Ling both turned to the woman with the long black hair. The three shared a look. In the end, it was Xiao Ling who went up to check the door, and after ensuring it was locked, she began to whisper, "It is not only you who feels that way. We also have been shivering in fear when we think back about what happened."

"Of the ghosts and monsters that we ran into that day, many of them were not supposed to be in the data base," the police officer said with a bitter smile. "That can only mean that the scenario possesses things that should not be there in the first place. In any case, I will not go to the haunted house to help around anymore. If they insist on posting me there, I will have no choice but to quit."

"But why would something like that happen? Is it really because of the dead people's spirits that possess the old objects? Like the altar inside the cursed Japanese house?" Chen Ge was slowly directing the conversation. He wished to get some information, but he could not make it sound too obvious.

"Other than that, we cannot come up with another explanation."

"I heard from someone that all of the old objects were moved into the haunted house by a director with the surname Jiang. Is it possible that Director Jiang knew that something like this would happen?" Chen Ge asked with obvious curiosity. "Who is this Director Jiang? Building such a large haunted house requires a lot of money. Why would the upper management at your theme park agree to something like that?"

"Jiang Jiu is one of the bigwigs at the theme park. He is also one of the shareholders of the theme park. He was in the real estate business, and I heard he had an altercation with your theme park's Director Luo about ten years ago." Xiao Ling sat back down on the bed. "In any case, he is a very important person, and small employees like us will not know anything about him."

"He had an altercation with Director Luo?" That was something that Chen Ge did not expect. He felt like he was standing inside a spiderweb that was weaved through the years. He was slowly getting close to the truth, but the spider that spun the web had its eyes on him as well.

"Yes, they were both in real estate in the past, but for some reason, they both wanted the same piece of land in Western Jiujiang. In the end, it was taken by director Luo." The woman with the long hair seemed to know many things. The presence that she carried herself with separated her from other normal workers.

"Is it the land that New Century Park is currently sitting on?"

"Yes, at the time, the piece of land looked normal, but now I cannot help but be impressed by the foresight of the bigwigs."

"Normal?" On the surface, Chen Ge knew it looked normal, but it was definitely not normal underground. He memorized this detail and changed the subject.

"The history of the older generation does not have anything to do with us. I just wish to understand the reason for Jiang Jiu purposely moving those old objects into the haunted house. Don't you think he's up to something?" Chen Ge asked. "I went to check up on the information regarding this after I left your theme park. I realized that altar was not a shrine to honor the gods; it is to feed the ghosts with curses. Every altar has a mud statuette inside it, and anyone who comes into contact with mud statuette will be cursed. That is such a trivial attitude regarding the safety of the visitors.”

“There must be some kind of misunderstanding there.”

“If the altars are just placed there, something bad will definitely happen,” Chen Ge said in a serious tone. “You have personally experienced how scary the haunted house can be when it goes out of control. This is related to human lives. I must have a good chat with the management of your haunted house. Does any of you know how to contact Jiang Jiu?”

The few were just employees, so Chen Ge did not expect they would help him gain contact with one of the futuristic theme park’s bigwigs, Jiang Jiu. Instead, he was trying to fish for information about Jiang Ming from them, and then he would make his move that night. That was why he did not have the police intervene into the issue at the futuristic theme park. The Specters at the cursed house had seen a mud statuette with Jiang Ming’s name on it before. This meant that Jiang Ming was one of the nine children. The intervention from the police would ruin his plan and complicate the situation.

This Jiang Ming looks about the same age as I am. When the shadow separated from the ghost fetus, he would’ve been about ten. I saw him before at the theme park. He looked normal and had a friendly presence about him. Why would someone like him be selected by the ghost fetus? Could this be a trap set by the ghost fetus?

The chance of the ghost fetus being inside Jiang Ming was not high, but Chen Ge still planned to meet him in person that night. When the employees from the futuristic theme park heard that Chen Ge wanted to contact Jiang Jiu, they all acted strangely. They did not deny Chen Ge’s request but turned to look at the woman with the long hair.

“Wait, you can really contact Jiang Jiu?”

“I can’t contact Jiang Jiu, but his stepson, Jiang Ming, is my ex-boyfriend. We were together for three and a half years, but we broke up for a ridiculous reason.” The woman had the air of a powerful woman. Even if she was feeling sad, she would not allow it to show on her face.

“A ridiculous reason? What kind of ridiculous reason?” Chen Ge was intrigued.

“When I went to his home for the first time, I realized that there was a child about four or five years old staying at his home. The boy’s name is also Jiang Ming. I asked him what his relationship with the boy is, and all he could do was stammer.”

Chapter 994 - If You Don't Help Me, There Might Not Be a Chance in the Future!

Chapter 994: If You Don't Help Me, There Might Not Be a Chance in the Future!

“There is a child by the name of Jiang Ming who’s Jiang Ming’s child?” Chen Ge did not expect to be given such surprising news with his casual question.

“Yes, I didn’t think much of it at the time. I just thought it was weird until the boy suddenly called Jiang Ming ‘dad’.” The woman with the long hair elicited a bitter smile. “I had not heard Jiang Ming mention having a family before. That day, we had a horrible dinner. Before we parted, I asked him what his relationship with that child was. For some reason, he got mad at me and told me to stop asking random questions.

“Was I being too unreasonable? If the boy wasn’t his, if he’d adopted him, I could fully understand that, but he refused to say anything. How was I supposed to take in all that?”

...

“It shouldn’t be his biological son. Why would his own child share his name?” Chen Ge was not there to listen to someone else’s love story. Before waiting for the woman to continue, he asked, “What does the child look like? Is there anything physically different about him?”

“The child is quite pitiable. He is deaf in both ears, and I believe he is forbidden to leave the house. His vocabulary is very limited.” The woman sounded worried. “Jiang Ming comes from a wealthy family, but I don’t think they plan to send the boy to receive any treatment. During dinner, whenever I raised the topic of the boy, Jiang Ming would get angry at me.”

“When you visited his home, did you hear Jiang Ming tell the boy anything? Things like altars, mud statuettes, curses, or anything like that?”

“During dinner, Jiang Ming locked the boy in his bedroom. He appeared to have something against the boy communicating with the outside world.”

“Okay, I understand.” Chen Ge nodded. “One last question, what is Jiang Ming’s address? I wish to visit him in person.”

“How about I give you his phone number?”

“These things are better said in person. Things get muddled in the phone.”

At Chen Ge’s insistence, the woman finally gave him Jiang Ming’s address.

...

When Chen Ge left the hospital, it was already afternoon. He arranged all the information that he had gotten in the sickroom. The many scenarios that he had experienced hid a lot of different information. What had appeared useless now became clues for him to look for the ghost fetus. If the truth was a giant puzzle, what Chen Ge was doing now was piecing the puzzle together.

He took a cab back to New Century Park. After ensuring that there were no issues at the haunted house, he took the taxi to Eastern Jiujiang again. The countdown had already started, so there was no time to lose. When Chen Ge arrived at Eastern Jiujiang’s White Dragon Tunnel, it was already dark.

“When I first came here, I found many bad things hidden in the surrounding woods, but this time, it’s much quieter.”

He waited until 8 pm before he dragged the heavy backpack into the tunnel. The abandoned tunnel was deserted. The ground was littered with rotten tree branches and trash. Chen Ge did not open the light. He placed his hand on the cold tunnel wall and slowly walked into it. Light disappeared behind him, and he entered a world dominated by darkness.

“Is anyone home? The ghost fetus is coming alive, and this might be the first place he attacks. Before that happens, I wish to share all of the information I know with you so that you can be prepared.”

Chen Ge had not been so desperate to run into a ghost in his life. He had gone there to look for the Red Specter from the car accident and her son. Of all the Red Specters that Chen Ge had met, the son was the most unique one. Most door pushers had their door inside a certain building, and that building became a bridge that connected the real world to the blood world. But the door pusher in White Dragon Tunnel was different. When he died, his body had been stuck inside the car window. The fire in the car had melted his body to the car window, and the door that he pushed open was inside his body!

After entering the world behind the door many times, there was one thing that Chen Ge was certain of. It was easy to enter the world behind the door, but to exit it, one needed the door pusher's permission. The School of the Afterlife was a four-star scenario. After being led unwillingly into the world behind its door, Chen Ge had been worried about this issue.

If the ghost fetus ambushed him and dragged him behind his door, Chen Ge would be dead. To avoid that from happening, the best solution that Chen Ge could think of was to stay with the Red Specter from the car accident and her son. That way, even if he was trapped in the world behind the door, he could escape easily through the door inside the son's body.

The reason the shadow had gone to the tunnel was probably because he wanted to gain access to this unique door as well, but the boy had avoided him every time. However, it was also because of the shadow that the Red Specter from the car accident and her son did not dare wander away from the tunnel. Once they left, bad things would happen.

Leaning against the wall, Chen Ge reached the spot where he had first met the Red Specter from the car accident. Changes slowly appeared in the tunnel. The air turned wet, and even with his Yin Yang Vision, the things around him became blurry like there was a dark fog rolling out from the deepest part of the tunnel. A scratching sound echoed in his ears like the sound of many bugs crawling on the wall. Chen Ge stopped moving.

He's here.

In the dark tunnel, a pair of red eyes slowly opened. Following a shrill wail of mercy, a large 'spider' appeared. Six carved appendages pierced deeply into the wall, and the enormous body was filled with wailing faces and in the middle of all the faces was the head of a small boy. Black and red tattoos crawled on the boy's face, and his bloodshot eyes looked down on Chen Ge. There was another Red Specter sitting on the spider's back. She wore a tattered dress, but she looked at Chen Ge relatively kindly.

The boy seems to have gotten stronger.

The door of White Dragon Tunnel was inside the boy's body. A normal Red Specter was not his match. If he ran into someone whom he could not win, he could open the door inside his body and escape. No wonder even the shadow could not do anything to him. But this kind of special power was gained after an unimaginably painful sacrifice.

"We've cooperated before, at Li Wan City. That time, your mom came with me. She's the best witness." Chen Ge wanted to build a bond first. After realizing that the woman did not have a bad impression of him, he continued. "Last time, we worked together to kill the shadow, but in reality, the shadow had long separated himself from the ghost fetus. Now, no one knows what the ghost fetus is, but one thing's for sure—he is very scary and is capable of killing all of us very easily."

Chapter 995 - Old Friends!

Chapter 995: Old Friends!

It was not that difficult to persuade the woman and her son. They knew about the horrors of the shadow better than Chen Ge, and they knew about the ghost fetus' existence. They just did not expect him to arrive so soon. The two Red Specters agreed to help, but they only agreed to let the woman follow Chen Ge. The son refused to leave the tunnel no matter what. This time, the situation was different from Li Wan City. Chen Ge had more than enough Red Specters to help him. One more Red Specter was not going to change the situation. What he needed was that unique door, and the door argued about this for a long time.

Chen Ge slowly understood what the two Red Specters were worried about. The door that the son pushed opened toward the tunnel behind the door. No matter where he opened that door, it would lead to that same place. But the problem was, the son had only opened the door in the real world. He had not attempted to open the door inside the world of another Red Specter. He could not guarantee that his door would lead them back to real life.

This was the first problem. The second problem was that the son had a very curious power—Dream Weaving.

...

After he consumed a Specter, he could gain a part of the Specter's memory and use that memory to weave a dream. The intensity of the memory impacted how long the dream would last. Most of the dreams dissipated after a moment, but there were a small handful of dreams that could exist for a long time, as long as the boy continued to feed them. The son had spent many years rigging the tunnel with many dream traps. Once one accidentally stepped into them, even for the shadow, it would be a difficult trap to escape from. These dreams were scary, but they needed the son to continue repairing and feeding them. If he left for an extended period, the dreams would all dissolve on their own.

When the ghost fetus arrived, nowhere would be safe. Chen Ge argued with the ferocity of truth on his side. After enough persuasion, the son finally agreed. Within the next nine days, he would follow Chen Ge and leave for one night. One night was more than enough for Chen Ge. He was very appreciative of the two Red Specters' help. After they had made their agreement, he left with the woman from the car crash and hurried toward Li Wan City.

"Danian, one day, if every page of your comic is filled with Red Specters, will you feel too pressured?"

"You are the strongest Specter beneath a Red Specter; you have to have confidence in yourself! You can do it!"

"No matter what other people say, you are the best!"

"I mean, take a look at Ol' Bai now. Look how amazing he is. He should try to consume other Specters. When you become a Red Specter, you'll become the strongest Red Specter beneath Demon Gods!"

Chen Ge walked for a long time before he got a taxi driver who was willing to take him. On the way to Li Wan City, he talked to himself while hugging the comic. The driver thought that he was talking on the phone, but when Chen Ge got out of the car, he realized that Chen Ge was not wearing any earbuds.

Chen Ge managed to reach Li Wan City before midnight. He found the door, and when the door was covered in blood at midnight, he carried the backpack and pushed the door open. The blood fog stuck to his skin, and his breathing became difficult. Every breath filled his lungs with the scent of blood. Chen Ge activated the recorder to summon Xu Yin, and then he wandered down the red streets. Compared to his previous time there, the place had not changed much.

"When the door was pushed open, Xiao Bu should have realized my presence already." Li Wan City was a 3.5-star scenario, and the blood covered almost half of the city. After the shadow died, most of the locals had slipped away, but many new ghosts had migrated there to replace them. Chen Ge only took few steps when he felt many malicious stares on him. They were very interested in the living human, but due to Xu Yin, they did not do anything. "It must be quite tiring for Xiao Bu to manage such a big place alone. If I have time in the future, I should come and help her."

Narrowing his eyes, Chen Ge smiled at the buildings around him. "Don't just stand there and watch. Why don't you come and join me?"

There was no answer. Chen Ge wanted to release Yan Danian, have him stop drawing, and get him involved in some fighting. "Consider yourself lucky."

After walking past several deserted streets, the blood fog thickened. Bloody raindrops fell on Chen Ge, and a figure appeared in the rain. She wore a red raincoat, and her lips were sewn together. Her bloodshot eyes followed Chen Ge and Xu Yin. The woman in the red raincoat!

Chen Ge stopped moving and waved. "Have you found your child?"

The woman slowly walked toward Chen Ge, and when she reached his side, she shook her head lightly.

"If he's not behind the world inside the door, is it possible that he's actually not been killed by the shadow but is hidden somewhere around Jiujiang?" Chen Ge looked into the woman's pair of clear eyes. "The ghost fetus is possessing one of the children, and your child might be one of them. I have done a lot of research and have narrowed down the candidates to nine children..."

Chen Ge was about to speak when the woman suddenly grabbed his arm. The chill seeped into his skin, and the chill crawled up his bones and into his heart. The woman's lips were sewn shut, so she could not speak, but a pleading cry escaped from her mouth.

"Calm down, I came to get you to leave with me. For the next eight days, I will track down all nine children, but during this period, you have to listen to me and cannot act on your own." Chen Ge struggled loose from the woman. "Where is Xiao Bu? Bring me to see her. I have something that I need to clarify with her."

The woman in the red raincoat slowly turned around and signaled for Chen Ge to follow. They walked through Li Wan City and came to the building where Zhang Ya and Doctor Gao had battled the shadow. The innocent red little girl was lying against the wall, using her own blood to slowly clean away the curse left behind by the shadow. It would take years or even decades to remove the curse that the shadow had left on Li Wan City, but Xiao Bu did not seem to mind.

Before Chen Ge got close, Xiao Bu sensed Chen Ge. She pulled back all her blood vessels and walked toward Chen Ge. The girl reacted curiously when she saw Chen Ge. Her eyes only stopped for a second on Chen Ge's face before she turned to Chen Ge's shadow like there was something interesting that captured her attention there. She stared at his shadow and started to daydream.

“Xiao Bu, what are you thinking?” Chen Ge wanted to walk forward to tussle her hair, but considering that she was the door pusher in Li Wan City and could be as powerful as a Top Red Specter, he cleverly gave up that idea. “I’ve come to see him due to something important. The ghost fetus that separated from the shadow years ago is about to be born. He is currently in Jiujiang, hiding in one of the children. I wish to invite you to come help me find him.”

Her hazy eyes wandered between Chen Ge and the shadow before Xiao Bu nodded.

After leaving the door at Li Wan City, Chen Ge glanced at his phone. “It’s still earlier. I should take a detour to the Third Sick Hall. I haven’t seen Men Nan in such a long time. I kinda miss that little guy.”

Chapter 996 - Door Beside the Bed

Chapter 996: Door Beside the Bed

The third sick hall was a turning point for Chen Ge. Before this mission, he had been on the defensive. It was at this place that he started to resist and realized that the ‘bad guys’ could also feel afraid.

Returning to where it all began, Chen Ge jumped over the wall and found the door. Since it was already past midnight, Chen Ge could only try another method to open the door. Actually, he had been meaning to try this, but he had not had the chance.

There were still many puzzles around the ‘door’. Many door-pushers knew so little about the doors that they pushed open, much less a normal person like Chen Ge. Summoning Xu Yin and the red high hells, Chen Ge used the blood vessels and curse, but it did not affect the door. He then summoned the stench and the headless woman. The number of Red Specters increased, and the hellish winds blew. Many blood vessels crawled on the wall as if they were trying to dye the whole corridor red.

...

Each Red Specter used their own power, but they could not make the door budge. Chen Ge held the comic and was about to summon the other Red Specters when the door suddenly shuddered. Fresh blood leaked from the gap, and footsteps echoed in the empty room.

“Finally, there’s a reaction. Could it be Men Nan?”

The footsteps approached. When the blood covered the door, the door was opened. A boy slightly taller than Chen Ge’s knees leaned against the door and peeked out.

“Men Nan, long time no...”

Slam!

The door was closed instantly; Chen Ge did not even have the chance to react. Several seconds later, the door opened again. Men Nan’s eyes scanned the lineup of Red Specters, and he raised his little hand to slap himself. The door opened, and more than a handful of Red Specters were eyeing him like he was some candy. There was no realer nightmares than this.

Slam!

The door was closed again, and the blood on the door quickly faded away.

“Men Nan, Brother Nan, I’m here on important business. The ghost fetus separated from the shadow is coming back. He is mad and extremely vengeful.” Chen Ge knocked on the door. “It’s very dangerous now. I need you to open the door.”

Several seconds later, the door creaked open a sliver. Men Nan leaned against the door and peeked out. “You’re not here to kill me?”

“Why would you think that? We’ve been through so much, and we’ve survived many dangerous incidents. I would never harm you.” The door slowly opened, and Men Nan’s eyes wandered around the surrounding Red Specters. He was afraid. It felt like he was a primary school student being surrounded by a group of tattooed gangsters.

“I know about the ghost fetus. I’ve heard about him from the people of the Ghost Stories Society. The thing is very scary, and I’ll be vanquished with one glance.” Men Nan raised his hand toward Chen Ge. “I really can’t help. See you around. I have to go fix the window. Who knows what happened in that red city? Recently, the amount of red fog has increased drastically, and I have to fix the window before tragedy strikes.”

“Men Nan, there is no need to be so humble. Yes, you are not as powerful as other Red Specters, but perhaps because you are too weak, you have retained human rationality, and that is the most important thing.” Chen Ge squatted before Men Nan. “You can communicate freely with me, and your intelligence is incredibly high. If something happens to me, you can come to your own decision with your own analysis.”

Men Nan was the weakest among all the Red Specters, but he had something that the other Red Specters did not. He had retained his sanity and was not consumed by negative emotions.

“How come your praise doesn’t make me feel any happiness? If anything, I feel offended.” Men Nan scratched his neck as his small brows creased together. “Let me think about it.”

“No door pusher will be able to survive this. If we can’t stop the ghost fetus, he will eventually come to you. Have you forgotten the days when you were trapped by the Ghost Stories Society? The ghost fetus will be crueler than them.”

After a few minutes of conflict, Men Nan promised, “Fine, I’ll help you one last time.”

“After we deal with the ghost fetus, I’ll bring you back here immediately.” Chen Ge flipped open the comic. He valued Men Nan so much because of a plan that he needed to complete. The plan would work without a hitch even if he had lost his consciousness and was dying.

“Okay, that’s a promise. If you dare lie to me, I will haunt you forever.” Closing the door to Third Sick Hall, Men Nan was sucked into the comic.

“The child has a sharp tongue but a soft heart.” Chen Ge summoned the Red Specters back one by one. Finally, only Xu Yin was left. The two stayed on the empty corridor. Chen Ge took out the recorder. “Xu Yin, one night, if you can’t find me anymore, do not do anything rash. You can come and consult Men Nan. He is a very clever ghost. He will help you make the correct choice. Do you understand me?”

With an unresolvable melancholy in his eyes, Xu Yin nodded lightly.

“Come, let’s head to the next location.” Chen Ge left the third sick Hall. He did not go to rest but took a cab to the place where Jiang Ming lived. “After tonight, I will only have seven nights left. Time flies.”

Jiang Ming lived in a high-end residential area at the center of Jiujiang. According to the employee from the futuristic theme park, this house belonged to Jiang Ming. Only Jiang Ming and the boy lived there. The cab stopped at the gate of the area. The gate was closed, and the guard was playing on his phone. Walking in from the front door was going to be difficult. After getting out of the car, Chen Ge carried the backpack and came to the other side of the gated residential area. He sat by the road and summoned Men Nan.

“The fourth floor of the third block in Area A, I need you to scout ahead for me. The target is a child about your size. He is deaf in both ears. His name is Jiang Ming. He should be one of the nine candidates chosen by the ghost fetus.”

Men Nan was the only choice to do something with such a high difficulty. His intelligence was sharp, and he was a Red Specter. He could move freely at night, and he was powerful enough to deal with any normal threats.

“You want me to go alone? If the ghost fetus is really in him, wouldn’t I be dead?” Men Nan shook his head rapidly.

“The ghost fetus will only wake up in eight nights’ times. I just need you to confirm this for me and observe if there’s anything weird about this boy and his home.” Chen Ge pointed at the surveillance camera. “There is a blind spot at the left side. If you make any discoveries, I will hurry over to join you.”

“How come I feel like you’re trying to scam me?” Men Nan grumbled as he headed into the residential area. Chen Ge used his Yin Yang Vision to follow his movement. Ten minutes later, Men Nan suddenly reappeared in Chen Ge’s gaze. His hands were cold, and the blood vessels on his shirt were dancing.

“Have you fought with them? Are there other Specters in the room?”

“It’s not that.” The shock in Men Nan’s eyes was still evident as he turned his head up to Chen Ge. “There is a semi-visible door in the room. It is right next to the child’s bed.”

“There’s a door by the child’s bed?”

“Yes, and something was coming out from the door!” Men Nan was confused. “When I tried to get close, the door vibrated like crazy, and then something weirder happened. The boy who was sleeping opened his eyes! Didn’t you say that he was deaf?”

“Wait a minute. Even if he had normal hearing, do you think a living human could hear the door to the other world open?” Chen Ge was surprised, too.

Chapter 997 - I Am Normally a Very Reasonable Person

Chapter 997: I Am Normally a Very Reasonable Person

“After the boy woke up, the door disappeared. He couldn’t see me, but he seemed to know that there was someone else in the room. He used a very low whisper and called out, ‘Daddy’.” Men Nan sat next to Chen Ge. The boy and the man stared at each other. “He seemed to want to express something else, but that appeared to be the only word he knew.”

“Can you describe the door beside the boy’s bed in more detail? How is that door different from your own door?”

“It was very unreal, like it would disappear at any moment. The blood vessels on the door were very faded, and they were all focused at one location like they were pieced there.” This was the first time that Men Nan had seen a door like that. “It’s hard to explain. I suggest you go and see it in person.”

...

“Upscale apartments like these have password locks in their stairwell, and there are cameras everywhere in the courtyard. If I do anything, I’ll be discovered, and that will only expose our tracks and tip off the enemy.” After observing for some time, Chen Ge had noticed that the surveillance effort of the upscale residential area was very good. He had no chance of slipping into the child’s home without notice.

“A change of plan.” Chen Ge looked at the phone. When he left the Third Sick Hall, it had been 12:50 am; it was now 1:30 am.

“Are you going to barge in?”

“Not necessary. We’ll return when Jiang Ming leaves for work tomorrow morning.” Chen Ge stood up and went to the nearby stall to buy something to eat. “Would you like some?”

“Thanks, but it’s fine. Call me when you return tomorrow. I am quite interested in that boy.” Men Nan returned to the comic. After Chen Ge had his fill, he took another cab to Jiang Yuan Apartments.

Originally, Chen Ge planned to leave for Coffin Village, but if he entered the mountains then, he would reach the village around dawn. "There'll still be time to go in the future. I should be qualified to know more things about that village now."

At 2 am, Chen Ge arrived at Jiang Yuan Apartments, he carried the loaded backpack and entered the corridor. He had returned to the same place with the same people, but his emotions were different. Chen Ge did not forget about the things that happened that night during his nightmare mission. This time, he purposely stuck to the scary corners. But probably due to the warning of the Red Specter in the building, nothing came out to scare Chen Ge.

"I remember, on this floor, that someone tried to drag me into a room." Chen Ge took out the hammer and politely knocked on the respective door at 2:30 am. He waited for a long time, but no one answered the door. Just as he was about to use the hammer to knock down the lock, a child's laughter came from the stairwell.

"The person who lived there moved the night you came." A boy, around eight years old, sat on the banister. His red shirt was soaked, and it dripped blood. His eyes were bulging and filled with whiteness. If anyone ran into a child like this in their own apartment, they would be scared witness.

"I am a water ghost. I was drowned. I drifted around for a long time before I found this door, and it was lucky that I managed to become a Red Specter." The boy jumped down from the banister. He had long hair, and his white eyes stared at Chen Ge. "The promise we made that day was that you would bring the real door pusher here at 2 am in three days. This isn't the third day. Why have you returned earlier than promised?"

"I have found the clues about the real door pusher!" Chen Ge put down the hammer and picked up his bag. "It was not me who pushed open the door here but my shadow. At the time, I told him all my negative thoughts. He couldn't take them anymore, so he pushed open the door, but since he was just a shadow, the door wasn't pushed open completely." Chen Ge was just speculating left and right. He did not know the truth, but he knew how to push the blame onto the shadow.

"You said your shadow pushed open the door?" The water ghost took one step and appeared before Chen Ge in an instant. His face was leaning in to Chen Ge. "Only a person at their deepest despair can push open the door! Are you trying to trick me?"

“It’s all real. The shadow has now separated himself from the ghost fetus. He wants to be reborn as a human!” Chen Ge told him everything he knew about the ghost fetus. The boy did not believe him initially, but the more he listened to Chen Ge, the more he was persuaded. Finally, when he heard Chen Ge mention the names Jia Ming and Bei Ye, his expression changed, and that did not escape Chen Ge’s attention.

“Do you know Jia Ming and Bei Ye?” Chen Ge knew from Captain Yan that Jia Ming and Bei Ye were indeed once spotted at Jiang Yuan Apartments. Chen Ge felt like it was normal for the boy as the owner of this place to have heard their names before.

“I don’t know them, but...” The boy pointed at the door next to Chen Ge. “They were the former tenants of that room. The night you came, it was Jia Ming who tried to drag you into the room to kill you.”

“That was him? Impossible! I remember that the person who dragged me had zero warmth; it was not a living person.”

“There is a very wicked spirit living in Jia Ming. It was the spirit who made the move that night. I have no idea why it was so determined to kill you.” The boy did not have the need to lie, so he should be telling the truth. Chen Ge did not expect this coincidence! Now he regretted not opening his eyes, but the person with the biggest regret should be Jia Ming. If the man knew that Chen Ge did not carry any employees with him that night and Zhang Ya was still in hibernation, he would not have passed up the chance to murder Chen Ge!

Thinking back, with how close he had escaped from death, Chen Ge shivered in fear.

“I suspected that there was history between you two. They failed to kill you, and as if afraid of you taking revenge on them, they ran away that night.”

“You should have stopped them. The ghost fetus might be inside the child with Jia Ming. After killing the ghost fetus, you’ll be the real door pusher.” Chen Ge sighed.

“How do I know you’re not lying to me?” The boy felt like Chen Ge sounded more confident this time, and his tone had become pushier.

“The door here has no use for me. I just want to live a normal life.” Chen Ge calculated the time and felt like there was still a chance to salvage this. “You are the owner here. You even know about their names and the spirit hiding in Jia Ming, so you should have eavesdropped on other information as well, right? Why did they come here?"

"They came here searching for an altar, and there indeed is an altar here." The boy's white eyes turned twice. As if reminded of something, he hurried to leave.

"Where is that altar?" Chen Ge reached his hand into his backpack.

"That is not a question you should ask. Leave. I've already told you many things." The boy was about to escape when the sound of static and a heavy stench filled up the corridor.

"Don't be such a hurry to leave. I believe you have more things you can tell me." Chen Ge flipped through the comic, and blood red shadows appeared behind him. "Now you understand why Jia Ming was so desperate to leave after he failed to kill me, don't you? But don't worry. Most of the time, I am a very reasonable person."

Chapter 998 - Phones Have Their Own Thoughts

Chapter 998: Phones Have Their Own Thoughts

One, two, three, four... The Red Specters that the boy met in a few minutes were far more than the total of Red Specters he had met in the past decade. He wanted to escape, but it was too late. The corridor was swallowed by red, and a tsunami of resentment was rushing through the area.

“I have no interest in your door, so we have no conflict of interest. You wish to get the door’s approval and become the new door pusher, and the simplest way to do that is to kill the original door pusher, the ghost fetus. Thus, we have a common enemy.” Chen Ge looked at the boy who was surrounded by multiple Red Specters. “No matter how you look at it, we have a basis for cooperation. What do you think?”

“I...” The boy’s white eyes darted about. He realized that all his exits were blocked off, and all the Red Specters were looking at him like he was a piece of meat. “I believe you are right. We are not enemies, and we shouldn’t be enemies. If we fight, it’ll only benefit the ghost fetus.”

...

“So, have you remembered more details that you can share with me?”

“Ah, yes. The altar is just underground. I’ll lead you there.”

Surrounded by Red Specters, the boy led everyone to the basement. The basement was very humid, and there was a moldy smell in the air. The corridor was filled with abandoned trash. There were even two rusted bicycles blocking the door.

“Many rooms in Jiang Yuan Apartments have been rented out before, but when the tenants left, they didn’t take their stuff with them. The owner was too lazy to throw them away, so the stuff got moved here.”

The group came to the deepest part of the corridor. There was a wooden altar at the end. The insides of the altar’s walls were covered in the death characters, and it was also covered in spiderwebs and insect carcasses. The only thing missing was the mud statuette.

“Did Jia Ming’s group come here before?”

“No.” The boy’s tone became softer. “This altar was left behind by an old tenant. He sold his home to settle his debt. The new owner wanted to toss away the altar due to how cursed it looks, but they were afraid of offending the ‘spirit’ inside the altar, so they left it in the basement.”

“Do you know where the family has moved to?” Chen Ge was surprised at how successful things were going. He had found a clue to another child.

“On the night they moved, I heard the tenant say that they were going to send the child to a Pei Chi Academy in Western Jiujiang, so I believe that is where they are now.”

“A child? Pei Chi Academy?” Chen Ge had once more confirmed this child was one of the people he was looking for. “You still remember what the child looks like, right?”

“Yes.”

“Okay, for the next eight days, you will follow us to find the ghost fetus.” Chen Ge did not give the boy any choice—he did not know even ask the Red Specter for his opinion—he merely gave an order.

“I can’t stay away from here for too long. The door will become active at night. If I ignore it for too long, the building will create a fourteenth floor.” The boy hoped that Chen Ge would understand the severity of the situation.

“No worries, I will give you time to come back to close the door.” Chen Ge invited the boy into the comic. He stood before the altar and started to consider something else. “The child that this altar corresponds to shouldn’t be the child with Jia Ming, so how did Jia Ming find this place? Can he sense the location of the altars? Is he staying at Jiujiang to look for the other altars? If that is true, I have to find him as soon as possible!”

Chen Ge really did not expect that the few people that he let go previously would become so important now. The comic had another new Red Specter. Including the woman in the stage costume, the number of Red Specters around Chen Ge had reached a very scary point. However, even with so many Red Specters, Chen Ge did not feel safe. There was a gulf between baleful Specters and Red Specters; it was the same with Red Specters and Demon Gods. To use the Red Specters' power to kill a Demon God, one needed a complete plan that made use of all the Red Specters' power perfectly.

"Yet another fulfilling night." Chen Ge left Jiang Yuan Apartments and returned to New Century Park. It was already dawn. Entering the haunted house, Chen Ge did not go to sleep but summoned Men Nan and Tong Tong to do an experiment. After a few minutes, Chen Ge climbed into bed. He slept for only three to four hours before he crawled up to prepare for another day of business. After putting on make-up for his employees and leaving them some simple orders, Chen Ge carried his backpack and left again.

"It feels like we've been seeing less and less of the boss, or is that my imagination?"

"He probably has something important to do. We'll focus on our work. When he comes back at night, we can ask him about it."

Running out from New Century Park, Chen Ge saw a taxi parked by the side of the road. He walked over, and coincidentally, it was the driver who driven him from Jiang Yuan Apartments the previous night.

"My shift's about to end. Why don't you call another cab?" The driver glanced at Chen Ge. "Boss, haven't we met somewhere before?"

"Perhaps, I like to go out at night in taxis." Chen Ge opened the door and got in. "Eastern Jiujiang's futuristic theme park and step on it. Something huge is happening tonight."

...

At the gate of the futuristic theme park, Chen Ge found the worker and stated his reason for being there. He wished to meet Jiang Ming. If the latter was too much, he would buy the ticket to find him at the haunted house and start a few more livestreams. As the face of New Century Park, Chen Ge was labelled as one of the most dangerous characters by the futuristic theme park. After the workers recognized him, they raced toward the office.

Ten minutes later, Jiang Ming came toward Chen Ge in his employee outfit with furrowed brows.

"Why are you looking for me?" Jiang Ming maintained his distance from Chen Ge. "We should not have met before, right?"

“I have something that I need to confirm with you.” Chen Ge signaled for Jiang Ming to follow him to a more secluded area. “There is an old mansion at the center of your haunted house, and there is an altar placed there. Inside that altar was my decapitated mud statuette. I wish to know what the meaning of that is.”

“How would you know that’s your mud statuette? Does it have your name on it? Perhaps it just looks like you.”

“Now that you mention it, it does have my name on it.” Chen Ge took out his phone. “Here is the photographic proof.”

Jiang Ming’s reaction was different from what Chen Ge expected. The man genuinely seemed surprised by this and did not know what the altar and mud statuette represented, or he could be a very good actor.

“Perhaps it’s the prank of one of the employees. Don’t worry, we’ll conduct an investigation into this and give you a satisfactory answer.” Jiang Ming gave a PR answer. “If there’s nothing else...”

“Wait!”

“I will help you deal with this, but you have to have patience.” Jiang Ming just wanted Chen Ge to leave. “It is my working hours. I know New Century Park is a lot freer, but we are very busy here.”

“Leave me your contact details before you go, or else I won’t be able to reach you in the future.” Chen Ge took out his phone and showed the QR code of his WeChat for Jiang Ming to scan.

“Haha, you’re an interesting one.” Jiang Ming took out his phone and scanned the code. After the friend request was accepted, Jiang Ming pushed the phone back into his pocket. He did not notice the smile on Chen Ge’s face, much less the two ghosts that had slipped into his phone.

Chapter 999 - Everyone Is Missing Something

Chapter 999: Everyone Is Missing Something

Tong Tong's item of possession was a phone, and he was the only Specter that one could communicate with from a distance. At the time, Han Bao'er from the Ghost Stories Society had used this uniqueness and Gao Ru Xue as bait to lure Chen Ge out from his haunted house. But there was a weakness to Tong Tong. He was very weak, and his power would be seriously weakened in the day. It had big limitations, like his power not working in crowded places and being powerless when under direct sunlight.

It was in consideration of these things that Chen Ge had conducted an experiment the previous night and had Men Nan and Tong Tong possess the same phone. Being sheltered by a Red Specter, Tong Tong would not suffer so much in the day. As long as nothing happened to Men Nan, Tong Tong could use his power many times, but he would expend more energy than he would at night. With the protection from a Red Specter, Chen Ge was not that worried about Tong Tong's safety. When discovered, Men Nan could escape with Tong Tong. There were so many people at the futuristic theme park; they could find any phone to hide in.

Jiang Ming had not realized the severity of the situation. He probably did not think that Chen Ge was a threat. Seeing Jiang Ming walk away, Chen Ge put away his phone. Tong Tong and Men Nan had left his phone. "Hopefully, they can find something useful."

...

For Jiang Jiu to have survived so long, he must be an old fox. To get anything from him would be difficult, so the only method was to find opening through people around him. Collecting information was one of Chen Ge's plans, but there was another mission he had given Tong Tong and Men Nan. When the day darkened, he would repeat the same thing that the Ghost Stories Society had done to him on Jiang Ming. After dealing with the things there, Chen Ge rushed toward Pei Zhi Academy in Western Academy. Before entering the school, he found a corner and flipped through the comic to communicate with the drowned boy.

“After I enter the school, notify me if you see the child.” He wandered about at the gates for a while. Before he got in, a young woman about twenty came toward him. “Hello, how I can help you?”

Chen Ge looked into the school. There were children playing on the field. He hesitated before saying, “There have been issues at my relative’s house recently. Their child has been sent to an orphanage. The child is a bit quiet, he doesn’t like to communicate with others, and his condition is getting worse. I’m afraid his life will be ruined if this continues, so I wish to bring him here to get an education.”

“Our school accepts students with mental handicaps and other problems. If the condition is that serious, you should bring him here.” The woman was kind. “We are a private institution, so the fee might be a bit expensive. However, we design a special teaching plan that will be tailored specifically to each child.”

“The fee will be expensive?” Chen Ge’s lips turned down, and his hands twisted together. He thought for a long time before saying, “Can I please go in to take a look at how the classes are conducted normally first?”

“Of course. All our staff here are professional, and you’ll find the atmosphere very conducive for study.” The teacher invited Chen Ge into the school. On the field, the teachers were playing games with the children. They were simple games. The main purpose was for the children to communicate with others. Past the field was the education block. The wall had a motto written on—‘every child deserves an education’. The classrooms were bright and filled with sunlight. They looked clean and neat.

“Our school focuses on three main criteria: development of intelligence, societal assimilation, and practical living. Based on the condition of each child, we have set up twelve different types of classes,” the teacher explained patiently to Chen Ge, and the latter listened patiently.

Initially, he was there to find the candidate selected by the ghost fetus, but when he was there, he suddenly felt touched. This world was unfair and cruel to these children, but even so, they were trying their best. Their smiles under the sun were beautiful. Chen Ge looked at the children in the classrooms.

Will the ghost fetus be among them?

After they reached the last classroom, there was a wetness that came from Chen Ge's hand that grabbed his backpack. He lowered his head to look and saw a bloody palm.

The child is here?

Before anyone noticed, Chen Ge quickly wiped his hand clean. He did not expect the drowned boy's hint to be so obvious.

"Can I go in to take a look?" Chen Ge scanned the classroom. Chen Ge pointed at the last row. The other children were sitting around the teacher, but there was a child who stood at the back of the class with his bag. "Why is that boy standing over there?"

Seeing Chen Ge walk in, the teacher in the class answered his question. "Wu Sheng hit some other students during class, so I gave him time out as punishment. We have to give him a correct understanding of right and wrong since they are young, letting them know that there are consequences for doing bad things."

"His name is Wu Sheng?" Chen Ge walked up to the boy, and when he was next to the boy, his hand that held the backpack started to bleed again. It shocked Chen Ge so much that he quickly clamped them before his chest. The teacher and other students did not see it, but the boy who stood before him saw it clearly.

"Well, looks like we've found him." Chen Ge wiped the blood from his palm. He squatted before the boy as the female teacher walked over.

"Since his birth, the child hasn't said a complete sentence. He dislikes being with others, and it has escalated to full refusal to communicate with others." The teacher signaled for Chen Ge to move away from the boy. "Wu Sheng's father is a wandering singer. He is not a bad person. Initially, he thought that it was because he gave the child a bad name that he refused to speak, so he changed the boy's name to Wu Yousheng[1] and then Wu Busheng[2], thinking perhaps two wrongs made a right, but in the end, it was the name Wu Sheng[3] that stuck."

"Wu Sheng's situation is similar to my relative's child. Can I chat with him?"

"I'm afraid not. We have a responsibility toward the children. Your careless words might injure their fragile hearts."

"Then, can I talk with his family? After all, we're in the same boat."

“I can understand that.” The Mr. Handed Chen Ge Wu Sheng’s father’s number. They chatted for a while and Chen Ge left. Walking out from the school, Chen Ge called Wu Sheng’s father directly but there was no answer.

“Of the few confirmed kids, one has lost her memory, one has lost his hearing, one is mute. Other than myself, everyone has lost something important.” Chen Ge stood beside the road and studied the passing car. “Now that I think about it, if I am one of the nine children, then I should have lost something important to but the question is what? It is because I have lost my own shadow?”

[1] Wu Yousheng can also mean ‘Got Voice’.

[2] Wu Busheng can also mean ‘No Voice’.

[3] Wu Sheng can also mean ‘No Sound’.

Chapter 1000 - Adoption

Chapter 1000: Adoption

Every child that was selected by the ghost fetus had a defect to them. Chen Ge should be no exception, but what he had lost might be different from the other children. His memory, shadow, and even parents—Chen Ge had lost so much that he could not tell for sure.

There are seven nights left. I am getting closer to the truth.

Leaving the Pei Zhi Academy, Chen Ge returned to New Century Park. With everything that he could do for now done, he deserved a good rest. At around 8 pm, Chen Ge's phone vibrated, and he got a message from 'Jiang Ming'.

...

"I'm home."

This was a code decided between Tong Tong, Men Nan, and Chen Ge. When Chen Ge received this message, he would take all the employees and leave the haunted house. Chen Ge arrived at the city center around 9 pm. He did not head directly to Jiang Ming's residential area but found a nearby restaurant to sit and eat.

At 10:30 pm, Chen Ge received the second message from 'Jiang Ming'. It was only then that he moved slowly toward his destination. He had scouted the place out the previous night, so he knew where the surveillance blind spots were.

At 11:20 pm, Chen Ge received the third message from 'Jiang Ming'. He took immediate action. He leaped over the wall and took only few seconds to complete all his actions.

Chen Ge carried his backpack toward one of the buildings. At the same time, Jiang Ming rushed out from the stairwell, heading toward the underground parking lot. After Jiang Ming drove away, Chen Ge walked to the apartment entrance. The door that was installed at the stairwell was opened from the inside as Men Nan poked his head out. "The plan was successful; Jiang Ming was completely fooled by Tong Tong."

“Is the boy asleep?”

“Yes, follow me.”

Chen Ge’s plan was simple. After the young Jiang Ming fell asleep, Tong Tong would mimic Jiang Jiu and send orders to him via his phone and have him travel all around the city that night.

“The stairwell and his home both use a password lock. I memorized the password when he opened them earlier.” Men Nan led Chen Ge to the fourth door and opened the door.

“Wait a minute.” Chen Ge took out plastic bags to wrap around his shoes and a pairs of gloves before entering the house.

Even though this was the silk-stockings district in Jiujiang, Jiang Ming’s house was sparsely decorated. A lot of furniture was old and dilapidated. It felt incongruent with the rest of the place. It felt like the old furniture had purposely been put there.

“This whole day, Jiang Jiu has not contacted Jiang Ming. He acted very normal, just like a normal employee at the theme park.”

“Is there any information about the boy on Jiang Ming’s phone? Like who the mother is and when the boy lost his hearing?” Chen Ge whispered.

“The phone has no incriminating information and no clues. There was not even a picture related to that boy.”

“Basically, the boy’s existence is a secret. If not for Jiang Ming’s girlfriend’s accidental discovery, probably no one would know about a boy who shared his name at his home.”

“You can see it that way.”

The information about the boy was a blank slate. Chen Ge conducted his search around the house. To save time, he released Ol’ Zhou and his friends to help. The lights were not turned on, and shadows moved across the room.

Several minutes later, Chen Ge really did find something. He found a crumpled letter inside the study’s trashcan. The content of the letter was as follows. The sender needed a lot of money, and if they were refused, they would come to take the child and not let him stay with Jiang Ming anymore.

“The child is a bargaining chip?” Chen Ge studied the letter. “The boy lives with the older Jiang Ming, but there is no information on his mother. Could the sender of this letter be the mother? Is the boy Jiang Ming’s biological son?” Chen Ge and his employees stood inside the study. Other than the letter, they found nothing else. “Whether the boy is his biological son or not, there must be something to prove the child’s identity inside this house. Jiang Ming can’t have moved all of that to Jiang Jiu’s place, right? Or, is there a hidden room inside this house?”

With another search, Ol’ Zhou finally found a hidden safe behind the bookshelf. Chen Ge did not need to open the safe. He only needed his employee to slip into the safe to check its contents. Ten seconds later, Ol’ Zhou crawled out from the gap.

“The boy is not related to Jiang Ming or Jiang Jiu by blood. They are taking care of him on behalf of someone else. There are adoption papers inside the safe. The husband and wife agreed for their child to stay here for the five thousand RMB that Jiang Jiu would pay them monthly. From the signature, it reads that the boy’s real father’s name is Jiang Dawu.

“There is a mud statuette inside the safe with the name ‘Jiang Ming’ on it. That confirms that Jiang Ming is one of the selected candidates. Other than that, the child’s real ID is stored inside the safe. His real name is Jiang Ming, but it turns that it’s the young man who works at the theme park that has changed his name.

“Jiang Jiu’s adopted son’s original name was Jiang Wei. It was after Jiang Ming was arranged to stay here that Jiang Wei changed his name to Jiang Ming.”

“Why would he do that? Does he want to use this to take something away from Jiang Ming? But there is nothing worth taking from the boy, other than the fact that he was selected by the source of misfortune, the ghost fetus.” There was no free love in this world. Jiang Jiu must want something from the boy, and that was why he had agreed to adopt the child.

“Perhaps Jiang Jiu wishes to trick the ghost fetus. He wants to become the ghost fetus’ father,” Ol’ Zhou analyzed.

“The evil spirit possessing Jiang Jiu and Jia Ming were both left behind by the ghost fetus. They probably wouldn’t dare infringe on the ghost fetus’ plan.” Chen Ge stood in their perspective, a normal person would not choose to have any relationship with the ghost fetus.

“That might not be true. What if Jiang Jiu has underestimated the ghost fetus’ power, or the ghost fetus has underestimated the greed of the living.”

“You have a point there.” Chen Ge nodded admiringly at Ol’ Zhou. He felt like Ol’ Zhou had a bright future. “Tong Tong’s plan to lure Jiang Ming away can only be used once. When dawn arrives and Jiang Ming meets up with Jiang Jiu, they will realize that something is wrong, so we only have one chance tonight.”

Since there were no other clues to find, Chen Ge decided to meet the boy. Pushing the door open, Chen Ge looked into the room. The boy was already asleep, and he did not notice the additional ‘people’ that had entered the house.

To prevent Jiang Ming from being scared awake, Chen Ge summoned Ol’ Zhou and the rest back into the comic. Only he and Men Nan entered the bedroom. On the surface, the boy looked normal, just like any other child. One could not make the connection to the scary ghost fetus.

Chen Ge and Men Nan walked to the window, and they waited for midnight. The atmosphere in the room started to change, and a door appeared quietly next to the boy’s bed.

Chapter 1001 - Soundless World

Chapter 1001: Soundless World

The boy was sound asleep in bed. He had no idea about the door's appearance.

"Compared to last time, the door seems to have gotten closer to the boy," Men Nan whispered. "Take a close look at it. There is something inside the door that wishes to come out."

"Could it be the ghost fetus?" This scenario reminded Chen Ge of the door of the School of the Afterlife, but the similarity was limited. For example, the door that appeared by the boy's bed felt unreal, like it would shatter once touched. There were faded blood vessels moving on the door, but it did not give off an unpleasant feeling. This was what confused Chen Ge the most. He had encountered many doors before, including the door from the School of the Afterlife. Once they appeared, the surrounding atmosphere would turn eerie and dark, with the scent of blood permeating the air, but this door was an exception. It did not feel threatening. If anything, its presence felt like a warning to the boy.

...

"There are too few blood vessels on the door, aren't there?" Chen Ge got closer to the door. He only took few steps when the doorknob started to jiggle. It was not that loud, at least not loud enough to wake the boy. When Chen Ge retreated, the door returned to normal.

"It stops me from approaching it, huh?" Chen Ge put down the backpack and signed something at Men Nan. He moved toward the door alone, and this time, the door did not react. "It's due to the presence of a Red Specter?"

Standing before the door, Chen Ge did something brave. He reached out toward the door. The door was like a lingering spirit. Chen Ge's finger phased through it directly. "I can't even touch it... This is the first time I've met a door like this."

He was not sure whether a door would appear next to all the candidates selected by the ghost fetus after they fell asleep. In any case, he did not hear Fang Yu mention anything about this, so this might be unique to Jiang Ming. If that was the case, Chen Ge should pay more attention because it meant there was a high chance ghost fetus was hiding inside Jiang Ming. His fingers wandered on the surface of the door, but he could not touch it. Just as he was about to give up, a chill came from his fingertips. Chen Ge's fingers at that time were hanging by the doorknob.

"Most of the blood vessels are gathered around the doorknob, so this doorknob is the only thing that's real or closest to the real thing?"

Tong Tong's trick could only be used once, so Chen Ge did not want to waste this opportunity. However, he did not dare to push the door open alone. Even though it did not have many blood vessels on it, he was not confident that he could survive behind the door alone.

"Should I take this risk? The black phone said that I will die if I can't locate the ghost fetus within nine nights. In other words, this period is when the ghost fetus is the least prepared or weakest."

The chance was before his eyes, and Chen Ge was unwilling to give it up. He slowly retreated.

"Men Nan, hand me the bag. You guard outside the door."

"You're going in there like that? Isn't that a bit too rash? Are you not going to think about it further?"

"The doorknob will vibrate once it senses a Red Specter, and the rattling will wake up the boy. Once the boy wakes up, the door will disappear, so I only have one chance." Chen Ge looked at the boy in bed. "He's deaf, but he can hear the rattling of the door. The thing that the boy lost is probably behind this door."

Taking out the recorder, Chen Ge hugged it in his chest and then took out the broken ballpoint pen and placed it inside his pocket. After his previous lesson, he had learned not to put everything inside his backpack.

After he was ready, Chen Ge took a deep breath. He stared at the doorknob as he charged toward it. The blood door sensed the presence of a threat, and it started to rattle with agitation. The lashes of the boy in bed flickered. Just as he was about to open his eyes, Chen Ge broke through the door. Inside the dark bedroom, the boy sat up in bed. He looked around and repeated the word 'daddy' stutteringly into the darkness.

...

A horrible stench rushed into his nostrils. Chen Ge carried his backpack and looked around. This was a very old rental apartment. There were seven to eight families living on one floor, and they shared one bathroom and kitchen. The corridor was littered with trash, and dirty water stained the ground. Rotten vegetables floated in the brackish water.

“What is this place?” Chen Ge looked behind him. He was standing before a rusted metal door. There was a large lock on it, and he could not leave that way. “Is this the door that I pushed open?”

Chen Ge took out the ballpoint pen. After realizing that he could still communicate with his employees, and he instantly calmed down. “The scenario behind the door is made from the door pusher’s memories, so this should be where the boy has his deepest memory.”

Dirty, dilapidated, and old, the place stank. The place that Jiang Ming could not forget was a complete contrast to his current home.

“Probably because they were staying at a place like this, Jiang Ming’s parents agreed for their boy to be adopted. But there is money that goes around, and the boy’s father even wrote a letter to threaten for more money. That’s disgusting behavior.”

Jiang Ming’s biological parents no longer treated Jiang Ming as their son but as a tool to earn money. They had no idea what their child was going through.

“The scenario behind the door is this apartment. What Jiang Ming can never forget should be here somewhere.” Chen Ge carried his bag and moved forward. Not too long later, he saw a wooden sign hanging on the door of the family that took the corner room. The sign read—‘If you have an emergency, pull on the rope of the lamp next to this repeatedly.’

“Is this where the boy stayed? If he’s deaf, he wouldn’t hear the knocking anyway.” Chen Ge pulled on the rope. The lights in the room lit up. He pulled it repeatedly, but no one showed up to open the door.

“The boy is deaf, but his parents shouldn’t be.” Chen Ge looked at the lit room and knocked on the door. His finger touched the door lightly. Chen Ge did not use much strength, but it echoed so loudly that it even startled Chen Ge a bit.

“Why would that happen?” Chen Ge quickly stopped. He started to notice the uniqueness about this place. It was so quiet; there was no sound.

“Is this what Jiang Ming’s world feels like?”

Those who were born deaf should not have the concept of hearing, but those who lost it later would remember sound. Their mind was not silent; there was just an impenetrable layer that could not be broken between their memory and the real world. It would be a thin layer. In fact, it was probably as thin as the gap between the real world and the ghost world. Still, it was a layer that was strong enough to stop the soundwaves from travelling through.

After the echoes from the knocking stopped, the scenario changed slightly. The stench grew more intense, and it was laced with the smell of alcohol.

Without warning, a man’s face suddenly appeared at the stairwell of the second floor. He was like a blob of boneless mud. His arm was joined to the alcohol bottle as if the bottle grew from his flesh. He slid his bulbous body toward Chen Ge.

Chapter 1002 - Absurd World Made from Memories

Chapter 1002: Absurd World Made from Memories

“He is a literal representation of ‘as drunk as a pile of mud’.” Chen Ge stared at the slowly approaching monster. He pressed on the recorder and called Xu Yin’s name. To his surprise, Xu Yin did not show up, but the whole apartment started to bleed, and small cracks appeared on the wall. After communicating with Xu Yin, Chen Ge found that he was stopped by some unknown force. He was trying to break through it, but he needed some time.

“When I entered the door behind the underground morgue, I ran into the same situation, but this place is no match at all for Doctor Gao’s underground morgue.” Placing the recorder back in his bag, Chen Ge took out the hammer and stood in the corridor. “There is no need to run and hide.”

The scary-looking hammer grated on the peeling wall. When the monster got close enough, he aimed right at the monster’s arm. The bottle that grew out of the arm shattered, the glass shards flew everywhere, and some embedded into the monster’s body.

...

“Can we communicate?”

The monster could not feel pain. Even though his arm was broken, he moved faster. After he got close to Chen Ge, he reached out his other arm to grab Chen Ge’s head, trying to slam into Chen Ge.

“Looks like the thing is not sentient.”

Holding the hammer with both hands, Chen Ge swung it vertically on the monster’s chin. The already malformed head was almost blown off the rest of its body. It was attached to the neck by a thin layer of flesh. The smell of alcohol thickened. After the monster was injured, it became uglier and more aggressive. While Chen Ge was contemplating how to deal with this monster, he felt a chill coming from behind him. He turned his head slowly.

The rental doors on the side had been opened, and several twisted looking monsters appeared silently behind Chen Ge. They were very close to him!

“The original tenants behind the door will not make any sound no matter what happens. They can hear me, but I can’t hear them.” He thought about it and realized that was exactly what Jiang Ming was experiencing. He was deaf, so no matter what other people said, he could not hear them, but if he made any sound, the people around him would react to him immediately. “So, I am taking Jiang Ming’s perspective in this world?”

This was the first time that Chen Ge had encountered such a strange world behind the door. He felt troubled. The enemies could approach him silently, and they were hard to kill, but if he made the smallest sound, the enemies could hear him.

“I’ll deal with this one before me first.” After the drunkard was injured, his face had become as red as blood, and thick capillaries had puffed up on his face. He became more violent. The arm attached to the bottle waved around, and Chen Ge realized that the arm would join itself to whatever it came in contact with.

“The world behind the door is weaved from Jiang Ming’s memory, so this man should be an important character in his memory. A violent drunkard that exploded when resisted and would grab anything nearby to start attacking.” Chen Ge looked at the drunkard and stared into that ugly face. “This is such a horrible human being!”

Raising the hammer, Chen Ge aimed it heavily at the monster’s head. The hammer sank into the monster’s shoulder, and he gave him another kick. Chen Ge gave no chance for the monster to react. He hit him repeatedly. “If he can still stand up after this, I’ll have to consider something else.”

The drunkard collapsed on the ground. His face became redder like it was about to explode, and his body was still expanding. “If this drunkard is the boy’s father, then in the young boy’s memory, his father was someone unbeatable and unshakeable.”

Chen Ge turned back to look. The neighbors all looked strange with twisted appearances. Their ears and mouths were comically enormous. Depending on the boy’s memory of them, each of them had a special trait that separated them apart from the rest. One reeked of cheap perfume, while another had short limbs and a round belly. These neighbors were distinct from each other, but their reaction when they saw Chen Ge fight with the drunkard was surprisingly similar. They stood at their doors, peeling their ears to listen and whispering to each other. They would only turn Chen Ge's way when Chen Ge made some noise. If Chen Ge kept quiet, they appeared too lazy to give him any attention.

"I wonder if these neighbors can be killed." Being stared at by the group of monsters, Chen Ge felt pressure. The scariest part about the scenario was that he could not hear the sound of these monsters approaching. He could turn around to a wall of faces looking at him. "I can't hear their voices. This world is too quiet for me."

The drunkard was most likely Jiang Ming's biological father. He was very hard to kill, but the neighbors might be different. Chen Ge's plan was to first kill the drunkard and then massacre the rest of the neighbors before he could explore the rest of the place in peace. The plan was simple and direct.

He raised the hammer and entered the room that was closest to him. Inside was a middle-aged man wearing a tank top. His limbs appeared to have atrophied; they were at least half the size of normal limbs. In contrast, his belly was bulging, filled with fat. There was a thin, wiry old woman in the room as well. The old woman wandered around the room as if possessed, cleaning this and that. There were several plastic tubes that were stuck into her body, and the tubes were joined to some medicine bottles that were collected in a dirty corner of the room.

A kipper[1]?

The memory world of Jiang Ming was different from a real adult world. It was absurd and strange. Chen Ge could not be sure that he had read this situation correctly. The neighbors were monsters born out of his twisted memory, so Chen Ge did not need to hold back. The hammer slammed heavily. The injured middle-aged man crawled into the room. He grabbed the plastic tubes that were originally placed in the medicine bottles and started to suck. The old woman who bustled in the room shrank before Chen Ge's eyes. After a while, the man stood up again. He waved his short limbs as if taunting Chen Ge.

These things can't be killed, or at least, the hammer is not strong enough to kill them.

The drunkard had almost fully recovered, and he was becoming more aggressive than before. Chen Ge hammered the man several more times before he leaped over the drunkard and headed to the second floor. After learning from his previous lesson, this time, he moved quietly and did not make any noise.

I'll hide for now.

Chen Ge entered the toilet on the second floor. He sneaked into it and contacted Xu Yin through the recorder. After communicating, Chen Ge found out that this world behind the door was very unstable. It required the power of five Red Specters to tear down the boy's memory, and then he would be able to escape. However, Chen Ge would not do that unless necessary because the ruination of the memory might cause irreparable damage to the boy.

[1] Kipper is an acronym for "kids in parents' pockets eroding retirement savings".

Chapter 1003 - I Can Hear Your Voice

Chapter 1003: I Can Hear Your Voice

Chen Ge calmed down after knowing how to escape. The door is slowly approaching the boy. When a Red Specter appears, it will make some noise to remind the boy. No matter how you look at it, the door has no malicious intent toward the boy.

Scratching his chin, Chen Ge thought, Something inside the door wishes to come out but I didn't see such a creature when I am inside here, has they gone into hiding?

The thing inside the door didn't want to harm Jiang Ming so it wouldn't be the monsters radiating evil.

...

Perhaps this is the place Jiang Ming lost his hearing. Chen Ge remembered the mission message on the black phone. The ghost fetus' mission is a life and death game of hide and seek. Am I suppose to enter the door to find the thing the ghost fetus has hidden? This could be my first direct challenge toward the ghost fetus.

That seemed possible. He took out the black phone and wanted to check the mission details again when footsteps came from the second-floor corridor. They were very light footsteps. It sounded like a child walking on their tiptoes. If not for Ghost Ear, Chen Ge would not have heard it.

Someone is passing by? This thought entered Chen Ge's mind, and he widened his eyes. Impossible! The monsters formed from memory will not make any sound—I experimented with that earlier!

Since he was deaf, Jiang Ming could not hear the world, but he could hear the sound in his own heart. The world behind the door was made from his memories. The only person who could make any noise there, other than outsiders like Chen Ge, was Jiang Ming himself!

After Chen Ge opened the cubicle door, he found that there was no one in the toilet. He carried the hammer and the backpack as he left the toilet. He saw a group of children standing in the corridor. The children wore clothes that were much cleaner than the neighbors'.

They were holding some toys as if in the middle of some interesting game.

Is Jiang Ming among them?

Chen Ge slowly approached them with the hammer. Before he arrived, the children noticed Chen Ge. The children looked friendly, and their clothes were pretty and clean, but their appearance was something else. They had exceptionally large eyes, and their mouths grew wide like they were all trying to mimic the Joker. The leading boy pointed at Chen Ge and then pulled on his ears. The surrounding children started to laugh. From Chen Ge's perspective, he could not hear any sound, and he could not hear the children's laughter, but he could see their ugly expressions.

These kids are making fun of me.

His eyes narrowed, Chen Ge observed closely. Through the children's moving lips, he got the gist of what they were saying. They were mocking Chen Ge for his stupidity because he was different from them. They said that his deafness was infectious and that those who played with him would become deaf.

Looks like Jiang Ming is not among them. A deaf person would not laugh along to these 'jokes'.

Chen Ge raised the hammer, but he did not attack the children.

It's meaningless to injure these kids. After I leave this world, I will go back to the real life to teach a lesson and have them come to apologize to Jiang Ming.

The neighbors were impossible to communicate with, and Chen Ge believed that it was because Jiang Ming was just a child and did not have that much interaction with adults. However, it would be different with people his age. Jiang Ming clearly remembered the mocking and jabs these kids made at him. They seemed to have played together often, so Chen Ge believed that he could find clues on Jiang Ming from these kids. He squatted down and tried to gesture with his hands, attempting to communicate with the kids without making any noise.

Chen Ge did not wish to make things so complicated, but if he made any noise, the drunkard would chase after him. Chen Ge did not want to deal with him, so he had to do this. Even after gesturing for a long time, the kids did not give Chen Ge any information. It was as if all they could do was humiliate and mock, gaining their reason for existing from that.

Just as Chen Ge prepared to give up, one of the children suggested a game, and Chen Ge volunteered to join. The leading boy was 'kind' enough to gesture at Chen Ge, saying that they wanted to play hide and seek. They would use rock-paper-scissors to decide who the seeker would be. All the children played paper, and only Chen Ge played rock. The children had obviously discussed this beforehand. They wanted to make fun of Chen Ge. They split up and started to hide, leaving Chen Ge alone in the corridor.

"These rascals, after I catch you, I will..." Chen Ge could not stop himself from grumbling, but he quickly caught himself. He looked around, and thankfully, no monster appeared.

I've gotten used to talking. It's so hard to get used to when I need to suddenly keep quiet.

Carrying his backpack, Chen Ge was about to move forward when he heard some movement. It sounded like someone had accidentally knocked into a chair. The sound came from the direction where Chen Ge had heard the footsteps earlier.

Jiang Ming?

Chen Ge slowly walked down the corridor. He realized that one of the rooms was not locked. Pushing the door lightly open, there was a lot of Shui Horsetail Embroidery that was unique to Jiujiang in the room. Horsetail embroidery was a culture heritage going obsolete, so Chen Ge did not expect to run into so much of it there. Many colorful fabrics, knitting needles of varying lengths, and colorful threads were left on the table. The whole apartment building had a dim color palette, but this room was sunny and bright.

The bamboo chair is not by the table. Someone probably knocked into it earlier.

Chen Ge closed the door and looked around. The room was not big; there should be a senior living there because there was a pair of reading glasses among the knitting stuff and a walking stick leaning against the bed. The table was placed in the middle of the room, and there were two bamboo chairs around it, so there should be two people working there. The bedside table had an old man's black and white picture. Underneath the frame was a eulogy.

“The tenant should be an old lady. This is her living space and her working space.” Chen Ge took a stroll around the room, but he did not see the tenant. “This room is bright and colorful, completely different from the other rooms. This place should be special to Jiang Ming. He feels warmth here.”

The tenant of this place must have been nice to Jiang Ming, but the problem was Chen Ge could not find this mysterious tenant. Chen Ge did not want to give up like that. When he conducted a second search, he heard some noise coming from the bedroom closet. Silently getting close to it, Chen Ge yanked the door open. A faded scent of mildew drifted into his nose. Chen Ge saw a boy about four or five hiding inside the closet. The boy was curled up in the corner. He was different from the others behind the door. The proportions of his face and body were normal.

“Jiang Ming?” Chen Ge asked softly. Hearing Chen Ge’s voice, the boy’s face took on an impossible expression. In this soundless world, someone had called his name!

After a temporarily pause, Jiang Ming recovered, and he nodded heavily!

The boy was not born deaf. In his memory, there is the impression of sound, so what happened to him?

Chen Ge knelt down beside the closet and started to study the young boy before him.

Chapter 1004 - Boy Looking for Snail

Chapter 1004: Boy Looking for Snail

Clothes and shoes that were one size bigger than he needed, a dirtied face, and clear eyes that were filled with shock. The child hid behind the old lady's clothes, showing only half of his face.

"You can hear my voice?" Chen Ge put down the backpack and reached out lightly toward the boy. "Do not be afraid. I will not hurt you."

The boy who hid at the back of the closet behind the clothes looked at Chen Ge cautiously. He stared at Chen Ge's hand like it was a foreign object and hesitated for a long time before giving him his hand. The chilling small hand slipped into Chen Ge's palm. The warmth that he had not felt for a long time caused the boy's eyes to slowly widen.

...

"Have you been here for a long time?" Chen Ge pointed at his feet. He wanted to ask whether the small boy had been staying behind the door, but the boy seemed to misunderstand him. He waved his hands and started to gesture wildly. After Chen Ge studied him for a long time, he finally understood that the boy was in the middle of playing hide and seek with the rest of the children. He was hiding there because, well, he was hiding from those who were going to capture him.

Seeing the boy who tried his best to communicate with Chen Ge, the latter shook his head lightly. The other children did not play to find him at all; they were probably pranking him all along. He had been so serious, hiding inside the closet, but in the end, the one who would open the closet doors to find him would most likely not be the other children but the original tenant of this place calling him to come out for food.

"Have you considered making more friends? Have you ever wondered what life's like beyond the window? Have you ever had the urge to see outside the world?" Chen Ge had found the key person behind the door—Jiang Ming—but there was one question that boggled his mind. What was the relationship between this Jiang Ming and the other Jiang Ming in real life? This Jiang Ming inside the door might represent the hearing that the Jiang Ming outside the door had lost, but the chance of that was not high. Combining all the clues and signs, the door would only show up when Jiang Ming outside the door was soundly asleep, so this Jiang Ming inside the door probably represented the actual consciousness of Jiang Ming.

In this world constructed from his memories, every movement and character somehow correlates to the real life. Jiang Ming wishes to play with his friends, and he hides in the room that gives him the most warmth. This should be the most beautiful and treasured memory that he has.

Chen Ge wanted to say something else, but Jiang Ming's eyes suddenly changed. They turned from shock to terror in an instant, and tears were practically flowing out of his eyes.

He's looking behind me!

The smell of alcohol crawled into his nostrils. Without saying a second word, Chen Ge lunged forward, grabbed the boy, and rolled to the side. The alcohol bottle slammed into the closet wall. The glass bottle shattered everywhere, but it did not make a sound. The thick blood vessels bulging on his face, the drunkard monster had entered the room. He had probably heard Chen Ge talking.

This thing sure is stubborn, and the most troublesome thing is that it is impossible to kill.

Chen Ge held the Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer with one hand and carried the boy in his other arm. The boy was shocked. He was like a kitten who was tortured, and his body was shaking nonstop from fear.

The fear toward his drunk father is deeply embedded in his heart. It is this fear that keeps on providing power to the drunkard monster, making him stronger and stronger.

A plan started to form in Chen Ge's mind.

If I can help the boy overcome his fear and use actual actions to tell him that his drunk father is not unbeatable, things might look up for the boy.

That was easier said than done. To change a memory that deeply inserted in one's mind was too hard.

"Jiang Ming, please do not be afraid. As long as I am here, I will not allow anyone to hurt you.” Chen Ge placed the boy on the chair, and he gripped the hammer with both of his hands tightly.

With the rate at which he is gaining strength, I can kill him with my hammer at least ten more times.

With all the preparation done, Chen Ge was about to make his move when the door of the room was opened from the outside. An old lady with a head of peppery hair walked into the room while holding a bowl of noodles. The old lady had a hunchback, and she looked at least seventy years old. The expression on her face was one of genuine kindness, but when she saw the drunkard monster, her expression shifted immediately. She put down the bowl of noodles, grabbed the cane that was leaning against the bedside, and slammed it repeatedly on the monster.

The scary and horrifying drunkard monster started to panic when he saw the old lady. For some reason, he looked like he was afraid of this fragile-looking senior. The drunkard monster did not feel pain when Chen Ge smashed his head in with the hammer, but after being slapped several times by the old lady’s cane, he could not stand it anymore and quickly slithered out of the room. The old lady briefly chased after him, brandishing the cane, before she returned to her room.

She closed the door of her apartment angrily. Then she walked into the bedroom, came to the boy’s side, and caressed the side of Jiang Ming’s face lovingly. The old lady had Jiang Ming come to the table to have dinner. She served him the noodles that she had just made. They were piping hot, and they looked mouth-wateringly delicious. Jiang Ming ran over to have his dinner. The old lady then turned her focus to Chen Ge. The surprise in her eyes was no less than that of Jiang Ming.

“Granny, can you hear me?”

The old lady nodded.

“You still have your senses with you? We can communicate? It will work even without an actual conversation!” Chen Ge took out the ballpoint pen that was taped together from his pocket and then removed the comic from his backpack. He had all the stationary ready. Studying Chen Ge, the old woman said something, but Chen Ge could not hear her voice at all. She pushed away the ballpoint pen that Chen Ge offered her and turned to walk toward the living room.

Staring at her back, Chen Ge suddenly realized. This old lady was different from the other characters behind the door.

Her body was faded like she could disappear at any moment. Most importantly, Chen Ge sensed a chill from her body. Using his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge realized that this old lady did not appear to be the product of Jiang Ming's memory. She was an actual lingering spirit that was about to disperse at any moment!

Without an object of possession, a lingering spirit could only exist for a limited time in the world. The rule was the same even if one was behind the door. Even though the old lady's memory had overlapped with Jiang Ming's, granting her more time in this world, that was all. It would not allow her to survive forever. One day, she would still disappear. When that happened, the old lady behind the door would be formed from Jiang Ming's memory completely. Perhaps she would still protect Jiang Ming behind the door and make delicious noodles for him, but she would not be the same kind old lady anymore. It would only be a mirage that Jiang Ming had made to console himself.

Chen Ge was getting more and more intrigued by the truth. He walked to the old lady's side. She was taking out a pen and some paper from the drawer, and she started to write on it. With every character that she wrote, her body would become less real. When the old lady finished writing, she handed the paper over to Chen Ge. It had a short sentence written on it.

'Be careful of the snail.'

"The snail?" Chen Ge had entered the door many times, and he could be considered to have gained a great understanding of the world behind the door. The scariest thing in this place was a Red Specter, and something scarier than one of those would be a Demon God, but the old lady warned him of a snail?

"The snail is even scarier than that drunkard that you can't kill no matter what?" Chen Ge asked in a whisper, and the old lady nodded.

"I get it now, but how are we supposed to get out of this place?" Hearing Chen Ge's voice, the old lady placed her finger on her lips, signaling for Chen Ge to lower his voice, and then pointed at the character snail on the paper.

Is the way to leave also on the snail? Is this snail the nickname of some Specter, or does it represent something else completely?

Chen Ge was still thinking when Jiang Ming finished the bowl of noodles. He carried the empty bowl and stood up from the table. It seemed like he was going into the kitchen to wash the dishes. He was stopped by the old lady. The old lady ruffled Jiang Ming's hair kindly and then used her apron to wipe Jiang Ming's lips clean. Then she stood before Jiang Ming and pointed at Chen Ge. Jiang Ming understood her immediately. He grabbed Chen Ge by his hand and very happily pulled him out of the room.

"Where are we going?" Chen Ge knew that the old lady did not mean him harm. From what she did earlier, she had probably told Jiang Ming to take Chen Ge to do something important. When Jiang Ming heard Chen Ge's voice, a very innocent smile appeared on his face. He quietly slid his hand into his pocket like he was eager to share his secret with another person.

Moments later, Jiang Ming took out the shell of a snail from inside his pocket.

He cupped the shell of the snail carefully in his palms like it was the most important treasure to him in this world.

Chapter 1005 - Waking Up from the Nightmare [2 in 1]

Chapter 1005: Waking Up from the Nightmare

[2 in 1]

“A snail? The old lady just warned me to be careful of the snail, so why would Jiang Ming have the shell of a snail inside his pocket?” Chen Ge was confused by this development, but he was certain that the old lady would not harm Jiang Ming.

Putting the shell carefully back into his pocket, Jiang Ming led Chen Ge out of the old lady’s room by pulling his hand. The child led Chen Ge all over the rental apartment. They visited the rooftop, the storage room where the tenants kept their barrels of gas, and a toilet cubicle that was filled with trash. Whenever he came across a snail, Jiang Ming would be overjoyed.

Chen Ge had no idea why Jiang Ming was so adamant about searching for snails, but he saw how serious Jiang Ming was, and he did not have the heart to stop him. He accompanied Jiang Ming silently. They ran all over the apartment, but in total, they only found four snails. Jiang Ming placed all of them inside his own pocket, then he grabbed Chen Ge’s hand and ran to the ground floor. As long as they did not make any sound, those strange neighbors would not come out. After being given a beating by the old lady, even Jiang Ming’s father had disappeared from their view.

...

“Are you going home now?” Jiang Ming nodded happily. He led Chen Ge to the rental room with the wooden sign hanging by the door and reached out to pull on the string that was attached to the lamp. The lights inside the room flickered a few times, and then the door of the room was opened. A slender woman with pale ‘skin’ appeared behind the door.

Seeing Jiang Ming arrive home safely, she had a warm and kind smile on her face. But when she saw Chen Ge, a flash of panic crossed her eyes. She was probably afraid that a stranger had suddenly appeared on her doorstep. The woman used sign language to communicate with Chen Ge. From that, Chen Ge believed she was a deaf and mute person, too. Chen Ge was not familiar with sign language, so all he could do was to smile and ensure that he did not look threatening to the woman.

The house door slowly opened. Jiang Ming excited ran into the woman's embrace. He took out the snails one by one from his pocket like he was showing them off to the woman. The woman touched the boy's head with a kind smile on her face. She watched quietly as Jiang Ming ran through his findings happily.

This should be Jiang Ming's mother.

After entering the room, Chen Ge closed the door. Seeing the homely situation before him, Chen Ge felt himself being cordoned off from it. The woman's face was not different from a normal person's, but her body was covered with patches. Viewed from a distance, Jiang Ming's mother was like a rag doll. Of her entire body, only her hands that she needed to work and her face did not have cloth patches on them. The other parts of her body had been patched up by threads and scraps of fabric, and her skin was like a coat that had been patched up many times. Chen Ge could not even begin to fathom what the woman had been through to appear in this manner in Jiang Ming's memory.

The woman continued to sign, and she appeared to be complimenting Jiang Ming, but the happy atmosphere soon disappeared. The light by the door lit up again. The doll mother and young Jiang Ming turned to the door. Finally, it was Jiang Ming's mother who walked to the door and pulled the door open. The stinging smell of alcohol drifted into the room, and the ugly grimace of the drunkard monster appeared at the door.

The mud-like body slammed against the door. The arm that had the bottle attached to it pointed at Chen Ge while the monster glared viciously at the rag doll woman. The woman signed, but the drunkard had lost his patience a long time ago and pushed her angrily away.

Seeing the drunkard return home, Jiang Ming took out the snails from his pocket and jogged toward the drunkard. He held the snails in both hands and tried to show them to the drunkard, but before he could even extend his arms, the drunkard monster smacked Jiang Ming on his shoulder and knocked his own son off balance. The snails fell to the ground, and the drunkard monster stomped on them angrily until they disintegrated into dust. These were the snails that Jiang Ming had tried his best to find all over the apartment.

The drunkard monster stared at the shattered shell on the ground, and his face turned redder. The blood capillaries bulged on his face, and he became ever angrier. The anger needed to find a vent to unleash. He flipped over the small table in the living room. The glass cup was about to cut Jiang Ming, but thankfully, the rag doll woman ran to shield Jiang Ming from being injured. The scalding water splashed to the ground, and part of it splashed onto the drunkard monster. His face was burning red. He grabbed the rag doll woman by her hair and pressed her to the ground.

After the woman was slammed into the ground, her first reaction was to wave her hand at Jiang Ming for him to go and hide inside another room. The drunkard monster dragged the woman by her doll legs, and the arm that had the alcohol bottle growing out of it slammed down on her repeatedly. The boy stood frozen in the corner of the living room that now looked like a scene from a battlefield. He had no idea where he had done wrong. The snails lay shattered on the ground, and his rag doll mother had her life beaten out of her. His shoulders were shaking from fear. He had no idea whom he could request help from. He looked at his own mother who was in pain; he wanted to help her, but he was powerless. He did not even know how to speak.

“Don’t be afraid.” Chen Ge patted Jiang Ming’s shoulders that were shivering. “I will help you.”

Chen Ge leaped into the air and kicked at the drunkard monster. After separating the monster from the rag doll woman, he waved the hammer and slammed it right onto the drunkard monster’s shoulder.

BANG!

The drunkard monster slammed into the door. Chen Ge did not give the monster the chance to counter and continued to press on with his aggression.

“Jiang Ming, look at this. He is not invincible. He is just a weak coward. There is no reason for you to be afraid of him!”

The drunkard monster’s body was rapidly recovering. His arm grew to envelope the furniture inside the room, and the expression on his face was getting grimmer and grimmer.

“I will lure him into the next room. After he follows me, you have to run out of here as soon as possible!”

To give Jiang Ming and the rag doll woman more time to escape, Chen Ge could only attack the drunkard monster again and again.

Every time he was knocked down, the drunkard monster would turn uglier and uglier. His body kept on expanding. His back was stuck to the wall, and his body slowly joined with the rest of the room. In Jiang Ming's memory, the keywords 'home' and 'father' were closely joined together, so Chen Ge was not surprised that something like this would happen. The only thing that worried him was that Jiang Ming and the rag doll woman had not escaped from the room.

Cracks appeared on the wall, and the ceiling started to peel down in great pieces. The ground was shaking. The light behind the door flickered several times before it suddenly went off. After the light blinked out, a horrible stench came from the ceiling of the room that was now submerged in darkness. The cracks on the ceiling were getting bigger and bigger. The drunkard monster's body was getting so large that his body was already touching the ceiling. At this moment, the roof of the room started to collapse.

The horrible stench pulled at his nostril like it was palpable. The thing that was crushing the room under its weight had decided to show itself!

Carrying a swirling exoskeletal shell, with a sticky body, a giant blood-red snail was crawling on the top of this home. An endless stream of negative emotions channeled into the drunkard monster's body. One of the smaller antennae of the giant snail peeled back a small opening to show a mouthful of countless teeth. A giant body reached out from inside the shell, and the blood red giant bit at Chen Ge.

A snail? Why would such a scary thing appear in Jiang Ming's dream?

Chen Ge retreated while he fended off the attack from the giant snail. After the latter showed itself, the world behind the door started to change. The walls of the apartment started to bleed, and the whole building shook like it might crumble at any moment.

"Go upstairs and find that old lady!" Chen Ge led Jiang Ming and the rag doll woman up the stairs. The neighbors who were no different from the monster started to become agitated with madness under the influence of the blood red snail. Initially, the feeling that this world gave Chen Ge was one of absurdity, like a picture that was randomly drawn by a very small child. But once the red snail appeared, the world became gorier and more chaotic, or in other words, it became more and more like an actual world behind the door. The trio went to the room where the old lady resided. Chen Ge knocked on the door heavily and repeatedly.

“Granny, I will take you and Jiang Ming away from this place! I already know how to escape!” The door opened soon after. The old lady stood at the door with the support of her cane. She saw the crazed neighbors and the blood red snail that was crawling this way.

“Your spirit is still lingering around, and that means there is something tying you to this world. You should not stay here; come away with us.” Chen Ge had already made his decision as he took out the comic. The old lady hesitated. She opened her lips to say something, but Chen Ge could not hear her voice at all.

“I will take that as a yes.” Chen Ge turned around to guard the old lady, Jiang Ming, and his mother behind him. He stared at the blood red snail that was slowly crawling toward them. “This snail is the real culprit that has literally crushed Jiang Ming’s family under its weight. It is also the representation of all the negative emotions and misfortunes in Jiang Ming’s mind. If I can destroy this thing, Jiang Ming might not be confused or scared by it anymore.”

Pressing the play button on the recorder, Chen Ge called softly, “Xu Yin!”

Blood red trails started to expand with Chen Ge as the center. The blood red snail sensed the presence of a threat. All the crazed neighbors started to run to gather around it.

“Five Red Specters are enough to destroy this incomplete scenario, so the additional Red Specters can be used to help maintain the basic structure of this scenario.”

Flipping through the comic, more and more blood trails appeared on the walls, ground, and ceiling around Chen Ge. They carried incredibly high hostility, and they spread to cover the entire scenario in record time. The blood red snail had stopped moving. It sensed a threat that it had not faced ever before, but Chen Ge’s hand that was still flipping through the comic did not stop.

More and more blood vessels appeared. They seemed to pull a curtain over the world behind Jiang Ming’s door. Finally, at a tipping point, the threshold was broken through, and the heavy scent of blood rushed forward like a wave of the blood ocean!

One red figure after another appeared beside Chen Ge. Their clothes were as red as blood. Without Chen Ge saying anything, the Red Specters were like sharks that sensed blood in the water. They jumped at the blood red snail. Being cornered by several Red Specters, the snail's hardy shell was broken, and then Chen Ge was given a view of something ghastly.

At the deepest part of the snail flesh, there was a baby face whose eyes were closed!

The face was similar to the face that he had seen inside the shadow's body in Li Wan City. It was how the ghost fetus looked when he was an infant!

"The ghost fetus?" The baby's eyes slowly opened, and pure evil was dancing in his eyes. A shrill laugh echoed throughout the world. The flesh of the giant red snail imploded. The baby's face dissolved into a puddle of dirty blood, and what remained of the giant snail was a wooden toy.

"Looks like the ghost fetus is not hiding inside Jiang Ming." Even though he had not found the ghost fetus, at least he had managed to decrease one possibility. Chen Ge walked to the carcass of the blood red snail and picked up the toy off the ground. He had impression of this toy. It was a gift that had been given to him by his father when he was young, but one day, it had suddenly disappeared. "Was it stolen by the shadow?"

After the snail exploded, the world behind Jiang Ming's door started to vibrate violently. The strange-looking neighbors started to disappear one after another, and the basis of this world was shaken to its core. Chen Ge had the other Red Specters temporarily stabilize this unravelling world while he walked to the old lady and Jiang Ming. "It is time to say goodbye to this pain. I will take you away from here."

Flipping open the comic, Chen Ge wanted to pull the old lady and Jiang Ming into it, but Jiang Ming held onto the hands of the rag doll woman and refused to let go. The woman that only existed in Jiang Ming's memory pushed Jiang Ming lightly but firmly away. She waved goodbye to Jiang Ming with a smile as her body became lighter and lighter until she completely disappeared.

"After we leave this place, I will take you to meet her in person. She must miss you greatly."

Closing the comic, Chen Ge led Jiang Ming by the hand and walked down to the ground floor accompanied by a few Red Specters. The world was crumbling, and they opened the locked steel door. When Chen Ge walked out of the door, Jiang Ming, who was lying in bed in real life, opened his eyes. He sat up in bed and saw Chen Ge, who was walking out from what appeared to be thin air. The door behind him collapsed completely. Chen Ge held the backpack with one hand and looked at Jiang Ming quietly. Jiang Ming, who sat in bed, did not make a sound. He did not cry or scream. He seemed to recognize Chen Ge.

“Just treat what happened earlier as a bad dream.” After the words slipped from his lips, Chen Ge realized that Jiang Ming would not be able to hear him. He took out a pen and paper and wrote down the word ‘mother’. “Sleep well tonight, and I will take you to find her tomorrow.”

Just in case Jiang Ming was not old enough to recognize Chinese characters, Chen Ge made gesture while he wrote. After some time, it finally sank in for Jiang Ming, and for the first time, he had a genuine smile on his face.

“Have a good sleep, good night.” Touching the boy’s head, Chen Ge flipped through the comic and released the old lady. “Granny, can you hear me now?”

The old lady’s eyes had been following Jiang Ming. Her body was almost transparent.

“There is a question that has been bugging me. Why would there be such a scary snail in the world behind Jiang Ming’s door? Has he been traumatized by a snail before, or was he pranked with a snail by other kids when he was young?” Chen Ge had many speculations, but none of them sounded applicable in this situation.

“The snail was just a symbol of something else. It is not a real snail.” There was a pain in the old lady’s voice. “Jiang Ming’s mother was born deaf and mute, and she was hated by her own family from a young age. After she reached the legal age, she was married off to Jiang Ming’s father for the dowry. Her family never did care about her in the first place. Then Jiang Ming was born. Even though he was not born with muteness and deafness, he had problems with his hearing. The doctor suggested for him to get a cochlear implant, but even the cheapest option costs several dozen thousand RMB, and the more expensive one goes up into the millions.

“The doctor said that the earlier the operation, the better, but Jiang Ming’s mother did not have that much money lying around. One should not even have hopes toward his father. Once Jiang Ming's father found out that Jiang Ming was hearing-impaired, his attitude toward the mother and son had a huge transformation. He even thought about abandoning Jiang Ming, but thankfully, Jiang Ming's mother stepped in every time.

"You saw what happened later. Jiang Ming's mother came to me to learn the art of horsetail embroidery. She wanted to collect money to do the cochlear operation for her son. However, the boy's father liked to drink and gamble. He would come back home and steal his wife's hard-earned money, and eventually, he openly asked the money from her. If she refused, he would beat her up until she surrendered.

"Jiang Ming grew up in this kind of environment. Perhaps he was too young to understand what a cochlear implant was, but he knew from his mother and the doctor that the implant looked like a snail, and he probably made the connection in his mind that the snails would represent a hope to gain hearing in his world. He tried his best to collect all the snails that he could find because he was desperate to hear from the others, but at the same time, it was also an undeniable fact that his family collapsed under the weight of that snail."

After hearing the old lady's story, Chen Ge finally understood the world in the boy's eyes. There was the cruel truth hidden behind the absurdity.

"Granny, do you know where the boy's parents currently live?"

"What do you plan to do?"

"I plan to teach the boy's father how to be a man, and I wish to help the boy's mother." Chen Ge took out the wallet from his pocket. "If the situation allows it, I also wish to help Jiang Ming gain the ability to hear."

"You wish to sponsor this boy's surgery?"

"What's wrong with that? I might not dress the part, but I am actually an entrepreneur."

Chen Ge then opened the backpack and slid the hammer inside it.

Chapter 1006 - Someone's Been to My House

Chapter 1006: Someone's Been to My House

"There is no need to prove yourself. A cochlear implant surgery will cost quite a lot for anyone." The old lady smiled genially. She did not seem to believe Chen Ge. From his appearance, Chen Ge definitely did not look like an entrepreneur. An old backpack, normal clothes, and clothes that came from the night market at that. The most valuable thing that he had on him was probably the Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer that had the blood red groove.

"Don't worry." Chen Ge flipped through the comic. "Granny, why don't you come with me for now? If you wish to see Jiang Ming in the future, I will bring you to come see him. Even though the boy still has the hearing impairment, he seems to be able to hear the voices from the other world. I cannot guarantee that he will retain that ability after the surgery, so before that, I'd prefer if you come to accompany him more often."

"Okay, thank you, young man." The old lady entered the comic. At the same time, the black phone in Chen Ge's pocket vibrated. Chen Ge took out the phone, and there were two unread messages.

...

"You have completed 1/9 of the four-star trial mission, Ghost Fetus. The ghost fetus' hearing is seriously impaired. Red Specters' Favored, you do not have much time left!

"Congratulations Red Specters' Favored for collecting the blessings of one hundred different Specters and spirits! You gained the special title 'Votive Master'!

"Votive Master (Real salvation is not victory after a massacre but being able to offer peace in the heart and the energy of life within the torrents of despair): When one has this title, completing a Specter's or spirit's wishes will tremendously increase their affection toward you. At that same time, it will shear away part of their resentment."

"I've gained a new title? Since when did I collect so many blessings? Could it be the students from the School of the Afterlife and Mu Yang High School?"

Titles were permanent, and their effects were constant. Sometimes, Chen Ge suspected that his constant encounters with the supernatural were due to his initial title of Specters' Favored. Putting the black phone away, Chen Ge waited until Jiang Ming had fallen asleep, then he slipped out from the room.

"I still need to find the mud statuette with Jiang Ming's name. It is probably on Jiang Jiu. The thing is useful to Zhang Ya, so I must get it somehow."

After leaving Jiang Ming's home, Chen Ge removed the gloves and plastic wrap from his feet. He ran down the stairs, avoided all the camera, and retraced his steps back to the streets. After he hopped over the wall, he turned back to look.

"I was not seen on the cameras, and I didn't leave behind any fingerprints or footprints. Even if Jiang Ming accidentally brings me up, they will not find any proof."

Taking out his phone, Chen Ge very openly video-called Jiang Ming, who had not returned home. The call was answered. In the video, Jiang Ming was driving, and he looked pissed. "Chen Ge? I don't think our relationship is close enough for you to call me so late at night."

"I am just outside your house. I have something that I need to discuss with you."

"Why are you at my place at 1 am? Have you lost your mind?" Jiang Ming appeared to be in a bad mood.

"He who is unjust is doomed to destruction. As I told you this morning, by placing the altar at the haunted house, you've attracted too many evil spirits and Specters. The first person they will harm is the one who set up the altar," Chen Ge said. "You have already been targeted. There is something hiding in your shadow, and it has been following you around."

"Stop trying to scare me."

"I am trying to save you."

The call was ended. Jiang Ming had hung up with impatience. Seeing the black screen, Chen Ge was not agitated. He stood at the gate, waiting for Jiang Ming. There was one last opening in this set up that he made, and that was Tong Tong, who was still in Jiang Ming's phone.

“Tong Tong has done a great job. I’ll have to reward him.” Chen Ge set up a new social account on his phone with a smile on his face. Half an hour later, Jiang Ming drove back to his residential area. Seeing him, Chen Ge carried his backpack and walked to the middle of the road to block his path.

“Are you seeking for death?” Jiang Ming honked several times, deeply annoyed. That night, he had driven from the city to Eastern Jiujiang, then to Western Jiujiang, but for nothing, and in the end, he was scolded unreasonably by Jiang Jiu.

“Remember how you are acting now. After some time, you will come and beg me.” Chen Ge took out his phone. “The altar at your haunted house is deeply haunted. It is not housing any good spirits. I will warn you one last time. Remove it now, or you and your family will be drowned in misfortune.”

“Move away!” Jiang Ming had had enough.

“I can’t just stand here and watch you die. I will give you one last chance.” Chen Ge opened his newly created account. The ID was Votive Master. “One night, if something strange happens at your house, contact this person immediately. He will come help you.”

Chen Ge refused to budge until Jiang Ming added this account as a friend so that the latter had no choice but to take out his phone.

“Now, are you satisfied?”

Narrowing his gaze, Chen Ge saw Tong Tong crawl back into his own phone and then nodded. “Karma is always watching, take care of yourself.”

Putting away the phone, Chen Ge carried the backpack and jogged away because he was afraid that he might start laughing if he stayed there.

“Jiang Ming can be removed from the list, and the ghost fetus’s power has been greatly reduced. This is a good night.” Chen Ge walked on the quiet street for a few minutes. It was as if he was the only person in the whole city. The feeling was relaxing. “After tonight, I still have six nights left. That should be enough time.”

After leaving Jiang Ming’s world, Chen Ge was not that worried. He reached into his backpack and took out the wooden toy that he had lost years prior.

“I still remember this toy, so the shadow probably remembers it as well.” An image appeared in his mind of the shadow standing behind him, watching while he was playing with the toy. “Has he wanted to kill me since way back then?”

Chen Ge put the toy away. He had a feeling that he might have a use for it later. He had just zipped up his backpack when his phone rang. He saw the caller ID and noticed that it was from Jiang Ming.

Chapter 1007 - What Goes Up Must Comes Down [2 in 1]

Chapter 1007: What Goes Up Must Comes Down [2 in 1]

“How can I help you?” His goal had been achieved, and Tong Tong had returned, so Chen Ge had nothing to worry about.

“It’s like this. I’ve considered what you said, and I feel like you might not be wrong.”

“Why did your attitude suddenly change?”

...

“When I reached home and saw my son, he was reacting very strangely. He gestured for a long time before I understood him.” Jiang Ming lowered his voice. “Someone has been to my home.”

“See, I told you. Check under your bed, in the closet, and in the bathroom. Perhaps the person hasn’t left.” Chen Ge sounded serious, but his lips were curled upward.

“I have already taken a quick look around. There’s no one in the house, and nothing is missing.” Jiang Ming disliked talking to Chen Ge, but he had no other choice now but to ask for his opinion.

“It is not a good sign that you have nothing missing because that can only mean that the person came looking to claim a life.” Chen Ge paused for a while like he was seriously considering this.

“Life?” Jiang Ming seemed to remember something. He sank into silence and did not speak.

“Sometimes, children can see things that we adults are not able to. That is all I will say on that topic. If you really run into any difficulty that you cannot solve, I suggest you go and contact that Votive Master. Be nice and ask him for help. He might be able to point you in the right direction.” Chen Ge hung up the call. He hailed a cab and returned to New Century Park.

Entering the underground scenario, Chen Ge summoned the group of doctors. “Are any of you familiar with a good and reputable ear doctor? One who knows how to do cochlear implant surgery?"

"I have a student that is a specialist in this field, but we have not met each other in a very long time." Doctor Wei had taught many excellent students in his years of service in education. He gave Chen Ge another surprise. "But why would you suddenly want to know something like that?"

Chen Ge told them about Jiang Ming's story—a drunkard father, a mother that was born mute and deaf. The doctors felt sorry for what had happened to Jiang Ming.

"My student should be working at a hospital somewhere in Xin Hai. He is one of the best in the field. You can call his hospital to book an appointment with him."

"Elder Wei, with our relationship, do we still need to book an appointment? Can't you just go to his dreams and ask him for a favor tonight?" Chen Ge knew how to get what he wanted from Doctor Wei, so he quickly added, "The boy is in such a poor condition, and he is being targeted by a Demon God, so I plan to use my own money to help sponsor his surgery. However, I am sure you know how expensive this cochlear implant surgery is. I do not come from a rich family. I am already in my twenties, but I have no car and no house. I still need to sleep every night at the haunted house. If anyone ever heard about this, I'd be the joke of the century."

Chen Ge rubbed his eyes that were brimming red with tears. "These past few months, I have been saving money because I wanted to buy a motorbike for myself, but due to this sudden accident, my already financially-strained life will be more difficult in the foreseeable future..."

"Enough, enough, I will help you. Are you satisfied now?" Doctor Wei rubbed his temples. "It is not that easy to just jump into someone's dreams. You can try to contact him first. Tell him my name. It was me who sponsored him during his first two years at medical school, so he will definitely help, but please do not go and scam the poor boy."

"I promise!" After thanking Doctor Wei, Chen Ge returned to the staff breakroom. As his head landed on the pillow, he drifted off to dreamland. He had no time to waste. There were many important things waiting for him to complete the next day. Chen Ge woke up punctually at 7 am the next morning. After taking a cold shower, he put on an outfit that looked presentable. When his employees came to work, Chen Ge put on make-up for them in the dressing room while conducting a simple morning meeting.

After ensuring every scenario was working fine, Chen Ge grabbed his backpack and left New Century Park again. When he was inside the taxi, Chen Ge used this travelling time to call Lee Zheng to get the latest update on Jia Ming. Lee Zheng had gotten used to getting calls from Chen Ge. It had now become as consistent as him clocking into work. He told Chen Ge that the operation would be conducted that night, but he did not reveal the exact location and time to Chen Ge.

Chen Ge did not press. Actually, he had faith in the law enforcement of Jiujiang. Ten minutes later, Chen Ge arrived at his destination. It was an old, squat looking apartment building. This was the address that had been given to him by the old lady, the place where Jiang Ming stayed before he was adopted by Jiang Jiu. When he arrived at this place, Chen Ge noticed something very interesting. This was where Fan Yu and his aunty had lived when he first encountered them. Chen Ge had been there several months earlier.

“The government has been intending to renovate the old part of the city, but the demolition was stopped halfway through. Looks like I have to pay attention to this place.”

After entering the alley, there was a faded stench that permeated the air. It was unclear whether it came from the underground sewer or one of the tenants. After walking for some time, Chen Ge came to the center of the old city. Jiang Ming’s family was staying in one of the flats there. He entered the stairwell. It felt as if the world behind the door had overlapped with the real world. Chen Ge felt like he had just visited to this place the previous night. The sound of an argument came from somewhere down the corridor. Chen Ge looked down that direction. He saw two ladies about thirty standing at the entrance of Jiang Ming’s home. They appeared to be workers from the apartment community. They were holding many forms with official-looking stamps on them.

“Ladies, what’s going on?” Chen Ge sidled over. He saw that the two women are wearing their working IDs. The one with curly hair had the surname Mei, and the elder one had the surname Lee.

“We are from the neighbor committee. We have received multiple reports of domestic violence from this family. The mother of the house is covered in bruises. We are here to take the woman away and bring her to the hospital for a medical check-up.” Ms. Lee used her body to block the door and refused to let the owner close the door.

“Is the mother home? Why doesn’t she come out and go away with you?”

“You have no idea how poor this woman is. She was born mute and deaf, and I believe that multiple beatings from her husband have stunted her mind. It was after we took the fact that the woman is unable to care for herself that we made the decision to forcibly take her away with us.” Ms. Mei started to help her partner. These women were truly angels of the society. They blocked the door and refused with brute force to let the man close the door from the inside.

“Looks like I have come to the right place.” Chen Ge reached out to press against the door and push very hard. The door was flung backward. Chen Ge followed behind the two ladies as they entered the room. The smell of alcohol hung in the air, empty bottles littered the room, and there were glass shards that needed to be cleaned up sitting on the ground. The tables and chairs were toppled over. The cushions of the couch were left on the ground. Something awful had just happened here earlier.

“Jiang Dawu! If you dare to stop me again, we will call the cops!” The two ladies were furious.

“Go ahead and call then! Who gave you the right to intervene into my family’s private business?” The man who spoke was bare-chested. He was bald and on the bigger side, tall and imposing.

“Those threats are not going to work on us. The neighborhood committee has gathered more than enough evidence. We are here today to save her. We will not leave until we take her away with us.”

“Take her away with you? That depends on whether she wants to leave with you or not!” The man picked up the cushions from the ground and placed them on the sofa. He grabbed a half-empty bottle of beer and sat in the middle of the living room. The curtain that led to the kitchen was pulled back. A woman wearing a long-sleeved top, long pants, and an apron stood at the door to the kitchen. She wished to take one step out, but she hesitated. The two ladies walked toward her. They wished to pull her out, but the woman kept shaking her hands as if she was very afraid. Ms. Lee kept persuading her as she nudged the woman out of the kitchen. They were making their way through the living room when the man suddenly slammed the beer bottle against the table.

“What will happen when your son returns if you leave? Do you not want to see him anymore?” The man knew that the woman was deaf, so he tossed a clean little school bag at the woman. He glared at her and said, “I can send him away, so of course, I can bring him back.”

“Jesus, you are one horrible human being.” Chen Ge could not rein in his anger anymore. He walked to the middle of the living room, picked up the small school bag, patted it, and handed it to the woman. “Take her out of here. Let me talk to him.”

“You?” The two ladies accepted the help from Chen Ge, but before they left, they warned him, “The man has violent tendencies. You must be careful.”

“I will.” Chen Ge nodded. Seeing that Jiang Ming’s mother was still unwilling to leave, he knew that she was worried about Jiang Ming, so he took out the letter that he had prepared from his pocket and handed it to her. “Take a look at this.”

Chen Ge had written the letter when he was riding on the taxi. The content of the letter was that he planned to sponsor Jiang Ming’s cochlear implant surgery. After Jiang Ming’s mother read the content of the letter, the tears fell naturally out of her eyes. She wanted to thank Chen Ge, but she was stopped by him. “Leave here first.”

After the three ladies left, Chen Ge closed the door.

“Where the hell did you come from, and what was in the letter that you showed her?” The man grabbed the bottle, but he did not move from his spot.

“It is nothing important. I just persuaded her to divorce you and get away from a horrible man like you as fast as she can.” After Chen Ge said that, the man’s expression changed immediately, and the fire of wrath coursed through him.

“Divorce is impossible! Now get the hell out of my house!”

“There is no need to act so rashly.” Chen Ge took out a credit card from his wallet. “There is 150,000 on this card.”

“150,000 and you wish for me to divorce her? If you like her that much, you will understand that 150,000 is far from enough.” The man’s eyes had been following the card that Chen Ge was holding ever since he took it out.

“Looks like you have really never treated them as your family before. They were just objects for you to sell and trade to make money. In any case, you have misunderstood me. This 150,000 is for Jiang Ming’s cochlear implant surgery. It has nothing to do with you.” Chen Ge put away the card. He saw Jiang Dawu’s eyes trailing greedily along it. “You must be thinking about how you can convince me to give you the money that will help save Jiang Ming, mustn’t you?”

Even though his horrible thoughts had been exposed by Chen Ge, the man did not deny it. He tossed back a mouthful of the beer.

“Do you know? I was giving you one last chance earlier. If you’d shown the slightest bit of love toward Jiang Ming or your wife, this would not have happened.” Chen Ge pressed the play button on the recorder and took out a pair of red high heels and placed them on the table. Instantly, the color of blood filled the whole room. With the cooperation between Xu Yin and the red high heels, they shoved a pile of blood vessels that they had collected from the world behind Jiang Ming’s door right into Jiang Dawu’s mind. The blood vessels were filled with Jiang Ming’s feeling of helplessness and despair. They included his fear and many other negative emotions. The cherry on top was the curse from the red high heel.

“Jiang Dawu, you will experience what your child has been through.” The man who sat on the sofa clamped his hands over his ears like he had been possessed. It appeared like more than a handful of people were currently whispering into his ears. Seeing Jiang Dawu being tortured by this, Chen Ge showed no pity at all. What Jiang Dawu was experiencing was practically what he had put his own son through, so he merely got what he deserved. A tooth for a tooth as they said. “When you have atoned for your sins, perhaps the curse will end on its own.”

Chen Ge unsummoned Xu Yin and the red high heels. He shook his head lightly. “I do not have many days left in my life, and I am still going around helping people. Now that I think about it, I am such a noble person.”

Chapter 1008 - Votive Master

Chapter 1008: Votive Master

The man hugged his head and screamed while Chen Ge turned around and pushed open the door. "Please come in and help me. I don't know what came over him!"

The two ladies looked into the room and saw the large Jiang Dawu covering his ears, rolling on the ground.

"He was about to swing the bottle at me, but this suddenly happened. It gave me quite the shock." Chen Ge walked to hide behind the two ladies. "You know that I was in there for less than a few minutes. Do you think this is some kind of scam to trick medical fees out of me?"

...

"With this man's personality, that's not impossible, but don't worry, we can be your witnesses. We will not let him scam someone as kind-hearted as you." Ms. Lee looked down on Jiang Dawu and hated him intensely. The two women stood to the side and observed. This was the first time that they had seen something like this.

"How about we call the ambulance? We can't just allow him to do this. Everything should be cleared up when the doctor is here," Chen Ge suggested.

"You are too kind. We should just ignore him and let him experience the pain for a while." Ms. Mei had a sharp tongue but soft heart. After a while, she still called the emergency number. The ambulance carried Jiang Dawu away. Jiang Ming's mother sidled up to Chen Ge with the letter. She kept gesturing something like she was trying to say something.

"Don't worry." Chen Ge knew that the woman would not hear him even if he spoke, so he asked for help from the ladies next to him. "Ms. Lee, actually, I knew about this family's situation before I came. Can we find a private place to talk?"

"Sure." The two ladies led Chen Ge and Jiang Ming's mother back to the neighborhood watch's headquarter. They found some stationary and placed them on the table.

“Please calm down. I will help you refresh your memory first.” Chen Ge picked up the pencil from the table and started to write. That was the only way the two could communicate with each other. “I know you are familiar with the art of horsetail embroidery. You can survive independently with this art. In fact, you used to make money using this skill. Do you still remember who taught you this skill?”

Seeing the words on the paper, Jiang Ming’s mother was shocked. She held the pencil, but she did not know what to write.

“You should remember the old lady living on the second floor above your flat. I am her relative. Before the old lady passed away, she worried about Jiang Ming the most. She had a soft place in her heart for that little guy.”

What Chen Ge wrote was the truth. Now that the old lady was inside his comic, she would live in his haunted house in the future, and thus, she was naturally his family. The mention of the old lady caused the mother’s emotions to get more agitated again. This was the second time that she teared up after meeting Chen Ge.

“The time of misfortune has passed. After this, you will enjoy a happy life with Jiang Ming.” Chen Ge turned to the two ladies. “The earlier the cochlear implant surgery is done, the better. I have prepared 150,000 and I will find the doctor as soon as possible. But I will be a bit busy the next few days, and I might need help from the neighborhood committee.”

“Just say the word, and we are ready to help. The neighbor and the women’s committee know about her family’s situation. We will help as much as we can.”

“Understood. At the end of the day, we only want the best for them.”

Chen Ge had no idea how much money was on his card. He had not taken account of his haunted house’s income from the past few months, but it would not be less than 200,000. After a few days, the mission for the ghost fetus would be over. If everything was successful, he would earn more money, but if there was a problem, it would not matter how much money sat in his card. Chen Ge was not a stingy person, but he wished to spend money on the right thing.

“Wait a moment.” Chen Ge took out his phone and called the number for a hospital in Xin Hai. After explaining the situation, he made an online appointment with the doctor recommended by Doctor Wei. The doctor’s name was Fang Zhiming. After getting Doctor Fang’s number,

Chen Ge sat in the neighborhood's committee's headquarters and made the call several times, but no one answered. Just as he was about to give up, the call was finally pulled through.

"Is this Doctor Fang?" The other side of the phone was unusually quiet. He could not hear any sound. After a long time, a middle-aged man's voice finally replied. "I am sorry, but I am temporarily not available for any appointments."

"It's Wei Jiuqin who told me to find you." Chen Ge dropped Doctor Wei's name immediately.

"Who?"

"When you were studying at Jiujiang Medical University..."

"I'm asking who you are. My teacher passed many years ago. I was there to give him the send-off. You'd better not joke about something like this." Doctor Fang was angered, but from this, it showed that he still had a great deal of respect for Wei Jiuqin.

"Actually, Doctor Wei was my relative. He admired you a lot and often mentioned you to me." Chen Ge said something that only Doctor Wei and Fang Zhiming would know, and only then did the latter start to believe Chen Ge.

"I think I get what is going on already, but for now, I am unable to help the boy do the operation." Fang Zhiming sounded increasingly tired. "Lately, I have been spacing out at work, and some time ago, there was a medical incident. Currently, I am in no position to conduct surgery. I still need some time to recuperate."

"What happened to you?" Chen Ge could hear the lethargy in Fang Zhiming's voice like it drained him even to speak.

"Actually, it was nothing serious. Previously, the hospital was renovating an old sector. I found a letter in the old storeroom. I opened it out of curiosity, and the letter told to go to some abandoned hospital in the middle of the night. If I refused, I would have hell to pay. Never mind, why am I telling you this?"

"It's fine. Perhaps I can give you a good suggestion. Even if I can't help you, it is better to share this with others than to have it cooped up inside you." Chen Ge's interest was piqued.

"The letter was probably some prank from a patient. I did not think too much of it, but later, I kept having this recurring nightmare. I dreamed about this smiling person.” Fang Zhiming sighed. “The man stood under my building every night at the same position, staring at my window.”

“A smiling person?” Instantly the term ‘non-smiler’ appeared in Chen Ge’s mind.

“Initially, I thought it was because of work pressure getting to me. But one night, I woke up in the middle of the night and saw the curtain fluttering. I climbed out of bed, attempting to close the window, and when I was by the window, I saw that there was this man with his giant grin standing under my building, just like the scenario from my dream!”

“Are you being followed by some strange admirer?”

“I have no clue, but that man only appeared once and never showed up after that. But my work and life have both been seriously affected. My mind keeps wander to this issue.” Fang Zhiming was in a bad spot. “You are my beloved teacher’s relative, but in my condition, I really cannot help you. However, I can recommend other good doctors to you. Bring the boy over as soon as you can. The earlier the cochlear implant surgery is done, the better.”

“Doctor Fang, I will bring the boy over as soon as I can, but other than that, I have run into the situation that you mentioned earlier.” Chen Ge lowered his voice. “Certain things cannot be explained so openly. Trust me this time. I will recommend a contact of mine. He is a good friend of Doctor Wei’s. If you feel like you have reached your breaking point, you need to contact him.”

“My teacher’s friend?”

“When you communicate with him, you have to remember one thing. Do not hide anything from him. Only by telling him everything you know will he be able to help you.” Chen Ge sent the man his other social account. “I do not know that man’s real name, but Doctor Wei called him the Votive Master.”

Chapter 1009 - Wu Jinpeng

Chapter 1009: Wu Jinpeng

If it was Chen Ge who asked for more details, Fang Zhiming might clam up due to certain reasons, but if the person was Doctor Wei's friend, the situation might be different. Fang Zhiming had true respect for Doctor Wei. When he was truly cornered, he would choose to believe in Doctor Wei's friend. From what Chen Ge heard, Fang Zhiming had probably gotten tied up with that cursed hospital. The appearance of a non-smiler was an obvious clue. But he had no ability and no time to help, so he could only use this kind of method.

Chen Ge gave Fang Zhiming his other social account information, and Fang Zhiming introduced Chen Ge to another doctor and gave him the contact number. Hanging up the phone, Chen Ge looked at Jiang Ming's mother and tried to explain the situation. Jiang Ming's mother wrote many things down on the paper. Other than showing her appreciation, she told Chen Ge that she had been saving up. Currently, she had about 30,000. She planned to use all of that to help Jiang Ming with his surgery. Chen Ge would pay the rest for now, but she promised to return the money.

"You need to take care of Jiang Ming, and you will need that money to survive. Let's not argue on that for now." Chen Ge knew that Jiang Jiu would not let the boy go so easily, and they would not agree to help Jiang Ming with his surgery because once Jiang Ming recovered his hearing, it might ruin the ghost fetus' plan. Thus, they had to stop it the best they could. Chen Ge did not plan to get into that. If Jiang Jiu refused, he would ask for help from the police and the women's association.

...

"In seven days' time, we will go to Xin Hai City together. If you can't contact me, go straight to the haunted house at New Century Park. Someone will hand you the money." Chen Ge had already set up his plan. He would first deal with the ghost fetus and then focus all of his energy on the cursed hospital. Of course, the premise was that he had to be able to kill the ghost fetus.

The traces of the cursed hospital can be seen everywhere. I feel like if I don't go to them, they will come for me. After all, I have received the invitation to join the cursed game.

After dealing with the issue on this side, Chen Ge left after leaving behind his contact number.

"Later tonight, I will go to Fang Yu's home and see if a door appears after she falls asleep. If everything is successful, I can eliminate three people from the roster, and six children will be left."

Six nights, six children—Chen Ge was not as worried as before. This probably had to do with his personality. After the initial panic, he became unusually calm. Walking out of the dirty alley, Chen Ge took out his phone and looked through his contact list to find the number of Wu Sheng's father.

After the teacher at Pei Zhi Academy gave Chen Ge his number, he had not called it yet. The call rang for a long time, and just as Chen Ge was about to hang up, the call was connected.

"Hello, who is this?" There were many different sounds in the background. Wu Sheng's father appeared to be on some busy street, and there was a lot of bustle around him.

"My name is Chen Ge. My relative's child is in the same situation as your son. We plan to send our child to your son's school, but the tuition is very expensive, so I wanted to ask for your opinion to get your perspective on this."

"No problem! I am at work now. We will meet up at the gate of Pei Zhi Academy around 5 pm!" The man's voice was hoarse and stood out.

"Thank you."

...

At 5 pm, school was over at Pei Zhi Academy. The children walked out from their classrooms accompanied by their teachers. After a while, Chen Ge spotted Wu Sheng. The boy who seemed to lack interest in everything kept turning his head around with anxiety on his face like he was looking for someone.

"Don't wander about. I'm sure your father will be here soon."

Before the teacher finished, a man's voice came from the distance.

“Wu Sheng!”

Unlike the other parents who came in cars or motorcycles, the man was riding a rather old-looking bicycle. A bag was slung over his shoulder, and he had a short ponytail. The unkempt beard did not make him appear disheveled but strangely enough gave him a sense of maturity.

“Son! I’m here! I’m sorry, coming through.” Even though he was riding a bicycle whose paint was peeling, the man was very confident and made it feel like he had come in a lavish car. When the man came over, the anxiety in Wu Sheng’s eyes decreased significantly, and he returned to his usual self.

“Teacher, has my son improved today?”

“He did well today. Be careful on the road.” Her job completed, the teacher turned back into the school.

“That’s not bad! The teacher said you have improved today. We should celebrate. How does two dishes for dinner sound?” The man carried Wu Sheng in his arm and then placed the boy on the back of the bicycle. Then he looked around. “Son, wait for daddy a moment. I promised to meet with a friend today.”

He took out his phone and was about to call when Chen Ge walked over. “You are Wu Sheng’s father, right?”

When he got closer, Chen Ge realized that even though the man before him was a bit carefree with his appearance, he had a good presence and was quite handsome.

“Chen Ge?”

“Yes, that’s me. I have some questions that I hope to ask you.”

“We’re blocking up the traffic. Let’s chat while we move.” The man pushed his bicycle and continued to move forward. Chen Ge pushed the bicycle that he had rented from the public service and followed along. If they walked, it would take too long, and they might finish the chat on the journey, but Chen Ge’s real purpose was to get to Wu Sheng’s room and stay until midnight.

“Brother, how should I address you?”

“My name is Wu Jinpeng[1], but you can call me Brother Peng.” The man had a good personality and was kind to others. He was another extreme from Wu Sheng and formed a great contrast. "You mentioned earlier that your family's child has the same condition as Wu Sheng, right? Where is he now? Am I right in assuming it's a boy? Perhaps we should introduce him to Wu Sheng. They might have a shared language."

"Brother Peng, my boy's situation is worse than Wu Sheng's. Not only does he refuse to speak, he has this tendency to paint pictures that scares adults." Chen Ge pulled down his face.

"Little brother, listen to me. When Wu Sheng was younger, his condition was worse than now. He did not know how to speak, and he had nightmares every night. He would throw things about like he was possessed."

"Possessed?" Chen Ge showed the appropriate shocked look. "That is the same as the child of my relative! This is such a coincidence!"

"What the... Really?"

"Yes, and it is very serious, and that's why I wish to transfer him here. Even though the tuition is a bit expensive, I saw how professional the staff are, and the environment is better than most places." Chen Ge sighed. "I come from a normal family, but for the children, it does not matter if life becomes a bit more difficult for us adults."

"Little Brother, it's not easy on you either, huh?" Wu Jinpeng looked at Chen Ge and felt like he had found a kindred spirit. "Don't worry about it too much, I am sure the boys will get better with time."

"Brother Peng, I really have many things that I wish to ask you. If it's not too much trouble, do you mind if we go to your place so that we can talk about this further?"

"Why not? That's no problem at all!" Wu Jinpeng agreed easily. The three rode the bicycles and came to the area near a small apartment in Western Jiujiang.

[1] Wu Jinpeng can also mean Golden Roc.

Chapter 1010 - Potential New Employee

Chapter 1010: Potential New Employee

Wu Jinpeng lived at in old apartment. The house was at least thirty years old. The family of three squeezed inside a small room of twenty cubic meters. The toilet was adjacent to the kitchen, and the rooms were separated by curtains.

“The place is a bit cramped. I hope you don’t mind it. I plan to move to a bigger place next month.” As Wu Jinpeng opened the door, a big yellow dog rushed over, wagging its tail. It was friendly with Wu Jinpeng and Wu Sheng but snarled warningly when it saw Chen Ge. “Down boy! Sorry about that. Ol’ Huang is a stray. He has been chased away by many people, so he isn’t keen on strangers. Once you get close to him, though, you’ll see how friendly and warm he is.”

Wu Jinpeng grabbed Ol’ Huang by the fur on his head as he invited Chen Ge into the room. The cement floor was not tiled, and a lot of paraphernalia filled the room, but the place was neatly organized. As small as the place was, it did not feel dirty or disorganized.

...

“Xiao Kun, we have a guest. Please pour us two glasses of tea!” Wu Jinpeng shouted into the room. Moments later, the curtain was pulled open to reveal a dullish young man walking out with an electric fan.

“Fan!”

“I know. You prepare the tea, and I’ll fix the fan.” Wu Jinpeng tried to take the fan away from the young man, but the young man slid away from him, refusing to let go of the fan.

“Fan!”

“Bloody hell, I promise to buy you a new fan after I get my salary, okay?” Wu Jinpeng was embarrassed as he looked Chen Ge. “This is my younger brother. He got into an accident when he was young and injured his brain. He might look dull, but he is actually very clever. In primary school, he was a very good student. His results were always in the top ten.”

His son did not know how to speak and his brother had a brain injury; life had been difficult for Wu Jinpeng, but he still felt proud of his family.

Chen Ge admired a man like that. “Brother Peng, I ordered something on the way here. Later, we can chat over dinner. I have many questions for you.”

“You should not have done that! You’re my guest. I should have treated you, not the other way round!”

“It’s me who has questions for you. Treating you is the least I can do.”

The delivery soon arrived. Other than food, Chen Ge had ordered some alcohol. The family sat on the blanket in the middle of the room. As simple of it was, it was very close and warm. Wu Sheng and Wu Jinpeng’s brother appeared like they had not had such a feast in a long time, and they wolfed everything. Seeing how happy they were, Wu Jinpeng’s eyes softened. He picked up a bottle of beer and took a generous gulp.

“Brother Peng, is that a family picture on the cupboard?” Chen Ge pointed at the picture above the cupboard. It was a picture of three people. A young Wu Jinpeng stood in the middle. On his left was his younger brother, and on his right stood a pregnant woman.

“Yes, the woman is Wu Sheng’s mother. She left after giving birth to Wu Sheng. She was one hell of a woman, but I was incapable of convincing her to stay.” Wu Jinpeng chuckled as he took another sip. “Brother, you have treated us very nicely tonight. Should you have any questions, please feel free to ask. If I know anything, I will try my best to answer.”

“Brother Peng, since you are being so open, I will not hide the truth from you.” Chen Ge clinked his bottle against Wu Jinpeng’s and whispered, “Actually, my relative’s boy is a bit different from normal. He has some unique symptoms. I have been holding this in for a long time, and I don’t quite know how to talk about it.”

“Take your time. There’s no need to rush.”

“It’s not that. I’m just afraid that you might not believe me.” Chen Ge sidled closer to the Wu Jinpeng. “One night, I came home late from work, and I saw a door standing next to his bed.”

When he said that, Chen Ge’s eyes stared at Wu Jinpeng. When Wu Jinpeng heard that, his body shivered slightly.

“At the time, I was shocked. Why would there be a door that suddenly appeared in the room?” Chen Ge’s brows were screwed together, acting the part of a scared family member. “I wanted to get closer, but before I could do that, the child woke up. When he did, the door disappeared. Initially, I thought that I was too tired from work, but the next night, the door appeared again!”

“Have you tried to enter that door before?” Wu Jinpeng’s follow up question helped Chen Ge confirm that the man knew about the door. Normally, when a person heard a story as strange as that, they would first question its validity, and the question would be related to the door. They would not ask directly whether he had entered the door or not. The fact that Wu Jinpeng had asked that meant that he not only knew about the door but had quite possibly entered the door before. The two men held the bottles and looked at each other for a while. Chen Ge took a big swig to calm his nerves and shook his head. “I have not.”

“Good.” Wu Jinpeng sighed in relief.

He took the bottle, but before his lips reached the bottle, he heard Chen Ge ask, “What about you?”

The bottle froze in midair. It took Wu Jinpeng a while to recover. He stood up to close the door and window.

“Brother, come over here.” Wu Jinpeng waved at Chen Ge. They pulled open the curtain and came to the other room. There was a single bed in the room and a bare mattress on the ground. “Normally, Wu Sheng sleeps in this bed. My younger brother, Wu Kun, and I sleep in the living room, and the curtain separates the room. A few days ago, Wu Sheng kept turning in bed at night like he had trouble sleeping. Initially, I did not think much of it, but at midnight one night, Wu Sheng started to roll and turn around, so I looked over and saw a black shadow behind the curtain!”

Wu Jinpeng gestured wildly, agitated. “It was just like the movies. I quietly approached, and when I pulled open the curtain, I saw Wu Sheng staring at me with his eyes open. I did this for several nights before I got a clear glimpse of the shadow. It was like what you said. It was a door, a door standing in the dark. Whenever I switch on the light or Wu Sheng wakes up, the door disappears. Anyone would be afraid if this happened. The day before yesterday, I planned to open the door, but I can't push it open no matter what, and that was quite maddening!"

Wu Jinpeng sat on the bed. "I haven't told anyone about this because I'm afraid they might think I'm crazy."

"If you can't push it open alone, how about both of us try it together later tonight?" Chen Ge's brows slowly relaxed. "Since we're facing the same situation, we should consider helping each other."

"That sounds doable, but I'm afraid of putting you in danger."

"It's fine. We'll be on the lookout for each other. It's better than being in danger alone."

"Brother, you're too kind. I don't even know what to say."

"You're much too welcome." The world behind the door was very dangerous. Even though Chen Ge promised to go with Wu Jinpeng, at the last moment, he would block Wu Jinpeng and enter alone.

"Let's return to dinner and prepare ourselves for tonight."

The issue having been dealt with, Chen Ge's admiration for Wu Jinpeng grew. He even considered offering him a job at his haunted house if Wu Jinpeng was in real financial trouble.

Chapter 1011 - Wu Sheng's World

Chapter 1011: Wu Sheng's World

The door represented different things to Chen Ge and Wu Jinpeng. When night fell, Wu Jinpeng had drunk a lot, and in his drunken state, his 'armor' slowly fell away. Tiredness appeared in his eyes. He hid it well behind a cheerful front normally and never showed it before even his family.

"Wu Sheng, it's time for bed. Tomorrow morning, I'll take you to school." Wu Jinpeng carried Wu Sheng to his bed. "Good night, buddy."

After taking care of the young one, he needed to deal with the older one. He pulled back the curtain and sat next to his younger brother. "Kun Er, stop playing with the electric fan. If you feel hot, I'll bring you the fan."

...

"Fan!" Wu Kun raised the electric fan with both hands. He jogged around the room, refusing to surrender it Wu Jinpeng.

"Slow down, or you'll going to wake the neighbors." Wu Jinpeng appeared quite helpless. He sat back by the table. "I'm sorry for the trouble my brother is causing."

"Brother Peng, I've fixed a broken fan at my workplace before. How about I help you fix this?" When Chen Ge first took over the haunted house, he had been forced to learn many things, including installing the cameras and familiarizing himself with the wiring.

"I don't actually want to fix the fan." Wu Jinpeng took another sip of the alcohol. "Look at my brother's left finger. He once stuck his hand into the fan..."

"Oh, understood."

"My biggest wish now is for Wu Sheng to grow up like a normal child, and my second wish is to buy an air-conditioner. My younger brother hasn't experienced that before. If he knew how good an air-conditioner is, he would definitely abandon that broken electric fan."

The rental place was small. Wu Jinpeng leaned against the wall, held the bottle with one hand, and scratched the dog behind his ears with his other hand.

“Brother Peng, you sound like a person with a story. There’s still some time before midnight. Mind telling me about your past?” Chen Ge wanted to offer Wu Jinpeng a job, so he needed to know everything that he could about Wu Jinpeng.

“What story can I have? My whole life is a trail of interesting incidents.” Wu Jinpeng was slightly drunk. “Brother, can you have a guess at the most expensive item in this place?”

“How am I supposed to guess that?” The place did not even have a television set. Chen Ge looked around and the most expensive thing appeared to be the broken electric fan Wu Jinpeng’s brother was hugging.

“I’ll show it to you.” Wu Jinpeng opened the wooden box in the corner. A guitar sat inside. “This is not the practice kind. It’s very expensive.”

“You know how to play the guitar?” Chen Ge had a new appreciation for Wu Jinpeng, and his admiration for this man grew another level.

“I used to study music and was a street musician for many years. It was then that I met Wu Sheng’s mother.” Wu Jinpeng picked up the guitar, but probably afraid of waking the neighbors, he did not play. He merely moved his fingers over the strings, plucking it several times in the air. “Wu Sheng’s mother was my fan. She was eight years younger than me. She was a very nice person, so even when she abandoned us, I did not blame her one bit. I mean, take a look around, who can blame her?”

With the alcohol on the table, a stray lying next to them, and an old guitar in his embrace, the two men sat inside the small room, discussing the past and life.

“Do you still play on the street?”

“I gave that up a long time ago. I used to dream about writing my own song. Even if I couldn’t become a singer, I wanted to be in the music industry. But as you know, life has a way of throwing you curve balls. Between the choice of my dream and bread, I chose the latter.” Wu Jinpeng closed his eyes, and his fingers caressed the strings gently. “I was such a rebellious child. I only saw the world from my perspective.

There was a period when I thought the name my parents gave me was too old-fashioned, so I had my name changed quietly. Oh man, that angered the old man.”

Opening his eyes, Wu Jinpeng took another swig. “Thinking back to the way the old man glared at me for those few days, I still get the giggles. Unfortunately, I can’t even see him anymore.”

“What happened to him?”

“During the year Wu Sheng was born, my parents went to Xin Hai to have their medical check up, but they got caught in a car accident.” Wu Jinpeng emptied the bottle. “Actually, I wonder if it was a car accident. They probably got some bad news from the report and felt like they should not add to my burden.”

The room became so quiet. Wu Kun was getting tired from all the running. He hugged the electric fan and leaned against the wall.

“So, are you the one looking after the whole family now?” Chen Ge could sense the lethargy radiating from Wu Jinpeng. He needed to take care of his mentally stunted younger brother and had to earn enough for Wu Sheng’s tuition. He was the center of this family.

“Yes, but you get used to it after a while.” Wu Jinpeng put down the guitar. “Someone once told me, life is nothing but a struggle to continue living. I think that was a rather pessimistic look on life. We cannot guarantee what kind of life we will be born into, but the type of attitude we use to view our life, that is completely on us. I often tell Wu Sheng how beautiful and wonderful this world is because I hope he will grow up with those dreams in his mind. One day, I promise I will take him to witness those beauties and wonders of the world in person.”

“Brother Peng, you are a good father.” Chen Ge raised the glass to Wu Jinpeng.

“I think so too, but the teachers at the school keep telling me not to input such impossible dreams in the boy’s mind, and I have to focus on teaching him practical living skills.” Wu Jinpeng’s unusual grouse about the teachers caused Chen Ge to laugh. He had a good chat with Wu Jinpeng. Actually, when Chen Ge first met Wu Jinpeng, he had felt that the man was unique. The despair and difficulty in life did not knock him down but polished and highlighted in the beauty in his soul. Chen Ge did not expect this; even the ghost fetus could not have foreseen this.

Chen Ge did not know what standard the ghost fetus used to choose the children, but most of the candidates had a shared quality. They were lacking something in life, and they were extremely depressed or isolated. Based on Jiang Ming's situation, one could see that the greater the despair and pain the child was feeling, the scarier the world behind the door, and the better they could relate to the ghost fetus.

If considered from this perspective, the chance of Wu Sheng being possessed by the ghost fetus was low because he had such a wonderful father. The two chatted for a while. When it was 11 pm, they cleared away the dining utensils, closed the lights, and waited beside the curtain. At midnight, a shadow appeared behind the curtain. Chen Ge signaled at Wu Jinpeng. There were many Red Specters in his backpack. Once he got close, the door would rattle noisily to wake Wu Sheng, and the door would disappear.

Chen Ge grabbed his backpack, and as he moved forward with Wu Jinpeng, he suddenly lunged forward and slammed the door open. The door lock rattled. When Wu Jinpeng recovered, Chen Ge and the door had both disappeared.

"What the... Brother, where are you?"

...

Opening his eyes, Chen Ge was standing inside a dark alley. A light blood mist hung in the air, and the sound of teeth grinding could be heard in his ears.

"This is the world behind Wu Sheng's door? This place looks like the old city."

Chapter 1012 - Sewn Lips

Chapter 1012: Sewn Lips

Chen Ge had been to the old city that the morning, and the place looked familiar. “Wu Sheng used to leave in the old city? They didn’t move from Western Jiujiang to Eastern Jiujiang?”

Rather than hurrying, Chen Ge turned to look behind him. He saw a large iron door that blocked the alley.

“This door is similar to the iron door in Jiang Ming’s world.” He noticed one detail. “When I visited Jiang Ming’s old apartment, I didn’t encounter such a door at the apartment. It wasn’t part of his memory. Now that I’m in Wu Sheng’s world, this iron door has appeared again.”

...

He studied it closer. Chen Ge did not notice anything off about the door. “This means that the iron door, which is the entrance and exit, probably has nothing to do with the children but everything to do with the ghost fetus.”

With this in mind, Chen Ge studied the door closer. It did not have any writing or symbols on it, but once he leaned in, he could smell a very light scent of blood and disinfectant.

“The world behind the door is made up from the children’s memories. This door carries the smell of blood and disinfectant in someone’s memory. Could the owner of this memory have once been locked up in a hospital? But even a normal hospital shouldn’t have a black iron door like this!”

Chen Ge had visited two of the children’s worlds, and there were many things that he could not confirm. He looked at the door further before moving his eyes away.

“I’d better find Wu Sheng behind the door first. This world is different from what I anticipated.” Chen Ge had chatted with Wu Jinpeng for a long time. The father was like an umbrella that shielded Wu Sheng. Theoretically speaking, Wu Sheng’s world should not be too dark, but after Chen Ge entered this place, he realized how wrong he was. The streets were permanently dark, and many scary voices came from the corner.

“Looks like the ghost fetus has done something. That crazed man will not let his candidates live in happiness. He envies love and warmth the most.” Chen Ge communicated with the Pen Spirit and Xu Yin. They were unable to materialize quickly; this world was rejecting them. To Chen Ge’s consternation, compared to Jiang Ming’s world, Wu Sheng’s world rejected them even more. The resistance that the employees felt was harder.

“I need to buy some time for them.” Chen Ge did not think that the ghost fetus would hide in this world, but he could not be careless. If ghost fetus was really there, he might lose his life due to his carelessness. “The doors next to the children’s beds are all flickering. They are far from real doors. I suspect that only one of them is real, and the other eight are made by the ghost fetus to fool others.”

Taking out the hammer, Chen Ge walked down the street. Wu Sheng’s world was much bigger than Jiang Ming’s world; it included a whole street. Chen Ge took several steps when he frowned. The noises around him grew louder. They crawled into his ears like dancing bugs, and it unsettled him.

“Sometimes it’s not a good thing to have overly sensitive senses.”

Chen Ge held his breath and used his Yin Yang Vision. The darkness did not affect him too much.

“I can’t even see a shadow, so where is the sound coming from?”

He did not rush down the street. The place was complicated and windy; he could easily get lost if he was not careful. In any case, before Xu Yin and the rest could appear, Chen Ge’s goal was to survive. Pushing open the door of one of the nearest buildings, Chen Ge realized that the noises in his ears grew louder, and one of them became clear enough to be identified as crying.

“The crying is coming from this place?”

Chen Ge looked into the house. The houses in the old city were not big. Normally, they only had one to three rooms, and he soon found the source of the crying. There was a girl washing her hair in the bathroom. She was facing away from Chen Ge, and she looked to be in her teens.

“Crying while washing her hair?”

The girl collected a basin of water and placed it at the edge of the sink. She plunged her whole head into the water, and her hair was soaked in the water. The sound of water and crying were mixed together, giving off a chilling feeling. This was the first person whom Chen Ge had encountered in Wu Sheng’s world. For the sake of safety, Chen Ge gripped the hammer and slowly approached.

“This girl is alone in the room. There’s no need to be afraid of an ambush. I should make use of this chance to get to know her.”

Chen Ge moved lightly, but even so, he was discovered when he was halfway toward to the girl. The girl stopped washing her hair. Her hands were stuck in her hair as her whole person froze beside the sink. The hair was pulled back, and a pair of black eyes peeped through the gap in the curtain of hair. The girl turned around to look at Chen Ge. The head that was soaked in the basin slowly broke the surface of the water. The hair that floated in the basin was crusted with dried blood. Chen Ge only then noticed that the basin was not filled with water but blood that was drying. The blood slid down her hair and onto her clothes. The clean pink pajamas were dyed red by the blood.

“Even in Jiang Ming’s twisted world, there was no sign of fresh blood. What is going on in Wu Sheng’s world? Why’s it so gory even at the beginning?”

The girl’s face fully appeared. She had beautiful eyes, and her nose was small and cute, one that garnered a sense of protectiveness in others. Below it was her mouth. She had pretty lips, but her lips were sewn together by black threads. Chen Ge confirmed that the crying came from the girl, but the girl did not look like she was crying.

“Can you hear my voice?” It was hard to imagine what had happened to the girl from her appearance and why she would appear behind the door in this state. Chen Ge tried to communicate with her, but the girl reacted strangely. The girl’s fair hands plunged into the water and picked up a dirty cat from inside the basin. Then, like she was wringing a towel dry, she gripped the cat’s head with one hand and its body with the other and started to twist with all her might.

Tons of fresh blood squeezed out from the cat. Once the cat was dry, the girl picked up the dirty cat carcass and used it to dry her blood-soaked hair. When she was done, the girl tossed the mangled cat back into the water basin and turned to look at Chen Ge. She stared Chen Ge's mouth. Her hands entered her pockets to pull out a long bronze needle and thick black thread.

"What is she planning to do?" The girl's eyes had not left Chen Ge's lips. Holding the needle and thread, she walked toward Chen Ge. She walked faster and faster before she lunged at Chen Ge. The needle aimed at Chen Ge's mouth like she was going to sew it shut!

"You started this first!" Chen Ge was ready. He swung the hammer at the girl. The girl's shoulder caved in, but it did not affect her mobility at all. In self-defense, Chen Ge kept slamming the hammer against the girl while he tried to evade. After nine consecutive smashes, the girl temporarily lost the ability to move. She crawled on the ground, still holding onto the needle and thread.

"I haven't done anything to her—why would she suddenly attack me and want to sew up my mouth?"

Chen Ge put down the hammer. He looked at the girl on the ground and the mangled cat in the water basin, and a possibility occurred to him.

"The girl was torturing the cat and was accidentally spotted by Wu Sheng—that's why she wanted to sew up Wu Sheng's mouth so that he would not be able to reveal her secrets to anyone else."

Since he had no idea what had happened in real life, he could only make predictions based on his observation of this absurd world.

Chapter 1013 - Faceless Woman with a Red Hairclip

Chapter 1013: Faceless Woman with a Red Hairclip

A cute girl using blood to wash her hair—Chen Ge did not expect to see something like that inside Wu Sheng's world.

“Even though Wu Jinpeng has been trying his best to protect Wu Sheng, it looks like the boy has still seen many things that he shouldn't. The pressure on them was far greater than described by Wu Jinpeng.”

The girl's body was slowly recovering. Chen Ge knew that it would be difficult for him to kill her. He took away the girl's needle and thread. He closed the door and used things to block the door. He did not know whether that was useful or not, but it was worth a try. After leaving the first house, Chen Ge knew that he could not let his guard down inside Wu Sheng's world. This boy had been through a lot more than Jiang Ming; the world in his eyes was bigger and more complicated. Chen Ge had a feeling that every building on this street hid a secret. Once he entered them, he would see other secrets, and then he would be chased by others to have his lips sewn together. He did not want to enter them, but if he did not, how was he going to find Wu Sheng?

...

“Calm yourself. When Xu Yin can appear, I can explore the place further. For now, I should keep a low profile.” Chen Ge was very careful, and he was not going to take unnecessary risk. This was his experience showing after completing so many Trial Missions. Hugging the hammer, Chen Ge hid in the next alley. That way, if there was an accident, he had two exits to escape from. The plan was good, but he did not need to wait for too long for a tragedy to happen.

A woman wearing a red hairpin appeared on the other side of the street. She wandered along the street aimlessly. Occasionally, she would slip into one of the buildings, as if looking for something. Before the woman got close, Chen Ge got the warning from Xu Yin; this woman was very dangerous. She was not a Red Specter, but she gave off a dangerous presence that threatened Xu Yin, so Chen Ge had to be careful. He moved away from the woman, but the woman seemed to have targeted him because she soon appeared again.

This repeated several times until Chen Ge had no choice but to hide in one of the buildings. He rushed up to the second floor. Chen Ge leaned against the window and looked down; he was finally given a closer view of the woman. Her long, luscious black hair hid a faceless face. The woman wandered the streets for a while before leaving. She appeared to have trouble harming anyone inside the 'houses'.

Chen Ge's attention was pulled by the faceless woman when a noise grew in his ears. It was hard to describe. It sounded like a couple kissing wetly. Footsteps then came from inside the house. It was too late for Chen Ge to leave. The door was opened, and a monster with two heads appeared at the door. The monster was impeccably dressed in a western suit. It looked normal below the neck, but above the shoulders, it had two heads, one male and one female. The two heads were stuck together like they were unwilling to part.

Chen Ge glanced into the room and saw a large wedding picture placed on the headboard. The man in the picture had the same face as the monster, but the monster's female head was different from the bride in the picture.

"An extra-marital affair?" The monster's lips were also sewn tight by black thread. After they saw Chen Ge, they reacted the same way as the girl washing her hair. They took out a needle and thread from their suit pockets and charged at Chen Ge to sew his lips.

"Sewing the lips mean to keep a secret—are they afraid that I might expose them?"

The sound of wet kisses grew in his ears, and it aggravated Chen Ge. He did not mind the expression of love, but people should mind themselves when they were in public.

"Seeing how clingingly sweet you two are, for some reason, I feel the urge to smash the cr*p out of you." Chen Ge did not waste time and charged at them with the hammer.

At that moment, the door from the opposite side opened. A large man who was at least a head taller than Chen Ge ran out and grabbed Chen Ge. "Come with me!"

"Who are you?" The large man did not explain. He grabbed Chen Ge's arm and started to run downstairs. They ran down the street and hid inside another old building. The man looked buff but had strangely low stamina. They did not run for that long, but he was already dying from lack of oxygen. While the man held the wall to catch his breath, Chen Ge studied the man.

“You are... Wu Jinpeng?” When Chen Ge saw the man’s face, he was shocked. “Why are you here?”

“Do you know me?” When the man heard Chen Ge call him by his name, he was also baffled. “Have we met each other before?”

Seeing the man’s reaction, it slowly dawned on Chen Ge. This Wu Jinpeng was not the Wu Jinpeng in real life; it was one from Wu Sheng’s memory. That explained why this Wu Jinpeng was much larger and taller than the real Wu Jinpeng. In Wu Sheng’s eyes, his father was large, protective, kind, and wonderful. Jiang Ming’s father had also made an appearance in his world, but in comparison, while they were both first-time fathers, in the eyes of their children, the character of a father could not have been more different.

“Brother, what is going on in this world? Why does everyone want to sew up my lips?” Chen Ge had been in the world behind Wu Sheng’s door for some time already, and Wu Jinpeng was the first normal person that he had met and probably the only normal person that he would meet.

“I don’t know what happened to them. I went to sleep very early last night, and when I woke up, the sky was dark, and the monsters were everywhere!” Wu Jinpeng looked afraid.

“Other than monsters, have you seen anyone else?”

“No, only monsters! If you stay anywhere too long, they will come after you to sew your lips, bite your body, suck your blood, and crush you.” Wu Jinpeng’s large body was filled with wounds, and the fear in his eyes could not be hidden.

“Only monsters? Has even your family turned into monsters?” Chen Ge was confused. This was Wu Sheng’s world, but he still had not seen Wu Sheng.

When Chen Ge said that, Wu Jinpeng was stunned slightly. His mouth was hanging half open. He paused for a moment before nodding. “Yes.”

“Brother, don’t lie to me. We only have a chance of escaping this place if we are being honest with each other.” Chen Ge could see that Wu Jinpeng was lying; he definitely knew where Wu Sheng was.

“Let’s not talk about this anymore. We can’t stay here for too long.” Wu Jinpeng looked out the window. “Not good, she’s after me again!”

Chen Ge followed Wu Jinpeng’s gaze, and the faceless woman with the red hairclip had materialized out of nowhere again.

Chapter 1014 - Daddy Is Playing a Game with Them [2 in 1]

Chapter 1014: Daddy Is Playing a Game with Them [2 in 1]

“After you? Why would that woman be after you?” Chen Ge also walked to the window. The faceless woman with the red hairclip, Chen Ge noticed, had been purposely following them.

“How should I know? I don’t even know her!” Wu Jinpeng did not look like he was lying. The eyes when he saw the woman only spoke of fear—there were no other emotions mixed within.

“Why are you so afraid of this woman?” Chen Ge asked another question that he had no answer to. “Is she going to kill you? What will happen to you if she manages to catch up to you?”

...

After hearing Chen Ge’s question, it was Wu Jinpeng’s turn to use a strange gaze to study Chen Ge. “Isn’t it scary enough to be chased by a faceless woman? Brother, if she’d managed to catch up to me, do you think I’d still be able to stand here to have this conversation with you?”

“I mean, perhaps we do not need to keep avoiding her. If we do not try to understand her, we will never beat her, and being caught is just a matter of time.”

Before Chen Ge could convince Wu Jinpeng, the faceless woman had already reached the downstairs of the building that they were in. Her head that was dangling downward slowly lifted as she looked upward. The face that was devoid of all the feature seemed to be staring at Wu Jinpeng; the woman completely ignored Chen Ge who was standing next to him. The red hairclip appeared to be dripping blood. The pregnancy dress that did not fit her body dragged on the ground.

“Why are you standing there spacing out? We need to leave!” Wu Jinpeng dragged Chen Ge into the room next door. “After she comes up here, we will jump down from the window of the second floor! As long as we can disappear from her line of sight, we will be able to get a brief period of peace.”

This was not the first time that Wu Jinpeng had done something like that. His movement was practiced and familiar. The physique that was much stronger and bigger than his actual body in real life enabled him to do many high difficulty activities. It was a piece of cake for him to jump down from a second story window.

“Quick, come down now!”

Standing next to the window, Chen Ge hesitated for a small moment. But within that brief second, the door behind him suddenly started to vibrate like something was hammering against the door. He had no better idea. Chen Ge hugged the backpack and leaped out the window. He landed on both of his feet and rolled to neutralize the falling impact. Chen Ge did not have time to check the condition of the items inside the backpack to see whether they had survived the fall because he could hear Wu Jinpeng urging him to move on already. The two guys crawled up from the ground and raced toward the other side of the street as fast as they could.

“Where are we going now?”

“I really have no clue. No matter where you go, you will be chased by that monster. The only thing we can do is run as far away from her as we can. And then we will repeat this whole process when she reappears.” Wu Jinpeng answered without turning his head around. The words slipped out between hungry mouthfuls of air. He had no idea when he would be able to escape from danger. It was as if the whole world was his enemy; everywhere he turned, there was a monster, and he was being constantly chased by a faceless woman that he could not shake loose. Taking a break had become something of a luxury.

Chen Ge studied Wu Jinpeng, who had not stopped running since they met each other. Slowly but surely, Chen Ge could see this man's encounter overlapping with what had happened to the Wu Jinpeng in real life. The man should have been through this period of helplessness and hopelessness before. Every day, he woke up in panic, but with the burden of responsibility pressing on his shoulders, he was forced by life to keep on moving forward. Perhaps Wu Jinpeng in real life had all forgotten about this period of this life, but it was remembered clearly and with extreme detail by Wu Sheng.

The child was a precocious little young man. He knew many things that he should not for his age, but it did not mean that he could understand all of them. During the crucial period where his worldview was being constructed and built, he was given a false perspective by the ghost fetus, and something within him changed. There was a connection between the world behind the children's doors and the real life; one could find incidents or actual people behind their doors that corresponded to real life. This should be the unifying factor that was unique to all the worlds behind the doors of the nine children.

If Chen Ge had to guess, the doors of the nine children had all been influenced by the ghost fetus. Following behind Wu Jinpeng, carrying the backpack, Chen Ge's mind was clocking in overtime. With the evidence that he had collected so far, it was basically a confirmed fact that every child corresponded to a door, and the door would only appear after the child had fallen asleep. But of the nine children, Chen Ge was the only exception because if there was a door that appeared beside his bed after he fell asleep, Xiaoxiao and the white cat would have reacted to it a long time ago.

However, the lack of a door by his bed did not mean that one could exclude Chen Ge from the nine children because he had a real blood door within his vicinity. Compared to the other children's flickering doors, the door in the toilet of Chen Ge's haunted house was an actual blood door.

"Does this mean I will have to go into that door to take a look?" Chen Ge thought back to a moment in time when he believed he was confronted with three different doors. "One of them should belong to the ghost fetus, the second probably belongs to the version of myself who is being killed again and again by the doctor, and who does the last door belong to?"

"Hasn't it already been proven that the door will only appear and be pushed open when one is at the deepest point of their despair? Is it possible that I have pushed open the third door myself? Am I the door pusher for the door inside the toilet of the haunted house?"

Even though he had multiple Red Specters with him, Chen Ge did not have the courage to enter that door. He still remembered what Doctor Gao had told him at the underground morgue.

"It has to be hiding something extremely scary to be able to scare Doctor Gao." Chen Ge decided to reserve the door at his haunted house for the last night. If the ghost fetus was not hiding inside the other eight candidates, this was the only possibility that remained. He knew that the chance of the ghost fetus hiding behind the door at this haunted house was very low. After all, the ghost fetus' main territory was Eastern Jiujiang, and all the spirits and ghosts that had interacted with the ghost fetus before had said that he had treated Western Jiujiang as some kind of restricted area. Chen Ge did not believe that the ghost fetus would take the risk to sneak behind the door at his haunted house.

“There are no clues, and nothing appears to help bring me closer to the truth.” Chen Ge sighed under his breath. “Just what were the emotions of the person who first pushed open that door?”

To chase these thoughts that currently had no answer, Chen Ge turned to look behind him. The faceless woman was still chasing after them, but she was not moving fast. In fact, from the way she looked, it did not look like she was determined to kill Wu Jinpeng; she did not seem to even bear a grudge against him. With Wu Jinpeng leading the way, Chen Ge ran through all the nearby streets, and he became more and more confident that this was the old city.

“Wu Sheng must have spent a part of his childhood in the old city. Something that he refused to remember once happened here, and because of that incident, his whole family moved to Western Jiujiang.”

Wu Sheng’s world behind the door comprised several streets; it was probably one-fifth the size of the actual old city. There were limited locations where they could hide themselves. To avoid the faceless woman, they would have to enter the rooms on both side of the street, but entering the house might push them into encounters with the monsters inside the houses. They kept moving and running. Eventually, some of the monsters came out from their houses and joined the chase.

“Just what do we have to do to escape this place?” The terror in Wu Jinpeng’s eyes was practicing overflowing. When his large body turned and saw the horde of monsters chasing after them, he started to shiver.

“We have already run all over these few streets on the eastern side. How about we move to the western side? Perhaps we can find a place to hide there.”

After following Wu Jinpeng for some time, Chen Ge had noticed that no matter what kind of danger they were in, Wu Jinpeng would not head toward the western side. He had been avoiding the streets on the western side on purpose.

“No way!” Wu Jinpeng denied it directly. The swiftness with which he answered the question added to Chen Ge's suspicion.

"It's okay then, I will follow your instruction." Chen Ge had a fairly good guess as to why the man refused to go that way. He could empathize with what the man was trying to do.

"As long as we can hold on until dawn, there should be no more problems. I am sure by then everyone will return to normal," Wu Jinpeng said to convince and console Chen Ge, or perhaps it was for his own benefit. "After the night passes, the sun will rise."

"Yes, you are right. Eventually, the sun will rise." Chen Ge patted Wu Jinpeng on his shoulder. "Since we can't go to the western side, I suggest we try to find an exit on the eastern side."

"Okay." Wu Jinpeng just gave his promise when a string of urgent dog barking came from the western streets. Hearing that sound, Wu Jinpeng's face shifted dramatically. Pushing away all the warnings that he had made earlier, he immediately rushed toward the western streets.

"What happened?" Chen Ge quickly moved to follow the man. With his Yin Yang Vision, even over that much distance, he could see several figures standing on the western streets. "Do not go there!"

Chen Ge reacted as fast as he could, but he still failed to stop Wu Jinpeng. Without a care for the world, he charged into an alley on the western streets. There was an old, dilapidated looking storage room at the end of the small alley. Wearing a pair of shirt that did not fit him, a pair of beautiful eyes blinked continuously. They seemed to take in everything that they saw curiously. Seeing the child unharmed, Wu Jinpeng sighed greatly in relief. He signaled for Chen Ge, and with the child, they went to hide inside the small house.

"Daddy, Big Huang has run out," the boy said in a small whisper. It appeared like he was normally quite a reticent child.

"You stay at home. I promise that I will bring Big Huang back." Wu Jinpeng touched the boy on his head. The terror and fear that characterized the man earlier had completely disappeared. His eyes were warm and kind; the only thing out of place was the quick breathing.

"Okay." The boy nodded obediently. When the father and son spoke, the whimpering of the dog appeared again, and this time, it sounded very close to them. Other than the sound of the dog barking, the sound of a crowd started to gather. Various unsettling and uncomfortable noises drilled into Chen Ge's ears.

"Where does this stray come from? What if it bites someone? Is no one going to look after it!"

"My family still has a small child. What if he is harmed by the stray! Who will be responsible?"

"Get the hell away, you blasted dog! I do not have time for you!"

"Beat it! My mom said that all strays carry disease with them! We need to chase it away!"

Initially, Chen Ge thought that only he could hear these voices, but when he turned around, he realized that both Wu Jinpeng and the boy were able to hear them as well because Wu Jinpeng had used his hands to cover both of the boy's ears. The smile still lingered on his face as he pulled the boy into his light embrace.

"Daddy, they are beating Big Huang. They said that Big Huang is a stray, but he is not."

"Don't you worry about that. I will go and rescue Big Huang now. You just stay here and do not move." Wu Jinpeng then gripped Wu Sheng's hands to have the latter cover his own ears. "Close your eyes, and I promise, when you open your eyes, Big Huang will be here with you again."

"Really?"

"Of course, when have I lied to you before?"

After Wu Sheng shut his ears and closed his eyes, Wu Jinpeng finally stood up.

"You are not seriously considering going there, are you?" With his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge saw clearly that there were around ten figures standing on the street.

"I have made the promise to my son." Wu Jinpeng pushed open the wooden board that acted as the door. "Brother, can you do me a favor?"

"What kind of favor?"

"I will go and distract their attention, and after I have lured all of them away, I need you sneak in to rescue Big Huang.”

“No problem.”

Wu Jinpeng and Chen Ge jogged out of the small house one after another. Wu Jinpeng, who led the way, did not turn back. However, behind him, Chen Ge turned back to look into the small house. The boy was still following his father’s instructions. He had his hands over his eyes and his eyes clamped shut. The sound of cursing and scolding became louder and louder. Big Huang was whimpering for help. It was being surrounded by a mob of people. They planned to beat Big Huang to its death right there on the street.

“Don’t let it get away!”

“Go after it!”

“This stray sure runs fast for what it is!”

“Where are you going now that we have already broken your leg?”

“Rummaging through the trash every day to look for food, the strays are all carriers of disease! Stop playing around. Quick, go ahead and kill it!”

Many voices crawled into Chen Ge’s ears. They sounded extremely grating. They were not human noises; they were more like knives.

“Stop!” The disfigured shadows moved out of the way, and Wu Jinpeng saw Big Huang, who was covered in threads, cowering on the ground. His eyes turned red immediately. “Big Huang is not a stray! He is my dog! He has never injured anyone, and he would never go through the trash to look for food!”

After they heard Wu Jinpeng, the shadows turned around to look at him. The cold and lifeless eyes fell on Wu Jinpeng, but they did not seem to care what he had to say. The threads continued to sew through Big Huang’s body. “I swear I will look after him! My son always plays with him. He has never been injured by the dog before. Big Huang is the most obedient pet you could have ever wanted. Please return him to me.”

From the intensity to the tone of the voice, everything he said sounded real and authentic. It was as if Wu Jinpeng had said something similar in real life and Wu Sheng had memorized it word for word.

“Give it back to you? How could a homeless man like yourself guarantee that this b*stard will not injure other people? If you are so free, you’d better take better care of yourself first before you come to mind other people’s business.”

“This has to be a joke. You said this is your dog. Well, if the pet of a homeless man is not a stray, what is it?”

“Yes, the man himself probably rummages through the trash to look for food, much less his dog.”

The voices became sharper and ruder. Wu Jinpeng’s body kept shaking, but he tried to reason as rationally as he could. “My boy is not in a good condition. The dog is his only companion. For us, the dog is more than a pet—he is part of our family.”

“This can’t be real. You have a son? What, bringing a child around will garner more pity when you go begging for money?”

“By the way, listen to this. If the dog of a homeless man is a stray, what is the child of a homeless man? Could it be a street child? That’s just too much!”

“My boy is not a street child!” Both of Wu Jinpeng’s arms were shaking. His eyes were burning with fire as he picked up the random objects around him and threw them at the group of people. “As long as I am alive, the dog that I own is not a stray, and my child will never end up as a street child!”

The figures turned to focus their hatred on Wu Jinpeng. All the monsters’ lips were sewn shut, but for some reason, even though their mouths were unable to make any noise, the grating voices did not disappear. After they were attacked, the monsters collectively took out the large needles and black threads from their pockets and rushed at Wu Jinpeng like a wave. According to the plan, Wu Jinpeng would lure the mob away, and that was the time for Chen Ge to sneak out from the other side to come and rescue Big Huang.

Big Huang’s body was sewn with threads. Blood leaked out from the wounds on various parts of his body. The dog had been beaten to death while he was alive. This Big Huang was slightly different from the dog that Chen Ge had seen at Wu Jinpeng’s house in real life. If this was all real, or at least had really happened in the past, then the Big Huang in real life was probably the second pet that Wu Jinpeng had taken in. Carrying the dog that had already passed away in his arms, Chen Ge lifted his head to look at the small house. The boy inside the house was still holding his hands over his ears, but both of his eyes were wide open. He had witnessed everything. The pair of eyes that seemed to be curious about everything lingered persistently on the dog within Chen Ge's embrace.

"This is too traumatic for a child his age to witness." Chen Ge did not know what to do. It would be too cruel for the boy if he returned with the mangled carcass of the dog. Even though this was the world behind the door, he did not wish for the boy to relive that trauma and despair one more time. "A boy who is still too young to really comprehend the meaning of death had to witness one before his eyes in this kind of manner?"

Chen Ge placed Big Huang's body inside his backpack and then carried the backpack in both hands into the small house.

"Where is Big Huang?" The boy lifted his head to look up at Chen Ge.

"He was getting a little bit sleepy, so he went down for a rest."

Several seconds later, rushed footsteps came from the alley. Wu Jinpeng pushed open the wooden door. "I have temporarily lost them. In a minute, I will lure all of them to the eastern streets."

"I will go with you. I worry that you need to deal with so many of them alone."

"That would be immensely helpful, thankful." Wu Jinpeng tossed an appreciative gaze at Chen Ge. As he was about to leave, the boy reached forward to grab at the corner of his shirt.

"Daddy, why are those people chasing after you?" The boy looked at Wu Jinpeng with his pair of innocent eyes.

"Daddy is playing hide and seek with them. Would you like to play with us as well?" Wu Jinpeng ruffled the boy's hair lovingly.

"Yes!"

"Then you should hide inside that wooden box and try to not make any noise. You will win if you stay put and don't come out of the box. Do you understand me?"

"Understood." The small boy jumped into the box and curled up inside the corner of the box.

Wu Jinteng pinched the boy on the tip of his nose. “You cheeky little thing, make sure that you are not spotted by the other people. Wait until I come back to get you.”

Chapter 1015 - Private Hospital on the Street Corner

Chapter 1015: Private Hospital on the Street Corner

“You’re going to leave him like that and make him stay here alone?” Chen Ge did not think letting Wu Sheng stay inside the small house alone was a good idea.

“This is my doing. I will lead them away. The child is innocent. I can’t put him through this pain.” Wu Jinpeng closed the lid of the wooden box and ran out. Chen Ge watched Wu Jinpeng run out and turned back to look at Wu Sheng. The boy stayed inside the box with his hands over his mouth. He did not say a word, only staring quietly at his father’s receding figure.

“Has the boy not said a word because his father told him so?” Chen Ge felt like he had missed something. “Never mind, as long as I follow Wu Jinpeng, the problems will be solved.”

...

In Wu Sheng’s eyes, he was a child under his father’s protection. He noticed the problems faced by the family, but he was just a child; he was powerless to change anything. He could only see his father shoulder the whole ginormous pressure. Chen Ge worried that if he stayed there for too long, he might expose Wu Sheng’s location, so he closed the door and hurried after Wu Jinpeng.

The night sky had no moon. The buildings on both sides of the street gave off a light stench, and the atmosphere was suffocating. Wu Jinpeng rushed ahead; he had no idea what awaited him, but he had no other choice. To prevent his dog from being treated as a stray, to protect his son from the monsters, he could only keep moving forward.

“Other than the neighbors, the monsters who had their lips sewn should represent the various difficulties that this family has faced.” There were more monsters chasing behind Wu Jinpeng. They were dressed differently; there were well-dressed office workers and the homeless in tattered shirts. There were thieves with knives and others who were dressed normally like passersby that you would meet on the road.

Under the influence of ghost fetus, the condescension, bullying, and derision was maliciously amplified. Chen Ge did not dare to imagine what would have happened to Wu Sheng if Wu Jinpeng did not exist in this world. If such a small child had been forced to face so many scary monsters alone, Chen Ge suspected that Wu Sheng would have submerged fully into this despairing world and become the ghost fetus' top candidate. "Thankfully, he has such a great father. Wu Jinpeng is the only light in this dark world."

Racing down the dark, endless street, being chased with monsters with sewn lips, with no exit in sight, Wu Jinpeng still tried his best to come up with a solution.

"I suppose this is the resilience of human nature." The children selected by the ghost fetus had been lured into despair for them to open the fake doors, but the worlds behind those doors were different from real life. As despairing as the children were, there would be some source of light.

In Jiang Ming's world, the light was his mother and the old lady, and in Wu Sheng's world, there was Wu Jinpeng. In their memories, there was always a temporary sanctuary. Running behind Wu Jinpeng, Chen Ge gained a new understanding of certain things. When he first got the black phone, he discovered the door in his haunted house. At the time, he had only feared the door; it was normal for humans to be afraid of the unknown. But as his understanding grew, Chen Ge's perspective of the door changed.

The doors were pushed open by people in despair. The other side of the door was not salvation but an abyss of deeper despair. The doors were sinful. Chen Ge initially refused to get close to the door, but after being forced by the Ghost Stories Society, when his life was threatened, he had been left with no other choice. After multiple interactions, he had realized that the doors themselves did not represent fear, and they could not be equated to despair.

He would not follow the Ghost Stories Society's footsteps of controlling the doors and gaining benefit from them. But subconsciously, his negative impression of the doors had slowly dissipated.

During the School of the Afterlife, Chen Ge had met the painter behind the door. That madman wanted to create a heaven behind the door, constructing a place of heaven in a land of hell. Ultimately, the painter failed, but what he did once again shook Chen Ge's impression of the doors and the worlds behind it. However, the thing that really changed Chen Ge's mind was the incident at Jiang Yuan Apartments. When he saw his young self being pushed off the roof by the man in the doctor's outfit, when he heard the words that he had once said, his perspective of the door really started to change.

"Perhaps the worlds behind the doors for the children were not so different from real life. There might be light in the worlds behind the doors..." Chen Ge watched Wu Jinpeng and the various monsters who chased after him. "The light in the child's world is being chased by many monsters. If there's light behind a real door, they get chased by something darker and scarier. What would the light look like inside an actual door?"

His parents' image crossed his mind. Chen Ge was suddenly reminded of something that happened a long time ago. He took out the wooden toy that had been stolen by the ghost fetus from his backpack.

"My father gave me this when I was in bed. He wished me happy birthday. But that morning, he had already presented me with the present and wished me happy birthday. There was no reason for him to repeat it, and he did not exactly give me the present; he merely placed it next to the bed." More details came to Chen Ge. "Was the present originally meant for the shadow?"

Looking at the bloodied toy in his hand, Chen Ge slowed down. "Was this the shadow's birthday present? The second happy birthday was meant for the shadow? Could it be that he'd already noticed something by then but neither me nor the shadow had noticed it?"

"Don't just stand there! Run!" Wu Jinpeng was running out of air, but seeing that Chen Ge had slowed down, he still returned to pull on his sleeves. "Do not stop! I know where we can shake them off!"

Wu Jinpeng led Chen Ge to an alley on western street; there was a private hospital there. It was not that big, and the decor was old fashioned. But as small as it was, it had everything it needed to serve the public.

"The hospital has a backdoor. I ran through this place to shake them off last time. Those things do not dare come in here."

"Doesn't that mean that there is something scarier than them inside this hospital?"

“We’ll go in first.”

Without saying anything else, Wu Jinpeng led Chen Ge into the hospital. After the monsters saw that, they really stopped in the alley. After entering the hospital, the many different voices in Chen Ge’s ears disappeared, and what was left was the sound of children crying.

Chapter 1016 - Do You Still Hate Me?

Chapter 1016: Do You Still Hate Me?

The children's crying came from all directions, making it impossible to locate the source.

"Brother Peng, don't you think this crying is a bit familiar?"

With his Ghost Ear, Chen Ge held his breath and listened closely. After a while, he discovered with some shock that one of the children's crying was similar to Wu Sheng.

...

But isn't he hiding back in the small house?

Chen Ge did not get it. He turned to Wu Jinpeng. The large man's body was shaking. He was pushed by the monsters to his limit. Be it physically or mentally, he was about to collapse. His chest rising and falling violently, Wu Jinpeng leaned against the hospital wall. His eyes were bloodshot, and they were horribly swollen.

"Are you okay?" When they were running earlier, Chen Ge did not notice this. He subconsciously thought that Wu Jinpeng was as fit as he was in reality, but that was of course not the case.

"Come, we'll go to the backdoor."

Scared of staying any longer, after entering the hospital, Wu Jinpeng acted rather strangely. It was as if something had happened to him the last time he was there, and he was seriously traumatized by it. If not for the lack of choice, he probably would not have returned there.

The crying grew louder, and the voice that sounded like Wu Sheng's was slowly overwhelmed by other voices. Chen Ge noted that as he followed behind Wu Jinpeng silently. The hospital was small, but it had all the necessary medical rooms. From the appearance, the place looked normal. It was a common small city hospital. There was nothing scary about it. Walking down the deserted corridor, Wu Jinpeng led Chen Ge to the corner of the stair. By then, the crying had reached a level that was uncomfortable to one's ears.

“Do you see the window at the corner up the stairs? If you jump through it, you’ll end up on the western street. That way, we can shake the monsters loose.”

However, Wu Jinpeng did not move. His eyes were filled with terror. This made Chen Ge realize that things were not that simple.

“Brother, pay attention to me. When we go up the stairs, no matter what you hear or see, do not stop. Rush all the way to the window, understood?” Wu Jinpeng warned. “If the backpack is weighing you down, I can carry it for you. After we get to the stairs, we have to run as fast as we can to the window!”

“It’s alright. I’ve been known as a fast runner since I was small.” Wu Jinpeng and Chen Ge stood before the stairs. They were ready. After exchanging a look, they moved together toward the window. Footsteps echoed on the stairs. When he took the first step, Chen Ge still had not felt anything, but as he continued to move forward, the children’s crying was like a waterfall crashing into his eyes. His brain was swamped by the crying, dazing him in the process.

“Do not stop!” Obviously, Wu Jinpeng had experienced this before. At this crucial moment, the man still cared about Chen Ge and shouted to warn him. The crying grew louder, and the ground under his feet wobbled like he was not stepping on concrete steps. Chen Ge lowered his head to look and saw many small hands reaching out from the ground to grab his feet. The empty stairwell was suddenly crawling with faceless babies.

As experienced as Chen Ge was with the supernatural, he hesitated for a moment. He instinctually avoided the babies and chose the empty spaces to place his feet. The sound of a door opening came from the second floor. When Chen Ge looked up, a red wave rushed out from the second floor, rushing at Chen Ge and Wu Jinpeng.

“Jump out the window! Do not stop!”

Chen Ge was the first to reach the window. By the time he pushed the window open, the blood wave had reached them. At that moment, he could jump out, but if he did, Wu Jinpeng would definitely be swept away by the wave.

“Grab my hand!” When Chen Ge said that, the wave was cresting. Soon, it swallowed both Chen Ge and Wu Jinpeng. The blood rushed into this nose and blocked his breathing. Pain erupted all over his body.

Chen Ge forced his eyes open, and at the last moment, Wu Jinpeng grabbed at Chen Ge's backpack. The blood surged endlessly from the second floor. Other than the sound of children crying, there was a second voice that appeared. It was the whispering of a woman.

"Run while you can! Don't mind me!" Wu Jinpeng was swept by the wave until he could barely stand. He knew that this was probably his end.

"There is still chance. Think of your son!"

When Chen Ge turned around to speak, a woman with a red hairclip appeared at the corner of the second floor. She wore a loose-fitted pregnancy gown, and her faceless face was staring at Wu Jinpeng. The woman's whispers became clearer. Like a curse or a venomous snake, they crawled into the two men's heads.

"Jin Peng, don't you recognize me anymore?"

"Am I a bad mother?"

"Do you hate me?"

"The boy didn't even know how to cry when he was born, but is that my fault?"

"If he was a normal child, I would never do that, but you heard the doctor. The boy was too special. We won't be able to take care of him. If he is given the chance to grow, he will only become a monster that everyone hates."

"If he was a normal child, I would really stay to take care of him with you."

"But he is not a normal child. I can't do this anymore. My life has just started. I do not want such a baggage to ruin my life."

"Wu Jinpeng, why don't you come with me? We should run away together."

"Don't think I'm being selfish. We have been through so much. Is what I am asking too much?"

"Even if he grows up, do you think he will really find happiness?"

"Do you want him to end up like your little brother?"

“You know that you will one day grow old, and then who will take care of your brother? Who will take care of this child?”

“Instead of trapping yourself with all these responsibilities, why not come with me and live for yourself for once?”

“The man in my eyes is a bird that flies freely in the air, so... come fly with me.”

The woman's empty face was slowly changing. She waded through the blood and suddenly appeared before Wu Jinpeng. The pale hands broke through the blood as they moved to caress Wu Jinpeng's face.

“Bliss, happiness, desire, freedom, I am everything you seek, so why do you refuse to give me your hand?”

The woman leaned lightly next to Wu Jinpeng and had Wu Jinpeng lean his head on her. “I have never asked for anything from you. This is the first time. Promise me that we will leave together.”

Wu Jinpeng turned to the woman, and the featureless face became blurrier and blurrier. His eyes slowly lost their shine, and he stopped struggling as if he was being hypnotized by the woman's words. The hands that grabbed Chen Ge's backpack slowly loosened. Wu Jinpeng's body was slowly swallowed by the blood. Just as Chen Ge thought that Wu Jinpeng was a lost cause, the father who was almost two meters tall in Wu Sheng's eyes reached out to grab the faceless woman's shoulders.

“Quick, go get Wu Sheng and run!”

Chapter 1017 - Let the World Hear Your Voice

Chapter 1017: Let the World Hear Your Voice

Wu Jinpeng ignored the blood that might choke him. He screamed loudly like this was his last chance. Realizing that Wu Jinpeng had not been influenced by her words, the faceless woman was incensed. Black blood capillaries bulged on the woman's pale arms as she reached out to strangle Wu Jinpeng.

"Why? Why do you still wish to protect him? I have given you everything you could ask for! Why do you volunteer to stay with despair!"

A face slowly appeared on the woman. It was not a woman's face but the face of a baby boy.

...

"The ghost fetus?"

"Why can't I kill you! I am the only one who really wants to help you! Why do you all insist on lying to yourselves! Why do you all believe those things that do not exist!"

The woman snapped Wu Jinpeng's neck, but she could not kill him. Wu Jinpeng, who was dying, waved anxiously at Chen Ge. He could not make a voice, but he tried to open his lips, attempting to speak. The woman's face had taken on the form of a baby. Her mouth was wide open, but her eyes were closed, like it was a ginormous effort to open them. Her dress was dyed red by blood. This monster was obviously more powerful than the snail behind Jiang Ming's door.

Chen Ge finally understood everything.

"Wu Sheng was born with a disability. He was abandoned by his mother because of it. That was the hurdle that the boy couldn't get over. The ghost fetus used this to his advantage to spread his malice, trying to trap the boy within the abyss of despair.

"However, the ghost fetus miscalculated. Wu Sheng has a very good father. No matter what happens, Wu Sheng will be protected by his father. From Wu Jinpeng, Wu Sheng understood that the world was not as despairing as depicted by the ghost fetus. The ghost fetus couldn't kill Wu Sheng's father because he was unable to change Wu Sheng's impression of Wu Jinpeng."

Chen Ge did not run. He looked at the crazed woman.

"It's rather surprising that a demon god has been pushed to such lengths by a normal human father."

After understanding everything, Chen Ge understood the knot in Wu Sheng's heart and the key was he had found the ghost that the ghost fetus chose to possess.

"There is no need for this world to exist anymore. After killing this woman, I should be able to decrease the ghost fetus' power further."

Clicking on the recorder, Chen Ge took several steps back.

"Compared to the snail, this woman is much scarier. Wu Sheng's world behind the world was also more stable than Jiang Ming's. Looks like there are differences between the nine doors."

Standing in the pool of blood, Chen Ge took out the comic. The crying and whispering gradually weakened, replaced by shrill screams and heart-breaking wails.

Red cracks spread through the walls and floor. The woman standing in the blood finally noticed Chen Ge. She put down the mangled Wu Jinpeng, the poor man who had been tortured but still had a breath in him, and walked toward Chen Ge. An adult woman with a baby's face, it was quite scary, but Chen Ge felt no fear. As more Red Specters appeared, the woman stopped.

"Brother Peng! Wake up, this place is going to the dumps. The sun will rise soon!"

Xu Yin, Ol' Bai, and the Stench had appeared first and jumped at the woman. The woman fought evenly with the three Red Specters. To Chen Ge's surprise, the woman had an exception control over the blood. She seemed to be able to multitask very well.

"Get her!" More and more Red Specters appeared. After the red high heels joined the fray, the woman finally reached her limits. She kept cursing, but the battle was decided. The blood under her control was spread thin, and the baby's eyes opened a slit at the last moment. "I will kill you! No matter who you are, I will kill you!"

The woman dissolved into blood mist. The blood disappeared, and what remained was a child's tooth covered in black blood.

"Killing is illegal. To stop you from straying from the good path, I could only try my best to stop you." Chen Ge walked over to the tooth and realized that the tooth had words carved into it—"Is this my tooth?"

He was about to pick it up when the tooth suddenly disappeared into his shadow. His hand hung in the air, leaving Chen Ge startled.

"Zhang Ya?"

The world behind Wu Sheng's door was about to collapse. Chen Ge could not stay for long. Carrying the backpack and Wu Jinpeng, they ran to the small house where Wu Sheng was hiding.

"Brother, put me down, I was just reminded of many things."

"We'll talk after we leave this place."

They rushed to the small house, and Chen Ge and Wu Jinpeng entered the room.

"Wu Sheng?" Wu Jinpeng smoothed down his clothes and opened the wooden box. Wu Sheng was still inside, covering his mouth with his hands. "The game is over. You don't need to be afraid of your voice attracting the monsters or bad people anymore. From now on, you can say anything you want. I want the world to hear your voice, okay?"

He picked up Wu Sheng from the box. "Today, we're finally moving."

With the protection of the Red Specters, the group reached the end of the western streets. Many cracks appeared on the sealed iron door.

"It's time for us to leave." Chen Ge looked at Wu Jinpeng. The large and muscular man put Wu Sheng down and then bent down to pull Wu Sheng into a tight hug. "The thing I am proudest of in my life is having you as my son. Go now. You do not belong here. This place shouldn't hold you back."

The broken iron door was pushed open. Wu Jinpeng nudged Wu Sheng toward Chen Ge. As the world started to collapse, so did Wu Jinpeng's body. Summoning back the Red Specters, Chen Ge held Wu Sheng's hand and stepped through the black door.

Bang!

His knees knocked against the side of the bed. Chen Ge, who carried the backpack, tripped over, and he collapsed onto the single bed. The flickering door disappeared, and a familiar voice came from the darkness.

“Brother? You, huh? Where did you come from?”

The lamp was turned around. Feeling the light on him, Wu Jinpeng was staring at Chen Ge in bed with his mouth open. Wu Sheng, who had been sound asleep, also opened his eyes. Perhaps because he was being pressed down by Chen Ge or he was reminded of something, when he saw Wu Jinpeng, he started to cry. The crying was loud, so loud that the neighbors could hear him clearly.

“Oh, don’t cry. The uncle did not mean to collapse on you...” Wu Jinpeng was confounded. Wu Sheng had been born with problematic voice chords. He would not cry when he was born. His face was often green, supposedly from all the words that he held in. Wu Jinpeng did not expect the child that could not cry since he was young, the child who was declared abnormal by the doctors, would suddenly cry that day, and he was crying so loudly.

“Go give your boy a hug. He has seen too many things, and those things have been corroding his heart.” Chen Ge hugged his knees and sat at the corner. He did not interrupt Wu Jinpeng and Wu Sheng.

Chapter 1018 - Fifth Living Employee

Chapter 1018: Fifth Living Employee

Wu Sheng sat next to Wu Jinpeng and kept crying as if he was making up for the tears that he had been holding in all these years. His small hands gripped Wu Jinpeng's clothes, and his face was scrunched up in pain. He wanted to say something, but his voice was overwhelmed by his crying.

"It's only a nightmare. Everything's fine now. I am here." Wu Jinpeng hugged Wu Sheng and patted him lightly on his back. The father and son embraced each other, and Chen Ge sighed in relief. He rubbed his knees and slowly walked out. When he pulled back the curtain, the black phone vibrated. Chen Ge took it out to read the latest message.

"You have completed 2/9 of the Ghost Fetus Trial Mission. The ghost fetus can no longer curse you through your voice. Red Specters' Favored, you do not have much time left!"

...

"A curse can be inflicted through my voice? Meaning he only needs to hear me speak to curse me? That is such a powerful ability!"

In Chen Ge's experience, curses needed a medium. To curse a person, one needed their hair, fingernails, or clothes, but the message on the black phone corrected his misunderstanding. The ghost fetus only needed to hear his voice to curse him. However, this must only be the tip of the iceberg. As a demon god, the ghost fetus must have more power than this. Even with the protection of the Red Specters, Chen Ge felt not so safe.

"The ghost fetus has too many ways to hurt me. I might get harmed without even knowing it. No wonder the black phone claims that once the ghost fetus is born, I will definitely die."

The crying inside the bedroom woke up Wu Kun, who was sleeping in the living room. He hugged the broken fan and looked at Chen Ge with fear. Initially, Chen Ge did not mind it, but the man did not stop staring at him, to the point Chen Ge felt quite unsettled.

"Why are you looking at me like this? Do you see something on me?"

Hearing Chen Ge's voice, Wu Jinpeng's brother grabbed the thin blanket to cover his head. He was at the verge of tears. Wu Kun was eight years younger than Wu Jinpeng. Being treated like this by a man over thirty, Chen Ge felt quite uncomfortable.

"Are you afraid of me?" Chen Ge walked toward Wu Kun.

Before he got near, Wu Kun extended his two shaking hands. "The fan, the fan..."

Wu Kun held the broken fan with both hands, as he knelt on the ground with his shaking body.

"You want to give me the fan?" Chen Ge sat down before Wu Kun. When he was about to take the fan, he saw the wounds on Wu Kun's arms. "Something does not feel right. Why does he keep mentioning fan? What is he trying to express? Now that I think about it, I did not encounter Wu Kun behind Wu Sheng's door. As his father's younger brother, it's impossible that Wu Sheng has no impression of him."

Chen Ge returned the fan to Wu Kun. After a long time, Wu Kun finally calmed down.

"Tell me, what are you so afraid of?"

Before Wu Kun could answer, the curtain was pulled back. Wu Jinpeng switched the bedside lamp off.

"How is Wu Sheng?"

"He fell asleep after he tired himself out crying." Wu Jinpeng's eyes were puffy, too. He stood before Chen Ge. "Brother, the biggest wish in my life is that Wu Sheng can grow up like a normal child, and I have already prepared to take care of him forever... thank you."

"Brother Peng, to be honest, you're the reason Wu Sheng could make this recovery." Chen Ge planned to employ Wu Jinpeng, so he did not hide too many things. "What I'm going to say next, you can choose to not believe me, but I ask that you do not tell anyone else."

"Don't worry, you have my word."

"Behind that door is a despairing, gory, and eerie world. After Wu Sheng falls asleep every night, he is trapped inside that world. Such a small child has to face all sorts of monsters alone." Chen Ge lowered his voice. "As a self-defense mechanism, he conjured up a version of you in his dream. The dream version of yourself is no different from you in real life; you have been trying your best to protect him. It is because of you that he did not lose himself and his soul to the demon.”

“Wait, you’re suddenly giving me too much information. Let me process it first.” After a moment’s silence, Wu Jinpeng suddenly pinched himself. “Then, doesn’t that mean that if I went into the door sooner, Wu Sheng would have been spared from the torture earlier?”

“Not anyone can enter that door. If a normal person enters it, they will most likely be unable to return.”

When Chen Ge turned to Wu Jinpeng, he narrowed his pupils as he used Yin Yang Vision. Wu Jinpeng wilted under Chen Ge’s gaze. He felt like he was staring at a dead person’s eyes.

“Are you afraid?”

“A little bit.” Wu Jinpeng nodded honestly. This handsome man was obedient like a child before Chen Ge.

“I lied to you earlier. I told you that there was a child of my relative that was like Wu Sheng, but that was a lie to get close to you.” Chen Ge put down the backpack and sighed. “In reality, there is no relative in this story. The child that has the same condition as Wu Sheng is me.”

“You?” Wu Jinpeng was baffled. “But you look so normal.”

“I grew up normally like other children because I have parents that love me dearly. They’ve entered a door for me.” Chen Ge slowly lowered his head. “But they have not returned from that door. I haven’t been able to find them.”

“Is that why you have been looking for doors? To see if you can find them behind the doors?” Wu Jinpeng’s eyes became red again. He could empathize with Chen Ge. “Brother, if you don’t mind, let me help you in your endeavor! I’m sure you’ll need a hand. And you helped me save Wu Sheng. I have to repay you somehow!”

“That’s unnecessary. I came here due to my selfish reason. I just wanted to see whether my parents might be behind Wu Sheng’s door.”

“No matter what, it’s the truth that you’ve saved Wu Sheng! Brother, don’t make me beg you!” Wu Jinpeng pleaded.

“Fine, looks like I can’t win this argument.” Chen Ge raised his head. “My real occupation is the owner of a haunted house. Do you know what that is?”

“I used to visit them when I was a child. Now that I think about it, I’ve visited quite a number of them.” Wu Jinpeng appeared quite interested.

“Brother Peng, where do you work now, and how much you earn a month?”

“If you include the overtime, I get paid about four thousand a month, but with the current economy, I don’t know how long that’ll last. I’ve been hearing rumors of an imminent culling.”

“How about this? Come and work for me at my haunted house. I’ll pay you four thousand as a basic salary and a bonus at the end of the month.” Chen Ge’s haunted house desperately needed living employees, and most of the time, one employee had to take on more than one role. Chen Ge had no choice. His haunted house was too unique, and he would only hire actual people that he had one hundred percent confidence in.

“That is too much. I was planning to help you, but now you’ve turned around and helped me with my work problem. You’re being too kind to me.” Wu Jinpeng shook his head.

“After all, you have seen the ‘door’, that makes communication of certain things much easier. Other than that, you have a wonderful personality. I’m sure you’ll mix well with the other employees.” Chen Ge admired Wu Jinpeng greatly. This father who had been through who knew how much had a loving heart and a tough soul.

Chapter 1019 - Bad Neighbour From the Old City

Chapter 1019: Bad Neighbour From the Old City

“You don’t need to worry about me making friends. I’ve always been friendly with my colleagues, but you can pay me according to how you’d pay an intern. At least let me prove myself before you hire me officially,” Wu Jinpeng said sincerely.

“I do not hire interns, or rather, the internship period is very short. Normally, I can tell whether a person is suitable for the job or not with one glance.” Chen Ge’s haunted house only had one new employee ceremony, and that was to go through all the scenarios with the visitors once. If they could come out with their consciousness somewhat still intact, they could stay and work.

“Okay, then after I send Wu Sheng to school tomorrow, I’ll quit my current job. Due to this economy, I doubt they will ask me to stay. I’ll head to our haunted house in the afternoon. By the way, where is it?”

...

“Western Jiujiang’s New Century Park.” Chen Ge looked at Wu Jinpeng. This was the fifth living employee that he had hired. Whether he expanded into Xin Hai or anything else, Wu Jinpeng should come in handy. The shadows would be handled by the ghosts, and the living would work under the sunlight; a good haunted house had to function on both fronts. Now that Wu Jinpeng was officially a part of the haunted house, he was Chen Ge’s family, and Chen Ge always had time for his family.

“Brother Peng, I have one last thing to ask you.” Chen Ge stood up and walked to Wu Kun. “Has your little brother always been like this? Did your parents try to send him to get some treatment?”

“They did try when he was young, but the effect was not so good. Even though he was unable to live independently or work, he could do some simple housework. My brother is very kind. He often surprises me by helping me with the chores.” Wu Jinpeng sat down next to his brother. “Sometimes, when I was working in the day and singing in bars at night, it was my little brother who looked after Wu Sheng. Even though they both have some problems, they're good friends."

"Good friends? Then that's strange." Chen Ge did not want to hide anything. "There was a lot of symbolism behind Wu Sheng's door, and all the symbols could be related back to the reality, but I did not see anything that could represent Wu Kun in Wu Sheng's door. It is as if Wu Kun does not exist in Wu Sheng's mind."

"That's impossible. They stay together every day."

"That is the first point that struck me as strange. The second point is the fan that Wu Kun is holding. Why does he insist on the fan?" Chen Ge looked at Wu Kun's mangled fingers. "Your little brother might be mentally challenged, but he showed no sign of being a self-harming person. There are many different kinds of mental illnesses, and he does not appear to have the kind where he would push his hands into a fan voluntarily. So, I suspect someone else was there when the accident happened!"

"You mean someone pushed my brother's hands into the fan?" Wu Jinpeng's jaw tightened.

"Why else would he keep on mentioning the fan? He might be warning you." Chen Ge had just finished when Wu Jinpeng woke Wu Kun up. Wu Kun, who knew nothing, hugged the fan and curled up in the corner. He was both angry and afraid.

"Xiao Kun, your big brother is here. Tell me, did someone bully you? Don't be afraid. Have you forgotten? I always helped you fight those people who bullied you when we were small. I will go and punch those who dares bully you, so will you tell me who did this?"

Wu Jinpeng spoke very fast on the account of his anger, and that spooked his younger brother. Wu Kun hugged the fan, grabbed the blanket, and crawled all over the floor, screaming.

"Do you know what time it is? You might not want to sleep, but I do!"

The house had a horrible soundproof wall. The neighbors started to complain, so Chen Ge helped Wu Jinpeng detain Wu Kun.

"Xiao Kun, don't be afraid. I am here with you." Wu Jinpeng pulled Wu Kun's head into his embrace, but his eyes was looking at Chen Ge. "Now that you mention it, I was reminded of something. My brother's condition has been steadily improving for some time, but ever since his hands were injured by the fan, his condition suddenly deteriorated greatly.”

“Did your little brother act strangely at all after that accident?”

Wu Jinpeng thought about it. “Actually, yes. There were several times when I got home and saw my brother staring at his own shadow in the corner. He even used his hand to slap at it occasionally.”

“Was it the shadow from Li Wan City that harmed Wu Kun? But according to the shadow’s personality, if Wu Kun stood in his way, he would have just killed Wu Kun. He would not let him live, so why was that?” Chen Ge was surprised that he would be able to get more clues from Wu Jinpeng’s brother. “Other than the fan, did Wu Kun mention anything else that was out of place?”

“Let me think.” Wu Jinpeng’s brows were scrunched up in thought. “Yes. At the time, we were still living at our old house. Wu Kun would run away so fast whenever we needed to go out, it was as if he refused to stay too long on our floor. One time I asked him why, he pointed at the door of our neighbor, shouting again and again ghost, ghost!”

“The old house? Where did you live when you stayed in the old city?”

“We were staying at Jiujiang old city’s Blissful East Street, then we moved to Eastern Jiujiang, and finally due to work, we moved again to Western Jiujiang.” Wu Jinpeng told Chen Ge all the addresses of his former rental homes.

“Your family has stayed in the old city before. Jiang Ming has stayed in the old city. Fan Yu has spent his childhood in the old city. Something must be wrong with the old city.” Chen Ge marked down Wu Jinpeng’s former address. He planned to visit it the following day.

“Wait, I am reminded of something else.” Wu Jinpeng opened the wooden box that had his guitar and took out a mud statuette with Wu Sheng’s name on it. The statuette was dark like it was made from mud and blood. “When we were staying at the old city, that strange neighbor gifted us an altar. He said that by placing it at home, Wu Sheng would definitely speak within nine years.”

“Where is that altar now?”

“The altar was too big to carry it with us when we moved for the second time, so we left it at the rental house in Eastern Jiujiang. The new tenant thought it was quite taboo to have an unknown altar in the house, so he moved it to the basement.” Wu Jinpeng handed the mud statuette to Chen Ge. “But we have been keeping the mud statuette from inside the altar with us.”

Everything now matched. Chen Ge accepted the statuette and placed it on his shadow. “Brother Peng, that altar is not for good fortune. It’s a home for a demon. You have been tricked by that neighbor.”

“Could it be that neighbor who stuck Wu Kun’s hands into the fan?”

“For now, we can’t be sure, but I will investigate this further. You should get a good rest, so I shall not disturb you anymore.” Chen Ge picked up the statuette from the shadow and returned it to Wu Jinpeng. “See you at work tomorrow.”

Strangely enough, the statuette did not stay on Chen Ge’s shadow for that long, but all the black blood stains had disappeared.

Chapter 1020 - A Person Made From Curses [2 in 1]

Chapter 1020: A Person Made From Curses [2 in 1]

The people in the rental house did not notice that Chen Ge's shadow started to slowly change its shape after consuming the blood stains on the mud statuette. It appeared like a young woman who was turning lightly in her sleep.

"You guys should get a good rest. I will see you tomorrow." Chen Ge took a look at the clock on the wall. It was already 2 am. After he left Wu Jinpeng's rental house, Chen Ge did not return to New Century Park but got into a cab to head to the old city. The weak light from the streetlamps filtered through the taxi window and fell on his body. Chen Ge watched as the quiet city went by and pulled his collar tighter to his body.

The old city at night was very different from how it looked in the day. The government did not spend money to fix most of the broken streetlamps, so the roads were dark and dim. The place was as quiet and as dark as a ghost town. As Jiujiang continued to grow, more and more people moved away from the old city to seek a new fortune at the newer part of the town.

...

Passing through the dark streets, Chen Ge took only about ten minutes to find Wu Jinpeng's previous rental home. The place was about two streets away from where Fan Yu once lived. But the condition here was much worse and the stench in the air was also much thicker.

"How did they manage to stay here for so long? Or is it only me who can smell the horrible stench?" Chen Ge thought back to the morning when he had gone to find Jiang Ming's mother at that area of the city. Both the ladies from the neighborhood committee and Jiang Ming's mother did not comment on the strange smell in the air. As Chen Ge was reminded of it, he realized that it was strange indeed. He wondered if that meant they had gotten used to it or something else completely. Walking through the alley, Chen Ge finally reached his destination. Chen Ge held the rusted banister of an old staircase to get up to the second floor of one of the buildings. He looked around him.

He was not at the oldest and most dilapidated part of the old city.

“Room 204, Room 204... Found it, this one.” Chen Ge stopped his footsteps. Before him was a wooden door that was painted red. A rusted iron chain was tied around the doorknob. “After Wu Jinpeng’s family moved away, has no one rented this room?”

Flipping through the comic, Chen Ge summoned out Men Nan. “Brother Nan, I need your help. I need you to go into this room and scout out the place for me, but be careful of the room next door. Do not go in there no matter what.”

Room 205, which was the innermost room on the second floor, was the room that Wu Kun said was haunted. It was also the tenant of that room who had given Wu Jinpeng the altar and the mud statuette, masquerading them as a blessing and gift. For the sake of security, Chen Ge only told Men Nan to enter Room 204. If he came back with nothing, then he would summon a few more Red Specters, and they would barge into Room 205 together. Droplets of fresh blood slid through the wooden gap. Men Nan reappeared one minute later after he slipped into the room. “Everything in the room looks normal. There is nothing that appears out of place, but it feels strangely uncomfortable staying inside the room even though I cannot give you an exact reason why.”

“Then, I need you to take Xu Yin along with this pair of red high heels into Room 205.”

The three Red Specters entered Room 205. Several seconds later, a strange sound came out from inside the room. It sounded like a knife piercing balloons that were filled with water. And then Chen Ge heard bones being dislocated and shirts being torn. “What is going on?”

Blood vessels crawled on the door, and a thick stench of blood started to spread all over the place. From that, Chen Ge knew for sure that Men Nan’s group had run into something behind the door. He wasted no time to summon Xiao Bu and the red raincoat from the comic. On this side, it was hell on earth, but suddenly, the light on the corridor about five to six meters away was switched on, and a man’s annoyed grumbling and footsteps could be heard. Just as the man was about to arrive, the door of Room 205 before Chen Ge was suddenly pushed open from the inside.

“Chen Ge, quick come in and take a look!”

Darting into the room, Chen Ge held his nostrils out of habit. There was a heavy stink collecting inside the room. He closed the door behind him as light as he could and then used Yin Yang Vision to study the apartment. The place was not big. It was only about thirty cubic meters in size. There were many faded newspaper cuttings on the wall, and dust had settled on every surface. It appeared like the place had been deserted for a long time.

“Did you guys fight something earlier? Did anyone get injured or hurt?” Chen Ge was both curious and concerned.

“It was not a thing that we fought; it was a curse.” Men Nan pulled down the newspaper cuttings that were stuck to the wall. Behind the newspaper cuttings, torn out hair and patches of black blood were clumped together on the walls. They looked like an eerie piece of art.

“These are the curse?”

“Yes, the hair pieces and the blood came from different people. When we first got in, the black threads of curse started intertwining and spread all over the room. If you had entered carelessly, you would have been cursed without even knowing it.” Men Nan signaled for Chen Ge to retreat. He did not want the man to stay too close to the walls.

“Is the curse here similar to the curse in Li Wan City?”

“They are two different kinds of curses.” Only Men Nan, who was holding the pair of red high heels and reached Chen Ge’s knees, was answering his question seriously. “Based on what this big sister told me, the curse in the room was merely a byproduct of another curse when it was being processed and completed.”

“In other words, someone once used this room to create a very scary curse when they were living here?”

“You could see it that way, yes. After all, the curse formed from the negative emotions that lingered in this place are a mere taste of the actual curse. They were only a very small and insignificant part of the actual and original curse.” Men Nan nodded. He had this kind of serious and cautious personality.

“A very small and insignificant part of the curse is already powerful enough to distort the room to such a dangerous state, so how scary is the actual curse itself? How dangerous will it be?”

“It is unimaginable. At least this big sister said she has not encountered such a powerful and scary curse before.” Men Nan raised the pair of red high heels toward Chen Ge. “Can you please take her away from me? I am not really afraid of her, but it feels rather awkward for me to carry her around by her shoes.”

Chen Ge ignored Men Nan’s request and continued with his questioning. “Is it possible for any of you to tell what the original curse is about based on what’s currently in the room? Can you tell me who the original curse is meant for?”

“We cannot tell who the target of the curse is, but we managed to wrangle some information from the wall. This curse is made up from nine distinct parts.” Men Nan tore down all the newspaper cuttings from the innermost wall of the room. The wall that was covered in torn out hair and blood stains carved out the shape of a small figure. There were many statements written within the shadow of the figure with untidy handwriting.

‘What is a human being?’

‘What constitutes a human being? What are they made up from?’

‘A pair of eyes that can see the world, a pair of ears that can hear the world, a mouth that can communicate the world, a body that can host the soul...’

‘Human beings also need memories, layers of their past.’

‘What is light?’

‘Warmth, yes, human bodies give off heat and warmth.’

‘They also say human beings should have love, but what is love?’

‘I seem to be missing something very important. Think. What does he have that I don’t?’

The rows of statements cut up the small figure neatly into nine pieces, and each piece was painted a different color.

“The painting itself is the curse?” Chen Ge was rather confounded by this discovery.

“Instead of calling it a curse, it is more accurate to refer to it as the tenant’s Dream Whisperings. These were the things that he was thinking about the most when he was working on the curse,” Men Nan said. "This curse gave us a very strange feeling. It is like underneath the heavy coat of death, there hides a young sapling that is growing amid the darkness."

"The nine parts should correspond to the nine children. So, it is most likely that it was the ghost fetus who left behind this curse. This means that he has once stayed in the old city."

Those were all the clues they could find in the room. Chen Ge summoned back the few Red Specters and walked out from the apartment.

"Something horrible will happen should someone accidentally walk into this place." Chen Ge locked the door securely. He planned to return when he had more time on his hands to give this place a good 'cleaning'.

"Sounds like someone was coming out from this room earlier. Since he is still awake, I might as well use this opportunity to ask him some questions." Chen Ge walked to the other end of the second floor. This room was different from the other room. The door had an additional anti-theft steel door on top of the normal wooden door. This set itself apart from the other tenants.

"Is anyone home?" Chen Ge knocked on the door lightly.

Moments later, the agitated voice of a middle-aged man echoed out from inside the room. "Stop f*cking knocking on the door!"

The wooden door inside the rental house was pulled open. An unkempt, middle-aged man who was radiating an uncomfortable smell of sweat stood at the door. "Was it you who created such a loud commotion outside the door earlier? Did you just move here? Why aren't you in bed when it is already so late at night. If you continue to make such a big ruckus, I am going to call the cops on you!"

"There is no need to trouble the police for such a small thing. I just wish to ask you a few questions." Chen Ge smiled very politely. "Of course, I do not expect you to help me for no reason. If you can answer my questions nicely, I will give you one hundred RMB for each question that you have answered."

"Are you sleep walking, or is this some kind of prank? You came to my door at two thirty in the early morning to give me a quiz?" The middle-aged man looked around cautiously like a possibility just dawned on him. "There is a camera hidden somewhere, isn't there?"

Where's the camera crew?"

"First, who is the landlord of this building?"

"I am the landlord of this place. What's the problem? Are you here to rent a room? Then I have to ask you to leave. I will not rent to troublemaker like you." As unsightly as the middle-aged man was, the way he looked at Chen Ge was still filled with derision and condescension.

"Second, have you rented out Room 205 at the end of this corridor to someone recently?" Chen Ge did not want to waste time on nonsense with the man. If not for his generosity, he would have barged into the room, released the Red Specters, and slammed the exit shut already.

"Room 205 has been rented out since about six years ago. The tenant sends me money every year punctually. The man does not stay here often, but he asks that I keep the room available for him. Since he is paying me money, I don't see the harm in following his instructions." The middle-aged man scratched at his hair that was clumped together from a lacking of washing.

"You have not rented it to anyone else during this past six years?"

"No, the tenant always gives me the money about six months before the deadline every year, and he often slips me extra, paying me more than the required rental. Why would I chase away such a good tenant?"

"What does that tenant look like? Do you know what kind of career he is in?" Chen Ge had a feeling that this tenant was the ghost fetus that he was looking for.

"Why should I tell you about that private information? Who are you? Are you a police officer? Why do you think I will leak my tenant's valuable information to you?" The middle-aged man crossed his arms.

"If you tell me the specifics about the man's appearance and what he does for a living, I will give you another five hundred RMB."

"He is a student. He first moved here about five years ago. I believe it was because he got into a serious argument with his family, and he had run away from home. At the time, he had just gotten into secondary school, and he did not have much money on him." The middle-aged man exposed the details of the tenant of Room 205. "He did not stand out in terms of appearance. He had long hair and a weak constitution. I could hear him very often, and he had the tendency to mumble in his sleep.”

“Is that all you can give me? That is a bit too general. Kids like that litter the street. How do you expect me to go and find him?” Chen Ge did not hold out much hope based on the clues that had been given him by the middle-aged man.

“You want to go and find him?” The middle-aged man gave Chen Ge a once-over and then extended his index finger. “Give me another one thousand RMB, and I will tell you a way that you will be able to find him.”

“No problem, you have a deal.”

“After he ran away from home, his mother came here to look for him. At the time, he was not home, so his mother came to talk to me instead. She left me with a message for the boy. When he came back, I was to inform him that his mother had come, and she wanted him to go to the Eastern Jiujiang’s Huai Ai Hospital to find her. She seemed to be the head nurse for that hospital.” The middle-aged man was not as sleepy as when Chen Ge first knocked on his door. Even though it was fast approaching 3 am, at the thought that he was about to get at least two thousand RMB from answering a few easy questions, his eyes were practically glowing.

“This information is very valuable. Of course, that is if you are not lying to me.” Chen Ge pulled open the zipper of his backpack.

“Why would I lie to you? Now stop wasting my time and give me the money. Don’t think you can cheat me. I have been counting. I have answered more than enough of your questions to earn at least two thousand RMB!” The middle-aged man saw Chen Ge open his backpack, so his greedy gaze involuntarily wandered to look inside it. He noticed the bulging backpack had a human spine lying inside it.

Rubbing his eyes, the middle-aged man glanced deeper into the backpack. Other than the real human spine, there was a pair of bloody red high heels inside the backpack!

A madman? Pervert? Murderer? Serial Killer?

Cold sweat covered and slid down the middle-aged man’s face. Without even realizing it, he took a cautionary step backward.

“My phone is running out of power, so I can’t do a bank transfer. Why don't you open the door. I will hand you the cash instead." Chen Ge leaned closer to the steel door, and his lips were slowly curling upward. "You just need to open a small gap for my hand to squeeze through..."

"There is no need. That is unnecessary. I... I only answered a few questions. Why should I expect to be paid for that?" The middle-aged man took another step back. "I have already shared everything that I know. I do not know any more than that. The kid has not been back here for a long time. I believe he will not return any time soon. So, you'd better go look for him somewhere else."

"Okay. You are probably right about that." Chen Ge nodded. With a sense of responsibility weighing him down, he turned to ask the landlord again, "Do you really not want the money?"

"No, no, I really don't!" The middle-aged man waved his hands repeatedly and then quickly slammed the wooden door shut.

"Looks like there are still good people in this world." Chen Ge carried his backpack and walked down the stairs. "I have not heard of this Huai Ai Hospital before. It should be a private hospital. I'll go and visit the place tomorrow."

Stretching his back lazily, Chen Ge left the old city without turning back. "When the sun rises, I'll only have five nights left."

When Chen Ge returned to his own haunted house's staff breakroom, the sun was already rising. He had just crawled into bed when he received a message from Lee Zheng on the phone that he had just plunged into the socket to charge.

"This is an emergency! Reply to me if you see this message!"

"Chen Ge, call me immediately when you see this message!"

There were many similar messages. Chen Ge could hear the urgency in the messages, so he quickly called Lee Zheng's number. The phone rang only once before it was picked up. Lee Zheng's voice came from the other side of the line. "Chen Ge, are you alright?"

"Why wouldn't I be?" Chen Ge was as confused as he could be.

"Yesterday, we closed in on the location of Jia Ming's group, and the capture operation was scheduled to be done at night. The boy's father, Zhen Chun, was killed by the suspect Bei Ye, while the boy's mother, Yu Wangqing, is in ICU due to serious injuries. The suspect, Bei Ye, was shot and died on the spot. However, both Jia Ming and the boy were not at the crime scene. We have blocked all the roads, but no one has seen any sign of them.”

“How did Jia Ming manage to escape with a child?”

“From the very beginning, Jia Ming planned to use Bei Ye and the boy’s parents as bait. He purposely exposed himself, and when we were busy with his partners, he used the opening to escape. He used his partners’ life to buy time for himself. The man is so awful. How can a man be so heartless?”

“He is no longer a normal man, but Inspector Lee, why are you telling me all this?” Lee Zheng normally would not reveal this inside information to a member of the public. Since he had chosen to share the information with Chen Ge, it could only mean that what happened next would be related to Chen Ge.

“Jia Ming’s group did not leave Jiujiang because they were looking for something. For now, we do not know what that is, but we found a lot of information that’s related to you at their hiding place. I suspect that their next target might be you!”

“They are trying to come for me? Then that... is really so scary.” Chen Ge almost let slip the words... ‘would be perfect’.

Chapter 1021 - Road to Hell

Chapter 1021: Road to Hell

“Bei Ye mentioned your name before he died, and New Century Park was written on some of the notes found at the crime scene. In any case, you must be careful! I’ll send people over when the sun rises!” Lee Zheng was worried about Chen Ge’s safety.

“Please do not do that!” Chen Ge quickly stopped him. “Brother Zheng, I mean, we should not scare them off. Since they have targeted me, this is the perfect chance to capture him. Jia Ming is so cunning. He will escape if he senses a trap. Only by making him careless will we be able to catch him.”

“Then, what about your safety?”

...

“Jia Ming is extremely cunning and cruel. The longer he spends on the outside, the higher the chance of us having more victims. If you think of it that way, what’s a little risk that I might take?” Chen Ge denied Lee Zheng’s help. “Furthermore, the clues that you found at the crime scene might have been purposely left behind by Jia Ming. He wants the police to focus their attention on New Century Park so that he can go elsewhere.”

“So, this could be a misdirection?”

“Yes. Plus, New Century Park is populated every day, and the place is complicated. Mounting an operation is not going to be easy.”

“You have a point, but I will still send a few plainclothes to your place after dawn. Don’t worry, it won’t affect your business.” Lee Zheng sent Chen Ge one last message. “The number I sent you is the number of the leader of this operation. If anything happens, call him.”

“Okay.”

“Take care of yourself. No matter what happens, keep yourself safe.”

After the call was ended, Chen Ge lay in bed holding the phone. There was no panic in his eyes. If anything, there was excitement. “I was trying hard to find Jia Ming, but now he's moved his target onto me. The man could have lived his life safely, but he intends on taking the road that would lead him to hell."

Hugging the white cat, Chen Ge scratched its soft underbelly. "Both Jia Ming and the boy knew the ghost fetus well. They seem to be looking for the children selected by the ghost fetus. I wonder how many they have found."

Putting the backpack by his bed, Chen Ge was not worried about his safety. With his team of powerful Red Specters, he was not afraid of any tricks that Jia Ming could have come up with.

At 8:10 am, Chen Ge opened the gates to the haunted house, and the employees soon arrived.

"This afternoon we might have a new employee to join us. So, don't isolate him. Let's try to give him a good impression."

After helping the employees with their make-up, Chen Ge carried the backpack and sat at the haunted house entrance.

"Boss, are you still going out later?" Gu Feiyu walked toward Chen Ge in the Doctor Skull-cracker outfit. His every step jingled with the sound of chains.

"I'm staying today because I'm waiting for a friend." Chen Ge turned back to smile. "Also, I need you guys to pay attention today. If there's anything out of place, report to me immediately."

"Okay."

The theme park opened for business at 9 am. The visitors rushed in, and the number was greater than few days ago. A long queue soon formed before the haunted house. Uncle Xu and the other workers helped to maintain the order and sell tickets. Chen Ge stood at the entrance and personally led the visitors into the haunted house, helping them with the disclaimers. Currently, Chen Ge could be counted as a semi-celebrity. Some of the visitors came because of them. Some asked for a photograph together with him. Chen Ge naturally would not reject these requests. Actually, he wanted to leave a mark in more people's memories. That way, if something happened to him, it would be hard for other forces to wipe his existence off the face of the earth. After sending several batches of visitors into the haunted house, Chen Ge still had not seen Jia Ming or been notified of any special visitors.

“The police should have placed great pressure on Jia Ming, which is why he used his partners’ life to buy some time for himself. He knows that the web is closing around him, so it’s only a matter of time until he makes a desperate move.” Chen Ge arranged the disclaimers on the table. “I have no idea what they are searching for, but I am sure it has something to do with the ghost fetus. Those guys used so much time to study me and the haunted house, so that thing might be hidden here somewhere.”

After giving it some thought, Chen Ge carried the backpack and went to the toilet. This toilet was for employees only. The visitors used the toilet that was outside the haunted house.

“Men Nan.” Chen Ge flipped through the comic to summon Men Nan. “Today, you will stay guard here.”

“What? You think I’m a toilet attendant?” Men Nan argued with Chen Ge.

“The door that is blocked by the wooden boards leads to the blood world, and someone has been eyeing it recently.” Many people knew of the door at Chen Ge’s haunted house, so he did not hide that from Men Nan.

“You have a door here too?” The way Men Nan looked at Chen Ge changed. “Was it... you who pushed it open?”

“I don’t know.” Chen Ge shrugged. “I can’t remember.”

“How can you forget something like that?” Men Nan gazed at Chen Ge. “But you do not look like a door pusher. You are too cunning to be one.”

“The person eyeing this door is quite cunning as well. You might not be able to handle them alone.” Chen Ge shoved the pair of red high heels into Men Nan’s hand. “If you’re in danger, ask this big sister to help you. She’s very powerful.”

“Hey! Come back here!”

“Good luck.” Chen Ge closed the door and returned to the entrance. The whole morning passed, and there was nothing. Chen Ge did not see Jia Ming.

“Was it right earlier when I said that this was all just misdirection?” Chen Ge sat on the chair to think. “Jia Ming has seen me in Li Wan

City before. He knows that I have many Specters and Red Specters by my side. As long as he has not lost his mind, he won't come at night. He only has a chance of succeeding in the day, but what exactly is the man looking for?"

After lunch, Chen Ge continued to wait at the haunted house. He originally planned to go to Eastern Jiujiang Huai Ai Hospital, but that plan was ruined due to Jia Ming. The sun was right above his head. It was the hottest time of the day, but the queue before the haunted house was still very long. Chen Ge patiently moved the visitors into the haunted house. He did not carry much hope of seeing Jia Ming when he suddenly heard a familiar voice.

"Leader Chen!" That was the first time that Chen Ge had been called that. He turned to the voice and saw Wu Jinpeng waving at him amid the crowd. The handsome uncle was a man of experience. He did not refer to Chen Ge as closely as brother in a public place. He was afraid that might ruin Chen Ge's image among his other employees, but he did not know how to address him, so he used the term 'Leader Chen'.

"Brother Peng, you've arrived earlier than expected. Did everything go well?"

"Yes, it went swimmingly." Wu Jinpeng was tall with a ponytail. He had the presence of an artistic person about him, so he stood out among the crowd.

Chapter 1022 - Wu Jinpeng's Debut

Chapter 1022: Wu Jinpeng's Debut

"That's wonderful. In a bit, I will have you get used to the working environment here." Chen Ge trusted Wu Jinpeng fully and planned to initiate the new employee welcoming ceremony soon. "We are understaffed now, so I can't give you a tour. You'll have to follow one of the batches to experience the haunted house. There's no pressure. Just think of it as your own visit and treat yourself as a normal visitor."

"Understood." Wu Jinpeng nodded. It looked like he valued this new job greatly. He had even taken a shower and changed before he came.

"Then we'll start with a half star scenario." Chen Ge arranged for Wu Jinpeng to enter the Ming Hun scenario with two other visitors. Half an hour later, a pale-looking Wu Jinpeng ran out of the haunted house with the two other visitors.

...

"How do you feel?"

"I feel like the haunted houses that I've visited before were child's play." Wu Jinpeng was still shaking. He was about to say something more when Chen Ge patted him on the shoulder. "Your timing is perfect. They are about to visit the one-star scenario, Murder by Midnight. You can go along with them."

"But I just got out..."

"How are you going to see the rainbow without weathering the rain? Such a big challenge in your life didn't crush you. Don't tell me a little haunted house visit will break your spirit." Chen Ge led them to the second floor. "Believe in yourself, Brother Peng."

"Wait a minute! I have some questions." Wu Jinpeng pulled on Chen Ge's clothes. "How many scenarios do we have? Do I need to visit all of them today?"

"We have around ten scenarios. The higher the star rating, the scarier the scenario. Ming Hun was just the appetizer." At this point, Chen Ge thought of something. “Actually, it’s rather impossible to visit all of them in one day.”

“Okay then.”

“Because you might faint in the middle, but you might not. In any case, we have the best doctors here. If we make use of the time carefully, there’s a chance that you can visit all the scenario today.” Chen Ge sent Wu Jinpeng and the other visitors into the scenario for Murder at Midnight. “Have fun in there.”

Closing the door, Chen Ge walked away. Soon, he heard a scream from Wu Jinpeng. “Even his scream has a certain tempo to it. I knew he was a singer in a past, but I had no idea he’s so talented.”

Another half an hour passed, and Wu Jinpeng ran out with disheveled hair. He had so much ‘fun’ that he had lost the scrunchy that had tied up his ponytail. “Here, drink this water. You can clean yourself up in the dressing room. I think there’s a spare rubber band in there. You can use it to tie your hair.”

“It’s not the issue of rubber band. When I was in there, there was a rag doll that kept following me. She was jumping all over the place like she wanted to grab my ponytail!” Wu Jinpeng was in an intense emotional state, and his hands kept gesticulating.

“Looks like you’re already a favorite among the old employees. Don’t worry, those are controlled by the central computer. Your colleagues were merely welcoming you in their own way.” Chen Ge had Wu Jinpeng get some rest while he walked toward the other visitors. “Uncle Xu, do you have any visitors that wish to visit a two-star scenario or above?”

“It’s great that you’re here. These three visitors bought tickets for Mu Yang High School, Coffin Village, and Underground Morgue online. They wanted to visit all of them in one go. Can you allow that?”

“You can only visit one scenario at a time.” Chen Ge looked at the three visitors. “I’m sorry, but that is a safety precaution.”

“But we have already bought the tickets. Do you want us to come out and wait for such a long queue again? We don’t mind paying more. I just don’t want to waste any more time.” It was a polite-looking man who spoke. He wore spectacles. He was about 1.85 meters tall with long legs, and every piece of clothing he had on was branded. Indeed, he did not look like he was in need of money.

“There’s no need to worry about safety precautions. I promise you that even if something happens to us, we will not press any charges against your establishment.” Another man stepped forth. He was in sportswear. His body was well built with clear wiry muscles. However, he was not that old and was not that careful with his words.

“I know that you don’t mind spending money, but those are the rules. You can choose one of the scenarios first, then decide after you finish the visitation. You might change your idea then,” Chen Ge suggested.

“Ah Wen, Xiao Jie, we could consider that. After all, we’ve been waiting for so long already.” The last to speak was the only girl among the trio. She was in her mid-twenties. She looked cute and innocent but had a stabilizing presence about her. She attracted the guys’ attention easily.

“Why don’t you start with Mu Yang High School?” Chen Ge led the three of them and two other visitors to enter the haunted house. By then, Wu Jinpeng had almost recovered. “Brother Peng, you should follow the five of them to challenge a two-star scenario.”

“Can’t you give me more time to rest?”

“You’re only delaying the inevitable.” Chen Ge put away the disclaimers and led the group to the underground entrance. “Before we start, I have to warn you all again. Please stay in the scenario that you’re supposed to visit. Do not wander off into other scenarios.”

Opening the iron door that led underground, a chilly breeze cut at them. Wu Jinpeng, who stood next to Chen Ge, shivered. “You have an underground scenario too?”

“The fun is only beginning.” Chen Ge watched them walk down the stairs. He did not close the door but stared at the woman’s back. He was sure that he had just met that woman, but she gave him a familiar feeling.

“The way the other two guys look at her was filled with love, but she was not interested in them at all. There was a well-hidden resentment hidden inside her eyes. And she kept unintentionally hiding behind the two guys so that she wouldn’t interact directly with me. She has never directed her eyes at me either like she is purposely moving her gaze away from me.” Chen Ge eventually closed the door. “Something’s wrong.”

Carrying the backpack, Chen Ge hurried to the surveillance room to follow the movement of this batch of visitors.

...

After the door closed, the woman instantly sidled up to Wu Jinpeng. “Uncle, are you a worker here? I saw that you were having such friendly chat with the boss earlier. I’ve heard that the boss occasionally sends his employees in with the visitors to scare them.”

“I’ll come clean. I am a worker here, but this is my first day. I don’t know anything.” Wu Jinpeng surrendered easily. “In fact, I might hide behind you later. I’m sorry. This must have given you a bad impression of the workers here.”

“Hehe, you’re quite an interesting man. I am Shen Mengbing. What’s yours?”

“My name is Wu Jinpeng.”

“That’s such a country bumpkin name.” The woman had a wonderful smile. She wanted to chat some more with Wu Jinpeng, but the two guys walked over, and they expertly squeezed Wu Jinpeng to the side.

Chapter 1023 - It's Wrong to Peek at People's Diaries

Chapter 1023: It's Wrong to Peek at People's Diaries

"My name is Zhao Wen. He is Ling Feijie." The bespectacled man gave Wu Jinpeng a once over. He saw that Wu Jinpeng was dressed in night market clothes, and he could practically smell the scent of poverty from him.

"Nice to meet you. I am the haunted house's newest employee. The boss told me to join you guys to experience the scenario first before I am given any tasks." Wu Jinpeng grasped the whole situation instantly. The two men liked the woman, but the woman did not like them.

"Uncle, are you really the worker here? You don't look like one." The two other visitors came over. They also looked quite young. "We are from Jiujiang Medical University. We hear from our seniors that the workers here are the scariest they have ever met. It's as if they come out of hell itself."

...

Hearing the comments from the two students, Wu Jinpeng's forehead started to sweat. He seemed to have joined an inappropriate group.

"I still have not met the other employees, so I cannot confirm what you've said."

"Uncle, you look like a nice person. You wouldn't lie to us, right?" The two medical students were familiar with Chen Ge's ways. They were given information about Chen Ge's haunted house almost daily, so they were practically old costumers already.

"Do I look like a liar to you?" Wu Jinpeng wanted to explain himself, but the more he tried, the more the others eyed him with suspicion.

"Stop wasting time, we'll head in first." Ling Feijie was older than the two students, but he appeared more juvenile than the latter. He was like a flower that had grown in the greenhouse. He looked tough on the outside but weak on the inside. The few walked down the corridor into Mu Yang High School. Wu Jinpeng and the two students walked ahead while the three lagged behind. They kept glancing around. It did not seem like they were there to visit but to look for something. The blank test papers fluttered in the air, creating a rustle as they dragged against the ground. When Wu Jinpeng first entered the basement, it did not feel that scary, but the deeper they went, the faster his heartbeat, and his palms started to sweat.

“Uncle, you’re too tense. Your muscles are pulled so taut that you’re limping.” One of the students noticed this and smiled with sympathy. “I know that you’re acting, but do you need to try so hard?”

“I’m sorry, this is my first day at work.” Wu Jinpeng did not wish to act like that, but he was really not that brave. “Should we wait for the others? I don’t think we should split up...”

Wu Jinpeng turned around to look and saw the three standing before a classroom, stopping where they were. They did not look like they were moving forward. In fact, the man called Zhao Wen took several steps back like he was planning to sneak away from Mu Yang High School.

“Hey! There’s no need to be afraid. If we stick together, it should be fine.” Wu Jinpeng wanted to console them, but the man called Zhao Wen did not care for it. He even glared back at Wu Jinpeng.

“The three of you can continue the tour. Just go ahead without us.” Ling Feijie guarded beside Shen Mengbing always, unable to move away from her.

“Based on what our seniors said, those who split up inside the haunted house meet a horrible end.” The two students were experienced. They grabbed Wu Jinpeng and headed toward Shen Mengbing. “Stop kidding around, this is a two-star scenario!”

Being lectured by two people younger than him, Ling Feijie’s temper was lit up instantly. He wanted to argue with them but was stopped by the woman beside him.

“They have a point, Xiao Jie. You always act too rashly. Sometimes, you have to listen to others.” Shen Mengbing grabbed Ling Feijie’s arm lightly. “The condition to clear this scenario is to find enough name tags. Time is not waiting for us. Let’s try to clear this scenario in one try.”

Shen Mengbing’s voice was gentle, and it seemed to possess a magical power that could soften the temper of Ling Feijie.

“What about the other one? Are we just going to leave him behind?” Wu Jinpeng pointed at Zhao Wen. The man stood at the entrance of Mu Yang High School. He held his phone like he was talking to someone.

“He’s on the phone with his father. We’ll go ahead. I’m sure he’ll soon catch up to us.” Shen Mengbing came to Wu Jinpeng’s side. “Come on, limping uncle.”

“Er...”

The group thus entered Mu Yang High School. After they walked away, Zhao Wen put away the phone and glanced at the camera beside him. He sneaked to the corner that was close to the stairs. Several minutes later, the door that led underground opened again, and a batch of visitors were led toward Coffin Village by Ol’ Zhou. Just as they moved toward Coffin Village, Zhao Wen came out from his hiding spot and sneaked back up the stairs. There was no one in the corridor. Zhao Wen took out his phone, and there was a map of the haunted house’s ground floor on it. There were even red lines to mark out the surveillance corners.

“I really don’t understand why Mengbing is so interesting in this haunted house.” He avoided the surveillance carefully and entered the dressing room. There were many scary costumes in the room and many make-up kits on the tables.

“This isn’t it.” Zhao Wen held his phone and carefully closed the dressing room door. He opened the Prop Room next door. He still could not find what he was looking for. “I’m quite lucky. Neither room’s occupied. Wasted my time to come up with so many reasons to excuse my behavior just in case I was caught.”

Next to the prop room was the staff breakroom. Zhao Wen turned the doorknob, and the door clicked open. “Are none of the doors here not locked? Aren’t they afraid of thieves?”

Just as the door opened, Zhao Wen was startled. A big white cat was staring at him from inside the room. The cat was larger than a normal cat. It had snowy white fur, and it was lying in bed, staring at Zhao Wen with its heterochromatic eyes.

“Phew, that scared me.” Zhao Wen entered the room. He looked around and started to rummage through the place. The cat kept a steady eye on him until Zhao Wen started to feel quite uncomfortable. “Why do I feel like this cat is smiling at me? Does a cat know how to smile?”

Zhao Wen moved faster. He opened the closet. It was filled with several cheap, unbranded clothes. He looked under the bed. There was a bunch of abandoned props. They seemed to provide structural integrity to the bed.

“This breakroom is too empty. Won’t the employees here complain about that?” Zhao Wen looked around before his eyes landed on the study table. “The table’s drawer isn’t locked either. I doubt there’s anything important inside.”

Pulling open the drawer, Zhao Wen saw an almost empty lighter and a thick stack of draft papers. Moving the papers away, he found a diary with a blood red cover underneath them.

“Meow.” When the diary was discovered, the white cat, who had not nudged an inch, suddenly jumped to hide under the bed.

“What the hell! That scared me.” Zhao Wen picked up the diary and placed it on the table. He opened it to the first page.

“X Year X Month X Day, I dragged her hair and tied her inside the stairwell. I leaned close to her face, listening to her weakening heartbeat. Before her last breath left her, I seemed to hear her utter my name from deep inside her throat—Zhang Ya...”

Zhao Wen looked at the red diary, and his pupils were vibrating. He wanted to stop reading, but he seemed to have lost control of his hands as they continued to flip through the pages. The content of the diary was too gory. Each page was filled with cruelty and pain. The owner of this diary was a real monster.

Chapter 1024 - Too Careless!

Chapter 1024: Too Careless!

“Is this the haunted house’s owner’s diary? A record of his murders?”

Zhao Wen did consider the possibility that the diary was a prop, but the content was too real. Just reading it caused his heart to race like he was there in person when the crime was committed. Even if the content was fake, to be able to come up with the things inside it, the author was seriously unhinged. Taking a deep breath, Zhao Wen was about to put the diary away, but something scarier happened.

He seemed to have lost control of his body. His hands flipped through the pages, and his eyes refused to move away from the writing on the pages. The diary appeared to have sucked his soul into it. His temperature dropped. In Zhao Wen’s eyes, the handwriting in the diary slowly turned into red symbols, and he could hear the sounds that the murder victims heard. Pairs of arms reached out from the beyond to grab at him.

...

His teeth started to chatter, and his ears were pulsing with the sound of his heartbeat. Zhao Wen’s hand finally reached a blank page. Just when he thought everything was over, drops of blood emerged on the diary. They were like blooms of blood flowers that grew directly from hell. The red seeped into the empty pages, and the following entry appeared.

“X Year X Month X Day, someone read my story, and now I am going to make him part of my diary.”

The arms on him started to pull. Zhao Wen felt as if his body was about to be torn into pieces. He wanted to scream, but he could not make a sound. He could only watch as his body was dragged into the diary. But when he tried to turn around, he was frozen in fear because he saw that his body was still standing away from the table!

“Meow.” A cat meowed inside the room. It seemed to break the spell. Zhao Wen’s eyes were bulging as he looked around the room. He recovered. Both of his hands pressed on the table, and his whole body was shaking. He snapped the diary shut. His arms were still shaking.

“What was that?”

His legs weakened. Zhao Wen considered it for a long time before he decided to take the diary with him. “It’s time to move to the next room.”

Pushing on his glasses, Zhao Wen leaned on the door to listen. After ensuring that there was no sound coming from outside, he pushed open the door and left. He kept his body against the wall and entered the toilet. Looking around, Zhao Wen’s eyes soon focused on that one cubicle door. The door was sealed up by wooden boards, and it had the painting of a grimacing devil on this.

“Is this the door?”

Zhao Wen slowly approached the cubicle door. He tried to move the wooden boards, but he realized that they were pinned in firmly, and the door would not even budge. “The thing Mengbing wants is behind the door, but the door is sealed. How am I supposed to get behind it?”

He squatted down and tried to look through the small hole. The other side of the door was completely red.

“Blood?” He looked through the hole again with uncertainty. This time, a rolling eyeball was looking back at him!

“What the hell!” Zhao Wen collapsed to the ground. Before he could react, a giant sound came from behind him.

Bang!

The door of the toilet was slammed close. Chen Ge walked into the room, dragging the hammer. “Looks like you guys are indeed looking for this door.”

“Who are you? Don’t come any closer!” Zhao Wen saw the hammer that Chen Ge was holding. His instincts told him that it was not a normal prop.

“This is a haunted house. Even if you scream until your throat is hoarse, people will only think you’re having a good time.” Chen Ge waved, and Men Nan appeared behind him. “Knock him out and then drag him underground. Tell Zhang Yi to experiment on him to try and see if he can erase those bad memories.”

“Okay.” Men Nan tied up Zhao Wen harshly as if he was venting his discontent toward Chen Ge on the poor man. Chen Ge stood to the side and watched the proceedings quietly. He was contemplating something else. "Why would these people look for the door at my haunted house? Currently, the people who want me dead are the ghost fetus, the cursed hospital, and Jia Ming. Who are these three visitors working for?"

The ghost fetus was a Demon God, and he was not born yet. The cursed hospital was a four-star scenario. It probably would not control its patients to go to Chen Ge's place in broad daylight, so the only option left was Jia Ming.

"Even though Jia Ming is male, the real danger is the spirit possessing him. The thing might have been pressured enough to leave Jia Ming's body to possess another person." Chen Ge had faced too many troublesome foes. It meant that he would not be trapped in a mental box when he was figuring things out.

"Chen Ge, this is just a normal human being. There is no trace of anything supernatural on him. The only thing that he is guilty of is being stupid." Men Nan looked at the 'diary' hidden inside Zhao Wen's pocket and added, "Incredibly stupid."

"Take him to Zhang Yi." Chen Ge picked up Zhang Ya's bedtime story. When he first got this reward, he did not think much of it. He really treated it as a bedtime storybook and would flip through it when he was free. But after Zhao Wen accidentally stumbled across it, Chen Ge realized how scary it was. It was not only dangerous toward normal people. Even Red Specters like Men Nan and the red high heels did not want to get close to it. "None of you warned me about this book. That sure is helpful of you."

Chen Ge slipped the diary into his backpack's inner compartment. He had no idea what the book was useful for, but he had a feeling that he would use it in the future. Carrying the backpack, Chen Ge entered the Specter's Dressing Room and changed. Then he contacted Tong Tong and headed toward Shen Mengbing and Ling Feijie.

...

Inside Mu Yang High School, Wu Jinpeng gradually noticed that something was off with Shen Mengbing and Ling Feijie. They were different from normal visitors, especially that Shen Mengbing. It was as if she could not feel fear. Even though she would occasionally scream, she would revert to her usual self in just two seconds. To confuse Wu Jinpeng further, the two would go and open any door that they came across, but after opening the doors, they would not enter them, instead hurrying toward the next one.

“This is the first time I’ve met a visitor like this, could they be...” Wu Jinpeng narrowed his eyes. “... real expert visitors?”

He and the two students followed behind, so they did not see the paleness on Shen Mengbing’s face. At that moment, Shen Mengbing’s face was dark, and she gritted her teeth in an ugly grimace. She grumbled under her breath. “I was too careless! I didn’t expect a horde of real ghosts in only a two-star scenario. Doesn’t this mean that three and four-star scenarios will start to have Red Specters?”

Using Red Specters to scare visitors, that was something unimaginable for Shen Mengbing, but she had run into an actual example.

“And the online reviews of this haunted house said it’s not scary at all? What the f*ck! This has to be a trap!”

Chapter 1025 - Stop Crying or Meet the Hammer [2 in 1]

Chapter 1025: Stop Crying or Meet the Hammer [2 in 1]

The more Shen Mengbing thought about it, the more nervous she became. Everywhere she turned, there was danger staring back at her.

“This place is too big. We won’t be able to check everything in one day.” Ling Feijie was frightened quite a bit as well. He felt like he had almost reached his limit already, but before Shen Mengbing, he had to put on a brave front.

“Take it slow, and pay attention to each door.” Shen Mengbing adjusted her breathing, and her expression slowly returned to normal.

...

“Mengbing, are you sure the thing that you are looking for is here? Why can’t we tell anyone else about this?” Ling Feijie stealthily went to grab Shen Mengbing by her hand. “How about we come back here at night? Without anyone else, our work should be much easier.”

Shen Mengbing flung Ling Feijie’s hand away. She kept telling herself internally, There is no need to be afraid. I can leave when an actual Red Specter shows up. Before then, everything is fine.

“Hey, your friend still hasn’t returned. He’s been gone for quite some time. Could something have happened to him?” The two medical students also noticed how strange Shen Mengbing and Ling Feijie were acting, and they subconsciously put some distance between them.

“There is no need to worry about him. I believe he will be back to join us soon,” Shen Mengbing answered without even turning her head. Hearing the reply from Shen Mengbing, the medical students’ suspicion toward her deepened. Her friend had just gotten lost inside a large haunted house. That was something so scary, but how could she manage to take it in such easy stride, like this was part of her plan? Something was up, and they wanted no part in it.

Slowing down his footstep, the one medical student pulled on the clothes of his friend silently. He tilted his head to the side and whispered, "Let's go into this classroom to take a look."

The two sneaked into the classroom nearest to them when Wu Jinpeng and Shen Mengbing's group were not looking. Once they entered the classroom, the medical student closed the door and took out his phone.

"What are you doing? You are using the phone inside the haunted house? Have you forgotten the warning from our seniors?"

"I have a very bad feeling about this." One of the medical students made a call. "The uncle with the ponytail said that he is an employee here, but he acted so cute and innocent. His whole act is intended to disarm and make you lower your guard."

"Indeed, it is quite funny how he is acting. He is visiting his own workplace, but he got so scared and is now limping."

"You still have not realized the deep water that we are in? Think of the place that we are currently in! This is a hell that has caused many of our seniors to lose their minds! You really think this place would have such a sunny and bright employee?" The medical student looked at his friend with deep disappointment, the expression on his face saying, How could you have not figured that out sooner?

"But didn't he say this is his first day? Perhaps he is just getting used to the environment."

"That might be so, but did you realize that after he said that, our full attention was drawn to him?"

"What do you mean by that?"

"We have been cautious around the uncle, but we have completely ignored the three other visitors! Did you not realize how much stranger those three are acting? One of them disappeared after we entered the scenario. Where do you think he could have gone?"

"You mean to say they are all actors?"

"That is very likely!"

The two medical students looked at each other, and they could see the fear reflected in each other's eyes.

"But the two of us have no history with the haunted house boss. We are just very normal visitors. There is no reason for him to treat like this, is there?”

“The seniors who fainted all had thoughts similar to that.” The medical student made a call. “Let me ask He San. He is most familiar with this place. We will see what he has to say.”

“What are you two doing in here?” Before the call was connected, Wu Jinpeng pushed open the door of the classroom. He had chosen to go and find the two students. Actually, it was because it was too scary for him to stay out there alone.

“Nothing!” The two medical students were flustered, so flustered in fact that they almost dropped the phone. As if destiny was playing trick on them, the call was connected at that moment.

“Were you two on the phone?”

“No... actually, it's like this. I wanted my friend to sign the attendance for us. After all, we did skip school to visit this place.” The medical student used his body to block the phone from view and silently ended the call. At the same time, he gave his partner a look. His lips moved slowly as he whispered, “See, I told you!”

“I have no objection to wanting to come to a theme park to relax, but it does not feel right to skip school. You students should pay more attention to your study.” Wu Jinpeng walked toward the two medical students. “Also, are you two okay? Why are you sweating so much?”

Before the two students could return, Ling Feijie's heart-wrenching scream suddenly came from the deepest part of the corridor.

“What happened?” Wu Jinpeng looked out from the classroom. The corridor was too dark to see Ling Feijie and Shen Mengbing. “Let's hurry after them. They might need our help.”

“I can bet that nothing will happen to them. We'd better take care of ourselves.” The two students stood fixed where they were, and the way they looked Wu Jinpeng was not as friendly as before.

“But the scream did not sound fake! I'm afraid something really happened to them!” Wu Jinpeng stood at the edge of the classroom door. Seeing that the two students refused to budge, he finally gritted his teeth and burst down the corridor to head deeper into Mu Yang High School. “Even though this is my first day at work, I am an employee here now. I cannot shrink back when the visitors might be in danger.”

Watching Wu Jinpeng run away, the two medical students confirmed their speculation even further. At that moment, one of the medical students’ phones started to vibrate. He glanced at the caller ID and chose to pick it up. “He San, we do not have much time. The situation is very dire. Now listen to us. We are now currently at New Century Park’s haunted house...”

The medical student dragged the other student to hide under the table and told He San everything they had seen and experienced so far.

Moments later, He San’s rather hoarse voice came through the line. “Based on my understanding of Boss Chen, since this is the first day for that employee, he must’ve arranged another experienced actor to follow him. I get it now! This must be some kind of test for the new employee, and you two are most likely his test subjects!”

“We are the test subjects?”

“Yes, it is not easy to become a haunted house actor. One must be talented and have a sharp observation skill, but the most important thing of all is that one must possess an exceptional mastery of acting! You two have been completely fooled by that uncle!” What He San said caused the two medical students to draw in a cold breath.

“You mean he has been acting ever since he joined us at the start of this scenario? Jesus Christ, just how twisted must one be to put on such a convincing and wicked disguise!”

“Just remember this. The vilest spirit is often hiding underneath the most harmless-looking appearance!” He San hung up after he gave his advice, leaving behind two figures that were shaking underneath the classroom table.

...

Deep within Mu Yang High School’s male dorm, Ling Feijie was hugging a dead body wrapped in tape. His pupils were dilated as his body lay supine on the ground.

When he first entered the male dorm, everything had been fine. But as he walked deeper into the dorm, he turned his head around and realized that Shen Mengbing had suddenly disappeared without a trace.

He pushed open the nearest door and a hanging mannequin. He called Shen Mengbing's name again and again. But instead of getting an answer from the girl, he caught the attention of the hanging mannequin. He was followed by the mannequin as he went deeper into the dorm. If he could still accept this situation, what happened next completely shattered Ling Feijie's mind.

He was already very afraid. To shake loose of the hanging mannequin who had been following him, he rushed down the corridor faster. He was running halfway down the corridor when he caught sight of the silhouette of a voluptuous woman. His heart leaped in relief and joy, thinking it was Shen Mengbing. He hurried after her. But when he got closer, before he even had the chance to say anything, he saw the woman's head turned 180 degrees around. That was only the beginning. With a beatific smile on her face, the woman's body crumbled like pieces of building blocks.

Ling Feijie was so frightened that he felt his knees weaken. Somehow, he crawled his way into the boy with the stench's old room. He saw the big closet and believed that it was a good hiding spot, but just as he pulled the door open, a dead body that was wrapped in cellophane tape toppled out and crashed upon him. He came literally face to face with a dead body.

"Boss, the woman abandoned her male partner and ran away. Ol' Bai is trying to track her down. I have trapped the abandoned man inside this room."

"A job well done, Duan Yue. This proves that you can work independently already."

The dorm room was pushed open, and one mannequin head after another rolled into the room. The pairs of lifeless eyes looked at Ling Feijie with curiosity. The scent of blood and a horrible stench permeated the small dorm room. Then an impossibly large person in red squeezed into the room. Behind him trailed a headless woman who was hugging her own head in her arms. Being surrounded by this group of 'people', Ling Feijie's tears that he had been trying to hold in started to fall. He felt like he was about to suffocate and die.

But the Specters merely surrounded him. None of them touched him, much less harmed him. Soon, the echo of footsteps approached, and the dorm room door was opened again. The mannequin heads rolled to the side while the stench and the headless woman cleared a path for a young man carrying a backpack to walk into the room.

“Ling Feijie, is it?” Chen Ge knelt down before Ling Feijie. “What is your relationship with that woman? How did she contact you, and what did she tell you?”

Ling Feijie, who was lying on the ground, looked at Chen Ge. The mental defense in his heart had completely shattered. Once he opened his mouth, he started to blubber with tears.

“I only asked you a few simple questions. Why did you start crying?” Chen Ge frowned deeply as he took out Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer from his backpack. “You are in your mid-twenties, but you are still crying like a child. Stop crying right now, or else I will figure out a way to make you unable to keep crying.”

Seeing the hammer that Chen Ge had taken out from his backpack, Ling Feijie cried even harder. He was not just crying anymore; he was weeping openly until his whole body was shaking. To prevent causing lasting physical or mental damage to Ling Feijie, Chen Ge had no choice but to order the boy with the stench to knock the man out. “Take him to the underground morgue to find Zhang Yi. The rest of you, follow him to go and find the woman.”

After leaving the male dorm, Chen Ge managed to contact most of the employees through the phone spirit, Tong Tong. He mobilized everyone to go search for that woman, Shen Mengbing. This meant that the visitors who were visiting the underground scenarios became unlucky sacrificial victims. Baleful Specters and lingering spirits wandered the place freely. Normally, it was the visitors who went looking for ghosts, but this time, the ghosts had grouped up together to go searching for a visitor.

About ten minutes later, Chen Ge received a message from Tong Tong. Ol’ Bai and the students from the School of the Afterlife had blocked Shen Mengbing inside the entrance of a classroom in School of the Afterlife.

“With so many scenarios to pick from, she chose to hide in a four-star scenario. She sure has a sharp intuition.”

Dragging the Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer, with two Red Specters trailing behind him, Chen Ge did not hide his presence and appeared before Shen Mengbing in all his glory.

“What are you planning to do?” Shen Mengbing, who appeared weak and soft, cowered at the back row inside the classroom. She was cornered with nowhere to run. Shadows flickered at the front door, backdoor, and even the windows.

“Why is it always the thief who calls out theft first? I am sure you know what I plan to do.” Chen Ge summoned Xu Yin, and the Red Specters in the room increased to a staggering number of five. “Should I call you Shen Mengbing or Jia Ming? Which do you prefer?”

When Shen Mengbing heard the name Jia Ming, her hands that shielded her eyes slowly lowered. The panic and nervousness on her face faded away. She leaned against the hard wall behind her and slowly raised her hands above her head. “How did you discover it was me?”

Further argument would be pointless, so Shen Mengbing made the smartest choice.

“Why would you care, and why should I tell you?” Chen Ge had the four Red Specters surround Shen Mengbing in the middle. This was a rare treatment for anyone. “I’ll give you a choice. Are you going to come out on your own, or do you want me to force you out?”

Chapter 1026 - You Didn't Expect This Day to Come

Chapter 1026: You Didn't Expect This Day to Come

“Or we can sit down and talk. There is no conflict of interest between us. We are both victims of the ghost fetus.” Shen Mengbing’s voice was still so soft and melodious, but her tone had completely changed from before.

“How come that sounds so familiar?” Chen Ge thought about it and realized that he had said the very same thing quite often in the past. “Looks like you are not willing to come out without any persuasion. Guys, why don’t you go and help him?”

The few Red Specters walked toward Shen Mengbing, and the pressure on her was unimaginable. Bead-like sweat slid down Shen Mengbing’s beautiful face. There was a deep sense of helplessness in her eyes. This was person who had gained the favor of more than a handful of Red Specters but chose to use their power to open a haunted house—she simply could not wrap her head around Chen Ge’s thinking.

...

“If I had the same number of Red Specters, no, just give me one Red Specter who will side with me, then I would not have been so cornered...” Shen Mengbing gripped her hands tightly, but in the end, she chose to surrender. “I can tell you very important information, but in exchange, I hope you can let me go.”

“I do not think you have understood the predicament that you are in. I do not need you to volunteer any information to me. In a minute, I will have my friends drag you forcibly out from this woman’s body. Then I will have them curse your body. Finally, I will have the many spirits who I house here munch on your spirit bit by bit. I will have you watch yourself being consumed bite by bite. But don’t you worry, I will not let your spirit dissipate so easily. I will give you time to recover so that we can repeat this process as much as we like,” Chen Ge said with a smile, but a serious glow lit up his eyes, proving how serious he was.

“Are you a devil in human skin?” Shen Mengbing’s face was pale from the neck up. There was no trace of blood at all.

“My haunted house is filled with ghosts with unusual talents. Some of them are experts in curses; others can manipulate people’s memories. You will be a perfect lab rat for them to try out their powers.” Chen Ge shrugged. “I am sure you did not expect such a day to come when you were torturing others, did you?”

“The ghost fetus is coming alive soon, and you are the key player. The condition of his birth is that you must die. I know many secrets about the ghost fetus, and I can help you!” Shen Mengbing changed tact, and her attitude became so much kinder.

“I will believe anything that comes out of your mouth—as long as you first leave that innocent woman’s body.”

“No problem. But after I leave the human body, I will soon disperse into nothingness.” Shen Mengbing looked troubled.

“Don’t worry, as long as I am around, I will not let you die so easily.”

Hearing Chen Ge say that, Shen Mengbing’s expression seemed to turn paler. She slowly slid to the ground and closed her eyes. A chilly wind blew inside the classroom, and the woman’s shadow slowly stood up on its own. Using Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge could see a clump of sticky blood red threads in the middle of the woman’s shadow. The threads were rife with curses and venom, and they slowly took on the shape of a man. The shadow did not look like Jia Ming; he was much taller than Jia Ming.

“How to possess a person’s body and slowly take over their mind is something I have learned from the ghost fetus. After all, he started as someone’s shadow.” The man was a unique kind of Specter. His body was made up of curses and blood vessels. He could be considered a Half Red Specter. “I am Jiang Long. I was once a victim. The ghost fetus made my whole family crazy and forced me to do his bidding. After I did his dirty work, he turned me into this. I dream day after day of killing him.”

“That is such a coincidence. I have been dreaming of killing him as well.” Chen Ge took out his comic. “But stop wasting time. Why did you come to my haunted house? And don’t you think about lying. Being honest will benefit everyone.”

“The ghost fetus wants to be reborn. He has taken a very important from each of the nine children. He is currently still asleep in one of the children. When he wakes up, whether he succeeds or not, we will all have to die.”

The man’s voice was shaking. When the term ‘ghost fetus’ was mentioned, the fear that he felt was visceral. It was a fear that was ingrained in his mind, one that would not be wiped away no matter what.

“Don’t tell me things that I already know.” Chen Ge dragged the hammer and took one more step forward. “You know more details about the nine children, don’t you?”

Chen Ge had been suspecting that for a long time. Without the aid from external forces, being pursued by the police, Jia Ming’s group managed to find an altar on their own. That was unimaginable unless they had some inside information.

“Other than the ghost fetus himself, no one knows the exact details about these children, but I know a way that can be used to identify these children.” The man did not hide the facts. “I have a child with me from Li Wan City. His name is Zhen Zhen. He is a failed product that was cultivated by the shadow. There is a spirit lingering in him that is very similar to the ghost fetus. In other words, he comes from the same origin as the ghost fetus. So, occasionally, he has some strange dreams, and the dreams are a reflection of the weave of the intertwining destiny of the nine children.”

Chapter 1027 - Touch the Police, Change Your Life

Chapter 1027: Touch the Police, Change Your Life

Chen Ge was playing hide and seek with the ghost fetus with the whole city as the playground. The ghost fetus was hiding, and he was seeking; this annoyed him slightly. But Zhen Zhen's appearance gave Chen Ge hope. However, the premise was that Jiang Long was not lying to him.

"Where is the boy now?"

"I've hidden him away. The police and another group of people from Jiujiang are looking for him." The blood vessels pulsed on Jiang Long's body. It looked disgusting.

...

"Another group of people?" Chen Ge's interest was piqued. He had no idea that other people, other than himself, were interested in the ghost fetus.

"We met their people in Li Wan City. The man's lips were frozen in a smile, and he wore a patient's outfit under his jacket."

"The non-smiler!"

"Yes, but I have no idea whether he is doing this independently or the cursed hospital at Xin Hai is behind it." Jiang Long's voice slowly became calm. He seemed to have accepted that he had fallen into Chen Ge's hands and had given up struggling.

"You also know about the cursed hospital?" Chen Ge narrowed his eyes. "You're not lying to me, are you? Purposely trying to distract my attention with that hospital?"

"Why would I lie to you? Today, I came here because I am already cornered. Otherwise, I wouldn't take such a risk." Jiang Long smiled bitterly. "The police won't stop chasing me, but the real despair came from the sighting of that non-smiler at my house last night. The madman was just standing there. We both saw each other."

“But what does that have to do with you entering my haunted house?” Chen Ge was a constant visitor at the police station and had been in the interrogation room many times. He could not help but pick up some useful skills over time, so now he was quite familiar with interrogating others.

“The shadow said that you have a door hidden in your haunted house. He became what he was after he entered that door.” The shadow had possessed Jiang Long’s body for a long time, so the latter knew a lot of the former’s secret.

“Did he tell you what is behind the door?”

“You don’t know that yourself?” After hearing Chen Ge’s question, Jiang Long was startled, but he soon returned to normal. “The shadow never mentioned that. I wanted to enter that door myself because I wanted to become as strong as the shadow. The police are drawing closer, and now the non-smiler is after me as well. I need to find a way out for myself.”

Jiang Long’s reasoning was sound. After giving it some thought, Chen Ge stopped the interrogation. “It’s too dangerous to leave the child alone. Tell me where he is. I’ll bring him here.”

The classroom turned quiet, and Jiang Long said after a long time, “He is in a basement in Western Jiujiang. It’s quite isolated. I’ll take you there.”

Flipping the comic, Chen Ge placed Jiang Long in with the stench.

“Well, everyone, it’s time to go back to work. The man has been caught.” Chen Ge had the employees return to their post as he dragged the backpack and headed outside. To prevent Jiang Long from doing some funny business, Chen Ge had Men Nan and the red high heels guard the ‘door’ at the toilet and had Ol’ Zhou and Ol’ Bai patrol the underground scenarios. After ensuring that there would be no more problems, Chen Ge left the theme park and headed toward Jiang Long’s lair.

The place was very far from the theme park and would rarely be visited by others. When Chen Ge left the theme park, a few plainclothes followed him. Chen Ge noticed them, but he did not stop them. After taking a long detour, Chen Ge found Zhen Zhen’s hiding spot in the back alley of a building that was about to be taken down in the old city.

“It wouldn’t be easy to find this place alone.” Jiang Long had probably had his eyes on Chen Ge’s haunted house for a long time, but the level of information was not equal. His plan was nipped in the bud before he had a chance to put it into action. The owner was long gone. With Jiang Long’s direction, Chen Ge entered the backyard and peeled back the wooden boards that led to the cellar. He looked down the cellar and saw a boy tied to a wooden pole. Next to him was a fainted adult man.

“Zhen Zhen?”

Hearing the voice, the boy slowly opened his eyes and then started to mumble help at Chen Ge.

“It’s alright now. Don’t be afraid.” Chen Ge entered the cellar and undid the ropes around the boy. The boy had been tied up for a long time. His limbs were purple with bruises from the ropes. He carried the boy out from the cellar before turning to the fainted man. The man was Jia Ming. The real culprit was Jiang Long, but it would be Jia Ming who took the fall. He had already lost his self. His soul and spirit had been consumed by Jiang Long, and only an empty shell was left. In essence, Jiang Long had ruined Jia Ming’s life.

“You sure have done quite a lot of sins.” Chen Ge was about to ask Jiang Long some questions when the backyard door was pushed open.

“Don’t move! Get on the ground!”

“Get on the ground now!”

Two plainclothes rushed in, and police sirens followed. Soon, two officers in uniform joined them.

“We’re allies! My name is Chen Ge. This suspect came here because he wanted to kill me!” Chen Ge gave out the key information in the shortest time possible. “If you do not believe me, you can call Lee Zheng from the crime investigation unit!”

“He wanted to kill you?” The two plainclothes looked at the unconscious Jia Ming and then at the lively Chen Ge. Something was not right with his statement.

“Put your guns down. He’s one of us!” The two officers that came later were from the crime investigation unit. Even though Chen Ge could not recognize them, they recognized him. With the misunderstanding out of the way, Chen Ge sighed in relief. He had only just realized how terrifying being targeted by two real guns was.

“It has been confirmed. The unconscious man is a grade A fugitive, Jia Ming.” The police held Chen Ge by both hands. “Brother, you have done another great job!”

“It’s what I should do. Helping the law enforcement to ensure societal safety is the responsibility of every citizen. Of course, if there’s a reward, it’ll only make it better.”

Chen Ge stood next to Zhen Zhen while the police carried Jia Ming into the police car. The arrest went smoothly, but as the two officers were dragging Jia Ming out the backyard, the comic that Chen Ge was holding suddenly started to turn on its own. The blood vessels and curses entangled to form a fast moving shadow, and it moved into Jia Ming’s body. The unconscious Jia Ming opened his eyes. His eyes bloodshot, he screamed, “He wants to kill me! Help me! Help me!”

Then, he crawled into the police car like a madman. This was the first time that the officers had encountered a fugitive that wanted to be captured so badly. Honestly, Chen Ge himself was given quite a shock. He really did not expect a baleful Specter to turn to the police for help. However, Chen Ge quickly snapped out of it. Just as Jiang Long slipped back into Jia Ming’s body, he launched himself at the man, brandishing the comic. “Everyone, be careful!”

“Save me! Arrest me and take me to jail! Lock me up, please! Save me from him!”

Chen Ge raised his fist and aimed it right at Jia Ming’s face. He had to shut the man up. Chen Ge knocked Jia Ming into the corner of the alley. In that brief moment, Chen Ge summoned all the Red Specters that he could from the comic and stuffed them into Jia Ming’s body.

“Officers! Save me! Arrest me...” Jia Ming’s eyes rolled upward, and he fainted again.

“Chen Ge, are you alright?” The few officers immediately came to help Chen Ge.

“Just a small bruise, it’s fine.” Chen Ge picked up the comic that had turned red and slowly got up. “The man faked being unconscious. So cunning.”

Chapter 1028 - Similarities Between the Ghost Fetus and the Black Phone

Chapter 1028: Similarities Between the Ghost Fetus and the Black Phone

Helping the police detain the criminal twice brushed up Chen Ge's reputation within the local law enforcement greatly. The arrest of a Grade A fugitive was going to create big news, but due to Jia Ming's own uniqueness and the fact that the cases that he was involved in were not revealed to the public, Chen Ge's name only made the rounds among certain law enforcement circles.

"Officers, the boy's father has just been killed, and his mother is in ICU. Now is his most vulnerable moment. If possible, I wish to accompany him." Chen Ge carried the backpack and hugged the boy's shoulders as he pulled him to his side.

"Don't worry, we will call in the professional to look after him and give him proper counselling."

...

"Then, can I visit him sometimes? I know his parents, and we have some catching up to do. May I?" Chen Ge looked at the boy with warmth.

"When you wish to see him, just call Inspector Lee Zheng and ask for a request." The officers did not have the heart to reject Chen Ge.

"Thank you." Chen Ge squatted behind the boy. "My name is Chen Ge. Come find me if you need anything."

"I remember you... On the bus, you sat behind father..." The boy had once entered Li Wan City with Chen Ge on the hearse. He could still remember Chen Ge's face.

"That day, I should have brought you all away with me. If I'd done that, you wouldn't have suffered so much." After giving the boy a light hug, Chen Ge picked up the backpack and left the small alley.

Seeing him walk away, the two plainclothes sighed softly. "Such a kind man."

Chen Ge did not hear that, of course. After leaving the alley, he did not return to New Century Park but walked into a nearby building. Standing inside the stairwell where the sun could not reach, Chen Ge flipped through the comic, and the scent of blood tickled his nose. Soon, the stench and Xu Yin appeared, holding Jiang Long between him.

“Chen Ge, give me one more chance. I don’t know what came over me earlier. I was just acting on instinct. I couldn’t control myself!” Jiang Long was so damaged that his shadow was gotten much lighter. He kept begging for mercy. “I’ll give you important information. Zhen Zhen and I have already found a candidate chosen by the ghost fetus. The boy has a failed sense of smell. His smell was taken by the ghost fetus!”

Chen Ge was expressionless as he looked at Jiang Long. “Bring me to him.”

“He’s already dead. It was Bei Ye who killed him.” Jiang Long revealed more. “Every candidate chosen by the ghost fetus has a corresponding door, and behind the door hides one of the ghost fetus’ powers. If you can find the item that contains the ghost fetus’ lingering spirit behind the door, you can gain that power.”

“There is such a thing?”

“I got that knowledge from the shadow, but it’s hard to put it into action. Seven days ago, we found that child, and we entered the door when he was sleeping. The item in question was a toy dog.” Jiang Long sneaked a look at Chen Ge at this point. “I can take you to see that toy dog and the mud statuette with the boy’s name.”

“Wait a minute. At most, you are just a Half Red Specter. How could you manage to kill the Specter left behind by the ghost fetus behind the door on your own?” Chen Ge himself had entered the doors of these children. Any of these doors were almost as powerful as a two-star scenario.

“The more doors you open, the closer the ghost fetus comes to waking up, and thus, his presence will get stronger. The door I opened was the first one, so it was also the easiest one.” Chen Ge calculated the timeline. Jiang Long was not lying about that. He had entered Jiang Ming and Wu Sheng’s doors. The world behind Wu Sheng’s door was obviously bigger and scarier than Jiang Ming’s door.

“Take me to that toy dog.”

“Okay, they’re back inside that small yard.”

With Jiang Long leading the way, Chen Ge returned to the small yard. He entered from the backdoor and found a black leather case under the bed. Opening it, Chen Ge saw a toy dog that had lost most of its fake fur. Chen Ge remembered this toy dog too. When he first moved, he had found this toy on the stairs. At the time, the dog had still been quite new, and it had looked fluffy and cute with its fur. He had no idea who had left it there, but after waiting there for an hour, he had taken the toy home with him.

“Was this one of the shadow’s toys?” Chen Ge reached out to pick up the toy dog. At the same time, the black phone in his pocket vibrated. Chen Ge pulled the Specters all back into the comic and took out the black phone.

“Completed 3/9 of the four-star Trial Mission, Ghost Fetus. The ghost fetus’ sense of smell is heavily injured. Red Specters’ Favored, you do not have much time left!”

When he saw the message, Chen Ge sighed in relief. Jiang Long did not lie to him. The toy dog did come out from one of the doors. Unfortunately, it was not Chen Ge who had found the boy but Jiang Long and Bei Ye. With a sigh, Chen Ge placed the mud statuette on his shadow. The bloodied mud statuette had the name Liu Wen on it. When the statuette touched Chen Ge’s shadow, the blood stains disappeared rapidly. This time, Chen Ge stood to the side and observed this quietly. He noticed that his shadow was like a deep pool, and through the surface of the pool, he could catch a blurry glimpse of a woman’s sleeping face.

“The wounds on Zhang Ya appear to be recovering. Looks like the black blood on the statuette is of great help to her.” With his hand on the shadow, Chen Ge’s eyes narrowed. The woman who appeared to be floating in an endless ocean flickered her lashes like she was awakening. When the last drop of blood was sucked away, the mud statuette with Liu Wen’s name shattered.

“Liu Wen, Wu Sheng, Fang Yu, and the statuette with my name... After Zhang Ya absorbs all the black blood from these statuettes, perhaps she will wake up.”

Standing in the stairwell, Chen Ge looked at the shattered statuette.

“To get reborn as a man, the ghost fetus has stolen different powers from nine children, including the sense of smell, hearing, sight, and so on. But... they correspond perfectly with the rewards that the black phone has been giving me! When I first got the black phone, the first power I was given was Yin Yang Vision. That is the power of sight. Then I got the talent of Living Doll, a power related to creation of human body. Then I got Ghost Ear and Spirit Sniff, which correspond to the five senses. They are similar to the various powers that the ghost fetus has taken away from these children!

“Is the ghost fetus also doing the same mission given by the black phone, or are they actually two sides of the same coin?”

Chen Ge was overwhelmed by a sudden chill. Perhaps this moment was predestined as soon as he picked up the black phone.

Chapter 1029 - Xiao Bu, I've Caught Him for You

Chapter 1029: Xiao Bu, I've Caught Him for You

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Chen Ge could still remember when he first found the black phone. In a few months' time, he and his haunted house had both experienced significant changes, but the phone in his pocket was the same as ever. Chen Ge stared at the screen and asked to no one in particular, "What is the actual truth?"

The phone told him that he was getting closer to the truth, but he had no idea at all what that meant. Even for high-difficulty missions like the ghost fetus and School of the Afterlife, the black phone had only categorized them as Trial Mission. If these were just trials... Chen Ge stopped himself from going down that path. Now was not the time to worry about that.

...

"I have lost some of my earlier memories, but my shadow hasn't. In a way, he is the most reliable witness. Perhaps this Ghost Fetus trial mission is supposed to be a turning point. If I can communicate with the ghost fetus and get to know everything from him, I might know what I have been through and what happened to my parents."

Everything could be answered in that moment, but he first needed to capture the ghost fetus and make him speak.

"A hide and seek of life and death, a game between me and my shadow. Perhaps this was a game from way back when." Chen Ge placed the toy dog into his backpack, beside the wooden toys. Ten minutes later, Chen Ge returned to the haunted house. He was about to enter the underground scenario when he saw a smiling Ol' Zhou hugging Wu Jinpeng by his shoulders, and beside them were two fainted medical students.

"What are you guys talking about? You look so happy."

"Boss, is this our new employee? He's exceptionally gifted!" Ol' Zhao laughed happily. It seemed like he had befriended Wu Jinpeng when Chen Ge was away.

“Exceptionally gifted?” Chen Ge turned to Wu Jinpeng with curiosity, his mind wondering if the man had stumbled upon some kind of special power during a moment of crisis.

“Stop making fun of me,” Wu Jinpeng said sadly. “I also don’t know why these two children were so scared of me. I just wanted to help them, but I accidentally ushered them into the trap of the old employees.”

“Don’t be so humble. To be able to scare the visitors so well until they fainted on their first day means that you have a talent at this.” Chen Ge patted Wu Jinpeng on his shoulder. “Keep up the good work. If you have any question, just ask Ol’ Zhou.”

Seeing how well Wu Jinpeng had managed to mix into his new family, Chen Ge was relieved.

When they get to know each other better, Wu Jinpeng will not be that surprised when he finds out Ol’ Zhou and the rest’s real identity.

Opening the door that led underground, Chen Ge hurried to the underground morgue to find Zhang Yi and Doctor Wei. “Did Zhang Yi’s power work? Have the three visitors woken up?”

“I can only temporarily suppress part of their memory. In the future, they might jump up from their sleep, and some fragments of memory might come back to them.” Zhang Yi still looked very weak, like he was going to die soon.

“That’s more than enough. You have an amazing power.” Chen Ge took out the high heels. “You need to recover as fast as you can. Your power will come in useful.”

After moving the three visitors and two medical students out from the haunted house, Chen Ge returned to the staff breakroom. He pulled the curtains shut, locked the door, and summoned Jiang Long and the Stench. He used a whole afternoon to question Jiang Long and got all the information he needed.

“Chen Ge, I have told you everything I know. Now I just ask for... a swift ending.” Jiang Long, who was practically translucent, lay on the ground. He was too weak to lift his head.

“The shadow used you, but after he left you, you could have made many other choices, but you chose to become the second shadow.” The setting sun gilded the room. He turned the comic to the last few pages. “You reap what you sow, and it is time for you to face the music.”

His finger touching the page, all the objects in the room moved. Numerous blood vessels spread to cover the entire room. Among the bloody flower, a girl materialized beside Chen Ge. She was very young and looked weak, just like a doll that would be played with by others.

“Xiao Bu, I’ve helped you capture the man who turned your mother into a doll.” When he first played Xiao Bu’s game, that scene had left a huge impact on Chen Ge. He had controlled Xiao Bu and returned to his own home but found her stepfather being made into a doll. At the time, he had thought that was the game’s style; he did not think much of it. But perhaps it was a subconscious revenge by Xiao Bu. After all, it was her own mother that had been made into a ‘doll’ in real life.

Xiao Bu, who had such a nice personality, grabbed Jiang Long by his head. The blood vessels crawled all over his body, and throughout the whole process, the man did not stop screaming. Half an hour later, Xiao Bu picked up Jiang Long, who had been sewn into a doll by the blood vessels. She stood in the middle of room as if at a loss.

1Standing up, Chen Ge walked to her side and gave her a light hug. As the sun set, Xiao Bu returned to the comic. Chen Ge looked at the room that appeared it had been visited by a tornado. “I almost forgot. The child is as strong as a Top Red Specter behind her door. After all, she is the door pusher of a 3.5-star scenario.”

After cleaning up the room, it was time to call it a day. Chen Ge called the other living employees and held a simple welcoming ceremony for Wu Jinpeng. Seeing how friendly and close the employees were, Wu Jinpeng felt at ease. After everyone left, Chen Ge took out a long document. This was the result of his interrogation of Jiang Long.

Jiang Long and Zhen Zhen had triangulated two candidates chosen by the ghost fetus. One of them had lost the sense of smell and had been killed; the other seemed to have a heart problem. They had confirmed the child’s address but were pursued by the police before they could do anything.

“I have five nights left. That should be enough time.”

“Tonight, I should go take a look behind Fang Yu’s door and then hurry to the coffin village. Reincarnation is what the Well Lady is obsessed with. Perhaps she can give me some crucial information.” The lady in the well had been around for a long time, and she had entered the blood fog many times. Chen Ge believed that she had more to tell him, so he wished for a chat.

Carrying his backpack, Chen Ge went to the underground scenario to fetch Zhang Yi and the red high heels before leaving the haunted house.

He found the address for the child with the heart problem, but the home was deserted. He waited at the door for a long time, but no one appeared. However, he did see a familiar face at the corner of the street. The lips were cracked, the face forever plastered with a smile. The ‘non-smiler’ in a hat appeared around the child’s home, but he left in a hurry after he noticed Chen Ge. The two did not get into an altercation.

Chapter 1030 - Gray and White Memory World

Chapter 1030: Gray and White Memory World

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“The non-smilers have targeted these children, too. I have to work faster.” Chen Ge did not have to fight with the cursed hospital yet. What he wished for the most was for the ghost fetus to fight the cursed hospital so that he could reap the benefit in the middle, but the chances of that happening were very low.

Glancing at the phone for the time, Chen Ge did not wait too long at the child’s home. He took a cab and went to Fang Yu’s favorite park. The road was sealed, and the park was cordoned off by blue construction boards. From more than ten meters away, Chen Ge saw Fang Yu, who stand alone outside the park. “She has come here again.”

...

After paying the fare, Chen Ge walked toward Fang Yu. “What are you doing?”

Fang Yu turned blankly around. The gaze that fell on Chen Ge was somewhat surprised, like the owner had some impression of this face. “I’m sorry, but do you know...”

“Yes, I do know Fang Yu. I am his best friend. Tonight, I shall take you to meet him.” Chen Ge answered so fast that it startled Fang Yu. The girl might not have a good memory, but she was not dumb. She was a little suspicious of Chen Ge.

“Looks like you have forgotten me again.” He explained for a long time, but Fang Yu still did not trust Chen Ge. She gripped her fists and turned to run back to her home. Chen Ge was quite helpless, so he chased after her. He could see things from her perspective. For a person with memory loss, the world was strange and filled with uncertainty. When they reached Fang Yu’s residential area, the auntie who Chen Ge had met before saw him. She saw Chen Ge, who was following Fang Yu, and she walked over with a kind smile.

“Have you come to see Fang Yu again?” The way the aunty looked at Chen Ge was strange, like a mother assessing the boy her daughter had brought home.

“Auntie, I might disturb you again tonight.” Chen Ge carried the backpack and walked toward Fang Yu. “Through some investigation, I found a way that could evoke Fang Yu’s memory, and I want to test it out tonight.”

“What way is that?”

“I can’t tell you just yet, but I guarantee it will work.”

“Then that’s perfect. Come on, why are we standing here in the cold?” The auntie invited Chen Ge and Fang Yu into her home. Once indoors, Fang Yu hid inside her room. “Sigh, this girl. I’m afraid she will one day forget about herself.”

“She won’t.” Chen Ge was curious about Fang Yu’s illness. He wanted to know what Fang Yu’s world behind the door looked like. “Auntie, actually, I am a clinical therapist, and I will need your help with today’s session.”

“Just tell me anything you need.”

“Give me Fang Yu’s bedroom key, and the treatment will start at midnight.”

The auntie hesitated before she agreed. At midnight, all the lights were off. Chen Ge sneaked into Fang Yu’s bedroom, and he saw the blood door beside Fang Yu’s bed. Compared to Wu Sheng’s door, Fang Yu’s door was almost covered in red. It looked almost no different from a real blood door. Fang Yu was a light sleeper. After Chen Ge locked the door, he did not stop and headed straight for the blood door. When his hand closed over the doorknob, something unexpected happened.

The backpack started to leak blood, and he heard pages turning. To not wake up Fang Yu, Chen Ge did not hesitate and pushed the door open.

...

When he opened his eyes, Chen Ge felt a great pain from his brain, as if a pair of hands had reached into his brain to pull a chunk of it out. He grabbed his head and slowly squatted on the ground. He took a few minutes’ rest before he stood up again.

“Wait... is this the front door of Jiujiang’s Children’s Home?” Fang Yu’s world was different from all the worlds that Chen Ge had encountered before. It was monochromatic, only gray and white. There was no blackness or redness; it was like a still of a grayscale picture. Standing on the spot, Chen Ge opened the backpack and was surprised to find Zhang Ya’s bedtime story sitting atop everything else.

“I remember slipping this into the side compartment.” Chen Ge flipped through the book, and it only got more surprising. The blood characters on the book had disappeared. “How did this happen?”

Chen Ge checked everything else. It was all fine. Only Zhang Ya’s bedtime story was affected. “Is it because she is a Demon God? Has it caused the ghost fetus to be worried?”

Shaking his head, Chen Ge had no idea. He tried to communicate with Xu Yin and the other ghosts, and it was a long time before he got a reaction. This world behind the door was very stable, so that meant the limitation on Xu Yin and the rest was heavy. It would be hard for them to break through.

“This is only the third door that I’ve entered, and the situation is already so bad. Just how scary is the door where the real ghost fetus is hiding?”

Walking in the gray and white door, Chen Ge slowly noticed the difference of this world. The other worlds were laden with the lingering spirit and obsession of the door pusher, but this world was different. Everything in sight was faded, like a painting that was being brushed away. Everything was turning strange and blurry. The pedestrians on the street hurried away. They had no faces, and they wore the same outfit.

“Memory is the core of one’s existence. Without memories, the world will turn into something like this, huh? Pale, blurry, and dulling one’s sense in uncertainty and anxiety.”

There was another strange thing about this world. At the end of the alley, on the door of the convenient store, on the wall, there were placed many mirrors. Chen Ge knew mirrors represented a unique meaning behind the door. He stood before one to study it, and he saw the color on his body slowly fading as well. Chen Ge in the mirror was slowly being assimilated into this world.

“The colors might be my memory. When I become gray and white, perhaps I will forget even myself. Looks like I can’t stay here for too long.” Xu Yin and the rest’s help was temporarily unavailable to him, but Chen Ge knew Fang Yu’s story. He knew where to find her. “The monsters behind the door are projections of people and incidents in real life. Fang Yu has a horrible memory. All the people here have no faces. She has forgotten herself, so naturally, she won’t remember those horrible things.”

Without memories, there was no joy, and of course, there was no sadness. How could one be despaired when one was not given hope in the first place?

In a way, it was lucky. No one stopped Chen Ge because no one was interested in him. To them, Chen Ge was just a passing pedestrian, and they would forget about him after they turned the corner. That worked for Chen Ge. As time passed, perhaps after he made that one step, Chen Ge would forget what he was doing, where he was doing, and who he was.

He was thankful that he already knew of Fang Yu’s past before he entered this world. Without wasting time, he started to search for the place where Fang Yu most likely would be—the small house inside the forest by the dam.

Chapter 1031 - First Time Conversing With It

Chapter 1031: First Time Conversing With It

The fading world had its color seeping out. Chen Ge could see his hands turning gray. He noticed that this door was more complicated than he had expected. “My brain is getting duller by the minute. This can’t go on any longer.”

Fang Yu’s world was much bigger than Wu Sheng’s world. Other than the orphanage, most of the other buildings looked the same, so it was easy to get lost in the city. Chen Ge looked for a long time before he found a way to exit the city. It was a small path hidden among a gray forest. There was no smell of flowers, no chirping of birds—everywhere he looked, there was gray foliage and white trunks. His limbs were turning white. Chen Ge could sense his movement slowing down. He had no idea why that was happening.

“No matter what, I need to find Fang Yu soon!”

...

The forest went deeper than he thought. The road was winding, and it appeared to go on endlessly. Chen Ge trekked forward because he had no other choice. The longer he stayed in Fang Yu’s world, the more he would forget. Therefore, he could not repeat what he had done in Wu Sheng’s world; he could not wait at a stop for Xu Yin and the rest to come before he made his move. Every second was precious, just like Fang Yu’s life. From the moment she opened her eyes in the morning and wrote down her memory, her life entered a countdown. She had to find the people in her memory before midnight because she knew that once she lay down, it would be a clean slate the next morning.

After a very long walk, until Chen Ge became numb to the surroundings, the scenery suddenly opened up. There was a wooden house at the end of the road. It was surrounded by fresh flowers and littered with toys. Pushing open the door, Chen Ge’s hands that grabbed the backpack tightened. He saw a little girl sitting in the middle of the house. She wore pure white clothes and had long gray hair. She was carrying a small fishbowl, in which a blood red goldfish was swimming. The fish moved agitatedly, but the fish bowl was only so big.

“Fang Yu?” Hearing him, the girl in the white dress turned to look at Chen Ge. She looked just like Fang Yu, but her eyes were like lifeless as if she was a puppet.

“I finally found you. It’s time to go home.” The girl’s body shivered. Her lips moved, but she made no sound. It appeared like she was repeating the term ‘home’ soundlessly. Chen Ge looked at the girl before his eyes wandered to the fishbowl. The only thing that had color in this world was that goldfish. Entering the room, Chen Ge pulled up the girl from the floor. The girl did not resist, like a shell that had no self.

“There are many people missing you back at home. They have not forgotten you.” The girl hugged the fishbowl while Chen Ge put his hands around her as they walked out from the wooden house. Once they stepped out, the goldfish became more agitated like it was trying to jump out from its small enclosure.

“Why are you hugging that fishbowl? Is the goldfish that important to you?”

“Yes.” A simple word, but that was the first voice that Chen Ge had heard in the world behind Fang Yu’s door. Realizing that he could communicate with her, Chen Ge smiled. “You must be lonely, staying here alone, right? Do you remember a boy who always stay by your side, a boy who is a chatterbox?”

The girl shook her head, but her eyes stayed glued to the goldfish. It was hard to tell what she was thinking.

“He helped you at the most dangerous moment. For you, he gave his life.” Chen Ge carried the girl, but he was also studying the goldfish. “Do you know what it means by the end of one’s life?”

The girl did not answer.

“The opposite of life is death. After we die, we cannot hear his voice, see his face, or touch his palms anymore.” Chen Ge was not just chatting with the girl. He was testing her out. Fang Yu only had one day of memory, but that did not mean that she had forgotten everything. There was one person that she had not forgotten, and that was Zhang Yi. Chen Ge knew what Zhang Yi represented for Fang Yu. Before entering this world, he predicted that Zhang Yi would be the only light in Fang Yu’s world. But after meeting Fang Yu, Chen Ge realized that things were not that simple. The only color and light in this gray and white world was a goldfish, a blood red goldfish.

“In this world, has anyone spoken to you, other than myself?” Chen Ge carried the backpack and walked next to the girl. They walked side by side, but neither of them was looking at each other. Their eyes were focused elsewhere.

After a long time, the girl replied, “No.”

There was no expression on her face, and her gray eyes carried no hope. There was no despair, either, only a still silence.

“Then, am I your only friend?” Chen Ge spoke very slowly like he needed to think for a long time before he could construct the sentence in his mind.

“Friend?” The girl stopped moving. Her gray eyes looked at Chen Ge, the latter reflecting in her eyes. For some reason, the world in her eyes appeared to become more barren. “You, no.”

“Fine, perhaps I got the wrong person.” Chen Ge’s hand landed on the girl’s shoulder lightly. “I used to have a friend like you. He is very lonely and always alone. I forgot how we met, but I knew we were always seen together.”

Pa!

The clear fishbowl started to crack, but the girl continued to walk slowly ahead like nothing had happened.

“Why would such good friends end up like strangers?” Chen Ge looked at the winding road as he summoned Xu Yin’s name in his heart. The employees were trying hard to break through. They were trying to cooperate to break down this world.

“I have forgotten many things, all the pain, despair, and experiences that I have enjoyed with my friend. When I came to, the friend had already left.”

“What is the name of your friend?” The girl’s voice was soft. She kept her head lowered.

“I can’t remember anymore, but I believe it is Chen Ge.” Chen Ge stopped moving. “He wants to have the same name as mine.”

The girl did not stop, and she moved along without waiting for Chen Ge. The cracks on the fishbowl became more obvious. The goldfish swam about in anxiety, and the clear water became muddled.

“I also know someone with that name.” The girl’s voice was slightly different from before. “He has no friends. No one is willing to be his friend, including me.”

“Is the child that repellent?”

“No, it’s the opposite. He is a very good kid.” The girl kept her head lowered. The voice did not seem to come from her lips but somewhere else inside this world.

“Why would such a good kid have trouble making friends?” Chen Ge spoke slower and slower. Half of his body was now gray.

“Because he carries a deep secret.” The girl slowly lifted her head that had gotten blurry. “He is a child that refuses to die. No matter how you kill him, he will always return. Would you befriend someone like that?”

Chapter 1032 - Shadow Playing Alone

Chapter 1032: Shadow Playing Alone

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“A child that you can’t kill no matter what?” Chen Ge lifted his head, and his gaze passed through the gray foliage to look at the pale sky. Even if he was willing to be that kid’s friend, the kid would still have no friends because he was most likely that kid himself.

“I do not believe there is such a kid in this world. If he really exists, I will be his friend,” Chen Ge answered affirmatively. Then he turned to the girl. “By the way, how do you know he is unable to die no matter how he is killed?”

...

When Chen Ge asked that question, a very long crack appeared on the clear fishbowl, and the water inside started to leak out. It was worth noting that the clear water inside the fishbowl turned a murky gray color once it leaked out from the crack. The water level lowered, and the blood red goldfish struggled harder. Wounds started to appear on its body, dying the water in the bowl red.

“I have tried to kill him before.” The girl’s voice had completely changed. “I wanted to be him, but once I woke up from my dream, he once again returned.”

“Then, do you know how he managed to do that?” Chen Ge’s heart was racing, but his mind was getting blurry like he was forgetting something very important. However, the most dangerous thing was, he had no idea what he had forgotten.

“Yes...” The girl turned her head to look at Chen Ge.

By then, her face had completely faded away, and a new face was coming to replace it. “How did he manage to do that?”

The icy light fell on them. The two stood at the exit of the woods. The buildings around them were bleeding. On the left side where the girl was standing, the buildings were crawling with black threads that spoke of bad news, while on the right side where Chen Ge was standing, the buildings were dyed red as they crumbled. Fang Yu's world was almost similar to a world behind a real door, but it still could not resist the destruction from more than ten Red Specters.

After he entered the door, Chen Ge had noticed how different this world was, so he ordered his employees to make their move as swiftly as they could. He knew about Fang Yu's past, so he had no reason to take things slow. Reality had proved that he had made a wise decision.

"You are the lingering object the ghost fetus left behind this door, aren't you?"

When Chen Ge first spotted Fang Yu, he had been suspicious of that. If Fang Yu behind the door had really given up all hope, like how this girl was reacting, then the Fang Yu outside the door would not have tattooed Zhang Yi's name all over her body and waited in the park every night. The real Fang Yu had not given up. To test his suspicion further, Chen Ge had kept asking crucial questions, and his conclusion was that the girl before him was not Fang Yu.

In Fang Yu's world, other than herself, the only 'person' that could speak and had a memory would be the ghost fetus. The girl probably knew that her disguise had been exposed a long time ago, but she did not care. "How can you be so sure that I am not the ghost fetus himself?"

"Even though this world is far more stable than the other worlds, it is still too fragile for a Demon God. It is similar to how you wouldn't place a shark inside a normal fishbowl."

Before Chen Ge entered Fang Yu's world, he believed that he would not find the ghost fetus there. Zhang Yi had given him plenty of hints regarding that. Other than that, if he was the ghost fetus, he would find a normal person who did not have obvious deformity to possess.

The other eight children were all smoke bombs. Even if their worlds behind the door were destroyed, the ghost fetus had only lost part of his power. Only when the time of his birth arrived would the situation change. The girl's original face had been wiped away, and a baby's face slowly surfaced. His eyes were closed. His lips, ears, and nose were bleeding, but he did not seem to mind them, as if he could not feel pain.

This 'ghost fetus' was different from the 'ghost fetus' in the other worlds. He had his own consciousness. After he was discovered, he did not do much. His shirt did not even turn red. He stood quietly next to Chen Ge at the entrance of the woods, looking at the city that was being ravaged by black and red.

Slowly, the red overwhelmed the black. The black threads that represented the curse were being oppressed. The gray and white world was being cut with bloody wounds like the whole city was bleeding. With ten Red Specters working at their maximum power, they only managed to control the curse hidden behind the door. But seeing this, Chen Ge did not feel any energy to smile at all. Counting the door that Jia Ming and Bei Ye had entered, this was only the fourth door, but it already needed more than ten Red Specters to take it down.

When he entered the fifth door, he would need the help of all the Red Specters. If this reasoning was correct, he might not be safe with his entourage of Red Specters when he entered the sixth door. The gray and white city was covered in red. Chen Ge did not use any tricks but used the simplest and most direct method, which was brute force. This was the simplest, most effective, and safest method.

Bloody shadows appeared. The mirrors that littered the streets were shattered, and the city turned red.

“Just a little more, give me a little more time, and I will be able to keep you here forever.” The girl with baby face looked at Chen Ge. “I can’t kill you, but I can make you forget yourself and have them repeat what they did to you again and again.”

Both sides were buying time. Chen Ge was waiting for his Red Specters to break through the limitation this world had on them. The girl though knew some secrets, and she wished to use another method to ‘kill’ Chen Ge.

“What they did to me? Who are they?” Chen Ge asked.

“Why do you insist on looking for them? You already have everything I could ever wish for. Why do you want to give that up?” The girl’s body was turning blurry, like the color was leaking out from her. She was assimilating into this world. “Stay where you are and let me become you. Is that so hard?”

“Looking for them? Are you talking about my parents?” Chen Ge’s voice took on an urgent edge.

When he heard the word ‘parents’, the baby’s expression changed. Chen Ge seemed to hit the sore spot. He stopped conversing with Chen

Ge. Suddenly, he reached into the fishbowl to grab at the goldfish inside it. "You are very lucky to have entered this most dangerous door before I have fully awakened. But certain things have already been written on the wall. You will never change it no matter how hard you try."

"Fang Yu!" Chen Ge took out the hammer and swung at the girl. The girl's finger touched the surface of the water, but the goldfish slipped through her fingers. The glass bowl slipped and shattered against the ground. The baby's face grimaced. Her body was dissolving and spreading like the water from inside the fishbowl.

"I will wait for you behind the door, Chen Ge."

The girl's body and the water seeped into the gray and white world and disappeared. The only thing that left on the ground was a blood red goldfish and a normal looking glass marble. Chen Ge placed the goldfish on a larger piece of the broken glass where some muddied water still pooled inside. Then he reached toward the normal looking marble. When his finger touched the marble, a strange memory appeared in his mind.

At the third floor of the haunted house at midnight, a single bed was placed inside a warm-looking room. There was a handmade bedside lamp sitting on the table. The faded light shone on the bed. The young boy was already asleep when his shadow crawled out from the bed and started to play with the toys in the room.

The thin shadow sat among the many toys. He played with himself for a long time until midnight arrived, and he suddenly heard someone calling a name. The shadow turned to look at the sleeping boy, and then he slipped out from the room.

Chapter 1033 - Bad Kid

Chapter 1033: Bad Kid

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The shadow walked out from the room on the third floor. He spotted a glass marble sliding down the steps. He followed it and came to the ground floor. There was no one around. The shadow carried on alone. He saw the marble enter the toilet and stop before the cubicle. The clock for midnight stopped chiming. The shadow moved to the cubicle. He bent down to pick up the marble but noticed that the door of the cubicle was not closed tightly.

He leaned on the door and looked inside. Everything he saw was red. Holding the marble with both hands, the shadow entered the door. He walked among the redness. Perhaps because of some memory loss, the buildings were blurry. It looked like the mirage of a red city. The shadow lost his way. He wandered aimlessly with the marble until a hand fell on his shoulder. It was a child's hand, and the fingers were dirtied with black blood. The shadow was jolted from the shock. He slowly turned around, but the image in Chen Ge's mind ended then.

...

"The door in the haunted house is connected to the red city? Does the door lead to the center of the red city itself?" Chen Ge was confused. At least now he could confirm that the shadow had entered the world behind the door, and the corruption had probably started after he entered that door. Based on this memory, at least before he entered the door, the shadow was normal. Even though he would leave his host and go play alone at night, it was within an acceptable range. "The shadow ran into a child with bloody hands behind the door. The child is the key to the change in the shadow."

To turn a normal shadow into a Demon God, just the thought of it was mind-boggling. "Thankfully, I didn't enter the door when I found out about its problem, or else I'd probably be dead already."

Fang Yu's world was collapsing. Chen Ge summoned his employees and picked up the largest fishbowl fragment from the ground.

"Fang Yu?" Chen Ge looked at the red goldfish, and he frowned with consternation. This was his first time dealing with something like this. The world behind the door was a reflection of the door pusher's memory. If the door pusher had forgotten all her memories and even herself, then what kind of form would she take behind the door? Hearing Chen Ge's voice, the goldfish wagged its tail anxiously. Its body was covered with wounds.

"I'll bring you with me for now. If you are really Fang Yu, it can prove something else. There are not only human-shaped Specters behind the door, there are other things too that once might have been human beings."

With the aid from the Red Specters, Chen Ge held the broken fishbowl and pushed open the black iron door.

"AH!" A scream shattered the peace of the night. As Chen Ge opened his eyes, he saw something flying at him, and he quickly moved to the side to avoid it. The table lamp knocked against the wall. The glass cover cracked into pieces. If that thing had landed on his head, Chen Ge would have been bleeding profusely.

"Calm down!" Chen Ge switched on the light and then opened the bedroom door. The kind auntie had been leaning against the door, eavesdropping. The sudden opening of the door caused her to trip into the bedroom.

"Both of you please calm down! The treatment is already over! The effect is great!" Chen Ge looked at the two confused faces in the room. He walked to Fang Yu's bedside. "Did you dream about turning into a blood red goldfish in a gray and white city? Did you see me there?"

Fang Yu, who finally calmed down, looked Chen Ge up and down. She nodded rather blankly. "I think you appeared in my nightmare."

"That was the power of hypnosis," Chen Ge said seriously. "This is the solution that I came up with after giving it much thought."

"Was it useful?"

"We will find out now." Chen Ge turned to Fang Yu. "Do you still remember the name Zhang Yi?"

Fang Yu's expression slowly froze. She grabbed his head with her hands and started to scream like she was going through serious mental trauma. Chen Ge did not expect this to happen. With the help from the auntie, they tried to console Fang Yu. After half an hour of comforting, Fang Yu collapsed on the bed and slept from extreme tiredness.

“She used to suffer from memory loss, but now she has completely lost her mind.” The aunties did not look too happy about this.

“She has managed to remember some details from the past, but she needs some time to readjust to what she has remembered. She needs to slowly accept her past.”

Chen Ge looked at the clock on the wall. It was already 3:30 am. The time he had spent behind Fang Yu’s door was much longer than he had anticipated. It was too late to hurry to the Coffin Village that night. “Time moves much faster inside the door than it appears, it is hard to tell whether that is a good or bad thing.”

After leaving the auntie’s place, Chen Ge quickly took out the black phone. As he expected, there was an unread message.

“Completed 4/9 of the four-star Trial Mission, Ghost Fetus. The ghost fetus has lost an important part of his memory. Red Specters’ Favored, you do not have much time left!”

“I wonder how important that piece of lost memory is to the ghost fetus. Is it possible for me to make use of this point to create some trouble for him? Like tricking him into entering a door again?”

After reading the message, Chen Ge returned to the haunted house to rest.

A new day had begun. Chen Ge put on the makeup for his employees and took his backpack to find the child with the heart problem. But the child was still not home, and more bizarrely, the child’s neighbors had all moved away. The whole apartment block was empty. With no other option, Chen Ge called a cab to head toward Huai Ai Hospital in Eastern Jiujiang. This was the clue that he had gotten from the old city, someone who appeared to be the ghost fetus’ ‘mother’ seemed to be employed there. It was only 9:30 in the morning, but Chen Ge had visited three locations already, moving from Western Jiujiang to Eastern Jiujiang.

“I’m sorry, but is the Nurse Yu in?” Chen Ge stood at the registration counter. This was a private hospital, so there was not that many patients.

“Please go and swipe your ID at the machine over there to get your number first.”

“I am not here to see the doctor. There is some problem with Nurse Yu’s child, and I wish to have a chat with her.”

“Sister Yu’s child?” The nurse on duty studied Chen Ge with half belief. Then she pulled up the phone and made a call. Then a female nurse about forty bustled over.

“You are Madam Yu Jie, aren’t you?” Chen Ge walked over to meet her. He used Yin Yang Vision and did not notice anything too out of place on Yu Jie.

“I am so sorry. What trouble has my son gotten into this time?” Nurse Yu did not inquire about the reason Chen Ge was there. The first thing that came out of her mouth was an apology as if this was something often that she had to do.

“Do you mind if we go somewhere more private to talk? This place is not that suitable.” Chen Ge led Nurse Yu out of the private hospital. He did not beat about the bush and came out with the question directly. “Did your son run away from home several years ago? He was living on the second floor of an apartment building in the old city, right?”

“How do you know that? At the time, he was still in school.” Nurse Yu was getting more confused by Chen Ge’s presence by the moment.

“Let me first introduce myself. My name is Chen Ge. I often help the police with their cases. These are all news articles about me on the internet.” Chen Ge took out the news articles that he had searched about himself on the internet and showed them to Nurse Yu.

“An aid to the law enforcement?” Nurse Yu’s expression changed immediately. “Then why are you looking for my son?”

“Please calm down first. What I am going to tell you next is very important.” Chen Ge paused for a moment. “Your son might be related to a murder case. He is not the killer, but I need your cooperation.”

“Impossible! My son would not get involved in a murder case! You must be mistaken!” Probably due to the shock and indignation, Nurse Yu shouted out her claim directly.

“You can choose to not believe me, or you can call the police. However, I am telling you now, the only person who can help him is me.”

Chapter 1034 - From the Beginning

Chapter 1034: From the Beginning

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Chen Ge was serious. Normally, when a parent heard that their child might be involved in a murder, they would be firm that it would not be the case, but more than that, the main concern on Nurse Yu's face was worry and fear. In other words, in Nurse Yu's mind, it was not outside the realm of possibility that her son had done something like that.

The first few children that the ghost fetus had chosen were harmless. In fact, they could be seen as kind and friendly. They resisted the ghost fetus, believing in the light in their heart. But not everyone preferred light in this world. Some did not need the seduction from the ghost fetus, and they would be heading toward the abyss. If the ghost fetus had possessed such a person, it would be difficult to deal with. In the previous worlds, Chen Ge found a source of light to aid him, but in these kinds of darker worlds, he would be targeted by everything, and there would be no help for him.

...

"I will give you time to think about it. I'll wait for you outside the hospital." Chen Ge looked into Nurse Yu's eyes. "Evading the problem is not solving the problem. This is not an official police visit, so don't feel too much pressure."

"I still don't think my son would be involved in any murder cases. There has to be some misunderstanding." Nurse Yu slowly calmly down.

"Don't worry, I also don't think he is the killer. I just have some questions to ask him." Chen Ge tried to get Nurse Yu to relax. "Please bring me to him as early as you can. We don't have much time left."

Nurse Yu did not quite believe Chen Ge, but after seeing so many news articles about Chen Ge, her impression of him started to change.

"I will ask for the rest of the day off. Wait here for a moment." Nurse Yu ran back into the hospital. Ten minutes later, she came out in a casual outfit from the side door. "I'll bring you to meet him, so you can talk to him in person. If you can see him now, you should understand why I am so confident he is not involved in a murder case."

The two took a cab to a residential area at Eastern Jiujiang. The environment looked quite nice, if a little isolated. There was almost no one around, and the parking lot was quite empty.

"There are many such residences in Eastern Jiujiang. During the economic boom, they built too many apartments, but most of them aren't even filled these days." Nurse Yu did not feel like chatting. Her voice was tired and weak, her eyes filled with worry. "I live on the twenty-third floor. Sorry, the elevator is a bit slow."

Ten minutes later, Chen Ge arrived at Nurse Yu's home. When the door opened, a faded stench drifted out. The stench was not that of food going old, trash molding or flesh decaying. It was a very unique smell like a person had started to rot from inside their soul.

"Sorry, the place is a bit messy." Nurse Yu stepped into the room. She took the dirty clothes on the sofa into the bathroom before inviting Chen Ge in.

"Your place is quite big."

"It looks big, but the layout is not that normal." Nurse Yu did not even take her shoes off and started to walk toward the room at the back. "Yu Jian? Are you inside?"

While Nurse Yu went to call her son, Chen Ge studied the house. Even though the house was big, it was pitifully sparse. There were two pairs of slippers on the shoe rack, one female, one male. "Only Nurse Yu and her son live here in such a big house? Where's the father? Earlier, the nurse called her son Yu Jian. She has the same surname as her son. Could it be that the child has no father?"

Nurse Yu knocked for a long time, but there was no response from the son.

"Is he not home?" Chen Ge walked toward Nurse Yu. He saw a tray placed before the room's door. On it sat a bread and a glass of fresh milk.

"He didn't even touch the breakfast, this child..." Nurse Yu picked up the tray and headed back to the living room. "Ever since he dropped out of high school in his second year, he has been like this. I have no idea when he will come out of his shell.”

“Refusal to communicate, hiding within himself, this is not a good sign. When a person is trapped with their own thoughts and no others, they are more prone to doing some extreme actions.” Chen Ge sat next to Nurse Yu. “I am not scaring you, but after taking a look around your house, I feel like things are more serious than I expected.”

“I’ve done everything I can. I did take him to a psychologist before, and he had taken some medication, but it did not seem to help.” Nurse Yu sighed helplessly.

“Can you tell me in detail how things reached this state?” Chen Ge knew that only by understanding the backstory could he know what he was dealing with. “If possible, don’t hide anything. I guarantee in the name of the state’s crime unit that I will not leak the information of your family to a second person.”

“Yu Jian was just like a normal child when he was young. He was healthy, cute, and very bright. He was a very fast learner, but from a moment, I realized the kid...” Nurse Yu’s face was twisted in concern. “How shall I put this? He doesn’t seem to understand the concept of repaying people’s kindness. For example, the neighbor’s kid would give him a candy, and he would throw it on the ground. The kids were building a sand castle by the beach, and they invited him to join them, but he went over to trample the sand castle.”

“That is more than not understanding how to repay kindness. It’s a show of malice.”

“It’s not that.” Nurse Yu shook her head. Like most parents, they did not like others to talk bad of their child. “Yu Jian is a very gentle kid. He just does not know how to express love. Or rather, the way he expresses it is very different from others. I have asked a psychologist about this before. He said that he could not see the concept of love in Yu Jian’s mind. He has a normal temperature, and his heart is pumping warm blood, but his consciousness of self is icy and cold.”

“He is lacking the concept of love?” Chen Ge was reminded of the words in the rental home at the old city. Love was something that the ghost fetus needed. He believed that one of the main reasons a human being was a human being because they knew how to love and gain love.

“The doctor said he suffers from a rare illness called Reactive Attachment Disorder (RAD). Even though it manifests itself as a psychological problem, in reality, it is a biological sickness. My son is not abnormal. It's just that his brain is sick."

"I didn't say that your son is abnormal. Other than that, I have to inform you that you'll not find a better psychologist in Jiujiang other than myself." Chen Ge did not know much about psychology, but he remembered clearly how Doctor Gao acted. The confidence seemed to come from within.

"You're a psychologist too?"

"Many adult psychological deficiencies are related to their childhood growth. In their understanding of the world, there was a small accident." Chen Ge sat up and looked into Nurse Yu's eyes. "I still say the same thing. Please do not hold back. Only by telling me everything that Yu Jian has encountered can I really help him."

Chapter 1035 - The Child Chosen by the Ghost Fetus

Chapter 1035: The Child Chosen by the Ghost Fetus

Nurse Yu gave this serious consideration as she glanced at her son's room before she came clean on the thing that had happened to Yu Jian. "Yu Jian has not met his father. I raised him alone. The child was a very precocious one; he never made me worried. As a nurse, I have a busy work schedule, so I had to leave him alone for most of the time.

"One day, he started to refuse to communicate with me. Out of guilt, I bought him many things to compensate and encouraged him to go on play dates. The first accident happened when he was seven. I got a call from a neighbor when I was at work. He said that Yu Jian had gotten into a fight with his kid and almost blinded the kid's eyes. I was so angry when I heard that. I came back and gave Yu Jian a good smacking, but when I was doing that, he was glaring at me with this out of body gaze filled with hatred.

"He was crying but soundlessly. He did not plead but kept on glaring at me with that unsettling gaze as if questioning why I was beating him.

...

"But that was only the beginning. The kid seems to hate communicating with others. When he was in the presence of other kids, he would change into another person with the goal of destroying other people's happiness. It got slightly better after he got to school, but still, no one was willing to be his friend. His personality became more agitated, isolated. He would say fewer than five sentences to me a day. After he got into high school, he barely spoke to me. In fact, whenever I appeared in his sight, his gaze would glaze over with annoyance."

At this point, Nurse Yu choked on her words. She felt like she had failed as a mother.

"Your son is easily-angered and solitary. He also wanted to blind others during a play date. He seemed to be hating everyone around him, including you.” Chen Ge frowned. He felt like Yu Jian was so far the person who acted the most similarly to the ghost fetus that he had encountered. They would be maddened by other people’s happiness and indulge in destroying other people’s joy. This was extremely psychotic, but it was not unheard of. For example, if two kids found a beautiful butterfly at the same time, one of them would gasp in its beauty while the other would reach out to tear off its wings.

Chen Ge had no idea when the ghost fetus encountered Yu Jian. From the décor at the place in the old city, Yu Jian was probably the child who cooperated the most with the ghost fetus, so the latter had probably been hibernating in Yu Jian while completing the curse in the old city.

“After Yu Jian got into high school, that was the darkest moment of my life. He refused to talk to me at all, but he spent his time doing something alone. When I hit him or scolded him, he never retaliated, only staring at me coldly. It was not how one would view one’s family. Perhaps from a certain moment, he had stopped viewing me like that. It was also then that he started to stay out late and eventually ran away from home. For him, I’ve searched Jiujiang who knows how many times already.

“Perhaps he hated me from his core. No matter how many times I found him, he would still leave me the next day. During that period, he got into a lot of trouble, some incidents even involving the police. After the school day ended, he stopped coming home at all. I knew this couldn’t continue any longer. I contacted a private academy famous for their strict rules and enrolled him in it even though it cost me a lot.

“In a new environment, Yu Jian’s situation seemed to improve, and that gave me a renewed hope in life. But that only lasted for a few months before the school called me in. The parents of the kids in his class had petitioned for Yu Jian to be expelled. At the time, I was flustered. I tried to ask why, but Yu Jian refused to say anything.

“In the end, I found out from the headmaster that the students all said that Yu Jian was mentally unstable. They exaggerated his supposedly insane actions, and of everyone in his vicinity, only his class teacher was on his side. I burnt through my savings at the time and used a lot of time and money before I finally persuaded the headmaster to allow Yu Jian to stay.

“But things just did not work out. During the second year, Yu Jian’s class teacher was fired due to certain reason, and that very same afternoon, Yu Jian left the academy. He came back home, shut himself in his room, and sheltered himself from the world.

“When I went to school to help him finish the suspension procedure, I found out what had happened. The class teacher was the only person who treated Yu Jian well, but someone started a nasty rumor that it was because she was seducing him. Then part of the parents started a rumor, and thus, the teacher was forced to find a new job.” Nurse Yu looked at the closed bedroom door. After a long silence, she said, “After hearing the real reason, I was not mad. If anything, all I felt was tired. I stopped struggling and surrendered. I admitted that Yu Jian is different from normal kids and stopped forcing him to fit the common mold.”

“Has he stayed at home since he ran away from school?” Chen Ge memorized everything that Nurse Yu had said. It might prove useful behind the door.

“At least every time I come home, he’s in his room, so I don’t think he would be connected to any murder case.”

“Okay, I believe I have everything I need.” Chen Ge stood up to walk toward the room. “Do you have a key? I wish to meet him.”

“That’s fine, but I hope you won’t say anything to agitate him.” Nurse Yu took out a ring of keys from her handbag. She kept a spare key for Yu Jian’s bedroom on her. The two came to the door, and Nurse Yu opened it. When the door was pushed open a gap, Chen Ge was hit was a stinging smell. He held his hand over his nose out of instinct, but Nurse Yu beside him did not seem to smell anything strange.

So far, this is the smelliest room that I’ve been in outside of the door.

Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision to look into the room. Outside his expectations, there was no pile of garbage or overthrown clothes, only many piles of used manuscripts. The paper covered the floor, the bed, and the table. They were filled with unfinished sentences, and most of them made no sense. Amid the sea of paper stood a barefooted man. He did not wear anything and was as thin as a rail.

Seeing someone come in, the man did not respond. He raised his two hands, which were just skin and bone, and continued to write on his script.

“I’m so sorry.” Nurse Yu seemed to be used to this. She picked up the blanket and draped it over the man. It was then that the man finally reacted. His muddy eyes moved to the door. He scanned Chen Ge before turning back to his paper.

“Do not step on his manuscript,” Nurse Yu told Chen Ge.

Then Chen Ge requested, “Do you mind giving us some privacy? I have some questions to ask him.”

Chapter 1036 - A Demon in His Heart

Chapter 1036: A Demon in His Heart

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

"I'm sorry, but I can't let you do that. The child is too mentally fragile, any careless words might traumatize him." Nurse Yu rejected him outright. Even in this state, she still loved Yu Jian deeply and tried her best to protect him. Chen Ge's original plan was to summon the Red Specters to conduct a further inspection on Yu Jian after his mother left. But Nurse Yu refused to leave, and Chen Ge did not want to expose Zhang Yi's power, so he gave up the plan. He picked up a random manuscript. The sentences written on it made no sense, and what it all meant was pure guesswork.

"He gave her a present because of love. Roses are red; blood is red. Roses pricked her neck; blood leaked from her neck.

...

"She embraced the children because of love. The embrace was so tight that she refused to let him go. I was once held in such a tight lock that I couldn't breathe. My fingers went numb like they were encased in cement.

"Perhaps I have experienced that. No, I must have."

The content on each page was different. Chen Ge read a few of them and realized that they were made up from pieces of different stories, cataloguing a child's growth process. Of course, this was how Chen Ge saw it. To borrow the words from one of the scripts, it was a seed planted on a grave. The roots stuck into the bones and blossomed in flowers. The man used such words to describe himself. He no longer saw himself as human. He was trapped in his own world, a world that was a different version of the world that he inhabited.

No matter what Chen Ge said, the man had no intention of answering. He just kept on writing. With each pen stroke, he seemed to dwindle before their eyes. The room was very quiet. Chen Ge had given up on conversation. He picked up the manuscripts to read. His eyes glowed with interest like he was the man's biggest fan. One was writing, and the other was reading—Nurse Yu was left out.

“I think I get it now.” Chen Ge tidied up the manuscript that he had read. “It’s a good story, but it’s sad that the protagonist is a living person, and the plot is inspired by real life.”

Laying the thick manuscript on the table, Chen Ge flipped through the comic in his backpack and then left the bedroom with Nurse Yu. When he closed the door, he dropped his backpack at the door and returned to the living room with Nurse Yu barehanded.

“You saw the condition of my son. He has not left this place for a long time, so he wouldn’t be involved in any murder case. If you insist on making that claim, I’ll have to call the police.”

“Before going to primary school, Yu Jian was a complete terror among his peers. He hated seeing other people happy, and he did not know how to respond to other people’s kindness. The biggest change happened during his second year in the academy. After he was suspended, he closed himself up and stopped going out. He did not want to harm others anymore. As his mother, have you ever wondered why?” Chen Ge sat before Nurse Yu. His eyes staring at the cloudy tea on the table.

“He was trying his best to change, to become a good kid, but no one gave him a chance. Everyone was bullying him, and eventually, his mind snapped.” Nurse Yu’s explanation was clearly biased in favor of her son.

“A person with a demon living inside him will not crumble so easily from bullying. Something really special must have happened to him to give him a renewed appreciation of this world.” Chen Ge leaned against the couch. “Yu Jian’s class teacher was the only person who cared about him. Have you tried to communicate with her since what happened to Yu Jian?”

“The teacher left Jiujiang after that. I have no idea where she’s gone.”

“You had time to find a psychologist but couldn’t spare a moment to talk to that teacher,” Chen Ge said accusingly, but Nurse Yu reacted strangely like she refused to talk about that teacher.

“The truth is before your eyes. You can’t evade it forever. The deeper you try to hide it, the scarier the wound will be when it is exposed.” Chen Ge stood up. “This is my phone number. I’ll come back tonight. I hope by then you will have changed your mind. If Yu Jian continues to be like this, his whole life will be ruined.”

Walking to the bedroom, Chen Ge picked up his backpack. He stood at the door for some time, but he left without saying a word. Leaving the area, Chen Ge found a spot shielded from the sunlight and summoned Men Nan. “So, what did you find?”

“A lot of curses have been left on that guy! The reason he became like this is because he has been through too many curses.” Men Nan’s first words gave Chen Ge a surprise.

“Does that mean the ghost fetus once possessed his body?”

“Yes.”

“Ask Zhang Yi. What are the chances that the ghost fetus is still hiding in Yu Jian?” Chen Ge was excited. Yu Jian was just like the ghost fetus, so he was the ghost fetus’ best chance.

“He said that it’s impossible to tell, but something happened that broke the bond between Yu Jian and the ghost fetus, so Yu Jian locked himself away from the world.” Men Nan relayed the information from Zhang Yi. “He was trying to resist the curse the ghost fetus left in him.”

“Yu Jian’s change was due to his encounter with his class teacher. That teacher will know what happened to him, but unfortunately, I don’t have the time to leave the city to find her.”

After leaving Yu Jian, Chen Ge went to the police station. With Lee Zheng’s help, he met up with Zhen Zhen. The boy had recovered nicely. There was still no concept of death in his mind. He just thought that his mother was asleep and often asked the officers when his mother would wake up. The boy was very cute, and everyone at the station loved him. When they tried to get information from him, they would bring him snacks and candy.

Based on Zhen Zhen’s appearance, one would not tie him to the ghost fetus. Jiang Long, Bei Ye, Zhen Chun, and the mentally ill mother were unconscious. Other than the ghost fetus, only Chen Ge knew about Zhen Zhen’s past. But Chen Ge did not plan to share that secret with others yet. He also hoped that the child would grow up without any childhood trauma.

After asking Zhen Zhen some questions, Chen Ge asked the police to help investigate the child with the heart problem and badmouthed the ‘non-smilers’ before the police so that they would pay attention to this bunch of monsters who kept up a smile at all times.

The police helped Chen Ge save a lot of time, so he could focus on his investigation into Yu Jian. After visiting the school and interviewing some of the students there, Chen Ge realized that the problem was much serious than painted by his mother. The police had records on Yu Jian. Before he went to the high school, the man had been a total madman with extremely high intelligence, which was a dangerous mix.

After finishing his preparation, Chen Ge visited Yu Jian again that night.

Chapter 1037 - The New Teacher

Chapter 1037: The New Teacher

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The visit to Yu Jian's home was no different from how it went in the morning. The room reeked of a smell that was only recognizable to Chen Ge, and cold food was left on the table. To further convince Nurse Yu, Chen Ge brought with him some documents, including Yu Jian's case files from the police station. "Tomorrow, the police will come, but tonight, I wish to conduct some simple treatment with Yu Jian. You can stand outside the door to observe, but please don't interrupt."

Chen Ge had only four nights left. He had to deal with Yu Jian that night.

...

"Okay." Nurse Yu nodded with worry in her eyes. "Will the police come to take Yu Jian away tomorrow? He is too fragile. I'm afraid he won't survive a trip to the station."

"Don't worry, the police will not mistreat him." Chen Ge glanced toward the bedroom. The food on the tray was still untouched. It meant that Yu Jian had not left his room. "The treatment will start at midnight after he goes to sleep."

"Why must it start so late?" Nurse Yu had met Chen Ge less than twenty-four hours ago. Even though she did not think that Chen Ge would scam her, asking her to place her complete trust in a stranger was asking for too much.

"Because the treatment can only be done after he is asleep." To ensure that Yu Jian would sleep soundly, Chen Ge had even prepared a bottle of sleeping pills. They chatted until 11:30 pm. Chen Ge got the key from Nurse Yu and stopped when he was at the door.

"Aren't you going in?"

"Please stay quiet." Chen Ge silently summoned Men Nan and had him check the room first. After getting the green light from Men Nan, he sighed. Yu Jian was asleep. Now, they only needed to wait for midnight. Yu Jian was most compatible with the ghost fetus personality-wise and was so far the only child who had voluntarily interacted with the ghost fetus. Thus, he should be the best candidate. However, the one thing that troubled Chen Ge was their falling out.

Fang Yu had lost her memory. The other children lost their sense of smell, hearing, or sight. The deficiencies that they had were observable, but Yu Jian was different. The boy did not seem to be lacking in anything. What had been taken from him by the ghost fetus should be something very important to a human being. It could be an emotion like humanity or love.

At midnight, Chen Ge opened the bedroom door and saw Yu Jian leaning against the wall with the covers wrapped around him. His head was lowered, and a blood red door stood next to his bed. The door was completely dominated by blood vessels. They pulsed violently on the door like they were alive. The door looked much scarier than an actual door.

“What is that?” Nurse Yu let slip a gasp. Even though it was not loud, it still disturbed Yu Jian. Chen Ge did not hesitate; he knew that the door would disappear if Yu Jian woke up so he rushed toward it. Carrying the backpack, he pushed open the door with the aid from the Red Specters. The thick layer of blood enveloped him like he was stepping into a blood pool. Chen Ge was deprived of his breath, and he struggled with both hands as he started to fall.

His eyes failed to see, and the sound of a book flipping echoed in his ears. It felt like many creatures were crawling all over him. He could not see what they were. They appeared to be congealed blood droplets, and they were congregating behind him.

“Why did you come to find me?” A strange voice rang beside his ear. Chen Ge felt a pair of hands on his shoulders. The falling sensation was slowly disappearing, and he flipped open his eyes.

“Who are you?” he shouted. The surroundings were quiet, and the atmosphere was strange. His eyes slowly focused. He looked around and realized that he was standing inside a school’s equipment room. Behind him was a pure black iron door, and there were many students giving him a strange look.

“Another school?” Chen Ge frowned. He reached into his backpack and looked at the students alertly. If anyone dared come for him, they would be rewarded with a hammer to the head.

“Chen Ge, what are you doing?” There was a fatty with a round face in the corridor carrying a stack of exercise books. He looked at Chen Ge with a sigh. “People are normally late by a few minutes, but you missed an entire class. That’s quite an achievement.”

“You know my name?” Chen Ge slowly realized that something was wrong. He was familiar with his surroundings. This was where he had gone to school, and the fatty was their monitor for math class. “Yu Jian might have gone to the same school as me, but how could he have the same classmates? Or is this not Yu Jian’s memory but my own?”

Of the passing students, the majority of them were unrecognizable. This was too complicated for Chen Ge to act rashly. He stood where he was and tried to call after the Red Specters. The only soft reply came from Xu Yin. For some reason, this door was much more stable than an actual door. It was resistant to the interruption of other Red Specters. They were unable to come out from their items of possession, not even to make simple communication.

“This is a big issue.”

Yu Jian’s world behind the door was too stable. In fact, it was the perfect bed for a sleeping Demon God.

“I can’t be so lucky, right? There are only nine doors, and I already found the ghost fetus by door number five?” Chen Ge’s emotions then were hard to describe. He was both happy and worried. “If I’d known this sooner, I would have gone to convince the tunnel lady’s son and the woman from the well in Coffin Village first.”

The school bell rang, and the students slowly returned to their classrooms. Only Chen Ge stood where he was.

“Aren’t you going to class? I hear we are going to get a new teacher. Are you going to give her trouble on her first day?” The round-faced kid was a chatterbox, but he was a kind person at heart. In Chen Ge’s mind, even though he was not a close friend of the kid, they had copied homework off each other before.

“I’ll be going now.” Chen Ge did not dare stand out before he found out what was happening. He carried his backpack and ran to the classroom. Stepping into the familiar scenario, Chen Ge’s memory was evoked again. “This was my classroom in the first year of high school.”

Sitting at his seat, Chen Ge looked out the window. The sky was covered with rain clouds, blocking out the sun. The school was not big, and it was surrounded by blocks of old buildings. “Wait, we’re in Li Wan City?”

His eyes kept looking out the window. Chen Ge realized the scale of this scenario, and the key problem was that all the buildings appeared to have come directly from his own memory.

“Why would something like this happen? Shouldn’t the door reflect the experience of the door pusher? Is this a trap set by the ghost fetus?” Chen Ge gripped his hands, and his brain was churning in overdrive, coming up with all kinds of possibilities.

“Teacher Lee is on maternity leave. This will be your new English teacher. Please give her a warm welcome.” A middle-aged man’s voice came from the front door of the classroom. It was followed by footsteps as a young woman wearing a black pantsuit moved to the podium. Her black hair reached her shoulders. She wore very light make up, and she was dressed casually. When she smiled, her face lit up with kindness and friendliness like a caressing wind in the summer.

“Good morning students. I am your new English teacher. My name is Zhang Ya...”

4Chen Ge could not remember what the female teacher said next because his mind was blown to smithereens when he heard Zhang Ya’s name.

He slowly raised his head to look at the podium. Without realizing it, Chen Ge had jumped up from his seat.

Chapter 1038 - You Really Treat Me Like a Child

Chapter 1038: You Really Treat Me Like a Child

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Hey, student! You, why you are standing up? Sit down!” The middle-aged man glared at Chen Ge, but the later did not respond. He coughed twice before he caught Chen Ge’s attention, and Chen Ge quickly returned to his seat.

“Bro, what was that?” the round-faced kid whispered to Chen Ge, but he did not reply as he kept his eyes glued to Zhang Ya on the podium.

...

Western Jiujiang Private Academy was closed down six years ago. Zhang Ya died one year before that. If the timeline is correct and if that tragedy didn't happen, she would look like this at twenty-five.

Being stared at by Chen Ge, the female teacher smiled at him before turning to other students. Taking a deep breath, Chen Ge forced himself to calm down. He hid the backpack under the table and opened it to inspect the item inside. Nothing had changed, but Zhang Ya’s bedtime story had once again ‘run’ out from the compartment and placed itself atop everything else.

The middle-aged man left, and Zhang Ya started her first lesson. Chen Ge, who sat by the window, was reading Zhang Ya’s bedtime story. The blood red book was filled with empty pages. All the gory stories had disappeared as if they had never been there in the first place.

After entering Fang Yu’s world, the words seemed to have disappeared as well. What is the actual use of this book? Why do the words disappear every time I enter the world behind the door? Where have they gone? When I first pushed the door open, it felt like I was dropped inside a sea of blood. I might have died from asphyxiation if not for a pair of hands that gripped me. I remembered hearing a strange man’s voice, asking me why I came to find him. Could that man be Yu Jian?

Chen Ge’s mind was a muddled mess. He collapsed on the table, leaning against the book that even Red Specters were afraid of.

I need to arrange my thoughts. This world is too unique. The chance of the ghost fetus hiding here is too high.

Picking up the pen from the table, Chen Ge started to write in the book.

“The school and the buildings outside the school are all from my memory. So far, of the people that have appeared, two of them are from my memory. I have no recollection of the rest of the student body. This is the first time I’ve seen that middle-aged man that brought Zhang Ya into the classroom. Therefore, the world was probably built on the framework of my memory, but it was mixed with the memories of another person.”

Chen Ge had encountered different memories creating a similar world before; it was the School of the Afterlife, a normal three-star scenario that turned into a four-star scenario after it kept on absorbing the students’ memories and combining the scenarios. But the world behind Yu Jian’s door was different in the sense that it did not feel oppressive. If Chen Ge was not certain that he had pushed open the door, he might have thought that he was still somewhere outside the door. Everything was too real, just like in reality.

“I seem to have missed something crucial. Currently, I lack too much information. I need to get more clues from Zhang Ya and the math class monitor...” Chen Ge listed down the known details in the notebook and planned what to do next when he suddenly realized that all the students had quieted down and were looking at him. Hands, on which his head rested, slowly moved down. Chen Ge looked to the side, and a flowery scent tickled his nose.

“Do pay attention during class.” Zhang Ya stood behind Chen Ge and used her book to knock Chen Ge lightly on his head before she walked away. Watching Zhang Ya walk away, Chen Ge touched the spot where she had hit him earlier. The woman before him overlapped with that woman in his mind, and a mixed feeling was born in his heart.

The class soon ended. Chen Ge had done nothing but stared at the teacher. “If Zhang Ya really was my teacher in high school, I would have scored at least another one hundred marks in my test.”

“Stop kidding yourself, bro. The class is already over, and you didn’t even take out the textbook.” The round face boy held his chin. “It’s time to wake up, bro. Stop dreaming. You should pay attention to your studies once in a while.”

“You don’t get it. It’s not me who’s dreaming.” Chen Ge grabbed his backpack and left to chase after the teacher. He knew that it was rude to call her name out in the corridor, so he purposely sidled up to the new teacher before asking, “Zhang Ya?”

Hearing his voice, Zhang Ya was startled before smiling at Chen Ge. “You have to call me Miss Zhang Ya. How can I help you?”

“You really don’t remember me anymore?” Chen Ge asked probingly. The world behind the door was made from the door pusher’s memories. Therefore, the people in it would remember the door pusher.

“Of course I remember you.” Zhang Ya looked at Chen Ge seriously, and her expression changed. “You were that kid who was not paying attention in class earlier and was too busy doodling.”

“Doodling?” Chen Ge looked at Zhang Ya before him. He had no idea what kind of impression he presented to Zhang Ya at that moment. Perhaps she had really forgotten all about him. “I was actually jotting down notes.”

Taking the storybook out from the backpack, Chen Ge showed it to Zhang Ya. “What do you think about it?”

“Is this a plan for the story that you’re working on?” Zhang Ya was surprised.

“When did I say that?” No matter what Chen Ge said, Zhang Ya treated him as a teacher would a student. She kept a smile on her face.

“Quick, head back to class. I support your novel writing hobby as long as it doesn’t affect your schooling.” The Zhang Ya before him had lost the shyness of youth and took on the maturity and gentleness that came with age.

“You really treat me like a child.” Chen Ge took back with storybook.

“But aren’t you a child?” Zhang Ya unintentionally revealed a cute expression.

“Since you’re the teacher, I’ll listen to you and go back to class.” Chen Ge carried the backpack and ran back to the classroom. Halfway through, he turned back to look and saw Zhang Ya enter the teacher's lounge. "So, that is how Zhang Ya looks like when she smiles. It completely transforms her, and she is a bit ridiculously beautiful."

1Looking at his shadow, Chen Ge sighed. "It's not often that I get to bully Zhang Ya, but she came as a teacher this time, and that is a bit of challenge."

2Returning to the classroom, Chen Ge spaced out during class. He used Yin Yang Vision to observe the small town from his seat. This was definitely Li Wan City, but it was different from the chaotic and maddening Li Wan City that he remembered. The people were kind, and the atmosphere was friendly. He could not sense a trace of negative emotions, much less the ghost fetus.

Is this place like School of the Afterlife? Will it change after midnight?

"You by the window, please come and solve this problem on the blackboard." A man's voice came from the podium.

Chen Ge respected the teacher. He stood up, glanced at the blackboard, and loudly declared, "I don't know how to do that."

Chapter 1039 - This Is Probably Happiness

Chapter 1039: This Is Probably Happiness

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The math teacher was stumped. He stared at Chen Ge for a while before slamming the ruler on the podium. "Sit down and stop looking out the window. Du Ming, come and solve this."

The round-faced kid walked to the board while Chen Ge reached into his backpack. "Everything here feels too normal... so normal that something must be wrong."

...

It felt like a lifetime before class was finally over. Chen Ge accosted the round-faced kid and led him to a corner.

"What are you doing? You're being too obvious if you want to borrow my homework to copy."

"I want to ask you something. You have to answer me honestly." Chen Ge pointed at himself. "What kind of person am I in your eyes?"

"A lonely, sarcastic, and unpopular student with horrible attitude in class." The round-faced kid did not hold back and let Chen Ge have it.

"Have you always had such a low opinion of me?" Chen Ge looked at that familiar round face. Even though he knew that the boy was telling the truth, it was hard to be happy to hear that.

"I suppose so." The round-faced kid did not seem to realize the dangerous situation that he was in.

"Fine, I'll ask another question. Have any strange things happened at our school lately? Like noises coming out from a supposedly empty classroom or moving specimens in the lab." Chen Ge's openly curious face softened the kid's heart. He took out a result booklet from his schoolbag and handed it to Chen Ge.

"Why are you showing me this?" Chen Ge accepted the booklet and saw that Du Ming was second in class.

“I’m a top ten student across the grade and the second in class, and you come to me to ask about ghost stories in our school?”

“What do your good results have to do with ghost stories? Will a good student not run into a ghost story?”

“The reason my results are good is because I spend the time others waste on meaningless ordeals studying.”

“That’s enough. If you weren’t such a nice guy, I would introduce you to a ghost story right this moment.” Chen Ge was rather speechless, but considering the age of the person he was dealing with, he could understand why. “I’m not going to lower myself to your level. Next question, did anything bad happen at our school, like school bullying or accidents among the student body?”

“What is in that head of yours really?” The kid shook his head and took back his result booklet. “Have you been under too much pressure lately? Then again, your results are fourth from the bottom, and they’re getting worse. It will be hard to answer to your family. My suggestion is for you to focus on your studies and forget about all other nonsense.”

Putting the booklet back into his schoolbag, the kid left.

“The kid has the same attitude as I remember.” Chen Ge had not been that good a friend with Du Ming; they had gotten close because they were both isolated from the rest of the class due to different reasons. They were like victims found in the same boat. There was no camaraderie.

Soon, the school became quite deserted, and the place quieted down. Chen Ge did not leave. He decided to stay and explore the school. With this place as the center, he would then widen his exploration to the rest of the town. “I have to be careful. The sun has almost set.”

The sky darkened, and the atmosphere became more sinister.

“The night will not be as warm as the day. The town will tear off its disguise and reveal its fangs, biting into every innocent person.” Chen Ge turned back into the education block. He carried the backpack and looked into every classroom. He checked many rooms but spotted nothing out of place. He walked all the way to the roof, where he heard footsteps. “It’s already after school hours. Who would be at the roof?”

Holding the hammer, Chen Ge entered the corridor. The door to the roof was not locked, and he squeezed it open slightly. The roof of the school was the place closest to the sky. If he lifted his head, it would feel like the heavy rain clouds were falling on him.

“Is no one here?” The chilly wind bit into his skin, and raindrops fell on his face. The rain came very suddenly. Pulling his gaze back, Chen Ge walked back down the stairs. As he planned to leave the education block, the rain started to pour.

“This should be normal rain, right?”

The rain behind the door might contain a curse or resentment. Chen Ge extended his palm outward to the rain. The raindrop gathered in his palm, and chills seeped into his skin.

“This might not be the first rainy day I’ve encountered in the world behind the door. I should pay attention to any ghosts that possess an umbrella. There should be plenty of them. After all, haven’t they always been a good hiding place for spirits in modern culture?” Chen Ge was spacing out when a shadow loomed over him. “Who is it?”

Whipping his body around, Chen Ge saw a startled Zhang Ya.

“Why are you still here? Did you forget to bring an umbrella?” Zhang Ya stood behind Chen Ge holding an umbrella. The shadow was from the umbrella that she held over his head. They were the only people left at the education block. Chen Ge looked at Zhang Ya, and his lips opened. But his heart suddenly raced, and he stumbled a step back.

Seeing how flustered Chen Ge was, an amused smile appeared on Zhang Ya’s face. “Are you afraid of me?”

“No.”

“Okay then. Who knows when the rain will stop? I’ll walk you to the bus stop.” Zhang Ya walked to Chen Ge’s side with the umbrella. “Come on then.”

Chen Ge, who always took the lead, somehow found himself following Zhang Ya’s instruction, and the thought of his investigation was abandoned. The smell of shampoo drifted into his nose. Chen Ge’s eyes kept wandering to Zhang Ya. This was probably what happiness felt like. The rain continued to pour. The pedestrians hurried to find a cover. The streetlights blurred through the curtain of rain, and the whole world was swallowed by the sound of rain pattering.

“Zhang Ya...”

“Hmm? Did you say something?” Zhang Ya heard Chen Ge say something, but it was blocked out by the heavy rain.

“It’s nothing. You should walk on the other side of me. The cars might splash water on your clothes. We don’t want that.” Chen Ge carried his backpack and scurried to the other side. They then noticed each other’s wet shoulders. Neither of them wanted the other to get wet, so both of them got wet from the rain. Walking down the raining street, neither of them spoke until they reached the bus stop nearest to the school.

1“Which bus are you taking?”

“Route 104.” Chen Ge gave a random answer and stood quietly next to Zhang Ya. He did not wish to speak. He just wanted to steal glances at her. The world behind the door was created from his memory. Even though it had its absurdities, the majority was a reflection of reality. The reason Zhang Ya appeared in this form had something to do with Chen Ge’s own memory.

“My bus is coming. You’d better head home soon and stop loitering about.” Zhang Ya took out her phone. “This is my number. Message me when you’re home so that I know you’re safe.”

After exchanging phone numbers, Zhang Ya got on the bus on Route 4 and waved at Zhang Ya through the bus window.

The bus disappeared in the rain, but Chen Ge still stood where he was.

Chapter 1040 - Why Didn't You Come Home?

Chapter 1040: Why Didn't You Come Home?

"The Zhang Ya behind Yu Jian's door likes to smile, and she is pretty when she smiles, but somehow, I sense a trace of sadness hidden behind it. And does she recognize me or not? Is the appearance of this Zhang Ya a coincidence, or was it influenced by that story book? The turning point in Yu Jian's life was when his own class teacher resigned. It was during that period that he turned on the ghost fetus. In other words, one of the most important people in the world behind Yu Jian's door is his 'teacher', the only person who lent him aid during the most difficult period of his life.

"Is his intention for me to go through what he went through, using my memories to replicate his past?"

Leaning against the advertisement board, Chen Ge looked into the rain that somehow felt appropriate.

...

"Regardless of the reason, perhaps this is a good chance for me to get to know Zhang Ya."

Patting his face lightly, Chen Ge made himself snap out of it.

"This might look and sound like a high school romance drama, but in essence, it is still a ghost story, I must not let my guard down." The rain did not seem like it would stop any time soon. Chen Ge 'borrowed' an umbrella from a passing stranger and returned to school. The sky was already dark. This world did not seem to have a good concept of time. Everything happened in a moment and changed very fast. Holding the hammer, Chen Ge wandered around the school.

"Even when night falls, there is still no sign of any ghosts or Specters. Is this still the Li Wan City that I remember?"

There was no murderer or Red Specter; it was just a typical normal small town.

"Wu Sheng had his voice taken, so everyone behind his door had their lips sewn. Jiang Ming had his hearing taken, so his world was exceptionally quiet. Fang Yu had her memory stolen, so her world was gray and white. The similarity between these children chosen by the ghost fetus is that there is something lacking in the worlds behind their doors. The thing that they were deprived of was reflected in the pedestrians behind the door, but this world is obviously different. Everyone looks normal. They do not look like they are disformed in any way.”

Chen Ge stood in the corridor holding the umbrella when his phone suddenly vibrated.

“Zhang Ya? Why is she calling me?” Chen Ge glanced at the caller ID and then answered the call.

“Where are you now? Why aren’t you home yet?” Zhang Ya’s rather angry voice came through the phone.

“How do you know I’m not home?” Chen Ge was shocked, and the question slipped out instinctually.

“Your father is worried sick about you! He’s looking for you everywhere! Do you know how many people he’s called?”

“My father?” Well, that was another character Chen Ge did not expect to show up. His eyes widened immediately. “Where is he? I’ll go find him now!”

His blood was rushing through his body. Chen Ge took the umbrella and ran out the school. A fire seemed to light up inside him. It won’t be my real father, will it? Could it be a trap laid down by the ghost fetus?

“He’s hurrying toward the school. A student said that he saw you return to school.”

“Thank you.” Hanging up, Chen Ge carried his small bowl of hope like a candle in his arm and charged into the heavy rain. He ran out the school gates, past the bus stop, and beyond the convenient store before stopping at a junction. The traffic was heavy, and different roads led to different destinations.

“Chen Ge!” A familiar voice came from the opposite side of the street. Chen Ge turned to the voice, and a man wearing an old jacket was running over the zebra crossing. He was slightly shorter than Chen Ge. The man who was normally so sunny had his wrinkles creased up in worry. The rain drenched his jacket, and the man ran to Chen Ge’s side, still catching his breath. Suddenly, he closed the umbrella and smacked Chen Ge on his arm. The sound was loud, but it was not painful; it was more for show.

“Why didn’t you come home after school? If you have something to attend, you should inform me. I wouldn’t have stopped you! Do you know how worried your sister and I were?”

Looking at the familiar face, even though they had not met for more than a year, the man appeared to be much slimmer, and there was more white in his hair. Chen Ge did not speak. The candle in his heart was slowly overwhelmed by the rain. When he first laid his eyes on the man, Chen Ge knew this was not his father. It was just a figment of his memory, a part that would disappear eventually.

“You are not him.” Holding up the umbrella, Chen Ge walked to the man and raised the umbrella above both of their heads. The voice was familiar, and it was filled with discipline, concern, and disappointment. All these things weaved together to complete the perfect image of a father. They did not take the bus and walked home. The man was initially quite angry, but after some stern words, he stopped talking. The father and son walked silently in the rain.

When they were almost home, the man suddenly signaled for Chen Ge to wait. He went to the nearby shop to buy two braised pork trotters. When he came out, he saw an old man selling vegetables on a pushcart. He was standing close to the shop to avoid the rain. Probably due to the rain, the wares were not selling so well, and after a whole day in the rain, part of the vegetables looked quite rotten already. The man took out his wallet and walked to the old man. Then he came back with two large bags of vegetables. He helped the old man clean up his cart before returning to join Chen Ge.

“Can we finish so much food?” Chen Ge slowly lowered his head, mumbling the next sentence from his memory. “It’s fine. We have a fridge that can store them for a long time...”

“It’s fine.” The man shrugged. “We have a fridge that can store them. We can ration them out.”

The two walked into the hall. Before they reached their home, the door of one of the houses opened. A girl about thirteen poked her head out. When she heard the footsteps from inside the room, she was too excited to wait for them to get to the door, so she hurried to come open it first.

“Did... did you find... find my big brother?” the girl stammered, and her hands were shaking uncontrollably. She hung by the door, and her lips were slightly uneven. The gap between her teeth was wider than normal, but she carried an angelic smile on her face.

“Ruoyu, quickly go back in, and be careful not to trip.” The man carried the bags and two trotters into the room. Chen Ge trailed behind him silently. The room was sparsely furnished, but the feeling was warm.

“Big... big brother...” The girl looked thirteen, but she acted like a five-year-old. When she saw Chen Ge come in, she lay on her side like a doll.

“Ruoyu? Luo Ruoyu?” That was the name of Director Luo’s daughter. She suffered from Angelman Syndrome. After she passed away, Director Duo had placed her ashes at the theme park. In fact, New Century Park had been built for her.

Chapter 1041 - My Family

Chapter 1041: My Family

Luo Ruoyu was New Century Park's guardian angel and Chen Ge's playmate when he was small. They had grown up together, and Chen Ge's parents treated her as their own. This daughter that was not technically there received no less love than Chen Ge. Normally, Luo Ruoyu hid inside the doll that Chen Ge had made when he was small. She had helped Chen Ge to escape the wrath of the red house by the Eastern Jiujiang Dam once. That was when she was seriously injured. Once she left New Century Park, she would lose all her power. Chen Ge did not expect to see her behind the door, much less in this manner.

"Dinner's ready." The man placed the trotters on a plate, stir-fried some vegetables, and called for dinner. Initially, the atmosphere was rather tense, but it soon relaxed. Chen Ge and the man were both smiling. Perhaps that was what family felt like.

"Chen Ge, why did you come home so late today? Is it because you don't dare come home to face me due to another bad test result?" The man kept taking the vegetables and skipped the meat. He looked much older and ragged than his actual age.

...

"No." Chen Ge did not know how to explain himself. The closer they were, the harder he found it to explain the situation. He did not want to be treated like a monster by his own father, and it was not so bad to live in this false happiness. Working his muscles, Chen Ge looked around the house. He did not answer the man's question but asked one of his own. "Where's mom? How come I don't see her?"

After saying that, Chen Ge instantly regretted it because he saw the light go out of his father's eyes.

"Is that why you didn't come home?" The man obviously had misunderstood Chen Ge. "I miss her, too, but we have to move on after her death."

He did not continue the topic but finished the dinner and stood up to walk into the kitchen.

Sitting in the living room, Chen Ge assessed his current situation.

A single parent family, the only person important to me other than my family is a teacher. This is a complete replica of Yu Jian's story. Now, I can confirm he has imprinted my own memory into his history, so I have the chance to experience what he's gone through. But what is the purpose behind this? To get me to see his perspective? To force me to turn crazy, to become a recluse like him? The world behind Yu Jian's door is too normal and peaceful. Everything that I've experienced so far is warm and nice. But if it's someday taken away or torn apart, I'll be in such pain and despair.

When Chen Ge was thinking, he felt someone grab his hand. Luo Ruoyu leaned against the dining table, batting her eyes. Her clothes had dirty spots from the soup.

"Get up from the table."

"I... I miss mommy too, but... but I will not run anywhere. I... I will wait for her here."

"Yes, we will wait for her here." Chen Ge hugged Luo Ruoyu's head. This family was too warm, a memory that was deeply treasured in his heart. After dinner, Chen Ge cleared away the table, carried the backpack, and entered his room. He lay in bed and looked at the night sky outside the window. Even at night, the sky was heavy with rain clouds. There was no moon or stars. All the lights came from the fire in his memory.

"I have a feeling something bad is going to happen." Even though Chen Ge was sleepy, he was not brave enough to fall asleep behind the door. After the things outside the bedroom had quieted down, Chen Ge wrote a note down and then slipped out the door with the backpack. "I shan't waste any more time. Yu Jian must be somewhere in this town. Perhaps he is watching me at this moment."

The moment he made to step out of the house, the night faded away, and the sun rose. Chen Ge was stunned, holding the doorknob. He looked at the windows in the corridor. The sky outside was gray with layers of clouds.

"Why did it turn into morning when I opened the door? Does this mean it represents a new day whenever I open the door? Is this home where everything begins?"

"Huh. Why did you wake up so early today?" Chen Ge's father was well-dressed and walked out from the house. He was surprised to see Chen Ge.

“Everyone wakes up early occasionally.” Chen Ge planned to make a test. He walked out the door and then stood for a while before returning to his home and closed the door. As the door clicked, Chen Ge turned to the window and the sky outside was dark. His father hadn’t left the house for that long but he looked so haggard and there were small dark spots under his skin.

When I am home and close the door, night will fall immediately, but when I push the door open and step out, a new day will begin.

Chen Ge pushed the door open again. His father said the same thing, but the tiredness on his face became more obvious, and the black spots became more numerous.

No! Even though it doesn’t affect me every time I close and open the door, it will impose some kind of injury on other people in the town. My time is limited. After a few repetitions of this, everything I value might be torn apart. I must find Yu Jian before that happens and get to the bottom of the mystery here!

The people at the town were people Chen Ge could not forget. They were all made from Chen Ge’s memory. If something happened to them, it might mean that Chen Ge’s memory of them would be wiped out.

“Why are you standing at the door? Don’t you have school to go to?” Chen Ge’s father walked out the door, but he was stopped by Chen Ge. “What’s wrong?”

“If you’re that person from my memory, you will trust me implicitly, right?” Chen Ge felt like he was talking to himself.

“What are you talking about?”

“In this small town, you must be careful around a person called Yu Jian. He is the source of all the misfortune and pain.”

“Yu Jian?”

“I might come home late for this period of time and might do things that no one understands, but I hope you will trust me, no matter what happens.” Chen Ge grabbed the man by his arms heavily.

“Looks like something really did happen to you.” The man patted Chen Ge on his shoulder. “I trust you, but you have to trust your family too. If you can’t solve this problem, remember the family is always your sanctuary.”

The voice, the touch, the sight, everything felt too real. Chen Ge’s mind wavered for a moment into believing this was all real.

“Of course.” Carrying the backpack, Chen Ge walked out from the house. He decided not to open that home door for a long time. That way, he would get as much time as he could.

“Li Wan City is not as small as I hope. A carpet search does not sound possible.”

Chen Ge decided to start his search at the school. Yu Jian’s change happened at the school, and it was where the iron door was. This pointed to the fact that the chance of Yu Jian hiding there was high.

Chapter 1042 - What's in the Bag?

Chapter 1042: What's in the Bag?

After he met Yu Jian, all the puzzles behind this door would be solved. But more importantly, Yu Jian once actively interacted with the ghost fetus before; they had shared the same body for a long time, and he understood the ghost fetus better than anyone else.

The moment he stepped into the school, Chen Ge used his Yin Yang Vision. He memorized the faces of all the students, not letting one slip from his eyes. The bell rang for class, and Chen Ge filed into class rather unwillingly.

"I heard you didn't return home yesterday. What happened? Ran away from home?" Du Ming passed him a note. Chen Ge looked at it and crumpled it up. Even now, he had not understood the habit of passing note with dudes. The kid waved his fist at Chen Ge, but the latter ignored him and lowered his head to focus on the timetable taped on the desk. "English class is the third class, so I will have to stay in class for the first two periods, huh? That is such a waste of time."

...

Chen Ge formulated a plan for himself. He tossed it over to iron out the details and loopholes. After he made sure he was ready, he glanced at the clock on the wall. "How come only ten minutes has passed?"

The world behind the door was made from his memories. Chen Ge suspected that this happened because he often spaced out in class and kept wishing for the school to end, so it created this impression of a long school day. That feeling that turned into reality behind the door.

"Does this mean that time will move faster once school is over?"

Carrying his backpack, Chen Ge wondered if the teacher would be angry if he just walked out like that. "There's no reason to get in trouble with the school. Next time, I should just find an excuse to take leave from school."

It was math class, but Chen Ge's table was filled with English homework. He was prepared for the third period already.

“Hey.” Du Ming passed him another note. “What kind of club do you plan to join? Both of us are loners, so why not we join the same club? With a club activity, I’m sure we won’t be completely isolated.”

“Club?”

“Yesterday, after school, I saw some seniors giving out flyers. Some of the clubs even came to individual classes to get more members.” Chen Ge attended a private high school, so the system was rather different from public schools.

“You can go to the classes if you’re promoting a club?” The fatty did not realize he had triggered an idea in Chen Ge’s mind. “I can use that as a cover to openly check every class then.”

“How about chess club? There’s no physical exercise, and you can sit there and space out—Isn’t it perfect?” Du Ming was not on the same wavelength as Chen Ge, but somehow, they managed to keep the conversation going. Finally, the period was over. Chen Ge grabbed the backpack and rushed out from the classroom. “I mustn’t waste the time during break. For someone who doesn’t have many friends, Yu Jian wouldn’t go anywhere and most likely stayed in class.”

He ran through the first and second floor, but when he prepared to get up to the third floor, the bell rang. Chen Ge did not care for it and continued to look for Yu Jian. There were no students in the corridors. Chen Ge was like a teacher, carrying his bag, using his Yin Yang Vision, ‘floating’ through each classroom.

“Stop right there! Which class are you from?” When Chen Ge reached the fourth floor, he was stopped by a middle-aged man. The man appeared to be the discipline teacher. He was the one who had introduced Zhang Ya to the class.

“I am going to the toilet.”

“Why are you carrying your bag to the toilet? You’re thinking about skipping class again, aren’t you?” The middle-aged man had a stern face. “Wait, what is inside your bag? Why is there a sharp corner? Open it now and let me check!”

Chen Ge did not mind being caught being late, but he did not know how to explain the things in his backpack. The high heels were one thing. Even though they were bloodied, they looked expensive and sexy. Chen Ge could say that they were a gift; that should be a reasonable excuse. But how could he explain the hammer? A hobby?

A way to defend himself? No matter how he looked at it, the explanation was lacking.

“Well? Quickly open it!” The middle-aged man felt he had caught Chen Ge. He reached out to grab the bag. Chen Ge stared at the man’s balding head, wondering if he should end this interaction with a whack of the hammer. After dealing with so many murderers, Chen Ge had mastered the tricks of hiding a body to a certain degree. “With this one whack, this high school romance drama will officially turn into a mystery thriller.”

Even though this was a world behind the door, Chen Ge had his own principles. He did not make his move but turned and ran. In a bizarre turn of events, Chen Ge, who was often chased by Red Specters behind the door, was now being chased by a balding middle-aged man.

“I can’t resort to violence. Perhaps that is what the ghost fetus or Yu Jian want me to do. They wish to push me step by step toward the deep abyss.” The more he thought about it, the more he believed that. Chen Ge ran very fast, but the middle-aged man was fitter than he looked. He was running up to a dead end when a familiar voice came from the corner.

“Chen Ge? Mr. Si?” Zhang Ya stood at the door to the teacher’s lounge, her eyes were filled with surprise. “What are you guys doing?”

“Miss Zhang! Quick! Help me stop him! This is too much!” The middle-aged man gasped heavily for air. He held his back for support. It did not feel like much when he was doing the chasing, but when he stopped, it was as if his lungs were burning.

“He wants to check my bag.” Chen Ge hid behind Zhang Ya. “I just wanted to go to the toilet, but he insisted on stopping me.”

The middle-aged man heard Chen Ge. “You’re at school to learn! There must be something unrelated to school in your bag! If you’re innocent, let me check it!”

Neither backed down, and it placed Zhang Ya in an awkward situation. “Please calm down, both of you. Mr. Si, you’d better slow down and catch your breath. Chen Ge might be naughty, but he’s not a bad kid.”

Then she turned to Chen Ge. “You’d better go back to class now, and pay attention in class.”

Zhang Ya was obviously giving Chen Ge a way out. This angered Mr. Si. “You’re not going anywhere! What’s inside your bag? How come you ran so fast once I said I wanted to check it?”

One could not say that Mr. Si was wrong. He was just a stern teacher and felt responsible to the students.

The atmosphere was tense. Zhang Ya did not know what to say. She whispered to Chen Ge, “Why don’t you tell me honestly if there’s anything illegal inside the bag?”

“Teacher Zhang! Stop wasting time! Based on my years of teaching experience, there must be cigarettes inside the bag. Search it. I swear you will find some!” Mr. Si was so angry that the little hair he had left was standing upright.

“I don’t have any cigarettes on me! I’m not even a smoker!” Chen Ge whined.

“Why do you refuse to let me see it then?” Mr. Si walked toward him, and Zhang Ya turned toward Chen Ge.

“Fine, if you want to know to see it so badly, I’ll let you see it!” Chen Ge pulled the zipper open and pulled out the red high heels and hugged it in his chest. “After my mom passed away. This is the only thing she left me. I just want to carry them with me because they remind me of her!”

Keeping his head lowered, Chen Ge hugged the heels tighter, and he continued in a shaking voice. “I know how strange this looks. I am afraid that the other kids will make fun of me, but I just want a piece of her by my side. Have I done anything wrong?”

Tears squeezed out from his eyes. Chen Ge shoved the heels back into his backpack and turned to run away. Zhang Ya and Mr. Si were frozen to the spot. They had complicated expressions, and neither chased after Chen Ge.

Chapter 1043 - Who Can I Share This With?

Chapter 1043: Who Can I Share This With?

Back in the classroom, Chen Ge returned to his seat.

“Bro, are your eyes red?” Du Ming noticed that Chen Ge was feeling rather down. “Were you dumped?”

“I understand why you are so unpopular even though your results are so good.” Chen Ge ignored Du Ming. He turned his head away and started to think about another problem. Even behind the door, Zhang Ya was still protecting him. In the situation earlier, a new teacher did not side with the head of discipline but protected her own student. That was quite touching.

...

“In Yu Jian’s world, other than his family, only that teacher was helping him. Now that I am going through his experiences, the only person that I can rely on the most is Zhang Ya.” Chen Ge tried to keep his head up. He was reliving Yu Jian’s life, but the people around him were not Yu Jian’s family but his family from his own memory. “A lucky person spends his whole life healed by his childhood. An unlucky person spend his whole life healing his childhood.

“Even though we’re going through the same thing, a different upbringing and environment can change a person’s future. He wants me to experience his despair, but I wish to show him that everything is possible with hope. Before the reality collapses and the sea of blood overwhelms everything, I will try my best to help him. The ghost fetus never intended to help him. I must instill that message into his mind.”

The second period was finally over. Chen Ge leaned on the desk, looking out at Li Wan City. His brain had split the town into four sections based on the four corners—north, south, east and west. If he could not find Yu Jian at the school, then he would search the city one corner after another. The bell rang again. Chen Ge finally straightened up. He opened the English textbook.

“Even after so many years, I still can’t understand a single sentence from this.”

With Zhang Ya's voice filling his ears, Chen Ge held his chin in one hand, and for the first time, he did not think about escaping from school. The students could see quite clearly that Zhang Ya's gaze kept wandering subconsciously over to Chen Ge's seat. There was apology and worry in her eyes. Finally, the bell rang; it was lunch break. Chen Ge's home was quite far away from school. When he was young, he did not have the habit of going home early for lunch, and he did not intend to change that. When the bell rang to announce the break, Chen Ge walked out from the classroom. He carried the backpack and walked down the corridor alone to head to the rooftop.

The sky in Yu Jian's world was always covered in clouds, and there was never any sun. Chen Ge stood on the rooftop. He used Yin Yang Vision and studied all the students below him. "Where is he hiding? This is his world but he is nowhere to be seen."

Chen Ge distinctly remembered the voice of a man when he first entered the door. That person should be Yu Jian. "Trapped in the abyss of despair, he should be desperate for a savior as well."

When he was thinking, Chen Ge heard the door behind him open. Zhang Ya appeared at the door. She was surprised to see him. Then she walked over with a light yellow lunch box. "Aren't you going home?"

"Not so soon. What about you? Why are you here at noon?"

"The canteen is too noisy. I prefer to eat in silence. Besides, the scenery here is beautiful, and no one will come disturb me." Zhang Ya walked to his side, and her eyes trailed to his backpack. "Are you still thinking about what happened this morning? I apologize for that. We weren't being considerate. Sorry."

"It's fine. If anything, I need to thank you. If not for your help, I would be in that old baldie's claws already."

"Old baldie?" Zhang Ya did not expect such a colorful description of Mr. Si from Chen Ge. She almost burst out laughing, so she turned her head to the side. Chen Ge was not paying attention to Zhang Ya but focused on the students below, and his brows creased. The school was almost empty, but Yu Jian was not to be seen.

"You seem to have many things on your mind. If you don't mind, would you like to share some of them with me? You might feel better after sharing them with another person." Zhang Ya's voice was mellifluous, like a chime in the wind.

“Don’t mind me. You’d better finish your food before it gets cold.” Chen Ge turned back to look at Zhang Ya. She was kind and gentle. If that tragedy did not happen, she would have been living a happy life.

“Do you want some? The canteen auntie has given me too much. I can’t finish it alone.” Zhang Ya probably wanted to get to know Chen Ge better so that she could help him better.

“It’s fine, don’t mind me!” Chen Ge was acting like a child. He ran to the other side and looked down the roof. A common person would not understand Chen Ge. They would not know what he was doing. In other people’s eyes, Chen Ge was filled with anxiety, and there was a maturity about him that did not fit his age. All the students had left. The school was empty, but Chen Ge still had not spotted Yu Jian.

“Where could he be hiding? Do I really need to turn Li Wan City upside down? Do I have enough time? The people around me are getting visibly tired as time passes. I’m sure bad things will happen soon.” Chen Ge was worried, but that did not help at all.

He carried his backpack and turned around. He noticed Zhang Ya sitting on the chair by the wall and staring at him.

“Sorry for making you worried.” Chen Ge would never hurt those who only wanted the best for him. He walked toward Zhang Ya and sat down beside her. The items left on the roof were mostly defective. That was why they had been moved there.

“If you have any trouble, you really can share it with me. Perhaps I can help you.” Zhang Ya was being too kind. Such people existed in the real world, and they were often the first to get hurt. Being near Zhang Ya, even behind the door, Chen Ge felt weirdly safe. He put down the backpack that he had been carrying and sidled toward Zhang Ya.

“I’m looking for a person. His name is Yu Jian.”

“Why are you looking for him?”

“Because he is the source of all the misfortune here, and I have some things to tell him.”

“The source of misfortune?” Zhang Ya did not get what Chen Ge was saying. “Has he done something to you or your family?”

“No, I just want to help him.” Chen Ge did not know how to explain

it. He had met many such occasions in real life. He was the one who entered the world of the supernatural. He could not share what he saw with others; he had to carry the burden alone. Even now, even though he knew Zhang Ya was not real, he still could not bring himself to say anything.

“Actually, I am quite tired myself.” Chen Ge leaned on Zhang Ya’s shoulder and closed his eyes, feeling the wind on his face.

Zhang Ya initially wanted to move away, but seeing that strangely familiar face, she did not have the heart to do so.

Chapter 1044 - The Two at the Stop

Chapter 1044: The Two at the Stop

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

He closed his eyes for a rest. This was the first time that Chen Ge had felt so safe behind a door. After a moment, he felt what he was doing was quite inappropriate. He sat upright and whispered, "I'm sorry."

This was something he had not experienced before, and then he realized the burning sensation that he was feeling was 'shyness'. Without waiting for Zhang Ya to reply, he grabbed his backpack and slipped away. Closing the door to the roof, Chen Ge jogged out of school. Perhaps because of the running, his heart was beating very fast. "Looks like the ghost fetus is giving me more pressure than I thought. I shouldn't underestimate this door."

...

Exiting the school, Chen Ge followed his plan and started to search from the eastern side of Li Wan City. He could not employ the help from his workers, so he needed to rely on his super senses to feel out the cold and eerie locales. Chen Ge did not find anything the whole afternoon. He did not have any keys to go into people's home. He did consider breaking and entering, but once he caught sight of a passing police car, the thought was safely out of his mind. The ghost fetus and Yu Jian wanted him to experience despair and sink into the dark. If he used violence, it might bring the darkness closer.

"This world is too big. Li Wan City, which was transformed by the shadow, is a 3.5-star scenario, so a completed Li Wan City should be a four-star scenario..." Chen Ge was startled with this thought. "Well, it is true that Li Wan City is part of my memory, but it could be part of the ghost fetus' memory too. After all, the shadow's old lair was Li Wan City."

Chen Ge did not have a deep impression of Li Wan City. He did not know the exact location of each building. "Yu Jian's life does not cross with Li Wan City. I've only been to Li Wan City a few times myself... Is it possible that this world also combines the ghost fetus' memory?"

He was frightened by this thought. If that was true, the chance of the ghost fetus hiding there had multiplied. “I still cannot contact my employees, not even for simple communication. Now it’s a race against time, seeing whether my employees will break through the limitation first or the tragedy of this world will arrive first.”

The sky started to rain, so Chen Ge returned to school. He tried to communicate with other students, but they seemed to hate him and purposely stay away from him.

“Was I this hated during high school?” Chen Ge tried to think back to that time of his life. He felt like this was something Yu Jian had added.

“Playing truant, coming late to school, bad results, lack of a smile for anyone, I’d advise you to accept your fate.” Du Ming twisted open his thermos. He blew on it and then took a sip. “Actually, it’s not that bad. Loneliness is a one-man party, they say.”

Chen Ge ignored Du Ming. He was concentrating on how to solve this problem. If Yu Jian had locked himself inside a room somewhere, without his employees’ help, Chen Ge would not find the guy.

“Looks like I still need to focus on the important figures in this world. Perhaps I can find some clues from Zhang Ya, my dad, and Luo Ruoyu.” Chen Ge turned to look at Du Ming. Technically speaking, this deskmate was an important figure, too. At least he had a lasting impression of Du Ming for him to appear.

“Du Ming, I have something to discuss with you,” Chen Ge whispered.

“Which subject’s homework do you want to borrow?”

“It’s not that. Can I please go to your home after school?” Chen Ge wanted to look for clues. Perhaps he could find some at Du Ming’s home.

“Definitely not. If my mom knows I hang out with you, she will break my leg.”

“You’re exaggerating. Auntie has always been nice around me, and she’s kind to everyone.” Chen Ge tried to fight for it. “Just think of it as a favor. We can sneak in. I mean, you do remember the birthday present I gave you, right?”

“Don’t you even mention that. The prank box that you gave me had a clown jump out from it. My mom opened it and sent it to the temple to be exorcised.” Du Ming shook his head. “She even said that if I bring anything from you home in the future, she will toss it out immediately.”

“For real?” Chen Ge widened his eyes. This was not part of his memory. He was not sure whether he had forgotten about these episodes or Du Ming was lying to him. The rain was getting heavier, and the sky was darkening. Time moved so slowly that Chen Ge started to while away time by doing his homework. He waited and waited, and finally, it was time for school to end.

“Late afternoon every day, it starts to rain until the next morning. From the weather pattern, it seems like this world is repeating the same day again and again.” Chen Ge looked out the window and watched the raindrops slide down the glass. “Perhaps when Yu Jian left school that one last time, this was the weather.”

The school was almost empty. Chen Ge walked to the exit and realized that he had forgotten to bring his umbrella again.

“Don’t you have an umbrella?” Du Ming walked from afar with his school bag.

“I came out in a blur this morning, so I must have left it at home. You also don’t have an umbrella?” Chen Ge studied the pouring rain. He could not help but feel that it signified something.

“Yeah.” Then Du Ming took out a folded raincoat from his bag. “But I have a raincoat. See you tomorrow.”

“Did you just come to me to show off your raincoat? After I leave this world, I’ll be sure to pay you a visit.” Chen Ge wagged his fist. Du Ming suddenly coughed. He sucked in his stomach, puffed up his chest, and lifted his head.

“Is that fear I sense? You knew what I meant by ‘after I leave this world’? Damn you! You really have something to do with Yu Jian!” Chen Ge was about to chase after Du Ming when he heard footsteps coming from behind him. He turned to see Zhang Ya standing beside him. “Zhang... Miss Zhang?”

“It’s unwise to get into fights with your friend.” Zhang Ya opened the umbrella. “You didn’t bring an umbrella again? Come on, I’ll walk you to the bus stop.”

She stood next to Chen Ge and walked into the rain together. They left Du Ming in a bright yellow raincoat standing in the rain.

“What’s this feeling?” Du Ming looked at his raincoat. “I’ve obviously won, but how come I feel so defeated?”

Chen Ge did not have time for Du Ming. He leaned closer to Zhang Ya. “How about I carry the umbrella?”

“No way, I’m the teacher. I should be the one looking after you. If I let you take the umbrella, it’ll feel so strange.” Zhang Ya rejected his offer with a smile. They walked to the bus stop like the previous day. Since they had missed the peak hour, they were the only two at the stop. Neither of them spoke; one looked at the falling rain, and the other studied the passing cars.

This time, the bus on Route 104 arrived first, but Chen Ge did not move.

“Your bus is here. Remember to bring an umbrella tomorrow,” Zhang Ya reminded him, but Chen Ge stood where he was. “The bus is leaving. Chen Ge?”

“I’ll leave after you get on your bus.” Chen Ge looked at their reflections in the puddles. “This way, at least we’ll be together a little bit longer.”

Chapter 1045 - Something I've Been Meaning to Do [2 in 1]

Chapter 1045: Something I've Been Meaning to Do [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The deep gray city was shrouded in heavy rain, the traffic on the road dwindled, and eventually, only the falling rain could be heard. Everyone on the street appeared to be rushing somewhere, and the small bus stop by the roadside was like an abandoned corner that had been forgotten by the world. Chen Ge held his backpack as he continued to study their reflections in the water puddle. Zhang Ya held the umbrella, and surprise crossed his eyes. She was obviously startled by the statement that Chen Ge had made.

As the bus on Route 104 slowly trundled off down the street, it was replaced at the stop by the bus from Route 4. "Miss Zhang, your bus is here. I will see you tomorrow."

...

Chen Ge waved his hands, and his face had a very happy smile on it. He watched as Zhang Ya walked toward the bus on Route 4 as he leaned against the bus stop sign, the smile on his face slowly disappearing as Zhang Ya walked away from him.

"I cannot go home. The minute I push open the door of my home, night will fall, and when I come out, it will be the beginning of a new day. When the city submerges into darkness, the dirtiness and evil hidden in the corners should be eager to reveal itself. Hopefully, I will gain something of value tonight."

Lifting his head, Chen Ge believed that he was the only one left at the bus stop. The bus whistled to announce its departure from the bus stop. The engine growled, and the bus soon departed from the stop. In the rain, Chen Ge stopped a woman holding a red umbrella.

"Zhang Ya?" The bus had already left the station, but Zhang Ya stood where she was. She did not get on the bus. "Why didn't you get on the bus? Wasn't that your bus?"

Chen Ge looked at Zhang Ya curiously. The woman held the umbrella and slowly walked back toward the bus stop.

"I've spent every day ever since I was here preparing my study material for the next day, and then I leave on the last bus of the day." Zhang Ya pointed at the sign that Chen Ge was leaning against. "The bus just now was supposed to be the last bus. You did not get on it, and you did not take an umbrella. I am afraid that you will not return home again, just like last time."

"I..." Chen Ge, who was always quick with words, found himself stammering at that moment. He did not know how to answer or how to come up with a reasonable excuse.

"It seems to me that you are afraid of going home." Zhang Ya walked to stand before Chen Ge. "Can you tell me why?"

"It is nothing important..."

"Did you get into an argument with your family, or have you run into actual trouble in your life?"

Concern was deep in Zhang Ya's voice. Her kindness and warmth were something innate, and that made it exceptionally difficult for one to purposely deceive her.

"I know that under that trouble-maker exterior, there is a kid with a good heart, but in that same heart, there appears to be many other things. I have noticed that you have never really smiled sincerely since I first met you."

Chen Ge did not respond. The rain continued to pour. Even though they were standing under the bus stop, the rain was so heavy that the splash was enough to make both of their clothes wet. Neither of them left. After a while, Zhang Ya opened the umbrella and looked at Chen Ge rather helplessly.

"If you are unwilling to share, I cannot force you to do so." She waved at Chen Ge. "Come on."

"Where are we going?" Chen Ge was startled. This time, he was truly surprised.

"We will go to my home so that we can get you a fresh change of clothes. You will get a cold wearing that set of wet clothes for so long."

“Is that really a good idea?”

“It will be a worse idea for me to abandon you at this bus stop. The rain will not slow down anytime soon, and it is getting late. It is too dangerous for you to stay here alone.” Zhang Ya wiggled the umbrella, and the water droplets flung around. She was like the kind sister next door. Even when she pouted in helplessness, it did not detract from her natural beauty. “But you should really try to communicate with your family members. Through my experience, I’ve found that many problems can be solved through a good communication, especially when it is within a family. Anyway, that is enough lecturing for now. Stop hesitating, come with me.”

1Chen Ge could not open the door of his own home, so to buy more time, he was half persuaded and half willing to follow behind Zhang Ya. The two walked down the street for quite some time before they spotted a taxi on the road. When they arrived at Zhang Ya’s home, the sky was already completely dark.

“Is this where you live?” Chen Ge did not have any memories of Zhang Ya’s house or room. In his mind, Zhang Ya had always stayed at the dormitory. When he pushed open the door, he found a small room of about sixty cubic meters. Even though the place was not big, it had everything that a person would need to survive and flourish.

“I used to live in the city, but after my parents got into an accident, staying in the old house kept reminding me of them. I would walk around the room and think that I saw them standing there. After a while, it took such a toll on me. Therefore, I had no choice but to sell that house, and I used the capital from that sale to purchase this small house in this city.”

Zhang Ya seemed to have emerged from the sadness already, judging from the calm tone that she employed to tell the story. Of course, she could have been just putting on the front for Chen Ge. That morning, after she found out why Chen Ge had been carrying the pair of high heels with him at all time, she had felt her heart giving slightly. Because she had been through the same experience, she was able to empathize with him.

Putting away the umbrella, Zhang Ya moved to switch on the light in the living room. “I did all the decoration and the purchasing of the furniture myself, so what do you think? It is not so bad for a non-professional, right?”

When Zhang Ya was speaking, Chen Ge looked around the room. His eyes travelled to the trash can, and he was surprised to notice a few empty cans of beer inside and peels of carrot skin that had gotten brown with spots.

“Teacher, you’re a drinker?” That was a habit of Zhang Ya’s that Chen Ge did not expect.

“You make it sound like I have a serious problem. I only drink once in a while.” Zhang Ya changed her shoes and went to tie up the plastic bag that held the trash inside the can. “I will go get you a set of dry clothes. Please wait here a moment.”

Seconds later, Chen Ge changed into the clothes that Zhang Ya offered her. It was a round-neck T-shirt that Zhang Ya herself wore.

“I hope you don’t mind wearing that, but that is probably the only thing in my closet that will fit you. I don’t think you’ll be willing to try on my dresses, right?” She joked.

“No, this is fine.” Chen Ge looked down and noticed that he was wearing the same t shirt as Zhang Ya, but the color was different.

“Give me your wet clothes. I will dry them off for you. In the meantime, you should go over to the couch and start working on your homework. It will be time for the mock exams soon. You should pay more attention to that. Perhaps some pressure would be able to help you.” Zhang Ya took Chen Ge’s and her own wet clothes and entered the bathroom. Chen Ge looked left and right. He placed the backpack that was half wet next to the couch and opened it to give its content an inspection.

“Thankfully, neither the comic nor Zhang Ya’s storybook got wet.” Chen Ge also felt like taking out his homework to make a good impression on Zhang Ya, but the problem was... he did not even bring his homework with him. Several minutes later, Zhang Ya came out from the bathroom. She took a glance at the clock on the wall. “You must be hungry. Let me see what’s inside the fridge. I’m afraid it won’t be anything fancy, but I am sure I can whip up something for us to eat.”

“Teacher, how about I help?” Chen Ge looked at Zhang Ya, who moved around in the kitchen, and he could not help the smile that appeared on his face.

“You know how to cook?”

“Yes, you’ve had a long day at work. Let me cook for you. Consider it my appreciation for everything that you have done for me today.” Chen Ge nudged Zhang Ya lightly but firmly to the side. He peered into the fridge and saw many common food ingredients. There were several tomatoes, a few carrots that looked so disfigured because the person who went at them with the peeler was so inexperienced, two cucumbers, a whole block of tofu, half a piece of chicken breast that had seen better days, a slice of lean meat, and half a bag of left over pickled mustard plant stem. “Huh, and I thought a Demon God’s menu would be much different from us normal people.”

“Do you need my help?” Zhang Ya was suspicious of Chen Ge’s cooking ability. After all, there were not that many high schoolers who knew how to cook.

“Just take a seat on the couch and try to relax. A kitchen is where a man can work his magic.” Chen Ge first pulled out two small bowls. In one bowl, he cracked an egg and seasoned it with salt and other condiments. He then took out the chicken breast and cut it into slices before tossing them into the bowl with the egg mixture to marinate. In the other small bowl, he poured some water and soaked the pickled mustard plant stem inside it.

Then, he opened the stove and drizzled some oil over the pan. He cut the block of tofu into smaller, edible pieces and then fried them until their surfaces were golden brown. He picked up the tofu and set it to the side. Using the residual oil that was left in the pan, he sautéed some garlic, spring onion, and ginger and poured in some sauce that he made earlier along with the tofu back into the pan to simmer.

Closing the lid over the pan, Chen Ge moved onto the next dish to prepare. He grabbed the knife and diced the tomatoes that Zhang Ya had started to cut earlier. Then he poured a generous amount of white sugar over them. He took out the cucumber, peeled the skin off, and took out the seeds. Similar to how he had prepared the tomatoes, he diced it and then seasoned it with salt and other seasoning. He placed the vegetables on the same plate. On the left was the sugared diced tomato and on the right was tossed cucumber. One was sweet and the other salty, two flavors on one plate.

After he was done with that, Chen Ge took the lean meat and cut it into strips. He stir-fried the strips in the pan and then took out the pickled mustard plant stem that had been soaked in the water. He cut the it into smaller pieces and tossed it into the pan to fry together. Then he added seasoning.

By then, the braised tofu was ready. He took a bowl from the kitchenette and served it. After some cleaning up here and there, Chen Ge found a pot, filled it with water, and placed it on top of the stove. After the water boiled, he found a pack of leftover noodles in the fridge and dropped them inside the boiling pot. When the noodles were ready, the kitchen was already filled with the delicious smell of stir-fried mustard plant stem with meat strips. Chen Ge grabbed a colander to strain the noodles and then mixed it together with the stir-fried mustard plant stem with meat strips.

The rice cooker dinged.

Chen Ge looked at it and called out rather naturally, “Teacher, do you mind grabbing two bowls of rice for me?”

“For dinner, I have prepared golden tofu, noodles with pickled mustard plant stem, and some popcorn chicken that I will make in a minute. From the appearance, the chicken breast is going to spoil soon. I think we should finish it tonight.”

Zhang Ya’s eyes were as wide as they could be. Her kitchen had never smelled so delicious before.

The chicken breast had been marinating for quite some time already. The last step was very simple, which was to coat the cut chicken meat with starch powder and drop it into a boiling pot of cooking oil. The chicken bits came out glistening with oil, and the smell was heavenly, but Chen Ge still looked not quite satisfied.

“If only I have some breadcrumbs, the double-coating would make this much crispier.”

All the dishes were served. They filled up the small dining table. Even then, Zhang Ya still could not believe that these dishes had been made from the leftovers that she had sitting inside her fridge.

“For the main meal, we have the noodles, tofu, and the chicken. If you think the chicken is too oily, there’s the mixed cucumber to help balance out the oiliness. But if you do not prefer salty food, I have also prepared mixed tomato with white sugar. It is a salad with refreshing tartness from the tomato and a kick of sweetness from the sugar.” Chen Ge saw Zhang Ya’s eyes glowing, and her smile only grew bigger. He cleaned up the kitchen, but honestly, there was not much cleaning to be done because the man had been picking up his trash while he cooked. Finally, he joined Zhang Ya at the dining table. He saw that Zhang Ya had not moved her chopsticks. Obviously, she had been waiting for him to join her.

“Let’s start.” Zhang Ya took a bite of the tofu. It was crispy on the outside and tender on the inside. The frying was so well done that it secured the juices inside the tofu so that it would burst with liquid once one bit into it.

“So, what do you think?”

“It’s wonderfully delicious!”

Chen Ge sat across the dining table from Zhang Ya and watched her eat. The corners of his lips could not help but turn upward on their own. “If only I could cook for you every day.”

1 The storm was brewing outside. It was thundering. But inside the room, the two were enjoying a rare moment of peace, sharing a simple dinner together. Chen Ge wondered when and if they would have this chance again in the future. The dinner was quickly swept up. Zhang Ya volunteered to clean the table and ushered Chen Ge to take a seat at the couch. The latter tried to stop himself from staring at Zhang Ya, but for some reason, his eyes kept wandering over to her. As if feeling his eyes on her, when Zhang Ya put away the utensils, she lowered her head, and she happened to look into Chen Ge’s eyes.

Chen Ge held her gaze for less than a second before he quickly lowered his eyes and pulled out Yan Danian’s comic and pretended to pore over it.

“Are those your own drawings? They are very impressive!” Zhang Ya, who was done with the dishes, moved to the couch. The living room was not that big. With just the couch and the coffee table, there was not much space left.

“They were drawn by my friend.” Chen Ge closed the comic, but it was clear the Zhang Ya did not believe him.

“Are you sure you’re not lying to me? Actually, I admire those with artistic talent, especially when that is not the only talent they have.”

“Alright, you got me. Actually, I drew them myself.” Shamelessly, Chen Ge admitted it. After all, Yan Danian was unable to show up to reveal his lie at that moment.

“Jesus, I do not even know to deal with you anymore.” Zhang Ya chuckled. She poured two cups of tea and placed them on the table.

“How come I feel like you know pretty much everything other than studying and paying attention in class?”

“You are just about right there.” Chen Ge thought about it. Indeed, it was true that he was multi-talented and was skilled at many different things.

“Well, someone sure is confident in himself.” Zhang Ya shook her head. “But it is not bad to have one’s own hobby and to focus on it. To train and channel one’s energy into the interest, it’s an empowering feeling...”

Chen Ge could pick up the traces of disappointment. He was suddenly reminded of something. In real life, Zhang Ya was studying to become a ballet dancer, and she even won first place at a big competition for it. But in this world, she had somehow turned into an English teacher, a career choice that had pretty much nothing to do with dancing.

He sidled closer to Zhang Ya, picked up the cup of hot tea, and handed it to her. “Actually, I can see that you have been trying to put on a strong and powerful front for the world to see. But from the first moment I saw you, I knew that you have many things hidden in your heart. You just could not find the avenue to share them, or perhaps you are too afraid to say them out loud.”

The tea in the cup was wafting with vapor, and the two sat together. A home-cooked meal pulled them closer together. It should be Zhang Ya as the teacher who counsel Chen Ge, but from some indeterminate moment, it was Chen Ge who tried to open Zhang Ya’s heart. “Other people only saw you for your good personality, kindness, and gentleness, but I care whether you have been wronged or not. Has life been unfair to you?”

He had silently scooted close to Zhang Ya. Chen Ge picked up Zhang Ya’s bedtime story. “I never had that concern about other people before, but after getting to know you, I have a feeling that I am close to someone who is covered in scars but tries her best to show the world that she is fine with a plastered smile on her face.”

After a long time, Zhang Ya lifted her head. She looked at Chen Ge, and as per her habit, she tried to respond with her practiced smile. But she failed.

“Actually, I thought you felt familiar when I first saw you. Perhaps because we come from the same background.” Zhang Ya took a sip from the tea. “You might not believe this, but I used to learn ballet.

That was the love of my life. I loved it more than anything. When I was dancing, I could feel myself being one with the wind. I could fly, open my wings, and drift off from the earthly worries of this world.”

“But what happened?”

“When I was at school, no one was willing to be my friend. My classmates all started this rumor that I was soliciting myself, and the rumors only got worse and worse. But none of those rumors stopped me from chasing after my dream.” Zhang Ya put down the teacup. “One afternoon, something happened. I was practicing in the dance room, and a drunkard suddenly barged in, shouting. I was so scared. The only thing in my mind was to run away from him. I believe I screamed for help, but no one appeared to have heard me. Still in my dancing outfit, I ran downstairs and finally saw a teacher walking my way. I quickly hid behind him, and he helped me stop the drunkard from getting any closer.

“I thought that was the end of that horrible incident, but who knew it was just the start of a nightmare? The next day, when I came to school, everyone was whispering and pointing at me behind my back. Before the first period was even over, I was called to the office.

“To my surprise, the drunkard was also there. The man and the teacher who saved me ganged up together and said that I was trying to seduce the drunkard in the dance hall. I don’t even know why they would do something like that. Perhaps the drunkard was afraid that I might press charges, so he struck at me first. As for the teacher, who knows why he chose to side with an outsider and not his own student? Perhaps he was bought out with money. In any case, no one was willing to stand on my side. Everyone at school took that as the truth.”

Zhang Ya found it difficult to continue. “After that, I could not bring myself to enter the dance hall anymore, much less practice alone. In fact, I had a hard time being alone after that for a long time.”

Chen Ge patted Zhang Ya’s shivering shoulder and allowed her to lean on him.

“But everything is okay now. As I promised you, we’ll be close to each other like a person and his shadow. You will never be alone again.”

Chapter 1046 - Tragedy Is Like a Pair of Invisible Hands [2 in 1]

Chapter 1046: Tragedy Is Like a Pair of Invisible Hands [2 in 1]

Two lonely, gentle souls were comforting and curing each other. They sat in camaraderie on that stormy night. The rain lashed against the window, like a crazed drummer, but inside the house, it was like a completely different world. The storm was venting anger and dissatisfaction, but inside the room, it radiated Zen and peace. The clock ticked rhythmically, and the teacups on the table were giving off steam. “It should be me who is supposed to comfort you, but once you got me to start bringing up these things. I could not help myself. I believe that I have already gotten past the ugly history, but I know I am just lying to myself.”

At the end of the day, Zhang Ya was an adult, so she soon adjusted her emotions. Chen Ge also pulled his hands back. He knew how to gauge the situation and knew how to maintain a comfortable distance from each other so that it would not become too awkward between them. The distance was not too far, but it was not suffocatingly close.

“This rain is probably going to keep on going all night.” Zhang Ya stood up to look out the window, and then she pulled back the curtains. She went back to sit on the other side of the couch. “Well, you now know about my past, but from today, I will stop running away from it. Promise me that you will try to do the same. Take the first step and try to move on.”

...

As she said that, she took out her phone. “You need to give your father a call. I am sure he is worried sick about you. Other than that, I wish to have a brief talk with him. I do not wish for what happened to me to repeat itself with you. If you face any trouble in your life, trust that I will do everything within my power to help you overcome it.”

Being the target of nasty rumors, being ostracized, being the butt of the joke, Zhang Ya had gone through all of that. She could identify and empathize with the victims, so she cared very much about her students. Despite, or rather, because of all the wounds on her body, it helped Zhang Ya evolve into a kind and gentle soul. She did not become a dancer like her dream, but she became a teacher. Perhaps at the back of her mind, if the teacher did not lie that day but came forth with the truth of the incident, everything might have gone down a different path. She could not change the past, so she chose a different path. At least in her class, she would not allow a similar tragedy to repeat itself.

Everything appeared to be going well, but Chen Ge could not stop the anxiety that was burgeoning in his heart. To have a person experience despair, one had to first give him a good taste of happiness before taking everything away from him.

“Do you still not trust me?”

With the encouragement from Zhang Ya, Chen Ge called his father’s number, and the call was connected after it only rang twice. “I am now at my teacher’s place...”

It was a simple, warm conversation between family members. There was nothing wrong with it. The father and son shared a friendly relationship. They respected and understood each other. There was no situation where the parent was placed on a higher hierarchy and the child had to listen to the orders of the parent no matter what simply because the parent was the parent.

After Chen Ge finished his part of the conversation, he handed the phone over to Zhang Ya. Zhang Ya and Chen Ge’s father spent quite some time discussing Chen Ge’s future and his education. At around 11 pm, Chen Ge carried Zhang Ya’s sheets and lay down on the couch. He buried himself under the covers. “This is so soft.”

“Be careful. Keep yourself tucked in, or you’ll catch a cold.” Zhang Ya stood at the bedroom door. Her place was not big—it only had one living room and one bedroom.

“You are the one that should be careful. Remember to lock the bedroom door.” Chen Ge waved at her.

“Haha. It’s not your place to remind me of that, but thank you anyway. Good night.”

“Good night, may you have a sweet dream tonight.”

After the bedroom door was closed, Chen Ge lay on the couch alone, and he found his brain was drawing a blank. “I have not had such a happy and easy dinner in such a long time already. Furthermore, this is the most relaxing rest I have had in an even longer time. I have a hard time believing I am currently in a world behind the door.”

His mind was completely relaxed, he might just drift off without him realizing it, and that would be extremely dangerous. “I cannot let my guard down because the ghost fetus and Yu Jian should be waiting for the moment to strike.”

He turned the light off and waited until midnight. He walked into the bathroom to change back into his own clothes. Even though they had not completely dried, it would do given the circumstances.

“It’s about time to leave. There are no clues about Yu Jian at Zhang Ya’s home. Staying any longer will just be a waste of time.”

Rationality told Chen Ge that he should leave now and use the rest of the night to search Li Wan City, but when this thought entered his mind, his body tried its best to reject it. It was as if there was another voice in his head that was telling him to stay in this warm cocoon of comfort.

“The reason I am here is to search for clues in Zhang Ya’s home. I will not get another chance like this. In other words, this will be my last time here. In many ways, this will be the last time I ever do something like this.”

When he reached the door, Chen Ge stopped. He turned his head back to glance at the door to Zhang Ya’s bedroom. “At eighteen, Zhang Ya became a Red Specter, and at twenty-five, Zhang Ya became a responsible teacher. The combination of both should be the real Zhang Ya.”

Honestly, when Chen Ge first received Zhang Ya’s love letter, there was only fear in his heart, and death shrouded him like a heavy cloud. The first time Zhang Ya showed herself was during the livestream for Chen Ge’s search for the murderer during the Murder at Midnight Trial Mission. He encountered the murderer inside the small cabin in the woods, and it was Zhang Ya’s timely reminder that saved his life.

Then, he picked up his courage to visit Western Jiujiang Private Academy. After he found out about Zhang Ya’s story at the dance studio, even though he was still afraid of Zhang Ya, in that fear, there existed a trace of empathy. Due to this feeling, he voluntarily helped Zhang Ya search for the killer responsible for her death. He could still remember the details from their first meeting like it was yesterday.

Truthfully, that was not that long ago. But the things that they had experienced since then could not be summed up easily in one or two sentences. “Before this, I was only given the chance to meet Zhang Ya, who had become a Red Specter. This time, behind the door, I’ve been given the chance to get to know a different side of her.”

Chen Ge walked to the bedroom door and placed his palm lightly against the door. He had no idea whether Zhang Ya was already asleep or not. He hesitated for a long time before he whispered, “I’m so lucky to have met you in this life.”

Carrying his backpack, Chen Ge picked up the black umbrella under the table and left the red umbrella behind. He quietly opened the front door. Chen Ge did not fall to the desire to spend the night at Zhang Ya’s. He hurried out into the rain. Following his initial plan, Chen Ge decided to continue his search at the eastern side of Li Wan City. The city in the rain was completely different from how it presented itself normally. There were no streetlights and no cars on the road. “It feels like I am the only one left in this world after the sun has fallen.”

Chen Ge was a person of the dark. He inspected the buildings one by one, but his search led him to nothing. He did not spot anyone outside or inside the buildings. “The place is getting more and more oppressive, and I feel more and more uncomfortable, but the problem is that I cannot pinpoint where in lies the problem because there is no obvious change to the things and people around me.”

The heavy rain finally petered off at dawn. Chen Ge arrived at the school early in the morning. He leaped over the fence and entered the school grounds. He opened the classroom window, jumped through it, and went to his seat. The students gradually filed into the class. The first class of the day was English. Before the teacher arrived, Chen Ge asked Du Ming for his homework and copied it under the record time of ten minutes.

“Thank you. In the future, I shall repay you by offering you a free ticket to my haunted house.” Chen Ge returned Du Ming’s homework. It was then that he noticed something was off. The boy who was normally such a chatterbox did not say anything this time. He seemed to be in a bad mood. “Are you okay?”

Du Ming still did not answer. He kept his head lowered like he was afraid to look at Chen Ge.

...

After the morning classes, Chen Ge stretched lazily. He was about to have a chat with Du Ming, but the little fatty grabbed the schoolbag and left like he could not wait to get away from the class, or probably from Chen Ge.

“Something is not right. I have to get to the bottom of this.” Chen Ge hurried after his deskmate. As he walked out the door, he bumped right into two other male students.

“I am so sorry.” Chen Ge did not want to get into any unnecessary altercations, so he quickly apologized.

“Oi, look where you’re going next time. This is such bad luck.” One of the students patted his clothes like any contact with Chen Ge would leave traces of bad luck on him. He seemed to have unfettered hatred for Chen Ge and mumbled under his breath. His voice was low, but with his super hearing, Chen Ge could hear him clearly. Basically, he was using ad hominin against Chen Ge, calling him a b*stard for being raised by a single parent, how he was so unlucky that even his own mother had chosen to abandon him.

“My friend, it is not good to talk about another person like that. In the future, I will come and explain to you why it is not good to talk that way about another person,” Chen Ge said with a smile on his face. He memorized the faces and voices of those two boys and then left in a hurry. It was not that Chen Ge was open-minded enough to not care about their comments—he simply thought that there was no reason to take things too seriously with people who were about to die.

The two male students thought that Chen Ge was afraid of them, so they grumbled behind him with derision. Chen Ge noticed something sinister from their behavior. Tragedy was about to arrive. The things in this world had started to target him personally. “Have the ghost fetus and Yu Jian finally lost their patience?”

Due to the interruption from the two students, Chen Ge failed to catch up to Du Ming. He took a detour around the education block before arriving at the rooftop with his backpack.

Opening the door, Zhang Ya was sitting alone where they had sat yesterday. There was a lunch box placed next to her. It was like she was waiting for someone.

“Miss Zhang?”

“I’m surprised that you came.” Zhang Ya waved for him to come over. “When did you leave this morning?”

"I left once the rain stopped. That was the first time I spent the night at another person's house. It was quite embarrassing." Chen Ge sat down beside Zhang Ya, and for some reason, his heart started to race.

"Have you had your lunch?"

"No."

"It's not good for your development for you to keep skipping lunch like this." Zhang Ya opened the lunch boxes that were stacked together. "Coincidentally, I prepared another box today."

...

After the lunch break, Chen Ge returned to the classroom, and Zhang Ya returned to the teacher's lounge. The second period after the lunch break was still Zhang Ya's class. Chen Ge was quite happy, but during that class, the classroom door was suddenly pulled open. Mr. Si waved at Zhang Ya from outside the door. It appeared that he had something important to tell her. Before she left, Zhang Ya had a smile on her face, but when she returned, her brows were creased deeply together. However, she soon reverted to her usually bubbly self. She knew better than to allow her personal emotions to affect her students.

After the class was over, Zhang Ya hurried out.

"Has something happened?" Chen Ge carried his backpack and chased after her. Once he got to the corridor, the whispering of two students travelled into his ears.

"I heard that the new teacher was just given a stern lecture by the discipline head. It was apparently because she got a bit too close with one of the students here."

"But that's probably just a teacher being concerned about her student, right? There is nothing wrong with that."

"Who knows what is happening behind closed doors? I heard that the new teacher already has a trail of bad history following her. She always gets into similar trouble, and that's why she was sent to a small town like ours to teach English."

"Are you being serious? This is some serious allegation."

"Someone told me that, but I am sure it's all true. I mean, just look at her."

“You have a point there. Such a beautiful woman coming to a small town, I doubt it is for the meagre salary of an English teacher.”

“That’s right. These days, you can’t trust anyone, not even figures of authority who are supposed to protect you.”

Chen Ge had no idea where the rumors started, but he knew it would be pointless to tell the students to shut up because that would not stop the rumors from spreading like a pandemic.

“The ghost fetus and Yu Jian are probably waiting for me to make my move.”

After everyone had left, Chen Ge stood near the teacher’s lounge. The rain outside the window had started to fall again. Zhang Ya was once more the last to leave the teacher’s lounge. She spotted Chen Ge, who had been waiting for her, and Chen Ge noticed her at the same time. Chen Ge had no idea whether his presence would continue to bring trouble to Zhang Ya or not. After he ensured that there was no one else in the building, he chose to walk toward her.

“Why are you still at school? Shouldn’t you be at home already?” Zhang Ya asked with the usual smile on her face. She was adept at hiding her real emotions. Looking at her smiling face, one would not think that something was bothering her.

“Please don’t suffer being wronged just because of me. You can tell me anything. I will do anything for you.” Chen Ge took out the black umbrella that he had removed from Zhang Ya’s home. He did not return the umbrella to Zhang Ya. “You are the only person around me that I can share my feelings with so openly.”

“I know.” Zhang Ya walked closer to Chen Ge, and she repeated what Chen Ge said in a softer and gentler tone, “You are the only person around me that I can share my feelings with so openly.”

She opened the red umbrella with a ghost of a smile lingering on her face. “Actually, I need you to do many things for me. For example, I need you to pay more attention to your studies. Do not get into any fights with your family. Try to befriend the other students in your class.”

“I will try my best to do all those things. I will fulfill all the requests that you have for me, but in return, I need you to promise me one thing.” Chen Ge looked at Zhang Ya seriously.

“What is it?”

“If you one day feel like the pressure is too much for you to bear, before you leave, I hope that we will be able to see each other one last time.”

“Why do you think I’ll leave anytime soon?” Zhang Ya shook her head. “You are overthinking things.”

“That does not matter. Just promise me that you will do that.” Chen Ge pleaded like a child.

“Alright, I promise you. If the day comes that I feel like leaving this place, you will be the first to know,” Zhang Ya replied rather helplessly.

“Okay then.” Chen Ge’s face lit up like a child.

“You are such a kid sometimes.” This time, Zhang Ya’s smile did not feel so forced. It was a genuine smile. “Since you brought your umbrella today, you should go home now. Remember to send me a message when you reach home. If you find it difficult communicating with your family, you can give me a call any time. I will help you communicate with them.”

“Don’t worry about me.” Chen Ge lived up to his promise. He did not wander about the city that day. After Zhang Ya left, he left the school by leaping over the wall just in case the guards saw them and started yet another rumor. Chen Ge purposely tried to increase the distance between them, and he returned home early that day.

“Big... big brother...” When Luo Ruoyu saw Chen Ge, she happily came to the door to welcome him home, but Chen Ge did not step into it.

“Ruoyu, are you home alone?”

“Yes, yes. Daddy... daddy, still... work.” Luo Ruoyu looked at Chen Ge confusedly as if wondering why he was not stepping into the house. Her blinking eyes kept staring at Chen Ge.

“Then I will wait for him here.” Without closing the door, Chen Ge sat down. Luo Ruoyu followed him and leaned against him. With nothing better to do, Chen Ge decided to tell her some stories to pass the time. As the only member left in the Ghost Stories Society, Chen Ge had a library of stories to tell. However, in the stories that he told Luo Ruoyu, he purposely left out the darker parts and only told her the brighter parts of human nature.

After who knew how long, Chen Ge's father finally returned. He looked even more tired than the day before, and the arms that carried the bags of vegetables had obvious black threads all over them.

Chapter 1047 - You Have Her, I Have Sin [3 in 1]

Chapter 1047: You Have Her, I Have Sin [3 in 1]

“What are you doing standing outside? Why don’t you come in?” After seeing Chen Ge, the fatigue on his father’s face depleted slightly as the man forced himself to show his son a smile. “Also, how did you end up at your teacher’s house last night? Do you know how much trouble you might cause her?”

The familiar nagging came, but the man did not complain to Chen Ge about how difficult and tiring his job was, and he did not use that as an excuse to demand that Chen Ge do something for him. “Come on in then. It is great that you are home tonight. I will go and prepare dinner for you guys now. Come on.”

“I cannot go into our house.” Chen Ge stood at where he was. The previous night, he had inspected parts of the eastern side and western side of Li Wan City. With two more days, he would have completely searched the entirety of Li Wan City.

...

“What’s wrong?” The man obviously did not expect Chen Ge to refuse to go into the house even when they were already literally standing right before the doorstep already. He stopped moving and turned toward his son. “This is our home. It is the place that will give you comfort and rest when you are feeling down or tired. Why do you refuse to come home? Is there anything that you are afraid of? If there is, please tell me.”

Indeed, in Chen Ge’s mind, his home was a place of warmth and comfort, but that was not the case in Yu Jian’s mind. Once he stepped into the home, the night would fall, and the sun would only rise after he left the home. Chen Ge honestly had no idea why Yu Jian would have this kind of impression of his family and home. Even though he did not have a father, he had a mother that loved him plenty.

Seeing Chen Ge standing on the spot and refusing to budge, the man sighed and relented. He was in no position to force his son to do things that he did not want to. “At least come back in to have some bites after I am done preparing dinner.”

He let out a light sigh and walked into the kitchen. Soon, there came the sound of plates falling and shattering from inside the house. It sounded like Chen Ge's father had tripped and fallen. Chen Ge's body instinctually rushed into the room, and he ran to his father's side. The latter was leaning against the wall with his hands over his stomach and shattered pieces of china around him. “The medicine, the medicine is in the outer pocket of the jacket.”

Chen Ge followed the instructions and jogged to find his father's jacket. In the pocket, Chen Ge found a small medicine bottle. The label had been torn off, so he could not tell what kind of medicine it was.

“I will prepare the dinner. You should go and get some rest.” Chen Ge picked the man up from the ground. Luo Ruoyu leaned against the kitchen door to look into the room. Her eyes were filled concern. After dinner was ready, Chen Ge sent Luo Ruoyu back to her own room. After he tucked her in, he returned to the kitchen to pour two glasses of warm water and headed into his father's bedroom. Closing the door behind him, Chen Ge placed the water glasses on the bedside table and moved a chair to take a seat next to his father in bed.

He gripped his father's hand and looked at the tired and weak man who was wrapped up underneath the blanket. In his mind, his father was a mysterious, funny, knowledgeable, and interesting person who had the ability to solve any problem that came his way. His wide back had always stood before little Chen Ge, helping him block the wind and the sun. He had never imagined that he would one day be in this position, sitting by the bedside of his ailing father. The pain from his stomach caused Chen Ge's father to curl up in a fetal position. He arched his back and turned away from Chen Ge as if he was unwilling to let his son see him in this state.

“It has been almost twenty years already, we never had the chance to have a talk like this before. Life has been pushing me forward, and honestly, I have gotten used to the high pace. Before the day you guys left, I didn't realize that the independence that I knew was merely an independence in terms of a survival skill.” Chen Ge had many things to say, things that he would have trouble sharing with others that were not those who were closest to him.

“What are you talking about?” The man's face was pale. He leaned against the pillow and hesitated for a long time. It appeared like he had something to tell Chen Ge, but in the end, he decided against it. “Who did you learn to cook with? Was it someone at school? That person is a good teacher. The dinner that you prepared was delicious.”

“Perhaps it was from the good cooking genes that I have inherited.” Chen Ge passed the warm water to his father. “What was the medicine that you took earlier?”

“It is just some medicine for the stomach. It is no big deal.”

“If you are ill, you’d better focus on curing it. You know that you can let go of the responsibility you have toward the family temporarily. I will help you take care of Ruoyu.”

The man before him was a figment of Chen Ge’s imagination. In a way, Chen Ge was calmly having a conversation with his own ‘father’ in a very unique way. The two had a very long chat and unraveled the misunderstanding that could have existed between them. Chen Ge was most worried about the man’s physical body. He hoped that he would have an early rest, but the man stubbornly requested for Chen Ge to stay by his side and kept on impressing on him the responsibility of becoming the head of the family. The man was like a broken record, and the thing that he repeated the most was ‘take care of yourself and your little sister.’

When the sun was rising, the storm stopped. Chen Ge once again walked to the door. However, before he could step out, there came another sound from his father’s bedroom. He quickly ran over to check on his father. He saw the man sitting by the bed all dressed up with one hand on his stomach and the other rummaging through the drawer as if looking for something.

“You should skip work today if you are not feeling well.” Chen Ge helped him find the medicine. Looking at the black threads on the back of his father’s arms, Chen Ge was sure that that was not some kind of normal illness but a curse. The ghost fetus and Yu Jian were cursing Chen Ge’s memory. They were behind Chen Ge’s father’s weakening by the day. Chen Ge had seen through their plan. They were coming after the people that cared about Chen Ge. They wanted Chen Ge to experience the same despair as they did, watching the people that he loved leave him one by one.

Flipping through the comic, Chen Ge tried the call the many names, and a thin blood vessel appeared on the comic. “I still need more time.”

After ensuring that his father would take a day off work, Chen Ge grabbed his backpack and headed to school. When he passed through the school gates, he did not feel anything was particularly out of place. It felt like any other day.

When he came to the class, many students were already there. Some had their books open before them to prepare for the upcoming classes. Some were memorizing vocabulary. Others were hurrying to borrow homework from their friends to copy. Chen Ge walked to his seat. He glanced to his side. Du Ming had his head lowered while he was busy correcting something. His table that was next to Chen Ge was neatly stacked with the homework from many different subjects.

Even though Du Ming had not spoken a word to Chen Ge, the message that he was trying to send was obvious—if you need to borrow anything, just take it.

Compared to Du Ming, who was still a child, Chen Ge was practically a demon fox with thousands of years in training already. He knew that Du Ming had been paying attention to him. What has happened to this kid? Why did he suddenly decide to stop talking to me? Could he be the source of all the rumors that have been flying all over the school?

In his own memory, even though Du Ming could be categorized as a selfish person, he would never go around and spread rumors. The boy had no interest in the rumor mill. After all, he would rather spend the time studying. The boy might run his mouth occasionally, but his results always placed him in the top ten students in the school. He spent very little time on entertainment and was a model of self discipline. Chen Ge did not reach over to grab any of Du Ming's homework. Instead, he took out the English textbook and started to work on the homework himself.

"I should start with the multiple choice questions. If only the Pen Spirit was here with me right now." The third period that afternoon would be the English class. When Zhang Ya entered the classroom, many students started whispering to each other. The rumors and ad hominen did not disrupt Zhang Ya's teaching condition. She led the class like normal. During the fourth period, Chen Ge was surprisingly paying attention in class when he suddenly received a call.

The call came from his father's colleague. The man said that his father had suddenly fainted at work and was being sent to the hospital. He told Chen Ge to hurry and get there as well. As the eldest son of the family, he felt that responsibility. After explaining the situation to the teacher briefly, he left the school in a hurry and rushed toward the hospital in Li Wan City. Pushing open the door to the sickroom, Chen Ge's father was still unconscious. "Doctor, what is wrong with my father? Why did he suddenly faint?"

"We are conducting the examination now. Please calm down. We need you to go and wait outside, or you might disrupt the patient's recovery." Chen Ge was chased out of the room by the doctor. He sat on the bench outside the hospital room, patiently waiting. Ten minutes later, he heard more footsteps from the corridor.

"Chen Ge, what did the doctor say?" Zhang Ya had hurried to the hospital. She knew about Chen Ge's family condition and was Chen Ge's class teacher. She felt that it was her responsibility to be there for him at this difficult time in his life.

Seeing Zhang Ya in person, Chen Ge felt slightly more comforted. "They are still conducting the examination, but I suspect with the town hospital's medical standard, even if they can discern the illness that he is suffering from, they are incapable of curing him."

Looking through the sickroom window, Chen Ge saw the black threads that had increased on the back of his father's hands. The black spots that represented the curse had spread all over his father's body.

"If you need any help from me, just tell me." Zhang Ya handed the lunch box over to Chen Ge. "I do not have any classes this afternoon. You should go back to school. I will wait here for you. If anything happens, I will call you at the first moment."

"No, I don't think I will leave this place. I have a bad feeling about this." Both Zhang Ya and Chen Ge skipped school that afternoon. It was when the sun had almost set that Chen Ge's father regained his consciousness, but his condition was very bad.

"Leave the family chores to me. You should focus on treating your sickness." Chen Ge called the red high heels' name in his heart, but he got no response. However, the page on the comic where the red high heels was hiding had a thin blood line that surfaced on it. The employees were close to breaking through their shackles. Chen Ge held his father's hand. Not many people would be able to share what he was feeling at that moment.

When all the Red Specters could break through the barrier, this world would shatter. He would return to the real world, but at the same time, he would lose everything that he had experienced in this made-up dream world.

Chen Ge returned home when the sky was already dark. He just got into the staircase when he heard the sound of Luo Ruoyu running to open the door. No matter how tired, how low one was feeling, when one got home to a warm light, and someone to open the door, that was a kind of simple happiness that many people would forget to appreciate.

“Big... big brother...”

“Daddy will stay outside for a few days, and he temporarily will not be home. I will cook dinner for you, okay?”

Luo Ruoyu had no idea what being hospitalized meant; she was just happy to see Chen Ge. Entering the house, Chen Ge prepared the dinner and served it on the dining table, but Luo Ruoyu did not move to take a bite.

“What’s wrong? Do you have no appetite?”

“Where... where is daddy?” Luo Ruoyu hugged the bowl. She wanted to wait for their father to come home before they started dinner.

“He has to stay at the hospital because he is sick. He will be back in a few days.” Chen Ge sat on the other side of the table. The room that was normally so cramped felt so empty and hollow that night. Chen Ge was sitting at the spot where his father usually sat. Perhaps when he was not home, this was how his father and Luo Ruoyu spent their nights together.

“But daddy...” Luo Ruoyu hugged the bowl and continued to stare at Chen Ge. She kept repeating the same words, and tears were threatening to flow out of her eyes. Chen Ge knew that a conventional explanation was not going to work. Chen Ge called his father on his cellphone and then placed the phone next to Luo Ruoyu’s ears.

After hearing her father’s voice, a smile immediately lit up the girl’s face. Chen Ge placed the phone on the table, and Luo Ruoyu finally started to have her dinner. Hearing the occasional hacking that came from the phone, Chen Ge found himself unable to move his chopsticks. He looked at Luo Ruoyu silently and the rather hollow home that they were sitting in.

The owner of this house is my father. If he leaves one day, I will take over everything and look after it for him. Now that I think about it, this old house is not that different from the haunted house.

At that moment, Chen Ge finally understand the meaning of Luo Ruoyu's presence in the world behind this door. Luo Ruoyu was the first Specter that had appeared to accompany Chen Ge in his mind. This little sister represented the family other than his own biological father, and she also represented the employees that could not be wiped away from Chen Ge's mind.

I swear I will not crumble so easily in protection of this family.

After putting Luo Ruoyu to bed that night, Chen Ge stayed inside the house. Once he pushed open the door, the next day would arrive. To delay the time as much as he could, he did not go anywhere. The blood vessels in the comic continued to increase in number, and the rain outside the window continued to become heavier and heavier.

Once dawn arrived, Chen Ge carried his backpack and went to school. He noticed quite visibly that people had started to toss strange looks at him. He did not mind these things. Attacks based on rumors and empty words would not affect his emotional level and mental stability.

When he arrived at the classroom, Chen Ge found Du Ming in a worse state compared to the previous day. There were black rings under his eyes, his lips were chapped, and he did everything he could to avoid meeting Chen Ge's eyes. Chen Ge still did not borrow Du Ming's homework to copy. He knew that Du Ming was hiding something in his heart.

During the lunch break, Chen Ge tried to talk to Du Ming, but the latter was acting very strangely. It appeared like he needed to make some kind of deep determination before he could even talk to Chen Ge.

“Did something happen to you?” Chen Ge did not think Du Ming would go around spreading those nasty rumors, but he had a feeling that Du Ming knew something about it. During the lunch break, Chen Ge first went to the hospital to buy some food for his father, and then he bought two packets of lunch and took them home for Luo Ruoyu. He could not step into the house, so he handed the lunch to Luo Ruoyu at the door. The brother and sister sat in the stairwell. As they had their lunch, Chen Ge told Luo Ruoyu stories.

After the many interactions, Chen Ge confirmed that Luo Ruoyu's presence was a representation of the workers at his haunted house. Initially, she was only willing to stay inside the house and would never step out of it. But with Chen Ge's aid and persuasion, she had started to open herself up to the outside world and enjoyed the air outside the house. After ensuring that Luo Ruoyu had finished her lunch, Chen Ge returned to school. He sent some messages to Zhang Ya. They always had something to talk about, and they would never run out of topics.

When he reached home that night, Chen Ge decided to teach Luo Ruoyu how to do some housework and teach her some simple life skills. Things that were like second nature for a normal person proved to be extremely difficult for Luo Ruoyu. She had trouble controlling her body, and she had a very hard time understanding simple language. One had to repeat things many times for her to get it. Chen Ge tried to educate her for a very long time, but the results were less than favorable. Even so, Chen Ge still lavished her with praise.

The night turned into day, and day into night. The days passed in a blur. Chen Ge had never once closed his eyes. His mental state had reached an extreme. On the ninth morning after Chen Ge entered this world behind the door, the comic in his backpack finally a few pages that were completely dyed red, and he finally could gain contact with his employees.

"The final showdown should happen anytime now."

Carrying the backpack, he pushed open the door of his family home. The gray clouds pressed low in the sky like they were trying to suffocate the people in the world. Not only the people at the school, even the neighbors had started to give Chen Ge and Luo Ruoyu strange looks. The rumors had spread that far. When he went to school, the first class of the day was English. Chen Ge was ready for it.

For the past few days, Du Ming did not utter a single word to him. The usual chatterbox had become so unusually quiet. He stopped communicating not to only Chen Ge but also everyone else around him. His face blanched day after day like he was suffering from some illness. His results were affected. The small quiz that they had yesterday sent his placement back ten spots.

"Do you need any help?" After these nine days, Chen Ge had practically turned the whole of Li Wan City upside down. Even though he still had not found Yu Jian, through different clues and ideas, he had a general idea where Yu Jian was hiding. The competition started the moment he stepped through the door. Leaning on the table, Du Ming's long sleeves accidentally scooted up his arms to reveal the bruises underneath them. He looked even more tired than Chen Ge.

“Your family beat you? Simply because you scored worse in the test yesterday?” Chen Ge’s voice was small, but Du Ming heard him clearly. The latter’s hands clenched together before they slowly loosened. The boy ignored Chen Ge and buried his face into the textbook. The class started, but halfway through the first class, Chen Ge and the rest of the class heard the sound of an argument coming from the corridor. The sound came from the teacher’s lounge. Instead of calling it an argument, it was more like the one-sided venting of a woman.

When he heard that voice, Du Ming’s face paled even further. The boy looked like he was in physical pain. There was some self-recrimination, some embarrassment, but more than that, there was an emotion that was hard to pinpoint.

They waited until the class was over. Chen Ge immediately grabbed his backpack and prepared to leave, but as he got up from his seat, Du Ming suddenly reached out to grab at his elbow. “What’s wrong?”

“I’m sorry.” After saying that, Du Ming let go of his elbow. By then, Chen Ge had a brief idea of what had happened. He took a deep breath and ran out of the classroom. The door to the teacher’s lounge was locked. Chen Ge pushed away the group of students who had gathered around the window, and he looked in through the window.

Four parents were surrounding a female teacher and scolding her rapidly and relentlessly. Their spit flew everywhere, and their faces were twisted in disgust and anger. Mr. Si tried his best to mediate and promise to the best he could by the parents. The argument in the teacher’s lounge went through the roof. The students outside the office treated this like some kind of concert. They were having the time of their lives. Some even cheered the parents on. Only Chen Ge stared at the female teacher quietly.

The questioning that came from nowhere, the sin that was pinned on her for no reason, and the rumors that became more and more ridiculous by the hours. Chen Ge felt the urge to blast into the room with Doctor Skull-cracker’s hammer and smash everything into pieces, but he did not do that. He asked himself, what would he do if this happened to him in real life? What would a boy at his age do when he experienced such a thing in his life? What could he do at this very moment? In reality, he could not do anything. He could only stand outside and watch because anything too obvious would only make a bad situation worse.

“Was Yu Jian feeling this helpless before? Being possessed by the ghost fetus, he was much stronger than me. He could have easily killed everyone in the room, but he did not do that. The ghost fetus would have continued to urge him to do so, to turn him into a demon who hated everything, but he went against the ghost fetus’ wishes. This should be when the separation between Yu Jian and the ghost fetus reached its limit.”

More and more students gathered outside the teacher’s lounge, and finally, the teacher inside relented. The office door was pushed open. The person who led the heckling bunch of hens was a middle-aged woman. She looked very stern, and her face was still covered in anger. When she first stepped out of the teacher’s lounge, her eyes seemed to zero in on Chen Ge, and her anger reached to the top of her head immediately. She was about to unload on Chen Ge when the female teacher whom they had been giving a dressing down earlier stepped forward to stand between the woman and Chen Ge.

“Whatever you have against me as a teacher has nothing to do with the innocent student.” The female teacher did not say anything else, but her countenance was firm. She was unwilling to move even one step, completely different from how gentle she was normally. The woman called her something very nasty that would have gotten this book banned if it was written down before being pulled away by the other parents. They left the school compound with Mr. Si bowing and apologizing profusely to them.

“Go back to your classes now. There is nothing to see already.” The female teacher urged the students to leave. Then she glanced at Chen Ge and whispered in the gentlest tone she could manage, “You should also return to class.”

“I’ll talk to you in the afternoon.” That was all Chen Ge said. After the crowd dispersed, he walked away from the female teacher. He returned to the classroom and saw that Du Ming was leaning on the table, pretending to be asleep.

“Du Ming, why did your mother come to school today?”

Du Ming did not say anything in response. All Chen Ge heard was heavy breathing.

“She seemed to have misplaced all the wrongdoing and fault on Miss Zhang, but I am the one who was behind all those things.” Chen Ge tightened the grip around the pen that he was holding, and his voice was getting louder and louder. "It was me who affected your studies, it was me who borrowed your homework, and it was me who interrupted you during your studying to chat every single day. The whole classroom would be able to be my witness, but they were all pointing their fingers at Miss Zhang. Why? Why did they do that when I am the one who made all the mistakes?"

"Stop! That's enough!" Du Ming finally shouted back at him. He was highly agitated. He seemed to be in a tenser situation than Chen Ge.

Seeing Du Ming in that state, Chen Ge did not wish to push him any further. He left the boy with one last statement. "The two of us are the recluses of the class. Neither of us has a friend. The only person that we can share our story with is each other. In a way, you are actually my only friend."

Hearing Chen Ge say that, Du Ming's breathing became very agitated like he was suffering from asthma. He appeared to be in great pain.

Chapter 1048 - The Distance Between Life and Death [2 in 1]

Chapter 1048: The Distance Between Life and Death [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Are you alright?” Chen Ge twisted open a bottle of water for Du Ming. “How about some water?”

Du Ming collapsed onto the table, buried his face into his textbook, and held his stomach with both hands. “I did not mean to do it. I did not expect it to turn into something like this.”

...

“What exactly did you do?” Chen Ge did not get mad. If anything, the gaze that he had for Du Ming was filled with more pity than anything else. Du Ming did not respond. He merely shook his head lightly. His mental condition was stretched to its limit, in a way, rather similar to Chen Ge’s condition.

...

After the fourth class, when there was no one around, Chen Ge sneaked his way up to the rooftop of the education block. Zhang Ya was standing by the edge of the roof. He walked to stand beside her silently, the two of them watching Li Wan City expand below them. The education block was one of the taller buildings in the city, and this very moment could not help but remind Chen Ge of the incident that happened in the Li Wan City behind Xiao Bu’s door. At that time, Zhang Ya had accepted his request and become part of his shadow.

The wind carried the chilling raindrops that landed on their faces. Zhang Ya’s hair was blown aside by the wind behind her. Suddenly, she said, “I might be leaving after some time.”

“Is it because of me?” Chen Ge had predicted this outcome. He had spent the whole morning rehearsing this scenario in his mind, but when Zhang Ya laid it out in the open for him, the statements that he had practiced were lodged in his throat.

“It has nothing to do with you.” Zhang Ya shook her head rather resignedly. “The reason is because of me. I always assume that I have walked away from the past, and I can begin a new life with a smile, but I was only lying to myself. Working hard, keeping myself busy, everything that I have done is merely a reason for me to escape. Actually, it has been so many years now, but I still feel like I am trapped inside that dim dance hall.”

Standing next to Zhang Ya, Chen Ge gripped the rail tightly. He could empathize with her because he was the only person in this world who knew about Zhang Ya’s actual past. Be it in the real world or this made-up world behind the door, Zhang Ya had chosen to share her secret only with him.

“If anyone is in the wrong, it is those who began and spread the rumors. Give me some time. I will get to the bottom of everything and show everyone the truth.” Chen Ge had been wanting to do that. Even if this was just behind the door, even if everything that had happened was just derived from his own memory, he still had the urge to help Zhang Ya, to give this nightmare a brand new beginning.

“The truth does not matter. What really matters is you. I am afraid that what once happened to me will recur again with you.” Zhang Ya cared about Chen Ge. When the whole town was swirling with the rumors about them, Chen Ge still sided with her and trusted her implicitly. She had not experienced that before. Even with the age gap between them, there was one thing that was undeniable—she did sense something that was different about the young man beside her.

“I can leave, and I can try to run from everything, but you can’t.” Zhang Ya stood before Chen Ge and leaned in close. “Your father is still recovering at the hospital, and you have a little sister to take care of. In the future, these responsibilities will fall on your shoulder. You mustn’t let my issue affect your life.”

“I already have a general idea of who started the rumors. We can...”

“Chen Ge.” Zhang Ya raised her arm, and the slender finger pointed at the heavy and dark sky. “This separation does not mean that we will never see each other again.”

Zhang Ya seemed to have already made her decision. If she forced herself to stay, she would continue to be spoken about behind her back. Actually, Chen Ge knew that it was not easy for Zhang Ya to make this decision. She must have taken a long time to consider it again and again. His hands that gripped the rail had turned white, and blood vessels shot out beneath Chen Ge's eyes. He took a deep breath to steady himself. "Sometimes, I feel that this world is a very awful place. It will always reach out toward the kindest person to torture them."

"The world itself is not good or evil, but do not lose faith in the good people in the world. Once there are more good than evil people in the world, the world itself will change into a better place." Zhang Ya reached out to help Chen Ge adjust his hair that was blown disheveled by the wind. Her cold finger stopped at Chen Ge's cheeks. "So, in the future, you have to try to become someone good. It is time for you to go back. You still need to prepare lunch for your family. Do not waste too much time on me."

Taking back her hand, Zhang Ya turned around to look at the school compound that had become her second home for these past few days. It was hard to tell what was going through her mind.

Standing behind Zhang Ya, Chen Ge looked at her back. He raised both of his hands before putting them down again. He left the rooftop and the school to head to the hospital. After buying food for his father, he bought another lunch box by the roadside and returned home to meet Luo Ruoyu. When he reached his own residential area, Chen Ge stopped at the door. Normally, when his footsteps echoed down the corridor, Luo Ruoyu would run over to open the door for him, but that day, the little girl did not show up.

"Nothing will have happened, right?" Chen Ge called Luo Ruoyu's name out loud. He believed that he could hear the sound of suppressed crying coming from inside the house. "Ruoyu?"

Pushing the door open, Chen Ge was hit in the face by a horrible smell of leaked gas. Ignoring the rules, he dashed into the room. The kitchen was filled with puddles of water, and shattered pieces of the glass thermos littered the ground. He ran into the kitchen and saw Luo Ruoyu curl up at the corner with her hands covering her ears. Before her was a broken thermos. Her shirt was wet, and her neck, arms, and fingers had been scalded. Tears hung on her face.

"Who told you to use the stove!" Chen Ge kicked the broken thermos away. He had never been this mad in his life before. Hearing the roar from Chen Ge, Luo Ruoyu cried even harder. Her red and scalded hands shielded her face, and the tears kept on falling. Switching off the stove, Chen Ge did not give it another thought as he carried Luo Ruoyu and ran outside as fast as he could.

Once he stepped out from the door, it was already the beginning of a new day, but Chen Ge was not in the mindset to care about that. He carried Luo Ruoyu, called a cab, and rushed to the hospital. Thankfully, only a small part of her body was burnt. The majority of it was centered around her arms. The doctor applied some ointment on Luo Ruoyu, but the girl was still like a doll whose soul had not returned. She appeared to have been severely traumatized by this incident.

“The condition is not as serious as it looks, but as her family member, you have to be careful. It is too dangerous for a mentally-challenged child to stay at home alone.”

After the doctor left, only Chen Ge and Luo Ruoyu were left in the sickroom. When the ointment was still slathered on her skin, it would sting, but after a while, it would give off a chilling feeling. Luo Ruoyu placed both of her arms beside her body. She did not dare look at Chen Ge. She kept her head lowered and wept as softly as she could.

After standing for a while inside the sickroom, Chen Ge placed his backpack down and sat beside her on the bed. He pulled her in for a hug. “I am sorry. I should not have shouted at you.”

The girl in his embrace was shaking. A dam seemed to break inside her. She leaned against Chen Ge’s shoulder and started to wail.

“I know you just wanted to help. You did not want to be a burden to others. I know you have tried your best. I can see that now.” Chen Ge tightened his embrace around Luo Ruoyu. “After all, we are each other’s most important family.”

In this world behind the door, Luo Ruoyu represented his family and also represented the once homeless haunted house workers as well as the lingering spirits that were trapped inside the deepest abyss of despair before they were offered a home by Chen Ge. So, no matter what happened, Chen Ge would also stand at the forefront, overcoming the training of the night, and was never stingy with his encouragement. Chen Ge did not ask for anything in return; he did all that merely because he had treated them as part of his family.

After she cried for a while, Luo Ruoyu became tired and fell asleep. Even so, her hand was still clutching the edge of Chen Ge’s shirt. After tucking Luo Ruoyu into bed, Chen Ge left the room silently. The blood vessels in his eyes were getting more and more pronounced, and the comic in his backpack had started to change.

“The tragedy is slowly approaching. Since this is a dream weaved from my own memory, I shall shatter it myself.”

Since he had returned home in the afternoon, it was already a new day. When Chen Ge arrived at school, they were already halfway through the first period. He went to his seat and noticed that Du Ming, who was never late, did not go to class that day. When the first period was almost over, the teacher even went over to Chen Ge to ask if he knew why Du Ming had skipped class that day.

Du Ming, who was a well-recognized studious person, skipping class was something that Chen Ge did not expect. The second period only began for ten minutes when a shrill woman’s voice came from the corridor. “What else do you wish to do if not come to school? What else can you do? Go back to class immediately!”

The woman sounded like she was lecturing someone, but the voice of the person being lectured was not heard. This was a one-sided altercation. The voice slowly approached the classroom, then the door was pulled open. A woman appeared at the door. She was as angry as she could be. The expression on her face was scary. “Well, are you coming over here or not?”

She dragged the thing behind her rather harshly, and Du Ming was shoved into the classroom. The little fatty looked worse for wear. He kept his head lowered and did not dare to look at anyone.

“Well, get to your seat!” After saying that, the woman turned to the teacher who was conducting the class and bowed slightly. She added in a much softer tone, “The kid overslept, but he was afraid of being punished, so he did not dare come to school.”

“It alright, Du Ming. Please just take your seat.” The teacher seemed to be slightly afraid of the woman himself.

“So sorry for bringing so much trouble for you, sir.” The woman’s face changed as quickly as the actors from Chinese Opera. She plastered on a very fake smile and then left in a hurry. After she was gone, the students in the class started to churn the rumor mill again.

“That was Du Ming’s mother? She is so strict. No wonder Du Ming’s results are so good.”

“I thought his mother would be as fat as he is.”

“You know what, she looks rather familiar. I remember it now!

Wasn't she the parent who led a group of other parents and made a scene in the teacher's lounge that other day?"

"I think you are right. She is so ferocious. Even Miss Si did not dare speak too loud in her presence."

"Actually, if you think about it, being under such a mother must be quite scary. The fact that Du Ming is so reticent and has such a nasty attitude probably has a lot to do with his family."

The words of the rumors travelled into Du Ming's ears. He lowered his head even further. He did not dare look at anyone. He was afraid that once he lifted his head, he would realize that everyone was staring at him.

"Don't mind what these people say. These people will only dare talk behind your back. If you stand before them and look them in the eyes, none of them will say a negative word about you."

Different from the whispering of the other students, Chen Ge voiced his opinion loudly, so loud that even the teacher could hear him clearly. Perhaps it was the effect of the statement or perhaps they were shocked by the fact that Chen Ge would come to Du Ming's defense—in any case, the classroom quieted down again.

The class resumed. Chen Ge did not ask Du Ming why he was late that day. After coming to his rescue that one time, the interaction between them stopped. Chen Ge stopped paying Du Ming any attention. If anything, it was the latter who kept sneaking glances at Chen Ge, like he had something to tell him but failed to gather the courage to say anything. The bell rang. The third period was English class. Like usual, Du Ming took out the English textbook, but Chen Ge was just leaning against the wall, spacing out.

Chen Ge was usually so excited when it was English period. This anomalous behavior from Chen Ge gave Du Ming a very bad feeling. The bell rang again. Five minutes passed, but the teacher still did not show up. Chen Ge seemed to have known this would happen. He turned his head to look out the window.

"Chen Ge..." After who knew how many days, Du Ming finally spoke to Chen Ge again. "Has anything happened to Miss Zhang? Normally, she arrives at class five minutes before the period officially begins."

"Zhang Ya has already been fired by the school." Chen Ge pulled his gaze back from the window and whipped his head around to stare at Du Ming. “She will not be coming to teach us anymore.”

“Has been fired?” Du Ming jumped up from his seat. Everyone in the class was focusing on their studying. It was very quiet, so everyone heard Du Ming clearly.

“It was all my fault, but she was the one who was forced to keep apologizing. But in the end, her apology was not accepted.” Chen Ge glared at Du Ming, challenging him to hold his gaze. “I tried to complain to her, asking her why this world would always pick on those who are kind. She told me the world itself is not purely good or evil. When there are more good people in the world, the world itself will be a kinder place, and it will learn to treat people kinder.”

“Why didn’t you tell me this sooner? Did you know this would happen already?” Du Ming’s eyes were bulging, and his face was red.

“I found out yesterday.” Chen Ge paused for a moment. “But what was the point of telling you?”

“She is leaving, and you are just going to sit here just like that? Didn’t you like her? Shouldn’t you have stepped forth and done something for her?” Du Ming was getting agitated. He grabbed Chen Ge by his collar. “Why didn’t you stop her? You...”

Bang!

Before Du Ming could finish, Chen Ge delivered a heavy left hook on his face. Before the boy could react, Chen Ge launched yet another powerful kick at his stomach, causing the boy to crumble to the ground. “Who is the class monitor? I need you to watch over the class and ensure that everyone pays attention to their homework.”

Chen Ge grabbed his backpack with one hand and dragged Du Ming by his collar out of the classroom with the other.

“Do you know who that teacher is? Do you know what she represents to me? Do you know what she has experienced in the past?” Chen Ge’s punches fell on Du Ming like rain. “You do not know anything.”

Pushing open the iron door on the rooftop, Chen Ge flung Du Ming onto the ground. “She trapped herself willingly inside that blood red world filled with despair. She has not seen the light for so long already that perhaps she has even forgotten who she is anymore. And because of that, I wish desperately to leave a good memory for her. Even though I know very well this is just a dream, I tried my best to make this dream as beautiful as it possibly could be.”

Chen Ge grabbed Du Ming by his shoulders and slammed him against the wall. “But you guys did not even deign to give me a chance to weave a dream for her.”

“I have no idea what you are talking about. All I know is that you keep on saying you care about her, but you have not done anything for her! You do not love her at all! You are just lying to her, using her as a scapegoat so that she will volunteer to take on all the pain on your behalf!” Du Ming growled in a horrible grimace. He waved his arms and tried to hit Chen Ge.

“Is that what love is in your eyes?” Chen Ge did not retaliate. “Do you understand that love is conditioned. For a student at seventeen, no matter how enamored he is, no matter how much he wants to get close to her, you have to understand one thing, your adoration might become her burden. Love is a weight. It could be a pair of wings that allow a person to soar, and it could be a stone that pulls one down into the abyss of despair. If I were you, I would maintain a suitable distance until the day I could shoulder the responsibility for both myself and for her before I dared search for her again.”

Du Ming’s emotions were getting frayed. He had gotten completely out of control. It was as if the secret deep inside his heart was being peeled out into the open for everyone to see. “You are not me. You will never understand it.”

He struggled to get loose, but this time, Chen Ge knocked at him heavily and dropped him to the ground.

When Du Ming slipped to the ground, his phone fell out. The screen broke, and through the shattered screen, one could see that background picture of the scene was a picture of Zhang Ya. The picture appeared like it was taken when Zhang Ya did not notice it. In the picture, Zhang Ya had a faded smile on her face, and it appeared that she was conversing with someone.

“You also like her?” Chen Ge looked at the broken phone screen and took out the hammer from his backpack.

“Do not use the term ‘also’. You do not deserve it. When she was being pointed at and scolded by everyone, where were you? When she was tortured by the rumors, what did you do for her?” Du Ming wiped away the blood from his face and climbed up from the ground. “You have done nothing for her. If anything, because you are a student and she is a teacher, due to this distance that cannot be broached, you do not even have the courage to step forward to stay something to defend her!”

Du Ming shouted from the bottom of his soul, but it sounded like he was not scolding Chen Ge but the person that he once was.

“Perhaps from your perspective, the distance between a student and a teacher is far enough for you to feel despair, but have you considered this? There is a distance in this world that is the difference between living and dead.” When Chen Ge saw Du Ming’s phone, he understood everything. “You like your teacher, but you can use everything in your power to try to close the distance. Take three years or five years to work on yourself until you are capable of taking that step to go and find her. But the distance between life and death, that might not be crossed even in a lifetime.”

Picking up the phone from the ground, Chen Ge looked at Zhang Ya in the picture. “Love will never stop from the moment it flares up until death. It will only end when one party chooses to leave.”

Chapter 1049 - Love Taken by the Ghost Fetus [3 in 1]

Chapter 1049: Love Taken by the Ghost Fetus

[3 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“So, this is love...”

Chen Ge did not hold back. Du Ming was beaten into a pulp, and he had trouble standing up. He touched the wounds on his face and appeared like he had finally calmed down. The words that Chen Ge said were finally getting through his skull, and he was slowly digesting them.

...

“Your mother keeps a very close and watchful eye over you, but she did not seem to have tell you what love is, or rather, she has not taught you how to correctly love someone. Love is an ability, love is a responsibility, but love does not equal bliss. It is not only an adoration and admiration you have toward the person you have a crush on, but it includes your attitude toward your family, your friends, and the world at large. Those who understand what love is have kindness running through their veins and a warm glow suffusing their hearts. Even when they are walking in the dark or through a fog, they will not get lost.”

1Du Ming came from a very strict family. The way his mother treated him was similar to a military-like education. Of course, if this was allowed to continue, in the future, Du Ming would have no choice but to become a good contributing member of society, but it was destined that there would be a part of him that was missing. The wind howled on the rooftop. Chen Ge gave Du Ming enough time to think about what he had said, then he picked up the phone and squatted next to Du Ming. “Was it you who started the rumors around the school about Miss Zhang?”

Chen Ge clicked open the phone’s photo album. Most of the pictures had been deleted. There were only two pictures left that were saved in the album. One was the picture of Zhang Ya that was taken when she was not paying attention, and the other was the picture of Zhang Ya and Chen Ge walking out from the school sharing the same umbrella. The second picture was taken from the back. From that perspective, it appeared like it had been taken without the subject's knowledge as well.

"It was not me." Du Ming took a long time before he uttered that. He raised his bruised face. "My mother went through my phone without me knowing one day. She discovered the pictures and asked me who the woman in the picture was, so I told her that she was the new teacher."

"But what does that have to do with the rumors?"

"After she saw the picture of you sharing an umbrella with her seemingly going home together, she had a very bad impression of this intern teacher, so she spread the news among the parent's group." Du Ming's eyes were filled self-recrimination and guilt. He hated how helpless and worthless he was at that moment.

"A parent's group? When did this happen? Did my father know about it?"

"It was on the day you left the school with Miss Zhang. Your father should have known about it. At the time, the people in the group managed to recognize you from your back, and many of them went after your father to demand an explanation. Your father tried his best to come to your defense, but I believe no one was paying him any attention. They merely continued to pile on him until he was kicked out of the group. I thought he would have told you that already."

"My dad has known about this all along?" Chen Ge adjusted the timeline in his mind. That was the day he spent the night at Zhang Ya's home and did not go back home. His father did not blame him or get angry at him but used his actual action to prove his trust in his son.

"The parents all thought this kind of teacher would not be able to be a good model for the students. They all thought she has a reputation problem, so they came to school to find a solution. Some of the parents told their children about this and warned them to stay away from predatory adults like Miss Zhang." Du Ming had known everything all along, but he did not say anything. No wonder he could not gather the courage to speak or even meet Chen Ge's eyes. He merely placed his homework on the table, as if he was using this kind of method to express his apology.

“Zhang Ya’s written test and interview score was the highest among all the intern teachers, so naturally, the school would not fire her for just a few pictures. The stalemate between the school and the parents continued for a few days.”

At this point, Du Ming’s voice took on a deeper shade of guilt. “Because of this, I started to feel dissatisfied with my parents. I have never resisted them before, but on this issue, I refused to budge, but my resistance did not gain the understanding of my family. If anything, my mother thought the time that she had spent years teaching was being spoilt and negatively influenced by the new teacher.”

Read more chapter on vipnovel.com

“In other words, your mother had pinned the failure to her own education onto Zhang Ya?” Chen Ge realized before this he had completely forgotten about a crucial person in this story, and that was Du Ming’s mother. The woman was the person who cared about Du Ming the most in the world, but at the same time, she was also the one who harmed him the deepest. Before this, it eluded Chen Ge why Du Ming was so unpopular with his good results, and sometimes, he would be appear to be so selfish and cold. People would come to talk to him, and the boy would freeze them out. Now Chen Ge could see why.

“The real explosion of the conflict happened a few days ago when I came home with a less than satisfactory test result. My mother thought that it had to be because of Zhang Ya, and if she left me in the hands of this new teacher, it would have ruined my future.” Du Ming’s expression was a mixture of bitterness and pain. He was like a bird trapped inside a gilded cage. The people outside the cage admired his ‘singing’, and they all praised his trainer for it, but they had never considered the internal feeling of the bird before.

“That night, my mother shared the story with the rest of the parents in the group. Many of the parents stepped forward to show her their support. Since this was related to their children’s education, they couldn’t be too careful about it, so they decided to gang up together and go to the school to ask for a discussion.” Du Ming’s voice was getting weaker, like his strength was draining as the cooped up story left his body.

“You know about what happened later. The ‘discussion’ turned into an argument. My mother never takes no for an answer. The parents never really understood their children. My mother believed that I should understand the things that she had done for me was for my own good. She truly believed that by making a scene at the teacher's lounge, she would somehow help me and the other students. But once I heard her shrill voice echoing through the hall, I just wanted to find a small space to curl up and hide. I know that she loves me, but now I am afraid of letting people even know that she is my own mother."

Du Ming's mother's education had some problems. Chen Ge felt like he should find a chance to have a meeting with her. "I believe that you should sit down and have a good conversation with your mother. Never admitting her mistake and a strict requirement as well as holding her child under a high moral standard is not a good form of education."

Du Ming could be communicated with normally. Chen Ge gave him a helping hand as he dragged the boy up from the ground. Both of their eyes were bloodshot. "Now, I need you to listen to me. There is one more chance that we have that we will be able to make Miss Zhang Ya stay, but I do not know whether you have the courage to do that or not."

"Me?"

"Yes, all you need to do is to take your phone into the teacher's lounge and tell everyone the truth behind the pictures. There is nothing inappropriate between me and Zhang Ya. That day, we shared an umbrella because I forgot to bring my own, and she loaned me hers. You know about all that. You can be the witness. You can be the one who stops all the rumors." Chen Ge shoved the phone back into Du Ming's hands. "But the question is whether you have the courage to do that or not."

Holding the phone whose screen had broken, Du Ming stood there for a long time and did not speak.

"Tell me when you come to a decision." Chen Ge did not force Du Ming. He looked at Du Ming quietly, but in his mind, it was Yu Jian's shadow that was overlapping the boy's body.

"I..." Du Ming's fingers tightened, and his eyes were red. After a long time, he slowly opened his lips. "I cannot do that."

"How did you interrogate me earlier? Your pain is no lesser than mine, so why don't you have the courage to face it? Actually, you wish to sink in this abyss, don't you?" Chen Ge wanted to help Zhang

Ya, but at the same time, he was helping Du Ming. If Zhang Ya really left just like that, Du Ming would live with the guilt forever, and that would become a knot in his heart that would never be unraveled.

“If I go there and explain everything, my mother will be so mad. After all, she did all those things because of me. It was how she showed her love toward me.” Du Ming put away his phone. Grayness started to appear at the bottom of his eyes, and the color drained from his face. He appeared suddenly lifeless. It was not easy for him to come to this decision. “Miss Zhang still has you, but my mother’s only rock in the world is me. My father left when I was still very young. She is being so strict on me because she has placed all her hopes and dreams in me.”

“Is it for your own good that she has turned into a selfish monster? Taking away your happiness, taking away your ability and capability to love others, does your mother often remind you how difficult it is for her, how hard she has to work, how much she has invested and sacrificed for you?” Chen Ge could understand, but he could not approve of it. “Your mother is not raising you as a son; she is raising you into a version that she hopes you will become. I do not deny that she loves you deeply, but that love should not be built on the basis of voiding a person of his personality. Love is mutual. Yes, it is rare that a balance can always be achieved, but most of the time, it should be equal and fair.”

Du Ming heard Chen Ge’s words and gritted his teeth. Chen Ge did not disturb Du Ming and allowed his words to settle while he studied the little fatty who stood before him. Physically, Du Ming was not disformed in any way, but psychologically, he was missing something important, something that a human being should be born with. That thing was ‘love’.

“I will go with you and explain everything to the school.” Chen Ge grabbed Du Ming by his shoulder. “I do not mind being expelled. I can give up everything because this is my mistake. I should be the one being punished, not Zhang Ya.”

With Chen Ge’s continual persuasion, Du Ming finally gave a nod. Seeing Du Ming change his mind, Chen Ge sighed in relief. He accompanied Du Ming, and they left the rooftop together. They knocked on the door to the teacher’s lounge. Chen Ge and Du Ming, who were covered in bruises, walked to Mr. Si’s table.

“What happened to you two? Did you get into a fight?” When Mr. Si saw Du Ming, he was given the shock of his life. After all, Chen Ge had given the boy quite a beating. He had knocked the boy literally off his feet before he could knock some literal sense into him.

“Mr. Si, actually, Miss Zhang is nothing like the rumors say. She did not do anything that violates the rule of her career and being a teacher.” Du Ming took out his phone. “The picture that was first shared among the parent’s group is this picture. The real incident that happened that day was Chen Ge forgot to bring his umbrella, and Miss Zhang was afraid that he would get wet in the rain, so she told him to get under the umbrella with her. That was the whole truth. I was just standing beside them at the time, and I heard everything.”

“But when your mother came yesterday, that was not what she said. Didn’t you tell her about this?”

“I did, but she refused to believe me.” Du Ming placed his phone on Teacher Si’s table.

“So, it is all a misunderstanding. Look at how this thing has blown up. I need you to call your mother and tell her to come to school now. We will need to explain this all in the open.” Mr. Si wanted to resolve this problem. Zhang Ya was the best teacher that he had ever had the privilege to interview. To fire a valuable talent like that because of a mere misunderstanding, it did not feel right to him. Du Ming called his mother, and his mother promised to arrive soon. Mr. Si also gave Zhang Ya a call, but the call was not connected.

“Will something has happened to Miss Zhang?” Chen Ge wanted to go to Zhang Ya’s home to check, but Mr. Si did not allow him to leave. According to the discipline head, he was one of the main characters, so he had to be there as a witness for Zhang Ya.

They waited for about half an hour when they heard rushing footsteps coming from the corridor. Without knocking on the door, the door to the teacher’s lounge was pushed open, and a middle-aged woman strode in. Her face was already carved with impatience and annoyance, but when she saw the condition Du Ming was in, her expression changed immediately, and she quickly jogged to Du Ming’s side.

“What happened? Who did this? Was it him?” The woman glared at Chen Ge. “How many times I have told you not to hang out with people like him? He is a bad student, so why do you insist on spending time with him? Since I am already here, Mr. Si, I demand that you change my son's seat. I want him to be away from this bad influence, as far away as possible."

"Madam, you have been called here because we need to discuss the thing that you told us earlier. The parents have misunderstood Miss Zhang." Mr. Si took out Du Ming's phone. "Miss Zhang did not do anything inappropriate with any of the students. They shared an umbrella because Chen Ge forgot to bring his umbrella that day."

"Who told you that?" The middle-aged woman's face darkened almost instantly.

"It was Du Ming who told me that. Even if you do not believe Miss Zhang, don't tell me you do not trust the words of your own son?" Mr. Si assumed that it would be easy to convince Du Ming's mother, but he did not expect the woman to be so determined and desperate for Zhang Ya to leave.

"Impossible! Someone must have forced him to tell this horrible lie!" The middle-aged woman whipped her head around to glare at Chen Ge. "How did my boy get all these wounds? It must be you, right? It was you who forced him to tell these horrible lies! Admit it!"

Du Ming's mother was like an angered lioness, and her voice kept on raising. The sound of the argument attracted the attention of all the other teachers in the room. Du Ming lowered in head, but his mother was impervious to the scene that she was causing. If anything, she only raised her voice louder and louder.

"Madam, you must calm down. I was the one who interviewed Miss Zhang. She is really a good teacher. She would never do the things that you have insinuated she has done."

"How can you even guarantee something like that?" The middle-aged woman slammed her bag on the table. "From her looks, I know that she is a good for a nothing girl. I sent my child here because I trusted your school, and this is how you treat me?"

"Madam, you are being a little bit unreasonable." Mr. Si was cornered. He had said everything he could, but he could not change the middle-aged woman's mind. He thus turned to Du Ming. "Du Ming, tell me the truth. Did Chen Ge force you to say those things?"

With his head lowered, Du Ming gripped his shirt with his hands, and his face was blanched.

“Du Ming, tell us how Chen Ge forced you to say those false statements! Don’t you be afraid of a ruffian like him. I will protect you!” The middle-aged woman was practically ordering Du Ming to do so.

A palpable silence fell over the office. Du Ming did not say a thing. His mother’s expression was getting more and more desperate and agitated. Just as she was about to explode, Du Ming finally opened his mouth. “No one forced me to say anything.”

Both Mr. Si and Chen Ge sighed in relief, but Du Ming’s mother refused to accept this. She gripped Du Ming by his shoulders. “Son, don’t be afraid. Be a good boy and tell the truth. You are being threatened by this nasty piece of work to say all these things, aren’t you? They are all lies, aren’t they?”

“What I said was the truth. Miss Zhang did not do anything inappropriate with Chen Ge. You merely saw the pictures of Miss Zhang in my phone and tried to chase Miss Zhang away because you are afraid that she might affect my school results!” Du Ming had held this in for a long time, and this time, the words burst out from him like a fountain.

“Du Ming?” The middle-aged woman’s face clouded over. Her teeth clattered noisily, and her breath was coming uneasily through her nostrils. She did not expect Du Ming to say something like that. The fury and sense of betrayal fired up her mind. “All I ever did was for you own good! Why can’t you ever see that?”

Du Ming did not dare reply. At that moment, the bell rang. Many students ran out from the classroom and gathered at the corridor.

“I have to carry out the roles of both a father and a mother at the same time. Do you think it is easy for me to raise you all by myself? Do you the amount of pressure that I am under?” The middle-aged woman practically hissed through her teeth. “I have placed all my hopes and dreams in you, and this is how you repay me?”

Du Ming’s mother’s voice was getting louder and louder. The students gathered in the corridor could hear her clearly. More of the students started to gather. They leaned against the window to enjoy the show.

“I am talking to you! What is in that mind of yours! For that filthy woman, you do not even want to listen to my words anymore, huh? What has she done to charm you like this?” The middle-aged woman grabbed Du Ming by his shoulders. “After your father left us, I am the person who has been the kindest toward you. Everything I did was for your own good. As long as you are well, I will be happy. Why can't you understand that?

"In this whole world, I am the single person who loves and cares for you unconditionally! Du Ming! You disappoint me so much!"

The words were like knives cutting into Du Ming's heart. The blood leaked out from the wound, and they were all in the name of love. He gasped hungrily for air. His hands held his clothes tightly until his fingers snapped, and his knuckles turned white. The sound of the argument was getting so loud that the students who were not gathered in the corridor could hear it clearly.

The students' faces appeared on the window, one head piling over another like a wall of strange, inhuman faces. Many eyes wandered all over the room, scanning the figures who were gathered inside the teacher's lounge. Du Ming felt like he was being stripped and left naked on a stage with the spotlight gathered on him. He tried to cover up his privates and desperately sought somewhere to hide.

"Du Ming's mother has come to school again?"

"I could hear her during class."

"Du Ming's mother sure has a temper."

"Quick, this is a good show! They have gotten into another argument."

"Du Ming comes from a single-parent family? His father abandoned them?"

"No wonder he is always acting the way he does. He stutters when he is called to speak in class..."

The words travelled into Du Ming's ears, torturing his mind. The very last shred of pride that he tried to protect was trampled on. His chest rose and fell unevenly. He covered his hands over his ears. He just wanted to run away from this place. His pupils darted about anxiously. His mother's interrogation and scolding fell on him like a waterfall. The strange looks and remarks of the students from the corridor rushed into and overwhelmed his mind.

“Stop, stop talking. Please stop talking. I’m begging you...” His mouth opened and closed like a goldfish. His body was shivering. His legs buckled and staggered backward. They carried him to the edge of the window. His fingers that had gotten numb fell on the edge of the windowsill. Du Ming was like a drowning victim who finally found a pocket of air. His hands shoved the window angrily open. His leg leaped over the window, and it was as if the weight was lifting away from his body. The wind blew into his fall. As his world turned upside down, a pair of hands grabbed him firmly.

“Have you lost your mind?” What Du Ming saw was Chen Ge’s blurry face. It all felt like a dream. “Death is not going to solve any problem!”

Using all the strength in his body, Chen Ge managed to yank Du Ming back to safety. Since Du Ming’s mother entered the picture, Chen Ge had noticed the boy’s emotions beginning to fray. That was why he had kept his guard next to him, afraid that some accident might happen. His precaution was right.

Everyone in the room was shocked. No one expected Du Ming to do something like this, and that included his mother. All the teachers in the room turned to look at Du Ming. There was not a peep from the students outside the teacher’s lounge. The world seemed to have frozen in that moment.

“Why did you do that?” Du Ming’s mother was the one who broke the silence after a long time. There was an obvious change to her voice. It was as if there was another person speaking from inside her.

“Why would you choose to die rather than to listen to my words? It has been proven again and again that I am the person who cares the most about you in this world. I am the one who truly understands you and loves you.”

Black stains started to surface on the middle-aged woman’s face. This world behind the door that mimicked the real world the most started to change. Black threads surged out from the corners, and a horrible stench started to rush in from all sides.

The heavy clouds pressed even lower from the sky. The rain unloaded on the world, washing away the layer of disguise that had covered the small town. The black rain, red rain, gray buildings, and curses weaved together to form this nightmare.

“We are kindred spirits. In this world, only I will be able to understand you; only I can help you. I am the only one who cares about you sincerely. So, why did you choose to die rather than listen to me? All I ever wanted was for you to become a better person, to become someone like me.” The middle-aged woman raised her head. The black curse dispersed to reveal a baby face.

The ghost fetus!

When this face appeared, Du Ming’s body started to change. The rolls of fat were like a cage made from a curse, and it was entrapping a boy who was as thin as a stick figure.

Du Ming’s phone fell to the ground. The woman on the screensaver was no longer an image of Zhang Ya but an unfamiliar woman who was wearing a pair of spectacles.

Chapter 1050 - Red Spectre

Zhang Ya [2 in 1]

Chapter 1050: Red Spectre Zhang Ya [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

All the illusions faded away. This small town was nothing but a nightmare used to trap Yu Jian. In this nightmare, Yu Jian was wrapped up in a thick shell, and the ghost fetus became his own mother, the person that was supposed to be closest to him. Perhaps the ghost fetus wanted to use this method to get Yu Jian to understand him, to have the boy see the effort that he had made for him. After all, they shared the same perspective and background; they were both ‘monsters’ that emanated evilness from the bottom of their hearts.

The ghost fetus believed that Yu Jian was the same kind of person as him; Yu Jian believed that the ghost fetus could help him accomplish many things. They were like the shark and the remora, feeding off each other and committing multiple crimes.

...

But one day, Yu Jian found the teacher that would change his life. He started to go against the ghost fetus and violate his order.

When Chen Ge saw Yu Jian trapped inside Du Ming’s body, all the questions that he had so far were cleared up and answered. He was thankful that he did not resort to violence the moment he entered this world. If he had gone against his principles and ruined this small town, he might become one of the bargaining chips the ghost fetus would use to convince Yu Jian. The ghost fetus would definitely have told Yu Jian that everyone had a demon living inside their heart, that it was something normal. Everyone would go for destruction and despair—that was human nature. There was no need to follow what the female teacher said.

The ghost fetus would manage to convince Yu Jian, and if the ghost fetus succeeded, Chen Ge would not only need to face the ghost fetus but also Yu Jian, who was empowered and taken over by the ghost fetus.

“The worst situation has not appeared. My effort so far has not been wasted.” Chen Ge used actual actions to give Yu Jian a lesson that he would never forget. If meeting that teacher was the only stroke of light in Yu Jian life, a light that granted him a glimpse into the real world beyond the despairing mist, then Chen Ge offered him a pair of hands, wanting to pull him out of the devouring mist. The ghost fetus ultimately failed to gain Yu Jian's approval. Everything he did, if anything, only caused Yu Jian to resist him even further and harder. The black threads that were pulsing with curses crawled all over his body. The ghost fetus could not understand it. The eyes that looked at Yu Jian started to take on the flavor of evil and resentment.

"I've treated you so well and given so much to help you, and this is how you treat me?" The baby's face was twisted. The hatred in his heart was at its maximum. He could not understand why this would be the result after he had done so much for Yu Jian. He kept saying these things like a broken record. It felt as if he had repeated these exact words to another person before. He repeated them again and again. The pressure that pulsed around him became scarier and scarier. Soon, he became more terrifying than a normal Red Specter.

"This isn't the real ghost fetus, right? Has he been hiding behind this door all along?" Chen Ge could not really tell. One thing that he could not rely on was his luck. After all, during the spinning of the Wheel of Misfortune, he always got the unluckiest prizes. He would always form these unbreakable bonds with unknown Specters and Red Specters.

Yu Jian had lost consciousness, wrapped in layers of curses. Chen Ge was unable to shatter the shell of curses, but leaving him there alone would not be a good idea. After giving it some thought, Chen Ge took out the comic from his backpack. Whether the ghost fetus before him was real or not, he decided to deal with the ghost fetus here and now. This time, he had spent too much time submerged in the world behind the door. His mental state was strained to the maximum. Both of his eyes were bloodshot, and the man himself was about to collapse.

"It's time to call an end to this." Flipping through the comic, Chen Ge called the names of his employees. The pages of the blood-stained comic fluttered like a bloody sea. The heavy scent of blood powerfully overwhelmed the horrible stench that previously occupied the room. The Red Specters were fighting the curse inside the teacher's lounge. Two terrifying forces collided. This sight would have snapped the mind of a normal person.

"Du Ming's mother is much stronger than the woman from Wu Sheng's world. They are not even on the same level." There was no place to hide in the enclosed space. As more and more blood red figures appeared, this curious world took on a sheen of redness. Blood flowed. A pair of pale hands pierced through the cage weaved by the curse and attempted to pull Yu Jian out.

“Xu Yin and Ol’ Bai, I need you two to stay beside me. Temporarily, don’t go anywhere.” He had been calling them for almost ten days before the defense of the world behind the door was broken. As the employees appeared, it also pointed at the final collapse of this false world behind the door. The scenario that was weaved from Chen Ge, the ghost fetus, and Yu Jian’s memories was about to collapse, and it was Chen Ge himself who was going to shatter it with his own power.

“The two of you should go and give it a test.” Chen Ge summoned the Stage Costume Red Specter and the water ghost that he had met in Jiang Yuan Apartments. They had been locked inside the comic for a long time. This was their first time in the open, but the first thing that they saw was the ghost fetus who was getting stronger. The increasingly scary presence added a lot of pressure to the two Red Specters.

“The snail behind Jiang Ming’s world had a tough shell, and it needed the cooperation of ten Red Specters to break through it. The faceless woman behind Wu Sheng’s world knew how to control blood, and she could perform multiple task very well. The ghost fetus behind Fang Yu’s door was very calm and collected; she was an expert at setting traps and controlling curses. Every variation of the ghost fetus behind each door possesses different talents. The ghost fetus before us now has an indeterminate power. I should use the Stage Costume Red Specter and the water ghost Red Specter to feel him out first.”

Chen Ge was very cautious. He had held on for so long behind the door. He would not allow himself to make a careless mistake at the last moment.

“Xiao Bu, watch for the opening and aim for the kill whenever you can!” Of all the Red Specters that Chen Ge had, the strongest one currently was Xiao Bu. After becoming the real door pusher of the door in Li Wan City, this little girl had not really shown her true strength. After all the Red Specters showed up, Chen Ge could not try to communicate with them during the brief moments when they were not fighting. The battle between Red Specters was extremely gory and cruel. They were entities wrapped within layers of resentment. Unless there was a serious imbalance in power level, once they started fighting, no one would be able to pull them apart until one of the parties was killed and consumed.

A Red Specter with rationality and reasoning like Men Nan was an exception.

The water ghost Red Specter and Stage Costume Red Specters appeared before Du Ming's mother. They had to attack. If they don't, they would be attacked by Du Ming's mother. They had no other choice. The Stage Costume Red Specter did not mind it that much. She possessed a great resentment toward the ghost fetus. After all, it was the latter who had forcibly occupied her altar.

The water ghost, though, even thought of abandoning Chen Ge to join the ghost fetus. This was different from what he had imagined.

"Chen Ge, our promise did not include a fight with another Red Specter, right?" He wanted to stay out of it. After all, Du Ming's mother who was actually the ghost fetus gave him a very dangerous feeling.

"No, it is hundred percent within our promise. Did you not ask me to find the door pusher of the door at Jiang Yuan Apartments for you? The ghost fetus is the door pusher. After you kill him, you will be the real door pusher." Chen Ge did not lie, or at least, he believed he had not said a single statement that was false before.

"Our promise was that we would kill the door pusher together!" The water ghost Red Specter was only powerful in water. He was unable to gather his full strength on dry land. Soon, his body was cut and wounded by the curse. "Help me! Help me!"

1 "That given by others is called charity. That fought for and earned by oneself is called dignity." Chen Ge kept his eyes on the water ghost Red Specter. The black thread of the curse slipped through the water ghost's body through the open wounds, and it made its way to his heart. The water ghost slowly lost his rationality. All the negative emotions in his mind were amplified. If this continued, he would turn into a collection of negative emotions that could not be communicated with. Other than hatred, murder, and resentment, he could not feel any other emotions.

"The ghost fetus behind this door can use the curse to corrupt others, huh? To pollute the other Red Specters' hearts?"

The heart of the Red Specter was the basis for their existence. It was an object crystallized from their last wish and resentment. Chen Ge did not expect the curse of this ghost fetus to be so powerful.

“We need to end this battle as soon as possible! Work together! Be careful of being injured by his curse!”

After getting to know the ghost fetus’ power, Chen Ge stopped holding back. The ghost fetus’ curse was too scary. With this kind of power, if the ghost fetus managed to survive the initial onslaught, after the curse took effect, Chen Ge would lose its advantage in numbers. Red Specters who had their hearts corrupted would destroy everything before them, including their former colleagues and even their boss.

“So far, I have found out so many powers that the ghost fetus boasts. The more I discover, the scarier he becomes in my mind.”

None of the red Specters held back. They attacked at full force. The ghost fetus’ body was mangled and weakened. He barely looked human, but he still hung on for dear life. He did not disappear. The black threads that were hidden in various spots behind the door crawled into his body to help him recover.

“The world behind Yu Jian’s door is helping him?” Chen Ge knew that he did not have much time left. He grabbed the shoulders of the boy who was lying on the ground. “Yu Jian, can you hear me? Your resistance and determination has paid off. I am here to bring you home! Wake up! The mother in your heart is a version that has been maligned by the ghost fetus. She is not your real mother!”

“Have you really lost all hope in this world? Do you not wish to see your own teacher one last time? There are many people like her in this world. The ghost fetus hid them away from you. He only showed you the darkest side of the world. But you must understand that with darkness comes light. Without the light to shine, where does the shadow come from!”

As if hearing the term teacher, Yu Jian’s eyelids flickered slightly. His brows slowly moved into a V. He seemed to be struggling in a nightmare.

“Yu Jian, if you really believe that you have encountered love, it is time to stop letting yourself sink behind the door. Do not let her down and use every inch of power that you have to change yourself into someone that would make her proud.” Chen Ge picked Yu Jian up from the ground and gave him a powerful slap. “Snap out of it! Perhaps she is just waiting for you on the other side of the door!”

The flesh that caved in slowly recovered. Yu Jian's eyelids moved slightly, and then he slowly opened his eyes. Chen Ge picked up the phone from the ground and showed the picture of the screensaver to Yu Jian. "Live! I beg you to give life another chance! It is not that hard. In the future, you might have a chance to see her again!"

The fuzzy eyes started to focus. The past incidents crossed Yu Jian's mind. The boy's hands reached out to grab the broken phone, and his expression stopped being so blank. Chen Ge removed his jacket and placed it around Yu Jian. The boy was a prideful man, but he was completely naked behind the door. This was probably a symbol of his once state of mind.

"The ghost fetus infested himself inside you and kept luring you to the edge of the darkness. He blotted out all the light and only allowed you the glimpse of darkness and despair. Thankfully, you ran into that teacher."

"Miss Zhang..." Light started to gather at the bottom of Yu Jian's eyes. The connection between the ghost fetus and the world behind the door was weakening. He found it more and more difficult to summon energy from Yu Jian's world.

"Yu Jian!" The ghost fetus' body was disformed and covered in wounds. He was wailing like a wounded animal. "It was me who accompanied you when you were all alone! It was me who stood by your side when your father abandoned you and your mother blamed you! When the adults were fighting and shouting in the name of 'love', it was also me who was shielding you from all the pain!"

A shrill voice was coming out from the ghost fetus' lips. He had shed the disguise of Du Ming's mother but started to remind Yu Jian of the things that they had gone through together. From what Chen Ge gathered, Yu Jian appeared to be a b*stard son. His mother fell in love with a man who already had a wife. The argument between his parents and the whisperings of the neighbors twisted Yu Jian's understanding of 'love' from the moment he was born. Combined with the influence of the ghost fetus, Yu Jian gradually lost the power of love.

"He was not protecting you. He merely wanted to turn you into his tool, to turn you into a machine who would not know what love is." Chen Ge guarded Yu Jian behind him. "If you still retain the memory of the period after I entered your door, you should think about it. What is love? What should you do when you really love a person?"

The ghost fetus was unable to get any more help from the world behind the door. At that moment, he looked aggressive, mad, and crazed. Compared to the physical wounds on his body, he was more angered by Yu Jian's attitude toward him.

Seeing the ghost fetus in this state, Yu Jian's lips were pressed in a thin line. His hands that were raised earlier were finally lowered again.

"Yu Jian! Yu Jian!" The ghost fetus' body was torn into pieces by the Red Specters. All the black threads were washed away by the wave of blood. Du Ming's mother, who was disguised by the ghost fetus, disappeared, and what remained on the terrifying distortion of a mother's love was a watercolor painting of a child.

A family of three stood before a haunted house with happy smiles on their faces. In the sky was a sun that was painted red. Around the house were green trees with brown trunks. The family wore colorful clothes, and the whole picture was filled with various bright colors. Chen Ge remembered painting this when he was young. In fact, he noticed his name was signed in his still untrained handwriting in one corner of the painting. It was a homework assignment that had been given by the teacher. It was to draw a painting with theme of family.

"The ghost fetus is also in possession of this drawing?" The painting looked normal, but after Chen Ge studied it closer, he noticed that something was off. There was a small part on the painting that he did not remember putting in. The family of three stood before the haunted house happily. Under the blazing glaze of the sun, behind the caricature that represented Chen Ge, there was a dark shadow that was added by someone other than Chen Ge.

"The shadow?" Chen Ge placed the painting inside his backpack. He carried Yu Jian, and with the accompaniment of the Red Specters, they walked out from the teacher's lounge.

"It is time for us to leave this place." The small town no longer looked like the idyllic place that it appeared to be. The dream had turned into a nightmare. Chen Ge looked blankly out the window as if looking for someone. The streets were filled with cracks, and the rain continued to pour. This world was about to collapse. Chen Ge still did not see the person that he was looking for. He walked to the black door that was in the school's equipment room.

Just as he was about to push the door open with the rest of his employees, his phone suddenly rang. Chen Ge did not hesitate and answered it immediately. He placed the phone next to his ear and held his breath. Moments later, Zhang Ya's voice came through the phone. "I promised you that I would definitely tell you before I leave, Chen Ge..."

"Where are you now?" Chen Ge grabbed the phone and ran to the nearest window. "I will meet you now!"

Without taking the umbrella, Chen Ge grabbed the backpack and rushed into the pouring rain while holding the phone. He ran down the cracked street, flying through the crumbling world. Finally, he saw that lonely shadow standing at the crossroad. Zhang Ya stood by the road, holding a red umbrella. She still had not hung up the phone that she was holding. Gasping for air, Chen Ge's body was soaked by the rain.

"I did not want to call you, lest I interrupted your study, but once I have decided to leave, I seemed unable to control myself." Zhang Ya pushed the red umbrella over Chen Ge's head and stood beside him. "Will you ever forgive my selfishness?"

The gray town started to crumble and fall. The black cracks were tearing through the world. Chen Ge did not answer Zhang Ya. This was the first time that he had been able to be so close to her. "If the incident at the dance studio did not happen, if we were not teacher and student, if you were just Zhang Ya and I was just Chen Ge, how good would that be?"

Zhang Ya did not say anything once she heard Chen Ge. She took another step forward. She stood on her tiptoes and leaned lightly against Chen Ge. Raising both of her hands, Zhang Ya whispered in Chen Ge's ears, "Hug me."

Under the red umbrella, before Chen Ge could raise his hands, Zhang Ya's body had started to turn illusory. The red umbrella tumbled to the ground. Chen Ge hugged nothing but air. He stood alone silently as the rain poured down around him.

The world behind the door collapsed. The Red Specters herded Yu Jian and Chen Ge to the iron door, and they worked together to push it open. Just as they left the world, droplets of red rain fell on Chen Ge's backpack. They seeped through the material and finally dyed Zhang Ya's book red.

COMMENT

After stepping out from the iron door, gravity pulled him sideways, and he stumbled into Yu Jian's bedroom. His eyes were red. Without missing a beat, he pulled open his backpack and took out Zhang Ya's bedtime story. He flipped through the many pages until he found the last page.

"X Year X Month X Day, I had a dream today. In the dream, I was a teacher, and he became my student.

"I dreamed that we shared the same umbrella going home. I dreamed that we stood at the bus stop waiting for the bus together. I dreamed that we were living and cooking together.

"I dreamed that I hugged him, and he returned a tight embrace."

Chapter 1051 - Seven Children

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1051: Seven Children [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The whole book was filled with entries of cruel and gory stories, but the last page consisted of a warm, sweet dream. His fingers caressed the handwriting on the page. Fatigue overwhelmed him like waves. Chen Ge hugged the book, closed his bloodshot eyes, and collapsed to the ground. He was under enormous strain and pressure after spending ten sleepless days and nights in the world behind the door. It was little wonder that he was at his limit already.

After leaving Yu Jian's world, he finally snapped, and his last layer of defense was broken. The backpack dropped beside him, and Chen Ge fell asleep just like that. Next to him, on the single bed, Yu Jian slowly awakened from his slumber. Hugging the thin blanket, Yu Jian took a glance at Chen Ge before slowly burying his head into his chest. Yu Jian's mother, who stood at the door, took in everything. She had no idea what had happened in the room and what to make of it. Chen Ge had promised that he would help cure her son, but from her perspective, before Chen Ge got involved, only Yu Jian was the one that needed treatment; however, after their interaction, it appeared that both Chen Ge and Yu Jian needed some kind of intervention.

...

"Jesus, what am I supposed to do now?" Yu Jian's mother walked into the room, attempting to drag Chen Ge out. She gave the young man a tug and tried to drag him out, but she realized that she was too weak to move Chen Ge by even an inch, so in the end, she surrendered. With a deep frown, she walked out from the bedroom without noticing the many blood red shadows that appeared behind her. If she had done something to harm Chen Ge earlier, perhaps the whole building would have been awash with blood as a result.

At eight o'clock in the morning, Chen Ge was woken up by the alarm that he had set on his phone. His eyes flickered blurrily open, but his eyes were still slightly bloodshot. Holding his head that was still pulsing, Chen Ge looked out the window. The sun filtered through the curtains into the bedroom. A well-dressed Yu Jian was sitting at the study table.

“You are finally awake?” Hearing the movement from Chen Ge, Yu Jian turned around. He was impeccably groomed like he was ready to leave and go somewhere.

“I am still suffering from a bit of a headache.” Chen Ge picked up the backpack and placed everything inside it. “You should still remember the dream from last night, right?”

Yu Jian shook his head. “I can’t say that I remember every detail clearly, but I have not forgotten the words that you told me.”

He grabbed the several pieces of paper from the table, collected them in a stack, and handed them over to Chen Ge. “This is the list of crimes that I have committed. I will go and see Miss Zhang one last time before going to the police to surrender.”

The content on the white paper was shocking. It was filled with horrible thoughts and despicable curses. Three of them jumped out as being the most serious. The first incident happened when he was still very young. Under the influence of the ghost fetus, he had almost poked his neighbor’s child blind. The second incident was when he ran away from home during secondary school. It was during this period that he had surrendered himself completely to the ghost fetus and allowed the ghost fetus to make use of his blood to help complete the setup of the nine children. During this period, the ghost fetus had harmed many different innocent people, including Wu Jinpeng’s younger brother. It was him who shoved his hand into the fan.

At the time, the ghost fetus wanted to take away the sense of sound from Wu Sheng, but Wu Kun, whose mental acumen was much lower than a normal person’s, was not afraid of the ghost fetus. He tried his best to stop him, but the man was unfortunately no match for the ghost fetus, and thus, he had to suffer because of it.

The third incident was related to Yu Jian’s own biological father. If not for his fateful encounter with that teacher, Yu Jian would probably have been pushed down the road of no return by the ghost fetus.

“I knew he was merely using me. From the very beginning, I knew that he would not have chosen me,” Yu Jian said as Chen Ge pored over the pages of confession. “I am the same kind of person as him. He hated people like us from the bottom of his heart. The source of his hatred came from the innate disgust at himself.”

Yu Jian was the living person who had spent the longest time with the ghost fetus. In a way, he could be considered the person who knew the ghost fetus the best.

“Since you knew that you were just being used by the ghost fetus, why did you still choose to help him?” This was something that Chen Ge did not understand.

“Like I said, we were kindred spirits. In that fleeting moment, it felt like he was my only friend, the only person who understood me in this world.” Yu Jian’s body was weak and feeble. He took back the pieces of papers and pulled back the curtain of the bedroom. The room was flooded by sunlight, something that had not happened for a long time. Yu Jian looked out the scenery from the window. “Actually, this world is quite beautiful.”

Stuffing the paper inside his school bag, Yu Jian turned away from the sun, opened the bedroom door, and walked out from the small room that had been his hiding hole for so many years. In the corridor, when Yu Jian’s mother saw her son walk out from his bedroom so well-dressed, her face was filled with disbelief.

“Son...”

“I wish to go for a walk.”

“Of... of course. Sure!”

The door was pushed open, and Yu Jian left with his schoolbag. At the same moment, Yu Jian’s mother rushed into the bedroom, and she looked at Chen Ge with awe and shock on her face. “How did you manage to do it? Yu Jian appears to have gotten much better! He volunteered to go out on his own to go for a walk. I feel like it is going to rain red today!”

1“Yu Jian was never sick to begin with. He merely did not know how to love this world and how to love the people around him.” Chen Ge stared at Yu Jian’s mother. “If you do not wish for Yu Jian to revert to his former state, then sit down and have a talk with me. And this time, I beg you to stop with the lies and deceit.”

After a deep conversation, what the ghost fetus had revealed behind the door was confirmed. Yu Jian was indeed a child born out of wedlock. His biological father wanted nothing to do with his mistress and his illegitimate son while Yu Jian’s mother used him constantly as bargaining chip to get something from his father. From a very young age, Yu Jian never knew what love was, and that gave the ghost fetus the opening to enter his life. The hatred and ugliness of the world was specifically amplified, and his mind and psyche became more and more twisted.

Yu Jian's mother felt guilty toward Yu Jian, so she did the best she could to take care of him, but at the same time, she wanted to cultivate Yu Jian into someone who was better than his father, so she was also very strict with him. Banned from any kind of entertainment and social life, Yu Jian's mother demanded only two things from him. One was to have good grades, and two was to have a valuable skill so that he could take care of himself in the future.

After the deep conversation, Chen Ge discovered a much deeper layer of problems. Yu Jian's mother actually noticed the problems with Yu Jian at a very early age, but even after Yu Jian had done more than a handful dangerous actions toward others, which should have raised a red flag for the mother, Yu Jian's mother chose to blind herself to the severity of the problem. Her love and guilt toward her son blinded her eyes. All she ever did was provide excuses for her son, and that caused her to miss the chance to really educate her son again and again.

"It is not entirely his fault that Yu Jian ended up in this state." Chen Ge picked up his backpack. "If there is a chance in the future, I suggest you go and meet the teacher that was fired due to Yu Jian. She was the real hero who had entered Yu Jian's life to save him."

After getting down to the bottom of everything, Chen Ge prepared to leave.

"Wait a minute." Yu Jian's mother stopped Chen Ge. "Even though I have no idea what kind of method you have used, you have indeed helped Yu Jian solve the problem in his heart. How much do you need for this session? How should I contact you if Yu Jian locks himself up in his bedroom again in the future?"

"I do not do this for the money." Chen Ge stood inside the bedroom and looked around. In the end, he picked up a mud statuette from Yu Jian's study table. "In terms of payment, I shall take this statuette as compensation." He took the mud statuette with Yu Jian's name carved on it, stuffed it into his backpack, and left Yu Jian's home. He took the elevator to the ground. Chen Ge walked into the safety corridor, and he knelt down to look at his own shadow. "When will you be able to wake up? I have many questions that I wish to ask you."

Taking out the mud statuette with Yu Jian's name from his backpack, Chen Ge placed it on his own shadow. The black red blood leaked out from the mud statuette and seeped into his shadow. An oppressive presence was slowly waking up. "After I find the rest of the mud statuettes, it'll be about time for you to wake up, right?"

Chen Ge had not forgotten about what had happened behind Yu Jian's door. He felt like he had gained a new understanding of the girl who was living in his shadow. Picking up his backpack, Chen Ge hurried back to New Century Park before it was open for business. Without saying a word to explain himself, he hurried to the dressing room to help his employees with their make-up and prepared to start the business. The haunted house opened its gate to the visitors ten minutes late, and Chen Ge felt quite apologetic about it. He personally walked to the queue of visitors and presented them with some bottles of water and knickknacks from New Century Park for making them wait.

Chen Ge had high popularity on the internet. When many visitors saw him, they took out their phones and started to snap pictures. It even caused a small commotion.

"One day, if the haunted house really cannot operate anymore, perhaps I can consider changing my career path to become an online personality."

The haunted house ran smoothly. The visitors entered the haunted house orderly, and Chen Ge sighed in relief. He greeted Uncle Xu and then carried his backpack and left New Century Park alone.

"I feel like I am the one who is the least invested in the business even though I am the boss." Chen Ge did not have much time left before the birth of the ghost fetus. Chen Ge called Lee Zheng, and after asking for the location of Zhen Zhen, he called a cab and headed to his destination. Inside the cab, Chen Ge took out the black phone, and as he expected, there were unread messages on it.

"This message probably arrived the moment I stepped out from inside Yu Jian's door." Chen Ge clicked on the screen and opened the unread message.

"Congratulations, Red Specter's Favored, you have completed 5/9 of the Trial Mission, Ghost Fetus. The ghost fetus has lost living human emotions. He can no longer curse you through the people that you love the most! You do not have much time left!"

“Congratulations, Red Specter’s Favored, you have completed 6/9 of the Trial Mission, Ghost Fetus. The ghost fetus has lost his heart! His most precious thing has been taken away, and that has depleted his power greatly! Warning, Red Specter’s Favored, you do not have much time left!”

1 Seeing the two messages on the black phone, Chen Ge was stumped.

“How is this possible? Last night, I only entered Yu Jian’s door and helped Yu Jian regain the love that he lost. I only completed one mission! How did the ghost fetus lose its heart?” His brows dipped into a crease as Chen Ge wrecked his mind, and suddenly, a brilliant flash crossed his eyes as a possibility came to him. “It was the non-smiler from the hospital that stole the ghost fetus’ heart!”

Chen Ge still had an impression of the child whose heart had been stolen by the ghost fetus. At the time, Chen Ge had run into the non-smiler at his home, but he did not get into an altercation with the non-smiler during that time.

“The non-smiler belongs to the party of the cursed hospital. They have also targeted the ghost fetus. After all, the child with the heart deficiency was one of the children selected by the ghost fetus!”

Last night, Chen Ge had entered Yu Jian’s world behind the door to take away the love that had been snatched by the ghost fetus. But on the same night, the non-smiler had reached out toward the child with the heart problem, and they had walked away with the ghost fetus’ heart. “Is the cursed hospital also going after the ghost fetus? What is their connection to the ghost fetus?”

Chen Ge was reminded of something else. Whenever he entered the door of the children selected by the ghost fetus, there would be a black, iron door that appeared behind him. The door appeared to be the door of a quarantine room. It was splattered with faded blood stain and lingered with the smell of disinfectant. The world behind the door was weaved from the children’s own memories, but the black door was quite possibly part of the ghost fetus’ own memory.

“Could the black iron door be a part of the cursed hospital? Was the ghost fetus once trapped at the cursed hospital?”

In his mind, Chen Ge used to separate the ghost fetus and the cursed hospital, but now, he realized that there might be a connection between these two that he had not chanced upon yet.

“Evil is something like a disease, so the question is, who is the patient zero?”

Chen Ge did not have a good impression of that cursed hospital. His greatest wish was for the ghost fetus and the cursed hospital to butt heads and kill each other, but the problem was that the cursed hospital was probably after the same thing as Chen Ge. They wanted Chen Ge to cross swords with the ghost fetus while they stayed out of it to reap the benefits.

“Other than the ghost fetus, I have to be cautious of that hospital.” Chen Ge was very calm. “I needed almost ten Red Specters to take down Du Ming’s mother, who was actually disguised by the ghost fetus. The cursed hospital managed to get away with the ghost fetus’ heart, which means that they are no less powerful than I am! They might even have a Top Red Specter among them!”

His heart rose with agitation. Chen Ge kept on urging the taxi driver, and ten minutes later, he arrived at the police station.

“Inspector Lee, where is Zhen Zhen? Can I please meet him? After all, it was me who saved him.”

“He is at the duty room. The child is a very quiet and obedient kid. He has gained quite a following at the station.” Lee Zheng was originally busy with something else, but when he saw Chen Ge, he put down all his work immediately. “I will take you to meet him now.”

“There is no need to hurry. There is one other thing that I wish to ask you.” Chen Ge walked up to Lee Zheng. “About the child with the heart disease that I asked you guys to investigate earlier...”

“He died last night at the hospital.” Lee Zheng pulled out a document from his drawer. “The boy’s name was Se Xin. With his heart problem, the doctor said that it was already a miracle that he had lived so long.”

“He died? Last night?” Chen Ge’s jaw tightened. He was pretty sure that this was the non-smiler’s doing. A human life was lost just like that. He was just a child. He did not even have the chance to see and experience what the world had to offer just yet.

“I should have gone to him earlier.” Chen Ge felt some responsibility and guilt. The children chosen by the ghost fetus came from a pitiable background, so Chen Ge had been trying his best to help them as well. After Chen Ge entered the door, he would help the children find the power that had been taken away by the ghost fetus and then hand the power back to the children so that they would become complete again. But the others, be it Jia Ming or the non-smilers, did not care about the children's lives. They would stop at nothing to destroy the ghost fetus' lingering spirit. They had no bottom line.

“What about Se Xin's parents?”

“They're taking it as well as they could. But strangely enough, something has happened to the main surgeon who conducted the surgery. He had been unconscious since the surgery last night. He still had not woken up.”

Chen Ge asked for and memorized the physician's name, and then with Lee Zheng leading the way, they headed to the police station's duty room. Before they arrived, Chen Ge could hear the sound of laughter coming from inside the duty room. Pushing open the door, they saw a female officer playing with Zhen Zhen. When Zhen Zhen saw Chen Ge walk in, he jumped down from the bed and hid behind the female officer. He seemed to be afraid of Chen Ge, which was something that no one expected.

Putting down his backpack, Chen Ge walked toward Zhen Zhen. “You do not recognize me anymore?”

Zhen Zhen nodded and then quickly shook his head. He seemed to see another person on Chen Ge's body. The second person made him feel familiar yet anxious. After a while, Zhen Zhen slowly returned to normal. He took Chen Ge by his hand and handed him a candy that was left on the table.

“Zhen Zhen, I'm here today to ask you some questions.” Chen Ge accepted the candy given to him by Zhen Zhen. “When you are being held by Jia Ming, other than Liu Wen and Se Xin, did you manage to sense the presence of the other children?”

Chapter 1052 - Cats [2 in 1]

Chapter 1052: Cats [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Chen Ge had to explain for a very long time before he got his message across to Zhen Zhen, but the boy did not appear to be in the mood to talk about that topic. This was clearly demonstrated when he went into hiding behind the female officer again.

“Chen Ge, he is still a boy, and he is going through a lot of counselling to help mend his internal trauma. I must ask you to not make him remember those unhappy incidents so soon.” This was the first time that Chen Ge had met the female officer, but she managed to call him by his name as if they had known each other for a very long time already.

...

“To stop the tragedy from its source, Zhen Zhen is the only one who can provide me with the answer. I also have no other choice.” Chen Ge knelt before the boy. “Zhen Zhen, if you sense the location of the other children, you have to tell me. I am only trying my best to go and protect them.”

The cursed hospital was also looking for the ghost fetus’ candidates. If they got to them before Chen Ge did, the child would most likely end up dead.

After about ten minutes, Zhen Zhen finally spoke. He still hid behind the female officer, but the small face started to lose its smile. He said shyly and softly, “That strange uncle told me these strange stories before I went to sleep at night, and after hearing him, I had dreams that have nothing to do with me. It is like I am using another person’s eyes to live their lives.”

As a young boy, Zhen Zhen tried his best to express what he was trying to say, and Chen Ge got the message clearly.

The child shared a bond of sorts with the ghost fetus, and he possessed the presence of the ghost fetus within him. With the aid from Jia Ming, he was able to take a glimpse into the dreams of the other children chosen by the ghost fetus. Jia Ming and Bei Ye had made use of this power to find Liu Wen earlier.

“Other than Liu Wen and Se Xin, I have had one more dream. It was complete darkness inside that dream. I was unable to see anything.” Zhen Zhen tried his best to remember and recollect his memory.

“Complete darkness in the dream, and you could not see anything?”

“Yes, it was a very horrible feeling. I was surrounded by darkness, and my whole body itched. I wanted to scratch at it until the skin fell off.”

Just from Zhen Zhen’s description, Chen Ge was feeling slightly uncomfortable.

“Even if the eyes can’t see, the nose and ears should be working fine. Did you smell anything strange or hear any strange voices when you were in this dream?” Chen Ge was slowly prompting Zhen Zhen.

After giving it some thought, the boy finally said, “I believe I smelled a very horrible stench, and I heard the meowing of some cats. Yes! There were many cats in the room with me.”

“Many cats? A blind person who took in stray cats?” This was the first image that popped into Chen Ge’s mind. “Is there anything else other than that? There was no one talking? Only the cats?”

Read more chapter on vipnovel.com

“I think that was the sound of a man. He seemed to call me his little brother. He said something else, but he seemed to be standing very far away, so I could not hear him clearly.” Zhen Zhen had told Chen Ge everything he could remember.

“I think I get it.” Chen Ge walked out from the duty room. He took out his phone and recorded all the useful information. “In Zhen Zhen’s dream, the men made an appearance. They should be siblings. The younger brother is blind, and he is surrounded by cats. From the smell, they live in a less than satisfactory environment, and the big brother stays away from his brother even when he is trying to talk to him...”

Lee Zheng stood next to Chen Ge and watched the man talk to himself as he jotted down the notes and arranged the information in his mind. Without even realizing it, a bitter smile appeared on the inspector's face. "It is such a shame that you are not a part of the force."

"Brother Zheng, can you do me another favor?" After arranging his notes, Chen Ge turned to Lee Zheng. "If we do not locate that blind person as soon as possible, I am afraid he might in mortal danger."

The minute earlier, they had been chatting with a young boy, and now, they were suddenly talking about a murder. The topic changed so quickly that even an experienced police officer like Lee Zheng needed some time to get used to it. "Mortal danger? How did you come to that conclusion based on the dream of a child? Don't get me wrong. It's not that I am suspecting you, but I think that is rather hard to believe."

"You can say it's my instinct." Chen Ge had difficulty going into details. "My instinct has always been accurate."

"There is no denying that, but we are currently very short-staffed. I am afraid we are unable to provide you with much help." Even though that was what Lee Zheng said, after they returned to his office, he still entered the database that was only accessible to the police. "Let me check if there are any pet shops or stray cat centers that are run by two brothers. Based on what you said, the younger brother should be blind, and some kind of tragedy has befallen the family before this..."

Even with the many clues that they had, sifting through all the information that was available still required plenty of time, and it might not even amount to anything. At around 2 pm, Lee Zheng finally called with good news. He had found a person that matched the description given by Chen Ge.

"The name is Ying Chen. He is twenty-three years old. He is the operator of Jiujiang's Heart Kitty Rescue Center's website. He is a serious cat lover and has volunteered many times in Jiujiang's voluntary activities. He was a perfect student during his schooling years and did not have any run-ins with the police." Lee Zheng pointed at the computer screen. "This is all the information that's readily available on the website, so I am not violating any rules by sharing it with you."

Chen Ge hopped onto the internet and searched for this website. The Heart Kitty Rescue Center's website's main page was filled with cat pictures and comments from different cat lovers. The most popular feature on this website was a stray cat rescue plan, urging the public not to abandon their pet so easily. As Lee Zheng said, there was a brief introduction on Ying Chen on the website. Other than that, there was a picture of the man as well. The man looked talented and had very fair skin. At least for Chen Ge, he gave a good first impression.

“The man is quite impressive. His parents died when he was very young. He and his younger brother then moved to stay with their relative, but it turns out the relative only took them in because they wanted to lay claim to the house that Ying Chen’s parents left behind.

“The relative treated the brothers badly. Ying Chen did not complain about it. He threw himself into his studies. When he was old enough and capable enough to look after them both, he chased the relative out. This sounds like a young man with a sunny and hardworking disposition.”

Lee Zheng collected the report of his investigation.

“The other users all leave shining reviews for the man. They feel like he’s a man who has the light shining from within him. In fact, many single female users have shown public interest in him, but because he had to take care of his younger brother, he kindly rejects all of their advances because he does not want to burden them with his younger brother.”

“Based on what you said, he sounds like a perfect young man and citizen of society.” Chen Ge looked through the website. He did not know anything was wrong, and then he clicked into Ying Chen’s own main page. Inside that main page, there were videos, pictures, and blog posts written by Ying Chen himself. Most of them recorded the lives of him and his younger brother and their lives together with the stray cats. All his videos and blogs had very high views. He even had his own account on a certain popular video-sharing platform. He had a respectable number of followers, not too many but just enough to be called popular and influential.

“The big brother is such a kind and loving person. Even though the younger brother might have some eye problem, I am sure he will be taken care of.” Chen Ge clicked on one of the videos and watched it silently.

“Yes, with a brother like that, it is quite fortunate that his younger brother has him considering the other things that have happened to them.”

“Brother Zheng, I do not think that you have understood me.” Chen

Ge turned back to look at Lee Zheng. “Do you still remember how Zhen Zhen described that dream? It was surrounded in complete darkness, and it reeked of horrible smell. He could not see anything, and his body was incredibly itchy. If the big brother really took such good care of his younger brother, this kind of situation would not have happened.”

“But that was merely just a dream made up by Zhen Zhen.” For Lee Zheng, police detective work required actual evidence to back it up, and a dream could not be considered proper evidence.

“Dreams are the manifestation of a person’s subconscious. The majority of people will choose the response of flight when they run into a scary situation in their dreams, but a small portion of people will choose to fight. Their different choices can reflect a person’s mental and psychological health and condition.” Chen Ge did not lift his eyes off the video and provided his theory.

“Does the operator of a haunted house nowadays need to know so many things?” Lee Zheng had noticed that Chen Ge was still going through the list of videos. “Are you trying to find evidence to back up what you are suggesting through the videos? The fact that Ying Chen is not the man that he has made himself out to be?”

“On the surface, the videos appear to be perfectly normal, but...” Chen Ge took out his phone and searched for the official website for the local Jiujiang weather report. It contained the weather data over the entire year for Jiujiang. He compared the weather data, and his expression slowly became more and more severe. “Brother Zheng, I think I have found the evidence you need.”

“What do you mean?” Lee Zheng was an experienced detective. He had seen parts of the videos himself, but he did not spot any big problems with them.

“When I clicked on Ying Chen’s main page, I realized that most of his videos were centered around rescuing stray cats. The cats in the videos looked so devastated, and they were so fearful around human beings. But after Ying Chen’s rescue and treatment, the cats turned out to be healthier and prettier, and they were less scared around strangers.”

“That proves that his methods are effective, and that is exactly what their website is promoting—rescuing the stray cats and giving them a new chance at life.”

“But did you realize one thing? Most of the stray cats rescued by Ying Chen were already adult cats, and their body frames have already matured.”

“What are you trying to say?” Years of detective experience gave Lee Zheng a very bad feeling in his heart.

“I suspect that part of his videos are doctored and shot in reverse.” Chen Ge stood before the computer and spoke in a low voice. “He will first take pictures and videos of healthy cats, and when he has enough material to post on his website, he will start to torture them. The poor cats that were featured at the start of the videos are exactly how they ended up in the end. Now, isn’t that a scary thought?”

“The fact that you could even come up with a speculation like that is even scarier.” Lee Zheng realized that Chen Ge was able to picture everything from the perspective of the criminal. He was thankful that Chen Ge had not strayed from the good path, or else he would be a very difficult criminal to deal with.

2“After I had this suspicion, I tried to figure out a way to prove it. But most of his videos were taken in this same room. There were no signs of any calendars or clocks inside the room. And the curtain were drawn. The change of the lighting was too small to notice any difference. The man is a very cautious and careful thinker. He has thought of all the possibilities that might cause him to slip up,” Chen Ge said as he clicked open the video that he had last seen. “But in this video, he missed something. If you listen very closely, at the start of the video, you can hear the sound of rain and thunder in the background. At this part, the cat looked horrible. It could barely stand on one leg, its wounds were heavily infected, and it could not even open its eyes from the scab on its face.

“The video was uploaded on the twenty-sixth of last month. He said in the video that he found this cat at the start of the month, and when he first saw the cat, he was shocked by the horrible condition that it was in. At the start of the video, he even lambasted the people who had cruelly abandoned such a cute animal. But I just logged into our Jiujiang’s local weather data website to check. For the whole of last month, we only had one day with heavy rain, and it was on the twenty-fourth.

“In other word, if he was telling the truth, he shot the video about the cat in its horrible condition on the twenty-fourth, but on the twenty-sixth, when he uploaded the video, the cat in the video had supposedly recovered to its optimum condition. In fact, at the end of the video, it showed the cat making a full recovery, without a sign of physical wounds on its body. Do you think that's possible?"

Ying Chen was a cautious and deliberate thinker, but he was still far less dedicated than Chen Ge.

"But why would he go through so much trouble to come up with such a big operation? He not only tormented the cats—he even uploaded these videos to share them with the rest of the cat lovers?"

"I believe that it's similar to the psychology of a serial killer returning to their crime scenes to witness their handiwork. It is a kind of rush that they get from seeing their work being admired by others." Chen Ge continued to look at the video. Honestly, if not for the coincidental weather pattern, it would have been impossible to find anything wrong with Ying Chen's videos. "Brother Zheng, I believe that this person is a maniac with an extremely dark disposition. He is good at disguising himself and is a very clever person. If we let him be, he will eventually push himself further to commit a bigger crime."

"Indeed, but now I am more worried about his younger brother." Lee Zheng's expression turned serious. "Living with such a brother, he might be in serious danger. That's why you said that he might be in mortal danger in the first place, isn't it?"

"Yes, in any case, we should locate them as soon as possible." Chen Ge read the introduction that the website had on Ying Chen. The man had a younger brother who was blind, and his name was Ying Tong.

...

Chen Ge found Ying Chen's contact number on the website. He told Lee Zheng that they would go to investigate Ying Chen together tomorrow morning. But after leaving the police station, Chen Ge thought about it again. Lee Zheng was already so busy. He felt like he should not burden him with any more work. He got into the cab and called the number that he had found on the website.

The call rang about three times before it was picked up. The man's voice came from the other side of the line. "Hello, this is Ying Chen. How can I help you?"

The number left on the website was for business purposes, so Ying Chen had a fair and kind attitude.

“Mister Ying, I am a haunted house owner at New Century Park. I wish to place an advertisement banner on your website. I wonder, would you be interested in that?” Chen Ge started to lie the moment he opened his mouth. “We can negotiate the price further. I am sure you will be satisfied in the end.”

“Okay, I always see a connection between cats and theme parks. Furthermore, the users of our websites are mostly young people, and I am sure that’s also a theme park’s target audience.”

The two formed a consensus on the spot. To make Ying Chen lower his guard, Chen Ge did not ask to meet him at the man’s home but had Ying Chen choose a restaurant that was close to his home so that they could meet up and discuss the business in person. Half an hour later, Chen Ge arrived at the restaurant, and he gave Ying Chen another call.

“Boss Chen! I have already booked the private room!” A young man walked out from the restaurant. He was casually dressed, and he gave off a very clean and sunny feeling.

“Ying Chen?” Chen Ge was carrying his backpack. “You know me?”

“When I heard the name New Century Park and the haunted house, I knew it was you. I just did not expect that you would come in person.” Ying Chen was a well-rounded businessman. He heaped on the praise, saying that he was Chen Ge’s fan, and then segued into admiring Chen Ge for his business acumen. He was so good at this business talk that he did not appear to be a young man of only twenty-two. Chen Ge did not intend to post an advertisement on his website from the beginning, so to show his ‘sincerity’, he offered a price that was three times the market price.

The two had a jovial discussion. Wine flowed like water. Just as the waiter came to serve the last dish, Chen Ge accidentally knocked into the man and caused the water to splash on his shoulder. Ying Chen quickly came over to dab the shoulder with the paper towel, but Chen Ge’s face darkened immediately. “I have another meeting to get to. What should I do now?”

The waiter kept apologizing. Chen Ge sighed in seeming helplessness. He turned to Ying Chen. “Brother, do you mind if you go to your place to borrow a shirt from you? I have already scheduled a meeting with a client this afternoon. I do not think it will be polite to show up in a stained shirt.”

Ying Chen hesitated for a while before agreeing. “Of course, there’s no problem.”

The two paid for their dinner and entered the residential area nearby. This place was very close to the old city, and it was quite isolated. The residential area was practically deserted.

Chapter 1053 - Everlasting Night

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1053: Everlasting Night [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The residential area that Ying Chen lived in was called Ming Yuan. It was once a famously middle-class area in the old city. It was primarily occupied by the rich and successful. However, following the economic boom and the fast development of Jiujiang, the population moved away from the old city, and the place became more and more deserted. The once high-end apartments looked dilapidated and old. Gone were the security and the efforts to greenify and beautify the area. In fact, walking down the streets of the area, one would be assaulted by this strange smell.

“It was my parents who initially bought the house here. They were businessmen. If the accident did not happen, I might have ended up as the typical rich second generation you read about in web novels,” Ying Chen joked, but Chen Ge noticed the well-hidden hint of bitterness under his jibe. There was more than an ounce of truth behind his joke. With Ying Chen leading the way, they came to the deepest part of the residential area.

...

“My house is on the seventh floor. Why don’t you wait down here while I go up there and grab a change of clothes for you?” It was quite obvious that Ying Chen did not wish for Chen Ge to come to his home, and he came up with many excuses.

“It’s fine. I do not want you to go upstairs and then have to come down for me again. I wouldn’t dare impose on you so much.” Chen Ge walked into the building without waiting for Ying Chen to reply. His nose twitched, and the faded stench seemed to get a little more intense. Looking around, Chen Ge noticed that the building came with an elevator, but it was an old-style elevator that had been used many years ago.

“Ming Yuan is the only residential area in the old city that came with an indoor elevator at the time. The place has seen its ups and downs. Currently, it is going through the down. Most who are capable of doing so have already moved away.” Ying Chen pointed at the elevator. "Do not take that elevator no matter what. It is prone to accidents, and it occasionally makes this awful grinding sound. It's particularly scary at night."

With Ying Chen's surprising insistence, he and Chen Ge used the stairs and climbed all the way up to the seventh floor. The whole building gave Chen Ge a very bad vibe. It was old with horrible sanitary conditions. There was no sense of living, and it would be depressing to live in a place like this.

"My home is a bit of a mess. I hope you don't mind." Ying Chen's home was closest to the stairs. He took out the key and fiddled with it for a while before opening the door. The stench in the air became more intense. Chen Ge looked into the room. Ying Chen's place was huge, but the décor was tattered, and many items had been horribly scratched.

"I am a cat lover, and I have a few pet cats at home. This is all their doing," Ying Chen said with a helpless sigh. "Make yourself comfortable. I will go and find a change of clothes for you."

After entering the house, Chen Ge subconsciously used his finger to brush against his nose. The sofa, floor, and dining table were covered in cat fur, but strangely, there was not a single cat to be seen in the house. There was not even meowing coming from one of them.

"The stench does not come from the cats. The smell is very similar to the horrible smell at the old city. I smelled the same thing when I entered Yu Jian's room, but after I came out of Yu Jian's door, the horrible smell disappeared." Chen Ge had encountered this strange smell in many places before. He could not tell what exactly gave off the smell, but one thing was for sure, he knew that the smell had something to do with the 'door'.

When Ying Chen was busy finding him some clothes, Chen Ge made use of the time to do his investigation. There was little furniture in the house. There were five rooms in total, and other than the living room, the doors to the four remaining rooms were tightly locked. Soon, Ying Chen walked out from the bedroom, holding a set of his own clothes. "What do you think about this? It is quite formal, but it matches what you are wearing at the moment."

"You are such a life savior. You have helped me tremendously this time." Chen Ge appeared to be over the moon. "Do you mind if I borrow your bathroom?"

“The first door next to the entrance.” Ying Chen was quite happy to be of help to Chen Ge. In his mind, the business was about ninety percent already completed. After entering the bathroom, Chen Ge closed the door and took out the comic from his backpack to summon Men Nan.

“I need you and Tong Tong to hide here for now. Find a chance for Tong Tong to possess his phone. Then I will return here before midnight, and I need you to help me unlock the door when that happens,” Chen Ge whispered.

Read more chapter on vipnovel.com

“So, you want me to be the insider?”

“Of all the Red Specters, you are the smartest, and only you are capable of something like this.” Chen Ge heaped on the praise before the boy gave his promise. After giving his face a wash, Chen Ge walked out from the bathroom. “Ying Chen, thank you so much for your help this time. I will go back to prepare the contract, and we will sign it tomorrow. Is that okay with you?”

“Of course!” Ying Chen was surprisingly greedy with money, but it was unclear whether this was another front or he was serious about his love of money.

“It is a joy to work with people who are such good people. Since I am already here, do you mind I ask you a few more questions?” Chen Ge peppered Ying Chen with many different questions. Many of them were business related, and they revolved around the website. At the very end, Chen Ge sneaked in, as if as an afterthought, a mention of Ying Chen’s younger brother. “I hear you are still looking after your younger brother. How are the man’s eyes recovering? I know several good optometrists. If you need it, I can make the introduction for you.”

“My younger brother was not born blind. He got an eye illness when he was about three or four, and his situation has only deteriorated since then. One of the major reasons I am eager to earn money is to collect the funds to help cure his blindness.”

“The relationship between you brothers sure is touching.” Chen Ge placed the backpack down. “The earlier the eyes are healed, the better. Do you mind if I meet your little brother?”

Chen Ge’s request was rather sudden, but Ying Chen did not think too much of it. After some brief hesitation, he walked to the door that was next to the bathroom. "Ying Tong? What are you doing?"

"Sleeping." A very soft voice drifted out from inside the room.

"Then you should go back to sleep. Sorry for disturbing you." Ying Chen shrugged and turned to Chen Ge with apology on his face. "The child is sleeping. I am so sorry, but I do not wish to disturb him unless it's truly necessary."

"It's fine, I totally get it." Even though that was what Chen Ge said, the seed of suspicion was already buried inside his heart. When Ying Chen asked Ying Tong what he was doing, the answer 'sleeping' had come almost instantaneously like it was already rehearsed. If Ying Tong was really sleeping, there would have been a pause for him to wake up from his sleep before the reply came. Furthermore, Chen Ge could not hear any drowsiness from the reply that came from Ying Tong. Ying Tong appeared to be very afraid of his elder brother; there was some kind of secret hidden between this pair of brothers.

"In that case, I am not going to interrupt you guys anymore. I will come back with the contract tomorrow morning at around 9 am."

"Brother Chen, thank you and take care."

After the front door was closed, Ying Chen and Chen Ge's expressions chilled almost instantly. Chen Ge stood at the door and did not leave. Instead, he leaned his ear on the door to eavesdrop. Soon, the bedroom door was opened, and then a child's crying came from within. "This man is truly the worst."

Without any concrete evidence, Chen Ge did not act recklessly. Tong Tong and Men Nan were both inside the room. If something really bad was to happen, they would definitely stop it. Standing in the corridor alone, Chen Ge glanced at the stairs and the elevator next to him. In the end, he decided to leave using the stairs.

"If Ying Tong is really one of the candidates chosen by the ghost fetus, the world behind his door will be nightmare difficulty. Jing Ming lost his sense of hearing, and I could not hear the sound of the ghosts behind his door. Fang Yu has a poor memory, and my memory was constantly being wiped out and interrupted when I was behind her door. With all these as the basis for comparison, my power of sight will be limited when I am inside the world behind Ying Tong's door. The biggest danger will be the ghosts surrounding me, but I will be unable to see them."

Sight was very important for a normal person. For someone who was used to seeing the world to suddenly be thrown inside a blind maze, it would be very disorientating.

“Zhang Ya is still hibernating. This door poses a very high danger level for me. To be safe, I’d better bring the Tunnel Woman’s son with me.”

If not for the lack of time, Chen Ge might have considered bringing the Well Lady from Coffin Village with him.

After leaving Ming Yuan, Chen Ge waited until sundown before he went to White Dragon Tunnel. He found the boy at the deepest part of the tunnel. They had already made their promise beforehand, and the boy did not go back on his word. However, when Chen Ge wanted to pull the Tunnel Woman’s son into the comic, something unexpected happened.

Probably because there was a door inside his body, Yan Danian’s comic was unable to accommodate the boy. This was the first time that Chen Ge had encountered a situation like this. The two negotiated for a long time. Initially, the Tunnel Woman’s son proposed to hide inside Chen Ge’s shadow. He stood for a long time next to Chen Ge’s shadow, but in the end, he voluntarily gave up that idea.

They had tried many different methods. Eventually, the Tunnel Woman’s son opened his appendages that were about two meters long and enveloped Chen Ge from behind. It did not feel comfortable being trapped like that by a Red Specter. Chen Ge felt chills run all over his body, and his body temperature continued to drop.

This whole process lasted for about a minute before the Tunnel Woman’s son disappeared. In his place was a giant scary spider tattoo with a human face that covered Chen Ge’s entire back and arm. This tattoo would only appear in the shadows, and it looked enough to scare one’s soul out of one’s body.

It felt like Chen Ge’s body had sunk into icy water. He hated this kind of feeling, but the key mission now was to search for the ghost fetus, so he tried to not mind it that much. At about 11 pm, Chen Ge returned to Ming Yuan in the old city. But even at 11:30 pm, he did not receive any messages from Tong Tong.

“There won’t be any problems, will there? With the protection from a Red Specter like Men Nan and only dealing with a normal human being, nothing will happen to them, right? Or have they encountered the non-smilers from the cursed hospital?”

Chen Ge and Lee Zheng’s investigation had led them to Ying Tong. Chen Ge still believed that the chance of the non-smiler showing up was very low, but for caution’s sake, Chen Ge moved stealthily. Chen Ge entered the stairwell, and when he reached the fourth floor, his phone-started to vibrate. ‘Ying Chen’ had just sent him a message —‘He is packing his tools and planning to leave the house!’

It should be Men Nan and Tong Tong controlling Ying Chen’s phone. With the experience from last time, their cooperation this time was flawless. Ying Chen should not notice anything out of place at all.

“Is the man going out to work so late at night? Why is he carrying so many tools with him?”

After he got the message, Chen Ge quickly went down on the corridor to hide to prevent himself from running straight into Ying Chen. He paid his attention to the stairwell. Soon, he saw Ying Chen hurry down the stairs, carrying a large black plastic bag with a cap pressed very low down his face.

“It is probably not a human body inside that bag. Based on the size, it felt more like a cat.”

Ying Chen’s unusual actions once again increased Chen Ge’s suspicion of the man. The ghost fetus’ door would appear punctually at midnight. Now was not the time to do other investigative work. After Ying Chen left the building, he hurried toward Ying Chen’s house. Chen Ge summoned Ol’ Zhou and had him open the door from the inside. He sneaked into the house successfully. The lights in the room were not on, and the place appeared cold and deserted. Chen Ge stood by the window and looked down. Ying Chen carried the black bag and walked out of the residential area. He walked toward an abandoned building spot that was nearby.

“Is he going to bury the body and evidence?”

Ying Chen would not be gone for long, and Chen Ge did not waste any time. He and Ol’ Zhou gave the place a quick rundown. The kitchen and the bathroom appeared normal, but the lower compartment of the fridge was filled with a lot of minced meat. The other rooms appeared normal on the surface. Ying Chen’s own bedroom was clean and neat. There was not even a single cat hair in it. This room was unique from the rest of the place. Next to Ying Chen’s bedroom was the studio. Chen Ge had seen this room from the videos before. Most of the videos were shot inside this room.

Next to the studio was a room that was locked. Chen Ge had Ol' Zhou entered it. The latter came back with the report that there were several stray cats that were tied with ropes inside the room, and about two of them were dying already. The last room should be Ying Tong's bedroom. Similar to before, Chen Ge had Ol' Zhou slip through the door to conduct recon first.

After knowing that Ying Tong was already asleep, Chen Ge had Ol' Zhou open the door from inside. The moment the bedroom door was opened, the horrible smell hit them like a wave. The stench in this room was even more intense than the smell inside Yu Jian's bedroom. Covering his nose with his hand, Chen Ge looked inside the room.

Ying Tong's bedroom was very small. The windows were boarded up, and the lamps were not even fixed with bulbs. There were many finger paintings on the walls, and many bloodied cotton balls littered the ground. There was a music box, a radio, and many strange-looking dolls that lined the table. Even from the standpoint of an adult like Chen Ge, the dolls looked creepy and scary. They were definitely not meant for children. They would be more fitting inside a haunted house.

COMMENT

Ying Tong did not realize there was another person in the room with him. He was fast asleep. He appeared to have had a tiring day. Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision and noticed that there were bruises all over Ying Tong's body, but the injuries were nothing serious. "The boy does not seem to have any sense of security at all. Even when he sleeps, he curls his body up toward the wall as if seeking comfort from it."

It was a very uncomfortable posture to sleep in, but Ying Tong appeared to have gotten used to it. He curled his body up in a fetal position, and there was a picture frame that was cradled in his arms. Inside the frame was a picture of Ying Chen. "The two share such a good relationship? Even in his sleep, Ying Tong is hugging the picture of his own elder brother?"

Chen Ge was suspicious and had many questions inside his mind.

From his perspective, all Ying Tong had toward his elder brother was fear; there was no love between a normal family. He looked closer and discovered that the size of the picture did not fit the frame that well. The picture appeared to have been shoved in later. Regarding the location and the identity of the original picture, probably only Ying Chen himself would now.

The bedroom was closed and secluded from the rest of the world. On the surface, other than the creepy dolls, it did not feel so different from anywhere else.

Ying Chen would be returning soon, but Chen Ge did not leave. He stood inside Ying Tong's bedroom, waiting for the door to appear. At midnight, a door that was covered fully in red appeared silently next to Ying Tong's bed. The lock jiggled softly, and black patterns crawled on the door. Even without anyone touching it, the door appeared like it was about to open on its own.

The sound of footsteps came from the living room. The front door was opened. It meant that Ying Chen had returned from whatever he was doing. Carrying the backpack, Chen Ge did not hesitate as he pushed open the blood door and stepped through it.

...

It felt like his body was sinking into quicksand, and it was slowly swallowing him up. Chen Ge struggled to the best of his ability. The oxygen was being squeezed out of his lungs, and the feeling of being asphyxiated was getting stronger and stronger. Just as he thought he was about to die, his eyes flickered open.

COMMENT

Every time he entered the ghost fetus' door, it felt like he had taken a stroll right before the edge of life and death. Before Chen Ge had the time or chance to collect himself, his surroundings started to change again.

“What... is this?”

There was an inky darkness around him, a darkness that light was unable to pierce. This world behind the door felt as if it was covered behind a thick curtain. Chen Ge felt like he was in a world of everlasting night.

Chen Ge stood where he was and did not move an inch. The more he visited the ghost fetus' door, the stranger the world became. He could not allow himself to be too careless.

Chapter 1054 - Me in the Darkness [2 in 1]

Chapter 1054: Me in the Darkness [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

A veil of darkness, one could not even see anything. There did not seem to be any light in the world behind this door. Chen Ge made sure to stay where he was as he slowly squatted down. He gripped his backpack tightly for support and pulled his attention to his ears to listen closely. There was the sound of breathing, the sound of a heartbeat, and the sound of the ticking of the clock.

“I seem to be inside someone’s room.” Ying Tong was a blind man, so his world was enveloped in darkness. He was unable to see anything, but the other people in his world were able to see him, and that was why this world was so dangerous. Pulling open the zipper of his backpack, Chen Ge rummaged about before his fingers curled around the tattered ballpoint pen. He pulled out the pen and placed it inside his shirt pocket. After that, he took out the comic and held it close to his side.

...

In this world that was completely covered in darkness, he might lose his backpack if he accidentally tripped or some other accident happened. It seemed unwise to place everything he had inside the backpack. That felt like something too dangerous to do.

“I will leave the Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer, the pair of red high heels, and Zhang Ya’s bedtime stories inside the backpack. If the person discovers that there is nothing inside the bag, they will definitely get suspicious.”

Unable to see anything, unable to tell his own location, unable to identify his enemies, he was not even able to tell what he looked like. This was definitely the strangest and creepiest door that Chen Ge had ever entered. He called his employees’ names at the bottom of his heart, but he waited for a long time and got no reply.

“The limitation on the Red Specters in the world behind this door is even more intense than the one inside Yu Jian’s world. Will I be able to hold on until the awakening of my employees?”

Having lived his life in the light, after Chen Ge lost the ability to see, he was extremely anxious. That was something to be expected. Adjusting his breath, Chen Ge slowly stood up again. He had been behind this door for about ten minutes already, and for those ten minutes, he had stayed put.

“My body has kept its original shape, and from my touch, there is no change to my clothes and appearance.”

Chen Ge’s nostrils twitched, and in the air, he caught the sniff of the faded scent of disinfectant and blood. Underneath all that, there was a subtle smell that was unique to cats. He followed the trail of the disinfectant smell and reached out behind him. The feeling of sturdiness and chill came from the tip of his fingers.

“The black iron door is right behind me. What I need to do now is confirm my current location, look for a safe place to hide, and wait for my employees to break through.”

However, that was easier said than done. Finding a safe location to hide was extremely difficult in his condition. After all, he was unable to see anything.

“The black door usually appears at the location most important in the door pusher’s memory and places like that are usually the most dangerous. It is the location that is most often visited by the ghost fetus and other negative emotions.”

After being behind the door for about fifteen minutes, Chen Ge finally took his first step. Carrying his backpack, Chen Ge placed one of his hands on the wall and waved his other hand before him. After the initial threshold of nervousness, he slowly calmed down.

“Even Yin Yang Vision is unable to pierce through this darkness, but Ghost Ear and Spirit Sniff do not appear to be affected. I can still rely on my super hearing and sense of smell to decide where I am.”

Read more chapter on vipnovel.com

Unable to see the enemy’s location and tell the appearance and identity of the enemy was what worried Chen Ge the most.

Bang!

He had just taken the second step when Chen Ge knocked into something. The dull sense of pain came from his knees. He clamped his mouth shut and resisted the urge to scream. Instead, he squatted down again. This was the first time that he had made such a loud noise since he entered the door. It might have attracted the attention of certain Specters. For the sake of security, Chen Ge felt that it would be better if he stopped moving for a little while. He stopped to listen. There were no strange noises, and the smell in the air did not change. Chen Ge appeared to be alone inside the room.

“I need to be as light as I can with my movement and actions.” Chen Ge reached out to feel the thing that he had just knocked into. It was a rather squat bedside table. “This table is about the same height as the one that I saw in Ying Tong’s bedroom. Does this mean I am currently inside his bedroom?”

Pulling open the drawer, Chen Ge found a photo frame with his hands. “When Ying Tong was asleep, he was hugging a photo frame.”

What he discovered next confirmed Chen Ge’s speculation even further. He first found the radio inside the room, then his fingers went up and down the dolls with uneven body proportions, and finally, he got to a music box. Those were the exact items that he had seen in Ying Tong’s bedroom before. His fingers moved on the surface of the table. Chen Ge found something that he had not encountered before next to the music box.

“There are keys? This appears to be a phone designed for the blind.” The phone had exceptionally large keys, and the numbers on each key were protruding upward so that the user could tell the numbers easily by their touch. “Should I bring this phone along with me?”

The phone probably belonged to Ying Tong. Carrying it with him might mean that he could gain contact with Ying Tong in the future, or he might gain more information from it, but at the same time, it would be a huge risk to carry it on his body as well. This was because Chen Ge could not predict when the phone would ring. What if he was in hiding from some enemy and the phone rang? Then it would expose his hiding spot.

“I don’t think I should take it. The clues are not that important now. The most important thing is to survive until the end.” Chen Ge thought about it and abandoned the idea of taking the phone with him. The risk was just too high. Chen Ge placed the phone and the photo frame back where he had found them and continued his search inside the bedroom. The closet, dresser, bed...

The layout of the furniture was identical to the layout of Ying Tong's bedroom in real life, but unfortunately, Ying Tong was not lying in bed. "Where could a blind man have gone?"

Chen Ge tried to use his previous experience to come up with an analysis. "The world behind Ying Tong's door should be a reflection of his own home. In other words, something extremely painful and traumatic has happened to the man inside this old building. Ying Tong's elder brother is a psycho that is very good at disguising himself, so this painful memory has a very high chance of having come from his own brother. The brothers were adopted by their relative. Based on what Ying Chen said, they were treated very badly during that period, so the relative will not have been a force of good in this world."

Chen Ge was building the thoughts in his mind when the phone that was placed on the table suddenly rang. The shrill ringing drilled into his mind, and it shattered the silence inside the small room instantly.

"Damn it!" At that moment, Chen Ge thought of using the Doctor Skull Cracker's hammer to give the phone a good whack. He desperately wanted to leave, but he felt it was too dangerous to move about without any preparation. The phone rang eight times before it quieted down again. It was then that Chen Ge sighed in relief. "I am unable to see anything. I cannot even set this phone to vibrate."

There were no more clues to be found inside Ying Tong's bedroom. Chen Ge took out the hammer and slowly opened the bedroom door. The chilling wind touched his cheeks, and it caused Chen Ge to shiver. Beyond the bedroom, there was still a pool of darkness.

"Hopefully, this world behind the door will not be that large, or else I might just get lost here, and I might not even be able to find my way back."

He had only journeyed across a room that was several cubic meters wide, but that took Chen Ge almost half an hour. He felt like a man walking on tight rope, his heart was greatly unsettled.

"I should currently be standing inside Ying Tong's family's living room. Ying Tong is not in his own bedroom. As his elder brother, Ying Chen probably won't allow his younger brother to wander off alone, so he is probably by his side at this moment."

For Chen Ge, the best outcome was both Ying Tong and Ying Chen not being home. That way, he would have plenty of time to conduct his search and find a safe space to hide. The layout of Ying Chen's house appeared in his mind. Chen Ge moved carefully along the wall. He walked very slowly, and his body was gradually getting used to the world without light.

Darkness represented the unknown, and the unknown often signified danger, amplifying the sense of fear in one's head. Chen Ge's grip on the hammer was taut as he slowly nudged his body forward. His fingers found themselves wrapped around a doorknob. Chen Ge gave it a firm twist, and the door swung open easily.

"The room next to Ying Tong's bedroom should be the room where Ying Chen kept the cats. When I had Ol' Zhou check it in real life, he saw two dying strays inside it."

The stench in the air intensified. A horrible smell drifted into his nose. Chen Ge was about to step into the room when he felt something brush against his leg.

Chen Ge's body froze. Is it a cat or a person?

There were other 'things' inside this room. There was a very high chance that they were cats, but that did not preclude the chance of them being 'humans'. He trained the focus of his hearing. He could not hear any strange noises. He appeared to be standing before an empty room. Chen Ge took another gingerly step forward. His left foot stepped on something. Chen Ge knelt down to see, and his fingertips felt matted 'fur' on the ground.

"It's very soft, and it's all stuck together by some kind of adhesive. It is rather moist. It feels like meat, like a ball of meat covered in fur."

Chen Ge gave it a good old squeeze, and it caused his whole body to become covered in goosebumps. It might have been better if he could see what he was holding, but he was unable to see anything. All he could see was darkness. "Is the whole room filled with this?"

Chen Ge opened his palm and allowed the thing to fall. He wanted to enter the room to investigate further, but psychologically, he was feeling rather reluctant. After losing their sight, a person would become more fragile. The feeling of anxiety would be rooted more deeply in one's heart, and it would crawl all over one's mind like a poisonous briar.

"Ying Tong and Ying Chen are probably not home at this moment. This is the perfect opportunity. I must not let it go so easily."

After a moment of hesitation, Chen Ge entered the room. The feeling that came from his feet was very uncomfortable. It felt like he was stepping on a patch of muddy sand. The smell of blood and stench mingled in the air. Chen Ge worried that he might be enveloped in this smell should he stay there for too long, so after finding no new clues, he prepared to leave. Chen Ge walked to the door, but he did not walk out directly.

“If the room is indeed filled with blood and fur, the soles of my shoes must be coated in blood. They will leave a trail of bloody footprints wherever I go, and that is literally telling others how to find me.” Chen Ge found a pair of shoe covers from inside his backpack. This was something that he had grabbed when he was in Jiang Ming’s home a few days ago.

To not leave behind any fingerprints at Jiang Ming’s place, Chen Ge had prepared these gloves and shoe covers for the occasion. He stood at the door and put the covers over his shoes. He walked along the wall, and Chen Ge found the third doorknob. This should be the room that Ying Chen used to prepare all his videos. Chen Ge was not that interested in the room, but once he pushed the door open, he was hit in the face by the smell of air freshener and perfume.

“This place is different from how I remember it.” Finding his way around, Chen Ge’s finger closed around a mirror and a vanity table. On the table’s surface, there were cosmetic items like lipstick and something that appeared to be a music box. “This feels like a woman’s room. Has there been a female tenant at Ying Chen’s house? Does Ying Chen have a girlfriend? How come I didn’t hear Lee Zheng mention that before?”

The world behind the door started to differ from the real world, and the unknown started to expand. After he left the woman’s room, Chen Ge found the fourth doorknob, and he pushed the door open. The layout of the room was similar to Ying Chen’s bedroom. The man seemed to be an extremely neat person. Everything was placed in an orderly manner. “I have looked through the few rooms already, and I have found nothing useful. The main problem is that I cannot see anything. Just feeling it with my fingers, that means that I am bound to have missed some important details.”

This was the first time that Chen Ge had encountered such a strange door. His past experience was unable to provide him with much help. “Oh well, I should probably leave. If I run into the man that is possessed by the ghost fetus now, I will probably meet my end here.”

Once Chen Ge was reminded of the room filled with fur and sticky substance, he felt icky. He was just about to leave when his feet kicked into something. "Who is it?"

Initially, Chen Ge suspected that it was a cat. However, because the thing brushed against the back of his calf, somewhere a cat would not randomly brush against him, he changed his mind and realized that he had probably bumped into a person who was lying on the ground!

The room was exceptionally quiet. Chen Ge stood frozen for a while, and then without any warning, he raised the hammer and swung it behind him. The hammer did not connect to anything. There was only air behind him. "Is no one there?"

Chen Ge did not wish to stay in this room any longer. He planned to retrace his step, but he had just taken his first step when he stepped on something else, and he almost tripped and fell to the ground. "Was there something on the ground earlier?"

His heartbeat hastened. Chen Ge reached out to touch the thing that he had stepped on earlier. When his fingertips touched the thing, Chen Ge's hand flew back instantly. Chill, with some suppleness and moisture on the surface. It brought back memories of examining and studying the human carcass when Chen Ge first visited the underground morgue. Resisting the urge to recoil, Chen Ge reached out again to grab at the thing and slowly moved around the subject.

"This here is an arm." The fear was slowly growing. Chen Ge found the five fingers and the person's shoulder, but he failed to find the person's head. The headless body was strapped underneath the bed, and it was basically taped to the board of the bed. One of its arms was bent inward, and the other arm seemed to have been knocked out from underneath the bed when Chen Ge was rummaging through the room earlier. It fell out, and Chen Ge accidentally stepped on it.

"There is a human body hidden inside Ying Chen's bedroom? Why does this exist in the door behind Ying Tong's door? Did he personally witness Ying Chen commit a murder?"

Chen Ge crawled out from under the bed. A very horrible sight was starting to appear in his mind. The blind younger brother was living next door, unable to see anything. One day, he heard a strange sound and hurried out of the bedroom to ask. At that moment, his elder brother was covered in blood and holding a cleaver. The body was dragged behind him, but Ying Chen answered him with a smile, telling him that everything was fine. Just the image of something like that caused Chen Ge to feel uncomfortable. “I should leave as soon as possible. If Ying Chen returns, I will not even have a chance to escape.”

Exiting the room, Chen Ge searched for the entrance in the living room. Before he could find the location of the entrance, the landline in the living room suddenly rang.

“Who would call at this moment?” The ringing unsettled Chen Ge. He was afraid that the ringing might attract something bad. “Should I answer it or not?”

Different choices would lead to different results. One wrong step, and he might lose his life. The phone rang for about twelve seconds, and it continued to ring. Chen Ge took a deep breath before he picked up the phone. He held his breath and did not say a word.

“Oh? You’re already home.” Ying Chen’s voice came through the line. “You did not drop the football that you took away with you, right? I’ve told you so many times that the things on the left side of the cupboard are mine, and the ones on the right are your toys. Why can’t you remember a simple fact like that?”

Chapter 1055 - Duel with the Unknown [2 in 1]

Chapter 1055: Duel with the Unknown [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Football that I have carried? The cupboard?

The information revealed by Ying Chen in his words caused Chen Ge's brows to crease. He had just been to Ying Chen's bedroom earlier, and he knew that there was a headless carcass strapped to the underside of his bed.

...

The football that this man is talking about is not the head of that body, is it?

1A human head was wildly different from a football, even a blind person would not mistake them, but the premise here was that his own elder brother was not a normal person. The man was a full-on psycho. Ying Chen was a crazy man and one that had a streak of exhibitionism in him. He uploaded the videos of the tortured cats in reverse chronological order onto the website to ask for aid from cat lovers. Most of his audience members were people who loved cats. Perhaps every night, he would sit inside the room filled with fur and blood, stare at the phone screen, and read through the well wishes that he had received from these innocent people who did not know better.

This kind of unique experience would probably be able to provide the man with some kind of rush and satisfaction, so there was a very high possibility that he would hide a human head inside a normal ball and watch his own younger brother play with it. As that thought crossed his mind, Chen Ge suddenly realized that the twisted dolls and disproportionate bodies on Ying Tong's table might carry a deeper meaning than he had previously believed.

Chen Ge had been staying quiet all this while. The man was silent for a few seconds before Ying Chen on the other side of the line realized that something was wrong.

“You... are not Ying Tong!” Chen Ge had no idea how the man was able to come to the conclusion that he was not Ying Tong within three seconds of non-conservation. In any case, this sharp observation and analytical skill caused Chen Ge to become even more unsettled. In Ying Tong’s memory, his elder brother, Ying Chen, must be a very clever and scary person, and that would be manifested in the same way behind the door. “What are you doing in my home?”

Ying Chen’s voice did not undergo any change, but through the background echo, Chen Ge managed to pick the increased pace of the man’s walking. The man was trying to use a level tone to trick Chen Ge, to hide the fact that he was hurrying home. Chen Ge did not hesitate for even a moment; he hung up the phone immediately. He was no longer able to get any useful information from the man. In fact, now that his cover was blown, anything that the man might say could be some kind of vicious trap.

“I need to leave this place as soon as possible.”

Both parties were quick thinkers and fast movers. Chen Ge’s mind still had a blurry memory of the location of the front door. He did not stop anywhere. He grabbed his backpack and moved to the door. The door that felt strangely cold to his touch was not locked. Chen Ge pushed open the door and walked out. The temperature around him decreased even further; the air outside the house seemed to be even chillier.

“I can’t see anything, and I still cannot form a link with any of my employees. How am I supposed to deal with that madman in such a condition?” Ying Tong’s door was the third door from the last. Since Chen Ge had directly skipped over the door that represented the ghost fetus’ heart, the difficulty of the world behind the door had reached an incredibly crazy level. In a way, this went to show the horror of a four-star Trial Mission. This ghost fetus mission was not that simple. The horrors were layered upon each other, and it deepened with each layer. This long night was just beginning.

“Ying Tong lives in a building that was built many years ago. He grew up here, so his main memory will be around the Ming Yuan area.” Chen Ge knew the layout of the nearby buildings, but to play hide and seek with a madman when he was unable to see anything, even Chen Ge felt the enormous pressure. Walking out of the front door, Chen Ge had not moved too far away from Ying Chen’s house when he felt something brush against his ankle. It appeared like one of the cats had followed him and escaped from the house as well.

“Just how many cats are inside Ying Chen’s house?” Chen Ge leaned against the wall and slowly walked down the corridor. “The stairwell bookends the corridor on both sides, and there is an elevator in the middle, provided this world behind the door is a true reflection of the situation in real life.”

Chen Ge was not that familiar with Ying Tong. He did not know what the man’s biggest fear was, and thus, he could not prepare to handle it. The only thing he could do was take one step at a time. Caution and taking it slow would be his saving grace.

Read more chapter on vipnovel.com

“The old-fashioned elevator will make too much noise, and that will inadvertently expose my location. I am unable to see anything now. If I press the wrong button, I might end up on the wrong floor, and the elevator doors could open to Ying Chen waiting for me outside.”

With that in mind, Chen Ge rejected the idea of taking the elevator. Then he was faced with a second choice. Should he take the stairs on the left or the right?

Ying Chen’s home was closer to the stairs on the left. In fact, the house was right next to the staircase. Chen Ge felt that if Ying Chen wanted to get home in the shortest time possible, there was a very high chance that he would take the stairs on the left.

“In that case, I will take the stairs on the right.”

In this world behind the door, every seemingly unimportant choice could be a matter of life and death.

If Chen Ge made the wrong choice and encountered Ying Chen in the stairwell, the madman might decide to trail behind him noiselessly while he came up with an idea to torture and kill him. After all, Chen Ge had found out about his secret, and the safest way was to kill Chen Ge to guarantee his silence.

Keeping his hands on the wall, Chen Ge slowly overcame his fear of the darkness, and he started to jog. There was no trash littering the corridor, so Chen Ge did not trip over anything. When Chen Ge was about to reach the right stairwell, a cat’s meow suddenly came from the direction before him. It was a very soft meow, and Chen Ge was certain that it came from the mouth of the right hand stairs.

“There’s a cat there?” If this was in real life, Chen Ge would not have been so nervous to have run into a cat, but this was the world behind the door. A cat was a contradictory creature. It had been a symbol of many things through the history of mankind. In different people's eyes, cats represented different meanings, so Chen Ge had a hard time telling what the cat's intention was by meowing to him.

Ying Chen had adopted many stray cats, but the reason for that was for him to satisfy his twisted and pathological desire. If the cats had the power to resist, the first thing they would have done would be to kill Ying Chen. Alas, in both real life and the world behind the door, Ying Chen was perfectly fine. In other words, it meant that even behind the door, he had the power to easily dispose of the 'cats'.

While Chen Ge was contemplating, there was another cat's meow coming from the right staircase, and this time, it was slightly louder than before. Something seemed to bounce against his ankle. Before Chen Ge could react to it, the third meow occurred, and this time, the cat was calling from right beside him. The cat's meowing became more and more insistent, and the sound became shriller and shriller. It sounded like the cries of a small baby.

"Are they warning me?"

Ying Chen was a cat torturer. The cats had no reason to help him, so if that was the case, the chance of Ying Chen being on the right staircase was incredibly high!

To trust the cats or to trust his own instincts, Chen Ge was faced with another choice. After a moment's hesitation, Chen Ge gritted his teeth and turned around. He ran as fast as he could to the left staircase. The cat's call from behind him became sharper and shriller. They sounded at once like both crying and laughter. It was quite spine-tingling.

Knocking and bouncing against the wall, after losing his sight, Chen Ge had trouble even running without bumping into anything. He tried his best to get to the staircase on the left, and he hid himself on the landing between the two floors. Kneeling on the ground, Chen Ge grabbed onto the railing and lowered his center of gravity as low as possible. This way, even if someone tried to push him from behind, he would not roll down the stairs that easily. Chen Ge did not dare move aimlessly. He stayed motionlessly because he wanted to confirm something very important.

"If the door is pushed open, then it will prove that Ying Chen has come home. He came from the staircase on the right, and that will indirectly prove that the cats were helping me! The louder the cats were, the closer Ying Chen was to me!”

Chen Ge was very courageous. Then again, it was not like he had much choice. To gain the little initiative that he could, he hid on the landing inside the left stairwell. Ying Chen’s house was just right next to his hiding place. If he was not careful, he would be discovered easily. As the time moved forward, Chen Ge’s palms started to get slick with sweat. He had not been so nervous for such a long time. After about a minute, Ying Chen’s house door clicked without warning. It appeared that someone had opened the front door and walked in. Hearing that click, Chen Ge’s hands that gripped around the railing slowly relaxed.

“That should be Ying Chen coming home.”

He slipped quietly down the stairs. Even though Chen Ge had made the right choice and had managed to confirm his hypothesis, his brows were still deeply screwed together. From that brief encounter, he had come to a few conclusions.

The first one and also the most important one was that he could use the cat’s calls to determine Ying Chen’s location.

The second one was that Ying Chen moved as silently as a shade. Chen Ge had been using his Ghost Ear power when he was hiding in the staircase, but he did not hear the echo of footsteps at all. He had only heard the door being opened. It was as if Ying Chen had teleported to the front door of his house.

The third conclusion was that Ying Chen should use the stairs on the left if he wanted to return to his house the fastest way possible, but he had opted for the opposite direction. He had chosen the staircase on the right. If this was not a coincidence, it meant that this Ying Chen was a very cunning person, and he was predicting and counteracting to the choice that Chen Ge might have made.

“Without the power of sight, how am I supposed to find Ying Tong?”

He understood that he should not stay at that place for long. After Ying Chen returned to his house and took a look around, he would soon realize that someone had just been in his room and found the dead body. He would give chase soon enough. Using the railing as a guide, Chen Ge moved down the stairs step by step. He planned to temporarily leave this building. In fact, if possible, he wanted to leave this residential area for the moment.

Chen Ge memorized the route that he had taken. A normal person would be in full panic mode at this moment, but Chen Ge was still trying his best to find the way out. After walking down three floors, Chen Ge heard the door from Ying Chen's house being opened again. That signified that Ying Chen had come out from the house.

"This is not good." Chen Ge had to make sure that he made as little noise as possible and had to be careful so that he would not trip on the stairs. Both of these limitations impeded him from moving fast. If Ying Chen chased after him, he would be captured quite easily. "The man does not move with any sound. After he returned home, he probably went to grab a knife and some other tools."

Not long after that, the sound of the old elevator echoed through the building. Someone had taken the elevator and moved down the floors.

"Ying Chen probably believes that he missed me because I chose the staircase on the left. He must believe that I have already left the building. That's why he took the elevator. That's the fastest way to catch up to me if I am on the way out of the building." Chen Ge was blind in the world behind the door, but Ying Chen did not appear to know that. He was predicting Chen Ge's movement and actions based on the hypothesis that Chen Ge was a person with normal sight. "I must not let the man know that I am blind, or else he will toy with me like he did with Ying Tong. Who knows what this crazy man might do in that scenario? He is one sick b*stard."

Chen Ge had encountered many crazy murderers in his life, and Ying Chen was not the most cunning nor the most dangerous of them all, but he was the one with the greatest desire to show off his work. Chen Ge's key issue was, in the world behind the door, this was a world made from Ying Tong's memories. His elder brother, Ying Chen, should represent some kind of inner fear that he could never escape or shake loose. The noise from the old elevator soon halted. It seemed to have stopped on the ground floor. "I am unable to confirm his exact location. This places me in such a disadvantaged position."

Chen Ge slowly approached the corner of the staircase. When he was about to continue downward, he suddenly heard the echoes of footsteps coming from the corridor. "There are people running in the corridor, and there's more than one, huh?"

Ying Chen's movement was completely silent, so these people should not be Ying Chen. Chen Ge froze like a statue. Honestly, in that moment, he could feel the helplessness that was probably part of daily life for a blind person. They were living in the same world as everyone else, but because they were deprived of their sight. Sometimes, they could not even put up the simplest of resistance. The footsteps approached at a rapid speed, and they soon gathered before Chen Ge.

Chen Ge grabbed Doctor Skull-cracker's hammer, which was hidden inside his backpack. He pressed his back against the wall and took the most defensive stance he could in that moment. The footsteps stopped not far away from Chen Ge.

A moment later, a boy's voice entered Chen Ge's ears. "What are you doing on the stairs?"

The child's voice appeared to be normal. One would assume that it came from a very young boy. The tone was laced with open curiosity and confusion.

Chen Ge thought for a long time, but he did not know how to respond. His instincts told him that this was a chance. He could ask one of the children to lead him to their home to provide him with a temporary sanctuary. He could lock the door behind him and wait for Ying Chen to pass. However, his rationality told him that he should not place his trust so easily in the 'people' behind the door. These children might sound entirely innocent and harmless, but they might have the scariest appearance. Perhaps they were monsters who had the voices of children. Like many dark fairy tales, if he followed them believing their innocence, he would eventually end up in their stomachs.

"This is such a strange man. We'd better stay away from him," one of the other boys said. "Let's go and find Ying Tong. I like to play hide and seek with him the most. We will never need to worry about him cheating in the game."

1 "That is true, but he is so dumb. I was just hiding behind him last time we played, but he did not notice me at all."

"Every time he is supposed to come catch us, in the end, it will become a game of us trying to go and find him. I really don't understand why you guys insist on playing with him."

The children joked and laughed. Chen Ge heard the mention of Ying Tong's name. With his head lowered, he memorized the words that the children had said.

Yet another game of hide and seek. There is often such a game in the world behind the door. This really coincides with the description of the black phone in regards to the ghost fetus' Trial Mission. This is a hide and seek of life and death.

The few children were also looking for Ying Tong, so they probably did not know his exact location. Thus, Chen Ge did not ask them for any information. The children probably lost interest in Chen Ge after they got no response from him. They slowly wandered away. The footsteps disappeared down the corridor. Touching the wall, Chen Ge slowly stood up. His instinct from many instances behind the door told him that this building was very dangerous, and he needed to leave this place as soon as possible. He took his first step downward. But when he first raised his left right, someone suddenly shoved him heavily from behind!

He lost his hold on the backpack, and Chen Ge careened down the steps with the backpack cushioning part of his fall. Jolts of pain came from all parts of his body. Chen Ge shielded his head and gritted his teeth as the pain slowly passed. Ignoring everything else, he quickly climbed up from the ground and held onto his backpack for dear life.

"No wonder he kept his eyes closed all the time. He is a blind man." A young boy's voice came from the top of the stairs. Chen Ge could recognize this boy. The person who had pushed him was one of the children from earlier.

The footsteps slowly moved away from Chen Ge. After pushing Chen Ge down the stairs, the boy walked off.

"That shove was much stronger than what a normal boy should be able to muster. Has Ying Tong experienced something similar?"

Working his wrist, Chen Ge did not chase after the boy, but he was thinking over what the boy just said earlier.

"No wonder he keeps his eyes closed? In the eyes of these people behind the door, I have been keeping my eyes closed, huh? If that is the case, what am I supposed to do to open them?"

Chapter 1056 - Shrill Cat's Call

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1056: Shrill Cat's Call [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Even though the boy had maliciously pushed Chen Ge down the stairs, he had also revealed an important piece of information to Chen Ge. For the 'people' in this world behind the door, Chen Ge had the appearance of a strange man who kept his eyes closed.

"So, there is a possibility that I am not blind. I simply have not peeled my eyes open."

...

With his back against the wall, Chen Ge reached out his hands to touch his eyes, and he confirmed that both of his eyes were open, mumbling, "How can this be? What is the reason behind this discrepancy of what I feel and what I am told?"

There was nothing blocking Chen Ge's eyes. He used his fingers to dig into the corner of his eyes, he worked slowly and meticulously, but he still could not see anything but darkness. He could not even see the blood that had leaked out from the corners of his eyelids.

"There is only darkness. Perhaps it is not that I am blind but black is the only color that exists in this world."

The corridor had returned to silence. The group of children had already gone away.

"Perhaps from another person's perspective, Ying Tong has always appeared to have his eyes closed, which created the impression that all blind people in the world behind his world have their eyes shut.

"Or is there a possibility that even though Ying Tong has always kept his eyes closed, he has not completely lost his sight. He knew what his elder brother was doing, and to protect his own life, there was nothing he could do but pretend not to see anything. There is color in his world, but he is prevented from opening his eyes to enjoy it. If Ying Chen really has killed someone in real life, if he knew his younger brother Ying Tong is not really blind, he would create some kind of ‘accident’ to get rid of Ying Tong!

“Nothing is beyond the realm of possibility for a madman. The logical delineation of good versus evil cannot be applied here. The concept of morality does not work like normal when applied to a person with mental problems. For Ying Chen, his blood relative might not represent anything more than a tool for his own person entertainment.”

Chen Ge was suddenly reminded of something. In real life, he had peered into the fridge at Ying Chen’s home. He had noticed that the bottom compartment of the fridge was stuffed to the brim with minced meat. The meat had all been deboned, and the meat had been given a good chop, so from the appearance, it was hard to tell what kind of meat it was.

“If that meat is animal meat, then it’s fine. It’s just that I have a feeling that it might not be animal meat.” Chen Ge had encountered many crazed murderers before, and in his mind, there were many different levels of crazy murderers. To be able to debone, mince, and disguise the flesh of their victim and store them inside the fridge of their own kitchen, that was definitely not something a normal crazy murderer could do.

“When he was drinking with me, Ying Chen acted just like a normal person. In fact, he was more sociable than many normal people. If my prediction turns out to be true, then this is one hell of a disgusting and scary monster. Ying Chen has been living with a mask before all the living person, and he only sheds his disguise when he is around his younger brother. The kid was exposed to so many horrible scenarios since he was small, so even without the influence from the ghost fetus, Ying Tong might have become an actual door pusher.”

The degree of eeriness and absurdity of the world behind the door was proportional to the level of despair the door pusher had the misfortune of experiencing in real life. Even though Chen Ge had not discovered anything particularly unique about this world through his sense of touch and smell, perhaps once he opened his eyes, he would be able to see how scary this world actually was.

“There’s no point spending so much time of speculation. I need to go and find a place to hide for now. Among the group of children, only one of the kids pushed me, so that means that there’s a chance to communicate and interact with the rest of the children. If I am really cornered, perhaps I should go and persuade one of them.” Chen Ge was not feeling all that confident in his plan. He had been paying close attention to his surrounding so that he would be able to react on time should any accident happen.

Earlier, he had been unable to stop himself from being pushed down the stairs for two reasons. One, it indeed did not cross his mind that the boy had not left with the rest of his friends because the sound of the footsteps had been mixed together. Two, the shove from the boy was surprisingly strong; it was not on the level of strength a normal boy would have. After losing his sight, confirming the identity of the other person through the voice alone was something extremely risky, so unless he was truly out of other ideas, Chen Ge would not trust anyone too easily in this world behind the door.

“If this place corresponds to real life, Ying Chen’s house is on the seventh floor. I can listen closely to the movement of the elevator to determine the total number of floors in this building, and perhaps I can even take the elevator if necessary.”

Once the old elevator moved, it would creak noisily and loudly. It was definitely a source of danger, but it also represented a third path. When Ying Chen realized that Chen Ge had been going up and down the stairs, the elevator would become his only hope of escaping.

Of course, that was something that Chen Ge did not hope to happen; he still did not want to accost Ying Chen at this moment.

“For now, assuming this place is just like real life, Ying Chen’s home is on the seventh floor. I am on the landing between the third and fourth floor, and Ying Chen should currently be on the ground floor. He might be waiting at the stairs of the first floor, or perhaps he has already left and run out from this building.”

Unable to see anything, Chen Ge could only rely on his instincts to choose his path forward.

“Ying Chen probably does not know that I am blind. Earlier, he came up from the stairs on the right side. If he noticed something was wrong, he might rush down the stairs on the left to check. After all, if he believed the person who sneaked into his house left from the left staircase, then there is a chance that he might leave behind some clues inside the stairwell.”

With that in mind, Chen Ge made the swift decision to leave the left staircase, enter the corridor, and walk toward the staircase on the right.

“Hopefully, this is me overthinking it, but it never hurts to be extra careful.”

The best scenario for Chen Ge was Ying Chen hearing the commotion on the left staircase from the ground floor and hurrying up the stairs to corner the intruder while Chen Ge moved to the stairs on the right and perfectly avoided encountering Ying Chen and successfully escaping this building. Chen Ge was desperate to leave this building because there would be more options for him after leaving this place and more hiding spots.

That was the plan, but reality always proved that one could never plan for everything. Once Chen Ge stepped into the third-floor corridor, he heard a door creak open. The sound was very close to him. It was just about two to three meters away from him. With his hands on the door, Chen Ge froze and stopped moving. Even though he was inside a building, a draft suddenly picked up, and it carried a heady smell of something horrible.

It was dangerous for Chen Ge to stand exposed in the corridor. After a moment of hesitation, he started to move his legs and take one step forward. He felt like he had stepped on something. It made a crunchy sound like he had stepped on some dead bugs. It was a very unsettling feeling. Chen Ge did not dare stay too long. When he was about to take a second step, he felt someone press on his shoulders.

“Are you a new tenant who just moved here?” A middle-aged man’s voice travelled to Chen Ge’s ears. It should be this person who had suddenly opened his door.

“Yes.” Chen Ge’s brain was spinning as fast as he could. The stench in the air was a mix of stale food, dried sweat on unwashed laundry, and horrible body odor. The middle-aged man required a good deal of cleaning and washing. It felt like he had not cleaned his room for a very long time.

“Why is your body burning up if you are a new tenant? I thought you were one of the delivery people here to deliver stuff.” The middle-aged man gave this comment that seemed to appear out of nowhere.

Body burning up? Chen Ge felt that his body temperature was already incredibly low. It was a problem that he had been facing ever since his encounter with the Specters. The old woman at Coffin Village had even said that his body temperature would continue to drop if he did not find a solution, so it was strange to hear someone say that his body was burning up. In any case, Chen Ge did not respond to the comment. From the perspective of a living person, his body temperature was not only not high, it was on the low side. But from the perspective of the dead, he would indeed be different from other ‘people’. He was an anomaly.

Chen Ge was considering how to answer this middle-aged man when suddenly a cat’s meow echoed in his ears. Sucking in a cold breath, Chen Ge focused his ears to determine the source of the meowing. It was from the left staircase!

Before he could say anything, the second meow appeared, and it sounded more urgent and desperate than before. “Ying Chen is coming this way!”

It was already too late to run to the stairs on the right, there was only one option that was presented to Chen Ge. He lowered his voice and said to the middle-aged man, “Brother, I have something very important that I need to discuss with you.”

Grabbing his backpack tightly, Chen Ge’s hands searched along the wall until he found the frame of the door, “We will go inside and talk. Just give me three minutes. That is all I need!”

Then, without waiting for the middle-aged man to respond, Chen Ge stepped over the threshold and entered his house.

“Hey, who said that you can come in here?”

“Quickly, close the door!” Chen Ge was unable to see anything. All he could hear was the horrible screeching from the cats. However, it appeared that he was the only person who could hear them.

“What are you trying to do? Who are you?” The middle-aged man moved very slowly and sluggishly. The cats called like they were being slaughtered. It was spine-tingling to hear them. Chen Ge followed the sound and gripped the middle-aged man by his elbow and dragged him into the room. “Close the door!”

The door clicked shut. Chen Ge signaled for the middle-aged man to stay quiet. Even then, the cats did not stop meowing. If anything, the calls had become shriller and sharper. Ying Chen appeared to have heard the door close, and he was heading their way!

“You...”

“If you do not want to die, don’t say anything!” Chen Ge squeezed the command out through gritted teeth, and that finally managed to shut the middle-aged man up. Chen Ge stood frozen at the door, but the middle-aged man had wandered away from him. He seemed to have walked into the living room. The sound of footsteps exposed the presence of someone inside the house, but it was not the time for Chen Ge to worry about that.

The sharp and painful screams of the cats drilled into his ears. It was impossible to determine their location. It was as if Ying Chen was standing right before Chen Ge. The latter did not dare breathe too loudly. All he could do now was wait because Ying Chen was probably standing just outside the door. Between him and Ying Chen, there was only a door in the way. Chen Ge clamped his hands over his lips, thinking, Ying Chen knows that someone entered his house, but he does not know that the intruder was me. If I see this from his perspective, there is a good chance that he might mistake the intruder as the owner of this house. With Ying Chen’s personality, he might just decide to kill this middle-aged man.

Assuming the middle-aged man only shares a normal neighborly relationship with Ying Chen, if Ying Chen wants to kill the middle-aged man, that will place me and the middle-aged man in the same boat. So, what I need to do now is wait for Ying Chen to leave and then test the middle-aged man by slowly revealing the truth to him and seeing how he reacts.

The cats kept on meowing for a full minute before they stopped, which meant that Ying Chen had probably left. Wiping away the cold sweat from his forehead and the blood stain from the corner of his eyes, Chen Ge turned around and called into the room, “Brother, are you still there?”

Ying Chen probably went home to grab some equipment before returning to kill the middle-aged man. This was an apartment, so a brutal killing would attract too much attention. Chen Ge believed that Ying Chen would start with some kind of drug, and after the middle-aged man fell unconscious, Ying Chen would make his move. The horrible stench assaulted his nostrils, but at that moment, Chen Ge did not care that much about it. In his mind, as long as the place did not stink of death, it was already better than most places.

“Brother, I know it was rude of me to suddenly barge into your home, but I hope that you will listen to my side of the story.” Chen Ge took a deep breath. He knew that once he said those things, the situation might turn even more complicated because he would be introducing even more extenuating factors into the situation. "There are two siblings living on the seventh floor. The younger brother is blind, and the elder brother likes to adopt stray cats. Do you have any impression of them?"

There was no sound that came from the room. It was as if the middle-aged man had disappeared into thin air.

"When I passed by his house this afternoon, I noticed the door to their house was not closed. After I entered it, I discovered a dead body hidden under the elder brother's bed. He is a murderer!"

After Chen Ge dropped that bomb, there was finally a reaction from inside the room. The middle-aged man's voice came from a corner of the living room. "Impossible, I know that man. His name is Ying Chen. He is a naïve and innocent person. He can always be found doing things that are not worthwhile if you ask my honest opinion, like volunteering to take care of the building's surrounding garden and taking in those stray cats."

"Naïve and innocent? Is that how you see Ying Chen?"

"Yes, you cannot find a kinder, more naïve person in this world. Based on what he told me, he just wants to do more good things in the world to gather some good karma in the hopes that his good deeds will touch the heavens above to help recover his younger brother's sight. Tell me, if that is not naivete, what is?"

The middle-aged man did not believe Chen Ge at all. From his point of view, the term murderer could not be linked to Ying Chen.

"Never judge a book by its cover. What you are shown is a front that he has put a lot of effort into. It is all part of his disguise." Chen Ge did not expect that when he had placed the truth so openly before the man, the man would still think that he was joking.

"I do not understand why you are saying things like, but if you are not lying, let me gather some of the neighbors, and we will all go together to his house to look."

"That is a definite no." Chen Ge did not wish to expose his existence. Once Ying Chen had him in his crosshairs, he would be exceptionally vulnerable considering the fact that he was unable to see anything at the moment.

“Actually, what are you doing here?” The middle-aged man grabbed Chen Ge by his hair. “And why are you keeping your eyes closed? Is there a medical problem with your eyes?”

“I am not lying to you. Ying Chen has killed someone, and there is probably more than one victim. He is a madman.”

“If there is someone that is mad, it is you. You are blind, so how did you see the dead body in his room?” The middle-aged man started to believe that Chen Ge was lying to him. After all, Ying Chen was a neighbor whom he had known quite some time, and Chen Ge was a stranger whom he had just met that day.

“I touched it with my hands. The dead body was strapped under his bed. It was a headless body!”

“You touched a dead body with your hands? That sounds quite unbelievable.” The middle-aged man pulled harder. He was not welcoming to Chen Ge. He dragged Chen Ge by his hair to the front door. “Compared to a suspected murderer, I feel in more danger around someone like you who sneaks into other people’s homes without their permission.”

His hair was yanked out from his scalp. Chen Ge felt pain jolt through his body. In response, Chen Ge grabbed the middle-aged man’s arm. He wanted to fling the man’s arm away, but when his finger touched the middle-aged man’s skin, his expression changed. The middle-aged man’s body was devoid of any body warmth, and more importantly, there were bumps on the man’s skin along with something that felt like muscular lividity.

Livor mortis? This medical term appeared in Chen Ge’s mind, and he instantly let go. This uncle is dead?

“Get out of my house now. If I see you around loitering around the area, there will be consequences. Do you understand me?” Chen Ge was hauled out of the room by the middle-aged man. Standing in the corridor, a chill crawled all over his heart.

“In Ying Tong’s memory, the middle-aged man appeared in the form of a dead person. That means that he is probably already dead in real life. What is the reason behind his death? Was it because he had discovered Ying Chen’s secret? Or had Ying Tong once told him something, but he did not believe him, and that caused Ying Chen to place a target on his back?”

Many things behind the door were connected. Chen Ge stood for a while at the door when suddenly he heard the old elevator moving. At the same time, the cats started to meow again.

“Ying Chen is coming this way in the elevator.”

Chapter 1057 - Aichmophobia [2 in 1]

Chapter 1057: Aichmophobia [2 in 1]

Chen Ge wished to go to warn the middle-aged man, but it was already too late. The cats' meowing grew louder and louder. He hurriedly went to hide in the nearby stairwell. The elevator stopped on this floor. There were no footsteps or the even sound of breathing. Moments later, there came the sound of knocking on the door. The knocking appeared to happen out of thin air. There was no precursor to it at all. It was like the person teleported to the middle-aged man's house and tapped on his door.

"The middle-aged man might reveal my presence to him."

The knocking was incredibly loud, but it did not seem that no one came to open the door. Chen Ge was currently standing on the steps. Even without his power of sight, he was exceptionally calm. In those circumstances, he had chosen not to run but to stay and observe. Ying Chen did not know the situation that he was in, so the situation was temporarily still beneficial to him. The knocking continued for quite some time before the door finally opened. The middle-aged man's voice came from down the corridor.

...

"Ying Chen? Why have you come to knock on my door? Is it because it's time to pay the building maintenance fee again?" There was a trace of barely hidden annoyance in the middle-aged man's tone. It was clear that he did not take Chen Ge's warning to heart.

"My younger brother, Ying Tong, has sneaked out from home. He still has not come home yet, so I'm very worried. When I came up the stairs earlier, I heard there was someone moving on the floor, so I thought about coming here to ask. Have you seen my younger brother?" Ying Chen's voice sounded incredibly young. He appeared to be much younger in this world behind the door compared to the real Ying Chen in real life.

The world behind the door was built based on the door pusher's memory. In other words, a deduction could be made that this younger version of Ying Chen had left the deepest impression on Ying Tong. Therefore, Ying Chen had done something to Ying Tong when they were both very young, and that incident had been a traumatic experience for Ying Tong. It seared a part of his mind, and he would always remember his elder brother's voice from when that incident happened.

"You have to be more careful since he is a blind kid. It is your fault that you did not close the door and watch over him carefully, and now that he is missing, why have you come to bother me?" The middle-aged man's attitude could not have been worse. From the way he treated Chen Ge, one could see that he was not a friendly guy.

"I'm so sorry. Here are some date cakes that my relative from my hometown sent me. I hope you will accept them. If you happen to see my younger brother, would you please come and tell me? He has extremely poor eyesight, and I am so afraid that some accident might happen to him."

"Date cakes? Why are they so red? Have they been stuffed with food dye?"

"No, they are made from pure natural ingredient, and the taste is exquisite. Please do give them a try. If you think they taste good, I still have some back at my home." Ying Chen was very passionate. So far, he had acted as the middle-aged man had described him to be, a perfectly kind and innocent young man.

"The taste is indeed not bad, although it is quite different from the ones I bought from the street. Okay, if I ever see your little brother, I will be sure to notify you." The middle-aged man spoke with his mouth full. It sounded like he was munching on something. Then, the door closed.

"The middle-aged man did not mention anything about me, but the problem is, Ying Chen did not enter his home, so he should be standing right outside his door right at this moment." The sound of the elevator opening came from the corridor. Chen Ge planned to leave, but at that moment, he heard the meowing of the cats. The sound came from the middle of the corridor. "Ying Chen did not get on the elevator!"

He leaned against the wall, and Chen Ge hurried down the stairs. He did not dare make too loud a noise, but because he was blind, he was unable to move as fast as he wished. If he accidentally tripped or made any noise, he would certainly be captured by Ying Chen. For now, he was unable to predict where Ying Chen was. The cats kept on meowing, so that could only mean that the madman was coming toward the staircase.

“Hey!” The front door was opened again, and the middle-aged man’s voice came out from the corridor. “Why are there so many letters inside this bag of date cakes?”

“Those were addressed to me from my relative. I am so sorry. I forgot to take them out from the bag.” Ying Chen’s voice came from directly above Chen Ge. He had already entered the stairwell, but he was on the fourth floor, while Chen Ge had just slithered to the third floor. Chen Ge was covered in a sheen of cold sweat. He held his breath and froze where he was. “I will take the letters with me. Remember, if you see my little brother, please do come and tell me.”

The cats had stopped meowing. When Ying Chen’s voice began again, he had already left the staircase and walked to the middle-aged man’s door.

“Okay.” After saying that, the middle-aged man added not long after that, “Why do you keep trying to peer into my house? Are you suspecting that I am hiding your little brother?”

“It’s not that. I merely thought that...” The voices from the corridor suddenly stopped, but they were quickly followed by the sound of a heavy object hitting the ground.

“Ying Chen has made his move on the middle-aged man?” Chen Ge gritted his teeth. The man was swift and cruel with his actions. He did not hesitate for even a second. This kind of enemy was very scary and dangerous. “I have to leave this building as soon as I can. I’d better stay away from him before I recover my power of sight.” Chen Ge did not know what kind of power Ying Chen possessed, and he had no idea what kind of world this place was. His understanding and conception of the world was not complete just based on his senses of hearing, smell, and touch. He did not dare stay in the same place for too long. Chen Ge picked up his pace and hurried down the stairs.

“The middle-aged man is definitely a dead man. If Ying Chen mistakes him as the intruder, it’ll be perfect. But with Ying Chen’s intellect, he will have more suspicion. I must be prepared for the worst. It is not yet time to lower my guard.”

With his hands on the wall, Chen Ge walked down the stairs while counting in his mind the number of floors that he had already descended. “Assuming it’s like real life, Ying Chen’s family lives on the seventh floor, so I should have reached the ground floor now.”

There was a landing between the stairs connecting the two floors. It had been consistent so far as Chen Ge went down the building. But once Chen Ge moved to the assumed ground floor, he did not step on a level land, but instead, there were more stairs!

“Is there a basement in the building where Ying Chen’s family live?” Chen Ge rummaged through his mind, and he came to a horrifying conclusion. He remembered very clearly that the building that Ying Chen showed him definitely did not have a basement. “This world behind the door is not the same as the one in real life! Damn it!”

Chen Ge was unable to see anything. But Chen Ge had not been discovered by Ying Chen. Other than the help of the cats, there was another reason behind this, and that was because he had been to this building before, and there was a basic layout of its location formed in his mind. By comparing the map with the one in his mind, Chen Ge would not be completely lost. But now that he realized the map in his mind was not one hundred percent identical to this building behind the door, the fear that he had toward the unknown was instantly amplified.

“Should I continue to move down the stairs or knock on the doors of the tenants to ask for help? Another issue is that this building does not have a basement in its real life counterpart, but this staircase continues to move down, so one cannot help but wonder, where does this lead?”

He should have been on the ground floor, but the staircase kept on going. Chen Ge did not know wherein the problem lay. Why would there be an extra basement in this building behind the door?

“Could there be a reflection of the upper seven floors and lower seven floors? Just like how the world behind the door is the reflection of the world outside the door? The top seven floors are filled with normal tenants, but the lower seven floors are inhabited by Specters and ghosts?”

Standing in the stairwell, Chen Ge moved several steps down into the basement. He did not feel any discomfort or feel as if anything around him had changed. The surroundings appeared to have remained the same as well.

“This should not be a reflection of the seven floors aboveground, so is there a possibility that this is an endless loop, Penrose stairs so to speak? The ground floor of the building leads to the top floor of the building, and the top floor of the building is connected to the ground floor. For a blind person, repeating the action of going up and down the stairs will evoke an especially strong sense of despair in one's mind. It will seem like there is no end, and one was just making a futile struggle."

Normally, a person would not have this kind of experience, but it was different for Chen Ge. After all, not that long ago, he had done a nightmare mission at Jiang Yuan Apartments that required him to blindfold himself to get up the building. That had given him a taste of how a blind man would ascend the stairs of a building. Darkness, loneliness, and a fear of the unknown festered at the bottom of a person's heart. They would combine to form a demon that represented fear, and the demon would slowly swallow one whole.

"I cannot keep going. This world behind the door is different from its layout in real life. This means that I need to be extra careful." Chen Ge retreated to the place that he believed was the 'ground floor'. With his hands on the wall, he moved down the corridor. He searched the whole floor and, he came to a very despairing conclusion.

"There is no exit. I cannot leave this place."

Despair started to grow inside his heart. Chen Ge realized that he had seriously underestimated the difficulty of this world behind the door.

"Am I experiencing what Ying Tong once experienced? There is an exit to this building, but for him, the building is akin to his prison. Or rather, it's as if the building is essentially his whole world. He is unable to escape from this place."

Biting the tip of his tongue, Chen Ge used pain to force himself to calm down.

"Looks like, if there is any hope to break this endless cycle, it will be with Ying Tong. He is the door pusher of this door, so he should know how to 'open one's eyes'. Therefore, I need to find Ying Tong before Ying Chen manages to catch up to me!"

Without any clue and deprived of any aid, inside a sealed building, a blind person needed to find another blind person while the former was being chased by a crazed murderer. Chen Ge had not experienced a mission of this kind of difficulty before.

"From now on, I will have to memorize each step that I have taken, every location, and every direction that I am facing.”

The world behind the door differed from the real world. Chen Ge could not use that as a basis of comparison anymore, so Chen Ge needed to come up with a new map in his mind. This was something that was incredibly difficult, but Chen Ge had to try to increase the chance of his survival.

Since he could not see, so he had to memorize all the routes that he had taken before. Only by familiarizing himself with the layout of the building would he be able to run without the fear of tripping over something unknown. He might even be able to set down trap to deal with Ying Chen.

Constantly going into hiding was not Chen Ge’s style. He wished to use everything within his surroundings to resolve the danger once and for all. Even though he had lost his sight, if Ying Chen merely treated him as a normal blind man and was playing with Chen Ge like how a cat would toy with a weak mouse, then Ying Chen would be in big trouble. The one person that he should definitely not underestimate was Chen Ge.

“The middle-aged man that I met earlier had something akin to livor mortis settling on his body already, and his body temperature was practically non-existent, so the chance of him being a living person is zero. If I look at it from this perspective, is there a chance that the entire tenants of this building are filled with dead people?

“Some of their deaths might be related to Ying Chen while others might have been caused by the ghost fetus. In their eyes, Ying Chen is a very good and kind person. Now what I need to do is try my best to correct their misunderstanding of Ying Chen and have them see the real Ying Chen. That way, hopefully, I will be able to get them to lend me their aid and give me their trust.”

The cats had not started to call, so Ying Chen should be quite far away from him. Chen Ge walked to the corner of the ‘ground floor’ and knocked lightly on the door that was closest to the staircase. In this dark and quiet world, the sound of knocking echoed hollowly. Even Chen Ge himself felt unsettled. It felt like someone was watching him from the door.

“Is the apartment empty?”

Chen Ge moved down to the next door. He knocked for a long time, but no one came to open the door. In fact, he did not hear any movement from inside any of the apartments. He knocked on five consecutive doors, but none of them opened, and this caused Chen Ge to become quite desperate.

“After Ying Chen deals with the body, he will continue his search throughout the building to look for Ying Tong. If he hears the knocking, he will definitely come to check, so this is the best window of opportunity that I have.”

Chen Ge moved faster. He kept on knocking until he reached the seventh door when the iron door at the other end of the corridor was suddenly pulled open.

“Are you looking for someone? Why are you knocking on so many doors?” A woman’s voice came from behind Chen Ge, and it gave him quite a jolt.

After he adjusted himself, Chen Ge turned around. “Yes, I am looking for a child. His name is Ying Tong.”

“Ying Tong?”

“He is the boy that lives on the seventh floor. He has lost his sight...”

“I know who he is. But why are you looking for him here? This is not even the seventh floor.” The woman was conversing with Chen Ge when a child’s painful cry suddenly came from inside her house. The wail was rather similar to how Ying Tong sounded in Chen Ge’s memory. But he could not be confident that the child in the woman’s house was Ying Tong. After all, he had only heard Ying Tong say one sentence when he was outside the door.

The sound of footsteps clicked across the floor. The woman was returning to her own home while Chen Ge trailed behind her. The woman appeared to be in a hurry. After she entered her house, she did not close the door. Chen Ge almost tripped on the threshold of the door as he followed behind her.

It is that strange smell again! The horrible stench!

The woman’s room smelled the same as the middle-aged man’s room. It reeked of a stench that was a mix of many different things that had gone wrong. The smell was very pungent. The sound of a child crying and wailing kept coming from inside the house. Chen Ge was worried that the loud commotion might attract Ying Chen’s attention, so he reached over to the door and clicked it shut.

“What is wrong now? Weren’t you being fine earlier? Did you see something that scared you?” The woman sounded urgent and anxious. Then came the sound of drawers and cupboards being thrown open. It sounded like the woman was desperately looking for something. Even though Chen Ge previously thought the child’s voice sounded similar to Ying Tong’s, he had changed his mind because of something the woman said—‘Did you see something that scared you?’

Ying Tong was a blind boy, but the child in the woman’s room was not blind.

“Stay in there and do not move! I will go and find the medicine for you!” The footsteps echoed around the small room as they came toward the front door. Chen Ge stood back to let the woman pass, but he accidentally bumped into the woman because he could not see where he was standing and where she was moving.

“I am so sorry. I did not mean to do that.”

In the dark, Chen Ge wanted to hold the woman to stop himself from falling, and in his panic, he accidentally grabbed the woman by her elbow. The woman had exceptionally thin arms, and her elbow was twisted at an unnatural angle. Chen Ge was quickly flung away by the woman. She seemed to be rather incensed as the tone changed to her voice.

“I am sorry, but I cannot deal with you now. I need to go upstairs to borrow some medicine.”

The front door was open, and the woman walked out. Then the door was slammed shut again.

“Medicine?”

The child’s crying slowly died down, and a veil of silence fell over the room.

“The woman’s body is unnatural twisted. In fact, it is quite similar to those twisted dolls in Ying Tong’s bedroom. Other than that, she has a very low body temperature...”

Ten minutes later, the front door was thrown open again, and the woman returned to the room.

Chen Ge heard a liquid being poured and someone swallowing. After the child had stopped crying, he moved deeper into the door. “Do you mind telling me what kind of disease your child suffers from? Don't be afraid, I am actually a doctor."

"A normal doctor cannot cure his illness anyway." The woman walked out from the inner room and strode to stand before Chen Ge. "Have you heard of aichmophobia?"

"Is it a kind of fear toward a specific object?"

"Yes, once the kid sees anything sharp or pointed, he will act up. Anxious, desperate, despairing, and noisy, he keeps on imagining that people will use those sharp objects to poke into his eyes."

Chapter 1058 - Miss Dress, Mr. Wood, and Miss Red [2 in 1]

Chapter 1058: Miss Dress, Mr. Wood, and Miss Red [2 in 1]

“Why would something like this happen? Most psychological problems can be traced back to a source. He would not suffer from this kind of illness for no reason. One is not born like this. Something must have happened to trigger this.”

Many people had phobias in their lives, but they could often get it under control so that it would not affect their everyday life. However, the child inside the room had reached the stage of being unable to cope with this trauma without the use of drugs to shake off the fear. This was a very dangerous situation.

“You are not wrong, but I have no idea how the child got this illness. I suppose you can consider me his nanny.” The woman spoke in a very slow and drawn out voice. After the boy inside the room had his medicine, his situation seemed to turn for the better, and the woman gave an audible sigh of relief.

...

“He is ailing from a psychological problem, and to cure this problem, we have to go to its source.” Chen Ge took several steps toward where the woman was standing. Since he was unable to see anything, he could only use the wall as his guide.

“I wish I can find the source of the problem as well, and I want the best for him, but no matter how hard I try to ask, the child does not seem to have an answer. If anything, it feels like he is not aware of the source of the problem himself.” The woman sounded helpless and weak. “So, in the end, I had no choice but to give up.”

“Do you mind if I have a few words with him? I am a doctor that specializes in psychology and psychiatry.” Chen Ge was in a way thankful that he had met Doctor Gao before. The doctor, despite everything, had taught him many things, especially those related to the human psyche. Chen Ge sounded like Doctor Gao before he had become all unhinged. A psychologist first must have the ability for the patients to put their guard down around him before he was given access to the patient's world. In terms of his appearance and presence, Chen Ge fitted this condition perfectly.

"You are a psychologist? I do not remember anyone from our building who works in this field. Are you a new tenant who just moved here?"

"I suppose you can say that. I can swear on my life that I only want what is the best for the child." Chen Ge pointed toward his eyes with a bitter smile. "I have trouble seeing with my eyes. I am unable to do anything harmful. If you think I have done anything that is unsatisfactory, you can chase me out any time you want."

The blindness turned Chen Ge into one of the more vulnerable party, but that did not mean that he would not use that to his advantage to earn some pity points.

"The child is rather fragile. It is fine as long as you watch the words that you use." The woman reached out voluntarily to grab Chen Ge by his elbow. "Be careful. The sofa is in front of us. At this point, we have to turn left..."

Chen Ge noticed something. In this world, the adult tenants of this building did not appear to be as evil as the adults in the other worlds. Of course, they were not saints. If anything, they felt like normal living human beings to Chen Ge.

I really hate to associate them with dead bodies.

With the woman leading the way, Chen Ge entered deeper into the house. The smell in the air intensified, and to make things worse, there was a smell of rotting meat mixed into the air. This was something that was not present in the middle-aged man's house. "By the way, do you mind telling me what your relationship with the boy is?"

"Our relationship?" The woman was silent for a while before she gave an answer that Chen Ge did not expect at all. "I suppose you can consider the two of us as friends. He has nowhere else to go, so I am temporarily looking after him."

The woman's answer was too ambiguous. After she said that, she left the room, leaving Chen Ge together with the boy inside the room. Tracing his steps by the cupboard and closet, Chen Ge walked until his leg bumped into the edge of the bed. He sat down slowly. "Can you hear my voice? I am so sorry that I am unable to see you. If you are by my side, can you please say something or pat me lightly on the palm of my hand.”

Chen Ge opened his palm, and he waited for quite some time before he felt a chilly jolt coming from the center of his palm. The chill was different from the lifelessness of a dead body. The touch felt soft. If anything, it did not feel like he was touched by a person. Rather, it felt like his palm was brushed by a gust of wind.

“Ying Tong?” Chen Ge subconsciously called out the name, but he did not get any response.

Moments later, about one meter away from Chen Ge, a boy’s voice said, “My name is Ah Mu.”

The boy’s voice was about sixty percent similar to Ying Tong’s voice in real life, but it was exceptionally young. Chen Ge had seen the information on both Ying Chen and Ying Tong at the police station. In real life, Ying Tong should be ten years old already, but the boy before him sounded more like a boy about four or five.

“Ah Mu, can you please tell me how you got to know the big sister outside the door?” Chen Ge first wanted to get to know the identity of the adults. If the woman was trustworthy, he would try everything within his power to get her to be his ally. Staying alone in this building was much too dangerous.

“You mean Miss Dress?” the boy asked in a surprisingly frightened voice.

“Miss Dress?” The boy had a strange way of addressing the woman. It felt like the name a child would give his toy. “Do you call her that normally?”

“Yes, Miss Dress and Mr. Wood have always been taking care of me. They are very nice people. They play games with me and often include me in different activities.” The boy sounded innocent and bright, but what he said caused Chen Ge to break out in goosebumps.

From his perspective, all the tenants in this building, other than Ying Tong and Ying Chen, were dead bodies. It was clear that the names Miss Dress and Mr. Wood were names given to them by the boy himself. There was a speculation that appeared in his mind, but it was too cruel of an assumption, so Chen Ge did not dare voice it lest it triggered the boy.

“Are Miss Dress and Mr. Wood husband and wife?” Chen Ge asked a random question to break the tension.

“No, Miss Dress has a very bad temper, and she pops off very easily. That’s why Mr. Wood does not like her very much,” the boy said in a scared voice. “Mr. Wood and I are both a bit afraid of Miss Dress.”

“Don’t think that I didn’t hear that!” The woman’s voice came from the living room. “Who taught you to say those horrible things?”

Well, in that moment, the woman did sound like she had a temper.

“But even though Miss Red has a bad temper, she has a gentle side to her as well. Whenever I am sick, she will always appear to take care of me. She sits down to chat with me and tell me stories.” The boy painted a very beautiful picture. When he said these things, he should have had a big smile on his face. Even though Chen Ge could not see it, he could hear the smile in the boy’s voice.

“She will always appear whenever you are sick, huh? Is she here because your father and mother ask her to?” Chen Ge tried to probe around with the boy’s memory.

“Yes, my father and mother went to somewhere very far away. When they left, they asked Miss Dress, Mr. Wood, and Miss Red to help look after me.”

“There are three of them?” The boy made it sound like they were three living caretakers, but Chen Ge was thinking about three dead zombies.

“Ah Mu, do you mind describing what the three of them look like?” Chen Ge did not reach into the boy’s painful memory. He did not bring up aichmophobia or ask how did the boy get an illness like that, but he followed along with the fairy tale that was made up by the boy like a loyal listener who had submerged himself fully into the boy’s story.

“Miss Dress always dresses herself in a long dress, and the dress is embroidered with many flowers. Each flower feels different to the touch. Mr. Wood does not like to speak. His skin feels hard to the touch like the bark of a tree. Miss Red is a very clean person, but her hair is always wet. She has a special preference for the color red, and everything she owns is red in color.”

The boy did not have an introverted personality. He seemed to like chatting with other people. Like someone who was showing off his toys, he rattled off the names and the properties of the three ‘people’.

Chen Ge did not pay much attention to the introduction to Miss Dress and Mr. Wood, but when the boy talked about the last person, Miss Red, his interest was piqued. Miss Dress and Mr. Wood’s properties could be felt from the sense of touch, but Miss Red was different. There was the word ‘Red’ in her name, but theoretically speaking, a blind kid should not be able to tell the difference in color.

The boy before him referred to himself as Ah Mu, and Miss Dress had mentioned earlier that the boy had perfect sight, so he should not be Ying Tong. However, after hearing the boy’s voice, Chen Ge felt like the boy sounded very similar to Ying Tong. Such a coincidence could not exist in the world. He believed that the boy must be connected to Ying Tong somehow, but he just had not figured out what that connection was.

Chen Ge asked the boy more questions about his parents. From what the boy said, Chen Ge could determine that the boy missed his parents very much. In the boy’s memory, his parents always cared about him. They lavished him with unconditional love. The boy’s parents were like a pair of gentle hands that cupped the boy within them to shield him from the rest of the world.

At this point, Chen Ge noticed something out of place. Based on what the boy had told him, he had had a wonderful childhood. There was nothing traumatic about it, so where did the source of his phobia come from? It made no sense at all. Why would a child living in such a warm and healthy environment end up with aichmophobia?

Based on what Miss Dress said, once the boy saw something with a sharp edge, he would imagine people using that to poke his eyes blind. What kind of experience had he been through to have an impression like that? What was the moment that caused this change in his life?

After getting a brief impression of the boy’s life, Chen Ge asked the next question cautiously, “Ah Mu, do you know Ying Chen and Ying Tong who live on the seventh floor?”

“I do not know them. I have been staying put in my room. I have never left this room.”

“You do not know them?” To seek a second opinion, Chen Ge turned to the living room to shout the question at Miss Dress, “Has Ah Mu never walked out of this room before?”

“Naturally, with his aichmophobia, he acts up whenever he hears the word sharp or pointed, much less seeing a sharp object in person. In the state that he is in, how could I allow him to leave the room? I’d worry too much about him.” Miss Dress’ voice drifted in from the living room. Then Chen Ge heard the sound of water being poured. After a while, the footsteps came to the room. “Do you want something to drink?”

“It’s fine.” Chen Ge was not brave enough to accept a drink from a stranger, especially when he was in the world behind the door and unable to tell what the drink actually was. “Ah Mu does not know Ying Tong and Ying Chen, but as a tenant here, you should know the two siblings, right?”

“Of course, they are a pair of poor brothers too. Their parents died when they were young, and they raised by their relative.” Miss Dress seemed to know Ying Chen and Ying Tong very well.

“Then, what is your impression of the brothers? Can you tell me more about them?” Chen Ge finally found a ‘person’ who was willing to communicate with him, so he used this opportunity to ask as many questions as he could.

“The big brother is the most perfect man you will ever meet in your life. He is kind, generous, and the best around animals. He is very serious with his work and is a very good student. I like him very much.

“About the younger brother, I cannot say the same thing. If anything, I feel like the younger brother has dragged down his elder brother. Without him, Ying Chen would have a much better life. His younger brother is blind in both eyes, and he cannot even look after himself. He also likes to say these strange things. If you ask me, I believe there is something wrong with his mind.”

What Miss Dress said unsettled Chen Ge very deeply. In Miss Dress’ eyes, Ying Chen was as perfect as an individual could possibly be, but it was the complete opposite for Ying Tong.

“Sometimes, what you see might not be the real deal.” Chen Ge felt like even if he told the woman directly that Ying Chen was a murderer, she would not believe him.

“I am so sorry. I forgot that you are blind as well. I hope that you understand I do not have anything against the blind. It is just that the younger brother is a very strange boy. He cannot survive on his own without his elder brother, and he likes to create problems. He always tries to run away from him, but at the same time, he cannot leave his elder brother because how is a blind boy supposed to look after himself?" Miss Dress was very direct with her words.

"You hate Ying Tong that much? But don't you think Ying Tong is rather similar to Ah Mu?" Chen Ge might be blind, but he could sense something through the things that he had heard. However, Miss Dress did not appear to be able to make the connection between Ah Mu and Ying Tong.

"You have to be kidding. Ah Mu just celebrated his sixth birthday, and that Ying Tong is about ten already. Their heights are completely different."

"I wasn't talking about their appearance. Why did you mention their height instead?" To prove his suspicion, Chen Ge pressed further.

"Now that you mention it, their appearance couldn't be more different. Ying Chen has a very horrid face. It is completely different from Ah Mu's." What Miss Dress said next sent a chill down Chen Ge's spine. "Ying Tong rarely leaves his room. I remember this one time when he tried to sneak away from home, but he tripped among the field of pebbles. A large part of his face was scratched, and a nail almost pierced into the space near to his eyes. If his elder brother did not find him in time, I can't begin to imagine what would have happened next."

"His face was ruined?" Chen Ge had a sneaking suspicion that this 'accident' was created by Ying Chen. Ying Tong probably knew about this as well, so he had been trying to escape again and again. But in reality, every time Ying Tong tried to escape, he would be captured back by Ying Chen. Chen Ge should be reliving Ying Tong's life. As a blind person, it was practically impossible to escape from Ying Chen.

"Fine, even though their height and appearance are different, did you notice that they sound quite similar?" Chen Ge still had not given up. It was hard for him to find a reasonable 'person' to converse with behind the door, and he did not want to give up so easily.

"Fine, I will concede to you on that point. They do sound quite similar, but that cannot really prove anything. Before puberty, most boys sound the same anyway."

"How come you just cannot get it?" Chen Ge wiped away the sweat from his forehead. "Fine, we will not talk about that anymore. Then, can you tell me more about the exact situation with Ah Mu's parents? Why would they come to you to look after Ah Mu?"

"Are you really that dull, or are you acting dumb?" Miss Dress' tone had a hint of dissatisfaction weaved into it. She grabbed Chen Ge by his elbow and dragged him out of the room.

"What are you doing?" The woman closed the door and ensured that Ah Mu would not be able to hear them. "Hasn't Ah Mu already told you that his parents have gone to a faraway place? Why would you ask a question like that? Now, I really suspect you are not really a psychologist at all."

"Are Ah Mu's parents dead?"

"Yes, Ah Mu is an orphan. In fact, he was an orphan found by Ying Chen outside the residential area. He was helpless and alone. In the end, after an internal discussion among the tenants, we decided to look after them together."

"Wait, you said 'them'?" Chen Ge caught the keyword within the sentence that the woman said.

"Yes, they are triplets. Ah Mu, Ah Tong, and Ah Ying. It was Ying Chen who found these three kids. He saw how pitiable the children were, but he was unable to take care of all of them on his own, so he pleaded with us to help him look after them. When he was done with the procedure, he would send the three kids to the nearby orphanage." What Miss Dress said caused Chen Ge sucked in a cold breath.

"It was Ying Chen who asked you all to look after these three kids?"

"What do you think? In today's society, there are very few people who are as kind and as selfless as Ying Chen anymore. He has done so much and gone to so many places for these three children. He has given them so much of his time and energy." Miss Dress had a very good impression of Ying Chen. It felt like if she was asked to praise Ying Chen, she could go on for the whole night.

"Then, do all the three children all suffer from some kind of illness?" Even though he was given only the barest of information, Chen Ge cut through the dredge and asked the most vital question.

"How did you know that? Then again, if they were perfectly fine, they would have been adopted already," Miss Dress whispered softly. "Ah Mu has aichmophobia. Ah Tong has claustrophobia, and he will act out if he is left alone inside a room. Ah Ying has the rarest illness. It is called lygophobia. He will act up when he hears loud noises like screams and shouts.”

“Have you ever considered why the three kids got illnesses like these and why it was Ying Chen who first discovered them?”

“I have not wondered about that question before, but it is probably related to their biological parents.”

“But in Ah Mu’s memory, his parents are nothing but a pair of angels. They are the warmest part of his memory.” At this point, Chen Ge’s expression was very dark. Through these little clues, he had a very dangerous speculation forming in his mind.

Miss Dress, Mr. Wood, and Miss Red should be Ying Chen’s real life victims. Ying Tong, who was his prisoner, knew about the truth, but he did not dare tell anyone else. In fact, he ended up befriendng these three ‘people’.

From how Chen Ge saw it, even though there was a problem with Ying Tong’s eyes, he was not completely blind.

Living within the ugly world that Ying Chen had created, he suffered from many different mental traumas. But he knew that only by pretending to be fully blind would he be able to survive, so he locked up the fragile, fearful, and remaining beautiful memories that he had in his life and split them into different personalities. They were the innocent Ah Mu, Ah Ying, and Ah Tong.

Ying Tong himself would continue to be an honest blind person and kept searching for his way out.

Chapter 1059 - Two Helpers [2 in 1]

Chapter 1059: Two Helpers [2 in 1]

Chen Ge's initial plan was to find Ying Tong, but from the clues that he had found so far, the plan might need to change. He probably needed to locate all four children: Ah Ying, Ah Mu, Ah Tong, and Ying Tong.

"Ying Chen should know about the existence of the three brothers. In fact, one could say that the existence of the three brothers is deeply linked to him. He alone created this tragedy. The three children each suffer from a different type of mental illness, and it is most likely Ying Chen who caused this to happen. They correspond to respectively the fear of sharp objects, imprisonment in a small room, and being scared.

"He asked 'dead bodies' to look after the three kids, and if we relate this to real life, it means that he has hidden the dead bodies in his home. Ying Tong spent too much time with dead bodies, and the pressure on his mind probably caused this split personality and the birth of the three distinct personas. That explains why the three children are unable to leave their homes, but Ying Tong alone has been trying to escape non-stop.

...

"The other thing worth noting is that Ah Mu is not blind, but Ah Mu's current age is only six. If my previous analysis is not wrong, Ah Mu should be one of Ying Tong's suppressed personalities. Then it indirectly proves that Ying Tong was not blind before he was six, or at least, he had not lost his sight completely then."

The more he analyzed the situation, the more Chen Ge felt unsettled by it. He took a deep breath and turned toward the direction of the living room to ask, "Miss Dress, are you still there? Do you mind telling me when Ying Tong first ran away from home?"

"That was so long ago. It was maybe five years ago, I believe. At the time, Ying Chen's relative had just moved away. Ying Chen and Ying Tong were the only ones who stayed in their house." Miss Dress yet again revealed a very important piece of information.

"Don't you think there is a problem that Ying Tong chose to run away the moment their relative moved away? If Ying Tong was treated nicely, why would he attempt to run away from home for no reason? His elder brother, Ying Chen, must have done something horrible, something that has deeply traumatized his younger brother, Ying Tong.”

Chen Ge was unable to see Miss Dress’ expression, so he could not tell whether the woman agreed with his reasoning or not.

“Other than that, here is one more thing for you to think about. When Ying Tong ran away from home, he was about the same age as Ah Mu. As you told me, Ah Mu suffers from aichmophobia. After Ying Tong ran away from home, he was probably captured by Ying Chen and then was threatened by the latter by having the nails poke at the spots near Ying Tong’s eyes. Isn’t a nail a sharp object? And hasn’t Ah Mu been dreaming about people wanting to use sharp objects to blind his eyes?”

“What is your point exactly?” Miss Dress asked.

“Ah Mu is Ying Tong from back then,” Chen Ge replied. “The reason he suffers from aichmophobia is because of the trauma Ying Tong received when Ying Chen did those things to him. That’s the reason he is so afraid when he sees any sharp objects. That is the source of his phobias!”

The world behind the door was often absurd and weird; one could not view them with a logical eyes. However, after combining them with the memory and experience of the door pusher in real life, one would realize that the layer of absurdity often hid a deeply wounded heart. To persuade Miss Dress, Chen Ge volunteered all his analysis.

“If you do not believe me, you can bring me to see Ah Tong and Ah Ying. The combination of these three children’s experiences will be the injuries and traumas that Ying Tong has once experienced.”

“I still do not quite understand it,” Miss Dress said. “Ah Mu is a living individual. He is a complete and separate existence. How could a person represent a part of a memory from Ying Tong’s childhood?”

As an original tenant of the world behind the door, Miss Dress herself was made from memory. The purpose of her existence was to look after Ying Tong, to accompany Ying Tong, and to be his friend.

“You will get the answer to this question after you find Ying Tong. Even though his face is ruined and he is blind, he should have no problem communicating with others.” Chen Ge paused. “Neither of you have been given a chance to seriously listen to what the boy has to say. The strange mumblings that you heard might be the boy’s cries for help. The tragedies keep on repeating, but unfortunately, all of you have been tricked by Ying Chen. The kindness and passion are a disguise that is put on by the b*stard. His real persona is something that will disgust all of you.”

All the tenants inside the building believed that Ying Chen was the second coming of Jesus, and they thought that Ying Tong was just a burden that he had to carry. In reality, though, this was an illusion that Ying Chen had been trying to perpetuate. It was because they believed in this lie that most of the tenants in the building had been turned to dead bodies.

“I do not expect you to believe me fully without further evidence, but I ask that you give me a chance to prove myself.” Chen Ge pleaded with the most sincerity he could muster. He was out of ideas. Ying Tong’s door was the most difficult door that he had ever experienced. He had to grab any chance that came his way; that was the only way he could find the path to survival amid the many traps that would lead to his death.

The room became silent. After a long time, Miss Dress opened her lips to speak. “But how do you intend to prove what you said? You want me to help you find Ying Tong?”

“Or at least do not tell Ying Chen of my presence before Ying Tong is found. Other than that, you have to take good care of yourself.” The tenants inside the building all treated Ying Chen as a good neighbor, but in Ying Chen’s eyes, they were merely puppets on the stage. Once he tired of them, he would not hesitate to remove them from the stage.

“Okay, before Ying Tong is found, I promise to help you keep your secret. But after Ying Tong is found and what you just said is proven false, I will not hesitate to hand you over to Ying Chen.”

“That is a fair deal. I will accept it.” After getting the confirmed answer from the woman, Chen Ge sighed in relief. He leaned against the wall for support. “Ever since Ah Mu came to live with you, has he not left the room even once?”

“Yes, ever since Ying Chen dropped Ah Mu off with me, the latter has not moved one step away from his room.”

“Is this one of the orders given to you by Ying Chen as well?”

“Yes, he is worried that Ah Mu might be injured.” Miss Dress had no idea what Chen Ge was planning, but she told him all she knew.

“Ah Mu suffers from aichmophobia. It is understandable that he has been asked to stay inside the room, but what about Ah Tong and Ah Ying? As you told me earlier, Ah Tong suffers from serious claustrophobia. How could one trap a child like that inside a small room and not allow him to leave? Imprisoning a child with claustrophobia inside a room will cause his condition to deteriorate—is that really the best solution to help the boy?” Chen Ge cut straight to the point. The woman thought about it and suddenly realized that Chen Ge was not wrong there.

“It was not really for Ah Mu’s real good that Ying Chen did not want him to leave the room. Only by hiding him away would he not be found by Ying Tong.” Chen Ge used his hands to search around for a long time before he found a chair. He took a seat. “Ah Mu should be a part of Ying Tong. I suspect once Ying Tong finds Ah Mu, his body will somehow change.”

Ying Tong did not dare open his eyes because he had to disguise himself as a blind man, or else he would die. He would be poked blind, and thus, the existence of Ah Mu was born. If the Ying Tong behind the door was reunited with Ah Mu, perhaps Ying Tong might recover part of his sight. As an outsider, Chen Ge should be living through the most traumatic events that had happened to Ying Tong. If Ying Tong’s condition turned for the better, he would have plenty to gain from it as well.

“When the boy pushed me down the stairs, I noticed a problem. They did not call me a blind man. They were just curious about why I’ve been keeping my eyes closed. At that moment, it crossed my mind that I may not be blind. Who would have known I was so close to the truth? There is a very high chance that Ying Tong is not completely blind. He simply does not have the courage to open his eyes. I must try my best to help Ying Tong walk out from his fugue of despair and make him try to open his eyes.”

Chen Ge’s voice was determined and confident. He had never been so desperate to help someone. Only by walking in one’s shoes would one be able to experience what said person had lived through, and that was why Chen Ge was able to empathize with Ying Tong so deeply. He had to walk out of this door alive to save Ying Tong in real life and deliver the necessary punishment and judgement to Ying Chen. It was what they deserved.

Chen Ge's voice was filled with gentleness but also a font of strength. It carried with it a determination that would not waver in the face of adversity. That helped improve the woman's impression of him greatly. It was why she said, "I will first bring you to meet Mr. Wood, but he is not as easily persuadable as I am. He is one hell of a stubborn person, just like his name suggests."

"Thank you so much."

"There is no need to thank me. I am merely curious about what you have said." When she was still alive, Miss Dress had probably been a young woman with a sparkling personality. She opened the front door and held Chen Ge gently by his elbow. "Mr. Wood lives on Tuesday. We will have to go up a floor."

"Lives on Tuesday?" Chen Ge stopped moving. "What do you mean by that?"

"I suppose you can see it as the second floor. The ground floor is Monday, and the second floor is Tuesday. The seven floors correspond to the seven days of the week." Miss Dress did not elaborate further on this strange naming system. Chen Ge wanted to ask her more about it, but he was already being dragged away by Miss Dress into the stairwell.

The floors are named according to the days of the week, and the day itself might represent the day the tenant died.

Chen Ge could feel the chilling wind blow from any corners. He felt very unsafe and exposed. "Miss Dress, can you promise me one thing?"

"What is it?"

"If there is an accident, I will give you the direction to run in. I will need you to take me and run in that direction without asking any question and without making any noise."

"Okay."

Perhaps Ying Chen was still dealing with the middle-aged man's body—Chen Ge and Miss Dress did not run into him. The two successfully reached the third room from the left side stairs on the second floor.

Knocking lightly on the door, Miss Dress called Ah Tong's name softly, and then the door was soon opened.

"Weren't you here not too long ago to take the medicine? Why are you here again?" The person who spoke sounded like a middle-aged man. His tone was even, as if he could not bring himself to be interested in anything.

"I have something that I need to ask you." Miss Dress helped Chen Ge step into the room.

"Who is this? A blind person?"

"He just told me a story. I think it's quite interesting. I thought you'd like to hear it as well." Miss Dress had Chen Ge sit on the couch while Chen Ge was more concerned about whether they had closed the front door or not.

"Can I also hear the story?" Another voice came out from the room. The voice was about eighty percent similar to Ying Tong. Based purely on the voices, Ah Mu sounded like a kid about four years old, and the owner of this voice should be around seven or eight. The voice had lost its naivete, and it sounded softer in nature.

"Are you Ah Tong?" Chen Ge turned toward the source of the voice. Of course, all he could see was a screen of darkness, nothing else.

"Yes, do you know me?"

"Not only do I know you, I also know your mother and father," Chen Ge said with a smile in his voice. "I need to discuss something with Miss Dress and Mr. Wood. Do you mind going back to your room for now?"

"Okay." The boy was very obedient. Chen Ge paid close attention to the sound of the footsteps. After the boy walked away, Chen Ge whispered to Miss Dress, "Do you mind closing the door to his room? I do not think it is wise for him to hear what we are going to discuss."

"I am sorry, but I cannot do that. The child suffers from claustrophobia. To help with his condition, I have removed all the doors in the house. The only door that remains is the front door." Mr. Wood did not have a good attitude toward Chen Ge. He felt like he was a scam artist.

"That's fine then. There is nothing we can do about it."

Chen Ge repeated what he had told Miss Dress earlier to Mr. Wood.

After hearing everything Chen Ge had to say, Mr. Wood did not reply immediately. He was deep in thought for a long time. In the end, it was Ah Tong who ran out from his room. The boy had also heard what Chen Ge had to say. He pitied Ying Tong in the story, and he instinctually begged Mr. Wood to help Ying Tong.

“I still cannot trust you fully. What you hear can be false, and nothing is more trustworthy than what you see.” Even though Mr. Wood was a nice person, he could be ridiculously stubborn. Miss Dress’ earlier warning was not unfounded.

“What you can see with your eyes might be a front that someone purposely constructed to show you. His actual personality has already decayed and corrupted under his shining exterior.” To convince Mr. Wood, Chen Ge revealed another secret. “There is a middle-aged man living on the fourth floor. Ying Chen should have just killed him. The reason I can wander around the building so freely at the moment is because I know he is currently busy dealing with the dead body on the fourth floor.”

“I still think that is impossible unless you let me see the carcass with my eyes.”

“There is a headless body hidden under Ying Chen’s bed in his bedroom. If you do not believe me, you can go and see it for yourself, but I would advise you not to do so. Once you see the body, the next person that Ying Chen will target is you.”

Chen Ge must try his best to fight to gain Mr. Wood’s trust. If the man did not listen to him, there was a great chance that he would expose Chen Ge’s location to Ying Chen, and the situation would go seriously out of control. Chen Ge did not look like he was lying, and with Ah Tong putting in some good words for him, Mr. Wood eventually decided to compromise and temporarily placed his trust in Chen Ge, agreeing to help him find Ying Tong.

“No matter what, do not tell Ying Chen of my existence, and do not bring up the fact that we are trying to help Ying Tong. You guys have to try to act normal and give Ying Chen the illusion that the whole world is still isolating Ying Tong. Only then will we be able to survive.”

After leaving the facts, Chen Ge prepared to leave. He was in the hurry to find Miss Red.

“Ah Tong and Ah Mu are just like normal kids when they are not acting up. If anything, I feel like they are cuter and more obedient than normal children their age.” Chen Ge sighed under his breath, and then with Miss Dress holding him, he walked into the left staircase. “Which floor is Miss Red staying on?”

“Saturday.”

“The sixth floor?” Chen Ge frowned for the umpteenth time behind this door already. “Ying Chen might be still on the fourth floor dealing with the body. To get to the sixth floor, we will need to pass the fourth door. It will all be over if we are discovered by him. And sixth floor is very close to the seventh floor.”

His heart was beating wildly. Chen Ge felt like he was walking on a tightrope dangled between two cliffs. He moved up the steps, and Chen Ge and Miss Dress soon arrived on the third floor. When they were about to move toward the fourth floor, a wisp of a cat’s meow suddenly rang out.

“Stop moving!” Chen Ge grabbed at Miss Dress. “Ying Chen is on the fourth floor.”

“How do you know that?” Miss Dress whispered to ask, but Chen Ge did not answer. He held his breath and tried to focus on the direction of the cats. But strangely enough the calls of the cats did not grow louder or weaker. It felt like Ying Chen was standing at the same spot and had not moved.

“What is he up to?” Chen Ge leaned against the wall. “Is he hiding in a room, armed with the murder weapon, and waiting to jump those who walk past?”

Chen Ge signaled for Miss Dress to keep quiet. He climbed up to the fourth floor carefully. The cat’s calls still had not changed.

“Could the b*stard have perceived the fact that I have the ability to predict his location, and he is currently conducting some kind of experiment?”

The more he thought about it, the more unsettled he felt. Chen Ge pointed to the fourth floor. “Miss Dress, do you mind helping me see if Ying Chen is standing in the fourth-floor corridor?”

“No, the corridor is empty.”

“Okay, then we will hurry to the sixth floor.” Chen Ge pointed above them. He did not dare stay there for too long. For now, the plan was to reach Miss Red on the sixth floor and talk to her.

Chapter 1060 - Blind Man with Light [2 in 1]

Chapter 1060: Blind Man with Light [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Ying Chen should not be in the fourth-floor corridor and expose himself to the public. He’ll be hiding in one of the rooms and probably waiting for people to go by. He is a predator waiting for his prey. The man does not operate like a normal person, and his way of thinking is cruel and unusual. I must be more careful. I need to be as cautious as possible.”

Chen Ge did not know if Ying Chen had managed to get any information about him from the middle-aged man, but it was not the time to care about small things like that. Since Ying Chen had not made his move, Chen Ge wanted to meet up with Miss Red as soon as possible and get as many allies as he could.

...

With Miss Dress leading the way, Chen Ge came to the landing between the fourth floor and fifth floor. A light stench lingered in the air, and Chen Ge felt his shoes stepping on puddles of what seemed to be water.

“Why did we suddenly stop?” Chen Ge asked softly. He was on the way of moving up when he realized that Miss Dress, who had been holding him by his arm, had suddenly stopped. Unable to see anything, when he sensed this anomalous behavior from Miss Dress, his heart started to race immediately.

Moments later, he heard a girl’s singing. It sounded like it came from a broken music box. It sang intermittently, and the tone was one that was impossibly weird to describe.

“Is someone coming? Then we must rush to the fifth floor now. We must not stay here any longer!” Chen Ge had a very bad feeling. He could sense that the singing came from the fifth floor, and he was afraid that the sound would attract Ying Chen’s attention.

“There was someone who just went past the fifth floor, but the person made no sound at all when they were moving,” Miss Dress said in a baffled tone. "Or did I see it wrong?"

"Wait a minute! A music box? A girl's singing? A person who moves without making a sound? It was not Ying Tong that you saw, right?" Chen Ge knew that in real life, Ying Chen had a broken music box sitting on the table in his bedroom.

"Should we chase after that person to find out?" the woman asked.

"No, that is too risky, and this whole thing feels so fishy." Chen Ge's grip on the strap of his backpack tightened. "If I were Ying Tong, I would not purposely make the sound come out from the music box if I was attempting to escape. Isn't that a surefire way to expose my own location? Why would I do something like that?"

"Perhaps he accidentally bumped against it and caused the music box to start playing?"

"I have been to Ying Chen's house before. At the time, the music box was placed inside Ying Tong's bedroom. Assuming Ying Tong has not returned home, then it is definitely not Ying Tong who is in possession of the music box now!" Chen Ge was sweating cold sweat already. "There is someone else in the building who is helping Ying Chen! It is this person who is holding the music box and walking around to distract our attention! The b*stard has probably already guessed that someone else is searching and trying to help Ying Tong!"

Ying Chen was very clever, but Chen Ge was a very astute person as well. Both parties were able to find out the problem from the smallest details.

"Do you know anyone who has a very good relationship with Ying Chen in this building? The kind of person that Ying Chen would be able to trust unconditionally?"

"There are many tenants who have a good relationship with Ying Chen, but if you have to pinpoint those who love Ying Chen unconditionally, it should be the children. Ying Chen is very welcomed among the group of children, and they are very willing to play with him."

"Ying Chen is good friends with all of the children in the building?"

"Yes, Ying Chen has a good personality, and he likes to play with the children. Occasionally, he even buys sweets and toys for them."

“Did the person who went past earlier look like a child to you?”

“Now that you mention it, perhaps it was. The person was very small, and they moved without making a sound. They were so quick and silent that I thought I was mistaken.” The woman gave a long sigh. She too was slowly discovering that the building that night was rather different from a normal day. “Are we still going to the sixth floor?”

“Of course, but we have to be extra careful when we go past the fifth floor. Pay attention to the corridor and see if there are people there.” Chen Ge bent down to touch the puddle on the ground. “The puddles are drying up. They do not appear to be something purposely left behind by Ying Chen for us to step into so that we would leave behind a trail of footprints.”

“Now you are just being too cautious. The water is probably there because Auntie Wu just cleaned the building.”

“How can you be sure that it was Auntie Wu who just cleaned this place?” Chen Ge heard another new name from the woman’s lips—Auntie Wu.

“She is our building’s cleaner. She is a very responsible worker. She cleans the entire building every morning and night,” Miss Dress explained and tossed out this question casually. “You don’t suspect that it was Auntie Wu who is helping Ying Chen, right?”

Chen Ge did not reply because he was thinking about something else. Even though the building that Ying Chen and Ying Tong were living in was extremely poor and dilapidated, many years ago, this had been the richest apartment in the old city. This was viewable from the fact that this building was one of the earliest apartments to be fitted with an elevator.

Having a special cleaner to take care of the building’s sanitary work was nothing big, but the issue was that this Auntie Wu had appeared in the world behind Ying Tong’s door. Perhaps this cleaner had already been killed Ying Chen in real life, just like Miss Dress and Mr. Wood. But on the other hand, there was a different possibility. This Auntie Wu might have done something traumatic toward Ying Tong and thus carved her existence into his mind. Many different speculations appeared in Chen Ge’s mind. Auntie Wu might have helped Ying Tong mount his escape before, or it could be Auntie Wu who leaked Ying Tong’s escape to Ying Chen every time.

“How is the relationship between this Auntie Wu and Ying Chen?”

“Like a cat and dog. Auntie Wu always gets into arguments with Ying Chen. She does not like cats, and she feels that by bringing back all these dirty and unkept strays from the wild, Ying Chen is purposely adding to her workload.

“Oh right, one time when I was chatting with her in private, Auntie Wu mentioned that she smelt a sour smell from Ying Chen’s body. It smelt like cat’s meat that had been left out to decay for too long.”

Chen Ge’s brain was moving quickly to piece the puzzle together. He connected all the known information together. “This place has just been cleaned, and that proves that Auntie Wu was here earlier. Right after that, it was followed by that small shadow who was holding the music box. The music box originated from Ying Chen’s house. I believe it was Ying Chen who tasked that small person with using the music box to test Auntie Wu, and that is because Ying Chen suspects that it was Auntie Wu who had sneaked into his home!”

“Even though I do not quite understand what you are saying, from the way you said it, it does sound reasonable.” Miss Dress realized that Chen Ge had a way with words, and he was able to convince people to see his perspective quite easily.

“Ying Chen should not have known about my existence, so it is totally normal for him to suspect Auntie Wu.” The world behind the door was made from Ying Tong’s memory. The rules of the way this world operated were thus based on Ying Tong’s memory. If Ying Tong wanted to escape, the only tools he had access to were the people and things from his memory. However, Chen Ge had entered his world behind the door, and he became the only extenuating factor. While the two were exchanging information, they had reached the fifth floor. The floor was quite wet; Auntie Wu had probably just cleaned this area.

“There is no one in the fifth-floor corridor. Should we go up to the sixth floor now?”

“There is no need to hurry. Can you tell me if there are any footprints on the ground? Try to be as careful as you can.” Chen Ge leaned against the wall. By now, he had basically gotten used to the darkness, and he was slowly able to overcome the discomfort that came from his physical disability.

“Footprints?” The woman released the hold on Chen Ge’s elbow. She sounded like she had walked deeper down the corridor. “There really are footprints here!”

“Shush, do not make such a loud noise. How many types of footprints are there on the ground?”

“This first set of footprints should belong to Auntie Wu. She likes to wear cotton slippers. The other set of footprints has been left behind by a pair of sneakers, so they probably belong to one of the children in the building.”

“Looks like our guess was not that far from the truth. Now try and see what direction the tips of the footprints are pointing in, and that will help us determine the direction that they were coming from and the direction that they had headed to.” Chen Ge was unable to see, so he could only rely on the help from Miss Dress.

“Auntie Wu left behind more footprints. She seems to have lingered for quite some time at the door to the cleaning closet. She was likely there to grab her cleaning equipment. The other sneaker footprints have been going straight. It feels like the owner of the footprints has been trailing behind Auntie Wu,” the woman said. “Currently, there is no one at all on the fifth floor. Is it possible that they have all gone up to the sixth floor?”

“Auntie Wu lingered around the cleaning closet? Normally, isn’t the storeroom prepared for the cleaning services located on the ground floor? Wouldn’t it be extremely inconvenient for Auntie Wu if her supply room is placed on the fifth floor?” Chen Ge thought back to his visit to Ying Chen’s house in real life. He could not remember encountering a cleaning closet on the fifth floor.

“When the architect designed this building, they planned to have a cleaning supply room on every floor, but it is more of a place for the cleaners to store their equipment. It works in an emergency as well. Other than the daily cleaning supplies, it is also where the fire extinguisher and ropes are stored.”

“That sounds reasonable, but why would Auntie Wu linger around this particular cleaning closet on this floor?” Chen Ge grabbed Miss Dress by her elbow. “Is the closet locked?”

“No.”

“Go and open the door. I suspect Auntie Wu might have hidden something inside the closet.”

The woman led Chen Ge and walked to the side of the cleaning closet. She gave the door a light tug. “Hmm?”

“What’s wrong?”

“It cannot be opened. It feels like something is stuck against the door on the other side.”

“It is not locked, but it cannot be opened, huh?” Chen Ge was suddenly reminded of something. He leaned toward the door and softly whispered, “Ying Tong? Are you inside there? I know your elder brother is a crazy murderer who likes to torture cats. I am here to help you escape this building!”

“What are you mumbling about at the air?” Just as Miss Dress said that, a click suddenly came from inside the cleaning closet. It sounded like someone had removed the item that had blocked the inside of the closet door. “Who’s in there?”

Opening the door, Miss Dress sucked in a cold breath.

“What did you see? Say something! Don’t just stand there,” Chen Ge urged in the smallest voice he could manage.

“Ying... Ying Tong is inside the closet! Why is he hiding here?” The woman was shocked and that caused the volume of her voice to rise.

“Ying Tong?” Even though Chen Ge had already mentally prepared himself and knew that Ying Tong would be hiding somewhere in this building, he did not expect to encounter him so early in his journey. “Looks like I am quite lucky this time.”

“Who... are you guys? Was it Auntie Wu who told you I am hiding inside the closet?” Ying Tong’s voice sounded rather dull, like that of a robot. It was devoid of any human emotions.

“I am here to help you escape. I know the type of person your elder brother really is. I guarantee that he will receive his due punishment.” Chen Ge took one step forward. His hand touched Ying Tong’s shoulder. He used his fingers to lightly caress Ying Tong’s face, and the tip of his fingers ran over the uneven surfaces that were from the many different wounds.

“I look like a monster, don’t I?” Ying Tong’s voice came from before Chen Ge.

"I'm blind. I cannot see your appearance, but I know that you have a strong and kind heart. More than that, you also have a very clever and calm mind."

If a normal child was placed in Ying Tong's position, they would have gone insane already, but that did not happen to Ying Tong. He had been trying to find an opening to escape, and even after so many failures, he had not given up. Even though the siblings' personalities could not have been more different, they were both incredibly clever, and in a way, both of them would grow up to become incredibly awe-inspiring individuals but for different reasons.

Chen Ge memorized Ying Tong's appearance. To gain Ying Tong's trust, he held Ying Tong's hands and placed them over his face. "My name is Chen Ge, and from now on, you are not alone. No matter the result, I will always be by your side."

No one had told Ying Tong these words before. That Auntie Wu should be helping Ying Tong in the dark, but she too did not dare give Ying Tong any promises. When Chen Ge was feeling Ying Tong's face, he brushed against something Ying Tong was holding. The boy was carrying a big bag with him. Inside it was something in the shape of a ball and a stick-like object that appeared to be a flashlight.

"What is inside that bag of yours?"

"Auntie Wu did not believe me initially, so I had to take something to show her for her to believe me."

"What is it?"

"A football that my elder brother made."

A rustling sound came from the small room. Ying Tong opened the bag, and Miss Dress peered to look into the bag out of curiosity.

"Ah! A human head!" Fear overwhelmed her heart. Miss Dress was stunned in that moment, and she forgot that she needed to keep her voice down.

"Shush, we need to be quiet! We cannot stay here any longer! We need to get to the sixth floor so that Ying Tong can meet up with Ah Ying!" Chen Ge's hypothesis would be proven when Ying Tong met Ah Ying. Now he could not wait for them to reunite. Miss Dress held Chen Ge and Ying Tong with each hand. The trio reentered the stairwell, but when they reached the landing between the fifth and sixth floor, the old elevator in the building suddenly started to move and make its horrible sound.

“The elevator is moving! Someone is using the elevator to come up the floors! Is it because Ying Chen heard our voices?” Miss Dress’ earlier gasp when she found out about the human head was rather loud, so Chen Ge was quite worried about that. He stopped moving, and his expression turned dark. The elevator stopped at the fifth floor, and immediately following it was the weak meowing of cats.

“It is Ying Chen!” The cat’s call did not increase in volume immediately, which meant that Ying Chen had stayed close to the elevator, but it was certain that the man was now on the fifth floor.

“We need to move.” Since the group had gotten so big, their movement would be much louder. However, Chen Ge was devoid of a better idea other than to stay as far away from Ying Chen as possible.

“We will go to Miss Red’s place first and hope that she will open her place up for us to hide in!”

The sound of the cat had not changed. Miss Dress led Chen Ge and Ying Tong up to the sixth floor, and they stopped before Miss Red’s door.

“Do not knock. It will make too loud of a noise. Give her a call or a text message, and tell her to open the door.”

“But I didn’t bring my phone with me.”

When the two spoke, the sound of a girl singing came from the other side of the staircase. The person holding the broken music box was coming up the stairs!

The cats would warn Chen Ge of Ying Chen, but they would not warn him of other people. Ying Chen had found help from the tenants inside the building. This was a very bad development for Chen Ge, who was unable to see anything.

“What should we do now?”

They were running out of time and options. Knocking would have a fifty percent chance of attracting Ying Chen’s attention. If Miss Red took her time to open the door, they would be captured, and Ying Chen’s helper was closing in from the other side.

“We will retreat to the left stairwell for now.” The plan had to be changed. As Chen Ge’s group was moving toward the left staircase, suddenly the cats started to growl and howl. The distance between Ying Chen and them was closing.

“The man has heard our movement!” Chen Ge gritted his teeth. He realized that Ying Chen was very hard to deal with. Earlier, he had been tricked before, so this time, he had found another person to go up the stairs with him. Each taking one side of the stairs, they would be able to corner the people in the corridor!

The cat’s meowing drilled into his ears, and the meowing was becoming more shrill and twisted. The three of them stood at the mouth of the staircase, and Ying Chen was probably heading up the stairs.

“It was me who made the noise, so he’ll be looking for me. The two of you should go and hide on the seventh floor. I will stay to delay Ying Chen as long as I can.” Miss Dress volunteered to walk down the fifth-floor corridor. Chen Ge grabbed Ying Tong by his hand and led him up toward the stairwell, but they were moving silently up to the seventh floor.

Chapter 1061 - The Story of Light [2 in 1]

Chapter 1061: The Story of Light [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The shrill calls of cats drilled into his ears. Chen Ge's hands that held Ying Tong were already covered in cold sweat. He still could not see anything, but he knew that Ying Chen had already entered the corridor, and the distance between them was drawing ever closer.

"Ying Chen? Don't you normally use the elevator? Why would you be using the stairs today? Are you doing some kind of exercise?" Miss Dress' voice came from the sixth-floor corridor. Perhaps the shock from seeing the human head had not passed—her voice was still trembling slightly.

...

"I believed that I heard someone talking in the corridor earlier, so I came up to look. By the way, why are you here?" Ying Chen's voice came from the corner of the stairwell. Currently, there was a less than five meters between Chen Ge as well as Ying Tong and Ying Chen. If he took another few steps forward, he would be able to see Chen Ge, who was leaning closely against the wall.

"I have run out of Ah Mu's medicine, so I came up here to ask Miss Red if she has any extra." Miss Dress had slowly calmed down by then. The excuse that she gave was very convincing.

"Oh, you are here to get more medicine?" Ying Chen's voice had a lilt of relief. In fact, there was now an undercurrent of mirth in it. "It must have been difficult to look after Ah Mu, but soon, the responsibility will be taken off your hands. I have already contacted the related organization, and they will all be sent away in a few days."

"You are going to send Ah Mu away?" Miss Dress' voice betrayed her nervousness. After knowing the real Ying Chen that was hiding the mask of kindness, she could not face him like she usually did.

"Yes, I can't just expect you all to help me look after those children for nothing, right?" Ying Chen's voice echoed down the corridor. It sounded like he had walked right up to Miss Red. "After all, the reason the children ended up that way...”

Ying Chen’s voice became lower and lower. Even Miss Dress had a hard time hearing him. “Sorry, what did you say?”

“I said, after all, the reason the children ended up that way...” Ying Chen sounded like he had sidled up close to Miss Dress. “... is all because of me!”

Bang!

Miss Dress’ body slammed heavily into the wall. The sound of muffled screams came from the corridor. Ying Chen probably covered her mouth with her hands.

“Shh, be quiet. Don’t panic. I will not cut your neck here. We do not want to ruin your beautiful face, do we?” Ying Chen’s voice echoed in the corridor. Like usual, the tone of his voice was like a draft of spring breeze. It brought comfort and trust. It sounded like he was playing with a bunch of kids. “When I was downstairs, I believe I heard you mention a human head. You do not need to answer. I only need you to nod or shake your head. That’s all. I am sure you can do that for me, right?”

“You did not say that?”

“If you continue to act like this, I do not think I will like you anymore. You know what? I have always admired your honesty, just like you have always adored my passion and selflessness.

“I will ask you again. Did you mention a ‘human head’ earlier or not?”

“Ah ha. So you did. Since you have mentioned that word, it can only mean that my little brother is nearby. Is he hiding upstairs, hiding behind one of the doors, or hiding inside the cleaning closet?”

“Am I pressing too hard? Your bulging eyes appear to have subconsciously glanced upward?”

“Do not worry. I will not go and hunt him for now. Do you know how many times I have imagined squeezing your neck like this? The burly arms strangling such a soft and graceful neck. The fingers pressing on your pulse, as they slowly constrict to crush your windpipe. The joy is watching the change in your expression. How could I leave during such a glorious moment? You are like a graceful cat. No, you will become the most beautiful cat that I have ever gotten the pleasure to adopt.”

The voices slowly died down in the corridor. By then, Chen Ge and Ying Tong had arrived at the seventh floor.

“Every floor is named according to the day of the week. The whole building is a recurring nightmare that you can’t escape from. But this also means that I can probably get back to the first floor from the seventh floor.” Miss Dress’ room was on the first floor, and Ah Mu was still inside her room.

“Ying Chen knew that Miss Dress had seen Ying Tong, so he will not allow Ah Mu to continue staying in Miss Dress’ room. He will go to get Ah Mu sooner or later. Now I have two choices. The first is to enter Miss Dress’ room to find Ah Mu before Ying Chen can, but there are two risks to this plan. First, Ah Mu might open the door for me, and the knocking might raise the risk even higher. The second is that after I enter Miss Dress’ room, Ying Chen might choose to wait outside the corridor for me to continue—the tiger waiting under the tree for the rabbit to come out of its hole.”

Time was ticking, and Chen Ge did not have much time to spend on thinking. Ying Chen could move soundlessly, but the call of the cats was continuously echoing in his eyes. That meant that the distance between them and Ying Chen had not changed.

“If Ying Chen is allowed to take Ah Mu away, it will be incredibly difficult to find Ah Mu again. Ying Chen might even directly kill Ah Mu! If he does that, Ying Tong will lose a part of his memory permanently. If that causes Ying Tong to be unable to open his eyes forever behind the door, that will be the worst case possible.” Chen Ge held Ying Tong’s hand and continued to move forward, but he suddenly felt some resistance from Ying Tong. The latter did not seem to want to move further anymore. “Ying Tong? Why have you stopped? Let’s go.”

“I think it is better if we split up. Those who wish to help me have all died, I...”

“No matter what, do not stop moving.” Chen Ge did not wish to get into an argument with Ying Tong at that moment. He lowered his voice and dragged Ying Tong by his arm along the seventh-floor corridor.

Climbing up the stairs that should not have existed in the first place, Chen Ge found his way back to Miss Dress’ room based on the memory that had imprinted in his mind. He knocked lightly on the door. As the knocking travelled down the corridor, so did the sound of the cat's meowing. Other than the sound of the cats, Chen Ge heard a different sound underneath the cacophony. It sounded as if something heavy like a body was being dragged on the ground.

"Ah Mu? Are you in? Would you please come and open the door? Please open the door, Ah Mu!" Chen Ge was so desperate that his forehead was covered in sweat. The cats' wailing stretched his nerves thin. It caused Chen Ge's heart to race. The sound of knocking sounded extra loud and hollow in his ears. At that moment, he no longer worried about being exposed. Since he had made the choice, he had to suffer the consequences of making that choice. In this building, the consequences of making the wrong choice would be death.

"Ah Mu! Ah Mu!" The sound of pattering footsteps came from inside the room. At the same time, the sound of a heavy object being dragged disappeared, and in its place was a shriller and sharper meowing of the cats!

Ying Chen had abandoned the body and was running their way at full speed!

"Ah Mu!"

The door lock clicked open. The moment Chen Ge heard that, he pushed the door open, and dragged Ying Tong into the room by his arm. He did not dare to allow himself even a second of hesitation. He practically fell into the room. After he walked over the threshold, he slammed his body into the door and closed it. He found the lock and quickly gave it a twist!

"Do not speak! Try to not make any noise!" With his back leaning against the door, Chen Ge slid down to the floor with his arms hugging his backpack tightly. In the darkness, the sounds of the cats being slaughtered echoed in his ears. It came closer and closer until it stopped right outside the door.

Dong! Dong! Dong!

With every single knock on the door, Chen Ge's heart skipped a beat. With his back against the wall, the sweat could not stop falling. At that moment, Chen Ge was suddenly reminded of something that made his whole body freeze with dread.

Ying Chen has killed Miss Dress! And Miss Dress might have the key to this room on her body!

One could not account for everything. In such dire circumstances, even Chen Ge could not have predicted everything. After he entered this door, his nerves had been in a very tense state. The death of Miss Dress had only made his already frayed nerves even more stressed.

Calm down, Chen Ge! Miss Dress did not even take her phone with her, so she might not have taken the room key with her as well. After all, we left in such a hurry.

Chen Ge had spent quite some time with Miss Dress. In his mind, Miss Dress was someone who would not mind the details that much. Furthermore, Ah Mu was unable to leave the house. Knowing that someone would always be at home, there was a very high chance that she would not carry her keys along with her. The sound of door knocking was mixed together with the cats' meows. Chen Ge's heart raced. He had not felt so desperate and despaired in such a long time. He did not dare breathe too loudly, and time dripped past.

Half a minute later, the knocking finally stopped, but the cats had not stopped meowing. Ying Chen was still waiting outside the door. He was probably standing to the side, where the peephole was unable to see. He knew how to select a blind spot to hide himself. Chen Ge waited for another half an hour before the cats' meowing slowly faded away.

"Cunning, cruel, and extremely patient, this b*stard sure is a piece of work." Chen Ge did not waste any time. He still guarded the door by using his back to press against it as hard as he could.

"Ying Chen will definitely return. When he heard the sound of the door knocking, he rushed over here as fast as possible. That was the loudest the cats have been so far. But the sound of the heavy object being dragged stopped. This prove that he temporarily dropped Miss Dress, who was holding him back, and chose to come after me first. He has probably gone back to Miss Dress' body to search for the key.

"The sound of the heavy object being dragged stopped at the seventh-floor corridor. He'll need at most ten seconds to make this return trip. The period of time is too short for me to take Ying Tong and Ah Mu to escape with me. The only choice I have is to continue staying inside this room and hope that Miss Dress did not carry the key with her."

Standing up, Chen Ge stumbled his way through the living room. With his hands on the back of the sofa, he tried his best to nudge the sofa to block at the door.

“Ah Mu, come and help me see if the sofa is correctly blocking against the door?” Chen Ge could not see anything, so he had no choice but to ask Ah Mu for help.

“It has blocked the door, yes, but how is Miss Dress going to get in?”

“Did Miss Dress take the key with her when she left the room earlier?”

“I don’t know, but I believe she did.”

Ah Mu’s reply chilled Chen Ge’s heart. After using the sofa to fortify the door, he found the broom to angle it against the door lock.

“The two of you need to stay as far away from the door as you can. Ah Mu, can you go grab Miss Dress’ phone for me?”

“Okay.” Ah Mu had just given his promise when the cats started to meow again. The worst thing was other than the sound of the cats, there came the singing of the girl from the music box.

“Ying Chen and his helper are both outside the door!” The key slithered into the lock. The spring unlocked, and the smallest of clicks caused Chen Ge’s neck to be covered in goosebumps. With another click, the door was opened!

But when the man tried to give the door a push, he realized that the door was unwilling to budge. The door rattled violently. Chen Ge stood on the other end of the sofa and used the entire weight of his body to press against the sofa.

“Is that Miss Dress? Has she returned?” Ah Mu’s voice was shaking because the action of the person outside the door was very harsh and completely unlike Miss Dress.

“It is Ying Chen. He’s the one who put you in your current state,” Chen Ge whispered back.

“Ying Chen? But all the adults around me told me that it was him who took care of me. It was him who first found me. Without him, I would be dead already.”

“From your understanding of the word death, it is clear that something is wrong. Ah Mu, you have forgotten many things. Perhaps you should have a little chat with Ying Tong,” Chen Ge suggested in a small voice. Actually, he was quite interested in hearing the description of Ying Chen from Ying Tong's lips. What kind of elder brother was Ying Chen?

The door rattled for a long time, but with Chen Ge giving it his all, the other party failed to get into the room. Through the door, the cats kept up their calls. The wailing kept getting more and more desperate.

Amid the din, there was a man's very soft voice saying, "It took less than a minute to find the key and get back here. In that time, someone set up a blockade on the other side of the door. Whether it was the ability to make such snap decision in such a short moment or the ability to move big objects, Ying Tong is unable to do either. Other than that woman, there is another adult helping him in this building."

With the power of Ghost Ear, Chen Ge's senses were sharper than normal. After losing his sight, his other senses seemed to have gained even more improvement, so even though the man was supposed to be whispering, Chen Ge managed to hear almost everything.

"Why would someone help that horrible kid?" another voice asked. Chen Ge had heard this voice before. It was that kid who pushed him down the stairs earlier.

"Perhaps the person has been tricked by Ying Tong. As you know, Ying Tong is a very horrible kid who likes to lie." Ying Chen continued to ply his lies. "I will stay here, and I need you to get up to Room 204 on the second floor to check."

The sound of the music box disappeared, but the sound of the cats was still there. Ying Chen's helper had already left, but Ying Chen himself was still waiting outside the door. He was indeed a very patient 'hunter'.

When Chen Ge heard the conversation outside the door, he whispered for Ah Mu to get him Miss Dress' phone and asked him to call Mr. Wood's number. Once the call was connected, Chen Ge cut to the chase. "Do not speak. Just listen to me. Ying Chen has killed Miss Dress. He has currently trapped me, Ah Mu, and Ying Tong inside her room. His next target will be you or Miss Red. In a minute, someone will go to your door to check on you. I suggest you go and wait at the peephole. But do not open your door under any circumstances. That kid is Ying Chen's ally."

After hearing what Chen Ge had to say, Mr. Wood's breathing had an obvious change. He had a hard time accepting that Ying Chen had murdered Miss Dress.

"I have not had any interaction with Miss Red before, so I will need your help to call Miss Red for me and inform her about this. And tell her not to leave her room no matter what and not to open her door for anymore. The last thing I want to say is to carry your phone with you at all times. Only by working together will all of us be able to survive. I beg you to please trust me on this!"

The other side of the phone was silent for a long time before Mr. Wood replied, "Understood."

Everything fell silent, but Chen Ge understood that the danger had not passed. He returned the phone to Ah Mu, and only then did he realize that neither Ah Mu nor Ying Tong had said anything. "Ying Tong, why don't you tell us about your brother? Tell us everything you know about him."

The living room was very quiet; Ying Tong had not spoken a word.

"Are you worried about something?" Chen Ge said in a comforting tone. "Do not be afraid. Only by telling the truth will we be able to help you."

"It's no use." Ying Tong appeared to be gnawed by Miss Dress' death. He was crushed by the pain and guilt. "Everyone who hears the truth will die. Only by not seeing and not knowing will you be able to survive. I do not wish to bring any harm to any of you."

"Is that the reason you are unwilling to open your eyes even though you are not really blind?" Chen Ge grabbed Ying Chen by his hands to give him physical comfort. "But many people in this building already know the truth. Everyone wants to help you. Your world is not covered in darkness. Trust that there is light even here."

"Light?"

"Ying Chen only allows you to see the most extreme cruelty and unshakable sin. He murdered one person after another to try and prove to you there is nothing but darkness in the world. But think about it, even so, there are people who are willing to help you, like Miss Dress, the cleaning lady, and me." Chen Ge squeezed Ying Chen's hand. "Trust me. No matter what, I will bring you out of this place. The world outside is very beautiful. It is filled with the most vibrant of colors, and there is a blinding sea of light."

In this world that was so suffocatingly dark, a world where light could not penetrate, a blind person held another blind person by his hand, telling him the story of the light.

Chapter 1062 - Face Your Fear

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1062: Face Your Fear [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The situation had gotten to the worst state that it possibly could have, but Chen Ge not only had not given up hope, he still had time to comfort and encourage the people around him. Ever since he had obtained the black phone, he had been in too many impossible situations. As harrowing as those experiences were, they had taught him a lot. Pain and tragedy trained his mind and instilled in him a heart of gold, one that would not succumb to pressure so easily.

“Ying Tong, after leaving this building and walking out that door, you will be able to see the outside world. You do not need to keep yourself locked up anymore.”

...

Not many people would be willing to talk about the outside with Ying Tong. The world that Chen Ge described, the one that was filled with color and light, was a place that Ying Tong had been yearning for all his life. The child slowly had his confidence returned to him, and he started to share the story of his elder brother.

Before Ying Chen could even remember knowing right from wrong, his mother had tried her best to stop him from playing with Ying Chen. If there was an occasion where the two siblings were together, there would be at least one of their parents staying close to watch. At the time, Ying Tong had merely thought that this was a strange arrangement. He loved spending time with his brother. He thought his brother was a very interesting person. He could always come up with many interesting new games and had many friends in the neighborhood. People liked to hang out with him. At the time, Ying Tong was like a shadow, trailing behind Ying Chen everywhere he went.

Seeing the brothers sharing such a good relationship, their parents were not happy. More than that, they were more than a bit worried. Ying Chen had been born with a problem in his sight. His eye sight was lacking compared to other normal children. When they were out playing, his elder brother would always look after him and made sure that no one bully him. For that, he always appreciated and adored his big brother. But one day, after they came back from a game of hide and seek, Ying Tong's mother dragged Ying Tong angrily into his bedroom. From outside the door, Ying Tong heard the sound of Ying Chen crying and screaming. It sounded like their father was beating Ying Chen.

Ying Tong, who was locked in his room, did not know what was happening. He even pleaded with his mother on his big brother's behalf, telling them that Ying Chen had done nothing wrong. Why would they beat Ying Chen?

In the end, his mother did not tell him why Ying Chen deserve the beating, but through the nanny, Ying Tong found out what had really happened that day. When they were playing hide and seek, Ying Chen had led Ying Tong quietly out their building and sneaked into a nearby building that was still under renovation. And then Ying Chen had made Ying Tong stand on the balcony of the third floor. The balcony did not have a safety railing. If Ying Tong had moved an inch, he would have fallen to a gristly death. Thankfully, they had been spotted by the construction workers, who quickly put a stop to the dangerous game.

Ying Tong could not wrap his mind around why his brother would do something like that to him. From that day onward, fear entered his life. He always had nightmares, and he had trouble falling asleep. The warnings that he received from his parents when he was young echoed in his mind. Slowly but surely, the impression that he had of his big brother slowly changed.

A few months later, Ying Tong woke up early one morning and realized that his elder brother's room was empty. His parents told him that his brother had been sent to receive treatment. At the time, Ying Tong was still too young to understand the full scope of the things they were telling him. His understanding of treatment was perhaps that Ying Chen had gotten a cold and needed a shot or something. He did not read too much from his parent's sad expressions.

Half a year later, a month before the tragedy that befell Ying Tong's parents, Ying Chen finally returned home. After his treatment, Ying Chen became more 'normal' than a normal person. But seeing Ying Chen in this manner, Ying Tong's father only got more worried.

One month later, Ying Tong's parents died in a car accident, and Ying Chen and Ying Tong started being taken care of by their relative, who moved in with them. Based on what Ying Tong remembered, even though the relative was greedy and stingy, he was a nice person overall. He tried his best to do right by the siblings. This completely contradicted Ying Chen's description of the period of time that the siblings had spent in their relative's care when he told Chen Ge his story outside the door.

The early passing of his parents meant that Ying Tong was far more mature than his peers. When he was five, he was forced to understand that death meant the people would never return. During the period they spent with their relative, Ying Tong also slowly discovered the other side of his big brother that he had not seen before.

Ying Chen had a very unique hobby; he liked to make insect specimens. He would dissect the insect and then put them all together. There were many similar specimens in his bedroom. This hobby lasted for some time until Ying Tong discovered the specimen of a dead bird inside Ying Chen's bedroom. To perfectly replicate a bird's living image, one would need not only the expertise of a professional taxidermist but also many taxidermy tools. Ying Tong pulled open Ying Chen's drawers out of curiosity, and they were filled to the brim with strange-looking equipment. He told his relative this, but ultimately, the relative was not close family, so they did not intervene with Ying Chen's hobby.

In the ensuing days, Ying Chen spent more and more hours away from home. He came back from school later and later. He would be covered in cat scratches or bruises whenever he showed up. This continued for some time until the people from the neighborhood watch came over with the complaint that the relative was torturing Ying Chen and Ying Tong. Even though Ying Tong tried his best to deny this baseless accusation, no one believed him. It was hard to tell what Ying Chen had fed these people, but they refused to listen to Ying Tong's side of the story. If anything, they treated Ying Tong with pity, like a child who was too afraid to tell the truth.

The relative was warned by the authorities. That night, the relative got into a serious argument with Ying Chen. The next day, the people from the neighborhood watch came again to pay another visit.

Ying Chen joined many anti domestic violence groups. It was also since that period that he started to manage his online social media account. He created this illusion that he was a poor kid who was being bullied and tortured by an outsider. The issue grew bigger and bigger until the relative was chased out of their house half a year later.

Ying Tong clearly remembered what happened that day. Before the relative left, he keyed his phone number into Ying Tong's phone that was specially made for blind people and told Ying Tong something. When Ying Tong was still a baby, Ying Chen once sneaked up to his crib and stood there, watching him for a long time. No one knew what he was up to, but they knew that he was holding something in his hands.

This was probably something that Ying Chen's father had told Ying Chen's psychiatrist, and later, it was the psychiatrist who told Ying Chen's relative. As the main victim, Ying Tong was the last to find out.

Ying Chen started to feel afraid. It was from that day that he started to stay away from his big brother, but nothing seemed to change with Ying Chen. He was still as sunny and friendly as ever. He invited Ying Tong with him every time he wanted to go out, but Ying Tong began to reject all of his invitations.

After the relative left, Ying Chen's real personality started to show little by little. Strange smells started to leak out from his room, but at that moment, Ying Chen still had not done anything to harm Ying Tong. In fact, he took great care of Ying Tong. He helped Ying Tong manage his eyes every day, and he would inquire about the recovery of his eyesight.

Following the early treatment, Ying Tong had recovered part of his sight, but he did not dare to reveal that to his big brother. He acted like it was the same as when he was young. He kept telling Ying Chen that nothing had changed. Ying Tong was lying; however, the scary part was that Ying Chen probably knew that Ying Tong was lying, but he did not burst that bubble.

From insect, to birds, to stray cats, when Ying Tong thought that his big brother would not get any worse, he found clumps of hair that was matted with blood inside his brother's school bag. Ying Chen spent more and more time outside the house. He changed the locks all over the house, and only Ying Chen had access to the keys.

Ying Tong hid inside his own bedroom, but he could not stop hearing the noises that came from outside his door late at night. Ying Chen's footsteps would echo between the kitchen, bedroom, and the bathroom. Occasionally, there would be these noises that were impossible to describe.

This continued for a while until Ying Chen went out to 'throw away the rubbish' one late night, and Ying Tong noticed that Ying Chen's bedroom door was open. He sneaked into it, and the sight that he saw would forever be seared into his mind. There was an arm that dangled out from the bottom of Ying Chen's bed. That was undeniably a human body that Ying Chen was 'working on'.

Ying Chen did not go into detail about what happened later that night. He only told Chen Ge and Ah Mu that it was at that moment that he decided he need to run away from home. But the problem was, Ying Tong did not have the keys to their house. Normally, he was locked inside his room by his big brother. That continued until the date of his sixth birthday. Ying Chen said that the relative wanted to come and see him, and he was waiting downstairs with presents and cake for him.

Ying Chen left home for the first time with joy and hope surging in his heart, but when he reached the first floor, he did not see his relative. He took out his phone and called his relative's number. After it rang for a few times, it was answered. To his consternation, it was his own brother's voice that came through the line. "Look behind you."

He turned subconsciously around, and he came face to face with a pair of scissors that Ying Chen aimed right at his eyeballs. The fear in his eyes was impossible for hide especially for a young kid at the age of six. Ying Chen noted down the change in Ying Tong's expression to the smallest detail.

It was then that Ying Chen knew Ying Tong was not completely blind, so based on his own ideals, he started to 'fix' his younger brother.

At this point of the story, Ah Mu room started to act up in the small behind the door. He started to cry so badly that his breath was catching in his throat. It felt like he was being held hostage and had his eyes pulled wide open while someone use something sharp to stab his eyes again and again. The fear of the tip of the scissors as they slowly approached the eyes before they stopped at the very last moment burned and singed his brain, and this experience was repeated again and again.

The front door kept shaking. Ying Tong had revealed to Ah Mu the real reason behind his aichmophobia. The night of his sixth birthday was one of the few memories that he was most unwilling to remember.

“I have tried to escape three times in total, and Ying Chen used three different kinds of methods to warn me each time,” Ying Tong said. “Now I am attempting my fourth escape. Who knows what he will do to me next?”

“The first time you tried to escape, he caused you to suffer from aichmophobia, and that led to the creation of the persona Ah Mu. There are still Ah Ying and Ah Tong inside this building. They should correspond to your other two escapes.” Chen Ge squeezed his body against the sofa and tried his best to push against it. Ah Mu had already lost all control. His breathing was coming unevenly. If they did not do anything soon, the boy would be in fatal danger. “Ying Tong, I need you to go inside the bedroom to look. I remember Miss Dress fed Ah Mu his medicine inside the bedroom. Perhaps there are still some pills left on the bedside table.”

Chen Ge waited for a long time, but Ying Tong did not budge. He stood frozen where he was.

“Ying Tong?”

The louder Ah Mu screamed, the more violently the door shook. It felt like Ying Chen was getting desperate as well. Of all the people present, Ying Tong stood in the living room like the chaos was beyond him, like he was looking in from the outside. Chen Ge wanted to reach over to give Ah Mu a comforting pat on his back, but when his hand touched Ah Mu, he noticed that Ah Mu’s body was deconstructing. His joints were broken, and his limbs were getting twisted like the dolls placed on Ying Tong’s bedside table.

“What’s going on?”

“When I was conversing with Ah Mu earlier, I was reminded of something.” Ying Tong’s voice started again. He was standing next to Chen Ge. “Do you know what the medicine that Ying Chen gave them is made of?”

“What is it?” Chen Ge had no idea why Ying Tong would suddenly bring this up. The most urgent thing to do now was to save the boy.

“It was made from my flesh and blood.” Ying Tong gave a gory answer. “Ah Mu is the representation of my pain and my anxiety, but he is also the obedient kid that I have presented myself before Ying Chen...”

The door vibrated harder and harder. Hearing Ah Mu’s spine-tingling screams, it seemed to have spurred Ying Chen on.

“They are me, and I am them. I will accept their pain because they are originally a part of me. I cannot separate myself from them. I have been searching for them throughout the building. Only by finding them will I become a complete person, and I will no longer be a monster who has been ‘dissected’ by Ying Chen.”

Ying Tong held Chen Ge’s hand and then went over to hug the thin and weak Ah Mu. He was embracing his own past, listening to his past self’s screams and wails. This continued for some time. When the screaming finally stopped, both Chen Ge and Ying Tong felt a jolt of pain through their heart.

The darkness before their eyes seemed to have dissipated slightly. It was still blurry and hard to discern, but there appeared to be pinpricks of light.

Due to his fear of Ying Chen, even though Ying Tong had already recovered his power of sight, he had to act like a blind person. If he wanted to open his eyes, he needed to first face his innate fear of Ying Chen. Only by accepting the memories from the past would he have the chance to open his eyes.

Ah Mu had disappeared. What was left behind was a doll with a contorted body beside Chen Ge and Ying Tong. They reached out to touch it. The doll was very small, and there was an uneven depression on its face. It probably meant that it had an ugly face. Chen Ge placed the doll into Ying Tong’s pocket. Honestly, he did not know how to feel at that moment. Ah Mu had already been accepted by Ying Tong, and some blurry light had returned to their sight. Their eyes had recovered slightly but only ever so slightly.

“Looks like to fully recover our sight, we need to find Ah Ying and Ah Tong.”

The only person in the room who was not blind had turned into a doll. Ying Chen was still waiting to pounce on them outside the door. The situation had not changed. If anything, it had only gotten worse. Chen Ge took Miss Dress’ phone. He could feel the heft of the phone in his grasp, but he could not see it. In his line of sight, in the world of darkness, there was only a small halo of light that appeared to be very far away.

“Ah Mu found Mr. Wood’s number through the contact list. After I ended the call with Mr. Wood, the phone should have returned to the contact list number.” Chen Ge was trying to give Mr. Wood another call when the vibration of the front door suddenly stopped.

The shrill cat’s meowing was fading away as well. Ying Chen appeared to be leaving the door in a hurry. “He’s left?”

It was impossible for Ying Chen not to have heard the great commotion coming from inside the room. He would know that Ah Mu had been accepted by Ying Tong, so he would continue to search for the other two kids. Chen Ge grabbed his backpack with one hand and Ying Tong with another. He knew that this was their chance.

“We are on the ground floor, Miss Red is on the sixth floor, and Mr. Wood is on the second floor. If Ying Chen runs to the second floor, we will go downstairs to find Miss Red. If Ying Chen goes to Miss Red, we will go to second floor to find Mr. Wood. We only have a window of a few seconds.”

Staying in this room was too dangerous, the door might be broken through at any time, so Chen Ge was ready to leave.

“Ying Tong, be prepared. No matter what happens, you have to stay close to me.”

Chen Ge trained his focus as he moved to the door and grabbed hold of the doorknob. The cat’s noises were getting smaller, but strangely enough, it unsettled Chen Ge that they had not completely disappeared. Ying Chen had left, but he could be waiting at a spot not far away from the door. In fact, he could be hiding in the stairwell.

“The b*stard is waiting for me to open the door and then he’ll jump out at us, huh?”

After a few minutes, the cats’ meows disappeared completely, but Chen Ge was still too worried to leave.

“Ying Chen keeps moving away. He must have noticed something already. Even though he has already left, there might be another person standing outside the door.” Chen Ge held his breath and focused on his hearing. “Assuming the words that he said outside the door earlier were purposely meant for me to hear, it appears like he has ordered his helper to go to the second floor, but in reality, his helper might have switched off the music box and currently be waiting for us outside the door.”

Chapter 1063 - Escape Monday!

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1063: Escape Monday! [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

There might be someone standing outside the door. Chen Ge thought that it was too dangerous to open the door, but he had no better solution at the moment. This was an opportunity, one that they could not miss.

“Ying Chen probably has not wandered too far away from this place. There might be a trap right outside the door. Someone is probably waiting for me to open the door and crawl out.”

...

The sound of the cats would warn Chen Ge of Ying Chen, but they would not be able to do anything regarding Ying Chen's helper. Chen Ge understood that deeply. Earlier, when he was pushed down the stairs by the boy, throughout the whole process, the child did not make any noise. It was not until the last moment that he had revealed his nasty fangs.

“Currently, there are two possibilities. The first possibility is that Ying Chen and his helper are respectively guarding before Mr. Wood and Miss Red's doors, and the second possibility is that Ying Chen is hiding somewhere in the stairwell, and his helper has not left but is waiting outside the door. The conversation that they shared earlier was purposely leaked for me to hear so that I'd lower my guard.”

Chen Ge kept wondering about these two possibilities. For a normal person, the best choice would be to stay inside Miss Dress' room. Even though the crazy murderer had the key, as long as he kept the door blocked, there should not be too big a problem.

But doing that meant that he would have positioned himself in a passive situation. Ying Chen could have easily made use of this time to go and do other things. Chen Ge had limited physique, and it was already difficult on his body for him to have to go through so many of the dangerous adventures since he had entered this door. If he continued to do this, the chance of an accident would only grow exponentially greater.

What worried him most were Mr. Wood and Miss Dress. After all, there was no trace of humanity in Ying Chen. The b*stard would stoop down to the lowest of the lows. If anything happened to the two of them, it would be extremely difficult for Ying Tong to get the chance to open his eyes again.

“Perhaps I can make use of this trap that Ying Chen has set for me and turn that into an opportunity, using the trap to change my current passive situation into something else.”

This idea appeared in his mind, but to ensure that this method would work, he had to be able to ensure that there was indeed someone outside the door.

Chen Ge dragged the sofa away from the door. He purposely made as loud a noise as possible, but in reality, he had only moved the sofa several centimeters back. With his hands on the doorknob, Chen Ge slowly removed the mop that was placed slanted against the door. He pressed down gently on the doorknob. The lock had already been undone by Ying Chen earlier. The surroundings were eerily quiet; he could not hear anything. There did not seem to be anyone out in the corridor.

“Have I overthought everything?” Chen Ge held his breath as he slowly pulled the door open. Just as the door was about to open, a giant force suddenly slammed into the door! “There’s someone out there!”

The door banged into the sofa behind it. A cold and icy hand reached out through the gap, and the dry fingers gripped Chen Ge’s wrist!

Chen Ge reacted in an instant. The sofa had not been fully moved from its place. The door slammed into the back of the sofa, and that acted as a buffer that had saved Chen Ge’s life.

The door was unable to open completely. Chen Ge used both of his hands to try to push the door shut, but the person had grabbed him by his wrist. The hand of the person outside the door was stuck through the small gap, so Chen Ge was unable to close the door unless he cut the person’s hand right off. The gap of the door was getting bigger and bigger.

Chen Ge was unable to see the development before him. His heart was burning like a fire. At that moment, he threw caution to the wind. He lowered his head and bit at the hand that had a death grip on his wrist!

When a person was under a highly intense situation, they would gain incredible strength. Chen Ge could feel his teeth chomp down right to the bone. A child's scream came from outside the door. The person had to let go because of pain. Chen Ge instantly slammed his body into the door and forced the door shut while he still had the opportunity to do so. He grabbed the map by the side and replaced it against the doorknob. He laid it slanted underneath the doorknob and replaced the sofa against the door.

Gasping greedily for air, Chen Ge's back was already covered in cold sweat. He leaned against the sofa. At that moment, Miss Dress' phone that was inside his pocket suddenly started to vibrate. Chen Ge's fingers pressed on the multiple buttons that were on the screen. Moments later, he finally got the call connected.

"Hello?"

"It's me." Mr. Wood's voice came from the other side of the line. His tone was dark, and he lowered his voice to very soft. "Ying Chen is now outside my door."

"Keep your front door locked and stay away from the door. We have to make sure that Ying Chen won't be able to overhear any of our conversation." Chen Ge adjusted his breathing. Everything was within his predictions. Ying Chen knew that Ying Tong had accepted Ah Mu, so he would definitely go looking for Mr. Wood and Miss Red.

"I am inside my study. It is very far from the front door, so he won't be able to hear us."

"Did Ying Chen tell you anything? What did he say?"

"He did not say anything; he did not even announce himself. He just stood there outside my door. If you did not just call to warn me, I would not have known there was someone just standing outside my door." Mr. Wood was still shaking as he thought about it.

"He is probably waiting for you to open your door, and then he will rush in. The madman is capable of doing anything." Chen Ge kept retreating and hid on the other side of the sofa. He lowered his voice to a whisper to ensure that the person outside the door would not be able to hear him. "There is a favor that I have to ask from you."

"Go ahead."

Chen Ge took a deep breath. He wanted to make a bet with Ying

Chen. Without risk, there would be no reward. “Ying Chen is guarding outside your door, and his helper is outside mine. I need you to call Miss Red for me. Have her bring Ah Ying away from her room and try to sneak him to the cleaning closet on the third floor without alarming anyone.”

“Get him without anyone noticing to the cleaning closet? Have you lost your mind?”

“Listen, only by accepting Ah Ying, Ah Tong, and Ah Mu will Ying Chen have a chance to open his eyes. We have to make sure that Ying Tong meets these three kids somehow. If we are all hiding inside our rooms, Ying Tong and his helper only need to guard outside two of our doors, and we will never have a chance to win.” Chen Ge analyzed this very calmly.

1 “This is madness.”

“Ah Tong suffers from claustrophobia, so the person who hides inside the cleaning closet has to be Ah Ying!” There was indeed an undercurrent of madness in Chen Ge’s tone, but the man himself did not realize that. “Ying Chen is staying outside your door. Your room is on the second floor. His helper is waiting outside my door, I am on the ground floor. No matter how this building is connected, Miss Red is the furthest from either of them, she should have enough time to do all these things.”

“But what is the point of doing all these things?”

“Ying Chen has laid a trap for me. But when he set this trap, he exposed a weakness. This is our only chance.” Chen Ge’s voice squeezed through the gap of his teeth. Even though he was unable to see anything, through the trap that Ying Chen had designed for him, Ying Chen had inadvertently revealed the location of himself and his helper.

Mr. Wood gave it some thought before it dawned on him what Chen Ge was planning to do. “Okay, I will give Miss Red a call now.”

The call ended. There was a dial tone that kept on going.

After about ten minutes, the phone in Chen Ge’s palm started to vibrate again. “Hello?”

“Miss Red has already sneaked Ah Ying to the cleaning closet on the third floor. Thank god there was no accident.” Mr. Wood’s voice came from the other line.

“Is Ying Chen still waiting outside your door?”

“Yes, he even knocked on my door earlier, but I ignored him.”

“Very good, what we need to do next will be key.” Chen Ge tried his best to make himself calm down. “You should have the number of the cleaning lady, Auntie Wu, yes? Tell her to come over to my place. When she is here, I will take Ying Tong away from Miss Dress’ place and go to you.”

“You want to come to me? But Ying Chen is now waiting outside my door.”

“If Ying Chen’s helper is being held back by Auntie Wu, Ying Chen will know that Ying Tong and I have a chance to leave the room. In that case, there is a great chance he will come over here to try to stop us.” Chen Ge’s voice was sounding scary. “Miss Red lives on the sixth floor, and we are on the ground floor. Moving down from the stairs, we will be the closest to her, so Ying Chen will think that we will try to get to her. Of course, that is not important. The important thing is that when Ying Chen is coming after us, I need you to go to grab Ah Ying from the third-floor cleaning closet and bring him to your own home.”

Mr. Wood understood Chen Ge’s plan. It was a plan of no risk.

As the Chinese proverb goes, you cannot get the tiger cub without entering the tiger’s lair.

If everything was successful, Chen Ge only needed to bring Ying Chen to Mr. Wood’s place, and then Ying Chen would be able to meet both Ah Ying and Ah Tong at the same time. After facing three phobias head on, Ying Tong definitely would be able to reopen his eyes again.

Chen Ge was fed up with being blind. A world of darkness could push people over the edge, especially when every wrong step would lead to death. One careless move, and he would fall into the hands of a murderous madman.

After giving his orders, Chen Ge ended the call. He grabbed Ying Tong by his hand. “Ying Tong, we are now on the ground floor. Later, we will run up the stairs, to go to Mr. Wood’s place on the second floor. You have to remember which floor you need to get to. Even if you end up alone, you must meet up with Mr. Wood somehow. Do you understand me?"

"Yes, I do." Ying Tong understood the hidden meaning of Chen Ge's words. If the unavoidable happened, Chen Ge would try his best to try and distract Ying Chen's attention. Just like how Miss Red had sacrificed herself, he would use his own life to buy time for Ying Tong. Of course, this did not mean that Chen Ge was some noble saint. After all, his only hope of break this nightmarish cycle was with Ying Tong. By helping Ying Tong, Chen Ge was helping himself.

The room once again fell silent. Chen Ge checked all the items he had on him. He was still unable to see, so he could only use his hands to feel the comic. He could feel the pull of some force on his fingertips. It appeared like his employees were calling his name as well. The front door started to shake again. Ying Chen's helper wanted to burst the door open by using brute force. Chen Ge leaned all of his body weight against the sofa, but he could feel his body going weak. He had no employees to rely on behind this door, and he was exhausting his physical energy at a very fast rate. Ying Chen and his helper were not giving him any chance to collect himself at all.

This lasted for about half an hour when an unfamiliar middle-aged woman's voice suddenly travelled down the corridor.

"Ma Gui? What are you doing here? Aren't you supposed to be at home? It was you who was sneaking behind me earlier, wasn't it? Of all the kids in this building, you are the naughtiest one!" The person who came was the cleaning lady, Auntie Wu. When Chen Ge heard her voice, he grabbed Ying Tong's hand and went to the door. He silently moved the sofa away from the door.

"I wasn't following you." A boy's whining voice came from outside the door. Based on his voice, he should be around the same age as Ying Tong, but he was even more powerful physically than a full grown adult.

"You are lying again. I saw you following me—how dare you lie to my face?" Auntie Wu's footsteps stopped at the door. "Ma Gui, have you seen Ying Tong? Were you playing with that boy earlier?"

There was an urgency in Auntie Wu's voice. Earlier, she had helped Ying Tong hide inside the cleaning closet. She had probably returned there to take a look and discovered that Ying Tong had gone missing. Chen Ge had predicted all of that. It was why he had asked Mr. Wood to contact Auntie Wu. He had told Mr. Wood to tell Auntie Wu the truth and ask for her help.

“No.”

“Are you telling the truth? Normally, I see you bullying Ying Tong the most. It is like you have a vendetta against him or something.”

“You have all been tricked by Ying Tong! I was not bullying him. If you do not believe me, go and ask Ying Chen! He will vouch for me!” The boy tried his best to argue. Honestly, he sounded quite innocent in his prepubescent voice, but knowing how scary the boy was, it only made chill run up Chen Ge’s spine.

Inside the room, Chen Ge had a brief idea why the boy was so impressively strong in the world behind Ying Tong’s door. Ying Tong had always been the target of bullying by the boy. For Ying Tong, other than Ying Chen, this boy was the second existence that he found impossible to hide away from. Auntie Wu and the boy got into an argument. Chen Ge was looking for an opening when the cat’s weak calls suddenly appeared in his ears.

“Ying Chen is coming this way!”

He only had one chance. Chen Ge did not want to miss it. He removed the mop from the door and carried Ying Tong on his back. When the cat’s call came again, he whipped the front door open!

“Auntie Wu, this boy wants to kill Ying Tong! You have to stop him no matter what!”

Ever since Chen Ge entered this door, he had memorized all the routes that he had taken in his mind. The layout of the whole building was imprinted in his mind. Even though his eyes were almost blind, he knew where he should go and which route he should take.

When he shouted out that statement, the cats became conspicuously louder. Chen Ge took a beeline and headed straight into the stairwell.

Chen Ge was unable to see the road before him. Even though he had remembered the height of each step and his muscle memory had gotten used to the height, that did not stop him from tripping once when he ran down the stairs. Pain shot through all the parts of his body, but neither he nor Ying Tong made any noise. Compared to everything else, this little bit of physical pain was nothing.

The cats called from right above him. Chen Ge had just run to the landing between seventh and sixth floor, but Ying Chen had already arrived at the corridor. He had arrived so quickly; there was no hesitation in his movement at all. Ying Chen's speed surpassed Chen Ge's expectations, and other than that, Chen Ge had greatly underestimated how difficult it was for a blind person to maneuver down the stairs.

If they continued like this, they would be captured before they arrived at their destination.

“Remember what I said!”

Chen Ge rushed to the sixth floor and then put Ying Tong down. He removed Doctor Skull Cracker's hammer from his backpack. He stood guardedly at the corridor of the sixth floor and the corner that led to the staircase. Ying Tong was a very clever child. After all, he had managed to survive so many years under Ying Chen's mindful torture. That itself proved many things. When Chen Ge put him down, the child immediately stuck himself to the walls. Following the method that Chen Ge that taught him, he silently moved down the stairs.

Gripping the hammer tightly with both of his hands, Chen Ge gritted his teeth. The cats were calling closer and closer to his ears. From a normal meow, they had crescendo into a heart-wrenching scream. Ying Chen was getting closer and closer to him!

Without any footfall and sound of breathing, Chen Ge's mind was overwhelmed by the sound of thousands of cats calling out as they were being tortured. When the sound reached its peak, he raised the hammer as high as he could and swung it at the mouth of the stairs that was right next to him.

Bang!

The hammer obviously hit something. There was a sound of something heavy falling to the ground.

“Did I get him?”

Chen Ge did not stop to check. He dragged the hammer, turned, and ran. The cats stopped making noises for a moment. Just as they started up again, Chen Ge heard Ying Chen say, “You do not appear to be a tenant of this building.”

There was a chill and anger in Ying Chen's voice. Bloodlust was boiling in this crazed murderer when he first laid his eyes on Chen Ge.

Hearing Ying Chen's voice from behind him, Chen Ge ran even faster.

His heart was shivering whether he could help it or not. All Chen Ge could do was to pray that Ying Tong would have encountered and accepted Ah Ying and Ah Tong before he fell into the clutches of Ying Chen.

Chapter 1064 - Open Your Eyes!

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1064: Open Your Eyes! [2 in 1]

The cat's shrieks followed closely behind Chen Ge. They were so shrill that it was as if they were trying to drill past Chen Ge's eardrums. He pumped all his energy into his legs, but he failed to increase the distance between them.

"Time... I need to create a window of opportunity for Ying Tong!"

...

Chen Ge was like a person at the edge of a cliff; his plan was extremely dangerous. The mistake of a single person would cause a chain effect of destruction that would cause every person in the string of consequences their lives. Ying Tong would lose his chance to open his eyes, and Chen Ge himself would be forever buried behind this door. The cats' wailing bounced through his skull. Chen Ge felt like he was slowly being driven insane. However, the man had no other choice but to continue to run forward as fast as he could.

His time told him that he should never slow down under any circumstances. The chance of Ying Chen carrying a murder weapon was very high. The moment he was caught, it would be the moment Chen Ge had to accept death. And it would not be a quick death. If he tripped and injured himself in this chase, his speed would slow down, and he would end up in the hands of Ying Chen. The theme behind the doors had always been cruelty, absurdity, and despair. Ying Chen would slowly torture him like he had done with all the cats until Chen Ge slowly faded into nothingness.

Running at his top speed, there was only a brief layout of the building in Chen Ge's mind. He remembered the length and width of the corridor, and he tried to keep his body as balanced as possible. But ultimately, the lack of sight was a horrible hindrance. Then again, he did not dare slow down. Even when he was about to reach the corner to the staircase, he kept up his speed. Every footfall was incredibly heavy. The footsteps that echoed on the corridor and when he was running through the stairs were slightly different. The footsteps had a much louder echo in the staircase. This was a detail that Chen Ge had observed earlier. At that moment, he would have to make use of this detail and remind himself to slow down, or else he might accidentally trip on the steps.

Holding his breath and focusing his attention, Chen Ge heard the echoes of another set of footsteps underneath the high pitch wailing of the cats. He had to slow down, or he might ram into the wall, and that would be a bad thing.

Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer was too heavy to lug up the steps. In those circumstances, it had become more of a deficit than an asset. Therefore, Chen Ge did not take much deliberation and decided to abandon it. Once the sound of footsteps changed behind him, Chen Ge swung his body suddenly around and used the centrifugal force of that swing to throw the hammer behind him. It was pure hope that the hammer would slam into Ying Chen. Chen Ge only wished that this would at least slow the man down somewhat.

When the hammer left his grasp, Chen Ge slowed down. He opened his arms, and his fingertips touched the railing of the stairs. After confirming his location, Chen Ge continued to hurry toward the fifth floor.

Ying Tong should have reached the fourth floor by now. I won't go to the fourth floor no matter what. I need to get to the fifth floor instead!

Chen Ge's brain was spinning fast, and his nerves were pulled taut. Walking on the tightrope between life and death, he had unleashed his full hidden potential.

"Even with your eyes closed, you can do so much?" Ying Chen's voice came from several meters behind him. He had seen Chen Ge when the latter turned around to swing the hammer at him. To be honest, Chen Ge had done very well. He had managed to hide from Ying Chen and did so much damage until the very last moment. If Ying Chen had discovered him earlier than this, he would have been tortured to his death through various methods by that demon in disguise. When they were both equally cunning and clever, how could a blind man with the lack of sight ever compete with a crazed murderer with a helper on his side?

This was practically a one-way mission, but Chen Ge had somehow fought his way through it. By earning the trust and aid from the tenants within the building, before Ying Chen realized what was happening, Chen Ge had initiated the final battle earlier than the man could ever anticipate.

That was what Chen Ge had, the element of surprise. In other words, Chen Ge's plan was very simple. He could not see anything, which put him at a great disadvantage, so he had to hide in the dark. If not absolutely necessary, he would not come into the open to face Ying Chen.

The cats' meowing behind him was like a call from hell itself. Chen Ge could hear the distance between himself and Ying Chen closely. The constant running drained him a lot physically, and he realized that he could not keep up this speed any longer. However, the monster did not seem to slow down at all. If this continued, it was only a matter of time until he was captured.

Moving from the sixth floor to the fifth floor, the distance between Ying Chen and Chen Ge drew ever closer. The cats' meows numbed his skull. It felt like once he stopped, the monster behind him would chomp off his head instantly.

After running down the corridor of the fifth floor, I'll be presented with two choices. I can either go up to the sixth floor, or I can go down to the fourth floor. I'll always be slower than Ying Chen regardless of whether I go up or down the stairs. Every time I enter the stairwell, he can close the distance between us. The next time I have to use the stairs, he catch up to me already. That is an unavoidable problem. I will have to find a solution to that problem soon!

In just the time he spent on thinking on the problem, Chen Ge had already passed through the fifth floor corridor and entered the stairwell. Going to the fourth floor might interrupt Ying Tong. To ensure that Ying Chen would be led away, Chen Ge grabbed the banister and ran toward the sixth floor. He was as crazy as the madman behind him. He took three steps at a time, but when he was between the fifth and sixth floor, he felt a pull on the backpack behind him. A cold wind drifted toward his neck. A chill numbed his skull. Chen Ge let go immediately.

Ping

The blade bounced into the metallic handrails, and it created a tingling sound. Chen Ge's heart was pounding relentlessly.

Ying Chen is carrying a blade with him!

His backpack lost, Chen Ge did not stay. He charged down the sixth-floor corridor without hesitation. When he first entered this door and realized that he was unable to see anything, Chen Ge had already removed the comic from the backpack and placed it inside his pocket and placed the ballpoint pen in his shirt pocket. He already predicted this kind of accident where he would be forced to abandon his backpack. The extra caution that he had taken early in the scenario proved to be the key that might save his life at the most crucial moment.

Chen Ge had truly never been placed in such a dangerous position. He had not only lost Doctor Skull Cracker's hammer but also his backpack, which had never left his side on any his missions so far. When Ying Chen lunged at him with the knife, Chen Ge slithered two steps back. When Chen Ge got onto the sixth-floor corridor, the cats' howling had returned with its full force.

"Is Ying Tong not yet ready?" Chen Ge felt the wind escaping from his lungs. He was unable to see and was thus vulnerable. If he did not evade that knife earlier, then he would have died in the world behind the door already. "I cannot stop. The moment I do, it will be death for me!"

Cornered at such a difficult position, not even able to see where his feet were landing, Chen Ge was still racing at top speed. The thought of giving up had never crossed his mind. He had managed to survive for so long with this attitude, and he was not going to start changing now.

The howling of the cats overwhelmed his brain, the noises were like stuck in his ear. They were like a sharp knife dangling over his head. The sound of footsteps started to change. Even in this situation, Chen Ge still needed to separate a part of his attention to determine whether he had entered the staircase or not. The echoes of footsteps came from beside his ears. He had raced down the full length of the corridor, and now had entered the fully enclosed stairwell. But just as he prepared to slow down, his hands that went to find the banister were suddenly grabbed by a ginormous force!

The force came from inside the stairwell!

Ying Chen is behind me, so the person on the staircase is not him!

When this thought crossed Chen Ge's mind, a voice rang out before him.

"I've caught him!"

It was Ma Gui's voice. Ying Chen's helper had ambushed him at the staircase!

His hands were constricted and held against the wall. Ma Gui blocked his path forward, and Ying Chen was closing in behind him. Chen Ge was truly caught between a rock and a hard place. Chen Ge tried to struggle as hard as he could, but he was powerless against the surprising strength of a small boy. The cats' calling was coming closer. He bit on his lips so hard that they started to bleed. In less than a minute, he made a decision. He threw all the energy that he had into the direction that Ma Gui's voice came from!

Bang!

The two rolled down the stairs. Sharp pain came from every part of his body, but Chen Ge did not appear like he could feel it at all. The red in his eyes was burning. He gritted his teeth, got up from the ground, and continued running!

Unable to see anything, with the sea of despair surrounding him, Chen Ge should have given up, but at that moment, more light slowly appeared in Chen Ge's world. The weak light was slowly expanding. As Chen Ge continued to run forward, he felt like he was chasing after the light at the end of the tunnel, and he was getting closer and closer to it!

Fear and darkness were chasing after him. With the cats' shrieking echoing in his mind, Chen Ge abandoned himself to the light!

Open your eyes!

Layers of red started to spread with Chen Ge as the center. The darkness was slowly chased away. Before him was a corridor that was made up from pieces of dead carcasses. Black threads that looked like maggots moved between the dead bodies. This should be the real appearance of the world behind Ying Tong's door!

Covered entirely in wounds, Chen Ge stood at the spot and gasped hungrily for air. The cats had gone silent, and not far away from him stood two monsters.

One of the monsters had a boy's head, but the body was like an adult's. The scariest thing was that the boy's face had no eyes, and where the eye sockets should have been were two smaller mouths instead. The other monster had a face that was similar to Ying Chen's, and from the front, he looked just like the Ying Chen in the outside world. But there were another few faces that grew on the rest of his body. All of those faces were twisted beyond recognition, but the unifying similarity across all of them was that they had no eyes in their eye sockets, just two dark holes. They were eyeless. In this world behind the door, it was those who were not blind in real life that had been turned into blind people.

"Looks like Ying Tong has finally conquered the fear that you have instilled in him and managed to open his eyes."

When he recovered his sight, Chen Ge became surprisingly calm. The color of blood underneath his feet started to spread. When he opened his eyes, the binding this would have had on him had already been broken. He could hear the Red Specters calling him!

"How did you get into this building?" Ying Chen stared at Chen Ge. Every face on his body had a different expression. Perhaps in his younger brother's eyes, he was a monster with many different faces that he could present to the world. Chen Ge did not answer his question; he did not waste even one more second on Ying Chen. He just wanted to leave this place as fast as he could, and the most direct method was to make this b*stard disappear.

His body had reached its tipping point. Despair and pain had been torturing Chen Ge's mind at every moment. This was thus far the most dangerous door that he had ever entered. Any bad decision would lead to death, and there was no salvation. With red floating at the bottom of his eyes, Chen Ge took out the comic that he had been carrying with him. Chen Ge, who had recovered his sight, noticed that the comic had been covered in red, and it was pulsing with endless blood vessels.

Ying Chen sensed the danger and hid behind his helper. His palm was holding an extremely sharp fruit knife. On the other hand, Chen Ge was completely unarmed. Even though Ying Chen felt slightly unsettled in his heart, but he felt like he still had the better chance of winning.

"Ma Gui, we will corner him together. His biggest mistake was not running when he first opened his eyes." Ying Chen's voice was cold, and there was not even an ounce of warmth in it. He and Ma Gui slowly moved forward as they approached Chen Ge. Ma Gui did not think that Chen Ge had a chance to turn the tables. There had never been a person who was able to escape from this building. They were either made into dolls or building blocks. With a creepy smile on his face, Ma Gui's three mouths were grinning widely. It was truly the stuff of nightmares. In comparison, Chen Ge was just a normal guy who had ended up in the wrong place.

But when Ma Gui took the next step, the expression on his face changed slightly. Without announcing himself, amid a rolling sea of redness, a giant appendage about two meters long reached out from behind Chen Ge!

The wall that was made up from human bodies was torn down, and more devastatingly, as more blood vessels appeared, more and more appendages appeared to support Chen Ge's body, which was about to fall. A giant spider about five meters in size tore open the staircase and appeared behind Chen Ge!

Compared to Ma Gui, the giant red spider behind Chen Ge was more like a monster that had walked directly out from the deepest recesses of hell.

"Kill them all, we have to ensure that there is nothing left of them, not even a shred of their soul."

The recorder and the red high heels were both inside the backpack, so the son of the Tunnel Lady appeared to help Chen Ge. This Red Specter was extremely strong. Perhaps because he had a door inside his own body, the oppression of Ying Tong's door was not that strong on him. Before the other Red Specters managed to break through the binding, he could already make his appearance. The tips of his appendages were as sharp as chisels. All the faces on Ying Chen started to frown. He did not warn Ma Gui and turned to run.

"Ying Chen, what should we do now?" Ma Gui turned around, only to see Ying Chen's retreating shadow. There was another word hanging on his lips when he suddenly felt a chill that came from the middle of his chest. Lowering his head to look, the bloody appendage was already slowly pulling back from the hole in his chest. The two were not even on the same level. "Ying Chen..."

His head rolled down the side of his body. Ma Gui saw his own body behind, wrapped up inside a blood red cocoon and pulled behind the giant spider.

Chen Ge stood where he was. He flipped through the comic and summoned one Red Specter after another. "The ghost fetus is probably hiding inside Ying Chen."

The giant red spider crawled down the corridor, and he soon caught up to Ying Chen. Just as Chen Ge thought that Ying Chen was about to be killed, the building started to change again. The building that was made up from dead bodies started to shiver and moan. The doors were pushed open, and dead bodies walked out from within. They were all missing their eyes, and their eye sockets only consisted of two dark holes. These people were dressed in all sorts of clothing, and there were males and females of all ages. Some of them were even wearing the working ID from the neighborhood watch.

They seemed to represent the people that Ying Tong had once encountered. These people had all seen Ying Tong, but under Ying Chen's cunning disguise, they were unable to see the truth; their eyes had literally fooled them. Black threads that represented the curse moved within these people's eye sockets. These dead bodies that had no self-consciousness threw themselves at the Tunnel Lady's son to block his back. Ying Chen had also stopped. He and Chen Ge each occupied one end of the corridor.

"This world is cruel and gory. If you do not open your eyes, you can still live in your own world and spare yourself the hurt. But if you insist on opening them, you will have to live in my world and under my rule."

Every face on Ying Chen's body was feasting on the black curse that leaked out from the wall.

"Everyone is helping me; you won't be able to escape."

There were indeed countless 'people' who were helping Ying Chen, but there were exceptions.

"Chen Ge!" Ying Tong's voice came from the staircase behind Chen Ge. Beside him were Mr. Wood, who wore a pair of spectacles; Auntie Wu, who was heavily injured; and Miss Red, who wore a red dress. Mr. Wood, Auntie Wu, and Miss Red were probably Ying Chen's victims in real life, and they had retained their human form in this world behind the door. Those who had been taken advantage of by Ying Chen appeared as dead bodies.

Chapter 1065 - It's My Turn [2 in 1]

Chapter 1065: It's My Turn [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Looks like not everyone is on your side. Some are willing to help me.”

Both Chen Ge and Ying Chen had opened their eyes and viewed this bloody and cruel world head on. They had stopped running away and hiding from it. The addition of more and more Red Specters pressured Ying Chen. The whole building was shaking. The dead bodies in the wall started to break down en masse. Every dead body was a warm bed for extremely deep curses and resentment. The world behind Ying Tong's door appeared to have been turned into a farm for the ghost fetus to curate and breed curses. The curses in this world were far more intense than any of the worlds behind the door that Chen Ge had been to.

...

“Chen Ge, there is only one real face on Ying Chen. That real face among the many fake ones is his true weakness.” Ying Tong had reopened his eyes and found his confidence. Compared to Ying Chen, the boy felt like Chen Ge was more like his elder brother. Even in a completely dark world, even when he was unable to see anything, Chen Ge kept painting a beautiful picture of a colorful and wonderful world for Ying Tong.

To Ying Tong, who had survived in darkness and despair, Chen Ge's words solidified the confidence in his heart, and that made him able to face his past and the truth. In a way, it was Chen Ge who used his life to help Ying Tong open his eyes. The world behind the door was made from the door pusher's memory. The words that Chen Ge told Ying Tong, the later would never forget. In fact, he would remember them in his heart, and they would become a pool of warmth that he could pull from for the rest of his life.

The boy did not turn into someone like Ying Chen. If anything, it was already very impressive that he had been able to survive until now with his sanity intact.

Actually, during their previous conversation, Chen Ge had understood Ying Tong's thoughts. This child had bet everything on his fourth attempt to escape. If he failed again this time, he might really choose to surrender. Aichmophobia, claustrophobia, ligyrophobia... his three previous escape attempts had left a deep mental scar on Ying Tong's mind. But even so, he did not concede. Just on that alone, it made him a much stronger person than most adults.

The dead bodies who were dangled by the black curses grabbed at the tunnel lady's son. They hugged the huge appendages and tried to stop the monster before them because this was the justice that they had been led to believe. When their eyes were blinded, everything these people saw was a mirage, and that was a skill that Ying Chen had mastered. From just the appearance, the tunnel lady's son indeed looked more like a monster than anyone else present. From the perspective of an outsider, when they saw this giant spider chasing after Ying Chen, they would definitely believe that the giant spider was the evil one.

But was that really true?

Ying Chen was a master manipulator, and he was very good at taking advantage of these psychological blind spots. By editing the videos, he could inverse good and evil. He could go around tormenting cats without any punishment. To make matters worse, he published these videos on a cat lovers website and gained money from advertisement through it. He manipulated the world and used many different faces to hide the heart that was broken from the very beginning. Once again, Chen Ge could feel the pain that Ying Tong must have gone through. His freedom was limited, and he was not allowed to speak up. After the small number of people who knew the truth were killed, there was only darkness that lingered in his world. After all, there was no proof that told him otherwise.

"Don't you worry. I will peel down all the faces that Ying Chen has." Chen Ge narrowed his eyes as he stared closely at Ying Chen. The b*stard was still feasting on the curse. He sneaked behind the 'crowd' and used the surrounding dead bodies as cover. This was similar to how Ying Chen had forced the relative away from their home. When he still was not confident, he would be able to murder the relative, making use of the people around him. He was truly the perfect representation of someone who would stoop to the lowest of the low to achieve his goal.

"The biggest difficulty in this world should be encouraging Ying Tong to open his eyes. The ghost fetus has already missed the perfect opportunity to kill me.”

Of the nine children and their doors, only one of them hid the real ghost fetus; the remaining eight only had the ghost fetus’ lingering spirit possessing a certain object. This object would not make any conscious decisions. It would only follow the rules behind the doors. All their actions were following the rules set up by the memories of the door pusher.

As Chen Ge’s understanding of the doors grew, he had started to learn how to make use of the rules behind the door. The blood red world was connected to the real world through the door pusher’s memories. By finding the memory connection between the two worlds, one would be able to find the solution from it. Therefore, to gain the initiative in the world behind the door, the first thing one needed to do was get to know about the door pusher’s past. Only by understanding that would one be able to understand and empathize with the deepest pain that was hidden in the door pusher’s heart.

With the cooperation of multiple Red Specters, blood leaked into the building. A shade of red entered the eyes of those zombies. Chen Ge chose the most direct method to take control of this world behind the door. This door was made from Ying Tong’s memories, and since Ying Tong was on his side, he was totally capable of doing something like that.

Probably due to the larger size, the tunnel lady’s son and the boy with the stench had attracted the attention of the majority of the walking carcasses. The remaining Red Specters slipped through the crowd, and none did this better than Xiao Bu. When any bodies got close to her, they would be turned into a puddle of stinky blood. The strength of this girl had exceeded Chen Ge’s expectations. The whole building was echoing with howls and screams. To Chen Ge’s surprise, Xu Yin and the red high heels appeared at the other end of the corridor. They sensed that Chen Ge was in danger. When they broke through the barrier of this world, they had gone to assist him as soon as possible.

With more and more people joining his side, Chen Ge gained more confidence. Other than that, Chen Ge realized that Mr. Wood and Miss Red were not hapless victims either, especially Miss Red. The woman was about the same age as Ying Chen. She had a small frame, slender arms, and her dress was soaked in blood. She was the only tenant from this building that was covered in blood. She was as powerful as a Red Specter, but different from a normal Red Specter, she did not have the ability to control the blood vessels, and the curses that only worked on the living did not affect her either. When she was standing beside Ying Tong earlier, Chen Ge did not feel anything, but once she made her move, Chen Ge realized that compared to a human, Miss Red was more like a cat, an elegant, graceful cat that was covered in blood.

“Miss Red?” This Miss Red only sided with Ying Tong, and she had never left his side. She was hostile toward everyone; she was not that willing to approach even Mr. Wood and Auntie Wu.

This was the first time that Chen Ge had encountered such a strange person. Chen Ge wanted to know just what kind of memory had conjured up this Miss Red.

“Perhaps Miss Red is a unique Red Specter outside the door.”

With that in mind, Chen Ge decided that after he left this place, he would go and help provide salvation to all of Ying Chen’s victims, to give them the justice that they deserved.

The spider and the stench had held back most of the dead bodies. The remaining dead bodies posed no threat to Chen Ge. Their distance to Ying Chen was drawing closer. The predator had become the prey, and the wind of the battle had shifted.

“After Ying Chen drains the whole building of its curse, he will be impossible to deal with. I cannot allow him to do that.” Chen Ge had made the decision to kill him. Even though he realized that he was inside the world behind the door and the Ying Chen before him was just a part of Ying Tong’s memory, that did not mean that Chen Ge was going to let him go so easily either.

It was too dangerous. From the moment he entered this world to when he opened his eyes, the whole process did not last that long, but there was danger at every step, and one wrong move would have cost him his life. The highly intense chase and the strain on his nerves had exhausted Chen Ge both mentally and physically. Since he finally had the upper hand, he had to remove every possible source of evil, and he would not give the enemy any chance to make a comeback. There were too many dead bodies in the way, and Ying Chen had hidden himself among them. Even the Red Specters were unable to locate him in such a short amount of time, but Ying Tong could.

Ying Tong knew about Ying Chen’s real personality, so no matter how Ying Chen tried to hide, Ying Tong would be able to single him out easily. With the cooperation of so many Red Specters, Ying Chen was finally cornered. He stopped before the door to his own house on the seventh floor. The corridor was blocked from both ends, filled with blood vessels and spider web.

“You...”

Ying Chen opened his mouth to say something, but Chen Ge was not going to give him the chance. If he was going to kill the man anyway, why waste time listening to his last words? If anything, giving a person like this the chance to leave his dying words would seem like such a disrespect to the innocent victims that he had killed. “First I will tear your soul into pieces behind the door, and then I will report the real you to the police.”

With the addition of the spider boy, Chen Ge’s tactics became more dynamic and strategic. This Red Specter could steal from the dead’s memory to create dreams. That power still worked behind a different person’s door. After all, the monsters behind the door were weaved from the memory of the door pusher. In other words, as long as the spider boy was around, the Specters and monsters that were not Red Specters posed no threat to Chen Ge. They would be molded and changed according to the spider boy’s wishes and whims.

The tunnel lady’s son specialized in group fights. After he had held back most of the dead bodies, Chen Ge’s employees could go after the others without worrying about the need to cover their back. Before Ying Chen had the chance to absorb the curse from the building, he was already surrounded by a group of Red Specters. Chen Ge did not give him any chance to stall for time; he did not even give him the time to speak. The only thing Chen Ge wanted to do was kill him and get this over this; this was the first time that Ying Chen had faced an enemy like that. If he was not given the chance to speak, how was he supposed to manipulate others?

The faces on Ying Chen’s body were torn off one after another. Ying Chen’s body was crumbling, and it was only being connected by the black threads that were made from the curse.

“Chen Ge, I see it now.” Ying Tong kept his eyes focused on Ying Chen, who was not far away; his eyes had never shone so bright. “His real face is hiding inside his heart!”

When Ying Tong said that, Miss Red slipped through the crowd, and her bloody hand pierced Ying Chen's heart. The sharp fingers punctured Ying Chen's chest, and the face in his chest was ripped open.

"Argh!" All the faces on Ying Chen started to wail in pain. Then the features started to melt like ice cream left in the sun. It turned into a baby, but this baby had exceptionally beautiful eyes; they shone like jewels.

"The ghost fetus!" Chen Ge narrowed his eyes. This thing had been controlling everything from behind the scenes. He had the capability of stopping the tragedy from happening, but not only did he not do that, he kept adding to the resentment inside Ying Chen's heart and kept pushing Ying Tong deeper and deeper into despair.

"Do you hate happiness that much? Why do you wish to turn everyone into something just like yourself?" Chen Ge wished to have a conversation with the ghost fetus, but this thing that possessed Ying Chen was merely a lingering spirit of the real thing. The majority of the curse inside the building had not been absorbed, but Ying Chen would not have that chance to do so anymore.

The group of Red Specters tore him into pieces, and they literally shredded his soul and shared it among themselves. Cracks appeared on the walls, and the dead bodies that were the building blocks started to collapse. However, perhaps because there were still so many curses, this world took its sweet time to crumble.

After witnessing Ying Chen's death, the knot inside Ying Tong's heart was completely unraveled, and light resurfaced inside his eyes. He led Mr. Wood and Miss Red to go searching for Miss Dress, while Chen Ge stood at the spot where Ying Chen had died.

When the curse dispersed, it left behind a picture. He reached down to grab it. Chen Ge gave it a good look. He remembered that it had been a picture taken by his father a long time ago. The picture was of a flower field bursting with color. The young Chen Ge stood in the picture with a rather nervous expression. He appeared to be afraid of being stung by the bees that buzzed around him. The sun fell generously on him. Chen Ge and the shadow were making the same pose at the camera.

"You have witnessed the beauty of this world before."

As he put the picture away, the building had started to collapse for real. Chen Ge hurried to summon his employees to search for his backpack and Doctor Skull Cracker's hammer. When Chen Ge's returned, he realized that the red high heels was madly consuming the residual curses inside the building.

The blood red high heels had an added pattern of some strange black stripes. Just a glance at it could make one's hair stand on end. Of all the Red Specters, only the red high heels was not afraid of the curse. That was probably because her own power was related to the curse.

During Chen Ge's various interactions with the ghost fetus, the red high heels had technically been the biggest winner. The other Red Specters fed on negative emotions, but she alone gained all the curses of the ghost fetus. After constant accumulation, the presence that the red high heels gave off started to have a paradigm shift. None of the Red Specters, including Xiao Bu and the tunnel lady's son, were willing to get too close to her.

This Red Specter that specialized in curses gave off a very unsettling feeling.

"If this continues, she might become the next Top Red Specter." Chen Ge had no idea how strong the red high heels was after consuming so many curses. All he knew was that even if it was the ghost fetus' curse, the red high heel would be able to consume and digest them.

"Just what did she experience before she died?"

The red high heels had ended up following Chen Ge initially because she was afraid of Zhang Ya, but later, her attitude toward Chen Ge had started to change, especially after Chen Ge started the ghost fetus mission.

"After this ghost fetus mission is over, I should have a sit down with the red high heels, and hopefully, she will be willing to share her past with me."

The red high heels was a woman covered in bandages from head to toe. Her appearance reminded Chen Ge of that cursed hospital.

After gathering everything, Chen Ge met up with Ying Tong on the seventh floor. They stood there and watched as the red high heels consumed most of the curses inside the building. The dead bodies turned into dust, and before the building collapsed, Chen Ge held Ying Tong's hand as they pushed open the black iron door together. They took one step forward, and the world spun.

...

Opening his eyes, Chen Ge found himself sitting on the ground. Fatigue washed over him like waves.

Hearing the noise, the kid who was asleep in bed fiddled awake. He curled up at the corner of the bed with his eyes closed. The boy was very cowardly, and through the weak light, Chen Ge could see some not so obvious wounds on his face.

“Ying Tong, do not be afraid.” Chen Ge’s soft voice appeared in the room. “I am Chen Ge. I promised that I would save you from this place.”

The name Chen Ge was exceptionally meaningful to Ying Tong. It meant that everything that had happened in his nightmare was real. He tried his best to open his eyes, but probably because he had spent too much of his life with his eyes closed, he was very unused to it.

“It will be fine. Take your time. You have the rest of your life to see the world.”

After a brief rest, Chen Ge stood up. The black phone in his pocket kept vibrating, signaling the arrival of multiple messages, but Chen Ge did not reach into his pocket to read them.

Instead, he pulled out the Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer from his backpack. With a smile on his face, he opened Ying Tong’s bedroom door and slowly padded his way to Ying Chen’s bedroom.

Chapter 1066 - Dream of Chen

Ge [2 in 1]

Chapter 1066: Dream of Chen Ge [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

In the silence of the night, a dark shadow moved slowly through the living room. The clock hung on the wall ticked rhythmically. It was now three o'clock in the morning. His fingertips scratching the surface of the wall. The man finally stopped before the door to Ying Chen's bedroom. The doorknob slowly turned as the door was gradually pushed open.

The icy gaze pierced through the darkness, staring at the man in bed wearing his pajamas. He was in a very deep sleep. The corners of his lips were curled up into a smile, as if he was indulging in some kind of happy dream. The shadow from beyond the bedroom slowly approached the bed. It moved silently, and it was standing right beside the bedside.

...

Suddenly, the sound of a book's pages flipping echoed in the dark bedroom, and the stinging, pungent stench of blood spread. The man who was lying in bed frowned. He tossed his body around, and his face turned right to face the person who was standing beside his bed. Quietly kneeling before the man, the shadow was titling its head as he studied the man who was sound asleep as he raised the gory-looking doctor skull cracker's hammer that he was holding.

"Ying Chen?" With a soft call of his name, Ying Chen's eyelids fluttered slightly. The man was slowly called out from his wonderful slumber. He saw the blurry outline of a person standing beside his bed. Both of his eyes started to focus. An iron hammer that was covered with spikes and carved with blood grooves was speedily heading toward his shoulder. Sucking in a cold breath, Ying Chen's body supercharged, and he leaped up from the bed instantly as he rolled to the side to avoid the onslaught. The spikes slashed through the pajamas before it fell on the bed, shattering the frame!

Ying Chen did not dare imagine what would have happened to him if he did not narrowly avoid the attack earlier. He would probably have been left disabled.

“Who are you?” Standing on the other side of the bed, Ying Chen’s forehead was covered in cold sweat. The scare had gotten the better of him; even his voice was shaking.

“You were able to avoid that because I never meant to hit you in the first place. As you’ve done to others, I plan to take my time with you.”

The voice from the darkness caused Ying Chen’s body to be covered in goosebumps. At the same time, he found the voice very familiar, like he had heard it somewhere before. He had just been woken up from his sleep and dropped into a nightmare. His mind was too fuzzy to focus on too many things. Before he could piece everything together, the figure charged at him again.

His hands reached toward the study table, and Ying Chen grabbed a fruit knife. However, before he could use it, his arm was smacked into by a heavy force, and he instantly lost all feeling of his limb. The arm dangled weakly by his side, and the fruit knife clattered to the floor with a cling. A foot kicked the fruit knife to the side. The figure that stood in the dark stared firmly at Ying Chen. At that moment, Ying Chen did not dare move an inch. He was leaning against the wall. He had no idea how this scary monster had gotten into his bedroom and how he had ended up in this situation.

“I am not good at bullying those weaker than me. The games that you play and like so much are so boring in my eyes.” The figure took one voluntary step backward and lightly shook his head. Dragging the heavy scary-looking hammer, he walked out of Ying Chen’s bedroom, and he closed the door behind him.

His heart still palpitating, Ying Chen held his arm that had become as useless as a limp noodle. He pinched his face to figure out whether he was still in a dream or not. The smell of blood intensified. Blood vessels spread and crawled all over the surfaces of his room. Pale faces slowly appeared on the walls as they stared down at him.

...

Leaning against the bedroom door, Chen Ge put away the hammer and listened to the screaming that came from Ying Chen’s bedroom. Half an hour later, the screams stopped. Chen Ge reopened the door, went in, and dragged the fainted Ying Chen out.

“This one is not as strong as I anticipated. He is so much weaker compared to the Ying Chen possessed by the ghost fetus.”

When Chen Ge was dragging Ying Chen through the living room, the sounds of the cats kept coming from the room that Ying Chen kept the adopted stray cats in. One of the cats cried extremely loudly, which reminded Chen Ge of the cats' call behind Ying Tong's door. It was because of the warning from the cats that he had been able to discern Ying Chen's location.

"I almost forgot. You guys are also his victims." Chen Ge smashed the door down with the hammer. Once the door splintered and cracked, endless streams of cats rushed out. They phased through Chen Ge's body before they dispersed and disappeared into the darkness. "Those are the spirits of the cats who have died in this room, huh? Good, it is time for them to gain their freedom as well."

Chen Ge walked into the room. There were a few wounded strays in the room. They were very afraid of Chen Ge. Once Chen Ge entered the room, they moved to curl up in the corner. Their instinct to run was as clear as day.

"You saved me behind the door, and now it's my turn to save you." Chen Ge was not a vet. He decided to send the cats to the pet clinic after the sun came up. After dealing with their treatment, he would then return to New Century Park.

"Chen Ge..." Ying Tong walked out from his bedroom. His hands were on the wall. The boy had not gotten used to using his eyes.

"What's wrong?"

"There is a dead body hidden under Ying Chen's bed. It's our stepfather." The stepfather in question should be the relative that Ying Chen mentioned earlier. Actually, the relative had done well by them, but unfortunately, that was not what Ying Chen thought. "Also, Mr. Wood, Miss Dress, and Auntie Wu... I know where they are."

Ying Tong should be talking about the location of their dead bodies. This caused Chen Ge's heart to squeeze. He touched Ying Tong's head. "Of course, we will go and find everyone."

Sitting on the sofa, Chen Ge called Lee Zheng on his personal number. When the call was connected and Lee Zheng's blurry voice came through the line, Chen Ge only then realized that it was not yet even four in the morning.

"It's like this, Inspector Lee. I am currently at Ying Chen's home."

“Didn’t we decide that we’d go and investigate his house together in the morning? Why are you there now?” Lee Zheng had completely woken up. He could hear a trace of something unpleasant in Chen Ge’s tone.

1“As you know, I hate evil and uphold justice as the absolute value in my life. The thought of an evil man walking free prevents me from having a good night’s sleep.”

1“Stop going around in circles and get to the point—what have you found?” The sound of Lee Zheng putting on his clothes came through the phone.

“As we suspected, Lee Zheng was indeed torturing those strays cats, but more than that, I have evidence that he is a heartless murderer. I found a dead body under his bed. I hope you guys can get here as soon as possible. I have found both the physical evidence and a trustworthy witness.”

1“No matter what, you have to ensure the safety of yourself and the witness! We will be there in a minute!”

The call was ended. Listening to the busy dial tone from the phone, Chen Ge took a glance at the unconscious Ying Chen beside him.

“After all, I have single-handedly apprehended such a vicious and crazed murderer. Shouldn’t I appear to be more disheveled myself?” Chen Ge quickly tore open parts of his jacket and his shirt so that he would look more the part. While waiting for the police to arrive, Chen Ge took out the black phone from his pocket. He clicked on the screen and started to read the few new messages.

1“Congratulations, Red Specter’s Favored, you have completed 7/9 of the Trial Mission, Ghost Fetus. The ghost fetus has lost the eyes that can look into the human heart. He will not be able to study your thoughts anymore! Warning, Red Specter’s Favored, you do not have much time left!

“Congratulations, Red Specter’s Favored, for surpassing the limit for the affection level of a unique-type Red Specter. Blood heart mission activated—the red high heels!

“The Red High Heels (Bloody Heart Mission. After completing this, there is a very high chance that the Red Specter possessing the red high heels will officially become your employee): Have you heard of this cursed game? This game is called... the red high heels.

1“Mission requirement: Enter the cursed hospital at midnight to look for a pair of bloody red high heels.

5“Mission hint: Am I beautiful?

“There is no time limitation to the Bloody Heart Mission. As the level of affection continues to increase, the relative difficulty of the mission will decrease.”

Lee Zheng arrived at Ying Chen’s home with the rest of his team at around 4 am. Ying Tong was given full protection, and he was handed over to the professional doctor to be given a thorough check up while Chen Ge stayed at the crime scene to provide his full cooperation to the police. From collecting the evidence to conducting the investigation, it went from 4 am to about 8 am. At around 8:30 am, Chen Ge was finally given a chance to rest. He had provided more than enough cooperation, so the rest was left to the police.

“Brother Zheng, I am going to open for business soon. Do you mind if I go back to tell my employees about what is going on and then come back after that?”

Lee Zheng was familiar with Chen Ge’s quandary, and he knew how hard it was for Chen Ge to juggle so many things at once, so he nodded his agreement. “I will have someone drive you back to the park.”

“There is one more thing.” Chen Ge pointed at the few strays in the small room. “Can I take them along with me?”

“There is no problem should you wish to adopt them, but not now. We found traces of human blood in their fur, so temporarily, we can’t let them out of that room.”

“Then, can you find a vet to take a look at them? Some of the cats had their bones poking through their skin. It really pains my heart to see them in this condition.”

“Don’t you worry about that. Just leave it to the police.” The law enforcement of Jiujiang was very reliable. Chen Ge thanked them profusely. The workforce at the police station was drawing thin, so Chen Ge did not wish to trouble them. He took a cab and returned to New Century Park on his own. He had just approached the haunted house when he heard the voices of Xiao Gu and Wu Jinpeng.

“How come Boss Chen has not arrived yet? Doesn’t he spend his night at the haunted house? Is it possible that something bad has happened to him?” Wu Jinpeng sounded extremely worried. He knew that Chen Ge often did dangerous things in the search for his parents.

“Initially, I was as worried as you are, but after a while, you get used to it. Our boss has a habit of going jogging at night, and he often jogs through the night. This morning, when I woke up to check my phone, I noticed that our boss has clocked in four digits on his pedometer...”

1“Xiao Gu.” Chen Ge’s voice erupted from behind him, and that caused Xiao Gu to jump out from his skin. “Hurry to the dressing room for your makeup. We are going to open for business soon.”

Pushing open the gates, Chen Ge followed the employees into the dressing room to help the employees with their makeup. Then he personally trained Wu Jinpeng and taught him many secrets about how to scare people inside the haunted house. After that, he released parts of the employees inside his backpack to their positions.

Chen Ge finally reached his limit at around 10 am. He went outside and found something simple to eat before returning to the staff breakroom, crashing on his bed, and sleeping. The mission for the ghost fetus lasted nine days. He had entered multiple doors over consecutive nights, and that had taken a serious toll on his body. He slept until three in the afternoon, when he was woken up by his phone. He glanced at the caller ID and hurried to answer it. “Brother Zheng, why are you calling me?”

“Sorry, but I need you to come the police station. Ying Tong refuses to tell us anything. He said that he will only talk to you. The child suffers from some serious psychological problems. This is the first time that I have encountered such a poor child in the years I have spent on the force.”

“Okay, I will be there in a minute.” Chen Ge grabbed his backpack and ran out of the haunted house. Under the awed gaze of the visitors, he hailed a cab to hurry to the city’s police station.

...

The large and spacious conference room at the police station had four people sitting in it, two of whom were small children. Ying Tong sat next to Chen Ge with his eyes closed while Lee Zheng sat on the other side of the table with Zhen Zhen.

“Chen Ge, this case has already been taken over by Captain Yan. After he found out about the incident with Ying Tong, he was very angry. I've rarely seen him so angry." Lee Zheng opened the laptop that was on the table and then took out the recorder. "This time, I have called you here because I need to clear up some details with you."

"What details?"

Lee Zheng sighed softly. "How did you manage to figure out that there is a murder case behind the dream of a small boy? Chen Ge, I hope that you won't see me as a police officer at the moment and treat me as a friend. Please tell me everything you know."

Ying Tong was the seventh child handpicked by the ghost fetus, and Zhen Zhen was the failed project of the shadow. That was the connection between the two, but these were the things that Chen Ge could not tell Lee Zheng. This was because the ghost fetus was too dangerous. The fewer the people that knew about him, the better.

"I do not wish to probe into your secrets; I am merely worried that other people are still in the same despairing position as Ying Tong once was. We wish to rescue them." Lee Zheng looked right at Chen Ge, hoping that he would say something, but the conference room was eerily quiet. This continued for another ten minutes before Lee Zheng broke the silence again. "After the truth about the Ying siblings came out, we approached Zhen Zhen again to ask him if he's dreamt about anyone else recently."

"So, has he?" Chen Ge's interest was piqued. The ghost fetus had chosen nine kids, and there was only one child left that was still hidden in Jiujiang.

"Well, he certainly did." Lee Zheng's expression was confused. "The person that he dreamed about the most is you. The scenarios that he described were the experiences from your childhood. We did not purposely try to look into your background. Earlier, when we were trying to find your parents, we looked into some information about you."

"I don't quite get it. Zhen Zhen has dreamt about me?" Chen Ge knew that he was one of the nine children selected by the ghost fetus, but he did not think that the ghost fetus would be hiding inside him. Yes, the ghost fetus was a Demon God, but Zhang Ya was no weaker than him. If the ghost fetus was really hiding inside him, Zhang Ya would have warned him about it.

"Recently, all of Zhen Zhen's dreams have been about you. His dreams are about... how you are murdered in different ways.” Lee Zheng entered the content of the recorder into the computer and then played it for Chen Ge. Chen Ge’s palms were soaked in blood as he listened to Zhen Zhen use his juvenile voice to describe such gory content. Zhen Zhen had dreamt of different ways Chen Ge would die. In other words, Chen Ge had been killed nine times in Zhen Zhen’s dreams.

“No wonder, when I came to visit him last time, he was so afraid of me.” Chen Ge did not answer Lee Zheng’s question but posed a question of his own. “Brother Zheng, other than myself, did Zhen Zhen dream about anyone else?”

There was one more missing child among the nine candidates, and there were only two nights left until the awakening of the ghost fetus.

“No.” Lee Zheng shook his head.

The conference room sank into silence again. Lee Zheng stared at Chen Ge, who was frowning. When they were talking about other people, Chen Ge would be able to peel back the layers to discover the truth, but should it involve the man himself, he would clamp up and refuse to say anything.

“It is fine if you are really uncomfortable in sharing, but I hope that you will at least show us some trust and know that you do not need to shoulder everything on your own.” Lee Zheng poured a glass of water for Chen Ge. “There is one last thing that I need to tell you. You will have to cooperate with Ying Tong’s psychological counselling session. The boy only shows trust around you.”

“There is no problem with that.” Chen Ge easily agreed. He touched Ying Tong’s head. “By the way, Brother Zheng, what kind of procedure do I have to go through to officially adopt a child?”

“Adoption is not something that can be done easily. You’d better go and think more about it before you come to a hasty decision.” Lee Zheng was more like a worried big brother. “Feeding a child is easy, but educating them and helping them to recover from their childhood trauma will probably take a lifetime. Even a professional doctor would not dare to guarantee that they will come out the other side as a normal person. I am sure you know how difficult this process will be.”

“The difficulty can be overcome.” Chen Ge counted on his fingers. There were quite a few children that were closely related to him—Fan Yu, Jiang Ling, Ying Tong, and so on. Even though these children were victims of trauma, once they walked out from their shadows, they would definitely grow up to become exceptional citizens.

Chapter 1067 - I, Chen Ge, Have Returned [2 in 1]

Chapter 1067: I, Chen Ge, Have Returned [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Red Specters' existence depended on the obsession in their heart, but the life of a person was limited. Chen Ge was worried that his own time on earth was running out, and once that happened, the bunch of workers at the haunted house would end up jobless and homeless again. Therefore, Chen Ge had to start planning for his future that he would be absent from. To be friends with so many Red Specters and lingering spirits, it required the tenacity that was stronger than a normal person. A normal person would probably be scared to death just from hearing this news alone.

Of all the children the Chen Ge knew, Fan Yu was the most suitable candidate to take over Chen Ge's job. Be it the painter inside the door or Fan Yu outside the door, Chen Ge had a very good impression of the boy. With Chen Ge's current condition, he was not qualified to adopt any children—according to the law, that was. However, he could register to become their guardian.

...

Lee Zheng did not understand all this, but when he heard Chen Ge say these things, he was quite touched. He thought that Chen Ge wanted to adopt these children because he pitied Ying Tong. He had no idea about the conundrum that Chen Ge was in. The ghost fetus trial mission had put a lot of pressure on Chen Ge's shoulders. Behind Ying Tong's door, he had almost been killed. If he had died inside that door, what about the lingering spirits and the employees at his haunted house?

Honestly, Chen Ge was not confident that he would be able to complete the ghost fetus' mission, and he had even less confidence that he would be able to walk out from the other side of this ordeal with his life intact. After continuing the conversation with Lee Zheng, Chen Ge prepared to leave. He was not in a great mood. There were two nights left, but he still had zero information about the last candidate selected by the ghost fetus.

“Chen Ge, wait a moment.” Just as Chen Ge was about to leave the room, Lee Zheng suddenly spoke up. He switched off the recorder and quietly took out his phone. “Captain Yan forbade me from telling you about this, but I personally feel like it is better that you are warned about this.”

He switched on his phone and showed Chen Ge the recording from a surveillance camera. That night, Ying Chen returned to his own residential area with a black plastic bag. Not too long after he entered his apartments, the street camera at the corner of the convenience store caught the shadow of a man wearing a large trench coat. The man had most of his head covered with a black cap, shielding his eyes and nose. However, the streetlight did reveal the lower half of his face, which consisted of a mouth that refused to stop smiling.

“A non-smiler?” Chen Ge recognized the person caught on surveillance. He did not expect the non smiler would have intercepted Ying Chen similar to him as well last night.

“Se Xin’s main physician is still in coma. According to the nurse on duty, a similar strange figure has appeared at their hospital that night.” Lee Zheng put away his phone. “Captain Yan seems to know some information about this person. It was after he found out about this person that he decided to take over Ying Chen’s case. The worry and concern on his face was obvious. I tried to ask him many times until he got annoyed by me, but in the end, he only told me one thing. He told me to stay as far away from this person as I can.”

“Captain Yan seems to know the non smiler very well.”

“Yes, I believe it is related to a case from several years ago. When Captain Yan was young, he was once posted in Jiujiang. He was part of a serial killing that targeted young children. The murderer of the case had been caught and killed. Everyone believed that the case could be closed already, but only Captain Yan believed the murderer was still out there. They had gotten the wrong person.

“Unfortunately, at the time, he was too young and too brash; he did not know how to hold his tongue and pick his moment. In the end, he was ordered to move to another city, one that was much smaller than Jiujiang. But to everyone’s surprise, due to his exceptional talent, even at that small location, Captain Yan continued to rise the ranks as his number of closed cases increased until his reputation got him transferred to Xin Hai.”

Lee Zheng respected Captain Yan very much; his every word was laced with admiration.

“Captain Yan has once worked as part of the law enforcement at Xin Hai?”

“Not only that... never mind, it is too hard for you to understand even if I explain it to you. All you need to understand is that at the most optimal point of his career, Captain Yan did not walk the path that others that arranged for him, but he chose to return to Jiujiang.”

“He chose to return here because he wanted to reopen the case on the serial children killings?” Chen Ge was confused. “How many years ago did that case happen?”

“About twenty years ago.”

“Twenty years ago? The non-smiler was present in Jiujiang that long ago?” Chen Ge’s interest toward this case was piqued. He wanted to know more details, but unfortunately, that was all Lee Zheng was willing to share with him.

“In any case, you have to be careful of your own safety. These monsters that won’t stop smiling appear, like they have been following you everywhere you go.”

“I will be careful.” Chen Ge nodded. “Please take good care of Ying Tong and Zhen Zhen. The monster might come after these two kids as well.”

Chen Ge was about to leave the conference room already when Ying Tong, who had been sitting obediently on his chair, suddenly jumped out from his seat. He followed the direction of Chen Ge’s voice and ran to grab at his shirt.

“Ying Tong, you have to cooperate with the doctor. After a while, I promise I will come back to see you.”

“The police officer has taken something... Can you hold on to it for me?” Ying Tong pleaded in a pitiable voice.

“What is it?”

“A mud statuette made from clay. It has my name on it.”

When Ying Tong said that, a weak glint of light crossed Chen Ge’s eyes. The latter turned to look at Lee Zheng. “Brother Zheng, have you seen such a statuette?”

“On the dolls and toys inside Ying Tong’s bedrooms were traces of the victims’ DNA, and they were probably all hand-made by Ying Chen. Through the design of the dolls, we hope that we will be able to predict and speculate the psychological state of Ying Chen.”

“I am afraid there is some misunderstanding. Do you mind letting me take a look at the list of dolls? No matter what, Ying Tong and I are witnesses in this case.”

After getting the permission from Captain Yan, Lee Zheng led Chen Ge into the evidence room. They found the mud statuette that Ying Tong mentioned at the corner of the room.

“Where did you guys find this mud statuette?” Every candidate chosen by the ghost fetus had one of these mud statuettes with them. Before the police arrived, Chen Ge had searched Ying Chen’s house upside-down, but he had failed to find it.

Lee Zheng stood to the side and explained, “Ying Tong was carrying it with him. The boy had been hiding the statuette on his body. We believe that the statuette must be related to his elder brother’s murder cases somehow.”

“No wonder I was unable to find it that night.”

“What did you say?”

“Oh, I believe you guys are overthinking this. The doll is probably an item for the child to vent his emotion. If there is no trace of anything on it. Why not return it to the boy? Perhaps it might come in useful in his psychiatric treatment.”

A whisper of a cat’s call echoed in Chen Ge’s ear. He used Ghost Ear and confirmed that the voice was coming from inside the mud statuette.

“That is not unreasonable. As long as Ying Tong is willing to cooperate, we are willing to hand the statuette back to him.” The forensic doctor and the investigators had done a thorough sweep on the mud statuette, and they did not find any clues on it. If that was the case, why not follow Chen Ge’s suggestion and give the doll back to Ying Tong to try to get Ying Tong to open up and earn his affection?

“Thank you.” Chen Ge held the mud statuette. “Brother Zheng, do you mind giving me some private time with Ying Tong?”

“You sure are one person with a lot of requests. Other people cannot wait to leave the police station, but once you came, it is like you refuse to leave. You really treat this place as your own home.” Even though that was what Lee Zheng said, the man still walked out of the room to give them the privacy.

“The uncle has a sharp tongue but a soft heart. He looks stern, but he is a very nice person.” Chen Ge held the mud statuette, and his eyes slowly narrowed. Then he asked in a whisper, “Ying Tong, tell me honestly, are Miss Dress, Mr. Wood, and Auntie Wu all inside this mud statuette?”

When Chen Ge spotted the mud statuette earlier, he had noticed that something was not right with it. It was twirling with curses that kept on torturing a few lingering spirits.

After a while, Ying Tong finally answered. “Miss Red is also in there.”

“Miss Red?” Chen Ge nodded. “You wanted to ask for the mud statuette back because you wanted to protect them, right?”

“Yes.”

“Ying Tong, this mud statuette is just like the room that you were trapped in. Their souls are trapped inside this thing, and they are tortured day in and day out. Do you wish for that to continue for these people?”

“Of course not.”

“Then, I will release all of them and try to help them complete their final wishes.” Under Ying Tong’s confused gaze, Chen Ge bent down and placed the mud statuette on his own shadow. The black thread that represented the curses started to collapse. The temperature in the evidence room dropped several degrees. Three cold drafts caressed Chen Ge’s body before they stopped beside Ying Tong. With the aid of Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge could clearly see that they were precisely the cleaning lady Auntie Wu, Mr. Wood, and Miss Dress. They made up quite a scary spectacle. The three of them had retained their appearance when they died.

“Looks like it was ghost fetus’ mud statuette that has been used to suppress the three of their lingering spirits...” Chen Ge was still thinking when a shrill cat wail appeared. Following the cracks on the statuette, a cat that was covered in mud tried to escape from the statuette, but its whole body was bound by endless cursed threads. The black blood in the statuette seeped into Chen Ge's shadow. The threads that bound the cat snapped at that moment. When she leaped out from the statuette, the wounded cat turned into a thin and lanky woman who wore a red dress.

“What are you? Are you a cat or a human?”

The woman in red did not reply. She still had not recovered from the shock. After she escaped the mud statuette, she searched for a corner to hide in like a stray cat who had seen way too much suffering in her life.

“She appears to be different from all the red Specters that I have met so far.” Chen Ge was trying to form a communication channel with her when the mud statuette placed on his shadow suddenly shattered. When the last drop of black blood was absorbed by the shadow, an indescribable scary presence started to overwhelm the room. Time seemed to have stopped in that second!

COMMENT

When everyone in the room recovered, everything had seemed returned to normal.

“Has Zhang Ya finally woken up?” Chen Ge turned to look at his own shadow. When the light hit his shadow, they were twisted around it. Earlier, when he used Yin Yang Vision, he could still look into his shadow somewhat, but now, he could not see anything anymore. The three lingering spirits in the room already had their soul torn open on the spot. The strange Red Specter who acted like a cat was given quite a shock as well.

“Please don't be afraid. Actually, she is a very gentle woman. We will be a family from now on.” Chen Ge shared what Ying Tong and he had been through inside the world behind Ying Tong's door. Chen Ge did not need to use much time to convince them that he was a good guy. The black phone in his pocket vibrated, signaling that he had received some new messages.

After everything had been settled, Chen Ge took out the clear cellophane tape that he had prepared for the pen spirit from his pocket. He gave a quick 'fix' to the mud statuette and then pulled Miss Red and the gang into the comic. He told Ying Tong some things and then left the police station. In the cab back to New Century Park, Chen Ge opened the black phone and clicked on the new messages.

"Congratulations, Red Specter's Favored, for obtained Miss Red's affection!

"Miss Red (Unknown-type Red Specter): She has no name. Everyone who knows her refers to her as Miss Red.

"Congratulations, Red Specter's Favored, for obtaining the aid of three cursed spirits!

"Mr. Wood (Lingering Spirit): The man who was viewed as stubborn and boring in other's eyes stood out to help without hesitating after discovering the truth. Because he was worried about the poor child, his spirit refuse to disperse. He was trapped inside the mud statuette by the ghost fetus' curse.

"Miss Dress (Lingering Spirit): Carefree, open-minded, straightforward, and sunny, the woman who will pull everyone's attention wherever she goes chose to face the truth. Because she was concerned about the poor child, her spirit focused and lingered. She was trapped inside the mud statuette by the ghost fetus' curse.

"Auntie Wu (Baleful Specter): The middle-aged woman who was stingy about the smallest of things, like the price of rice and oil, did not expect that she would one day become a hero. The woman who almost rescued Ying Tong was the target of Ying Chen's anger. Of all the man's victims, Auntie Wu had the worst ending, and that also meant that her resentment was the deepest. After she died, she was trapped inside the mud statuette by the ghost fetus' curse."

"When I am done with the ghost fetus' mission, there is a chance that nine scenarios might be unlocked at the same time. When that comes, I will be seriously understaffed, so they have come at the perfect time." Chen Ge put away the black phone and shut his eyes while riding the taxi to take a short rest. When he arrived at New Century park, the first thing Chen Ge did was crawl into the staff breakroom.

"The ghost fetus will be born in another two nights. I have now confirmed the location of seven children. Of the remaining two, one of them is me, but I have no clue about who the other one is." Chen Ge sat on the chair and spun the ballpoint pen that was covered in clear tape in his fingers. "Should I do a prediction with the Pen Spirit?"

He knew that this would probably not work, but at this point, what other choice did he have? He tried to ask the Pen Spirit for the name of the ninth child, but the Pen Spirit was running out of air after putting down a few dots on the white paper. Her body was turning transparent like she might go at any moment.

“Just how weak can you be? From the first time I have met you until now, how many questions have I asked you in total? Ask yourself, which of question have you answered truthfully for me before? When have you provided me with actual help before?”

Chen Ge knew that he was venting his emotions on the Pen Spirit. He knew that this was not her fault. It was way beyond her capability. In the end, he sighed as he put the ballpoint pen away. Then he started to get agitated again.

“The hint that the black phone provided me about the ghost fetus trial mission is that I am only one step away from the truth. Could that be a hint that the door inside my haunted house is the real place where the ghost fetus is hiding?”

2Shaking his head, Chen Ge still could not tell for sure. For some reason, Chen Ge was very unwilling to face the face inside the toilet at his haunted house. It was as if his own heart had been subconsciously resisting it.

“Should I enter the door inside the toilet tonight?” When that thought appeared in his mind, Chen Ge immediately chased it out. “I’d better take this slowly. Since I have no more clues now, why don’t I go to Coffin Village tonight and find the lady in the well to discuss this? If only the non-smiler chooses to follow me tonight. As they say, camping and hiking in the woods are the best method for two men to get to know each other better and form a bond.”

If Chen Ge had already found eight children by now, he would definitely enter the door at his own haunted house to take a look, but the key problem was that there was one more child that was undiscovered. The chance of the ghost fetus hiding inside that child was very high.

“Each child represents one thing—the five senses, love, and a heart. What else does the ghost fetus need?”

1After the sun dropped below the horizon, Chen Ge packed his bag, took all his employees, and hurried toward Jiujiang Children’s Home.

It appeared like Coffin Village was only accessible to those who had once been a villager at that place. So, Chen Ge tried his best to persuade Jiang Ling's elder sister to follow him before they started the trek into the mountains. They walked for three hours in the mountains before the scenery before Chen Ge's eyes started to change.

White paper lanterns hung high in the air, like wandering souls drifting through the forest. The fire wavered and lit up a row of tattered old houses.

“When I was here last, I was practically frightened to death by this scenario.”

Chen Ge stood beside Jiang Ling's sister, and behind them were Xu Yin, Xiao Bu, the boy with the stench, and a few other red Specters.

Chapter 1068 - Coffin That Buries the Past [2 in 1]

Chapter 1068: Coffin That Buries the Past [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

When he returned to Coffin Village this time, Chen Ge was admittedly a bit excited. When he last came, he only managed to capture a small number of ghosts, and he let most of them escape from him. Coffin Village was very unique compared to other scenarios. While other scenarios had their basis in urban legends, the ghosts here had their origins from folklore, and that made them stand out from the rest.

“The completion rate at Coffin Village’s mission is also very low. Basically, I just took a look behind the door before I was chased out again. I was not given the chance to give it a good exploration. Perhaps the secret of the woman from the well can be found behind the door.”

...

The woman from the well had been around for a very long time. She was a very mysterious figure and knew many secrets. In fact, she appeared to have entered the deeper part of the red city through her own blood door before.

The night breeze carried on the wind, but Chen Ge did not feel cold. If anything, he felt refreshed and energized. With Jiang Ling’s elder sister leading the way, Chen Ge entered Coffin Village once more.

Dragging the Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer and holding the comic in his hands, Chen Ge entered and checked every single house that they passed like he was a population checking member from the government. Every family in Coffin Village had at least one coffin inside their home. The tradition was used in the past to honor and appease their ancestors. Strange as that was, there was nothing wrong with that culture. However, due to the presence of the lady from the well, this tradition had been twisted, and coupled with the constant influence from the ‘door’, it had caused Coffin Village to become a very scary scenario.

Most of the people in the city would never imagine that such a secluded 'paradise' existed in the middle of the mountains.

"Even after so much time, it appears like nothing has changed about this place." Coming back to Coffin Village, Chen Ge was feeling quite emotional. Looking at the 'reward' that he had reaped so far inside his comic, he was feeling quite satisfied. From the mouth of the village to the center of the village, the white lanterns above the houses shook unsettlingly. More and more shadows appeared at the small pavilion that was the city center.

The villagers that stayed there seemed to have been gathered together. However, they did not seem to be there to welcome Chen Ge. Every single one of them looked at him with a dark and empty expression. History repeated itself. When Chen Ge first entered Coffin Village, something similar had happened, but at the time, it was not the villagers and Chen Ge who had been caught in a lockdown at the city pavilion.

"A few of you look familiar." Chen Ge and Jiang Ling's sister took one step forward. "Don't act like that. It's not like there is a deep gulf of hatred between us. If anything, the last time I was here, I was being chased around the whole village by all of you. So, I should be the one that should be feeling a certain way, not the other way round."

When Chen Ge spoke, the numerous Red Specters guarded beside him.

This time, the villagers were much more 'obedient'. They looked and acted like normal villagers from a backward place that were going about their normal life. One of the doors of the bigger houses in the city opened. A woman covered in various accessories walked out from the courtyard. Her surname was Zhu. She was one of the most trusted confidants chosen by the woman from the well. Normally, it was this lady who managed everything that happened in the village.

"Hello, we meet again." Chen Ge and his employees headed toward Ms. Zhu. The latter had a complicated expression on her face before she decided to receive Chen Ge and his entourage with a smile.

Ms. Zhu forced herself to ask, "Chen Ge, why have you come to us in the middle of the night again?"

"Everything is fine with Jiang Ling, so don't you worry about that." Chen Ge first discussed the update with Jiang Ling before he slowly segued into the real reason he was there. "Actually, I am here today because I have something that I wish to discuss with the Red Specter from your village. Don't worry, I just want to discuss somethings with her. Nothing more."

The moon was dark, and the wind was harsh. The villagers were huddled together. Ms. Zhu had her brows knitted in a deep lock. Those who did not know the truth would probably think that Chen Ge was some kind of heartless land developer who had gone there to give them an ultimatum—"Move away now, or I would come back tomorrow with the equipment to level this place."

"After her last appearance, she has not appeared from behind the door. Even the ghost baby has been taken away." Ms. Zhu looked at the Red Specters behind Chen Ge before she decided to tell the truth. There were two Red Specters at the Coffin Village. The woman from the well was unimaginably strong, but she had been seriously injured in her desire to reincarnate as a living human. On the other hand, the ghost baby was only slightly stronger than a normal Specter. In comparison, he was almost as powerful as Men Nan.

"That sounds like she might be in trouble behind the door." Chen Ge thought about it for some time. "There is no other choice. Midnight is coming soon. Since she is unable to come out to see us, we will have to enter the door to find her."

If not for the fact that he had been busy with every other thing in his life, Chen Ge would have returned to Coffin Village and visited the world behind its door a long time ago.

"Is that really a good idea?" For the villagers of Coffin Village, the woman from the well was almost their deity. They would make sacrifices and conduct ceremonies in her name, like how the traditional people would praise the river god, and that door was equal to the place where their 'god' lived.

"There is nothing wrong with it. When you lay everything out in the open, there won't be any misunderstanding anymore." Chen Ge remembered the location of the door. If there was one thing that he was proud of, it was his memory. After getting permission from Ms. Zhu, Chen Ge carried his backpack and led his employees to the home where the lady from the well had stayed when she was still alive. They found the door. When midnight struck, he pushed the door open with the aid from several Red Specters.

A thick blood fog rolled over to envelope his body. Chen Ge narrowed his eyes, and he soon discovered something was wrong.

“How is this possible?” Coffin Village behind the door had practically been leveled!

Scary scratches could be seen everywhere, and there were multiple lashes on the ground and walls that were probably left behind by chains and shackles!

“Coffin Village behind the door has been destroyed?” Chen Ge found it hard to believe his own eyes. He had his employees guard beside him, and he went on very high alert. “Blood vessels and curses have soaked into the ground. Just standing here puts me in a very unsettling feeling.”

Chen Ge took a careful look around. His eyes moved between the chains, the residual blood vessels, and curses.

“Is this Doctor Gao’s doing? When I met him at Li Wan City, he was hugging the skull of his own wife, and his whole body was wreathed in thick, iron chains.”

When Chen Ge encountered Doctor Gao at Li Wan City, he had already been a Top Red Specter, but after sharing the shadow’s heart with Zhang Ya, perhaps he had already transformed into a Demon God just like Zhang Ya.

“The Ghost Stories Society once visited Coffin Village, but they had returned empty-handed that time because of my interruption...”

The more Chen Ge thought about it, the more he was confident that the culprit behind this devastation was Doctor Gao, but he could not wrap his head around why Doctor Gao, who was already a Top Red Specter, would return to Coffin Village.

“Could it be that the woman from the well has really mastered the method to help a ghost reincarnate? Be it in life or after death, to raise his wife from the death has been the great obsession of Doctor Gao. To that end, it is possible that he would doing to make that happen.”

Humanity was a complicated thing, but something it could be incredibly simple. Doctor Gao was the perfect example. He was the best psychologist in Jiujiang, but at the same time, he was also the scariest madman in Jiujiang.

Standing at the destroyed village, Chen Ge’s expression was one of worry and concern.

“When I was doing the mission at Coffin Village, I ran into people from the Ghost Stories Society. One of them was Wu Fei, and the other one should have been carrying the dead body of Doctor Gao’s wife.

“At the time Doctor Gao was busy fighting outside the village, while Wu Fei entered the door. This arrangement had no problem. It was extremely logical...”

If the suspect was not Doctor Gao, Chen Ge would not have wasted so much time analyzing everything.

“Is it possible that Doctor Gao predicted his ending a long time ago? Was he prepared to become a Red Specter when he was still alive? After Wu Fei was led into the door in Coffin Village by the lady from the well, he became the opening for the woman to get to know the Ghost Stories Society, but at the same time, it became how Doctor Gao managed to confirm the location of the door at Coffin Village and the coordination of Coffin Village in the world behind the door.”

The more Chen Ge thought about it, the more unsettled he felt.

“That’s right! Before Doctor Gao committed suicide, he even tried to enter the door at my own haunted house. He left the carving of the demon on the door, and that was a marking of a coordination for him as well!

“The plan started when he was still alive, and then he would go and carry it out after he was dead. This whole thing was a set up that had traversed the limitation of life and death that had encircled the whole city?”

Goosebumps started to cover the back of Chen Ge’s neck.

“What is it that Doctor Gao is up to? How many secrets has he collected?”

This former chairperson of the Ghost Stories Society caused Chen Ge a little bit of panic. If this was anyone else, Chen Ge might have used the most direct method to deal with it. He would capture the person and use various interrogation methods to force the person to tell the truth. But this kind of method would not work on Doctor Gao. The latter was such a master manipulator and reader of people’s minds that there was a very high chance that Chen Ge would be the one that ended up being persuaded by Doctor Gao.

After finding out about Doctor Gao's real identity, Chen Ge did not dare give it much thought; that was how scary Doctor Gao was. Facing a powerful enemy like Doctor Gao who was much more clever and cunning than he was, Chen Ge's countermeasure was the most basic and barbaric. If he was captured, he would directly feed Doctor Gao to Zhang Ya.

1 "If Doctor Gao has regained his rationality, this situation will become even more complicated and hard to predict." Chen Ge knew that he was getting closer and closer to the truth, but it was also at moments like these that he had to remind himself to be more careful. "All the secrets are intertwined together. Everyone has their own obsession. If some are destined to win, then others are destined to lose. "

Chen Ge inspected Coffin Village behind the door alongside his workers. They failed to find anything related to the woman from the well and the ghost baby. Coffin Village behind the door was practically engulfed in the blood fog, as if the memory of whoever created this scenario was slowly dispersing into nothingness. Thankfully, because of that, the door at Coffin Village was easy to open. Chen Ge and his group also easily found their way back into the living world.

"The woman from the well probably has gone into hiding in the red city. Doctor Gao is probably there as well. Both of them must know something that I don't."

Before he came to Coffin Village, Chen Ge did not expect something like this. After he ended up with nothing, Chen Ge left the world behind the door with the aid from his group of Red Specters. Ms. Zhu was standing outside the door waiting for them. From her point of view, it had only taken several minutes for Chen Ge to return from behind the door.

"Have you seen her?"

Chen Ge naturally knew who this 'her' was referring to. He closed the door and ensured that no one was eavesdropping on them before he revealed the truth. "I have to tell you some unfortunate news. The Coffin Village behind the door has been levelled to a barren land. It is now filled with curses and blood. I am unable to find that woman."

"You can't find her?" Ms. Zhu's expression changed instantly.

"Don't panic first. She has probably just gone somewhere else, but you'd better keep this to yourself. Do not share it with anyone else." Chen Ge sighed. "Since I cannot find her, I will have to turn to you in the hopes that you will be able to answer some of my questions."

"Ask me anything. I will tell you everything I know." After hearing that the woman from the well was not behind the door, Ms. Zhu's attitude became much better.

"The woman from the well has had a horrible life, and even after death, she was not given a moment of peace. That was the reason she tried so hard to reincarnate into a person. As the person who knew her best in this village, can you tell me what she has done to that end? What has she ordered for her attempts at reincarnation?" Chen Ge was quite interested in this topic.

"I do not know her actual method myself, but I did hear from my great grandmother that as long as I prepare coffins that have buried the past and vessels that are bursting with new life for her, she will leave me alone."

"Coffins that have buried the past? Vessels that are bursting with new life?"

"Yes, the coffins are used to bury all the past memory and tragedies. After the coffins are buried, you will lose everything that you once owned. In other words, from that moment on, you were no longer yourself." Ms. Zhu tried to remember what her great grandmother had once told her. "The vessels are the newborns. I do not know the actual details, but I know that the village will select a female baby without any physical defects every ten years and send her into that room."

"Put the female baby inside the room where the 'door' is? You people allow a baby to be in the same room as a Red Specter?"

"She is as gentle and as kind as a mother before a baby, but before others..." Ms. Zhu glanced at the door inside the house, and she stopped herself.

"I think I get the gist. For the woman from the well, to complete the reincarnation, she needs to fulfil two conditions. One, she has to bury her past, and two, she needs to find a suitable vessel." Chen Ge stood inside the room and tried to link everything that had happened in Li Wan City together. "The Bury Seed ritual that I heard about in Eastern Jiujiang is a method of sowing a soul into the heart of another child. These cases in Eastern Jiujiang should be the ghost fetus' own attempt at this method."

For the ghost fetus, the vessel would be one of the nine children selected by him. The woman from the well only had her selection of choice from the villagers of Coffin Village, so perhaps that was why she had failed for so long. But the ghost fetus was free to have his pick all around Jiujiang, so his success rate was much higher.

With regards to the coffin that buried the past, this hint reminded Chen Ge of something that had happened in Eastern Jiujiang earlier. When he was at Eastern Jiujiang Dam for the Bury Seed mission, he had found a floating coffin at the bottom of the dam. Many dolls with names carved on them had been placed inside the coffin, and it was also inside the coffin that Chen Ge found the main body of the water ghost.

But the scariest thing was the floating coffin was hiding a large hole behind it. Chen Ge had no idea where it led, but Chen Ge still remembered very clearly that Xu Yin had warned him from moving further in, and they had left as soon as possible.

“That coffin was buried with the ghost fetus’ past?”

Then again, Chen Ge did not believe a single coffin could bury the past of a Demon God. He felt like the bigger possibility was that the ghost fetus’ past was buried inside that cave at the bottom of the dam.

“That is key information!”

Chen Ge asked Ms. Zhu some more questions and then left Coffin Village with Jiang Ling’s elder sister. Not counting this night, he only had one night left, so he wanted to hurry to Eastern Jiujiang Dam to take a look. Moving through the mountains and trekking through the forest, when Chen Ge returned to Jiujiang, the sun was coming up the horizon already.

Without wasting any time, Chen Ge hurried to Eastern Jiujiang Dam. The place was so isolated that not many taxi drivers were willing to take him there, so that took even more time out from his clock.

It was not until seven in the morning that Chen Ge finally arrived at his destination. When he got out of the taxi, he felt like his body was about to crumble already.

He had been conducting the Ghost Fetus trial mission for nine consecutive nights already, and every single night, he had tackled a door. This kind of fatigue was not only on his body—it took a much deeper toll on his mind. The breeze from the lake buffeted his body as Chen Ge carried his backpack to walk toward the dam.

The air at this place was very refreshing. The only downside was that the place was so secluded, and there was barely any human traces.

Chen Ge found the small hut of the dam manager based on the memory. He was about to knock when he suddenly saw a mother jump over the railing with a child in tow. The mother was holding her child's hand as she stared at the still water of the surface silently.

What are they trying to do?

Chen Ge was worried that she might do something rash, so he quickly ran toward her.

Chapter 1069 - The Ninth Child

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1069: The Ninth Child [2 in 1]

Chen Ge silently sneaked his way to the dam. He slowly approached the pair of mother and son. When he was about five to six meters away from them, he yelled, "Calm down! What are you planning to do!"

At this distance, no matter what kind of rash decision they made, Chen Ge would have enough time to stop and rescue them. Hearing Chen Ge's voice, the mother turned around to his direction with shock. She appeared to have not expected to run into anyone so early in the morning at a place like this.

"Can we sit down for a talk?" Chen Ge reached his hand out. He stopped where he was and maintained a safe distance so that he would not place too much psychological pressure on the pair. After experiencing so much, Chen Ge was not so different from a trained suicide intervention worker.

...

"I think you have some kind of misunderstanding." The woman smiled. She pulled the boy's hand and wanted to walk away from the dam, but the boy was unwilling. He kept making this grumbling voice and used every ounce of energy in his body to resist. The woman's voice when she spoke and the expression that she had when speaking were completely normal; she did not appear like those who had been pressed by life to the end of their line.

With an audible sigh of relief, Chen Ge slowly walked toward the mother and son.

"Why would you bring your son over the railing? That is too dangerous. What if either of you slip and fall? The dam is very deep. If you were captured by the water ghosts, imagine how scary that will be."

"I am so sorry. We will pay more attention to this in the future." The woman still held the boy's hand, and when Chen Ge's approached, she silently moved to stand guardedly before him as if she did not want Chen Ge to see the boy's face.

“Do not stay too close to the water, especially when you have a child with you.” Chen Ge was not joking about the danger of the water ghosts. Chen Ge had encountered them on his mission before. The little boy was standing at the edge of the water, and he had been reaching out to touch the surface of the water. If a water ghost had reached out to pull into the dam, the consequences would have been unimaginably bad.

After a lot of time and effort, the woman finally managed to drag the boy away from the dam and over the railing. The boy did not appear to know how to speak. The voices that came out of his lips were more akin to mumbles. His hands gripped the railing tightly as he continued to struggle.

“He seems to like water a lot,” Chen Ge commented when he saw this strange reaction from the boy.

“It’s not that. The boy just likes to come to this particular dam to play. I also have no idea why. If he does not get to come to Eastern Jiujiang Dam at least once a day, he will make life very difficult for me.”

“Your child...” Chen Ge’s eyes leaped over the woman to look at the boy whom she was guarding behind her. The boy had a very cute face, but perhaps because he had been crying and struggling, his eyes were particularly red-rimmed. There were blood vessels at the bottom of his eyes, and they were not as clear as a normal boy’s eyes should be.

“I promise to pay more attention in the future.” The woman did not answer Chen Ge’s floating question. It appeared like she did not like discussing her own child with other people. Holding the boy’s hand, the woman told the boy gently, “It’s time to go.”

Her voice was laced with heavy love and concern. It was clear that she adored this child even though he was slightly different from other children.

“I have heard some things about this dam from the manager of this place before. I do not know whether they are real or not,” Chen Ge whispered as if in an afterthought. “He told me that there are water ghosts living inside this dam, and at the bottom of the dam, there is a sunken coffin. Some children saw piles of black grass floating at the side of the water. They went to look out of curiosity, and they shockingly realized that the grass was actually the hair of the water ghosts. When the children got dangerously close to the water, they would be dragged down by the water ghosts and then locked up inside the sunken coffin.”

When Chen Ge said those things, he kept his attention on the boy. Unfortunately, he did not discern any unusual reactions from the boy.

“You still believe these things? The manager probably made up those stories to warn the children from getting too close to the water and to stop them from jumping into the dam to swim and play.” The woman did not believe in talk of the supernatural.

“I have some pictures with me that might prove that the manager was telling the truth.” Chen Ge took out his own phone and found the picture when the police came to the dam to salvage the dead bodies and when they took out the large number of dolls from inside the coffin. The sun was slowly rising. It dispersed the light fog that had lingered on the surface of the lake. The scenery there was actually breathtaking, but unfortunately, no one at the dam was in the mood to admire it. Chen Ge held his phone up for the woman and showed her the pictures that he had saved.

From the perspective of a normal person, Chen Ge would appear to be a very strange fella. Early in the morning, he intercepted a mother and son who appeared to be passing by, and then he started to tell them scary stories and show them horrifying pictures. A normal person’s reaction would be to brush Chen Ge off and come out with an excuse to hurry away, but the mother’s reaction was slightly different. While holding her son’s hand, she kept countering Chen Ge’s statements.

Even when she was given the proof of the pictures, the woman refused to believe any hearsay about ghosts and Specters. If anything, she kept insisting to Chen Ge that all those supernatural stories were made up. Chen Ge initially thought that the woman was just a firm believer in her faith, but soon, he noticed something wrong. The woman eventually started to appear like she was not trying to persuade Chen Ge, but she was feeding herself the words again and again.

Is it possible that she knows something? But she refuses to acknowledge them?

Chen Ge had a good impression of this woman. After going through the many doors during the ghost fetus trial mission, he had a newfound respect for parents who took good care of their children. When Chen Ge was still in an argument with the woman, each trying to convince the other their point of view, the boy started to make a scene again. He gripped the railing tightly and started to shake. He wanted to get close to the water.

“Has something happened to you or this boy here?” Chen Ge turned his attention back to the boy. He felt like he would not get any further information from the parent.

“No, the boy has been like this since he was young. He will only calm down when he comes here. I personally do not understand why.” Once the woman was brought back to the topic of her own son, her voice softened. It was obvious that she harbored no ill intention toward her child, and she did not want others to think that her child was that different from the other normal kids.

“I worked at an orphanage for quite some time. I have encountered a boy with similar condition, but the difference was that the child like to visit haunted houses.” Chen Ge walked to the boy and knelt down beside him. He followed the boy’s gaze and looked into the distance. “Are you looking for something? Is there something that is bothering you under the water?”

The woman did not wish for Chen Ge to have a conversation with her child. She pulled her boy behind her, but the boy refused to let go of his grip on the railing. He cried and resisted. The woman had probably already gotten used to all this already. No matter how big a commotion the boy made, she did not get mad, but the worry at the bottom of her eyes was getting more and more obvious.

“Can you tell uncle what your name is?” Chen Ge felt like he had always been good with children, but this boy before him had completely ignored him. It was like he was locked in his own world, and he only kept only crying and wailing.

“I have toys with me. Would you like to play with them?” Chen Ge opened his backpack and poked his head in to take a look before silently zipping his backpack up again. None of the things inside the backpack seemed appropriate for a child.

“I am so sorry, but we have been here for quite some time already. It should be time for us to go home.” The woman picked up the boy who was still crying, and she wanted to forcibly carry the boy away. Chen Ge kept his eyes on the surface of the water. He dropped this question in the intention of a test. “Are you looking for your past?”

Seeing as the woman continued to carry the boy away, Chen Ge stood up and asked another question, “Are you looking for the ghost fetus’ past?”

He was just trying his luck. He thought that the boy was acting very strangely, but to his surprise, when he mentioned the term ‘ghost fetus’, the boy suddenly stopped crying. It was so sudden that it even startled the boy’s own mother. The breeze caused ripples on the surface of the water. The boy’s eyes moved to fall on Chen Ge for the first time. It seemed like the term ‘ghost fetus’ carried a very special meaning to him.

“Sir, what did you just say?” The woman stopped moving and turned around to accost Chen Ge.

“It was nothing.” Chen Ge’s expression was severe, and he gave off a very unsettling presence. It was like a patient had gone to the hospital suspecting that he had been infected by some horrible disease. Then he was sitting in the consultation room after his inspection, but the doctor held the results and said nothing while looking at him with a serious countenance. That was how the woman was feeling. The more Chen Ge was unwilling to share, the more curious she was because this situation had never happened before.

“Fine, if you do not want to tell, so be it.” After standing there in a stalemate for a long time, the woman bowed slightly to Chen Ge.

As she turned to leave, Chen Ge’s voice came from behind her. “Now, do you believe me?”

The woman’s footsteps halted again. The expression on her face was one of helplessness. “What is it that you want from us? Can you please get to the point already?”

“Your child might not be yours.”

When Chen Ge came up with that statement, it obviously triggered the woman. She ignored Chen Ge and turned to leave.

“I know that it will sound grating to your ears, but I do not wish to lie to you. There is another person living inside your child.”

Initially, Chen Ge was just testing out his theory. He himself did not expect that once he mentioned the words ‘ghost fetus’, the boy would react like he did. This could only mean that the word had a place in the deep recesses of his memory. In other words, Chen Ge felt like he had perhaps stumbled upon the ghost fetus’ very last candidate.

Assuming that his previous analysis was all correct and the ghost fetus had buried his past in the cave inside the dam, the fact that the boy would be pulled here every day was obviously because he was attracted by his buried memory, and he wanted to look for his past. The chance of the ghost fetus being inside this boy's body was very high. Of all the children, only this boy was attracted to this place by the ghost fetus' memory. Of course, this was all mere speculation from Chen Ge. There was a chance that this was just misdirection by the ghost fetus to confuse him.

"I know that my child is a bit different from other children his age, but I still think you have crossed the line for saying something as horrible as that." The woman hugged the boy, and the tiredness was plain in her eyes. It felt as if she had repeated this statement to many other people before. By now, she had tired herself out by explaining the situation, and she did not feel like doing it anymore.

"Chill down. I do not mean you or your child any harm. Honestly, I might profess that I have very rich experience in helping children like your boy."

"Who exactly are you? Have we met each other somewhere else before?"

"I know it is pointless for me to say anything else. I only need you to trust me this one time." Chen Ge opened his phone to click open the past news on the local crime channel and news network. "These are all the articles on me. I assure you that I mean you and your child no harm."

It was extremely difficult to gain a stranger's trust, but Chen Ge had an advantage that worked in his favor, and that was his 'reputation' within the Jiujiang law enforcement system. With the testimonials from the police, most people would choose to trust Chen Ge. The woman's attitude softened slightly. She studied the articles and even suspected that some of them were made up.

So, she took out her own phone and did her own search, and in that process, she found out about Chen Ge's actual occupation—the operator of a theme park's haunted house. That just made this already strange encounter even more interesting.

"I was not lying to you, was I?"

"You are quite famous." The woman appeared gentle and soft on the surface, but after spending some time with her, Chen Ge realized that this was a protective layer that she put on. It was not that the woman refused to trust others—she had gotten too used to relying on herself.

“Now, I hope that we can sit down and have a good chat.” Chen Ge turned to look at the boy. “When did this happen to him?”

“I honestly do not know how to answer that question. Perhaps he was born different. I could not stop feeling that this was all my fault. But either way, the boy is innocent. Perhaps we merely have not learned how to accept the way that he is.” The child was a soft spot for the woman. It was the thing that gave her a backbone, and it was also the thing that scarred her heart the deepest. “The doctors say that my son suffers from autism, and he should receive treatment as early as he can, but I feel like... Sigh... never mind. The doctors are probably right, and I was just overthinking it.”

The woman was still hiding something. She refused to share it with Chen Ge, and Chen Ge did not pressure her to do so.

“Do you mind letting me see where the boy normally lives?” Chen Ge wanted to go to the woman’s home to see if he could find any clues but coming out directly with that request sounded quite rude, so he phrased it in a more rounded way.

“That is no problem, but I have to get to work. How about I meet you again at noon?” The woman passed Chen Ge a business card. Then, as if she did not wish to waste any more time, she left in a hurry.

“An estate agent?” Chen Ge took a glance at the business card before placing it inside his back. “New Century Park is about to open for business soon. It is unrealistic for me to get into the dam myself.”

He carried his backpack to a place that was shaded from the sun. Flipping through the comic, he summoned Xu Yin, Xiao Bu, Men Nan, and the Red Specter water ghost.

“There is a favor that I need to ask from you.” Chen Ge stared at the water ghost. “In a minute, I need you to lead the three of them into the dam. I need you to help me look for a coffin. There is a large hole behind that coffin. I want you guys to go inside the hole to investigate it for me and see what’s hiding inside.”

“I can do this alone. There is no reason to trouble them.” The water ghost was being so kind and friendly, a complete 180 from his first encounter with Chen Ge.

“Don’t worry, I’m not asking them to follow you because I am afraid that you might run away. I want them to protect you. The hole is very dangerous. You must not let your guard down.” Chen Ge sent them into the water dam, and then he waited beside the dam. About half an hour passed, but none of the Red Specters returned.

“Could there have been an accident? Impossible, with Xiao Bu there, even if they run into a Top Red Specter, they should be able to at least retreat safely.” He continued to wait for some time. Just as Chen Ge was about to flip through the comic to summon more Red Specters to find the earlier group, the smell of blood in the air thickened, and the few Red Specters appeared soundlessly beside Chen Ge.

“So, did you find anything?” Seeing how blanched the water ghost was, Chen Ge had a very bad feeling.

“The cave appears to be connected to the few major rivers across Jiujiang. It is an underwater maze down there. We swam for a long time, but we still could not find an exit.” Men Nan was the first to speak. “And there appears to be something very scary residing inside the cave. The thing gives off a presence that threatens even Xiao Bu.”

“Even Xiao Bu feels threatened? A normal Red Specter cannot do that.”

“The thing that gave off that presence did not appear to be a Red Specter.” The water ghost looked worse for wear. Initially, he really did think about escaping but once he entered the cave, he abandoned the thought and stuck as close to Xiao Bu as he could.

“Then, what do you think it is?”

“I am not sure, but it is probably not a ghost or a spirit. Oh, we also found these inside the cave...” The water ghost took out two roughly-hewn statuettes. They were a pair, one male and one female. Chen Ge’s parent’s names were blurrily carved on them.

“Where exactly did you find these inside the cave?”

“The whole cave system is filled with their statuettes, but almost of them have been destroyed in some way. It felt like someone made them and then purposely ruined them. We searched for a long time before we managed to find these two that were still relatively intact.”

Chapter 1070 - The Disappeared Estate Agent [2 in 1]

Chapter 1070: The Disappeared Estate Agent

[2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Chen Ge looked at the two statuettes with his parents' names and remained quiet. No one knew what he was thinking. The sun was rising, and Chen Ge summoned all the Red Specters back into the comic. He held the two statuettes and stood beside the dam. "I once heard from the shadow that should the ghost fetus be born, the whole city might end up being its mother."

The water was too deep to see right down to the bottom. Under the clear and calm surface, no one knew what kind of horrors were hidden right underneath it.

...

"The ghost fetus probably wishes for his own parents as well." Putting away the two statuettes, Chen Ge turned to leave. "The change in the shadow happened after he entered the world behind the door. It was the door at the haunted house that completely changed him. After this ghost fetus trial mission is over, I will need to push open the door to go in and look."

2Taking a cab back to the New Century Park, Chen Ge gave his employees a makeover, and then he squirreled into the staff breakroom. Once his head hit the pillow, he was sound asleep. He needed to have a good rest because the last night was coming. The next time the sun rose, the person that opened his eyes to the sunlight might not be him anymore. The haunted house's business was booming, and he no longer needed to worry about it as much as he did previously. The employees at the haunted house had gotten used to the life there; their 'lives' had been extended via a different kind of method.

At one in the afternoon, Chen Ge was woken up by the alarm. He grabbed his bag and hurried to leave the staff breakroom. He followed the address on the business card and once again found himself in the part of the old town.

“After so many twists and turns, I am surprised that I have returned to this place.”

The old town was a sparkling city in itself. The places that Chen Ge had once visited were only a small part of it. He held the business card and asked the pedestrians along the way before he found the location where the woman worked beside a very old looking residential area.

“Jiu Hong Housing Agency?” Half of the characters on the billboard were missing, and the glass doors were left open like there was something wrong with them that stopped them from closing completely. The utility pole that faced the door was covered in an array of advertisements. There were those looking for partners, those offering treatment for skin diseases, and of course, the quintessential missing person ads. A few bicycles were placed unevenly next to the utility pole, and one of them even had a punctured tire. From the looks of it, it was purposely done by human hands.

The tiles that covered the entrance were quite neat, but it was only the small part near the entrance. The tiles around it were all cracked, and if you stepped on one, dirty water would seep out from underneath them. As Jiujiang continued to reap the benefits of industrialization and modernization, most places in the old town had been given a new breath of life, but this place was clearly an exception.

Chen Ge held the business card and glanced into the building. On a wooden sofa sat an old man who was sighing. He held a cup of murky tea in his hands. There was the sound of arguing coming from inside the house. The argument was so loud that even Chen Ge, who stood outside the building, could hear it clearly.

“Big sister, the place that you recommended me is really not to my taste. No matter what, you will need to help us move away from that place today!”

“Yes, it is not that we are being unreasonable, but who dares to live in a home like that?”

“Yes! Get us away from that place now! Do you think this is easy for us? If you insist on not doing that, then we will come here every day and create a ruckus!”

A group of people were surrounding the service counter, and emotions were high. It sounded like they had been swindled by the estate agent, and they were demanding retribution.

“Uncle, what they are arguing about?” Chen Ge sneaked into the room. He did not announce his arrival to the workers there but took a seat next to the old man like they had been good friends for years.

“Are you here to find a place to rent as well?”

“Of course, why else would I come here?” Chen Ge took a curious glance at the service counter. The boy’s mother had a bitter expression on her face as she kept trying to explain the situation to the people around her.

“Do not use the service of this place no matter what. Hurry and leave while you still can.” The old man warned him in a small whisper.

“Why?” Chen Ge had to know.

“Do not be fooled by your greed. I know that the rental price here is the cheapest around Jiujiang, but...” The old man scratched his head. “It is hard to say.”

“Sir, don’t just start the sentence but not finish it. You are only making me even more interested to know what is happening.”

“It is not that I am trying to play with you, but it is mainly because I do not know how to explain it to you myself. In any case, the places here are very strange. Something is bound to happen. There was a rumor going around that the boss here was in the business of renting out and selling haunted houses where people died.” The wrinkles on the old man’s face were folded together. “You know about those places, right? Their boss knew that people had died into those houses before, but he still rented them out at a very low price without revealing that piece of information to the renters.

“Coincidentally enough, the renter was an avid ghost story lover. He spent his hours online scouring actual ghost stories, and one night, he saw an article online, and the picture that was used in that article was the house that he was currently living in.”

“I can barely imagine how creepy that must have been.” Chen Ge realized that the old man was quite interesting. He even knew about actual ghost stories in the world.

“Well, you are not wrong that. It almost scared the daylight out of the renter. The bed that he had been sleeping in was once the final resting place for a dead body, and the bathtub that he used was the place where a person drowned. Who would be able to take a 'surprise' like that?" The old man sighed, and the wrinkles on his face seemed to deepen.

"Then, did the estate agent allow him to move away?"

"If they did, this would not have been exposed to the neighbors. The estate agent refused to entertain the man's request of claiming his deposit back. The most he would do was find him a new home. The person came from another city, and he still had not landed a firm occupation at the city, so he had no choice but to take the offer. And then you will never expect what happened next." The old man put down the cup of tea. "He started to move that afternoon, and the moving continued into the night. When he settled into his new home, the first thing he did was to get online to check if there was any connection between his new home and murder cases, and it turned out..."

"So, what was it this time?" Chen Ge's interest was piqued. He felt that the renter would not be that 'lucky'.

"The last place that he moved away from was the site of a murder, and the place that he had just moved into was the site of a suicide. He tried to peel back part of the walls, and he even found some hairs stuck behind it." Even the old man did not know how to continue.

"That is just too much. Was the estate agent purposely trying to scam the poor renter?" Chen Ge put down his backpack and leaned against the back of the sofa as he adjusted himself into a more comfortable position. "Did the estate agent finally agree to help the renter move to a better place?"

"The man had already been scammed twice. Do you think he would use the service of this place? Naturally, he demanded the deposit and wished to leave this place as soon as possible."

"So, this time, the estate agent finally agreed to return to him his deposit?"

"Do you see the tallest fella inside the room? If the estate agent had agreed to return his money, he would not be here today," the old man said with a bitter smile.

"So, that is the main character from the stories!" Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision to scan the man. The man had very serious eye bags.

Even though his frame was tall, he was weak and lacking in Yang energy.

“He was not the only victim of this place. Since the housing agency’s boss refused to return their deposits, all the victims decided to gang up together to demand an explanation. In the end, the boss refused to meet them, and the boss went straight into hiding, leaving this poor receptionist to deal with the mess every day.” The old man sighed. “We have been here many times already, but this boss is a slimy one. He refused to present us with a valid solution, and we still need to go home with our hearts hanging in our throat.”

“Have you guys try calling the police or informing the local reporters? This is truly the mistake of this housing agency. Maybe some formal pressure will get things moving.”

“We have tried all the methods that we could, but it won’t work because every single one of us has our own reason to move away from our homes. Even though we all know that all our reasons, different as they might be, are valid, the people outside might not believe that.” This statement from the old man once again aroused Chen Ge’s attention.

“The reason for moving away is different for each of you? How is that?”

“That’s right. Take myself for an example. I am the oldest tenant here. Every day, at midnight, I hear the chime of clock. After so many years, I have already gotten used to it, but I only recently found out that all my neighbors are unable to hear the chime at midnight. I am the only one who is able to hear it.” The old man sighed helplessly. “I’ve stayed here for so long because I did not know about this, but now that I have found out, how am I supposed to stay here? And this reason will sound preposterous to others. They might not believe me. In fact, some of them already think that I am getting old and say that I have started to hallucinate. Just the mere mention of it incenses me even further!”

The old man stared at the murky cup of tea. “Finding a place to stay that is suitable to your taste is not easy, but there is one other way. The neighbors are slowly moving away, and the place is getting deserted. It becomes scarier and scarier now I spend my days at that place all alone at night.”

While Chen Ge and the old man were chatting, the argument at the service counter had reached a new height. The boy's mother kept bowing and apologizing. Obviously, she was the scapegoat that was pushed out by her boss to suffer the blame from the disgruntled tenants.

"Sir, what are the reasons for these other people to move? It can't be that every single room at this place is a haunted, can it?"

"Only the tall guy's place is haunted. The reasons for the others are almost similar to mine," the old man whispered back. "The pair that is making the most noise is a couple that has just moved here. They live on the fourth floor. Young people like to stay up late, and there is nothing wrong with that. One night, when they were playing games, the man heard a knock on the window. He thought that the window was not closed properly, so he went to check. But he found out there was a black shadow waving at him from the room of the opposite building as if it was inviting him to go over there."

"A black shadow? What happened then?"

"He thought that was just some trick of the light, so at the beginning, he did not care too much of it. But when he woke up the next morning, he felt a chill just thinking about it. The next day, he made a vigil voluntarily next to the window. At around 2 am, he once again saw the shadow standing on the fourth floor of the opposite building waving at him, calling him to get over there." The old man was a gifted storyteller. His pacing and intonation were well-placed, and even Chen Ge could not help but be drawn into his tales.

"So, did he go over there?"

"It was right in the middle of the night. Who would do that? He waited until noon the next day before he went over to the opposite building. But people on that floor told him that the room was supposed to be empty. The person who stayed there had moved away a long time ago.

"And do you think that was all? When he returned that night, he once again waited next to the window. This time, there was no more shadow waving at him from the opposite side, but the glass windows at his place kept making noises at night, like someone was leaning outside his window and trying to pry his windows open to get in."

"What the... Now that is a scary thought." Chen Ge placed his hand over his heart. "But could it be a psychological effect, just the man scaring himself?"

“Who can know for sure? But the issue is, these strange events have happened to more than a handful of us.” The old man pointed to a student who was filling in a document on the left side of the service counter. “The student often hears a woman’s whispering coming from the room above him, as if she was whispering some kind of secrets to her partner. He thought the sound-proofing between the floor was not that good, so he did not mind it that much. After a week, his neighbor from upstairs came down to warn to stop chatting with people so late at night. Only then did he realize that the woman’s voice did not appear to come from upstairs but probably came from a corner of his own room.”

“That might not be true. Since both the upstairs and downstairs neighbor heard her so clearly, perhaps the woman is hiding between the two floors, and her body is buried inside the cement?” Out of habit, Chen Ge could not help but provide his one analysis.

“Now that you mention it...” The old man’s face blanched immediately. “It might be true!”

“I was just giving a casual observation. Don’t take it to heart.”

“How can I not?” The old man stood up and moved toward the service counter. What Chen Ge had told him gave him a boost, and his desire to move away became even firmer. To help share the burden from the mother’s shoulders, Chen Ge also hurried over. “Please keep the noise now. Arguing will get you nowhere. I will help solve your problem.”

To be honest, the boy’s mother did not have a good first impression of Chen Ge, but when she was surrounded by a mob and Chen Ge came to her rescue, her impression of Chen Ge improved tremendously.

“Who are you?” For many of the tenants, this was their first time meeting Chen Ge. They were at the height of their temper, and since Chen Ge had come as a volunteer, they turned their anger toward him.

“Who I am is not important. The important thing is that I can help you solve all of your problems.” Chen Ge carried his backpack and stood before the crowd. “Can you just give me one night? Since your method is going nowhere, why not give me one night to try? Trust me one time.”

The few tenants were victims of horrible business practice, so to have them trust a stranger was too difficult.

“What nonsense are you talking about. Why should we trust you? This keeps getting dragged out day after day. You people keep finding excuses to blow us off. At the end of the day, you do not wish to help us with our problems at all...”

“If I am unable to help you solve your problem tonight, then I will rent all of your rooms. The deposit that the estate agent is keeping from you, I will replace it, and the rent that the estate agent refuses to return to you, I will compensate as well. If you still do not believe me, we can sit down and draft up a contract. It will be written down in ink. Whichever party violates the contract will have to give a ten times compensation.” After Chen Ge said that, the whole room was silent. All the tenants who wanted to leave stared at him quietly.

“Are you sure?”

“Of course, but before any of you go, I need you to tell me everything there is about your room. All the details regarding the strange events that have occurred the you.” Chen Ge was doing business here. He would not only gain new employees—he could also help these poor tenants and get the most direct and truthful information from the source. “Alright, please queue up, and we will do this one by one.”

The old man who stood to the side wanted to advise Chen Ge to reconsider this, but seeing how excited the other tenants were, he could only shake his head and keep his words to himself. What the student and the couple told Chen Ge was not much different from what the old man told him earlier.

The main character there was the tenant who was very tall. He was in a very horrible condition. The two rental experiences had drained him both mentally and physically. “Both of the places that I rented are haunted. The landlord ganged up with the housing agency to scam me. If they refuse to give me my money back, I plan to go through legal channels to protect my own rights.”

“Are you hiding something from the rest of us?” Chen Ge had a feeling that the man was acting strangely, like he had a secret to hide.

When asked this question by Chen Ge, shock crossed his eyes. He hesitated for a long time before he said, “I do not think you will believe me, but I dreamed about dead people talking to me.”

“Anything is possible in a dream.”

“But the problem is, when I woke up from my dream, I opened my eyes and saw that dead person lying flat on the ceiling.” The man did not seem to have revealed that information to the other tenants. When he said that, everyone in the room could feel a chill running up their spine.

“Then, do you still remember what that person told you in your dream?”

“Brother, did you not hear me? The first thing I saw when I opened my eyes was a dead person lying on my ceiling. Would you remember what they had said in your dream?” The man gasped. Whenever he mentioned this, his body would shiver involuntarily.

“In other words, you have forgotten the things that the person told you.” Chen Ge nodded before he moved onto the next question. “How often does this happen? Every night or only occasionally?”

Chapter 1071 - Nightmare Residential Area [2 in 1]

Chapter 1071: Nightmare Residential Area [2 in 1]

“The first time it appeared, I was almost scared to death. Do you think I still have the courage to stay there anymore? I am still renting that place, but I go over to a friend’s place to sleep at night,” the tall man said with a painful expression. “I came to Jiujiang to search for a better life. I still have not found a steady job, but I am almost losing my mind.”

“I can understand your problem. How about this? Tonight, I will go home together with you, and we will go and check out the haunted rooms together.” Chen Ge gave his own phone number to all the tenants. “Go back home tonight. I will go and inspect the rooms one by one. I hope everyone will be able to cooperate with me.”

“Why can’t you go and take a look at the place now? Honestly, I do not dare enter that place anymore at night. Whenever I step into it, I feel my heart shivering as if someone is staring closely at me.” The tall man appeared to have been traumatized by this horrifying experience.

...

“You can wait outside the door first. When I arrive, we will go into the room together.” Chen Ge asked for the details of everyone that wanted to request for a move away. After he jotted down all the strange phenomena, he finally got them to leave in peace after much persuasion and nudging.

Seeing the whole pages filled with notes, Chen Ge was rather confused and confounded by it. If none of the tenants were lying, the intensity of the supernatural activity at this residential area was as high as the two-star scenarios at his haunted house. Almost every room was a background for supernatural activity, and they were the kinds that got scarier and scarier, the kind that would make one’s hair stand on end the more one thought about it.

“Do you really intend to return the money to them?” The boy’s mother poured a cup of tea for Chen Ge. “I know you wish to help me, but I advise that you do not get yourself involved in this mess.”

“Things are not so easy on their end either. I am merely taking their concern into consideration. Since I believe I can help them, why not?” Chen Ge had his eyes on this residential area as he entered the housing agency, so even if the tenants did not face any problems, he would ‘create’ some problems so that he could step forward to provide his help. That was the highest height of being a good Samaritan.

“The group of tenants still do not trust you. They heard that you are willing to pay them back their rent and deposit, and that is why they came up with all those fake stories to scam you.” The boy’s mother handed the cup of tea to Chen Ge.

“You think they are telling fake stories? You do not believe them?”

“Of course, I have been a worker here for so many years. If this place was really haunted, I would have handed in my resignation letter a long time ago.” The woman sighed. “As you know, the economy these days is not so good. They just want to find an excuse to move away without breaking the signed contract.”

“You have worked here for so long, but you have not run into one single strange phenomenon?” Chen Ge was rather surprised. The residential area that the woman described was vastly different from the one described by the group of disgruntled tenants.

“Hiding the fact that a place was a murder scene was indeed the fault of our agency, but you have to understand that in that case, we are also a victim. It was the landlord who lied to us and kept that from us.”

“Then, it is your company’s lack of responsibility to not conduct a further investigation. Put yourself in their shoes. If you found out that you and your son have been staying at a murder scene, wouldn’t you feel more than a bit unsettled by it?”

“As a matter of fact, my son and I are currently living at a former murder scene. We bought it about ten years ago, and the price was at least a quarter lower than the market price. We have lived there for a decade, and nothing out of the ordinary has happened. Actually, most of the time, this talk of ghosts is just a matter of the mind. As long as you do not overthink it, it really does not matter whether you are staying at a haunted house or not.” The woman was surprisingly courageous but strangely close-minded. She had a determined heart and a gentle way of speaking, so that combined to make her a perfect receptionist at an estate agency.

“You are also living at a former murder scene?” Chen Ge slowly lifted his head to look at the woman. “And you have been living there for over a decade?”

“That might be difficult for you to grasp, but for a person in the estate agent business like myself, there is nothing that can phase me anymore. Not everyone minds living in places where other people have once passed away.”

“I mean, have you not run into anything strange occurrence in the past ten years? Has your child told you anything out of the ordinary?”

Once the child was brought up, it was as if a wall was built around the woman. She lost her interest in their conversation almost instantly.

“Even at his current age, he is barely able to call me ‘mom’. What out of the ordinary thing could he have told me? I am in your debt for helping me chase them away, but you are trying to wake up a bunch of people who are faking their sleep. They are just trying to scam you. Tomorrow, they will return to demand the promised rent and deposit from you.”

“Don’t you bet on that so fast.” Through the short conversation, Chen Ge noticed the problems with the woman. She not only refused to believe in the presence of the supernatural, she would also subconsciously negate and ignore everything that had anything to do with the supernatural. So many tenants had come to her with the complaints that the place was haunted, but the woman believed obstinately that they were just a bunch of dissatisfied tenants who wanted to break their rental contract. Furthermore, from her tone and expression, Chen Ge realized that the woman was not faking her belief. It was from the bottom of her heart that she believed that the tenants were trying to create a ruckus, and she refused to be swayed by their stories, not even a bit.

“Then I won’t disturb you anymore. I will go to the tenants’ place to take a look.” Chen Ge took the white paper that was filled with handwriting and started his preparation for the mission that night. The woman’s son might be the ninth child chosen by the ghost fetus. Getting to know the child and his surrounding living environment would effectively lower the difficulty of the impending mission.

“I will go with you since there are no customers now. Even if someone does come, they will be scared away by those old tenants.” The woman packed her stuff, grabbed a bag, and walked out from behind the service counter.

“Is that really appropriate?”

“It is our job as estate agent to help our customers take look at their prospective houses. If you really return their deposits to them and take on all their rooms, then you will be one of our biggest clients in the future. How is this not appropriate?”

The two walked down the old, deserted street to enter the rather aged residential area close by.

“Jin Hwa[1] Apartments and Jiu Hong[2] Apartments used to be separated, but due to some unknown reason, the wall between the two apartments was broken down. Now, the two apartments are in one residential area.”

The woman was a good estate agent. She had memorized all the details regarding this place in her heart.

“The one with the brand-new white coat of paint is Jin Hwa Apartments. They were built about twenty-six years ago. Most of our tenants are staying at this place. Jin Hwa Apartments consists of two separate buildings, A and B, and each apartment building has nine floors. Back when it was built, it was one of the tallest building around the old city. It came equipped with an old-fashioned elevator. By the way, this is where my family lives.

“The few squatter, gray-looking buildings on the side are Jiu Hong Apartments. There are four buildings in total. Initially, the developer wanted to build many high rises that rose up into the sky, having nine floors as the name suggested, but some kind of problem happened when they built onto the fourth floor. Regardless, the name Jiu Hong Apartments has stuck.”

After entering the residential area, the woman was conspicuously more relaxed and at ease.

“Actually, Jiu Hong Apartments is not a bad place. They are facing the river that runs through the city on the western and eastern side. On the southern side, there is a small fruit orchard, and it is connected to Jin Hwa Apartments by the northern side. Other than the lack of good lightning, it is a good place to live.”

“Are you sure estate agents can say things like that? Those are just blatant lies, right? This place is so isolated that there are barely any people around, and you are telling me this is a good place to live?”
Chen Ge took a good look around. The place where Jiu Hong Apartment was situated in very backwoods. The place was basically cut off from the rest of the city on both the east and west side by the rivers, and eerie looking woods were situated on the northern side. If the woman did not mention it, he would not have believed it was a 'fruit orchard'. Even after the woman had said so, Chen Ge was still not convinced that it was the truth.

"At least the air here is very fresh, and it is untainted by the city. You have to understand how difficult it is to find a place as clean as this sanctuary in the middle of a bustling city."

Once the woman finished, she noticed that Chen Ge had stopped moving. She followed the direction of Chen Ge's gaze and noticed that Chen Ge was staring at a sign pasted on the wall outside the Block A of Jin Hwa Apartments. The general content was that this place was haunted and warned people to stay away from it if they could.

"This is just one of the tricks came up by the tenants, venting their emotions. Ignore it." The woman moved silently to remove the sign. After taking a quick tour, Chen Ge had familiarized himself with the layout of the residential area. Jin Hwa Apartments was connected to Jiu Hong Apartments, and there were two entrances. The bigger and more official entrance was on the side of Jin Hwa Apartments, and the other entrance was closer to Jiu Hong Apartments. It led toward that creepy orchard.

"Why does the entrance lead to the orchard? What is the purpose of placing it there? Do people go to the orchard often?"

"Initially, the developer of Jiu Hong Apartments planned to design that spot as a bio garden, but the plan did not take off. The concept was a bit new-fangled at the time, and many people did not even understand what it meant, so most of the people did not agree, and the plan was eventually left abandoned."

A poor, old, tattered, and eerie location was turned into an untouched natural paradise in the middle of the city by the woman. That was probably her professional skills kicking in.

"There is no need for you to give the sales pitch. I am here to solve the tenants' problem, not to find a place to rent."

Jin Hwa Apartments looked at least relatively normal. From the surface, it was a typical residential area. Other than the lack of tenants and a still quietness, there was nothing wrong with it. In contrast, Jiu Hong Apartments next to it was completely different. It was the direct opposite of Jin Hwa Apartments. There was not even one human life that could be seen. It was more like a deserted building than an apartment housing area.

“I say, is this residential area completely empty?”

“It’s not that bad. There are good old tenants who have lived here for a very long time. The rent here is very cheap, and you can get cheap supplies around the area. After some time, you will get used to it, and you might even find the freedom quite enjoyable.”

“Those who can get used to living at a place like this are not so simple themselves probably.”

Narrowing his eyes, Chen Ge swept the few old buildings. It was just a quick glance, but he had already noticed some very scary details. On the balcony of the third floor of the first building, there hung a row of wigs. The tenant was probably a hairdresser, but this was the first time that Chen Ge had seen someone dry their rows of wigs out in the sun and rain in such a manner before.

“What’s up with the wigs?”

“The tenant on the third floor of the first building of Jiu Hong Apartments was a teacher at hairdressing school, but after his school shut down, he brought all the fake head models and wigs home. Since this place is so close to the water, the air can get pretty humid at times. So, he occasionally puts his wigs out in the sun to prevent them from getting moldy.” The woman was not lying when she said that she had been living here for years. She was familiar with most of the tenants there.

“The other tenants have no issue with him doing something like this?”

“He has done nothing wrong. He’s just drying the wigs out in the sunlight. How does it affect others?”

The wigs stood in a row on the third floor. As scary as they were, it was still acceptable. His eyes continued to move upward, and on the fourth floor, Chen Ge saw a human shadow standing behind the curtain. Ever since Chen Ge stepped into this place, the human shadow had not moved from his spot.

“Do you know who lives on the fourth floor?”

“It is a single middle-aged man. He is rarely seen outside his home. No one knows what he does for a living, but whenever he's seen, he's dressed from head to toe in branded clothes."

"Then, there is a very big problem with that. Why would a person decked out in expensive clothes choose to live in a place like this?" Chen Ge had already memorized the man's room location in his mind.

"Who knows? Perhaps he is running away from some debt."

As his eyes continued to move up, Chen Ge discovered something else on the fifth floor. The room on the leftmost side had the curtain pulled off slightly, and through the gap, half of a binocular and some professional camera equipment were exposed. If not for Chen Ge's Yin Yang Vision, he would not have caught sight of those things.

"A peeping tom?"

Out of habit, he turned to the opposite building. There were female undergarments of various colors and even different sizes hung on the balcony of the fifth floor on the second building. If that was just everything, Chen Ge would not have minded it, but the problem was that he noticed many very big and bulging black plastic bags that occupied the balcony as well. Who knew what was stuffed inside them?

"Hey! It is rude for you to stare like that," the woman warned Chen Ge softly. "A pair of sisters live on the fifth floor of the second building. They are both quite young, and they came from the countryside. They are quite innocent and new to the city."

"Innocent and naïve?" Standing inside the residential area, Chen Ge already felt a headache coming. The problem with this residential area was much more serious than he thought. Most of the normal tenants were gearing up to leave already, and those who wanted to stay were abnormal to a certain degree. "Other than the ghosts, I will need to be careful of the tenants as well."

There were too many extenuating factors to consider. It was surprisingly hard to get to know the boy, but at this point, Chen Ge had no other choice but to keep going. After moving around for half an hour, Chen Ge was covered in sweat. He was feeling rather fatigued.

"You lack physical training. We have not even walked for that long." After this period of interaction with Chen Ge, the woman realized that the man was quite a good person. Even though he might come up with some strange comments and have a naturally suspicious personality, he was quite an interesting person and was quite approachable and kind.

Chen Ge wiped away the sweat from his forehead. He also felt that this was very weird. He had never had any problem with his physique before. He rarely felt tired, but as the ghost fetus trial mission continued, his physical condition had continued to spiral downward.

To become a complete person, one must fulfil two conditions—a coffin that buries the past and a body brimming with life. Could the vessel that the ghost fetus is planning to use be mine? Or perhaps when he is completed, will I become a defect?

It was the final day for the ghost fetus mission. Chen Ge knew that allowing his thoughts to wander to impossible places was not going to help his case, but he could not stop himself. It was as if his body could sense that something bad was about to happen.

“You do not look so good. Is it from the sun? Do you want to stop by my place to take a quick rest?”

“That’s not a bad idea.”

The woman did not expect Chen Ge to take up her offer so readily. After a pause, she led Chen Ge into Building A of Jin Hwa Apartments. They took the old elevator to the fourth floor. Before they walked out from the elevator, they could hear the screaming and crying of a child.

“Damn it!” The woman jogged to Room 401. She pushed open the door and dashed into it. The place was a complete mess. Plastic cups littered the ground, and puddles were everywhere. The fruit basket on the coffee table was overturned, and different kinds of fruit rolled all over the ground.

Chen Ge followed the woman into the room. He noticed that all the lights in the room was switched on. Not only that, all the drawers and cupboard doors were pulled open. Even the fridge was left open, as if someone had been searching for something inside the room. Side-stepping the fruit and trash on the ground, Chen Ge walked toward the bedroom and then saw a gut-wrenching scene.

The boy had cried until his eyes had swollen shut. A scary noise was coming out of his mouth. His teeth were tightly gritted together, and the expression on his face spoke of pain. The boy seemed unable to control his emotions. He whacked heavily and repeatedly on the woman, and he even used his mouth to bite on her shoulder.

“Do you need some help?”

“It’s fine. Xiang Nuan is just afraid.”

Blood was coming out from her shoulder wound, but the woman maintained her posture. The boy knocked heavily into the woman’s body, but she lightly caressed him, her fingers trailing gingerly down the boy’s back. After a few minutes of this, the boy finally returned to normal. He plonked to the ground and pulled on the woman’s sleeve with an innocent expression on his face.

Chen Ge had many questions, but to not impose too much on the woman, he waited for a long time before he asked them. “How often does this happen? Why didn’t you just send him to a special ed school?”

“I sincerely do not know where to start.” The woman rubbed her shoulder and looked at the boy on the ground. “Xiang Nuan is a bit different from other children.”

[1] Jin Hwa can also mean Golden Shine.

[2] Jiu Hong can also mean Nine Great.

Chapter 1072 - The Last Night (2in1)

Chapter 1072: The Last Night (2in1)

Translator: Lonelytree

“I know you are trying your best to look after him, and you want to do it yourself, but is that really what is the best for the child? The teachers at the special ed school will be far more experienced than both of us. They have been given training and a whole set of systematic methods that are designed to help uniquely gifted kids learn and get an education...”

“How do you know I have not contacted such schools on Xiang Nuan’s behalf before?” The woman seemed to have an inherent meaning in her words. “The teachers and doctors at those schools always tried to treat Xiang Nuan as a child with autism, but I do not think Xiang Nuan suffers from autism although I will admit that the symptoms he portrays are rather similar to those who has autism.”

...

Chen Ge really did not know how to form an opinion of this mother. She was very sharp and astute in a way. If Chen Ge was not mistaken with his guess, he agreed with the mother that Xiang Nuan indeed was not suffering from autism; he merely had something taken away from him by the ghost fetus. The child was stubborn, temperamental, impossible to communicate with, and always locked himself up in his own little world. His various actions confused others, and he would occasionally do things that would harm others and even sometimes harm himself. He seemed to be in a lot of pain, but other than his own mother, no other person in this world seemed to be able to really comprehend the pain that he was going through. In fact, even his mother did not quite understand what kind of experience her son was going through.

“Xiang Nuan is very shy around strangers; he has an innate fear of people. I suppose you can view it as a form of paranoia. He believes that everyone is out to get him.” The woman entered the bedroom to change into a different undershirt. She held the clothes that she had earlier in her hands. The spot around her shoulder was bleeding. It appeared like Xiang Nuan had chomped heavily into her flesh. “I believe that Xiang Nuan does have paranoia, but then the doctors told me that is impossible because Xiang Nuan is still too young to even have the concept of danger formed in his mind, so he would not have been suffering from paranoia.”

“Then, have the doctors told you how to cure Xiang Nuan’s illness?”

“The doctors also suggested that I send Xiang Nuan to a special ed school and then combine it with some medicine that they would prescribe, but...”

After some hesitation, the woman finally let her guard down and told Chen Ge the truth.

“Xiang Nuan often acts up due to the smallest thing. He bites the people around him, he smashes the things that he can grab his hands on, and he is clearly very hostile. Most of the children at the special ed school calm down after being aided for some time by the professional teachers, but Xiang Nuan was different. None of the teachers and doctors seemed to be able to do anything to help him. Other than pumping him with heavy doses of sedatives, I am the only one who is able to make him calm down when he goes on a rampage.”

Bringing the bloodied clothes to the washing machine, the woman sighed softly. “I have visited almost all the special ed schools around Jiujiang. Initially, there were some that were willing to take Xiang Nuan on, but after the few incidents and Xiang Nuan’s name got around the small circle, fewer and fewer schools were willing to take him on. They were not afraid that Xiang Nuan might injure the workers or the teachers, but they were afraid that Xiang Nuan might injure himself when he was in their care, and they would not know how to answer to me in that situation. Of course, that could just be their business talk.”

The woman and Chen Ge stood inside the bedroom. Xiang Nuan sat on the ground and toyed with a pair of chopsticks like the rest of them were not even there. He placed one chopstick over the other chopstick and then pulled the bottom chopstick down. He kept repeating this game of his over and over again.

“He has obvious problems with communication. He repeats the same strange actions, he has poor recognition ability, and he shows very few facial expressions; these are all typical symptoms of an autistic child. What has really happened to Xiang Nuan?” Chen Ge wanted to get to know the boy better. He looked around the room. “When you go to work, do you leave Xiang Nuan at home alone? Where is the boy's father?"

"When Xiang Nuan was very small, his father died from an illness."

"I am so sorry."

"It has been years already. There is nothing to apologize for." The woman knelt beside the bed and pulled out a cloth bag from underneath it. It opened to reveal several hundred wooden chopsticks that were arranged neatly.

"What are you doing?"

"Like I said, Xiang Nuan is very different from other kids his age. He does not like to play with toys but instead likes to play with wooden sticks and chopsticks. I personally do not understand why. When I am supposed to be reporting at work, I toss out all of these chopsticks, and he can occupy himself with them for the whole day."

Looking at Xiang Nuan who was quietly building something out of the chopsticks, a smile involuntarily appeared on the woman's face. "Actually, it is quite cute when he is acting this way."

"How did you find out he likes to play with chopsticks?" Chen Ge was rather curious about this unique hobby that Xiang Nuan had.

"One time during lunch, I accidentally placed one extra set of chopsticks on the table. When the food was served, I saw Xiang Nuan picked up the extra chopstick and stick them into his bowl of rice, and then he kept staring at them."

"Two chopsticks sticking into a bowl of white rice. That is something normally prepared for the dead on the seventh day of their death."

Chen Ge tried to analyze the situation, but all he was rewarded with was an eye roll from the woman. "I have already told you that I do not believe in this talk of ghosts."

She placed all the chopsticks beside Xiang Nuan and allowed the boy to play with them on his own. "Normally, when I bring him back from the dam, I take out the chopsticks and have him place them all over the room, but today, I had to leave in such a hurry that I completely forgot about it."

Xiang Nuan played with the chopsticks alone inside the bedroom. He was very focused in his task. Chen Ge made use of this opportunity to try to get more information out from the woman, but the reward was pitiable. Compared to the other children selected by the ghost fetus, Xiang Nuan did not appear to have experienced any outside trauma. His life so far was very idyllic and simple; he did not even have the chance to meet any strangers. Chen Ge found it impossible to work out the most despairing event in the boy's heart, and that meant that he would be completely lost when he was in the world behind this boy's door.

At around dusk, Chen Ge left the woman's home and took a trip back to New Century Park. That night was the last night for the four-star trial mission, Ghost Fetus. Whether or not he survived to see another day depended on what he did that night. He had everything to lose, so Chen Ge carried all of the ghost employees into the comic with him. Other than the lingering spirits that had no fighting ability at all, he did not exclude anyone, not even the white cat.

"The world behind the door is made from the door pusher's memory. The appearance of all the Specters is due to their lingering obsession, and the lingering obsessions themselves possess a strong and intense emotional memory. So, when I enter a certain door, the Red Specters and normal Specters will be limited by the rules behind said door. Only by breaking through the memory limitation of the world behind the door will they be able to appear in the world behind the other people's door, but the white cat is an exception to this rule. It's just a cat. The rules that target the Specters behind the door will not be able to limit it at all."

Normally, Chen Ge thought the world behind the door was too dangerous for the white cat to risk it together with him, and he did not believe a single cat would be able to change the outcome too much. However, his experience in the world behind Ying Tong's door had given him a fierce and painful reminder. Any kind of help was valuable behind the door. Furthermore, the white cat had consumed the blood vessels that the Ghost Stories Society had prepared for the Red Specters. Chen Ge had this feeling that this cat's potential had not been fully realized.

1 "You have snacked on the precious blood vessels that the ghost society went to great length to obtain and have gained a lot from it. Now, as the last surviving member of the Ghost Stories Society, it is not too much to ask for you to give me a hand, right?" Chen Ge grabbed the bag and wanted to shove the white cat into it, but he was shocked to realize that the bag that he had been using was almost too small for the white cat to fit into anymore. "Your body seems to have grown."

Looking at that familiar bag, the white cat's first intention was to run, but it was one step too late.

"I knew you wouldn't leave me alone." Carrying two bags, Chen Ge left the staff breakroom. He walked into the toilet. He looked at the broken mirror from his first nightmare mission and then at the cubicle door that was sealed up by wooden planks. "There is nothing you can do to stop a runaway train. Thus, there is no reason to have fear. It will only disrupt your heart."

Then Chen Ge lowered his head to look at his shadow. It was like a pool of darkness. Even with the Yin Yang Vision, he was unable to see anything. After consuming Ying Tong's mud statuette, Chen Ge's shadow had changed again. There was some response from Zhang Ya, but she still had not completely woken up. "Now is not the time to wait."

Walking out from the haunted house, Chen Ge stood at the entrance. After a moment's hesitation, he stopped and took out the key for the haunted house's gate and placed it above the fence. "I have been through a lot with the few of my living employees. I trust them with my life. If something happens to me, I know that they will do the right thing."

Chen Ge had carried away all the baleful Specters and Red Specters, but there were still plenty of lingering spirits at the haunted house like the students from both Mu Yang High School and the School of the Afterlife and Xiaoxiao's parent and so on. This was a home that they had found after so long; Chen Ge did not want to throw them out again.

Walking out from New Century Park, Chen Ge waited at the roadside for a cab to come by when he felt a chill run down his spine. He turned back to look and saw a young man wearing a cap way down his head standing across from the street. The rim of the cap covered the upper half of his face, so Chen Ge could not see his eyes and nose, but the strange and fixed smile on his lips was easily observable by Chen Ge.

"A non-smiler? But the body frame and height are different from the one that I met."

Chen Ge reacted very quietly. Without breaking a beat, Chen Ge reached into his backpack and pressed on the activation button on the recorder. The light from the streetlamps became twisted, and the busy streets suddenly quieted down. The young man in the cap did not expect that Chen Ge would summon a Red Specter the moment he laid eyes on him, ignoring their surroundings. The smile on his face froze for a moment. He turned and tried to lose Chen Ge in the crowd, but Chen Ge had already summoned a Red Specter, so of course, he was not going to let him go so easily.

“Did you have to find me at a moment like this? Do you wish to die that much?” Chen Ge had hardened his heart. “If a single Red Specter can’t capture you, then I will summon two. If two still can’t get you, then I will call out five. Even if I fill up the whole damn street with Red Specters, you are not getting away this time.”

The ghost fetus mission had placed a lot of pressure on Chen Ge, and it pressed him greatly. He was definitely not in a good mood.

Normal people were unable to see Red Specters and baleful Specters; those who were more sensitive would at most feel the temperature drop around them. Carrying the two big bags, Chen Ge chased closely behind the young man. Seeing the young man turn the corner and run into a small alley, Chen Ge gave a sigh of relief. It was Chen Ge’s favorite place in the world, this kind of dark and isolated small alley. In such places, he could do anything he wanted; he did not need to hold back.

“When you were chased by me, you should’ve headed toward the crowd. The best solution was to hide inside a police station and stay in there for the rest of your life.”

Soon, the young man was caught in a corner. The smile still hung on his face, but the smile in this situation appeared to be quite scary. There was no confrontation, no interrogation. The first thing Chen Ge did when he caught up to the non-smiler was have a Red Specter possess the young man’s body. Compared to using his lips to communicate with the young man, Chen Ge believed that this kind of method would be far more effective.

Non-smilers were unique creatures. They were unlike humans, and they were unlike ghosts. Chen Ge had been trying to find out what kind of creature they were, so naturally, he would not let go of this precious opportunity. Chen Ge’s presence appeared to have stunned the young man. The latter appeared to wish to say something, but he was unable to open his mouth.

“Don’t worry, I will not do anything too bad to you.” After Xu Yin and Men Nan crawled into the young man’s body, the young man’s facial expression changed multiple times until the corners of his lips that had been carved into the smile slowly returned to normal. He leaned against the wall and slowly collapsed to the ground. He soon lost consciousness.

“This man is so far weaker compared to the non-smiler from the cursed hospital.” When the young man collapsed, a patient’s form slipped out from his pocket. Compared to the young man’s fashionable get up, this tattered patient’s form looked rather out of place. It was probably from years back.

“He X, died on XX/XX/XXXX at midnight. Cause of death: Overly traumatized during a haunted house visit, causing his heart attack to claim his life.

“To those who happen to find this patient’s form, please hand it to Chen Ge within three days, or else the next one will you be.”

The patient’s form was like those boring curse games that had become popular on the internet several years ago. Such chain messages would normally say, ‘If you do not share this post within X days, something horrible will happen to you’.

Chen Ge’s friends rarely sent those kinds of things to him. He wished that someone would so that he could take his employees and follow the trail, paying a visit to the first person who started this silly game and giving them his ‘blessing’ to let them know how silly this whole thing was.

“He should be the surname of a young person. He died when he was visiting a haunted house, and on the back of the form, it says that the form has to be handed to me within three days. My name is clearly specified on it, so from the very beginning, I was the target. Does this mean that the non-smilers are trying to reach out to me? Is this a kind of warning, or are they seeking cooperation?”

Chen Ge had encountered several non-smilers in his lifetime. Every one of them had a different ability, but they shared a common similarity. All the non-smilers were extremely cunning and powerful. Cooperating with them was like asking for medicine from a ghost; he should always expect to be betrayed by them. Moments later, Xu Yin and Men Nan left the young man’s body. Xu Yin directly returned to the recorder while Men Nan stayed with Chen Ge.

“So, what did you find out?” Chen Ge inspected the young man’s body and did not find anything out of place.

“The young man has a very heavy Yin energy about him. Before Xu Yin and I entered his body, there was another ghost inside his body, but the thing was too cunning. When you summoned us, he left. He abandoned the young man without a second thought.”

“In other words, the young man was possessed by a ghost?”

“You can say that. The young man’s mission appears to be handing you this patient’s form. In a way, their goal has been achieved because the form is now in your possession.” Men Nan had a clear mind in his analysis. Among all the Red Specters, he was the most rational.

“Temporarily, I do not want to have anything to do with the cursed hospital, but I did not expect them to come to me voluntarily.” Chen Ge opened the backpack and placed the patient’s form on top of the red high heels. Before he said anything, the words on the form started to wiggle and twist like a strain of hair. Finally, just one sentence was left on the form.

‘You will die tonight.’

Without waiting for Chen Ge to summon her, the red high heels appeared on her own. Her hand that was wrapped under the bandage grabbed at the patient’s form, and she tried desperately to change the statement on the patient’s form.

Her body was slowly wavering. After paying what appeared like a great price, she managed to remove the word ‘you’ from the sentence.

Chapter 1073 - Death Notice [2 in 1]

Chapter 1073: Death Notice [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

The statement on the patient's form became—'will die tonight'. It did not specify who would die that night.

...

COMMENT

"The cursed hospital wanted to come after me. This is their curse that I will fail tonight."

Without showing themselves, hiding in the dark, they would complete their kill through unrelated individuals. Chen Ge had gained a new understanding of the cursed hospital. They could not be dealt with using the usual methods, so he would have to be extra carefully.

"Both the non smilers and the cursed hospital are openly trying to stop me, but what is the purpose behind this? Do they want to keep the ghost fetus for themselves? They have such a big appetite..."

Chen Ge put away the patient's form. After the word 'you' was removed, the patient's form from the cursed hospital probably could be passed down to another person.

"Perhaps they just want to put a curse on me and make me weaker so that they will have more confidence to complete the plan that they have in the world behind the door."

The appearance of the cursed hospital at that moment gave Chen Ge a much needed reminder. Other than the ghost fetus, he would need to be careful of the hands of the cursed hospital that night.

"Before I even got into the door, the conflict has already begun. These people that live in the shadows of the city have a heart that is dirtier than the others."

They would stoop to the lowest of the lows and would stop at nothing. To compete with these kinds of parties day after day, Chen Ge felt it had not been easy to maintain his own sanity. That in itself was a great achievement. Chen Ge used the young man's phone to send a message to his family to inform them of his current location before turning to leave. He had much more important things to do that night, so he could not waste too much time there. At 8 pm, Chen Ge took the cab and arrived at Jiu Hong Housing Agency. None of the streetlights were functioning, and the whole street was submerged in darkness as if a monster could jump out at them at any moment.

"It is now only eight in the evening. Do the people here go to sleep so early?"

Jiu Hong Housing Agency was already closed, so Chen Ge headed toward Jin Hwa Apartments on his own.

"When I came in the morning, the walls on the both sides of the streets did not appear to have so many flyers on them." Chen Ge stopped moving and turned to look at the wall. All the flyers featured a picture of Xiang Nuan's mother. They claimed that she was a scammer and that she had a less than moral personal life. She was a mistress that was kept by the estate agent—her boss, in other words.

"These flyers look like they have just been recently pasted on." Chen Ge tore down a random one and noticed that underneath that flyer was a torn corner of what appeared to be a similar flyer. "This feels like someone come every day to paste these flyers, and then they are taken down by another person every day. The person who does the latter is probably Xiang Nuan's mother, and the former is more likely the tenants who stays at this residential area."

Walking into Jin Hwa Apartments, Chen Ge felt slightly uncomfortable. The faded stench hit his nose. The smell was similar to the horrible stench that he had encountered in Ying Tong and Yu Jian's rooms.

"This kind of smell will only be found in the rooms of the children who are chosen, but the whole residential area where Xiang Nuan lives reeks of this horrible smell."

This was a very bad sign. Only Chen Ge was able to sense this smell, and every time he encountered this stench, something bad happened.

The residential area that night was strangely quiet. A few rooms in the two buildings from Jin Hwa Apartments still had their lights on, but the side for Jiu Hong Apartments was completely dark. It was as if the whole place was deserted and unoccupied. Standing at the mouth of the stairs of Building A, Chen Ge called Xiang Nuan's mother on her phone. The phone rang for a while before it was answered.

"Hello, this is Chen Ge. I came to look at some of the rooms from this afternoon." Chen Ge introduced himself. From the other end of the line, he could hear the endless wailing of a child and the sound of things being crashed and thrown around.

"I am so sorry, but I am in the middle of something..." There was a hint of desperation in the woman's voice.

"Do you need any help? I am just right below your building. I can come up now." Chen Ge hung up the phone before he got the answer from the woman. After he got into the staircase, he noticed that the smell had thickened. From the surface, Jin Hwa Apartments looked rather normal, but once he stepped into it, he realized that it had not been properly cleaned for a long time already. Trash and useless junk littered the corridors and staircases, and many different advertisement flyers were pasted on the wall. Among them were flyers that contained insulting words about Xiang Nuan's mother.

Every flyer had the picture of Xiang Nuan's mother on it. The woman in the black and white photo had a calm and collected smile. It formed a stark contrast to the heavily insulting words that followed the rest of the flyer. Chen Ge believed that he had a good eye for people. After their short interaction, he believed that these claims about Xiang Nuan's mother were completely unfounded. That could only mean that someone was purposely out to slander her.

Chen Ge did not take the elevator. He walked down the dirty and unkempt corridor and reached the door of Room 401.

"Are you alright in there?" Even standing outside the door, Chen Ge could hear objects being broken. Moments later came the sound of hurried footsteps, and then the room door was pulled open. Xiang Nuan's mother stood at the door with two black plastic bags. Her fingers were bleeding. It appeared that they had been cut by glass.

"I probably won't be able to follow you to meet up with the tenants tonight. Xiang Nuan suddenly acted up, and even the medicine is not doing any good." The woman was in such an urgency that she placed the plastic bags by the door, finished what she had to say, and then was ready to turn back into the room.

Chen Ge stopped her by grabbing the door to stop it from closing.

“You might need an extra pair of hands at a moment like this.”

When he stepped into the room, Chen Ge was assaulted by a horrible stench. The smell was much more intense than any of the children’s homes that he had ever visited in the past.

“Where did the smell come from?” Chen Ge had sniffed this stench out when he first started this four-star trial mission, but so far, he was unable to tell the source of the smell. Initially, he thought the smell came from the candidates that were chosen by the ghost fetus, but after he entered the door to help these children find the parts that they were missing, the stench would disappear like it was never there in the first place.

Therefore, Chen Ge had been unable to confirm the source of the stench, but he had a feeling that this answer that had been eluding him for so long would be revealed that night. The living room looked like it had just been visited by a tornado. The floor was littered with water puddles and trash. The cheap cotton sofa had been bitten until there were holes in them. The lamps were shattered. The drawers were yanked out from the cupboards and tossed randomly to the side. There was cold food left on the dining table. The woman wanted to stop Chen Ge when she saw he was trying to enter the room, but then the boy’s painful screams came from the bedroom, so she abandoned Chen Ge and hurried toward the bedroom.

“Xiang Nuan, what’s wrong with you? Can you please tell mummy what’s wrong?”

The answer that the woman got was a lamp being shattered against the wall. Xiang Nuan did not seem to be in possession of himself. His mouth kept making some strange noises, and he ran about like a headless chicken. However, upon closer inspection, one would realize that he appeared to be looking for something.

“He is afraid. He is very afraid of something.”

Anxiety, fear, and panic—Chen Ge had seen these emotions on the faces of many visitors before, but Xiang Nuan’s emotions cut much deeper than his visitors. The fear appeared to come directly from the bottom of his heart, and it was slowly consuming him little by little.

As they say, the onlooker sees more of the game.

Chen Ge took in the mess of a room and reached out to pull the woman back. “Has anyone visited your place recently? Any strange visitors or people of that sort?"

"No, other than you, there have not been any visitors to my home for a very long time." The woman was in an agitated state. As a mother seeing her son in such a tortured state, it was a kind of torment for her as well.

"Does he act out like this normally?"

"Yes, but just as you saw this afternoon, he calms down after you give him some consolation and comfort. The intensity of what's happening now has never occurred. Even the medicine did not prove useful." The woman was on the verge of tears. "Should we call the emergency number? I am so afraid that he will injure himself."

"If he does not calm down within the next fifteen minutes, then we will have no choice but to send him to the hospital." Chen Ge could not offer a better idea. The boy finally stopped his maddening action when his battery ran out. He collapsed on the ground that was covered in chopsticks. Like a hooked fish that was placed on land, his chest rose and fell intensely.

To Chen Ge's surprise was Xiang Nuan's expression. His teeth were heavily gritted, and he kept making these guttural noises. His facial features were twisted together in hatred, but his eyes were flowing with tears.

He appears to be asking for help...

The woman had already taken the steps to pick up Xiang Nuan. She tried to comfort her like she normally did. Within his mother's embrace, Xiang Nuan's expression slowly returned to normal. He closed his eyes and seemed to have slipped away as fatigue took over. The woman placed Xiang Nuan on his bed. She stood beside him and quietly looked at her soon. Xiang Nuan, who was sleeping, looked not much different from other kids his age. In fact, Chen Ge could say that he was much cuter than most of the kids that he had met.

This whole scene pulled at Chen Ge's heart. Chen Ge did not disturb them but stood quietly and guardedly at the door. The woman gave Xiang Nuan's bedroom a quick clean up. She busied herself until nine o'clock before she left his bedroom. She looked haggard, and the tiredness originated from the bottom of her soul. The woman looked like she needed a much deserved rest. After cleaning Xiang Nuan's bedroom, she still needed to clean up the mess in a living room, a place that she had already cleaned up once that afternoon.

“Let me help you. Normally, I am the one who does the chores around the house anyway.”

“Aren’t you supposed to go and help those tenants with their homes? It is now already 9 pm. If you stay here any longer, I am not sure how long they will wait for you.”

“It will be fine.” Chen Ge was a fast worker. He only needed ten minutes to clean up the room with the woman’s help. At the same time, he used this precious opportunity to study Xiang Nuan’s house. The result was rather disappointing. This was a normal home. There was nothing out of the ordinary that stood out to him.

“Don’t you feel tired that you have to clean and work yourself to the bones day in and day out?” Chen Ge did not bring up the flyers that he had seen as he came up the stairs. He wanted to be selective with his words as he slowly pulled the woman out into admitting the truth.

“I honestly do not know.” The woman placed three plastic bags at the door and then pressed on her fingers that were covered with bandages. “Before I had Xiang Nuan, I did not even know how to cook. At that time, if you told me this was the life that I would be leading, I would probably ram my head into the wall and choose to end my life on the spot. But now that I have Xiang Nuan, seeing him grow older day after day, I can feel that I am growing up with him as well.”

“Because you have become a mother?”

“Perhaps but perhaps not.” The woman massaged her wounded fingers. “I do not ask for much. I just hope that one day I will hear Xiang Nuan call me mom with his own lips.”

Chen Ge nodded as he stood up. “Why don’t I leave you my number? If you run into any trouble in the future and you need help, feel free to give me a call.”

“Thank you.”

“I will go and take a look with the other tenants now. If there are any problems, I will contact you.” The woman walked Chen Ge to the door. Once she opened the front door, she was given a full view of the flyers that occupied the wall right in front of her house. The whole corridor was filled with her pictures. At that moment, even Chen Ge felt bad for her.

“Is this the work of the tenants because you refused to give them back their rent?” Chen Ge asked in a sensitive whisper.

“I don’t know.” The woman shook her head. She was on the verge of a breakdown. “I have no idea who’s behind these horrible rumors. Every morning, when I go to work, this is how I am greeted. The whole corridor will be filled with this nonsense. Even if I tear them all down, they reappear the next day.”

“It must need quite a workforce to put up so many flyers. I am sure you’d notice such a large group when they were operating.”

“Now that you mention it, that is strange. But then again, these flyers are probably pasted when I am at work.”

“To be able to know your schedule and when you will not be home, the culprits are most likely people who live in this neighborhood. They might even be your neighbors.” Chen Ge kept his voice lowered in a whisper. “Have they been trying to chase you away?”

“There is that possibility. As you can see, Xiang Nuan is not exactly a quiet boy. The neighbors hate him a lot.”

“Other than these insulting flyers, have they done anything else?” Chen Ge felt like he was slowly getting somewhere. “Please do not hide anything from me. These experiences might be the reasons behind Xiang Nuan’s illness.”

“Well, I have received some letters...”

“Letters?” Chen Ge narrowed his eyes. “Are they threatening letters? Can I take a look at them?”

“Why don’t you go and help the other tenants first while I go and look for them?”

“Okay.” Chen Ge stood at the stairs, and he reminded the woman before he left, “Someone else might come to find you tonight. You’d better not open the door for them.”

It was the last night for the ghost fetus mission. Everyone involved would give it their all. The woman, who was Xiang Nuan’s mother, would definitely be drawn into it somehow.

“I will be careful.”

After the door closed, Chen Ge took out the comic to summon Xiao Bu and Men Nan and had them guard in front of Xiang Nuan's home. The cursed hospital probably had their eyes on Xiang Nuan as well. Chen Ge could not afford to be too careful. His mind was working up the memory of the room number of the few tenants. Chen Ge called the number of one of them. The tenant also lived in Building A of Jin Hwa Apartments. his room was just above Xiang Nuan's room.

"No one is picking up? But didn't they promise to meet me tonight?" Chen Ge walked up the stairs. The number of flyers had significantly lowered. He soon arrived at the door of the tenant.

"Is anyone home?" Before Chen Ge knocked on the door, he saw an old envelope stuck between the gap of the door.

"People still correspond with handwritten letters these days?" A very bad feeling rose in his heart. He flipped through the comic and summoned the water ghost. "Go and peel open that envelope for me."

The Red Specter had no idea what Chen Ge was up to. He tore open the envelope and took out a bloodied patient's form from inside.

"A death notice?" The water ghost very innocent opened the patient's form and recited the statement on it. "Please hand this notice over to Xiang Nuan in the next three days, or the next one will be you."

Chen Ge took one step backward. "Are you sure it is Xiang Nuan's name on it?"

"Yes." The water ghost held the envelope and stood where he was. "How come I feel like something is not right?"

"Looks like the non smilers have not only cursed me. They have cursed Xiang Nuan as well..."

At this point, Chen Ge suddenly stopped. He stood at the corridor and looked around. He realized with consternation that almost all the tenants' doors had similar envelopes stuck in them.

"The letters that Xiang Nuan's mother mentioned wouldn't be this kind of cursed letter, would it? That cursed hospital appears to have sent these letters to all of the tenants!"

He hurried back to Xiang Nuan's home and knocked heavily on the door. Moments later, Xiang Nuan's mother opened the door. She was holding a large paper box and it was filled to the brim with old letters.

“Chen Ge, why did you come back so soon?”

“These are the letters that you mentioned earlier?” Looking at these envelopes, Chen Ge felt his scalp go numb. “You have opened all of them?”

“I have only opened some of them. They are all filled with Xiang Nuan’s death notice.” The woman’s face was dim. She did not know that the cursed hospital had channeled all the hatred of every tenant in the whole residential areas onto Xiang Nuan through these letters. Everyone was cursing him, everyone was part of the chain, and everyone wanted him to die.

Looking at the letters inside the paper box, Chen Ge felt a sense of déjà vu about this.

Chapter 1074 - Strange Building

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1074: Strange Building [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“When and how did you receive these letters?”

“When I get back from work, the letters are stuck into the door.” Xiang Nuan’s mother had not realized the severity of the situation. Hugging the paper box, she merely thought this was a harmless prank. “Initially, I was also shocked by the number of letters and did try to ask a few neighbors about them, but they all refused to talk to me about it.”

...

“Of course they won’t because it was them who sent you these letters.”

“But why would they do that?” Xiang Nuan’s mother’s tone changed slightly. “I will go and demand an explanation from them. If they really insist on chasing me and Xiang Nuan away, we can move. There is no need to resort to something like this.”

“What if the thing that they want is for Xiang Nuan to die?” Chen Ge did not reach out to touch that box of letters, instead asking Xiang Nuan’s mother this serious question.

“Die?” Xiang Nuan’s mother sucked in a cold breath. Naturally, she did not expect Chen Ge to tell her something so drastic. “Impossible, we are all neighbors. Yes, I will be the first to admit there have been some altercations between us, but to wish a death upon an innocent child because of that? That’s preposterous.”

“I might’ve agreed with you a long time ago, but after experiencing some stuff, my opinion of humanity has slowly changed. Humanity is a very complicated concept. Through the layer of skin, you will never truly know what a person is really thinking.” Chen Ge’s voice was kept at a low whisper, and it sounded quite scary. “Every single death notice you are holding represents a person’s collection of hate, curses, and resentment. The reason for Xiang Nuan’s illness is probably related to them.”

“Then I will go and instantly burn all these letters.”

“It’s no use.” Chen Ge knew very well even if the letters were incinerated, it would not destroy the non-smilers’ curse. When the death notices were delivered to Xiang Nuan’s home, the curse had already been completed. “This is going to be a long night.”

When he saw the abundance of letters, as much as he hated to admit it, Chen Ge believed from the bottom of his heart that the chance of Xiang Nuan surviving that night was incredibly small. The red high heels had a tremendous increase in her power after she consumed the lingering curses from the ghost fetus in the several worlds behind the different children’s door, but even so, she still needed to herself push so far just to remove one character from the patient’s form. That went to show how powerful the curse on this thing was.

“The cursed hospital is truly a bunch of heartless people. They targeted so many death notices at Xiang Nuan. Even if the ghost fetus succeeds in his birth, the vessel that he has gone through pain to find will be consumed by so many curses that he will fall into an extremely weakened state.”

The hospital had never cared about the lives of innocent people. Perhaps, in their eyes, life was just a vessel to transmit the curses, a bridge to complete their goal. As long as it could lead them to their destination, trampling on morality and humanity did not seem to be an issue.

If the ghost fetus’ evil came from within him, in a wrapping of anger, hatred, envy, and other emotions, the evil from the cursed hospital was pure in the sense that it did not carry any emotion. Before such an adversary, kindness and innocence had no chance of winning. Therefore, to survive, Chen Ge had no choice but to arm his kindness with sharp edges.

Pa!

Someone clapped on the ground floor, and it lit up all the sound-controlled lights. It appeared that someone was coming up the stairs. Chen Ge signaled for the woman to keep quiet. One minute later, the old gentleman that Chen Ge had met in the morning appeared round the stairs. He was carrying an empty lunch box in his hand.

“Xiao Wen, I have come to return the lunch box. How is Xiang Nuan’s condition? Is he better? Even from the ground floor, I could hear things being smashed.” The old man appeared similar to how he was in the morning. He was about seventy but still gave off a happy go lucky feeling. He seemed to be interested in everything that happened in the building. If there was a rumor mill running at this place, this old man would definitely be the one operating it.

“Xiang Nuan is already asleep.” The woman forced a smile on her face. She accepted the lunch box from the old man. Just as she was about to leave, she suddenly saw the old man holding an old envelope in his hand. When she saw the letter, the expressions of Chen Ge and her turned ugly.

The old man was confused by their reaction. “What are you two looking at?”

“Sir, are you also here to deliver the letter?” Honestly, Chen Ge had a good impression of this old man. He really did not want to do anything harmful to him.

“What are you talking about? Oh, this?” The old man lifted the letter. “When I left home this morning, I saw this stuck to my door. I have no idea who mailed it to me, but the key problem is that I’m illiterate! When I was young, I was not given an education. At this age, it’s already too late for me to pick up the language. Half of my leg has already stepped into the coffin, so why do I care? Furthermore, at this day and age, even someone like me knows how to use a phone, so why would people still mail me letters? I really do not understand it.”

COMMENT

“You still have not opened the envelope?” Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision and realized that the envelope was indeed unopened. He sighed slightly in relief.

“Well, since you guys are here, do you mind if I ask Xiao Wen to help me see what the letter is about?” Before Chen Ge could stop him, the old man had already opened the letter. He took out the death notice, and his face dropped. “What the... It seems to be a letter from the hospital. Please see what it is about for me.”

The old man passed Xiang Nuan’s death notice to Chen Ge and the woman. His anxiety did not look like it was faked. Chen Ge felt like he could try to help the old man and stop the curse before it had the chance to spread, but before he could say anything, the woman accepted the death notice and read out the content of the letter as depicted on it.

The woman recited the last sentence on the death notice, if the death notice was not handed to Xiang Nuan, the next target would be the recipient.

“What kind of cruel prank is this? Xiang Nuan is still so young. There has to be some kind of mistake.”

The old man heard that clearly, but even so, he still asked for the letter back.

“Sir, why don’t you just leave the death notice with me? I have already received so many of them. I do not mind taking yours as well.” The woman did not want to drag the old man into her mess. Knowing that the old man did not intend to harm her and Xiang Nuan, that touched her heart deeply.

“These people are getting more and more ridiculous. Who gave them the right to turn their resentment on you two? Just ignore this thing. Moving away is one thing, but this is a whole different kind of mess. I will have to have to severe talk with them tomorrow.” After the old man said that, he grabbed the envelope and went back downstairs.

Looks like not everyone in the building is a horrible person. There are good people here as well. Chen Ge looked as the old man walk away. Perhaps, in the world behind the door, the old man could prove to be a valuable opening. “What is that old man’s name by the way?”

“His surname is Huang. He lives at Room 104. He is one of the oldest tenants we have here.” Upon mentioning the old man, the woman’s face softened greatly. “When Uncle Huang was young, he was badly injured at work. He’s had operations done in both his nose and ears. Then, out of any good career opportunities, he found work as a cleaner at the hospital. Normally, he works in the morgue.”

“So, he spends most of his time with dead bodies?”

“Yes, but unfortunately, it is not a lucrative job. He has been working for most of his life, but his bank account is still quite empty. Nonetheless, he is a good and kind person, albeit more than a bit stubborn with his personality.” The woman revealed a bitter smile.

“He has no children. The room that he stays in was rented to him by the boss. Before this, I tried to set him up with a single middle-aged woman that I know, but he told me, at his age, he did not want to trouble anyone else with his problems anymore, so he told me to call off the date.”

“In the way, the old man has lived quite an interesting life. I can sense his free spirit.”

“I am just thankful that he has no serious illness and no horrible tragedy has befallen him. Normally, I go and take care of him, but if he suddenly falls seriously ill, then it will depend on the neighborhood to get aid for him.”

The old man did not force the death notice onto the woman, and that made the woman feel slightly better.

“Oh yeah, did he call you Xiao Wen earlier?”

“Yes, my name is Wen Qing, Qing from Qing Tian¹.”

“Wen Qing? Xiang Nuan?” Chen Ge nodded as he memorized these names. “Since there is still some time left, you should stay at the house, and I will go and take a look with the other tenants.”

After a few more words, Chen Ge left while holding his phone. He summoned Xu Yin and walked between Jin Hwa Apartments and Jiu Hong Apartments. He entered each building to take a look, but to his surprise, there was basically no one that stayed around these two neighborhoods.

“Where have all the tenants gone?” The calls all went unanswered. There was no response to his knocking on the door. Chen Ge had the Red Specters enter the room to check them one by one, and they came back with nothing except the light scent of that stench.

As time passed, the stench around the neighborhood started to intensify and so did the anxiety in Chen Ge’s heart. He stood on the rooftop of the small neighborhood and looked around him. Jiu Hong Apartments and Jin Hwa Apartments seemed to have slowly drifted away from the rest of the world. It felt as if the whole neighborhood was sinking into a dark abyss.

“This whole neighborhood itself has a huge problem about it. The ghost fetus must have laid some kind of trap here.”

With his experience from dealing with the shadow, Chen Ge had familiarized himself with the thing's personality. He was sure that he would use multiple traps to ensure that the plan would be able to follow through smoothly. So far, none of these things had been exposed, so it could only mean that it had not reached the stage where the ghost fetus had been forced to show his hand.

Time flew by. To prevent any accidents from happening, after taking a tour of these two neighborhoods, Chen Ge soon returned to Xiang Nuan's home.

"How did things so?"

"I cannot find any of the tenants. None of the calls are going through. I have a feeling that something bad will happen tonight. Your neighbors all appear to be planning something." Chen Ge took the white cat out from the bag and closed the front door. "But don't you worry. I will not impose on you for too long, and of course, I will not stay overnight. If everything goes well and nothing goes wrong after 1 am, I will leave immediately."

Since Chen Ge had already said that, the woman found it difficult to reject him. She shoved all the death notices into the box and planned to take them out from the building and burn them the following morning.

"Do you want to have something to eat?"

"It's fine, I do not have the habit of dining at another person's place." Chen Ge was now in a highly alert mode. He knew that the blood door would appear beside Xiang Nuan's bed, and the people from cursed hospital would come to fight for this door as well. At 11:30 pm, the sound of footsteps came from the corridor. The sound was very complicated. It sounded like people were moving upstairs and downstairs at the same time. But when Chen Ge leaned against the peephole on the door and looked out, he could see no trace of anyone in the corridor. "They have arrived."

At 11:50 pm, the lights inside the room flickered before they all went out without any warning. The room was immediately dropped into darkness.

"The switch has flipped? I will go and take a look."

“Do not move! Stay where you are! Do not get close to any windows or doors!” Chen Ge screamed. Using Yin Yang Vision, he looked toward Xiang Nuan’s bedroom. The boy was still lying in his bed. He appeared to be fast asleep. They gave up their defense at the living room. Both Chen Ge and the woman moved into Xiang Nuan’s bedroom. At 11:55 pm, a knocking came from the living room door. Both the woman and Chen Ge’s hearts squeezed.

“Thankfully, you decided to stay tonight, or else I would not know what to do all alone.” As the insistent knocking echoed in the woman’s ears, she could feel the chill crawling up her spine. “Should we go to the front door to take a look?”

“Just stand beside me and do not go anywhere.” Chen Ge himself had no idea how scary the cursed hospital was. All he could was be as careful as possible. After the mechanical knocking continued for a while. Suddenly, a child’s voice came from outside the door. “Xiang Nuan, my name is Se Xin. I am here to take you home.”

“Who is this Se Xin?” the woman whispered.

“A dead person.” Chen Ge kept his eyes screwed on the living room door. At 11:59 pm, a strange sound was coming from the living room’s door. As the spring moved, the locked door opened on its own. The iron door was slowly pushed open, and it revealed a corridor that was empty.

COMMENT

“The door opened? How did they manage to get my house key?” Xiang Nuan’s mother heard the sound as well. At that moment, her heart was at her throat. She really did not dare imagine what would have happened to her if Chen Ge did not stop her from going to answer the door earlier.

“Shush!” Chen Ge narrowed his eyes and stared at the darkness before him. There was something approaching from the corridor, and there was only a living room between them.

Tik tok, tik tok, tik tok...

The ticking of the clock sounded like the dripping of blood from a slashed wrist landing on the ground. When the clock struck midnight, a door that was completely covered in blood appeared without warning next to Xiang Nuan's bed!

This was a real blood door! The scent of blood that came from it was more intense and realistic than any of the previous doors that Chen Ge had encountered!

Blood vessels and curses spread across the room. The footsteps outside in the corridor picked up. Chen Ge also removed Doctor Skull Cracker's hammer from his backpack. He turned his full attention to the corridor. But at that moment, a woman's shrill scream came from behind him. "Xiang Nuan! Xiang Nuan!"

Chen Ge turned back to look. Xiang Nuan who was supposed to be asleep in bed had disappeared, and the blood door that was next to his bed had already been pushed open.

Xiang Nuan has entered the door? This door is not a false door! It is Xiang Nuan's own door!

The moment Xiang Nuan entered the door, his mother did not hesitate and moved to follow him. Chen Ge was not left with much choice. He grabbed the backpack, picked up White Tiger, and stepped through the blood door. He tried to close the door, but before his hand could reach the door that was filled with blood, his body and senses were overwhelmed by the sea of red.

...

After slowly opening his eyes, Chen Ge took a cautious look around. He realized that he was still inside Xiang Nuan's room. The place had not changed that much, but the furniture inside the room was mostly broken, and signs of disrepair were everywhere.

"This is Xiang Nuan's world behind the door? It is barely different from the one in real life, though the stench has disappeared."

This place felt more real than the real world. After Chen Ge came to this conclusion, he had an unsettling feeling, but he could not really put his finger on it. Picking up his backpack, Chen Ge tried to summon his employees, but unfortunately, he got no response. He then turned to look beside him. The white cat was lying on its side and was completely immobile, like the life had been sucked out of it.

“An accident happened to it when we went through the blood door?” Chen Ge’s eyes immediately went red. He quickly reached to pick up the cat. The warmth that came from his fingertips was the first thing that tipped Chen Ge off. He gave the feline a good shake before the cat groaned with dissatisfaction.

“You even know how to play dead... Isn’t that a dog’s trick? When did you learn to do that?”

2Putting down the white cat, Chen Ge sighed slightly in relief. He picked up the backpack and planned to inspect the room. He was stumped just as he pushed open Xiang Nuan’s bedroom door. Xiang Nuan’s mother was currently fast asleep in bed.

“Should I wake her?” Chen Ge walked into the bedroom. He looked at the woman’s face, but there was a different question that was running through his mind. Is this woman really Xiang Nuan’s mother? If she is, is she the version that is from inside the door or from outside the door?

Chapter 1075 - Strange Neighbour [2 in 1]

Chapter 1075: Strange Neighbour [2 in 1]

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

“Hey! Wake up!”

Her eyes slowly fluttered open. When she took in her surrounding, the woman sat up in bed immediately. “Where is Xiang Nuan?”

...

“Calm down first. Do you still remember who I am?” Chen Ge silently put down Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer.

“Chen Ge?”

“Where did we first meet each other?”

“At the Eastern Jiujiang Dam. Why are you asking me these questions? Can’t you see that Xiang Nuan is missing? We need to go and find him before he injures himself!” The woman was desperate, but Chen Ge did not even budge from his position.

“What did I say specifically at the time that caused Xiang Nuan to finally stop causing all that fuss?”

“I do not think I heard you clearly at the time, but I believe it was ghost fetus?”

“One last question. Why would I want to kill Xiang Nuan?” Chen Ge stared closely at the woman’s face. His last question honestly scared and stunned her. The expression was clear on her face.

“You want to kill Xiang Nuan? No!”

“Okay, looks like you are not one of the monsters behind the door. You are Xiang Nuan’s real mother.”

The woman’s reaction and expression were all completely normal. Chen Ge did not stop to explain the reasoning behind his series of questions. Instead, he turned to walk out from the bedroom, and the first thing he did was check the front door of the living room. The door and windows were tightly shut. Only Chen Ge and Xiang Nuan's mother were inside the room.

"When I entered the world behind the door of the other children, there was a black iron door that gave off the smell of disinfectant behind me, but this time, that door has not made its appearance. From the moment I entered the blood door and when I opened my eyes, what really happened?"

Chen Ge was silently contemplating these questions when suddenly the woman's voice came from beside him. "How did I suddenly fall asleep? And where is Xiang Nuan? In my blurry memory, I remember seeing him enter through a door, and then I followed behind him."

The woman scratched her head. It appeared that she really did not remember what happened next.

"You sure are lucky. Only those who are dead and those who are dying are normally able to enter that door."

"Then, doesn't that mean my son is dying? Were those death notices all real?" The woman became worried and agitated again. It was clear that she was sincerely concerned about Xiang Nuan.

"Let's not worry too much about Xiang Nuan at the moment. First, I will help you understand the logical reasoning behind all of this. If we wish to find Xiang Nuan, the first thing that we need to do is ensure that we will be able to survive long enough to find him, right? If we die, won't the chance of Xiang Nuan surviving here all on his own become smaller and smaller?" Chen Ge planned to come clean with the woman just in case she did something brash and put both of them in danger. It would be too late to say anything then.

"Okay."

"Only by keeping ourselves alive will we be able to find Xiang Nuan. And to do that, you have to promise me that you will listen to my every word from now on; do not act on your emotions." Chen Ge lowered his voice. "This world is very different from the real world. In a way, you can see this place as Xiang Nuan's nightmare."

"Xiang Nuan's nightmare?"

"Even though we are technically in his nightmare, if you die here, you will be dead in every meaning of the word." Chen Ge gave the woman a quick and simple '101 course' on the world behind the door.

“But how come I do not see much difference between this place and the real world?”

“When you see the difference, we will be in great danger.” Chen Ge stood inside the room and waved the hammer. He noticed that the physical exhaustion behind this door was incredibly high. He found his breathing catching from the simple exercise. It felt as if there was something lying on his back, madly sucking the life out of him.

“If this place is so dangerous, how can we leave Xiang Nuan all on his own? He is defenseless.”

“I know you want to rescue Xiang Nuan, but I hope you remember this one statement—only by ensuring that you are alive will you be able to save Xiang Nuan. I will not repeat this again, so I hope you will have that memorized in your heart.” Chen Ge took a deep breath. “Other than that, I have to tell you one more thing. If we run into any danger, if I can save you, I will try my best to do so, but if saving you is unfortunately not an option, I will choose to leave on my own. I hope you can understand that.”

Chen Ge was being really realistic. After hearing that, the woman nodded. She replied in a soft voice, “Thank you. The fact that you have volunteered to follow me into Xiang Nuan’s door has touched me greatly already. This is all because of Xiang Nuan actually. You could have stayed an outsider, but I have dragged you into this mess. I am so sorry.”

Once the woman phrased it like that, Chen Ge did not know how to reply. There appeared to be some misunderstanding on her side. She had treated Chen Ge as an innocent bystander who was dragged into this dangerous incident.

“We should stop discussing this for now. Even though the world behind the door is very dangerous, it does not mean that it is a dead end. You know Xiang Nuan very well and are familiar with all his memories. That itself will be invaluable information for us to navigate our way through this place.”

The world behind the door was weaved from the door pusher’s memory. Exploration the scenario behind the door was in a way reading the past experience of the door pusher’s despair. This time, Chen Ge had Xiang Nuan’s mother as help, so he had a feeling that if they played their cards right, they should be able to avoid most of the danger.

“We will start our exploration inside this room. I need you to go and take a good look around and see if there is anything that is different from your house in real life. Check every corner of every room. Do not miss a single detail. Even the smallest details will be able to help us find Xiang Nuan.”

After he said that, Chen Ge walked out from the bedroom. He looked through every single object in his backpack, and he noticed two things that were out of the ordinary.

The despairing diary entries in Zhang Ya’s bedtime stories had disappeared. Only the last entry remained. The other thing was related to the red high heels. The other objects in Chen Ge’s backpack appeared to be covered in a layer of dust, but the pair of red high heels was an exception. Under the blood red surface, it appeared like black threads were slowly congregating.

“The limitation upon the red high heels behind the door is weak. Is that because she has managed to consume a lot of the ghost fetus’ residual curses?” The ghost fetus had chosen nine children as his candidates, and the curses behind most of these children’s door had been consumed by the red high heels. Especially after Ying Tong’s door, her power had increased in intensity. She had become much stronger.

“This can be considered the only good news that I have for now.” Chen Ge was about to go and explore the other places when Xiang Nuan’s mother’s voice suddenly came from Xiang Nuan’s bedroom.

“Chen Ge! The chopsticks that I placed under Xiang Nuan’s bed have completely disappeared!”

Hearing that, Chen Ge rushed into the bedroom. He saw Wen Qing kneeling next to Xiang Nuan’s bed. Her hand was pulling back the bed covers to show the emptiness underneath the bed. Where there should be a huge bag of chopsticks, there was nothing.

“What do those chopsticks represent to the Xiang Nuan?”

“I honestly cannot tell for sure. The child has a problem communicating with others, and he does not know how to express himself. It feels as if he has been trapped inside his own world where the logic and rules are only understandable to him alone.”

“Other than the chopsticks, did you discover anything else that is out of place?” Chen Ge picked up the white cat and took out the death notice from the cursed hospital from his backpack. He gave the cat a good sniff of the document, but the white cat did not respond in any way. There did not appear to be any curse lingering on the cursed hospital's death notice.

"The death notices that have Xiang Nuan's name on them have all disappeared as well, as did the school bag that I bought Xiang Nuan..."

"A school bag?"

"Yes, when I first brought Xiang Nuan to a special ed school, I bought him a school bag. I had such great hopes on that day. I thought that things would finally return to normal."

"Sounds like the schoolbag is a symbol of hope for a better future, but what do the chopsticks represent? Why are these two the only missing things inside this house?"

He thought for a long time but could not come up with an answer, so Chen Ge eventually gave up. He gave the same house a close inspection and found a key to the front door and a fruit knife inside the house. Chen Ge pocketed the key and handed the knife over to Wen Qing. "Here, take this in case you need to defend yourself."

The non-smiler will have entered the door as well. They might appear anywhere. If only I can find them first.

All the Specters would be limited by the boundaries in the world behind the door. Either the people from the cursed hospital would not be able to show up, or if they did, they would have lost most of their power, meaning they would be in about the same position as Chen Ge, so this would be the perfect opportunity to get rid of them.

"This house should be safe, but we are going to leave this place soon. Follow close behind me. No matter what you see or hear, do not make any noise to attract attention to ourselves."

"Understood."

Chen Ge carried his backpack, but he did not leave from the front door immediately. Instead, he walked to the window to pull open the curtains.

"This is..." The scenery before his eyes could only be described as horrifying. The buildings were all mangled and twisted together. The surfaces of their buildings were mottled like wounds and scabs that were recovering. Narrowing his eyes, Chen Ge looked further into the distance. The few buildings were all covered in a thick black fog. It appeared that they had fallen into a sea of darkness.

“The windows can be opened, so this means that we might not necessarily need to use the door enter the other rooms. But it should be extremely dangerous outside the building now. There appears to be something incredibly scary hiding inside the rolling black fog.” Chen Ge could not tell for sure what was hiding inside the fog. The presence that this thing gave off was different from a Specter or a ghost, but it managed to evoke the innate fear within the human heart. “Are they the original tenants behind this door?”

Pulling back the curtain, the heart palpation finally stopped after a long time. “This place is too dangerous and scary.”

Chen Ge called Wen Qing. The two of them headed to the living room front door. Seeing that Chen Ge was ready to leave, the white cat, who had been playing dead, suddenly ‘came back to life’ and followed him.

Upon opening the front door, Chen Ge was hit by a horrible stench. He had a feeling that the stench that had been bothering him all this while originated from this neighborhood.

Pushing the door one quarter open, Chen Ge walked out first. There were many different objects crowding the corridor, and the floor was filled with black stains and not so obvious blood stains.

Yellowed flyers filled up the walls, and the flyers were all insulting words about Wen Qing, but different from the ones in real life, the black and white picture of Wen Qing on the flyers was no longer one of herself but replaced by a headless woman. The whole corridor was filled with the flyers of this headless woman. Just from a glance, it would be able to make a person’s heart skip a beat. The sound of a breath being held came from behind Chen Ge. Wen Qing’s face blanched as her eyes straight fixatedly at those flyers stuck to the wall.

Signaling for Wen Qing to keep quiet, Chen Ge slowly walked ahead a few steps. The stench in the corridor was very heavy, and the air was damp. Occasionally, something would fall on their heads. They felt like little spiders or the catkin plants. They could feel them, but they could not touch or see what they were.

“Every single door has a number on it. Xiang Nuan’s house is still Room 401, so we can assume that we are on the fourth floor of Building A.”

In this world behind the door, all the apartment buildings at Jiu Hong Apartments and Jin Hwa Apartments had been mangled and twisted together. The first thing Chen Ge needed to do was reconfirm his current location.

“401, 402...” When Chen Ge reached Room 405, he suddenly stopped. There were many black trash bags placed next to the door. He opened one of them and saw it was stuffed with bloodied bandages and toilet paper as well as an exorbitant amount of broken needles.

“Why are there so many broken needles?” He was about to open the other bags to take a look when the door to Room 405 suddenly creaked open, and the iron door was pushed open from within. A tall and fat middle-aged lady appeared at the door with a black plastic bag in her hand. Her body was practically overflowing with meat, and she had makeup caked on her face. Her hands were covered in band aids and traces of what appeared to be oil were left on the tips of her fingers. She reeked of cheap perfume, and the smell was heady enough to cover up the horrible stench that came from the black plastic bags.

“What are you doing?” The middle-aged woman’s voice was rather scary.

“I am so sorry. My cat is a rather fussy little thing. He likes to go around and scratch things.” Chen Ge picked up the white cat. At the same time, his eyes leaped past the middle-aged woman and looked into the interior of Room 405. The whole room was painted pink. On the tiled floor were some bloody needles and threads. The screen of the television in the living room reflected the shadow of a boy. The boy looked so well, and the lower half of his body was covered in a blanket. It was worth noting that the middle of the thin blanket was stained red by blood.

“Why do you keep it if it refuses to be trained? I hate these small critters so much.” The woman dropped the plastic bag by the door and then slammed the door closed.

“The woman looks quite hostile,” Wen Qing said softly, “but I am familiar with her face. She looks quite similar to the real tenant in Room 405.”

“Then she should be the tenant from Room 405, but her appearance has been tweaked somewhat.” Chen Ge lowered his voice. Earlier, he had just opened the black plastic bag for a few seconds when the middle-aged lady came to open the door with the appearance of throwing out rubbish. The higher chance was that she had been hiding behind the door, and she heard the commotion from outside.

“If it is really her, perhaps we can ask her for help.”

“Is this woman trustworthy?”

“In real life, the tenant of Room 405 is a woman living alone. She has a slight frame and is quite reticent. But she has a good personality and is especially kind around children. I think she is one of the few tenants who does not mind Xiang Nuan. She often voluntarily comes to talk to Xiang Nuan and play with him.”

“You have been tricked by her appearance. The tenant of Room 405 is most likely a human trafficker.” Chen Ge lowered his voice even more. He leaned into Wen Qing’s ears and said, “When the door opened, the television screen in her home reflected the sofa. On the sofa lay a boy with a starkly pale face.”

“A boy? Is it Xiang Nuan?”

“He is slightly older than Xiang Nuan, and he looks completely different from your son.”

“It is not Xiang Nuan? But how can you tell she is a human trafficker?” The neighbor that she saw day in and day out was a human trafficker; Wen Qing still had trouble accepting that as a fact.

“The part below the boy’s waist is covered up by a blanket, and the blanket was sliding down the sofa. The key part was that the middle of the blanket was soaked in blood, and the stain was spreading. Obviously, the blood was coming out from inside the blanket.”

“He’s injured?”

“He is not only injured. His legs have been amputated, and the bleeding has not stopped.” What Chen Ge said caused Wen Qing’s hair to stand on end.

“In real life, these people hide their real personalities under the disguise of humanity, but behind the door, their real self will be exposed. We must be extremely careful, or else we will face a horrifying death.”

After leaving Room 405, Wen Qing still looked no better. Her eyes kept consciously and subconsciously wandering to the black trash bags that collected around the door of Room 405. "Chen Ge, I am now very worried about Xiang Nuan."

"There is no reason to get so worked up. What we need to do now is go and find Uncle Huang on the first floor. He might be the only person who is willing to help us in this neighborhood." Chen Ge's mind was sharp and clear. His determination was as tough as steel, and he would rarely be interrupted by any outside influences.

Chapter 1076 - Every Room Has a Secret [2 in 1]

Chapter 1076: Every Room Has a Secret [2 in 1]

Chen Ge and Wen Qing decided to go to the first floor to look for the old man Huang first. They walked down the eerie corridor and came to the mouth of the staircase. The iron banister that was painted red was left with the handprints of children. The stairwell twisted downward. The steps were covered with dark red liquid, and stepping on them felt sticky. The windows in the corridor were all sealed shut, blocking out the light. Iron nails the length of one's half finger were exposed, and if one was careless, one would be scratched by them easily.

"This place is so disgusting." Wen Qing was desperate to find Xiang Nuan, but even so, when she saw the condition of the staircase, she could not help but frown. "It feels like someone has been dragging a leaking bag of garbage while they go up and down the stairs. And this has been going on for a while, or else it would not have been caked like this."

"You are too naïve. What kind trash would form this kind of black and red stain?"

...

"Then, what do you think is behind these stains?" Wen Qing picked up the white cat. She seemed to be afraid that the white cat would dirty itself upon touching these disgusting black and red stains.

"A heavily injured person or a bleeding body will form a layer of blood residue like this. When the blood slowly dries, it will turn into this kind of color."

Chen Ge looked at the stains on the ground, and for some reason, an incident that happened a very long time ago appeared in his mind.

When the toilet cubicle at his haunted house first acted strangely, Chen Ge had heard a heavy object being dragged through the door, and it was the same image that had appeared in his mind. A strange, faceless monster was using some kind of tool to drag some bodies down the corridor and staircase.

“This place is getting stranger and stranger. We will go to the third floor first. No matter what, remember to be careful.” Chen Ge carried his backpack, and his nerves were tense with alertness. After turning the corner, when Chen Ge reached the third floor, he heard the strange noise.

Creak, creak...

It was the sound of a door being opened and closed repeatedly.

There is no wind currently blowing and the windows in the corridor are all sealed shut behind wooden boards. Either the door is moving on its own or someone is opening and closing them again and again.

Leaning forward to look down the third-floor corridor, at the end of the dark corridor, a front door was swinging back and forth, giving off this shrill and sharp noise.

“Should we go and take a look?”

“We’d better locate Uncle Huang first. Before we accomplish that, it is better we do not find trouble for ourselves to prevent uncontrollable accident. Who knows what we will meet in the world behind the door?”

Once Chen Ge said that, the sound of door opening and closing stopped. Chen Ge turned to look, and he saw a young boy’s face poke out from the room at the end of the corridor. The boy had a neck that was much longer than a normal person’s. His head extended out of the door like a snake, and his eyes were staring fixatedly at Chen Ge and Wen Qing.

“He seems to have discovered us.” Wen Qing carried the white cat. “The boy’s gaze is terrifying! Why is he looking at us like that?”

“Just ignore him. We will get to the first floor first.” Chen Ge dragged Wen Qing along down the stairs, but that strange boy ran out from the door. Without saying a word, he made to follow Chen Ge and Wen Qing. He merely kept his eyes on the two of them.

“Are we going to ignore him?”

Chen Ge and Wen Qing continued to move down the stairs, and the boy followed them as well. After knowing that this was someone that they would not be able to shake off, Chen Ge gave up. He stopped moving. Gripping his backpack, he was ready to pull out Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer at any moment.

"What is your name?" The hand that gripped the hilt was white from force, and the green veins pulsed on the back of his hand. Even so, Chen Ge's voice was soft and kind.

"My name is Wu You. Are you here to look for someone?" The boy sounded very strange. It just gave off a very unnatural feeling. It felt like a mannequin was trying to mimic human conversation. It sounded stilted and wooden.

He can be communicated with? Chen Ge narrowed his eyes. Initially, he thought the boy was dumb. After making noises in the world behind the door, that action was no different from actively seeking death.

"Yes, we are here to look for someone," Wen Qing blurted out because she was too worried about Xiang Nuan.

"Are you looking for a little boy?"

"Yes! That is right!" Wen Qing's mother's voice rose out of excitement. She desperately wanted to know Xiang Nuan's location. This gave her great hope. "The child is not tall, and he looks cute..."

"I've seen him." Before waiting for Wen Qing to finish, Wu You said very confidently, "He has gone down the building."

"Gone down the building? How do you know that he has gone down the building? Did you see that yourself?" Wen Qing wanted to confirm again.

"Yes, I saw that with my own eyes." Wu You did not appear like he was lying.

Without some hesitation, Wen Qing turned to look at Chen Ge. "Then, should we hurry downward? If we move fast, we might be able to catch up to Xiang Nuan."

"Okay." Chen Ge still felt like something was not right with Wu You. He did not want to stay there with the boy any longer. He dragged Wen Qing by her arm and practically dragged her away down the stairs.

“Wait, the boy did not go down the building this way.” Wu You moved to follow them.

“Then, how did he go down the building?”

“From the window.” Wu You pointed at the window that was sealed shut. “With a splat, he went down the building.”

A peal of laughter that sounded like a balloon leaking escaped from the boy’s lips. Wu You said with extreme joy as he was dancing and clapping, “I was sitting quietly at home, and the window was open. With a ‘shoo’, he went down the building.”

“What are you talking about?” Wen Qing’s face blanched. If not for Chen Ge’s firm grip on her shoulder, she would have charged forward to give the boy a good beating.

“Don’t act so rashly.” Chen Ge stood between Wu You and Wen Qing. “The boy lives in the room at the end of the corridor. That is Room 301, and right above it is Room 401, your home. So, theoretically, he could be telling the truth.”

“My Xiang Nuan would definitely not do something like that,” Wen Qing replied very confidently.

“I know, so we’d better go to his place to see what he is really telling us.” After saying that, Chen Ge stared at Wu You. If possible, he wanted to check every single room in this building.

“It’s true. I really saw it with my own eyes. I wouldn’t lie to you.” Wu You followed it up with that strange and eerie laughter.

“Are your parents home? Can we go to your house to take a look?” Chen Ge asked softly.

“My parents will never let strangers into our home, but since they are not at home now, I can quietly sneak you guys in. Come with me.” Wu You turned and walked down the dim third-floor corridor. Looking at his back, Chen Ge and Wen Qing now realized that Wu You had a very strange gait. His legs were uneven, and his body was extremely nonuniform. After Wu You had wandered ahead of them, Chen Ge silently whispered to Wen Qing, “Is there someone that looks like Wu You in your memory?”

“Our residential area has quite a number of children. I have not been paying much attention. Furthermore, his face looks rather weird. I do not dare take an extra glance for fear of offending him.”

There was indeed a strange presence about Wu You. He had facial features that were no different from a normal child, but when they were placed on his face, they were simply quite out of place. It was like the puzzle pieces were correct, but they were each taken from different puzzles.

“Come here. Why are you guys waiting over there?” Wu You waved at Chen Ge and Wen Qing. He led the two adults to his door. The not so large room was painted black and white. Toys, color pencils, and many newspapers littered the ground. It suggested that the boy was left alone at home most of the time.

“I saw him go down the building from this place.” Wu You pointed at the window in the living room. At that moment, the window was closed, and the curtains were drawn shut. “Do you want to go and take a look? After he went down from this place, his body has stayed there on the ground.”

“Do not go over there. It’s too dangerous,” Chen Ge whispered as he pulled on Wen Qing’s elbow. At the same time, he closed the front door behind him. “Wu You, this is your home. It is impolite for us to mess with your things. Why don’t you open the curtain and let us see what is behind it?”

“He was falling with his head facing down. When he passed by the window, he even waved goodbye to me...”

“Stop it! Stop it already!” This struck a nerve within Wen Qing. She shrugged off Chen Ge, strode through the living room to the window, and yanked the curtain back with one smooth motion. Various pictures of many different little boys were pasted on the glass window. The boys were captured with different expressions, but the unifying factor was that every single boy had visible wounds on their face. The collage made up a scary image.

“Was it him? See, I did not lie to you, did I?” Wu You pointed to one of the boys on the collage and a very big smile lit up his face.

“Mad child.” Wen Qing was given quite a scare by the faces of these children. It took her quite some time before she managed to recover herself. She forced herself to look through the collection of human faces, and she was unable to find Xiang Nuan’s face among them.

“Chen Ge, let’s go. I do not wish to stay here anymore.” Wen Qing hugged her chest. Her body was shivering badly. It felt like there were multiple pairs of eyes watching her from behind.

“The boy that you are looking for is not here, huh?” The smile disappeared on Wu You’s face. He tore down one of the pictures from the window and pressed it before Wen Qing’s face. “I know this is him! This has to be him! I have not been able to forget his face for a very long time. He was waving at me when he was going down the building!”

A trace of fear crossed Wen Qing’s face as she took a deliberate step back away from the boy. “Chen Ge, let’s hurry up and go!”

“Wait, there’s no need to hurry.” Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision to scan the collage on the window. He reached out and pulled down one of the pictures of the boys. “Wu You, when did you see this boy?”

“I cannot remember anymore. Probably inside the trash bags, or under the sewer, or was it under the table? Inside the cupboard? I cannot remember! There are too many of them! There are so many of them!” Wu You’s expression was getting more and more unhinged as his body grew longer and longer.

“Have you seen this face inside Room 405?” The picture of the boy Chen Ge was holding had the painting of a boy who had lost his eyes. He was crawling desperately toward somewhere. It appeared like he was trying to run away. The boy in the picture reminded of the boy inside Room 405. If he looked closer, the boy in the picture indeed looked quite similar to the boy that he had taken a glimpse of earlier.

“Room 405? Auntie Ding’s room? The boy did indeed go up the stairs with her! Yes! At the time, the boy still had both of his legs!” Wu You had accidentally revealed a cruel truth. Initially, the boy was normal, but in Wu You’s picture, the boy had lost his legs. The boy that Chen Ge had seen in Room 405 had his legs cut off from the knee.

“Try to think back carefully. Did the boy tell you anything?”

“He asked me to help him. He told me that he misses his home a lot. No wait. He has not told me anything. I have not heard anything. He did not tell me anything! I do not know anything! La la la la!”

“Then, can you tell me more about Auntie Ding?”

“Auntie Ding is a very good person. She cooks a red dessert for me. She loves children a lot, but she will only get mad at bad children.

Auntie Ding forbids me from lying. Auntie Ding buys me toys. Auntie Ding treats me better than my own mother.” The whole statement sounded like it came right out from a recording. There was no trace of emotion about it. Wu You rattled his lines off from memory and forced them out of his mouth.

This surprised both Chen Ge and Wen Qing.

“Auntie Ding will not let the children go out alone at night. The children can only go out at night when they are carried by Auntie Ding. Auntie Ding’s favorite thing in the world is children. Auntie Ding likes to spend time with children...”

Like a broken record, Wu You kept repeating these things. And he spoke faster and faster. The pictures of the boys on the window gave off a staticky sound, as if every picture was trying to peel itself off the window.

“Chen Ge! We’d better leave! This place is getting too scary! And something is obviously wrong with the boy!” Wen Qing was scared out of her wits. She kept urging Chen Ge, but Chen Ge had managed to calm down. “I think I understand what is going on now. The tenants inside this building are all interconnected with each other. Their stories make up a big twine. The reason Wu You became like this is probably because he saw something he shouldn’t have about Auntie Ding, and he was scared until he became mad by Auntie Ding.”

Chen Ge did not know what exactly happened in real life, but from the information he gleaned from behind the door, that should be the truth. Chen Ge did not leave, but he walked voluntarily toward Wu You. He pressed on Wu You’s shoulders. “Try not to think about that person. She is not here. There are only the few of us in this room, only you and the two of us. She is not here...”

After some persuasion and coaxing, Wu You slowly calmed down and returned to normal. He pasted the picture that he had torn back onto the window, and then he pulled back the curtain. Those who were not there earlier would not be able to tell what had gone wrong.

“Wu You, when will your father and mother return? Do they know about the children on the window?”

“My father and mother have been gone for a long time. I have been keeping the door open to wait for them to return.”

“What were they going to do when they left home last time?”

"I do not know. The neighbors said they left because they could not stand me anymore because I am such a big liar." A strange smile hung on Wu You's face. "I've never told a lie in my life, but they all said I am nothing but a liar, that every word that comes out from my mouth is a lie."

"Thankfully, the adults see you as a 'liar', or else you would not have been able to survive until now." Chen Ge had a real issue assessing Wu You. He felt like the boy was incredibly clever, and behind the veil of madness was a very brilliant and cunning mind. He wanted to work together with Wu You, but he could not be sure about what the boy's actual thoughts were. After giving it much consideration, Chen Ge decided to leave for now. He still could not place his trust in Wu You.

"You'd better stay here and wait for your parents to return. We might meet each other again tonight."

Leaving Wu You's home, Chen Ge was about to tell Wen Qing something when the door opposite from Room 301 was suddenly pushed open.

A middle-aged man with disheveled hair poked his head out. The expression on his face could only be described as dark and melancholic. Staring in the direction of Room 301, he whispered to Chen Ge, "You'd better stay far away from that boy, or he will cause your death."

"What do you mean by that? Why would he cause my death?" When Chen Ge entered Wu You's house, he had closed the door behind him. Unless the man was leaning against the door of Room 301 and eavesdropping on them, he should not have known what Wu You had told them inside the room.

"The boy is not normal. He caused his parents to die, so if you know what's good for you, you'd better stay away from him." After saying what was on his mind, the middle-aged man was about to close the door. However, Chen Ge made use of this opening to silently and quickly glanced into the man's room. The heavy smell of alcohol covered up the horrible stench. The room was a mess. Trash and clothing covered the sofa, and posters of women in skimpy clothing filled every inch of the wall.

Bang!

The door slammed shut, and Chen Ge signaled for Wen Qing to leave the third floor.

“What? Is there something wrong with that man as well?”

“A married man would not paste such pictures inside his room. His wife would not allow him to do so. But if he is not married, how do you explain the exorbitant amount of female underwear that cluttered his sofa?”

Chapter 1077 - Smelliest Room

[2 in 1]

Chapter 1077: Smelliest Room [2 in 1]

“Female underwear?” Wen Qing did not notice these details. But after hearing the warning from Chen Ge, she felt a shiver run down her spine. “So, he is a pervert that goes around stealing people’s underwear?”

“Wu You probably saw his secret as well. That is why he came out to warn us about the boy after he knew we had a chat with Wu You.” Chen Ge and Wen Qing stood inside the staircase. Both of them spoke barely above a whisper and ensured that their words were only heard by each other. “But the thing that worries me the most is not the man’s habit of stealing underwear but the words that he told us. Wu You has kept his door open because he has been waiting for his parents to come home, and he stated quite clearly to us that his parents have merely gone out for a walk. However, according to what the middle-aged man told me, Wu You caused his parents’ death. Wu You’s father and mother are dead because of the boy.”

“You mean to say the person who killed Wu You’s parents is the middle-aged man?” After following Chen Ge for some time, Wen Qing’s way of thinking slowly matched up with Chen Ge’s.

...

“I suspect it was a group effort. Perhaps no one dealt the killing blow, but everyone was related to the death of Wu You’s parents.” After meeting the three tenants, Chen Ge realized that the apartment had its own inherent rules, and the rules had been agreed upon by the tenants. If anyone dared break the rules, they might be targeted by the rest of the tenants. “After a person witnessed a murder, if they did not come forward to report to the police but instead maliciously tried to keep it covered up, then they can be considered an accomplice to the murder.”

“Then based on what you said, I feel like Wu You is one poor boy. After we find Xiang Nuan, how about we bring him away with us as well?” Wen Qing was a very kind woman, but kindness was the most useless thing for the original tenants of the world behind the door. To survive and flourish there, the first thing one had to abandon was the kindness that resided within humanity.

“We will discuss that after we find Xiang Nuan.” Following the stairs down, Chen Ge and Wen Qing stopped when they reached the second floor. Inside the dim second-floor corridor stood an old lady. She was holding a dirty china bowl, and inside the bowl were some coins and some leftovers. The old lady was originally standing outside one of the doors, and she was trying to turn the doorknob as hard as she could, but no matter how hard she tried, she was unable to get the door to open. When Chen Ge passed by, the old lady spotted him, and she started to make her way toward him. The stained hands waved before Chen Ge. She held the bowl as she made this gargling sound. The whole incident just felt creepy and absurd.

“Granny Lee?” Wen Qing recognized this old lady before them, but when she saw the old lady’s actual appearance, she was given quite a shock.

“You know her? Is she one of the tenants of your neighborhood as well?”

“She used to be, but later, her son told us that she had wandered off one day. I personally have not seen her in years.” Wen Qing’s eyes were filled with shock. “The old lady led an orderly and prim life. Her hair was always in a neat bun, and you would not find a crease on her clothing. She was often spotted alone in the garden taking care of the plants and flowers.”

“Could it be that her son finally lost patience of looking after her, so he told you guys that the old lady had wandered away, but the truth was he had abandoned her?”

“That was his mother, not an object. How could someone abandon their mother just like that?”

“Do not overestimate the good in humanity. It was just a few days ago that I read on the news that a man had buried his incapacitated mother alive. Sometimes, real life is stranger than fiction.”

Wen Qing and Chen Ge stood where they were. The old lady appeared to have suffered from some real trauma. Her mind was not there, and she was unable to be communicated with. She just kept pushing the bowl toward Chen Ge.

“Are you hungry?” Chen Ge did not mind the old lady’s dirty appearance. He walked toward her and said, “Do you want me to lead you home?"

Through Wen Qing's brief description, Chen Ge felt like this crazy old lady was one of the 'good guys' and was therefore one of the candidates that he could try to cooperate with. The old lady did not appear like she could even string together a complete sentence. She very urgently shoved the bowl toward Chen Ge, and her throat kept making these strange noises. Chen Ge took out a bill of money and placed it inside the bowl, but the old lady still stubbornly held out her bowl. Her hands were gesturing. Even though Chen Ge still had no idea what she meant, but at least for now, he was sure that she was not looking for money but something else.

The commotion that they made was quite loud. After they had stood there for about ten seconds, the door of Room 206, the room that was closest to the stairs, suddenly opened.

"You again." It was a young man who pushed open the door. He was wearing a pair of headphones, and his face was pale like he had not seen the sun for a long time already. "I just chased you away. Why have you returned so soon?"

He looked at the dirty and disheveled old lady with undisguised disgust in his eyes. He walked out from his room and forcibly pulled Chen Ge away from the old lady. "Do not get entangled with this crazy woman, or else she will follow you forever like a shadowy ghost that refuses to leave. I have never seen such a disgusting person in my life."

So far, this young man from Room 206 was the most normal person Chen Ge had met since he entered the world behind the door. Be it his words, appearance, or physique, he looked similar to a normal person outside the door.

"Xiao Sun?" Wen Qing also recognized this young man, but the young man was unable to recognize her.

"Do I know you? Never mind, I do not have any interest in making a new friend. I do not need to get a briefing on your life. What I need is for you guys to keep quiet. I am recording a song in there." The young man then shut the door after saying all that.

"Is that young man the old lady's family?" Chen Ge asked softly.

"No, Granny Lee stayed in Room 205. Her son has a very ugly grimace on his face like the whole world owes him something. He is completely unlike Granny Lee.”

“Then, who was that Xiao Sun? The feeling that he gave me was completely different from the other tenants that we have met so far.” Chen Ge looked at the door to Room 206. As he interacted with more and more tenants, he became more and more confused. This was Xiang Nuan’s world behind the door. How exactly were these people linked to Xiang Nuan? What was the nature of their relationship with the little boy?

“Xiao Sun was a university student, and he liked to sing. He used to stay in Room 206 of Jin Hwa Apartments. At the time, he paid a half year’s rent in one go, but strangely enough, he moved away on the second month without any notice. He did not ask for the rest of his rent or the deposit back. He even left behind most of his items and furniture. The landlord complained to me about it quite a lot back then.”

“What did you think of Xiao Sun? What kind of person is he?”

“He rarely left his room, and now that I think about it, I did not remember seeing him going to class. He did not like to speak to others and would only occasionally leave his room to go and buy some everyday groceries in bulk. To me, he is a quintessential shut-in.”

“A very normal shut-in that disappeared mysteriously from your residential area after two months.” When the door opened earlier, Chen Ge had used Yin Yang Vision to look into the Room 206. He noticed that there were several cracks on the wall, and the wallpaper had peeled back a lot. The interior of Room 206 was lacking and needed some good refurbishing.

“Why would you say that he mysteriously disappeared? Perhaps some emergency came up and he had to leave without informing the landlord. By the way, I heard from the landlord that Xiao Sun’s room was a mess, and his furniture was seriously damaged. Perhaps he was worried that he would be forced to pay the repair fee, so he sneaked away in the middle of the night.”

“When a sheep is staying with a herd of wolves, what do you think will happen to the sheep?”

“What is it that you are trying to say?”

“If he does not turn himself into a wolf, then he will become the wolves’ dinner. When everyone is an accomplice and you are not willing to come one, you will end up as a victim.”

Granny Lee heard what Chen Ge said clearly. Interestingly enough, the apparently mad Granny Lee started to calm down. She seemed to understand Chen Ge. Granny Lee's reaction was within Chen Ge's expectations. He was purposely discussing Xiao Sun's situation before Granny Lee because he wanted to see and test her reaction.

It was difficult to survive behind the door. Every 'person' had their own way of survival, their own method of not being killed. Wu You was a born liar, and Granny Lee became a mad woman. Xiao Sun appeared the most normal, and thus, he was also in the most dangerous situation. Of course, if he had 'compromised', then it would be a different story.

The hands that were holding the china bowl shook violently. Granny Lee was unable to speak, but at least she had stopped her strange action. She merely followed quietly behind Chen Ge and refused to leave. Everything was similar to what Xiao Sun had described. Granny Lee was like a 'shadowy ghost' and could not be chased away no matter what.

“Xiao Sun should have experienced something similar. If my guess is not wrong, Granny Lee was actually trying to warn him, or rather, she was trying to use this kind of method to get help from Xiao Sun.” Chen Ge was curious as to why Granny Lee had lost the ability to speak. In Wen Qing's memory, the old lady did not have any problem with her voice.

Is it because she can't speak, or is she too afraid to speak?

They did not stop for long on the second floor. Chen Ge and Wen Qing, with Granny Lee trailing behind them, arrived at the first floor.

“Uncle Huang stays in Room 104. There are three rooms that are occupied on the first floor. The other three rooms have been modified into a storeroom and a garage.” Wen Qing also believed that Uncle Huang was a trustworthy person, so she showed more desperation than Chen Ge. She ran straight to Room 104 and knocked on the door.

While Wen Qing was doing that, Chen Ge took his time to study the corridor of the first door. Unlike the world behind Ying Tong's door, the interior of this apartment was not knotted in an endless circle. The exit to the staircase was right before them, but the way that should lead them out was blocked by a rusted iron door. And the door was locked. To leave, one needed the key.

“The way out has been locked. If Xiang Nuan does not have the key, then he should still be somewhere inside this building, but what if Xiang Nuan is the one who has been holding on to the key?”

Chen Ge had been inside this door for quite some time already, but he still had no clear idea what was going on. He could not see a clear sign of Xiang Nuan's despair. What he saw instead was the source of despair for the other tenants. In a way, Xiang Nuan was more like a spectator of other people's misery.

The corridor of the first floor has the most blood stains, and the black and red blood has seeped into the tiles. Even blood thread-like patterns have appeared on the wall. This floor might be more dangerous than the previous floor.

While Chen Ge was busy analyzing all that, the door to Room 104 was opened, and then Chen Ge heard a shocked gasp from Wen Qing.

“What happened?” Chen Ge turned back to look, and he too was given quite a shock. The iron door to Room 104 was open, and an old man with a serious hunchback stood at the door. His body was practically bent in half like there was something very heavy pressing down on him on his shoulders. If that was everything, Chen Ge would not have reacted so drastically. The scariest thing was the old man's face. The face that was filled with wrinkles was covered in bite marks. The bite marks were of different depths and sizes; they appeared to have come from different people.

“Uncle Huang?” Chen Ge asked uncertainly. He tried to make himself sound as normal as possible.

“My surname is Huang. How can I help you?” The old man shuffled out of his room. An indescribably horrible smell came out from inside his room.

“Uncle Huang, I am Wen Qing...” Wen Qing explained with her brows deeply furrowed.

“Wen Qing?”

“Do you not remember me? I often cook lunch for you. One time, when you were sick, I even took you to the hospital. I spend every day taking care of you whenever I can.”

What Wen Qing had just revealed was news to Chen Ge as well. He had no idea she had been taking care of Uncle Huang.

"I am sorry, but I am so old that my mind is not working so well. Are you a tenant here as well?" The old man was totally confused. His body appeared to be incredibly fragile, and he would cough between every word.

"Of course, I live at room..."

"Uncle Huang, we wish to ask you something." Chen Ge stepped in to interrupt Wen Qing. He did not allow her to continue. Actually, he had already noticed this anomaly a long time ago. All the people that they had met behind the door appeared to have no knowledge of Wen Qing. This woman who was supposedly the most important person in Xiang Nuan's life was a complete blank in his world behind the door. The flyers that insulted Wen Qing all had her pictures turned into the picture of a headless woman.

Earlier, Xiao Sun had no memory of Wen Qing, and now even Uncle Huang could not recognize Wen Qing. This was definitely not a coincidence. It was Xiang Nuan who opened the door. Chen Ge had a feeling that Xiang Nuan was purposely trying to protect Wen Qing. He did not want Wen Qing to have any connection with his world of nightmares. Even if he had fallen into the darkest abyss, he wanted his mother to stay in the world of warmth and kind humanity.

The idea is not bad, but he probably did not expect that Wen Qing would follow him through the door.

Chen Ge did not voice this out loud. He was merely thinking about it in his mind. The most important thing now was to figure out whether Uncle Huang was on their side or not.

"What do you wish to find out?" The old man's condition appeared to worsen. With his hand on the door, his back was bent even lower.

"Sir, has someone left from the exit before?"

"I don't think so. Recently, it has been quite chaotic outside this building, so the landlord added a lock to protect the tenants from the outside threat. The key is with the landlord, so to leave, you will need to find the landlord."

In one single sentence, Uncle Huang had revealed so much important information. The outside world was chaotic, so they at least knew something of the other apartments. This whole residential area was communal, and they were related to each other.

The lock was applied by the landlord, so if Chen Ge wanted to leave, they had to get the key from the landlord. Finally, what Uncle Huang said reminded Chen Ge of something. At least inside this apartment, the landlord was an important character. Chen Ge might have completely forgotten about him if not for Uncle Huang's reminder.

Before entering this door, due to the time constraint, he did not have the time to get to know the landlord. Now he could only try to assess the situation through Wen Qing's understanding of the landlord.

"Is there anything else? If not, I am going to go to rest. At my age, my legs get tired after standing for too long." Uncle Huang was about to close the door, but halfway through, Chen Ge reached out to grab at his door.

"Sir, can we go inside your place to rest?"

The stench inside Uncle Huang's room was heavy and thick. It was the smelliest room they had encountered. Chen Ge had a feeling that there was a secret hidden there. Even if Uncle Huang did not give his permission, he would figure out a way to get in to investigate.

"Be my guest." Uncle Huang surprisingly did not deny Chen Ge's rather unreasonable request. He appeared to be really tired. After saying that, he held onto the wall and returned to his seat in the living room.

Looking at the couch, Wen Qing felt her head go numb. The back of the couch was filled with sharp needles that appeared like blood vessels.

When Uncle Huang leaned into the couch, the expression on his face relaxed with satisfaction.

Wen Qing wanted to warn Chen Ge, but Chen Ge had already stridden into the room. It was as if he could not see all these scary and creepy things. He treated the place like his own house and very casually found a seat opposite Uncle Huang.

Chapter 1078 - Who Is the Killer? (2in1)

Chapter 1078: Who Is the Killer? (2in1)

Translator: Lonelytree Editor: Millman97

Wen Qing took a careful look at the two people in the room, and she felt a headache coming. They were in such a strange and creepy place, but neither Chen Ge nor Uncle Huang seemed to notice that. She did not know whether she was overacting because she had too little experience or these two's understanding of the world had gone far beyond the conceptualization of a normal person. After much hesitation, Wen Qing finally walked into the room. But she did not dare sleep, she merely stood behind Chen Ge.

Uncle Huang practically collapsed on the couch. He looked like he paid Chen Ge no mind at all and slowly closed his eyes. His body appeared to have grown attached to the sofa, and that was not a figure of speech. The blood vessels from the couch entangled around him, joining Uncle Huang to the couch. With no disturbance, Chen Ge made use of this rare opportunity to assess his surroundings. The layout of this room was rather different from the other rooms they had encountered. It was much smaller than a normal room. The kitchen and the toilet occupied the same space, and there was only one bedroom and one living room.

...

"Compared to Wen Qing's home, this place is missing a bedroom and a kitchen." Chen Ge suspected that the source of the stench came from the missing rooms. He sat for some time on the couch and even took some time to examine the blood vessels on the couch. Strangely enough, when Chen Ge sat on the couch, the blood vessels looked like red streaks of decoration, but when Uncle Huang occupied the couch, the blood vessels came to life like little snakes. They gyrated on the stained couch, looking quite scary while they were at it.

"The blood vessels inside under the stain inside this room can only recognize Uncle Huang. They will only show their true form when they are around Uncle Huang." Chen Ge did not quite understand the relationship between the blood vessels and Uncle Huang, so the only thing to do was to ask the old man about it, but Uncle Huang appeared to be asleep. The wrinkles on his face were closely folded together. He had not said a single word since he dropped down on the couch, and his body was slowly sinking into the couch.

“Chen Ge, I do not think Uncle Huang will be able to help us in his state.” Wen Qing was feeling quite disappointed. Before she arrived, she had very high hopes for Uncle Huang, but the greater the hope, the greater the disappointment.

“Earlier, you told me that it was his boss who rented this room for Uncle Huang, correct?”

“Yes, what about it?”

“Then, between you and him, who moved into this residential area first?” Chen Ge asked.

“When Xiang Nuan and I moved here, Uncle Huang had been staying here for a while already. His boss was quite a nice person. He knew that Uncle Huang had no place to go in the city, so he rented this room to him for a very low price.”

“Uncle Huang got into an accident at work. Do you know how much his boss compensated him for his injury?”

“I’m not sure. I never thought to ask Uncle Huang about it. After all, that was his private business.” Wen Qing was quite confused about why Chen Ge was asking her about these things.

“Have you noticed that only this room’s layout is different from the other rooms in this apartment. This place is missing both a kitchen and a bedroom...” Chen Ge paced around the room. His fingers glided down the wall before they stopped at the wall that was right next to the main bedroom. “Based on the layout of your own home, there should be a door here that leads to the guest bedroom.”

His fingers dug into the wall, and they came back with some black and red stains in his fingernails. “The surface is coated with a layer of white paint, but underneath it was all this black and red stuff.”

The reason Chen Ge could discover this was due to the stench, the stench that apparently he alone was able to smell. From the moment he entered Uncle Huang’s room, he had been trying to search for the source of the smell, but he had failed to find it. It was not inside any of the open rooms. After some analysis, he had gone to the spot where the smell was thickest. “The smell is leaking out through this particular wall.”

Chen Ge turned back to look. Uncle Huang was still curled up on the couch. It was as if no matter what Chen Ge did, it would not rouse Uncle Huang. “There is a hidden room here, and the smell in this place originates from that place.”

His fingers kept working. The paint on the wall was loose from the moisture. There was no cement or bricks behind the paint. Instead, the wall was made up of the unknown black and red building material.

Half of Chen Ge’s finger had already dug into the wall. The sense of touch that came from his fingertip changed. It felt like he had touched a thin layer of blood vessels. Pulling back his finger, Chen Ge used his Yin Yang Vision and looked through the hole. What he saw was a maze that was made of the thing that looked like blood capillaries. Between the gaps in the ‘blood vessel’, Chen Ge spotted an eye looking back at him.

“Is there a dead body on the other side of the wall?”

Opening his backpack, Chen Ge silently took out Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer.

“What are you doing?”

“I am going to break down this wall.”

“We’ve been in here less than five minutes, and the owner of this place is still sleeping.”

“Hence, this is the perfect time for us to make our move.”

“Are you sure you want to do this?” Wen Qing felt that Chen Ge was being irrational. What Chen Ge intended to do would definitely anger Uncle Huang. Why would they make another enemy for no reason?

When the two spoke, Uncle Huang, who was submerged in the couch, appeared to have recovered somewhat. He turned his head with great difficulty to look at them and then croaked out, “Have you two not left?”

Seeing Uncle Huang had woken up, Chen Ge expertly and silently shoved the hammer back into his backpack. “Sir, this place has been rented to you, right?”

“Yes, the owner of this place is not staying here, so they rented me this place to have me take care of it for them. That is the perfect arrangement because I was looking for a place to stay as well.” Uncle Huang’s mannerisms and tone did not change compared to before. It was as if no matter what happened, the way he spoke would be the same, and it would never change.

“Got it.” Chen Ge nodded.

“If there is nothing else, perhaps you should go. I feel like calling it a day.” Uncle Huang slowly stood up. The blood vessels on the couch returned to normal. It was as if those strange things had never happened before. With his body trembling, Uncle Huang walked to the bedroom door. He coughed several times. His physique was so fragile that he had to walk by holding onto the wall. When he was at the door to the bedroom, one of his fingers tapped lightly on the wall that was next to the bedroom door.

“Close the door on your way out. I am getting more and more tired lately. If you have any questions, you should go and ask the landlord. He lives on the top floor, but he appears to have a bad temper, so you should be careful when you approach him.” Uncle Huang, whose tone had not changed since they met him, suddenly increased his tone, to stress his words careful.

“Then we shan’t disturb your rest. If you have any clues or if you have seen that boy, you can contact us anytime. We will be around the building.” Chen Ge practically dragged Wen Qing out of Uncle Huang’s room. When they left, they did close the door for Uncle Huang as he requested.

“I realize your mind changes as swiftly as the wind. At one moment, you were ready to break the door, but now you are so ready to leave. It was not easy for us to find Uncle Huang. At least we should have asked him more questions before we left,” Wen Qing lamented with some regret. “He has lived here for a very long time. He knows more about this residential area’s secrets than I do. You have wasted such a perfect opportunity. Speaking of which, why did you suddenly want to demolish the wall earlier? I felt like Uncle Huang was spooked by you.”

“You only saw the surface layer.” Chen Ge did not go into detail. He turned to take a glance at Granny Lee. When he and Wen Qing entered Uncle Huang’s room, Granny Lee, who had been following them, did not dare enter with them. She merely waited quietly outside the door.

“Then should we go back in to ask Uncle Huang for more details?”

“There is no need to do so.” There were certain things that Chen Ge could not say out loud. He realized that it was not that Uncle Huang did not want to help them, but he did not dare help them directly. When they first met Uncle Huang behind the door, both Chen Ge and Wen Qing were shocked by his appearance. Honestly, this version of Uncle Huang was the stuff of nightmares; bitemarks covered his face, and he looked rather unapproachable.

At the time, Chen Ge started to have his suspicions. Could it be that the Uncle Huang inside the door was different from the Uncle Huang outside the door? Even this old man had a secret and malicious side that he had not shown others. It was normal for Chen Ge to have this suspicion due to the combination of the old man’s scary appearance and the horrible stench in the room. But as time went on, Chen Ge slowly realized that was not the case.

When he practically demanded that they enter Uncle Huang’s room, the latter agreed easily. As slow of a talker as he was, there was no trace of rejection in his voice. It was as if Uncle Huang had been waiting for people to visit him. But what was there to see inside the creepy, dirty room of a single old man that reeked of a horrible stench?

After entering the room, Uncle Huang acted as normal as normal could be behind the door, but something still tugged at Chen Ge’s suspicion. After Uncle Huang collapsed on the couch, he closed his eyes directly. He did not mind what the two strangers did inside his house. This was the detail that confused Chen Ge. He felt like Uncle Huang was purposely inviting them into his room for them to observe and study it.

Chen Ge indeed saw some problems. He noticed that the layout and the size of the room was not right. There were probably two hidden rooms inside the place. Just as Chen Ge was trying to prove that theory by breaking down the wall, Uncle Huang had ‘just so happened’ to wake up. Even though he had not said a direct word about it, his actions proved that he was trying to stop Chen Ge. If he did not wake up, Chen Ge might really have taken a swing at the wall.

From this, it might appear that Uncle Huang was worried that his secret had been exposed, but after giving it some thought, Chen Ge felt that he could have been trying to protect Chen Ge and Wen Qing. He did not want to pit them against the tenants of the building too early. One small action by Uncle Huang before he retired to his bedroom confirmed Chen Ge's suspicion. When Uncle Huang walked to the door of his bedroom, his finger tapped lightly on the wall next to the door. The spot where his finger landed was on the same level as the hole that Chen Ge had dug out on the wall. Uncle Huang probably wanted to use this method to tell Chen Ge that his suspicion was not unfounded; there was indeed something inside the wall. He did not dare say it out loud, so he could only use this method to warn Chen Ge.

Uncle Huang should be one of the good guys, but how did he manage to survive behind the door? What kind of job does he do to keep his life intact?

Chen Ge was suddenly reminded of what Wen Qing had told him earlier. After Uncle Huang was injured at work, he found himself a job at the morgue to look after the dead bodies and do some simple cleaning.

Could the wall be hiding a whole room of dead bodies behind it? And Uncle Huang is the guardian of the dead bodies?

Uncle Huang's parting words mentioned the landlord and even stressed for them to be careful. Now that he connected the dots, Chen Ge's eyes slowly widened.

Uncle Huang has been helping the landlord guard the bodies?

Even Chen Ge was shocked by the conclusion that he came to. He did not share his theory with anyone but silently memorized it in his heart.

If that's the truth, then the most dangerous character in this building should be the landlord. Perhaps every single tragedy at this building was related to this landlord.

The landlord must have known about the many tragedies and scary events that had occurred in his building, but he did not seem to have done anything to stop it.

Perhaps the real landlord is already dead, and the bodies buried behind the wall are the actual dead bodies of the real landlord's family.

Gripping his backpack tightly, Chen Ge had a plan forming in his mind. "Wen Qing, we will go to find the landlord now. He has the key to leave this building. So, he should know whether Xiang Nuan has left this building or not."

"Okay." Wen Qing did not know Chen Ge's real plan. Actually, Chen Ge had his sight set on the landlord already. Currently, the landlord still did not know about his and Wen Qing's presence in his building. The success rate would be high if they launched an ambush on the landlord. After a brief discussion, Chen Ge and Wen Qing were about to head up the stairs when a loud scream came from above.

"What happened now?"

"Do not panic. The first thing we need to do is ensure our own safety." Not only did Chen Ge and Wen Qing hear that scream, many of the tenants heard it as well. After the harrowing wail, the sound of doors opening echoed through the apartment block. It sounded like many people had come out from their homes.

"The scream appears to have come from the fifth floor."

Chen Ge, Wen Qing, and Granny Lee slowly climbed up the steps. When they passed the third floor, they saw the middle-aged man with the collection of female underwear inside his room also exiting his house. After a brief greeting, the group headed up the stairs together.

Why is he interested in this as well? He does not look like the kind of person who would be kind enough to go to the scene of an accident to help. He does not strike me as a good Samaritan.

When they arrived at the fifth floor, Chen Ge noticed that the corridor was already packed. There were a few familiar faces among them. They included the university student Xiao Sun and Auntie Ding. Around five to six people were gathered around the entrance to Room 504. They were whispering among themselves. Chen Ge was standing too far away to hear what they were talking about.

"What happened here? Do you know?" Chen Ge whispered to ask Xiao Sun.

"Someone was murdered! It happened in Room 504!" Xiao Sun's face was blanched like a sheet of white paper. This was the first time he had encountered something like this.

"A murder?" Chen Ge looked in the direction of Room 504. The living room was soaked in blood, and the wall was filled with scary paintings that were made out of red blood strokes. All the furniture was covered in splattered blood. A girl sat among the pool of blood, and she was the one who was wailing. She cried while holding the dead body of a middle-aged man in her arms.

“Was it the girl screaming all along?”

“I also just arrived here.” Xiao Sun shielded his face behind his hands. He only dared to look through the gaps between his fingers. Wen Qing wanted to get a closer look, but she was stopped by Chen Ge. “Someone is dead. There is blood everywhere. You’d better be prepared for the sight. I must warn you, it is not one for one with a weak stomach.”

Just from Chen Ge’s description, Wen Qing felt her stomach rolling already. “It has nothing to do with Xiang Nuan, right?”

“No, the victim is a middle-aged man.”

“Then, I do not think I will go any further. I do not need to see this.”

“Shush, watch your words. The situation now is very unusual and dangerous.” Chen Ge lowered his voice. “The door that leads out of this apartment is locked, and the key is with the landlord. If the murderer is not the landlord, then the killer must still be in this building. He might be hiding amid the crowd at this moment.”

Wen Qing understood what Chen Ge meant. She sidled up closer to Chen Ge carefully.

“The tenants of this building have their own rules that they have already established among themselves. The death of this middle-aged man has shaken practically every tenant in the building, so it does not look like this was a job of one of the other tenants.

1 “If the other tenants have been ruled out, other than the landlord, the only possible people who would dare to so openly violate the consensus within the building must be an outsider.”

As this thought crossed his mind, Chen Ge took another look at the drawing painted using fresh blood inside the room. He noticed that most of the paintings had some kind of relation to curses. He appeared to have seen similar paintings in Li Wan City and the old city before.

Chapter 1079 - Sin and Greater Sin

Chapter 1079: Sin and Greater Sin

“What happened?” More and more people gathered at the fifth-floor corridor. Many tenants ran over. Chen Ge dragged Wen Qing to the corner. It was not the time to get mixed up. Xiang Nuan’s blood door did not disappear. When Chen Ge entered the door, the monster from the living room followed. At the time, he tried to close the door, but he was not the door pusher, so that was beyond his capacity. Chen Ge suspected that the monster following them was the killer, but only he knew about the monster’s presence.

“I’ll have to figure out a way to lead the tenants to find and locate that monster.” Looking at the gore inside the room, Chen Ge took a light breath. To act so brazenly behind another person’s door, the monster from the cursed hospital must have some kind of back up. “The cursed hospital’s study on the door should have begun much earlier than mine. They understand these ‘doors’ better than I do. Perhaps the world that is filled with danger in my eyes looks different to them.”

The cursed hospital had cultivated many monsters like the non smilers. These people had lost their consciousness and humanity. All they did was smile; they would be forever hated, perfect to survive behind the door. Standing in the corner, as Chen Ge listened to the discussion among the tenants, he tried to come up with a solution as fast as he could.

...

“It’s quite easy to see why the outsider would kill someone. The front door is locked, so they can’t leave this building. This means that they need a safehouse to hide in. After killing the owner, that means that they will be able to hide inside that room and use that room as a secure spot to continue observing and investigating the rest of the building.”

From this, it showed the different side of how Chen Ge and the cursed hospital dealt with things. The bottom line for the cursed hospital was much lower. In their eyes, the ‘people’ behind the door could not be counted as people. As long as it was to their benefit, they could be killed without any question.

“That was not a bad idea, but some kind of accident probably happened during the process and caused them to abandon this room and go searching for another room.”

With that in mind, Chen Ge looked at the girl inside the room hugging the dead body. “Is the reason for that this little girl?”

Using Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge did not find anything too special about the girl. She looked soft and weak, completely unthreatening.

“Move out of the way! Don’t block my way!”

While Chen Ge was thinking, a young man’s voice came from the sixth floor. He turned back to look and saw a disheveled man rushing down the stairs. This man looked more desperate than the other tenants.

“Yan Er!” The young man was calling an unfamiliar name. When the girl inside the room heard his voice, she cried harder. Pushing his way through the crowd, when the young man arrived at Room 504, he was stunned. He froze at the door, the energy slowly leaving his body.

“Big brother...” The girl’s face was covered in blood and tears. She looked both pitiable and scary.

“What happened here?” The young man stepped into the room and knelt next to the middle-aged man. His body was shaking like he could not believe what he was seeing. The girl finally found a sanctuary. With tears in her eyes, she started to narrate what happened earlier.

The girl’s name was Qu Yan. She shared Room 504 with her father, Qu Gui. Her older brother, Qu Yin, and his girlfriend stayed above them in Room 601. Qu Yan had the habit of sleeping early, and since her father had serious snoring issues, she would close the bedroom door every night. But earlier, when Qu Yan was fast asleep, she heard strange noises coming from inside her room. It sounded like mice biting on the closet or something crawling under the bed.

Qu Yan was frightened, so she quickly switched on the bedside lamp. There was nothing that suggested anything was wrong, but Qu Yan could not fall back to sleep; her mind kept wandering, feeling eyes on her from underneath the bed or inside the closet. She tossed and turned. The more she thought about it, the more scared she became. She wrapped herself in her blanket and left her bedroom to find her father.

Knocking on her father's door, Qu Yan told her father that she was scared because it felt like someone else had entered the room. Qu Gui tried his best to console Qu Yan, but honestly, he did not think much of what she said. Seeing that Qu Yan was reluctant to go back to her own bedroom, he succumbed and allowed Qu Yan to sleep in his room. He told Qu Yan that he would guard the living room and stop any bad guys from entering. That way, Qu Yan could sleep soundly. After bidding Qu Yan good night, the middle-aged man left his bedroom for the living room.

After her father left, Qu Yan was still quite unsettled due to being left alone, so she went to lock the door.

A few minutes later, when Qu Yan felt like sleeping again, she suddenly heard the doorknob of the bedroom behind twisted. She only heard it once. When the person realized that the bedroom door was locked, they stopped doing it. That banished sleep from Qu Yan's mind. She called her father's name loudly, but no one answered from the living room. Fear wrapped around her heart, and she screamed louder and louder until knocking came from the door of the living room. The neighbors' voices could be heard outside the front door. She then decided to open the bedroom door to check.

The moment she opened the door, her mind went blank. The whole living room was covered in blood. Her father was splayed out in the middle of the room, unmoving. The girl had no idea when she opened the front door. The neighbors probably just wanted the girl to be quiet so that they could rest, but when they saw the scene inside the room, even they were stunned.

"The entrance of this apartment is locked. The murderer must be still in the building!" Qu Yin tried his best to calm down. He resisted the sadness. With bloodshot eyes, he stared at the gathered neighbors. "The person that killed my father is now inside this building!"

The neighbors looked at each other. The familiar faces that they saw daily had a murderer hiding among them. That was a scary thought.

Looking at the pained expression on Qu Yan and Qu Yin's faces, Chen Ge had confusion running through his mind.

"Qu Yan was the one who first discovered that something was off. She felt like a stranger had infiltrated their home, and she was proven right later, but how did that person manage to sneak in so silently? The person probably had the key to Qu Yan's home and knew the place very well. Combining all that happened after that and the appearance, and timing, how come it feels like for me the greatest suspect is the older brother, Qu Yin?”

Chen Ge’s analysis was not unfounded. He had followed the police on multiple cases. He was quite familiar with investigation, logical construction, and the chain of evidence.

“Qu Yin lives on the sixth floor, right above the fifth floor, so he would have heard Qu Yan’s screams, but he was not the first to the scene. In fact, he arrived much later. What was he doing during this period? Changing out of his bloody clothes? Cleaning the blood stains from his hands?”

His eyes wandering between Qu Yin and Qu Yan. Actually, Chen Ge had a more brazen suspicion. The killer could have been Qu Yan too. This could have all been staged, but the chance of that was not big. After all, in terms of motive, why would any of them kill Qu Gui?

Chen Ge initially suspected that the killer was from the cursed hospital, but things did not appear to be that simple. Things became much complicated. Chen Ge’s mind from spinning. As he eavesdropped on the neighbors, he found out that the relationship between Qu Yin and Qu Gui was bad, and it was due to the Qu Yin’s girlfriend. It was the reason Qu Yin had moved out. Qu Yin had the motive, but it was not that strong a motive. After all, Qu Gui was his father; he would not kill him for his girlfriend, right?

“The walls are painted with cursed pictures, so the actual killer should be the monster from the cursed hospital. There is no question about that. However, I feel like someone is assisting these monsters from the cursed hospital.” Chen Ge kept his eyes on Qu Yin. “The people from the cursed hospital has probably formed some kind of contract with Qu Yin. The monster helped kill Qu Gui while Qu Yin helped to provide them with a cover. That way, it was an exchange of benefits, but it tied both of them to the same boat as well.”

The monster from the cursed hospital understood the rules behind the door better than Chen Ge. That came from years of studying, and they knew how to easily obtain the door for themselves. With threats and benefits, they could get anyone to work with them.

Before sin, there was deeper sin. The monster from the cursed hospital was not afraid that they would be scammed.

“I seem to have underestimated that cursed hospital.” Chen Ge dragged Wen Qing back a few more steps. They melted into the crowd to avoid Qu Yin's sight.

Chapter 1080 - A Good Person Couldn't Be Bad For Once? [3 in 1]

Chapter 1080: A Good Person Couldn't Be Bad For Once? [3 in 1]

Qu Yin was one of the tenants. He was also the victim's son and a member of the community that adhered to the rules within the apartment. If this person came out and accused Chen Ge of being the murderer, then the spotlight would be instantly shone on Chen Ge and Wen Qing. It would turn the situation from bad to worse. Out of such consideration, Chen Ge dragged Wen Qing to hide in the corner.

Qu Yin hugged Qu Yan. The two siblings felt great loss and pain. The neighbors showed pity, and everyone appeared normal, or more accurately, everyone tried to make themselves make the most normal reaction in the circumstances. The demons who had on the disguise of human skin had gathered together. Every single of them had their own agenda, and no one could really tell what they were planning.

"Wen Qing, we should proceed on our quest to find the landlord." Chen Ge did not wish to stay there any longer. He had a very bad feeling in his heart. He knew that the people from the cursed hospital had entered the door, and the monster from the cursed hospital knew about him and Wen Qing's presence. The fact that they had chosen to cooperate with the original tenants behind the door was probably a way to force Chen Ge to show himself.

...

Now that someone had died in the building, to investigate the killer, Qu Yin had a reason to knock on every door. This gave him a valid reason to go into every room to take a look. If someone refused, that meant that they had a guilty conscience, and that would prove that they were the killer.

"Such a wicked method. They had the actual murderer go and investigate the potential murderers. The real murderer is hiding among the family of the victim, practically hiding in plain sight, but he will be ignored by the rest of the tenants."

The cursed hospital did so for two reasons. One, they could now openly investigate every single room behind the door, and two, they could easily pin the blame on Chen Ge. They could have pitted Chen Ge against the entire building of tenants. It was truly killing two birds with one stone.

“The group of monsters are familiar with the rules behind the door. Even though being inside the door has greatly limited their power, they are not that easy to deal with.”

This was officially the first time Chen Ge had crossed swords with the cursed hospital. Behind someone else’s door, both parties were trying their best to trick and scam the other.

“Even if you want me to take the blame, it depends on whether you have that capability or not. You might end up picking up the stone and having it dropped on your own two feet.”

To be fair, Chen Ge was not that worried. The rules within the apartment were broken. Even though the neighbors wanted to catch this person who had violated the room, every room had their own secret to hide. It would not be easy for Qu Yin to gain access to these neighbors’ rooms.

“For those who have darkness in their heart, once you infiltrate into their private space and discover their secret, it means you have made an enemy out of them. Even if they do not kill you straight away, the seed for murder will be buried in their heart.”

Chen Ge took one last look at Qu Yin before leaving together with Wen Qing. The two silently retreated to the stairwell, and Granny Lee followed behind them. The three first went to the sixth floor. Chen Ge stood outside Qu Yin’s room door. He stood at the peephole’s blind spot and used Ghost Ear to listen in on the door. There was a woman talking to herself inside the room. But the more Chen Ge listened to her, the more he felt like she was communicating with someone. Unfortunately, only Chen Ge appeared to be able to hear her.

“This woman should be Qu Yin’s girlfriend.”

Chen Ge looked at the door to Room 601, and he was feeling conflicted. If he knocked down the door and entered the room now, there was a very high chance that he would find the evidence to prove that Qu Yin had murdered his father. Perhaps he could catch the monster from the cursed hospital hiding inside the room as well. But he was afraid of an accident. If his speculation was wrong, then he would instantly be turned into the prime suspect.

“The other party is spreading out a web for their wicked plan. This web will slowly tighten until I am eventually trapped inside.”

The monster was clever, but Chen Ge was too sharp. After he saw Qu Yin, he had figured out many things.

“If the cursed hospital has really worked together with Qu Yin, that puts me at a serious disadvantage. Instead of letting this drag out and allow the situation to get out of my hand, why not end it here and now?”

There was only a door between them. Even the monster from the cursed hospital probably would not have imagined Chen Ge would be standing right outside the door at that moment. He knocked lightly on the door. Chen Ge was not only sharp; he was determined. Yes, he would hesitate occasionally, but he would not spend too long hesitating. When the door was knocked on, the whispering of the woman inside the room instantly disappeared. It became incredibly quiet.

“At this moment, the person inside the room should have sneaked to the door and is try to observe the situation outside the room through the peephole.” Chen Ge had contemplated all the possibilities. When he knocked on the door, he pulled Granny Lee and posited her before the door at the same time. He knocked on the door again, and they waited for a while before the front door was opened a gap. The person inside the room had probably confirmed through the peephole who was outside the door. They realized that it was only Granny Lee before they opened the door. Perhaps from their perspective, a mad old woman was no threat to them. Even if their secret was discovered, it would not have mattered because who would believe the words of an unhinged person?

“Stop knocking on my door. There are no leftovers at my place. Go and find your own son for help. If you continue to harass me, I will go and report you to the landlord and have you chased out from this apartment,” the woman warned viciously.

However, Granny Lee only stood where she was; she did not answer. The woman scolded the poor old woman a few more times before she prepared to close the door. The door was pulled back, but the woman suddenly realized that she was unable to shut the door no matter how hard she tried. When she lowered her head to look, her body broke out in cold sweat. There was a hand that gripped the edge of the door tightly and refused to let go.

“Who is it?”

“Do not worry, I just have some questions that I need to ask you.” With his hand on the door, after ensuring that the woman was unable to force the door shut, Chen Ge showed himself with an ingratiating smile.

“What do you want to know?”

“The fewer people who know about this, the better. Why don’t we go inside first?” Chen Ge pulled the front door open. He did not give the woman any chance to deny and forced his way into the room. The whole process occurred within the blink of an eye. Before the woman could react, Chen Ge was already standing in her living room.

“Who the hell are you?” The woman raised her voice. Chen Ge gave the woman a once over. He was actually already prepared to tear the whole place down. If the woman screamed loudly for help, he would rush forward to clamp his hand over her lips and apprehend her in the process. Chen Ge did not give her any response. The first thing he did was confirm the location of the bathroom and walked toward it.

“Stop right there! Where are you going?” The woman moved to stop Chen Ge, but when she caught up to him, Chen Ge had already pushed open the door of the bathroom. A bunch of dirty clothes were placed inside the dryer, and a few pairs of dirty shoes were abandoned at the corner of the room. Using Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge failed to find any trace of blood on the bunch of clothes.

Was I wrong?

His eyes wandered over to the sink, and Chen Ge hit the jackpot. There was a small stain of blood that was left on the edge of the sink. Moreover, there was blood that was not yet properly cleaned inside the gap of the bathroom tiles.

“There are droplets around the rim of the sink, and the room smells of soap. That can only mean that someone was using this room to clean up the blood evidence a few moments ago!”

The many different circumstantial clues told Chen Ge that his hypothesis was not wrong. “Qu Gui was stabbed to death by a sharp weapon. The whole crime scene was filled with blood splatter, so the murderer would have been covered in blood as well. There must be other traces of blood inside the house!”

With the possession of Yin Yang Vision, Ghost Ear, and Spirit Sniff, in a way, Chen Ge was no worse than an investigative officer who had years of experience under his belt. It would be very difficult to slip one by him. The blood stain in the sink confirmed Chen Ge's supposition. That propelled him to make a braver action. After leaving the bathroom, without saying anything, Chen Ge moved on to the bedroom and started to investigate it.

"What are you doing?" The woman's voice turned shrill, a sign of panic, but it was already too late to stop Chen Ge. He had already pushed open the door of the first bedroom. The room was not tidy, the closet door was hanging open, and a truckload of clothes were abandoned on the king size bed. The only place in this bedroom that was large enough to hide a person was underneath the bed, so Chen Ge swiftly walked over and peeled back the covers. After seeing no one was down there, he walked out of the bedroom and headed toward the guest bedroom.

"Stop! That's enough!" The woman gripped Chen Ge by his arm. She pulled on him so tightly that her fingers had dug into Chen Ge's skin. She was looking like a banshee at that moment, but probably the woman herself did not even realize that.

"Why are you trying so hard to stop me? Is it because there is a secret that cannot be discovered hiding inside this room?" Chen Ge forced his way to the guest bedroom, but before he got to the door, the sound of the window being opened came out from inside the door!

It appeared like the window had not been opened for a long time, so it lodged there before it gave. The person inside the room pushed twice before the window creaked noisily open.

"There is someone inside the room!" Chen Ge ignored the woman's protestation and grabbed at the doorknob and tried to push it open. The bedroom door was locked from the inside. Chen Ge aimed at the lock and kicked it several times before he finally got the wooden door to break down. The large piece of red colored curtain was fluttering inside the bedroom; the bedroom window was open. A blood trail lingered on the windowsill. Someone had just abandoned this room through the window.

"The person sure is mad. To not expose himself, he chose to escape from the window." The black smoke surrounding the residential area was the hiding place for many extremely scary monsters. When he faced the black fog, even Chen Ge's heart could not help but shiver, much less entertain the thought of walking into the black fog himself. Chen Ge walked to the window and looked down. All he could see was the black fog; there was no trace of a person.

The woman beside him could not stop screaming and cursing at Chen Ge, but Chen Ge did not seem to mind it at all. The woman had made such a loud ruckus that the tenants who were already tense from the murder quickly rushed over when they heard the woman's scream.

"Honey, are you alright?" Qu Yin's voice came from the corridor. When he ran into the room, he saw Chen Ge and his own girlfriend pulling on each other at the door to the guest bedroom.

"Ah Yin, this person has barged into the room and started to destroy our furniture!" The woman appeared to have seen her savior. She ran to Qu Yin's side helplessly. More and more people gathered in the corridor. The neighbors regarded Chen Ge with unkind gazes. At that moment, he was pushed to the tip of the cliff; one wrong move and he would be swallowed up by the dangerous mob.

"Brother, calm down first. I think, if anything, you should thank me." Chen Ge was not going to be frightened by this situation; he had been in much worse conundrums. At that moment, he was as calm as ever. He pointed at the bedroom door that he had kicked down and very calmly asked the crying woman, "Did I break down this door or not?"

With the matter of fact tone and the even cadence, even Wen Qing who stood next to Chen Ge thought that Chen Ge was being a bit too arrogant like he was purposely saying these words to get a rise out of the woman or the man.

"Ah Yin, this person is crazy! After he charged into the room, he hustled everywhere and even kicked down the door to our bedroom!" Qu Yin's girlfriend complained. It looked like she was about to start crying again.

Hearing his girlfriend's complaint, Qu Yin's expression darkened immediately. That was because he knew what or rather who was hiding inside that guest bedroom. Now his mind was working to come up with an explanation to this problem.

"The reason I kicked the door down was because the door was locked from the inside." Chen Ge turned to face the group of neighbors and pointed his finger at Qu Yin's girlfriend. "Brother, at the time, your girlfriend and I were in the living room, but the door to your bedroom was locked from the inside. That proves that there was someone else inside your house at that moment.”

From the moment Qu Yin’s girlfriend confirmed that it was Chen Ge who kicked down the door, they had fallen into Chen Ge’s narration. They could only be led down the plot that was arranged by Chen Ge.

“What is that able to prove? So what if there is another person inside the room at the time?” Qu Yin’s face was turning white. He did not seem like he was prepared for this situation. He had not figured out what to say.

“This is your home, and you are not home. Your girlfriend was cooped up inside your home with another person. The implication is not my business, but when I kicked the bedroom door down, there was no one inside the bedroom.” Chen Ge signaled for the neighbors to enter the living room to look at the evidence. “When I kicked down the door, the window was open, and the curtains were fluttering in the wind. But where did the person in the room go? Why would he escape from the window? What was he so afraid of?”

Chen Ge looked at the group of neighbors and slowly captured their expressions one by one. “If you still do not understand what I am getting at, then come closer. There are blood stains left on the curtain, and there are uncleaned blood stains inside the room. They are still very fresh...”

“I get it now! The murderer who just killed Qu Yin’s father was probably hiding inside this room earlier!” the university student, Xiao Sun, shouted out directly. He was just a student, so he had not experienced something like this before. Honestly, he was still in quite a bit of shock. The other neighbors probably came to the same conclusion as well, but since every single one of them had something to hide, none of them wanted to voice the truth.

“Looks like there are clear-minded people among us,” Chen Ge said with a bright smile. He walked voluntarily toward Qu Yin. “That is why I said you should thank me. If not for me, your girlfriend would probably have been killed by the murderer to silence the witness!”

Qu Yin’s face was twitching lightly. Chen Ge’s tale was being spun so fast that he had difficulty catching up. He had no idea what Chen Ge might say next.

Looking at Qu Yin’s drab, gray face, Chen Ge very kindly moved to pat him on his shoulder. “From the situation that we managed to glean from your bedroom, the killer probably got into the victim’s home through the window. After he murdered the poor father, he escaped through the window as well. That would explain why the killer was able to get into the victim's home so quietly even though he did not have the key to the victim's house. Don't you agree with me, Qu Yin?"

An observer might think that Chen Ge was just providing his analysis, but as an accomplice to the killer, Qu Yin was able to detect the heavy hint of threat that was inherent in Chen Ge's words. Obviously, Chen Ge knew how the killer had gotten into the victim's home, but he did not expose it and left some opening for all parties involved. The reason Chen Ge did this was definitely not to protect the murderer. He had a very crazy plan forming in his mind. He wanted to use this opportunity to eliminate all the mad people inside this apartment building. He knew that would be an incredibly hard undertaking, but getting Qu Yin to dangle by his fingertips was the first step of his plan.

"You have a point there. I am shocked to find out that the killer got into my father's house through the window." Qu Yin had no idea how much Chen Ge knew, so the only thing he could do now was follow what Chen Ge said and continue with the storyline that Chen Ge had provided.

Hearing Qu Yin agree with Chen Ge, Wen Qing was stunned beyond belief. She slowly lowered her head because she was worried that she might add trouble to Chen Ge because she was unable to control her expression.

"I kicked the door down about three minutes ago. It was around that time that the killer left; the opening between the two events was less than fifty seconds. From this, it can be proved that the killer is not one of us present at this moment."

Chen Ge used a single statement to help clear away the suspicion from everyone present; this banded them into a group. He could then use the power of this group to help investigate the other tenants who were not present and undermine the building from within. Chen Ge knew very well who the killer was, but he was not going to expose him. He was going to use the excuse of finding the killer to 'demolish' the rules of the apartment.

Qu Yin also knew who the killer was, but he had even less of a reason to reveal the killer's identity. Because the killer had already escaped, if he revealed the truth, would that not be equal to surrendering himself? After all, the threat from Chen Ge still lingered in his mind.

Both who knew the real killer were acting like they were searching for the killer. In a way, a consensus had formed between them. In the way they dealt with the situation, Chen Ge's method was far more complicated and useful than the monster from the cursed hospital. With one single statement, he had cleared the suspicion for most of the people. He claimed very plainly that they were not the killers, and thus, he would naturally not go and investigate their rooms.

In this selfish world behind the door, the thing that these tenants cared the most about was their own dirty little secret. They were neighbors, but at the core, they only cared about themselves.

Therefore, when they found out their own room would not be searched and their secret would not be exposed, they sighed in relief and very excitedly aided Chen Ge to go and help expose the others' dirty secrets. Chen Ge made use of their sick psychology and prepared to take down this building one step after another. When there were more 'good people' than 'bad people', it would be time for him to lay all the cards on the table.

The trap laid down by the cursed hospital was not only easily neutralized by Chen Ge, the latter had even taken advantage of it. If the monster from the cursed hospital knew about this, he would be so mad.

"Wait a minute, how did you know the killer was hiding in Qu Yin's room in the first place?" The middle-aged man with the store of secret women's underwear in his room stood forward to pose this question.

"The killer wanted to kill Qu Gui and Qu Yan, so he must have great hatred for their whole family. I was worried that Qu Yin and his girlfriend might be his next target, so I quickly came to check on her. When I arrived, I heard strange voices coming from inside Qu Yin's room, so I knocked on the door." Chen Ge shrugged and opened his arms to say. "I admit that my actions were rather brash, but we are talking about human lives here. I am sure you can forgive me for my quick yet rash action."

After saying that, Chen Ge even turned to Qu Yin's girlfriend. "You have just brushed shoulder with death. If not for me, you might have been in great danger. Shouldn't you be appreciative of my help?"

The sound of gritting teeth came from Qu Yin's girlfriend's lips. She leaned against Qu Yin's chest with tears in her eyes; she refused to turn to see Chen Ge.

“Looks like your girlfriend is quite shocked. You should go and ‘console’ her.” Then, Chen Ge walked into the living room like he owned the place. “The killer is now on the loose; he could get into any of your rooms through the window. This kind of person is very dangerous. We have to capture him as soon as possible.”

Every tenant in this place had their own secret, and their secrets were mostly hidden inside their rooms. What Chen Ge was insinuating was that there was a crazed killer who would not follow the rules. He might look into their secret, so if they did not wish for their secret to be exposed, the group had better work together to apprehend him as soon as possible.

Hearing that, the neighbors were eager to agree. They agreed to help Chen Ge without hesitation. They appeared like they wanted to catch the killer more than Chen Ge. Seeing how worried the neighbors were, Chen Ge’s lips curled upward slightly. He knew that the real show was about to begin soon. Everything was moving in the direction that he had planned.

“Perhaps I can use this opportunity to kill the monster from the cursed hospital once and for all.”

Chen Ge now had an army by his side. Wen Qing, who stood behind him, was shocked. This was rather different from the world behind the door that she had imagined.

Chapter 1081 - What Is It That You're Afraid of? [2 in 1]

Chapter 1081: What Is It That You're Afraid of? [2 in 1]

The neighbor's emotion was being led by Chen Ge. Everyone was afraid that their secret would be discovered, so they all wanted to capture this killer who had escaped through the window as soon as possible. Chen Ge was very satisfied with this turn of events. He was about to say something else, but the middle-aged man with the hidden store of female underwear in his house suddenly chose to speak up again.

"Wait a minute, I do not disagree with the plan that we go through the houses one by one to search for the killer, but for the sake of security, I think we should go and inform the landlord about this first. And we should definitely get his opinion before we do anything too rash." The middle-aged man had encountered Chen Ge earlier. He knew Chen Ge from the latter's conversation and interaction with Wu You, so he had an inherent mistrust toward Chen Ge.

"No problem, we shall go and find the landlord now." Chen Ge agreed with the man to stop him from continuing to distract from Chen Ge's plan. Chen Ge did not wish to waste time on pointless arguments so as to prevent other accidents from happening. "We should hurry as fast as we can. The earlier we capture that ruthless murderer, the more likely we will save another innocent life."

...

This incident had happened too suddenly, and Chen Ge did not give the neighbors too much time to reflect on it. He dragged Wen Qing and Qu Yin directly into the stairwell. Even though he had the crowd on his side for now, once the neighbors calmed down, his situation would not have changed; he would still be in plenty of danger. The only thing he could do was make use of this opportunity and try to turn as many of the tenants against themselves as possible. That was the only way he could ensure his own safety.

"Qu Yin, why do you think the murderer targeted your family? Has your family made any enemies recently? Why would someone wish to harm your whole family?" To direct the thoughts of the neighbors, Chen Ge voluntarily asked Qu Yin some questions. Of course, his questions were all related to the murder case. On the surface, it sounded like Chen Ge was being concerned about Qu Yin, and the questions all struck at the center of the investigation.

Of course, Qu Yin knew very well the ‘motive’ behind the ‘murderer’s intention to target his family’, but to not expose himself as an accomplice to the murderer, there was nothing he could do but to continue this play-acting with Chen Ge. After pretending to give it some serious thought, Qu Yin shook his head. “I have no idea why someone would harm my family members. We have always kept a low profile. I do not think we have offended or earned the ire of anyone before.”

“Try to dig deeper. There has to be a reason somewhere. Is there any conflict between your family and the other tenants of this building?” Chen Ge continued to push. To deflect the suspicion away from himself, he tossed all the difficult questions to Qu Yin. Technically, he was now forcing a murderer to come up with a reason why someone would murder him.

If Qu Yin could not give an answer or gave the name of a random person, that person would instantly become the prime suspect in this case. If this happened at another residential area, being the prime suspect would not be that big a deal. At most, they would be invited to the police station to aid in the investigation, but the situation here was completely different. Almost no one at this residential area was ‘clean’; everyone had a secret that they did not wish to be known by others. In other words, no one here wished for their history and past to be exposed and investigated. It did not matter what they did behind closed doors normally, but at times like this, the secret that they had been hiding would become the noose that caused their death.

“I really cannot figure out anything.” Qu Yin did not wish to be manipulated by Chen Ge. The surrounding tenants with secrets in their heart also astutely kept their mouths shut. They all knew very well the smartest choice at this moment was to zip their lips. One wrong word and they would be like moths flying voluntarily into a flame.

Xiao Sun sincerely wanted to have the killer captured, so he offered the information that he had.

“But I remember, a few nights ago, many neighbors were complaining when you argued with your father. The argument was so loud that many of us were not able to rest probably. In fact, one of the middle-aged uncles from the fifth floor purposely came down to warn you guys to keep the noise down.

“Oh, right, other than that, I believe the electrician on the eighth floor also got into a recent conflict with your father. I believe it had something to do with the electrical wiring. They even got into a fight once in the corridor. At the time, the electrician even threatened your father...”

“What’s the problem? Why are you guys looking at me like that? Have I misremembered? Was I wrong?”

Xiao Sun did not know the other side of his neighbors. He merely recited what he had seen. This also proved indirectly that he was one of the few ‘normal’ people in this building. He was not afraid of being investigated.

“The clues that you have given are too important! After we inform the landlord, we will start our investigation at the rooms of those people!” Chen Ge had high praise for Xiao Sun. It did not matter that Qu Yin refused to cooperate because Xiao Sun had helped Chen Ge tear open a gap between the tenants of the residential area. The few tenants that Xiao Sun mentioned earlier would become the first batch of sacrificial lambs. Xiao Sun had done a great job, but he did not realize how dangerous the situation he had put himself in was.

There were ten floors in total at the apartment building. The landlord lived alone on the ninth floor. The tenth floor was left empty, and all the rooms were locked. The crowd reached Room 901. Qu Yin knocked several times, but there was no answer. It appeared like no one was home.

“The landlord is probably out. Let’s go to other places and check first. Perhaps we can return later.”

“Wait a minute!” Chen Ge grabbed Qu Yin by his elbow. “The tenant of his apartment has just been murdered. That is huge news, and the landlord has not even shown up to investigate. Do you think that’s normal?”

“Of course it is not normal, but I believe the landlord is not even in this building at the moment. He’s probably gone to the other buildings of the residential area. The landlords of the few buildings in this residential area meet up to have a weekly meeting. So, that is probably where the landlord is now. He is probably meeting up with the other landlords in another building.”

“A weekly meeting?” Chen Ge again gained more important information from what Qu Yin revealed.

“Yes, the landowners meet up to discuss important issues like the rent price, the environment around the residential area, and so on.”

“You have a point, but you have missed one very important detail.” Chen Ge slowed down for the point that he was about to make to sink in. “I have been to the first ground. The exit was locked, and the lock is applied from inside the building!”

“What is that able to prove? How does that contradict with what I said?”

“Only the landlord has the key to the exit, and since the lock was applied from the inside, it also means that the landlord must still be inside this building! If the landlord had left, the door would be locked from the outside!” Chen Ge’s logical argument was flawless. And the words that he said carried a very serious implication to the rest of the neighbors. They instantly noticed the hot water that they could possibly be in. “The landlord is still inside the building, but he did not show up when there was a murder inside the apartment. That leads me to the conclusion that perhaps he has been harmed as well. Perhaps the killer got to him before we could.”

Qu Gui being killed and the landlord being killed were two distinctly different scenarios because the latter had the spare keys to all the doors in the building. Now, even Qu Yin did not look so good. Events had developed far beyond his control.

“It is fine if you do not believe me. The easiest way to find out whether I am correct or not is to break down the door.” Chen Ge carried his backpack and glanced at the door. He did not want to show Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer at that moment. “Do any of you have any tools at home? Human lives are at stake here. I know this is a serious case of trespassing, but I am sure that the landlord will be able to understand once we explain what is happening to him... provided he is still alive, that is.”

“My house is currently being renovated. There’s a whole set of tools. Wait a minute for me. I will go and grab them now.” Auntie Ding was the first to speak up. Her tone was urgent and desperate. She volunteered to go and grab the tools, but in reality, she probably wanted to go back home to deal with other things, and the former was just an excuse.

"I have tools to open lock as well. I will go back home to check. I will be back." A few of the other tenants used the same excuse to leave as well. Chen Ge knew what they were up to, but he did not stop any of them. It was not that difficult to cover up and deal with the 'secret' in their own room in a short amount of time. The difficult part was to ensure that no traces were left behind.

A few minutes later, the few neighbors returned one after another. They carried various kinds of tools with them. With the cooperation of the whole group, they used almost half an hour to break down the front door of Room 901.

"This is so troublesome. If only all the rooms used a wooden door." Chen Ge pushed Qu Yin into the room. Qu Yin was angry, but there was nothing he could do.

"The room is very neat, and there is no sign of a scuffle or any blood. Looks like we have been worried for no reason." Qu Yin walked at the front of the group. This was probably his first time entering the landlord's room. He appeared rather cautious; he did not dare get too close to the furniture inside the room.

"You seem to be quite afraid of the landlord. Am I right?" Chen Ge followed behind Qu Yin like a shadow. His voice drifted into Qu Yin's ears.

"Of course not, stop talking nonsense."

"Is that so?" Chen Ge gave Qu Yin a once-over. He noticed that the tenants had a very referential attitude toward the landlord. The anomalous attitude of Qu Yin when they were inside the landlord's room was the best proof of that. Chen Ge did not linger on this question. Chen Ge split the neighbors up to investigate the house. They opened the many doors before everyone congregated inside the bathroom. Pulling back the shower curtain, there was no bathroom or shower like one would expect; instead, there was a small television. Chen Ge tried to switch it on. The television was functioning normally, but the screen was only filled with static.

"Why would there be a television set inside the bathroom?" Qu Yin voiced the question on his mind.

"It is probably used to broadcast some unsightly content." Chen Ge studied the surroundings. The bathroom had no windows. After closing the bathroom door and pulling up the shower curtain, this would become a completely isolated space. Outsiders would have no idea what the landlord was doing there. Moving the television to the side, Chen Ge realized that there was a complicated trail of electrical wiring behind the device. His eyes followed the trail of wires, and he realized that all of them led upstairs. The electrical wiring of Room 901 was connected to the wiring of Room 1001. The landlord's secret should be hidden somewhere in Room 1001.

Chen Ge did not share his discovery with other people. He saw the problem from the complicated circuit. A normal television set did not require such complicated wiring. Chen Ge suspected that the landlord had installed surveillance cameras in hidden spots around the apartment, and the landlord probably spent most of his free time inside this bathroom, looking in on other people's lives. Chen Ge had a good guess what the landlord's secret was, but that did not help with the most imminent question—where was the landlord?

If the landlord had seen the monster from the cursed hospital through his surveillance, then he would be prepared to handle it. So, was it the monster from the cursed hospital who killed the landlord?

If they had done it, they could have gained the apartment keys from the landlord after killing them. They would not have needed to enter a contract with Qu Yin. Thus, the real sequence of events was probably something like this. The monster from the cursed hospital tried to reach out to the landlord first, but they were unable to locate him, so they settled for the second-best choice, which was to cooperate with Qu Yin. Then, they planned to slowly gang up with the rest of the tenants.

Chen Ge was slowly smoothing out the timeline in his mind. Then, the truth came to him. Someone in the building had found out about the landlord's secret. To ensure that their own secret was not exposed, one of them or even a group of them had gathered together to deal with the landlord. To be able to suspect such a thing, it would have to be someone who was familiar with the electrical wiring and their weird set up...

Chen Ge was instantly reminded of the electrician that Xiao Sun had mentioned earlier. The electrician lived on the eighth floor, and he was closest to the landlord's house, which was on the ninth floor, so naturally, he was the prime suspect.

"Take a look at this!" Auntie Ding opened the closet inside the landlord's bedroom. After she moved away the clothes, she revealed the many nails that were pinned to the inner wall of the closet. Every nail had a room number written above it. The numbers ranged from 101 to 1006.

"The key that hangs from the nail should correspond to the room number. The landlord has silently copied each of our house keys without telling us!" Auntie Ding appeared to be telling everyone about this on purpose. Her expression was one of shocked, but in Chen Ge's eyes, it appeared too forced and inorganic. The widening of the eyes, the gaping of the jaw, these were surface acting skills. Her performance did not come from the heart at all.

After seeing the keys, Chen Ge also subconsciously reacted with appropriate shock. Chen Ge's performance was much more natural. He used all his facial features to express the emotion of surprise. With the aid of body language, he was the embodiment of surprise. Instantly, the difference between amateur acting and professional acting was shown.

"Looks like the killer has taken all the spare room keys. This is not good news for any of us." Chen Ge soon calmed down. He knew that Auntie Ding herself was hiding something, but he did not say anything to expose her.

"Then, what should we do now? The killer is on a real rampage now. He has not only killed my family; he is also involved in the landlord's disappearance..." Qu Yin really did not expect things to go this way. He felt like he had been dragged by Chen Ge into a large hole, one that he would not be able to climb out of on his own. The other tenants were also starting to panic. They did not feel that threatened when Qu Gui was killed, but now that the landlord was missing, most of them were feeling anxious. A strange emotion was rippling through the crowd.

"We should go and check up with the electrician on the eighth floor first. Didn't your father get into an argument with him before he died?" Chen Ge and Qu Yin were about to leave Room 901 when the middle-aged man with the hidden female underwear in his house stepped forward. He blocked the way to the exit, and his eyes were blazing into Chen Ge.

"How can I help you?" Chen Ge's expression did not change. The man was unfazed. He was standing amid a group of creeps and murderers, but there was not a single trace of fear or uncertainty on his face.

“Even though the turnover rate of this building is very high, with new people moving in and old people moving out silently...” The middle-aged man strode to stand before Chen Ge. “I do not think I have seen you before. Did you just move here? If you just moved here, you should have met the landlord, and you are probably the last person to have seen the landlord alive.”

“That person would be the killer, not me.” Chen Ge pulled Wen Qing to his side. “There is a boy living in Room 401 called Xiang Nuan. You guys should have heard of him, right?”

When Chen Ge was speaking, his brain was churning. He rehearsed the spiel that he had come up with earlier in his mind.

“I do. The boy lives alone in Room 401. His father is dead, and his mother is a wily vixen. She is some man’s kept mistress. She does not live here, and the boy occasionally leaves the apartment to go meet up with his mother.” The middle-aged man’s accusation caused Wen Qing’s whole body to shake with anger.

“My big sister and I are here to look after Xiang Nuan on his mother’s behalf. The boy is sick, and there is some problem with his head. I am the psychiatrist his mother hired, and my big sister will look after his living arrangements.” Chen Ge mentioned many other details about Xiang Nuan before the middle-aged slowly moved away.

“Looks like the boy’s mother had found the boy a good father figure this time. There is no need for them to worry about money anymore.” The middle-aged man’s gaze lingered on Wen Qing for a long time.

Chen Ge stood between Wen Qing and the middle-aged man. With a smile still stuck on his face, he said, “For a while now, you have been trying to make trouble for me. What is it that you’re afraid of?”

Chapter 1082 - Infighting [2 in 1]

Chapter 1082: Infighting [2 in 1]

“Afraid? What should I be afraid of?” The middle-aged man’s expression became unnatural. He had no idea where Chen Ge’s confidence to accuse him came from.

“I am trying to help everyone find and investigate the killer, but you have been trying time and time again to change the subject. Could it be that you know something but have decided not to share it with the rest of us?” Chen Ge narrowed his eyes. “At the time, the murderer escaped from the sixth-floor window. He would not have gone far. He should have been hiding on the fifth, sixth, or seventh floors. Those are the three floors that were most probably his hiding place. If we’d started our search on those three levels, there was a very high chance we would have been able to block and apprehend the killer, but you insisted on us coming to find the landlord first.”

Chen Ge used a manipulative way of phrasing it. At the time, the middle-aged man only suggested they find the landlord, but Chen Ge made it sound like the middle-aged man had given that as an order. It was the middle-aged man who had allowed the killer to escape.

...

“The landlord lives on the ninth floor, and this place is very far from the crime scene. I suspect you were purposely trying to lead us away so that you could buy some time for the killer to escape.”

“That is ludicrous! Everyone, do not listen to him. He is lying! I’ve done no such thing!”

“You led us all to the ninth floor, and somehow, you appeared to know that the landlord has been harmed, and thus, no one would come to open the door for us. To get the front door open, we have wasted yet another half an hour here. The time wasted was more than enough for the killer to remove the blood evidence from his body.” Chen Ge’s words stuck into the middle-aged man’s body like sharp knives. “It is not my wish to suspect you, but there are just too many coincidences that do not line up. I for one do not believe in so many coincidences. It feels more like you are purposely trying to buy time for the real killer to escape.”

The way the neighbors looked at the middle-aged man slowly turned unfriendly and hostile.

“Listen to me! I really had no idea that the landlord has been harmed! If I knew that, I would not have said the things that I did! Trust me, I am completely innocent!” The middle-aged man tried his best to argue his case. Chen Ge stood to the side and watched. He did not care for the middle-aged man’s defense. He merely wanted to find an excuse, an excuse that could allow him access into the middle-aged man’s house. None of the tenants were ‘clean’. As long as Chen Ge was given a chance to enter their room, even if there was no evidence, Chen Ge would try his best to ‘find’ the evidence.

“I have known Brother Man for many years already. I know his personality very well. I believe that he would not have done something like that. I believe he is really innocent.” Auntie Ding suddenly jumped out to the middle-aged man’s rescue. Just as the latter was about to sigh in relief, Auntie Ding suddenly added the following to push him further into the abyss. “But like the young man said, everything feels to coincidental. To prove Brother Man’s innocence, how about we start the search at Brother Man’s place? I believe firmly that he is innocent, and I am sure that a search of his place will clear his name right up. That way, we can move on to the capture of the real killer after dealing with this misunderstanding.”

Auntie Ding sounded like she was defending the middle-aged man. In fact, she had stated explicitly that she believed in the middle-aged man’s innocence, but in reality, she was damning the middle-aged man. As an old tenant of the building, she should know the middle-aged man’s secret quite well. She knew that there were things inside brother Man’s home that could not be exposed to the public.

After hearing what Auntie Ding had to say, the middle-aged man’s expression turned ugly. He did not expect that the final knife that determined his fate at this crucial moment would come from his own neighbor, Auntie Ding.

With dark and consuming eyes, the middle-aged man stared at Auntie Ding, his hands clenching into fists. Chen Ge did not step in and say anything; his gaze merely wandered between the middle-aged man and Auntie Ding. Auntie Ding was the first to discover that the spare keys inside the closet had been stolen. Her reaction was extremely unnatural. For Chen Ge, Auntie Ding was likely related to the landlord’s death. She was probably one of the killers that took the landlord’s life. This would explain why she had chosen to speak up at this moment. She wanted to push the blame for the landlord's death onto the middle-aged man.

Of course, this would only work if the middle-aged man had something to hide. And honestly, he deserved it for his big mouth. If he did not bring up anything about the landlord, no one would have come up to the ninth floor and found out about the landlord's disappearance and possible death. Now, those people who had harmed the landlord naturally would not let him go. Since he had volunteered as a scapegoat, the best possible way was to push the blame onto him.

Chen Ge understood that psychology very well, and that was what he had been doing when he accosted the middle-aged man. He was not looking for an argument for no reason; he was trying to push the middle-aged man into the position of the suspect who might have killed the landlord. He understood that once he had done that, there would be someone would jump out to support him. They would pin the middle-aged man down and deliver his death sentence. The tenants who were cleared of their suspicion started to gang up against those who had not had their suspicion cleared, and now even the tenants who were not suspected started to have cracks in their camaraderie. If this continued, without doing anything, Chen Ge would be able to get closer to his goal.

"This is not the time for infighting. The most important thing that we need to do now is find the killer who murdered Qu Gui!" Seeing the altercation between the tenants, Chen Ge could not have been more overjoyed in his heart, but the words that came out from his lips hoped that they would put aside their differences and work together. "We should all calm down! Let's return to the initial hypothesis. Xiao Sun told us that the electrician on the eighth floor got into an argument with Qu Gui and threatened his life. The electrician has motive, so we should start our investigation with him."

Chen Ge did not let Auntie Ding gather the crowd against the middle-aged man. He wanted to retain the middle-aged to create more cracks in the future. After leaving Room 901, Chen Ge walked at the front with a smile on his face. Behind him trailed the tenants from the building; this was truly an astounding sight.

"Is anyone home?" With Xiao Sun's direction, the crowd reached the house of the electrician. The knocking echoed down the corridor, shattering the silence of the eighth floor. Everyone had their eyes on the door before them. The tenants were curious about the electrician's secret as well. They were eager to expose his secret; this kind of rush was something that was hard to describe. After several knocks, footsteps finally came from inside the room, and the front door was pulled open slightly.

“How can I help you?” A man with long beard appeared at the door. He appeared to be quite reticent. His eyes were bloodshot like he had not had a good night’s sleep in a long time.

“There’s been a murder. We just came to warn you about it. We wish for you to be careful.”

“Noted,” the electrician said and was about to close the door, but Chen Ge reached out to grab the door and stop him.

“What are you doing?”

“This is not what I wish to do but a consensus that has been reached by everyone in the building.” Chen Ge pointed to the tenants behind him. “This is for everyone’s personal safety. I hope you will understand and cooperate.”

“We now suspect that you are somehow involved in the murder. If you are innocent, then please step out of the way. We will not mess up your house. We just wish to confirm some things.” Xiao Sun was not a cunning person. He shared their purpose for being there directly.

“I am suspected to be involved in the murder?” The electrician lifted his head. His bloodshot eyes swept to the left and right of Chen Ge as if using his eyes to communicate with someone. Chen Ge knew that Auntie Ding was standing on his left side behind him. Things were getting more and more interesting. When the electrician knew that he was in trouble, he turned to Auntie Ding immediately. This proved that they were both in on something. Combined with the earlier speculation that Auntie Ding was related to the landlord’s death, did this not prove that the electrician was also related to the landlord’s death?

When Chen Ge discovered the complicated wiring in Room 901, Chen Ge had already suspected that the killer was the electrician. This was because the electrician was probably the first person to discover the landlord’s secret. Chen Ge was facing away from Auntie Ding, so he had no idea what kind of hint Auntie Ding had provided to the electrician, but he saw that after the brief eye contact, the electrician’s expression turned uglier.

“I’ve been inside my room alone throughout the night. I have not left my house at all. You've got the wrong person." The electrician refused to step aside and got into a stalemate with the people at the corridor. Chen Ge felt like they had wasted too much time there. If the electrician refused to budge, then the rest of the plan would halt there. The tenants there were all incredibly cunning. Other than Xiao Sun, no one was willing to stick their neck out. Chen Ge had no choice but to do this on his own.

"The killer has threatened everyone's safety. Your refusal to let us go in proves that you surely have something to hide." Chen Ge's attitude turned firmer. "We are not asking for your opinion; we are merely here to inform you of that."

"Inform me? We are all tenants here. Who gave any of you the right to enter my private home? Preposterous!"

"We have already patiently explained the situation to you, but you still refused to let us through. Looks like you are really related to Qu Gui's death. You have something to hide!" Chen Ge's patience was wearing thin. His hand that gripped the door pulled with strength. "Let us in. There must be some clues inside his room!"

With Chen Ge leading the way, the other tenants that did not have much interaction with the electrician normally started to help. Against the strength of so many people, the electrician was unable to keep his door shut.

"What the hell! Stop this nonsense!"

The front door was yanked open. Chen Ge was the first to charge in. His nostrils flared. Chen Ge sniffed a burnt smell in the air. "What is being burnt?"

The room was very messy, and trash littered every corner. There was barely a space for people to stand. The neighbors squeezed into the room and trampled over the stuff on the ground. The electrician appeared to have given up. He turned to face the door and kept his head lowered. He kept his expression from the sight of everyone else.

"Qu Gui was stabbed to death, so the killer would have been covered in a copious amount of blood. There is another thing that we need to pay attention to. The killer planned everything out before they committed the crime, so that means that they probably have been planning this for a long time. Therefore, there might be something related to the murder inside his notebooks."

The tenants that followed behind Chen Ge started to ransack the room. Throughout the whole process, the electrician stood at the door with his head lowered, and not a peep came out of the man. "His whole body is incredibly tense. He is afraid."

The tenants searched for a long time, but they could find any evidence that tied the electrician to the murder. Auntie Ding walked toward Chen Ge. "Perhaps we have misjudged him. As messy as this place is, there is no sign of blood. He does not have the habit of reading or taking notes. There are no reading or writing materials anywhere in this place."

"Looks like he is really not the killer." Xiao Sun walked out from the bedroom with a frown. He was still an innocent child. He had not gone through the harsh reality of the society yet. After knowing that he was wrong, he ran to the electrician's side. "I am so sorry. We only hoped to capture the killer as soon as possible. I will treat you a dinner in the future and consider that an apology for this transgression."

"Now, can you please leave me alone?" the electrician growled. It was clear that he was very angry.

"Of course," Auntie Ding said on everyone's behalf. The rest also slowly shuffled to the front door.

"Wait a minute." Chen Ge stood inside the room and suddenly said, "Do you guys smell something burning?"

"The place is so messy. It is probably something that has gone moldy." Auntie Ding was obviously trying to defend the electrician. "Let's not waste time here anymore. We should go and check the other suspects."

"A moldy food wouldn't give off a burnt smell." Chen Ge followed the trail of stench and came to the bedroom on the right. "Do you live alone?"

The electrician lifted his head to look at Chen Ge. His voice was hoarse. "Yes, I do live alone."

"You live alone, but both of the bedrooms have king sized beds. You sure live in the lap of luxury."

"What does that have to do with anything?"

"I am just curious." Chen Ge looked at the beds that had recently been changed. The covers looked washed and clean. It was a bright contrast to the mess that was the rest of the house. "Which bedroom do you normally sleep in?"

"This is my house. I can sleep in whichever room that I want. Why should I answer that? Does that have to do with the murder that you are talking about?" The electrician glared with his bloodshot eyes. He had been suppressing anger. The man probably had anger management issues, and he had been trying to reign it in before the public.

"My guess is that you normally sleep in the bedroom on the left because of the array of everyday objects that are placed there. In contrast, the bedroom on the right is much simpler in nature. In fact, it does not look occupied. It feels more like this is your workshop." Chen Ge kicked away some of the wiring on the ground. A few of them, he noticed, were connected to the space under the bed. "But why would a workshop need such a big bed?"

Chen Ge grabbed the newly changed covers and pulled them off without warning and tossed them to the ground. The electrician's face blanched immediately, and he took a subconscious step back. Underneath the cover was a thick mattress. There were many burnt spots on the mattress, and that was where the smell came from.

After taking a glance at the mattress, Auntie Ding quickly moved her gaze away. "We should go to the other rooms. There is nothing to see hear. Everything looks normal to me."

"The bed is of good quality, and it is incredibly soundproof and can resist shaking," Chen Ge said as he yanked off the mattress. He pulled the whole mattress away. A stinky burnt smell rushed out and assaulted the nose of everyone present. Underneath the mattress was a wooden bed frame. Chen Ge did not hesitate and pushed the bed frame to the side. The scene that was exposed was revolting. Underneath the bedframe was the body of a boy. Many electrical clamps were connected to his body. His skin was seriously charred, but the real fatal wound could be found around his neck. He had been strangled to his death; the signs of strangling were quite obvious.

"Jia Qi!" Auntie Ding dropped to the ground once the boy was exposed. She crawled to the bedside and wanted to hug the boy's dead body. Auntie Ding wailed like a traumatized mother, but Chen Ge saw very clearly that the woman could not even fake a single crocodile tear.

“Capture that electrician!” Xiao Sun shouted loudly. When Chen Ge pulled back the mattress, the electrician had already sneaked out from the room.

“He killed Jia Qi! How could he torture such a sweet boy! I will kill him! I will kill him!” Auntie Ding seemed to have gone berserk from the trauma. She grabbed the fruit knife on the nearby coffee table and charged out. She was quite largely built and was as large as a man. She ran quite fast as well.

“Quick! The murderer has been found! We should follow and captured him!” Xiao Sun ran out with passion. The other neighbors also mobilized. Only Chen Ge and Wen Qing stayed in the bedroom.

“Aren’t we going to follow them?” Wen Qing asked softly.

“The electrician is not going to survive. Auntie Ding will do everything within her power to kill him.”

“You’re right. Auntie Ding has been defending the man. To find out that her trust has been betrayed, she must be in great pain.”

“The reason she needs to kill the electrician is not out of pain but fear. This boy should be Auntie Ding’s ‘present’ to the electrician. They are both responsible for the landlord’s death. The electrician knows Auntie Ding’s many secrets. Auntie Ding is afraid that once the electrician is captured, he will sell her out as well so she will definitely kill him before he is given a chance to speak.” Chen Ge looked at the young boy that was propped up like a grotesque exhibit, and the smile slowly disappeared from his face. He hissed through gritted teeth. “This bunch of animals.”

Wen Qing churned Chen Ge’s words in her mind. She had been following Chen Ge and experienced the same thing, but she had no idea how Chen Ge managed to come up with the hypotheses for so many things.

Chapter 1083 - Who Will Be Next? [2 in 1]

Chapter 1083: Who Will Be Next? [2 in 1]

Standing next to Chen Ge, Wen Qing did not know what to say or ask. She was afraid that she might accidentally expose some important information. After all, by now, she at least understood that there was no one in this building that could truly be trusted. One wrong step and she could put them in extreme danger.

“Why don’t you go and accompany Granny Lee in the living room? I will stay to investigate what happened here.”

Wen Qing nodded and left.

...

Chen Ge stayed in the bedroom alone. He closed the bedroom door and knelt by the bed to inspect the boy’s dead body. The burning from electrocution, the bruises from heavy beatings, Chen Ge’s eyes finally landed around the boy’s neck.

“He was strangled to death by electrical wires. There are wooden chips lodged in the boy’s fingernails. Before he perished, his arms were tied to the bed frame...”

Chen Ge undid the rope around the body. He placed the clean cover over the boy.

“The electrician looked like a reticent and harmless worker on the surface, but in reality, he has a flaming temper. Yet, he has a knack for reining it in around others. And then he vents it through torturing others who are weaker than him. The man is rotten through and through.”

The scary thing was that the electrician was not an exception to the rule at this apartment building. Chen Ge started to think deeper into other consequences.

“Under the limitation of law and morality, their actual nature was hidden and closed away, but in the world behind Xiang Nuan’s door, the most disgusting and horrid facet of their personality is exposed. This door appears to purposely highlight the sin in human nature, and it twists everyone into monstrous beings.”

Chen Ge tried to analyze the ghost fetus’ thoughts, but with the meagre number of clues that he had so far, he was unable to come to any concrete conclusion. Rummaging through the backpack, Chen Ge noticed that blood vessels had started to surface on the comic. He tried to summon his workers, but unfortunately, he still got no response.

“Chen Ge!” Wen Qing’s voice came from outside the bedroom, and then the door was pushed open. “Something seems to have happened downstairs!”

The sound of screaming, running, wailing, and crying were mixed together as they drifted up from downstairs. It sounded like a battlefield down there.

“Do not worry. Let them deal with this among themselves for now.” Chen Ge slowly walked out from the room. The faces of the tenants that were in the room earlier flashed across his mind. “Who will be next?”

Chen Ge’s group soon arrived at the second floor. The smell of blood lingered in the air. There were even fresh blood stains that were noticeable on the staircase.

“What is going on here?” Before Chen Ge got near, he was able to hear Auntie Ding crying. The rest of the tenants blocked the corridor. They formed a wall that did not allow anyone to pass.

“The electrician is dead.” Xiao Sun leaned against the wall, and his face was pale as a sheet.

“He’s dead?” Chen Ge looked very surprised. He picked up his pace and crossed through the crowd. “Move out of the way please!”

Standing at the corner between the first floor and the second floor, Chen Ge appeared to have frozen. He could see Auntie Ding kneeling on the ground, her lips mumbling Jia Qi’s name again and again. Both of her arms and her upper body were covered in fresh blood. Auntie Ding appeared to have lost her grasp on reality due to overwhelming sadness. Others had trouble getting close to her, or to be more precise, no one was willing to get close to Auntie Ding in her current state.

“You... have killed him?” Chen Ge’s pupils were shivering. “But he was our only clue!”

“Jia Qi was the first child that I adopted. He went missing in this residential area! I have been looking so hard for him!” Auntie Ding’s hair was disheveled as she pressed her hands into the pool of blood on the ground. “That was my child. Can you understand how that would have affected a mother like myself? Do you know how I felt when I saw that child in that state in his room...”

Auntie Ding’s words petered off into a blubbering mess. All the energy in her body seemed to have drained from her as she collapsed in the pool of blood.

“Actually, it would be wrong to say that Sister Ding has killed him. I saw with my own eyes that there was an altercation between Sister Ding and the electrician. Both of them slipped down the stairs, and the fruit knife just so happened to get stuck in the electrician’s neck. I suppose, in a way, this is karma working her magic. No one is to blame but the man himself.” The one who spoke was a tenant from the fifth floor. He was very tall, and he always stood together beside Auntie Ding. This was the first time he had spoken with Chen Ge.

“An accident you say?” Chen Ge’s gaze moved past Auntie Ding as he looked down the first-floor corridor. The electrician had already run out of the stairwell and was racing to get out of the building. His body was lying near the entrance, and the locked front door even had the man’s bloody handprints on it.

“With a knife puncturing through his neck, even if he was not dead, I doubt he wouldn’t be able to speak anymore. This is so unfortunate. The trail of clues that we found with such difficulty has been wiped away just like that.” Chen Ge’s tone was quite helpless. He then turned to the tall guy. “And who are you? I do not think we have met before.”

“My surname is Li.”

“I am sorry if this is a forward question, but why do you reek of medicine?”

“I am a practicing pediatrician.”

“Isn’t the medicine meant for children supposed to have as diluted a smell as possible to prevent them from gagging on the taste?” Before waiting for the man to answer, Chen Ge changed the subject. “I was not here when the electrician died. Did anyone hear what he said before he died?”

“He called out Auntie Ding’s full name...” Xiao Sun started to say something, but he was rudely interrupted by Doctor Li.

“The electrician is already dead. What we need to do now is confirm as soon as possible whether he is the murderer behind Qu Gui’s death.”

“But...” Xiao Sun insisted on saying something, but this time, Chen Ge cut him off.

“Indeed, the most important thing that we needed to do now is capture the culprit. If the electrician is Qu Gui’s murderer, of course, that would be best, but I am afraid that he is just an accomplice, and the real murderer is still hiding among us.”

A living human being was murdered just like that before their eyes. The atmosphere inside the apartment building became more suffocating.

“I will take Auntie Ding back to her room for now. She must have been greatly traumatized to have seen her adopted child in such a state.” Doctor Li tried to pick up Auntie Ding from the pool of blood, but he failed even after several tries. He turned to the crowd and waved at a short guy. “Big Head, would you mind coming over to help me?”

The short man was bald, and a large part of his face was swollen, giving him the look of a monster. Big Head and Doctor Li carried Auntie Ding back to the fourth floor while Chen Ge watched them walk away quietly.

Doctor Li is tall and well built. He looks quite strong. As large as Auntie Ding is, it is impossible for him to be incapable of carrying her on his own. He was merely looking for an excuse to get Big Head to leave this place with them. The three of them should know each other, and they operate as a group.

Doctor Li, Big Head, Auntie Ding, and the electrician—Chen Ge now suspected that it was the four of them who cooperated to kill the landlord and then stole the spare keys to all the rooms. With regards to their motive, Chen Ge had a fairly good guess. The landlord had found out about their secrets, so he needed to die.

“Er... So, how shall we deal with the electrician’s body?” Qu Yin felt a headache coming. Qu Gui’s dead body was still lying in his living room, and now they had another dead body in the building. Their initial intention was to find the killer, but somehow, things had started to get out of control as if there was a pair of hands that had been pushing them around for the tenants to turn on each other.

“Let’s just ignore that for now. I just discovered something very scary.” Xiao Sun only dared to speak after he saw Doctor Li walk further way. “The electrician was pushed down the stairs. The person who dealt the final blow was not Auntie Ding but Doctor Li. At the time, they were the ones who were chasing after the electrician the most passionately. They were the most desperate to hunt him down.”

“Jia Qi is Auntie Ding’s adopted son. Why would Doctor Li react so brashly? He does not look like a vindictive person to me.” Chen Ge was slowly laying the trail for the tenants to consider. He could not be as direct as Xiao Sun because he still had no idea how many people in the building were involved in the murder of the landlord. But there was one thing that was for certain—the number of people involved would not that be high, or else they would not need to be afraid of Chen Ge at this moment, and they did not to sacrifice the electrician.

“I also think that is quite weird.” The middle-aged man who had the female underwear stored away in his home stood in the corner alone. Now he had decided not to trust anyone, which honestly was a bright decision. “That Ding woman has been acting very strangely today. She treats her adopted children so badly normally. Compared to human beings, she treats them more like pets. She beats and scolds them for the smallest transgression or when she is in a bad mood.”

“So, it is your opinion that Auntie Ding did not kill the electrician out of revenge but to cover up something else, right?”

“I did not say anything like that!” The middle-aged man looked at Chen Ge and quickly waved his hands. He was an old tenant here; he knew how dangerous it was to run his mouth.

“Then, should we go and ask Wu You? He is the child who lives in Room 301. The tenants of the building all say that the boy likes to lie, but I personally think that the child is quite an obedient kid,” Xiao Sun suddenly said, and what he said caused the middle-aged man to break out in cold sweat. “He is probably this way because he has been left alone for a long time and lacks human company. Well, we have a psychiatrist among us now. Perhaps this is the best opportunity for us to approach him.”

The middle-aged man shook his head while trying to calm himself down. "The kid, Wu You spews out nothing but lies. Not a single word out of his mouth can be trusted. Plus, he is just a small child. What does he know? If you expose him to a dead body, you might worsen his condition."

"Alright, I was just giving a suggestion. After all, the child is seen running all over the building sometimes. Perhaps he might know something." Xiao Sun was analyzing the situation rationally. He had no idea that he had made himself a target in most people's eyes.

Chen Ge also wiped away the sweat from his forehead. As a normal person amid a group of crazed murderers, the first thing one needed to learn to do was not mimic a detective to solve the case but learn how to properly protect oneself. Chen Ge understood that Xiao Sun was just trying to help, but he did not approve of his dangerous method.

"I also do not think we should bring this to a child, but with a murderer on the loose, it is too dangerous for Wu You to stay at home alone. We should get him to stay with us." When Chen Ge started with his sentence, the middle-aged man was nodding vehemently, but when Chen Ge finished the rest of the sentence, the man's head froze in midair.

"Wouldn't it be very inconvenient to bring a child with us in a situation like this?"

"It will be fine. I will look after him. We shall go to Room 301 to get Wu You now." Chen Ge headed toward the third floor. He just arrived at the third-floor corridor when he saw a boy's head poke out from the door of the room at the end of the corridor. It was quite scary seeing that in the middle of the night.

"Wu You, there is a murderer among us in the building. It is too dangerous for you to stay alone. Why don't you come with us for now?" Chen Ge reached out to grab Wu You's hand, but the latter skipped away from him.

"Murderer?" Wu You looked at Chen Ge and the rest of the tenants. He used his very juvenile voice to ask, "But aren't all you murderers?"

"See, all the boy does is lie." The middle-aged man shrugged, looking as helpless as he could.

"Since you know we are all murderers, why do you still live here? Aren't you afraid of us?" Chen Ge looked at the boy before him.

"I am waiting for my parents."

"If something happens to you, your parents won't be able to find you, so you'd better come with us. This is for your own good." Chen Ge was quite forceful when he was negotiating with this boy. Grabbing Wu You by his hand, Chen Ge had the boy stick close to him. Realizing how firm Chen Ge was with his decision, the middle-aged man suddenly professed that he had a stomachache and needed to go home for a while. Chen Ge did not say anything to stop him and allowed him to go.

Actually, Chen Ge knew that the middle-aged man was only making an excuse. He was worried that Wu You would accidentally sell him out, so he quickly hurried home to destroy any incriminating evidence.

After the middle-aged man left, the rest of them moved to Auntie Ding's room on the fourth floor. Doctor Li called after Big Head and Auntie Ding naturally because they had something to discuss. Chen Ge did not wish to give them too much time to come up with a solution or an excuse. When they came to the fourth floor, before they reached Auntie Ding's place, Chen Ge saw Big Head guarding outside Auntie Ding's room.

"Is Sister Ding feeling better?"

"With Doctor Li looking after her, I'm sure she will be fine." Big Head might look scary, but his tone was friendly. He gave off the feeling of those honest floormats that were easily bullied by others.

"After you guys left, something else happened. There is a question that I need to ask Auntie Ding in person."

"But she still needs to rest."

"You'd better step out of the way. This matter is very serious." Qu Yin, Xiao Sun, Wen Qing, and Granny Lee were following behind Chen Ge. They had the numerical advantage. "I will enter the room alone so that we won't disturb Sister Ding's rest."

"Okay then." Big Head knocked on the door. More than ten seconds later, the door opened, and Chen Ge walked in alone. Even though Auntie Ding could not be called young anymore, the home decoration was extremely pink and fluffy. It felt more like the room of a teenage girl. Once Chen Ge entered the room, he was assaulted by the heavy mist of perfume and air freshener that hung in the air. He coughed lightly and closed the door behind him. Auntie Ding was lying on the couch, and Doctor Li stood beside her. They did not look happy to see Chen Ge walk in.

“How can we help you?”

“Do any of you know the salacious-looking middle-aged man that lives on the third floor?”

“What about him?”

“Just now, he said that the electrician did not trip on the stairs and fell but was pushed down the stairs, and then he sneaked in a suggestion to tell us to go and ask Wu You about it,” Chen Ge said with a stone-cold expression.

“Did you find anything out from the boy?” Auntie Ding’s face was pale, and her voice was involuntarily shaking.

“The child was seriously traumatized. We cannot understand what is he trying to express. He kept saying things like seeing Auntie Ding carrying children up and down the stairs and seeing the children’s ghost appearing around him.” As if he was unable to see Auntie Ding’s paling face, Chen Ge continued to speak. “But the key is not the boy but that strange man living on the third floor. He stays the opposite of Wu You. I suspect that it might be him who fed these words to Wu You. After all, even if a child likes to lie, why would he choose these things to lie about?”

“You have a point there.” Both Doctor Li and Auntie Ding nodded at the same time.

“Other than that, I realized something else. The middle-aged man appeared to be purposely hindering us from finding out the truth. I suspect...” Chen Ge raised his head, and his eyes were shining. “Could he be the culprit behind the landlord’s death?”

“That is very possible. There are many strange things about that man.” Color returned to Auntie Ding’s face, and even her words flowed more naturally. “There’s a lot of female underwear hidden in that man’s room. Who knows where he got it all? In any case, that is a very disgusting man.”

“You guys suspect him, and he has been trying to throw the suspicion onto you.” Chen Ge appeared conflicted. “I also do not know who to believe. How about this? In a bit, we will pretend to check one of the rooms on the third floor, but before he knows what's happening, we will barge into his house for a spot check and see if we can come up with any evidence. If there is anything related to the landlord that can be discovered at his house, we can confirm for sure that he is the landlord's killer."

Chen Ge was making a very brave move. The real purpose of his plan was for the real murderer to produce the evidence themselves. It was a trap within a trap.

Chapter 1084 - Black Fog [2 in 1]

Chapter 1084: Black Fog [2 in 1]

Chen Ge was not going to waste any more time with the tenants. He wanted to get this over with as soon as possible, and that was why he came up with this rather incendiary suggestion. Once Doctor Li and Auntie Ding calmed down, regained their senses, and found out the truth, they would surely realize that it was Chen Ge who had been pulling the strings and the person that they needed to get rid of was Chen Ge all along.

Dancing on the tip of the knife, Chen Ge had known his condition from the very beginning, but this was the only chance he had. There was no other choice for him. He needed to remove as many tenants inside the building before Doctor Li and Auntie Ding came to. When there were too few of them to form an alliance to threaten him, he could openly take over the building already.

“Sister Ding, you’d better get a good rest inside the house. Shut your windows and doors, and take care of yourself. Big Head and I will go and take a look.” Doctor Li’s expression had not changed. Chen Ge had no idea what the man was thinking. However, there was one thing that was clear; Doctor Li was highly interested in Chen Ge’s suggestion. This was an opportunity for them to deflect the suspicion that would have landed on them. Naturally, they would not give up this chance.

...

Seeing Doctor Li take the bait, Chen Ge stood up and turned to Auntie Ding with concern. “I cannot be sure that the person who killed the landlord and the person who killed Qu Gui are the same person, so you have to be careful when you are staying at home all by yourself.”

“I will be careful.” Auntie Ding did not seem to key into the deeper layer of meaning behind Chen Ge’s words. She lay on the couch and appeared as weak as possible.

“Let’s go. Sister Ding needs her rest.” Doctor Li was the first to open the front door and leave. He then proceeded to whisper a few words in Big Head’s ear. Using Ghost Ear, Chen Ge managed to pick up the words ‘letter of commitment’. With no change to his expression, he followed Doctor Li slowly out of the room. In terms of cunningness and slyness, Doctor Li was a pretty good player, but he had greatly underestimated Chen Ge. Perhaps he had subconsciously placed himself in the role of a predator, and the rest of them were only the prey. The multiple kills that they had committed fed into the devil inside their heart, and normal people were merely prey to be had in their eyes. If he could successfully push the blame onto the others, that was the best, but if that failed, they would simply kill everyone who knew about their secret.

This kind of twisted psychology blinded him to Chen Ge's suspicion toward him, and he had not been paying this outsider much attention. Then again, this was not entirely his fault. Who would have thought an outsider could manage to reconstruct most of the truth within such a short period of time? Of course, as time moved on, his suspicion toward Chen Ge would only continue to grow, and the thought of murdering Chen Ge would only get stronger.

Auntie Ding lived on the fourth floor. Big Head was Auntie Ding's neighbor. After Doctor Li whispered to him, Big Head offered a flimsy excuse to return to his own house. Half a minute later, Big Head came out of his house and looked perfectly normal.

"Sister Ding needs to rest, so we should leave her at home." Chen Ge scanned the group. "Has the uncle from the third floor not returned?"

"We should go and find him ourselves. That will save us some precious time," Doctor Li said directly. He probably did not even realize that every single word that Chen Ge said was measured to purposely lead him to do certain things. He did not realize that he was being controlled. He merely thought that it was comfortable to 'work with' Chen Ge. It was like when he wanted to go for a nap, someone was there to hand him a pillow. The group came to the door of the house of the middle-aged man on the third floor. Chen Ge knocked for quite some time before the middle-aged man came to open the door.

"I am so sorry. My stomach is not feeling too good. I was on the toilet. Come on, which room should we go and inspect next?" Beads of sweat slithered down the middle-aged man's face, and he was catching his breath while speaking. Honestly, he did not look like he had just come from the toilet.

"We plan to inspect the rooms one by one. Since we are already now, why don't we start with your place?" Without waiting for the middle-aged man to agree, Doctor Li pushed his way into the room. Big Head followed closely behind him.

“You can do that, of course, but please do not mess with my stuff. I have many valuable collections here.” The middle-aged man appeared to have dealt with his ‘secret’ already, so he was not worried that Doctor Li would be able to find anything to expose him. Looking at the incredibly confident middle-aged man, Chen Ge shook his head. If there was no secret to be found, a secret could be planted. Since both of the parties in this twisted game were unrelated to him, Chen Ge felt more like an observer. The group of people entered the room. The middle-aged man’s room was very messy. Many beer cans and everyday trash littered the ground. The cleanest spot inside the house was the wall filled with posters of beautiful girls in skimpy clothing.

“There are so many pairs of eyes staring at you at all times. Don’t you feel uncomfortable sleeping at night?” Chen Ge’s attitude was completely different from when they were searching the electrician’s room. He kept staring at the posters on the wall and engaging the middle-aged man in conversation, creating opportunities for Doctor Li and Big Head to plant the evidence.

“Why would I be afraid looking at them at night? In fact, wouldn’t that be a source of joy?”

“What is so joyful about staring at a bunch of posters?” Chen Ge glanced at the sofa and realized that the female underwear was still haphazardly tossed on the sofa. They had not been cleaned away, so it meant that the middle-aged man did not mind others noticing them. The underwear was not part of his real secret. Initially, Chen Ge thought that the middle-aged man was a fetishist, but now he realized that things were not that simple. This salacious middle-aged man collected more than just female underwear; his secret went deeper than that.

“Hey! Guys, come and take a look!” Doctor Li’s voice came out from the middle-aged man’s bedroom. He attracted everyone’s attention, and they were squeezed outside the bedroom door. Peeling back the black cloth that covered the cupboard, Doctor Li opened the cupboard door. It was filled with various porn videos and books that had incredibly suggestive covers on them.

“This is my personal collection. I keep them to myself and have not shared or sold them to any underage kids. That is not against the law, is it?” the middle-aged man argued confidently as he leaned against the door.

“Is it possible that there are some other recordings that are mixed among these?”

“If you do not trust me, feel free to peruse them on your own, but it will probably take month to look through all of them, right?” The middle-aged man walked over to close the cupboard door, but suddenly, Doctor Li reached out to grab his hand. “Open this locked chest under the bed for us to see. We want to know what is inside.”

“Don’t push it! How is that any of your business?”

“You do not wish to be mistaken for the killer, do you? Just open it up. If it has nothing to do with the murders, we will naturally leave you be,” Doctor Li said with an expressionless face. His tone was cold and caused the middle-aged man’s spine to tingle with fear.

“Fine, I will cooperate with you for now. When we reach your place, I will also remember to give it a good search.” The middle-aged man retorted with an empty threat. He took out the key from his pocket and opened the wooden box that was previously hidden under the bed. A female body model was placed inside the box. It was very well made. From afar, it looked no different from the body of an actual female.

“This is my wife. She has accompanied me for many years.” The middle-aged stood next to the wooden box and refused to let anyone touch the model. For those amateurs who were not familiar with the making of mannequins, they would only be impressed by the technical beauty of this model, but unfortunately, Chen Ge was a master of mannequin production. He was familiar with all the materials that were involved in the making of a mannequin.

There was no material in the world that could mimic human skin so perfectly... expect the person who was using human skin as his material. Compared to a factory-made mannequin, this model was more like a reproduction of a human female body. It had more than ten different parts. The head, the face, and the skin could be changed at will. The middle-aged man showcased the mannequin in the box, but he only allowed the tenants to see but not touch it. Other than the mannequin, there was nothing else inside the box, and as promised, the other tenants did not comment on the man’s private interest.

“Are you done now? Can I put her away now?” The middle-aged man was about to close the box when Big Head’s voice suddenly came from the bathroom. “What is this?”

The group rushed out from the room. The middle-aged man slowly and evenly locked up the wooden box. The expression on his face was one of ease, like he had survived a big ordeal. The middle-aged man was the last to leave his bedroom. When he came to the living room, he realized everyone was looking at him. "What are you guys looking at me like that? What is going on?"

"That should be our question. How do you explain this?" Big Head opened his palm, and inside it sat a seriously worn-down tooth. "I found this inside your bathroom's underwater pipe."

"Impossible! Such thing couldn't exist in my house!" The middle-aged man stared at the tooth in Big Head's palm, and a very bad feeling started to bloom in his heart.

"This was discovered inside your bathroom. You'd better give us an excuse that we can believe," Big Head said in a soft tone, but combined with his strange voice, it was a chilling effect.

"I will repeat again! Such thing couldn't exist in my house!" The middle-aged man got into a stalemate with Big Head, neither willing to back off. Seeing the atmosphere chilled, Chen Ge walked over.

"Let's not jump to conclusions. Finding a tooth is no big deal. You are a fan of mannequins. Perhaps this tooth is meant for your mannequin."

"A mannequin's mouth does not need teeth," the middle-aged man explained to Chen Ge, the amateur.

"So, you tossed their tooth down the drain? Is that mannequin really just a mannequin?" Big Head used this opportunity to take another shot at the middle-aged man.

"What are you going on about this time?" The middle-aged man glared at Big Head. He tried his best to explain, but no one was willing to pay him any real attention.

"A single tooth is not enough to prove anything. We should all calm down for now." Chen Ge turned to Big Head with a question. "Did you find anything else other than this tooth?"

"Well, if a single tooth is not enough, what about a whole slew of teeth?" Big Head pointed at the drain in the bathroom.

"A whole slew of teeth?"

Everyone, including the middle-aged man, turned to look at the drain. The iron cover had been lifted open, and the spot where the drain curved had a few human teeth stuck in them. Some of them even had decayed flesh stuck to them.

“Why would these things be here?” The middle-aged man sensed the unfriendly gazes that were directed his way, and his forehead broke out in cold sweat. “I really have no idea why there are so many teeth in the drain. Perhaps some other people’s things have gotten stuck in my drain while they were going down the pipe. You guys have to trust me!”

“The teeth were all found stuck in the U-bend. If they came from another house, they would have been washed away by the main pipe.” Doctor Li’s voice came from the other bedroom. His cold and icy eyes stared right at the middle-aged man. “I suggest all of us stay away from this man. I have found something else.”

Doctor Li raised a mannequin production direction manual in his hand. It was filled with the middle-aged man’s writing on every page. He flipped through the book and took out a piece of paper with splotches of dried blood on it.

“Take a look at what is this.” Xiao Sun and Qu Yin were the first to walk over. When they saw the content of the paper, their expressions both shifted.

“A letter of commitment?”

“I swear I will not...”

The whole paper was filled with blood. This proved that the person who wrote this letter was not in a good physical state when he penned this. He appeared to be heavily injured. The handwriting was very uneven, like the writer’s fingers had been broken and snapped when he was forced to write this letter. Some of the content was too blurred out by the blood to be seen clearly. They could only see the beginning of the letter of the commitment and the signature of the landlord at the bottom.

“Why would you have a letter of commitment that is signed by the landlord? What did he promise you?”

“How would I know? This does not belong to me at all!” The middle-aged man by then realized what was up. Two people had just died in this building, and the culprit was on the loose. Evidence related to the crime had been found in his room; it was clear that someone was trying to frame him. A deep feeling of fear engulfed the man. He leaned against the wall. His pupils were shaking as he scanned everyone in the room. "That was purposely planted in my room! It is just like the teeth in the drain! They were the doing of the real killer! Someone is trying to frame me!"

"There are so many of us, but the killer chose to frame you? Why is that?" Doctor Li held the letter of commitment in both hands, just in case the middle-aged man darted forward to snatch it away from him.

"You have to believe me! These things really do not belong to me!" The middle-aged man was so desperate that his forehead was covered in sweat. Earlier, he had been desperate to hide his own secret that he did not imagine that someone would plant evidence to frame him.

"I suggest we apprehend him for now. This man is too dangerous." Big Head looked around. "The bed in the electrician's house can be used to secure his body, and there are electrical devices in his room. I believe they will be helpful in making the man speak the truth."

"What do the rest of you think?" Doctor Li turned to the other tenants. Chen Ge was stunned and did not speak like he was still caught in shock.

Xiao Sun shook his head. "How does that make us any different from the killer? I still think we can talk this out peacefully. Perhaps there is really a misunderstanding."

"I agree with Big Head's suggestion. The person who killed the landlord is in possession of all the room keys. We have to find out the keys' location, or else we would not be able to sleep peacefully at night!" Qu Yin and his girlfriend did not care whether the middle-aged man was framed or not. They did not care about the torture and pain they would put the man through. They only cared about themselves.

"Me, Big Head, and the couple—the four of us have voted us. The majority wins, so that is what we shall do!" Doctor Li carefully put the letter of commitment away. He, Big Head, and Qu Yin slowly surrounded the middle-aged man. The latter knew that someone wanted him to die on the stake as the scapegoat.

"Listen to me! I am really not related to the landlord's death! If you do not believe me, you can go and ask Wu You! The boy knows who the real killer is! He has seen people wandering outside the landlord's room at midnight!" The middle-aged man was truly desperate. He knew how unhinged these tenants were. Once he was strapped to the bed, even if he was not the killer, he would be tortured until he died.

"Wu You has a habit of lying to get the adults' attention. That is what you told us yourself. Why did you suddenly change your story? I realize that you are as big of a liar as that boy, but no worry, in a minute, we will get you to speak the truth." Doctor Li took one step forward. He did not need the man to tell the truth; he only needed the middle-aged man to say the things that he wanted to hear. If the middle-aged refused to do so, he would be slowly tortured until he surrendered.

"Why are you pushing this on me?" The middle-aged man's eyes wandered between Doctor Li and Big Head. "It was Big Head who found the teeth and you who found the letter of commitment..."

His eyes suddenly sharpened, and the middle-aged man shouted, "It is you two who are framing me! Big Head has been your patient since he was young. He listens to your every word! You two are the real killers of the landlord!"

The middle-aged man shouted from the core of his heart. He turned to Chen Ge and Wen Qing, who had not stated their stance. "You have to believe me! I am telling the truth! These two are the real murderers!"

At that moment, Chen Ge and Wen Qing were the middle-aged man's only hope. He had forgotten not too long ago, he was the one who had been giving Chen Ge all sorts of problem.

"I personally want to believe you, but with so much damning evidence, I'd suggest you stop resisting." Chen Ge raised his head. His words became the last straw that broke the middle-aged man. "Ever since Qu Gui was discovered, you have been affecting my train of thought. Can you tell me honestly why you have been trying to derail my thoughts?"

"Stop wasting time. We'd better apprehend him." Doctor Li and Big Head pounced at the middle-aged man at the same time. The latter struggled literally for his life.

"You will all regret this! You will all be killed by the real murderer!" Being strapped to the bed equaled death. It was not safe inside the building anymore. After the man shook Big head and Doctor Li off, he did something that no one expected. He rushed to the living room window and whipped it open. Just as he prepared to jump, the shape of a jaw materialized from the black fog.

“Ah!” The middle-aged wailed for mercy. Fresh blood splashed on the windowsill. The mouth crunched and snapped his neck. The black fog pulsed, and moments later, the middle-aged man disappeared into the fog. The rest of the tenants were frozen inside the room.

“What was that?” Chen Ge had Yin Yang Vision, so he had the best sight, but even so, he failed to see the thing clearly. “Is there a man-eating monster inside the black fog?”

Chapter 1085 - The Lonely Island of Humanity 3 in 1

1085 The Lonely Island of Humanity 3 in 1

An unknown monster hid inside the black fog, but probably due to the limitation of the rules behind the door, the fog did not spread into the apartment, so the tenants were relatively safe as long as they stayed inside the building. The space outside of the apartment appeared to be a completely different world in contrast to the safety of the space inside the apartment. Their entire lives were within the apartment, as if something bad would happen to them once they tried to leave the apartment. Doctor Li walked over to close the window like the tragedy that had just happened before their eyes was not registered in his mind. He did not appear to even notice the blood stains that still lingered on the windowsill.

“Only the landlord is free to leave the building. If any tenant wishes to leave at night, they have to be accompanied by the landlord.” Doctor Li looked at the thick black fog outside the window. “He must have been feeling extremely guilty to be desperate enough to break the rules and leave through the window.”

What Doctor Li said attracted Chen Ge’s attention. This place was far stranger and more dangerous than he had previously thought.

...

As Doctor Li had said, if one needed the landlord’s accompaniment to leave the building at night, then what would happen after the landlord died? What if the space was stuck in nighttime forever? What if this was just a recurring nightmare that would never welcome the first ray of dawn? After all, many worlds behind the door stopped at a specific moment in time because it was that period in time that caused the mark of despair within the door pusher.

“We have already confirmed the landlord’s murderer. Now we only need to focus our attention on capturing the killer who murdered Qu Gui, and then we can call it a day.” Doctor Li’s words were cold and calm, carrying an undercurrent of threat. He seemed to be treating the whole building as his hunting field. Now that a new hunter had entered his territory, it was his natural reaction to find this trespasser and then deal with them.

“I suggest we search this place further. If he is really the killer that killed the landlord, there must be other clues inside his house. For example, the spare keys that have been taken from the landlord’s home.” Qu Yin could not care less about the lives of other people. He only wanted the key to his own home. From his perspective, that was the only safe place within the whole building. If the spare key was not recovered, it meant that even his only sanctuary was not as safe as he thought. How would one expect him to sleep peacefully at night?

“Er...” Xiao Sun appeared to have something to say. He looked at the people around him before his eyes landed on the blood stain on the windowsill. “Are we being a bit too brash with our speculation? We determined the man as the murderer through a letter and some teeth, huh? Plus, I just feel that there is something not so right about this. I went into the bathroom before, and I also looked down the drain, but at the time...”

“We only wanted him to tell us the truth. It was the man who made his own choice. He had a guilty conscience, so he chose to run.” Doctor Li glanced at Xiao Sun before his eyes quickly flitted away to address Chen Ge. “What do you think?”

Of everyone there, the only person that Doctor Li could not read was Chen Ge. He picked up an uncomfortable feeling from Chen Ge. It was like he had encountered a kindred spirit. He knew that Chen Ge was an extremely dangerous person. That thought had occurred to Doctor Li when he first laid eyes on Chen Ge.

“I agree with your opinion. The most important thing that we need to do now is focus on our capture of Qu Gui’s murderer. All of us here have perfect alibis, so the murderer must be someone other than ourselves. If we start to question ourselves, it will only benefit the true murderer.”

Everything was falling into place according to Chen Ge’s plan. He was making use of these small group of tenants to go investigate the other tenants inside the apartment. When the latter's secret was at the threat of being exposed, they would naturally turn hostile against each other. When they were busy attacking each other, things would slowly turn for the better for Chen Ge. When the number of tenants lowered to a certain amount, Chen Ge would expose his own fangs.

Chen Ge held the same opinion as Doctor Li; they both believed that they would end up as the final victor. The difference between them was that Chen Ge knew that Qu Gui's killer was an outsider, but Doctor Li had no clue about anything that happened outside the building. One of them was constricted by the rules behind the door, and the other was setting up the trap using a combination of the knowledge from both inside and outside the door. This imbalance in information had already decided Doctor Li's defeat from the very beginning.

On the surface, everyone appeared to be peaceful and cooperative. But in reality, everyone was hiding a secret, with the only exception being Xiao Sun. This naïve and honest young man was still playing his detective game. He wanted to find the truth and was indeed trying his best to do so. He did not understand that truth could be found only when the sun was shining. When night fell and he was surrounded by crazed criminals, no one could care less about the truth. The thing that everyone focused on was how survive on their own.

The group failed to find the landlord's spare keys in his room. They turned his room upside down but came up with nothing. In the end, they had no choice but to give up. After leaving the middle-aged man's room, they searched every room one by one, starting from the third floor.

If the tenants refused to open the door, they would try their best to break the door down to gain entry. Many dirty corruptions were hidden inside the building. Years of darkness were spliced open by a sharp knife that was even darker. A cross-dressing maniac, extra marital affairs, crimes of passion, fugitives in hiding, a mental patient...

Every single door was home to many twisted souls. They guarded their dirtiest secrets with their lives. As Chen Ge's group pushed further, they slowly shed their human skin to reveal the monsters that they were. Chen Ge saw the bottom line of humanity in the world behind Xiang Nuan's door. These monsters were hiding among regular people. Perhaps he had even brushed past them every day on his way to school in the past.

As they moved from the third floor to the eighth floor, in the name of searching for the murderer, Chen Ge's group was met with great resistance. When their secrets were exposed, many of the twisted tenants resorted to the most extreme method to resist. Most of them did not care about the murders; they only wanted to safeguard their own secret. Doctor Li himself did not expect such resistance. During the process of investigation, Big Head was stabbed by one of the hiding fugitives, and the doctor himself suffered from light injuries.

A trapped beast was a dangerous beast. To prevent their human disguise from being peeled away, these tenants had used everything that they had at their disposal. Some used flowery words to trick and misdirect; others used brute force to chase them away; some wanted to lie to escape the investigation; some even wanted to kill everyone prevent so that their own secret would not be exposed.

Of the whole group, other than Wen Qing and Granny Lee who stayed at the back of the group, only Chen Ge remained uninjured. He stood to observe detachedly. His Yin Yang Vision was trained on the darker side of humanity being exposed. They soon arrived at the ninth floor, where the landlord's room was. They gathered at the door to Room 901 again. The murderer was not found, the spare keys that belonged to the landlord were still missing, and everyone looked worse for wear.

"When the front door is open, I swear to move away from this place." Xiao Sun's face was pale and devoid of color. His view of the world was inverted within one single night. The scary and gory scenes that he had encountered in the past hour were more intense and numerous than the gory scenes that he had seen from horror movies in the past twenty years of his life. The high intensity and high frequency trauma left a deep scar in him. He seemed to have gained a new type of phobia, the phobia of opening doors. He lacked the courage to open any more doors.

"If the keys are not found, the lock on the front door cannot be opened; none of us will be able to leave." Chen Ge held his backpack in one hand. He had been reserving his energy. He kept calling the names of his employees, and he did nothing beyond that.

"But we have already searched most of the rooms. There are so many keys. What could the killer that murdered the landlord have done with them?" Qu Yin and his girlfriend were given quite a fright as well.

Compared to the other monsters that were exposed that night, they were only on the level of a beginner.

“We have been to most of the room, but there is a portion of the rooms in this building that we have not been to.” It was about time to face the music. Chen Ge was in very good condition. After all, all he had done so far was follow along with everyone else.

“You mean the other rooms below the third floor?” Qu Yin nodded. He could only place his hope on the first and second floor.

“No, I mean our own rooms. The rooms of the people among us.” When Chen Ge said that, Doctor Li and Big Head’s expressions changed instantly. “The murderer knew that it would be dangerous to carry the evidence with them, so there is a high chance they would plant the evidence on each of us. For example, they might have placed some unimportant evidence inside our homes.”

What Chen Ge described was exactly what Doctor Li and Big Head had done to the middle-aged man. Of the tenants inside the building, some were dead, others were injured, and the remaining ones were tied up and detained. They had lost the power to resist. Chen Ge did not need to be afraid around them anymore.

Many criminals and monsters lived inside this building. If they ganged up, Chen Ge, whose physical condition was not at its best, would not be their match, but their own selfishness and darkness had provided Chen Ge with an opportunity. It allowed Chen Ge to find a ‘path’ that practically should not exist within the gap.

Doctor Li was lightly injured, Big Head was seriously injured, Auntie Ding was hiding in her own room, and Qu Yin was too selfish and shameless to help others, so the only real threat to Chen Ge at this moment was Doctor Li. Laying the cards on the table had become one of the best choices for Chen Ge. But he still had not torn down the walls between him and the tenants. After all, if he could stand and watch as the tenants bit into each other, why should he even lift a finger?

If a normal person entered a building such as this, the first thing they would consider was how to safeguard themselves and then look for the keys through various clues, escaping from the building as soon as possible. That was how most horror games on the market would have set up the plot. But Chen Ge’s method was completely different. He wanted to kill all the monsters and creeps inside the building. Since everyone had lost the ability to resist, even if he did not escape from the building, in a way, he had gained victory.

“The few of us are not the murderers, but your suspicion is valid. We should check each of our homes to be sure. If we find anything in our houses, we should share them with the rest.” Doctor Li’s eyes were still sharp, but fatigue had started to appear on his face. The water at this building ran too deep. Many of the tenants even managed to surprise him with the depravity of their secrets. “The killer is very cunning, and they might do what you suggested. We must be careful not to fall for it and remember to have trust in each other no matter what.”

Doctor Li and Big Head knew full well that even though they had killed the landlord, they were not responsible for Qu Gui’s death. There was a real unknown murderer that was lurking inside the building. That was why they had chosen to cooperate with Chen Ge’s investigation. They had killed the landlord and were in possession of all the spare keys, but the murderer could enter other people’s rooms freely through the window. This was a very big hidden threat to them. What if the secret in their own rooms was found out by this mysterious third party?

To protect their darkest side, humans would do many thing, and Chen Ge made use of this psychology to slowly edge this group of crazy people into the darkness of the abyss.

“We should check the ninth and tenth floor first. If we fail to find anything here, we shall start by investigating our own homes, we have to take care of our own safety.” Chen Ge’s initial plan was to borrow the tenants’ power to deal with the monster from the cursed hospital, but he did not expect the monster to be so clever. They did not present him with a chance at all. By then, almost all the tenants had been incapacitated already, but the monster from the cursed hospital still had not shown himself. Without the key, Chen Ge’s group had to use a lot of energy to break down the doors.

After a long effort, they finally got all the rooms on the ninth floor to open. The six rooms on the ninth floor had the same interior design and furniture placement. From appearance alone, it appeared like the same room had been copied six different times.

“Why would the landlord have six completely identical rooms made on this floor?”

“The appearance might be the same, but the inside might not be.” Chen Ge’s memory was very good. He remembered the details in Room 901. After some comparison, he noticed many problems. “One of the rooms had a mirror in the bathroom that could be removed, and there is a hidden compartment behind it. The other had the wall behind the fridge hollowed out. Some had a hidden space under the bed. It was large enough to hide a person.”

“But why would the landlord do something like that? He is the only occupant of the rooms on the ninth floor, isn’t he? Why would he do these adjustments to all of the six rooms?” Xiao Sun still had not realized the scary details in the observation that Chen Ge proffered.

“Perhaps it was to observe someone and slowly torture them to the edge of madness.”

“How do you come to that conclusion?”

“Have you guys noticed that all of the windows in all the rooms on the ninth floor are sealed up by cement? The whole room is an isolated space, and there is no way to escape other than through the front door.” Chen Ge stood next to the window. “This makes these rooms perfect prisons. Assuming you stayed in one of the rooms here, after you were knocked out and transported to another similar looking room, would you even realize that you’d been moved?”

“But why would someone do something like that?”

Chen Ge pointed at the bed and the mirror in the bedroom that had been tempered with. “Imagine a person woke up in the middle of the night. He went to the toilet, and when he walked past the mirror, he realized that the reflection that looked at him was not his. Would he be afraid?”

“The culprit wanted to force his prisoner to go mad?”

“It goes far deeper than that. Have you noticed there are unlabeled medicine bottles littered all over the six rooms?” Chen Ge initially did not want to waste too much time on the landlord since he was already dead, but he was surprised that the landlord himself was hiding such a big secret.

“These bottles are the clues?” Xiao Sun picked up one of the bottles and opened it to look.

“If the imprisoned person took the drug and went to sleep, when he woke up and realized that everything had returned to normal, wouldn't he be given the impression that he was mentally ill? Wouldn't that increase his reliance on these drugs?"

At this point, Chen Ge turned to look at the coffee table and the dining table.

"Basically, all six rooms had these unlabeled bottles placed everywhere. This is a kind of powerful mental suggestion, and the purpose is for the prisoner to get hooked on them. The person might initially suspect the use of these drugs, but as the situation around him became stranger and stranger, he would slowly accept the fact that the drugs were useful for his condition. And the cruelest thing was that these drugs were not helping him at all. If anything, they were the source of his problem. They were the reason he was slowly spiraling down a rabbit hole of madness."

Chen Ge went and collected a large number of unlabeled medicine bottles from all six rooms. None of them were named. "Doctor Li, can you identify them? Are they all the same kind of drug?"

"Some appear to be common sleeping pills, but I can't identify the others. They should be used for mental illness treatment. I cannot be sure."

"Only you can help us identify these drugs, but since even you can't be sure, this clue is not that important to us." Chen Ge was about to put the bottles away when Wen Qing, who had not said a word, poked him on his back. Chen Ge definitely noticed that, so he said, "There should be other clues hidden in these six rooms. Why don't we split up to look for them? If there's nothing else, we will meet up at the tenth floor."

After everyone filed away, Wen Qing finally spoke. "Chen Ge, these are drugs for manic psychosis. I have bought them many times for Xiang Nuan. Before the landlord moved away from Jin Hwa Apartments, he had a lot of similar drugs at his place as well."

"Wait a minute, so these drugs belong to the landlord?"

"Yes."

When he first saw the drugs, Chen Ge had come up with two speculations. First, the drugs belonged to Doctor Li. After all, he was a doctor, and he was related to the landlord's death. But the timeline did not match up. One would need a lot of planning to build six near-identical rooms on the same floor. The second speculation was that the drugs belonged to the landlord, and the b*stard who had been imprisoning others was the landlord himself. He was the one who built the six mirroring rooms, and the intention was to push a person mad.

“In your mind, what kind of person is the landlord?”

“The landlord is the old CEO for Jin Hwa Company. He was an unlucky old man. His whole family died in a fire, and after that, it was like something switched off in him. However, he would brighten up around children, and he was one of the few people who did not hate Xiang Nuan.”

“So, you have a good impression of him.”

“When I was very busy, he would offer to help me look after Xiang Nuan.”

“You had a person with a clinical manic disorder look after your son?” Even Chen Ge was surprised by that revelation.

“The drugs were for the landlord’s son. His youngest son suffered from this illness. He was not able to shake it off. His illness came and went, and he’s been using this drug since as far back as I can remember.”

“Do you believe everything the man tells you? The chance of inheritance for mental illness is as high as twelve to fifteen percent within family members. That is a number far higher than a normal person.” Chen Ge really did learn a lot from his time with Doctor Gao. Through the psychiatrist, he had learned many things related to psychology.

“But the old man has always been kind. He is friendly with everyone. Everyone who knows him respects him sincerely.”

“You can still believe something like that after what we have been through tonight? The kinder they are on the surface, the darker the secret they are hiding.” Chen Ge suddenly became urgent with his words. “Did you let him look after Xiang Nuan often?”

“Not really that often. It only happened once or twice.” Color drained from Wen Qing’s face. Suddenly, a very horrible realization dawned on her. “Chen Ge, are you trying to say that these six similar rooms were specifically built to imprison Xiang Nuan?”

"I cannot tell for sure, but there is one thing that I have understood." Chen Ge stood at the corner and lowered his voice. "The world behind the door is built according to the memory of the door pusher. When I first got here, I was confused. How did Xiang Nuan manage to learn the secrets of all these tenants? Initially, I thought it was because Xiang Nuan had the exceptional ability to see through one's disguise and into a person's heart. But now, after hearing what you've said, I know the truth is much crueler than I predicted."

"The truth?"

"Do you remember the television set in the bathroom and the convoluted wiring behind it?"

"I do." Wen Qing had a very bad feeling about this.

"The landlord had been spying on the tenants' lives with it. He saw the ugliest and darkest side of humanity, and he could have shared that experience with Xiang Nuan, who was as pure as a sheet of white paper. Before everyone else, he told him how beautiful the world was, how bright the flowers were, and how blue the sky was, but behind closed doors, he kept feeding Xiang Nuan this information. The things shown on the television are the real appearance of the world that he lives in."

Chen Ge voiced his own speculation. He tried to make it sound as comforting as he could, but it still almost caused Wen Qing to faint. She had not dared imagine that Xiang Nuan was in the state that he was now due to her own negligence and trust in the landlord.

Chapter 1086 - My Patients Respect Me a Lot 2 in 1

1086 My Patients Respect Me a Lot 2 in 1

Patting Wen Qing lightly on her shoulder, Chen Ge whispered softly, "Pull yourself together. Now is not yet the time for regret and sadness."

It took Wen Qing a long time before she slowly returned to normal. She took a few deep breaths and gave Chen Ge some affirmative nods.

"After this, we will go to the tenth floor. I believe then we will find out what the landlord's real secret is. After everything is revealed, it will be about time we leave this building."

...

Xiang Nuan and the monster from the cursed hospital had all disappeared. Chen Ge did not wish to stay there for too long. He was worried that he might miss out on some things. Ten minutes later, the group met at the entrance to the stairwell that connected the ninth and tenth floors. They had searched through all six rooms but come up with nothing.

"The last secret of this apartment should be hidden on the tenth floor. We should be ready. Who knows what we'll face?"

When Chen Ge said that, his eyes scanned over Doctor Li and Big Head. Doctor Li and Big Head carried black, opaque bags that contained lock-picking items. The two of them stood close together. Their eyes darted about, and they did not dare look Chen Ge in the eye. They seemed to have formulated a plan of their own behind Chen Ge's back.

Are they finally going to make their move?

As if he did not notice anything, Chen Ge's tone and expression did not change much. However, he no longer walked at the front of the group and made sure that Doctor Li and Big Head always stayed in his sight. He walked together with Xiao Sun and Wen Qing. As they went up the stairs, Chen Ge even purposely held back Qu Yin to ask him some unimportant questions.

During the temporarily break, these few tenants were supposed to search different rooms on the ninth floor, but when they returned, Doctor Li and Big Head returned alongside Qu Yin and his wife. These four's patience toward Chen Ge appeared to have reached its limit. When they came to the tenth floor, the group did not take that long to pry open the door to Room 1006. They had gotten quite good at this after repeating it so many times that night. After the front door fell open, a light scent of decay floated out from inside the room. It smelled like something had been out in the open for too long and had gotten spoilt.

"Normally, only the landlord will come to this floor. The tenth floor is not open for tenants." Qu Yin held his nose. For Chen Ge, this was no smellier than the other scents in the apartment. The tenants, though, found the smell revolting. Strangely enough, the tenants did not seem to be able to smell the actual stench that Chen Ge found revolting.

The furnishing of Room 1006 was at the bare minimum. The floor was filled with puddles of water and dirty stains. Following that trail of the stench, the group entered the room. They noticed that other than a ton of big freezers, there was basically nothing else inside Room 1006.

"There won't be a dead body kept inside a freezer, will there?" Wen Qing tried to hide behind Chen Ge but was pulled out to stand before him.

"Do not wander away from my sight. Even though dead bodies are scary, at least you know for sure that they pose no threat to you. I cannot say the same for the others in our company." Chen Ge walked to open a random freezer. It was filled to the brim with rotten vegetables and meat and a big bucket of ice. "Why did the landlord need to prepare so many food items?"

The group split up to open the rest of the freezers. There was nothing scary. The first few freezers were all stocked with food. The last freezer had various rotten meat and produce littered around it.

Inside the freezer were several bags of medicine. Chen Ge took one of the bags out from the freezer. He opened one of them, took out a bottle, and studied it closer.

"This kind of drugs will spoil easily after being exposed to the freezing agent inside the freezer. The medicinal effect will be greatly affected. The landlord possesses a lot of these medicine bottles, so it means that he knew this medicine very well. He would not have made the rookie mistake of using the freezer to store them. Other than that, take a look at the meat that's littered around this freezer. The person who did this probably just wanted to find a space to deposit these extra drugs."

"After the landlord died, it must be the killer who possesses the keys. Do you mean that the killer has been to this place already?" Doctor Li carried a black, opaque bag and sidled up to Chen Ge.

"I did not say that." Chen Ge gave Doctor Li a side glance. "By the way, you have such a lucrative career, and compared to the rest of the society, a doctor's income should be quite high. why would you stay in a place like this?"

"I have gotten used to living here," Doctor Li replied lightly.

"What is it that you have gotten used to? The dirtiness, the horrid nature of the building, or the lack of management around this place?"

"I have gotten used to the air here. I feel comfortable living here, and I am too lazy to find a new place to move to." Doctor Li closed the freezer. "Come on, let's go to the next room to take a look."

He held the black bag away from Chen Ge but purposely walked past the latter. Chen Ge carried his backpack, but his eyes did not stay on Doctor Li. Instead, he tilted his head to study Qu Yin, who looked surprisingly nervous.

"And what are you looking at?"

"Nothing." Qu Yin held his hand over his stomach. He then followed Doctor Li and Big Head out of the room.

Xiao Sun was about to follow them, but he was given a tug by Chen Ge. "I want to ask you a question."

"Go ahead." Xiao Sun was still analyzing who the killer was. His brows were creased in deep contemplation.

“When the electrician was killed, did you hear something that he said before he died?”

“I did not hear much, but I have a feeling the electrician seemed to know Auntie Ding and Doctor Ding. They appeared to share a relationship that is deeper than mere neighbors.” Xiao Sun was honestly quite an observant young man, but unfortunately, his way of thinking was too narrow.

“They had a close relationship, but Auntie Ding and Doctor Li insisted on killing him. Why do you think that’s the case?”

“Because they wanted to silence him?”

“Indeed. The electrician is a crazy man that likes to torture those weaker than him, Auntie Ding is a human trafficker that is mentally ill, but the biggest problem here is Doctor Li because he is the one who is the mastermind behind everything.” Chen Ge suddenly revealed all the information. It required some time for the poor young man to digest.

“When did you find out about all this, and why did you only tell me about them now? What is it that you are up to?” He had been following the real killers to search for the killer. They had gone through the entire building. Just the thought of it caused Xiao Sun to shiver. Now he truly had trust issues. He was not going to trust anyone anymore.

“Everyone has their own secret, and you are no exception, but some people’s secrets will not harm others, while other people’s secrets are built on the basis of harming other people.” Chen Ge patted Xiao Sun lightly on his shoulder. “Humanity is the most complicated concept in the world. As an individual with your own unique ability to think and freedom to choose, I am not going to force you into making any decision, but I hope that you will sincerely consider what you should do next.”

Xiao Sun’s appearance behind Xiang Nuan’s world behind the door proved that there was something wrong with the young man, but he was not assimilated by the darkness of the world. The darkness did not corrupt him. It was probably due to his incorruptibility that he had mysteriously disappeared outside the door. Chen Ge believed that Xiao Sun was someone that he could have on his side, so along the way, he had been observing Xiao Sun. It was difficult to gain Chen Ge’s confidence behind the door because Chen Ge was someone who had difficulty trusting others in nature, but there was something good about him, and that was once he had truly placed his trust in someone, the trust would not be so easily shaken.

“No matter what happens next, the thing that you need to do is make sure that you protect yourself and try not to say things that will make yourself a target anymore.”

Before this, Xiao Sun was just a stranger to Chen Ge. The latter did not mind whether Xiao Sun lived or died. At most, he would only come to his rescue verbally if needed. But now that Chen Ge wanted Xiao Sun as a partner, he naturally needed to warn Xiao Sun from ‘running his mouth’ and getting himself into trouble. After hearing what Chen Ge had to say, Xiao Sun nodded subconsciously even though he still looked as befuddled as ever.

Suddenly, Big Head’s scream came from the corridor. Chen Ge walked out from Room 1006 and saw Big Head sitting in the corridor. He had his hands covering his stomach, and blood was leaking out through his bandage. Big Head’s injury was deteriorating. Doctor Li had suggested that he go back to his room to rest, but Big Head had refused to leave Doctor Li’s side as if he knew what was about to happen. He wanted to stay to help Doctor Li as much as he could.

Soon, the other rooms on the tenth floor were all pushed open. They did not find anything useful from Room 1006 to Room 1002. They walked all the way to Room 1001, the room that was at the end of the corridor on the top floor of this apartment building. Before the front door was even completely open, Chen Ge’s group heard a voice coming from inside the room. It sounded like a boy was crying.

“Is there someone inside the room?”

Chen Ge did not mind the crying that much. Anything could have happened behind the door. But once he noticed the shock on Doctor Li’s face, he slowly became suspicious of this development. Doctor Li, who was the landlord’s real killer, did not expect the crying to come from the room. This meant that something had changed since the last time he was there. They pushed the front door completely open, and the group saw what was inside the room. Their expressions all shifted.

The floor and walls of Room 1001 were painted with open eyes. There was no furniture in the living room. Instead, there were several television sets of varying sizes. The television sets were stacked on top of each other. The screen of the set right in the middle was on. The image was that of a boy sitting in front of more than ten televisions. His face was pale, and his pupils shook as he looked at the images on-screen with clear anxiety on his face.

“Xiang Nuan!” When she saw the boy on the screen, Wen Qing was unable to control herself and shouted out the boy’s name. Her own child had been exposed to such a nightmarish experience. Wen Qing stood at the door, and her eyes reddened immediately. Her shoulders were shaking from guilt and remorse. She did not dare look at the television, but she could not stop her eyes from wandering toward the screen. The boy on the screen was struggling within himself. Sometimes, the expression on his face was normal, but sometimes, it was turned into a horrible grimace, like a monster.

The keys had already been taken away by the killer, but the expression on Doctor Li’s face was one of surprise. Obviously, he had no idea who had switched the television on. Naturally, that still did not clear him of the suspicion. It merely meant that the person who switched on the television could freely enter this room without the need of the landlord’s key. Instantly, Xiang Nuan’s image appeared in Chen Ge’s mind.

The door pusher is Xiang Nuan. This is his world. Is he leading us to see the truth?

The group froze at the front door. Just as they were considering whether to walk into the room, Xiang Nuan inside the screen suddenly lifted his head. It was as if the boy was looking at those gathered at the door through the television screen.

“Leave...” A very soft voice called out from inside the television. Then, all the screens of the rest of the televisions were switched on at once. The images started to play.

The middle-aged man in Room 302 caressed a fresh dead body beside him as he worked on the joint of his beloved mannequin.

A fifty-year-old man in Room 205 slammed Granny Lee’s black and white photo onto the ground. He grabbed the sacrificial food on the altar and threw it at Granny Lee, and then he lunged at Granny Lee to strangle her.

The man in Room 701 used the burning end of a cigarette to sear away his fingerprints. He stood next to the mirror while waving a knife. The picture of his warrant was plastered on the mirror.

The young woman in Room 702 sat before the computer. She was bathed in blood. Behind her lay the dead body of a middle-aged man. She appeared to be searching the internet for information on how to deal with large trash.

In Room 505, a man put on makeup and then dressed himself up in his wife's clothes. He held up his wife's picture and struck the same pose as his wife, who was captured in time.

In the kitchen of Room 602, a man washed his hands again and again. He used various tools and rubbed until the skin of his hands were bleeding. The water was running red, but he still could not stop himself from scrubbing his hands.

In Room 301, Wu You had his eyes and ears covered by an adult whose face could not be seen. His parents, who lay in a pool of blood, were dragged out of the living room by the other tenants of the building.

...

Reels of uncomfortable videos played on the screens. Xiang Nuan was surrounded in the middle. His expression became more and more unhinged. He waved his hands wildly about before he collapsed to the ground and shoveled the pills that were on the ground into his mouth. After some time, all the screens started to flicker. As Xiang Nuan's body collapsed with a thud to the ground, all the images disappeared at the same time.

The room sank into silence; the only sound that remained was Wen Qing's remorseful sobbing that echoed around the room. The images on the screen were very real, and because they were real, they were scary.

"So, is that the final truth behind this building?" Xiao Sun felt like he was about to go crazy soon.

"You're wrong. That is only just a part of the truth." Chen Ge turned to Doctor Li. "Why didn't the videos relating to you, Big Head, Auntie Ding, and the electrician show up earlier?"

"What's so strange about that? Doesn't that prove that we are normal, innocent people?" Big Head countered to defend himself.

"Stop lying to yourself. You know full well what the electrician has done. The real reason you killed him was to protect yourself." Chen

Ge pulled out the zipper of his backpack. "It was the four of you who ganged up together to kill the landlord."

The atmosphere in Room 1001 froze. After a long time, Doctor Li's cold face suddenly surfaced with a thrilling smile. "You're not wrong. The landlord saw our secret, so he had to die. He was killed by the four of us. Those teeth and the letter were our things, and we planted them on the man. You are very clever, but it is too late now. You will not find any allies in this building anymore."

Seeing the scary smile on Doctor Li's face, Chen Ge also responded with a smile. However, his smile was like a blazing sun; it was radiating with warmth. Yet, in the circumstance, his smile appeared even more absurd and out of place. "Do you know why I only understood it now?"

After hearing what Chen Ge had to say, both Big Head and Doctor Li laughed. The two of them waved at Qu Yin. The three of them surrounded Chen Ge from all sides.

"Actually, I have been lying from the beginning. I am no pediatrician, and Big Head is not my patient." Doctor Li pulled back his sleeves to reveal the horrifying needle holes and scars that ran up his arms. "We are both mental patients, serious mental cases who are unable to control ourselves."

They searched inside the black bag. The bags not only contained lock-picking tools but also two sharp knives.

"When we were coming up the stairs, I wanted to take this out several times, but I reined myself in every time," Doctor Li said as he brandished the knife. In his eyes, Chen Ge probably did not even qualify as a human. The doctor looked at Chen Ge like a butcher would look at a cow waiting to be slaughtered. "I always felt this place was too noisy and crowded. Finally, it has quieted down, and I can officially take over as the new landlord."

"That sure is a beautiful dream you have." Chen Ge also reached his hand into his backpack. "Actually, two can play at this game. I am no psychiatrist. In fact, the patients that I have treated refer to me as Doctor Skull Cracker."

His fingers clamped around the handle that was shaped like a human spine. When Chen Ge said that last word, he lunged forward. He swung the hammer heavily on Qu Yin's body.

Qu Yin crumbled to the ground as he coughed out mouthfuls of blood. His expression was frozen in disbelief.

His mind was still processing the development, but before he could even say a word, his chest had already caved in.

“Why me?” His body lost its mobility. Qu Yin looked like he was not long for this world.

“One left, two to go.” Chen Ge stood at the door. The sharp edges of the hammer ground against the wall, creating a harrowing sound.

Chapter 1087 - Does It Not Look Like a Black Sea? 2 in 1

1087 Does It Not Look Like a Black Sea? 2 in 1

Chen Ge moved too fast for them to handle. Initially, the three predators had surrounded him, and they had still been threatening him, but the next moment, one of them had collapsed to the ground already. In the blink of an eye, the three hunters had dwindled to two, and the remaining two were injured to various degrees. Doctor Li and Big Head were originally standing on both sides, trying to corner Chen Ge. But after they saw Qu Yin collapse, they moved subconsciously closer to one another. Two were still better than one supposedly.

Holding the sharp knives, the twisted expressions on their faces froze. Their eye wandered between their knives and Chen Ge's hammer. In terms of professionalism, the man before them was like a madman that had no cure anymore, and the two of them were at most people with some mental illness. They were all not right in the head, but there was a difference in essence. Even in movies, one would rarely encounter a character who would carry this kind of horrible-looking hammer at all times.

"I am sure you two are tired from all the running in one night already. It is time for you to take your well-deserved rest; try not to do any immoral things in your next life."

...

Chen Ge dragged the hammer as he walked toward Doctor Li and Big Head. The duo's eyes twitched. Looking at the heavy blood stains on the head of the hammer, their faces could not have been paler. Chen Ge stood strategically at the door to block any possible escape. Both Big Head and Doctor Li knew that Chen Ge would not have allowed them the chance to escape anyway, so the only chance they had at survival was fighting back as much as they could.

All along, they had thought they had the upper hand, but only then did they realize that it was not Chen Ge who was being led step by step into a trap; it was them.

Narrowing his eyes, Chen Ge did not waste any time and charged forward with Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer at Doctor Li.

Big Head's stomach was injured, so he would not be able to run. Even if he chose to escape on his own, Chen Ge was confident that he would be able to catch up to an injured man. Therefore, Chen Ge's target was clear from the beginning. He had his eyes locked on Doctor Li.

Doctor Li, who had a crazy grimace and unhinged personality, gripped the knife in his hand. He had never encountered this situation before. Normally, he was the one in Chen Ge's position. He was the one hunting others.

Bang!

Doctor Li tried his best to put up a fight, but the tip of the knife barely had the chance to graze Chen Ge. Chen Ge was masterful at using the one-meter-long hammer. After all, he had gotten a lot of practice.

With Doctor Li and Big Head collapsing, Chen Ge turned his attention to Qu Yin's girlfriend. He was not going to let any possible threats fester in his presence. He tied the few immobilized individuals with the electric wires that could be found in the room. When he was fine, he finally gave a sigh of relief.

Dragging the hammer with one hand, Chen Ge's chest rose and fell unevenly.

My physique has deteriorated greatly. Even though I have been saving my energy since I entered the door, I am already in such tired state after swinging the hammer a few times.

Chen Ge walked past the unconscious Doctor Li and Big Head and turned toward Xiao Sun and Wen Qing, who were stunned beyond words.

"All that I said earlier was merely to trick them. Facing such crazed murderers, I was afraid for my own safety too. But I know that when facing these people, you need to act tougher and more vicious than them to gain the upper hand.”

Dragging the hammer that was had pieces of clothing and blood stains stuck to it, Chen Ge’s expression was very natural like what he had just done was as simple as a walk through the park.

“I understand what you mean, but how do you explain the weapon that you have been hiding from us? Have you been keeping it inside your backpack all this time?” Xiao Sun’s voice was shaking. He felt like he had just been taken out of some dangerous situation to be put into another. It was like the night would never end.

“You mean this hammer?” Chen Ge used the murder’s clothes to wipe away the blood stain. “Even though it looks scary, it is actually just a prop at a haunted house.”

“A prop at a haunted house? Do you think we will believe something like that? What kind of haunted house would use such a dangerous weapon as a prop?”

“The haunted house at Western Jiujiang’s New Century Park.” Chen Ge carefully wiped away the blood on Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer. He then walked toward Wen Qing. It did not matter that much whether Xiao Sun trusted him or not; the key was Wen Qing. “I have already told you about this before.”

“You did, but I can’t say that it’s what I expected.” Wen Qing’s eyes were bulging. She had always had the impression that Chen Ge was a cultured man; he should be someone in the art industry or someone who earned his living using his brains. It was not until she heard Qu Yin’s bones cracking that she realized how wrong she was. From the minute Chen Ge took out Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer to the moment the four tenants collapsed in the room, it took less than a minute. This happened so fast that Wen Qing still had not found enough time to process what kind emotion or expression she should be using when facing Chen Ge.

“Reality and imagination will always have that degree of difference. There is no need to mind these details. You only need to know that I will not harm you, and I wish to bring Xiang Nuan back to real life with you.” Chen Ge blinded Wen Qing with a consoling smile. There was a unique presence about the man that allowed him to give off this presence of closeness to those around them. He would easily bring them into his confidence if he wanted to.

“You followed me into the door; it was me who dragged you in this mess. Honestly, I was quite scared and shocked by what you did, but don’t worry, I have complete faith in you. After all, without you, I probably would have been butchered by this gang of people a long time ago, much less have the opportunity to go look for Xiang Nuan.”

After Wen Qing calmed down, she came to the realization that Chen Ge was the only trustworthy person in this world behind the door.

“What is the situation between you two? I can see that you two are not siblings as you claimed earlier. Are you pursuing her? Are you his boyfriend?” Xiao Sun’s eyes wandered between Wen Qing and Chen Ge. After hearing what he had to say, Wen Qing quickly tried to explain it, but Chen Ge turned to look back at his shadow. He stared at it for as long as a minute, and then he took out Zhang Ya’s diary. There was nothing new added to it.

“So, was I right? You two aren’t brother and sister but a couple?” Xiao Sun felt like he had hit the nail on the head again.

“Do you wish to tempt fate every time?” Chen Ge placed the diary back into the backpack’s inner compartment. He realized that there might be a reason behind Xiao Sun’s mysterious disappearance in real life. “From this moment onward, you’d better watch the words that come out from your mouth. The few of us are the only remaining members left of this group. If you attract danger that is beyond my capability to handle, then I will have to abandon you to deal with it yourself.”

While holding Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer, Chen Ge had a heart to heart talk with Xiao Sun. From then, he found out about Xiao Sun’s secret. The main reason this university student moved into Jin Hwa Residence was due to poverty. He was taken advantage of by the landlord. The landlord rented him the house for a very low price; the young man thought that he had scored a bargain, but from the very beginning, the landlord had treated him as nothing more than a target. The rent that he had given was not money but his own life. Xiao Sun’s story inspired Chen Ge’s greatly. An idea appeared in his mind. If he managed to survive this final door, he could set up the scenario in his haunted house so that the visitors would live the life of Xiao Sun and see how long they could survive.

After leaving Room 1001, Chen Ge turned to look at the television sets placed in the living room. He thought back to Xiang Nuan, who had shown up on the screen. The boy seemed to have said something to the group who had gathered at the door before they came in—"Leave."

"That was probably meant for Wen Qing." Closing the front door behind them, Chen Ge took the keys that he had found from Doctor Li and Big Head and led Wen Qing, Xiao Sun, and Granny Lee downstairs. The corridors were awash with blood. The doors had been pried open by force. None of these doors were the one that Chen Ge was looking for, but each of them was hiding their own version of despair and ugliness. When a person was pushed to the edge of the abyss, with a slight blow of the wind, they might take the path of no return.

And the thing that pushed them over the edge could be an inconspicuous detail in their life, it could be a word from a random stranger, or it could have originated from their own memory. Chen Ge used the key to open the door to Doctor Li's house. Inside it, they found many human bone specimens, the ring of keys left behind by the landlord, and a few bottles of unknown medicine. "Finally, we will be able to leave this place."

Before they left, Chen Ge took a detour to head to Auntie Ding's room. He delivered her the same judgement as Big Head and Doctor Li. At the same time, he rescued the child that was trapped in her home. Under Auntie Ding's torture, the boy's cognitive ability was severely impaired. When asked, he could only answer that his name was Jia Fu.

Chen Ge found a family picture on the boy, and the picture painted a scenario that caused Chen Ge's hair to stand on end. The brightly smiling Auntie Ding and Jia Fu stood in the middle of the family photo. Next to them was a row of wooden boxes, and the wooden boxes had pictures attached to them with children's name—Jia Le, Jia An, Jia Mei...

Jia Fu's legs had been amputated, so he could not leave with Chen Ge. In terms of how to deal with Jia Fu, Wen Qing and Xiao Sun had a split of opinion. Xiao Sun wanted to carry Jia Fu and leave while Wen Qing felt they should go and find Xiang Nuan first before they come back to get Jia Fu. After all, Jia Fu could not move on his own, and he would only burden them.

In the end, it was Chen Ge who made the final decision. He decided to take Jia Ming to Uncle Huang's place at the first floor. As they moved down the stairs, Chen Ge stopped at the third floor. He decided to go to Room 301 to take a look. The boy known as Wu You was sitting in the living room, looking with interest at the paintings that were stuck to the window.

“Wu You, why don’t you come with us? I will bring you to go and find your parents.” There were not many good people in the apartment. The fact that Wu You could survive for so long was a miracle in and of itself. Even Chen Ge was surprised by this. Therefore, he wanted to bring Wu You with them; that way, at least they would have an extra pair of eyes.

“I will not go with any of you.” To Chen Ge’s surprise, Wu You denied him outright.

“Why? Haven’t you been meaning to see your mother and father?” Chen Ge was curious. The reason that he used to convince the boy to follow him was to bring him to find his parents; he did not think that the boy would reject him so easily and firmly without giving it much thought.

“On the day my parents left, the last thing that they told me was, no matter what, I am not to leave this house. They will soon return. Whenever a person comes to get me with the offer that they will take me to my parents, that person has to be lying to me.” Wu You lifted his head. “You are lying to me, right?”

Chen Ge was stumped. From Wu You’s words, he discerned a deeper layer of meaning. When Wu You’s parents were dragged out of their house, they probably knew that they would die. That was the only reason they would say something like that. After all, no one would be able to help Wu You find them anymore, so anyone who came to claim so had to be a liar. That was solid logic.

“There’s plenty of food on the tenth floor, and this apartment is now a lot safer. If you run into any trouble, go and find the old man that lives on the first floor.” Chen Ge ruffled Wu You’s head. This boy was clever beyond his years. “Your parents are not wrong. They will return. Before they do, you have to take good care of yourself.”

Chen Ge turned to leave. Just as he was about to reach the second floor, Wu You’s voice came from above them. “Hey!”

“What?”

“I want to tell you something.” Wu You was leaning against the door. His eyes were locked on Wen Qing. “Xiang Nuan is lost. He also appears to be waiting for his family to come find him.”

“What?”

The door of Room 301 that had never closed was shut by Wu You, and the corridor sank into silence.

“Does the boy know something that he has not told us?” Wen Qing was quite agitated.

“Perhaps he is friends with Xiang Nuan.” Xiao Sun, who was carrying Jia Fu, started to go into detective mode as per his habit.

“Give me a moment while I go and deal with this.” Chen Ge carried his backpack and returned to the third floor.

“What are you planning to do?”

“I will just ask him in person! Why is a boy of six or seven years old playing guess that question with me? I hate people who finish half of their stories the most in this world.”

“He is just a child!”

Wu You was surprised to see Chen Ge again within ten seconds since their last meeting. After some repeated questioning, Chen Ge finally got the information he wanted. The electrician was the first to discover the landlord’s secret. The reason behind that was because Xiang Nuan had stuffed a video tape that he stole from the landlord’s home into his pigeonhole. Xiang Nuan left the building that night. But before he left, Wu You chanced a glance at Xiang Nuan taking a trip to the rooftop.

After giving thanks to Xiang Nuan, Chen Ge carried the backpack and called after Wen Qing. The two of them rushed to the rooftop. “This is it.”

The iron door on the tenth floor that led to the rooftop was locked. Chen Ge took some time looking through the ring of keys before he managed to locate the correct one.

“Stay far away from me. Once the door is open, the black fog from outside might rush in, and there are monsters hiding in that black fog.”

After Wen Qing stepped back, Chen Ge pushed open the iron door ever so slightly. The black fog outside was not as thick as he imagined, but the stench was as horrible as he remembered. Taking out the hammer, Chen Ge slowly pushed the iron door open. When he saw the whole world that opened before him, his eyes slowly widened.

Jin Hwa Apartment Block A was the tallest building in this neighborhood. So, standing on the rooftop, he could see the entire residential area. The black fog that stretched all the way to the horizon enveloped the twisted buildings. This was like a sea of blackness, and Jin Hwa Apartment and Jiu Hong Apartment were like lone islands that were abandoned in the middle of this black sea. Giant shadows slithered through the fog. Chen Ge gulped. His hands that gripped the hammer were slick with sweat.

“So, this is the real world behind Xiang Nuan’s door.”

Xiang Nuan’s door was completely different from any of the doors that Chen Ge had been to before. It was not covered in red mist but this black fog. Using his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge could capture the flickering shadows that moved in the darkness. He was suddenly reminded of what happened when he conducted the nightmare mission at Jiang Yuan Apartments. When he reached on the rooftop blindfolded, he heard his own voice from twenty years ago. When he was about to be killed by the door, the younger version of Chen Ge said, “If I am really forgotten in my nightmare one day, I will paint a window on that black sea and open all the doors in the red city so that all the eyes that have gotten used to the darkness will get a chance to see the light.”

“I know what the red city is. Could the black sea refer to this endless wave of black fog?”

Looking at the dark sky, compared to the giant shadow in the fog, Chen Ge felt so miniscule. “When Xiang Nuan left, he came to the rooftop. If I assume that Wu You is not purposely trying to trick me, there should be clues left behind by Xiang Nuan here.”

Chen Ge knew about the scary monsters hidden in the black fog. The memory of the sleazy middle-aged man being chomped by one of them was still fresh on Chen Ge’s mind.

“I cannot miss any clues. Since I have already entered this door, I will eventually have to interact with the black fog...”

Taking a deep breath, Chen Ge carried his backpack, took out his hammer, and stepped carefully into the fog. Using his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge started to search around the rooftop. It did not take long for him to find a heavily broken mud statuette.

The statuette was poorly made, and it looked similar to the other mud statuettes that Chen Ge had encountered in real life, but unlike the others, this statuette had been beheaded. From the breaking point, it did not appear that the head had broken accidentally but was forcibly yanked off by someone or something.

Chen Ge's eyes wandered to the statuette's chest. Two words were carved there—Xiang Nuan.

“This is Xiang Nuan's mud statuette? Why would his own statuette appear behind his door? Was he the one who broke the statuette?”

Many questions bubbled up in his mind. Before he could give them much thought, harrowing wails drifted into his ears.

“A monster from the fog?”

Not daring to test his luck, Chen Ge grabbed the mud statuette, turned, and ran.

Chapter 1088 - White Rice, Chopsticks, Paper Dolls, Red Candle 2 in 1

1088 White Rice, Chopsticks, Paper Dolls, Red Candle 2 in 1

“Save me.”

“I am right here. Behind you. Save me.”

“Bring me with you. Bring me away from this place. Help me...”

...

Underneath the constant crying was the sound of a woman. Chen Ge felt that the voice of this woman sounded quite familiar. “I believe I heard this voice in Li Wan City.”

In any case, it was not the time to meet some old friends. Chen Ge swore not to turn his head around. He had no idea what was hiding inside the black fog, and the best way to face the unknown was first to find a safe place to observe it from a far and not walk right into it while putting one’s life on the line.

The voice came closer and closer, and Chen Ge walked faster and faster. However, the quicker Chen Ge moved, the more desperate and urgent the voice became. Just as he was about to reach the iron door, the woman’s voice changed. All the words turned into screams, and they shot at Chen Ge’s body like sharp arrows shooting through the black fog.

“Get out of the way!” Chen Ge threw caution to the wind and ran as fast as he could. The moment he stepped into the building, the scary voice disappeared without a trace. Chen Ge turned back to look. Everything had returned to normal inside the black fog; it was as if he had imagined everything that had happened to him earlier.

“Wen Qing, did you hear the voice of a woman when you were standing inside the building?”

“I do not think so.” Wen Qing shook her head. “I merely saw your body disappear into the black fog. Your movement became very difficult to follow. However, there appeared to be something following behind you that was standing on their toes. I shouted very loudly to warn you, but you did not react at all.”

“This black fog appears to be more dangerous than the red city. The city will cause one to go insane with despair, but this sea of blackness can make one lose oneself fully and completely.”

Looking at the shadows lurking in the darkness, Chen Ge held his hand over his heart. For some reason, he felt like he had experienced this some time ago. This was not his first encounter with the black sea.

“Makes one lose oneself? Is that what happened to Xiang Nuan? He has lost his way in this black fog?” Wen Qing’s eyes were overflowing with worry.

“As long as he still has not left this residential area, we have a chance of finding him.” Chen Ge shut the door that led to the roof and shoved the headless mud statuette into his coat pocket. “It’s time for us to leave.”

Returning to the first floor, Chen Ge had just reached the door to Uncle Huang’s room when the front door opened on its own. Uncle Huang, who had a serious hunchback, was standing at the door. It felt like he had been standing behind the door for some time already, waiting for Chen Ge to come.

“Did you know I will return to you?”

Uncle Huang did not answer. Instead, he turned and walked into the room. When he passed the dining table, he picked up the cleaver that was placed on top of it. The old man, who was thin as a stick, grabbed the cleaver and started to hack at the wall next to the bedroom. The blade cut into the wall, and the wall started to bleed. Strangely enough, as more cuts were left on the wall, more cuts also appeared on Uncle Huang’s body.

As the old man continued to work, the wall was cleaved open, and the old man's body was also covered in ghastly wounds. The twig-like hand no longer had the energy to even hold the cleaver anymore. In the end, Uncle Huang collapsed to the ground.

"What in the world is going on?" Xiao Sun put down Jia Fu and ran over to help Uncle Huang, but the latter appeared like he was at the end of his line already.

"To protect another person's secret, he has to suffer the torment of his conscience. You can say that the wall is practically made from his own flesh and blood." Chen Ge walked into the room while carrying the backpack. "Now that the murderers have all been exposed, Uncle Huang has no reason or excuse to help them protect the secrets."

Stopping beside the main bedroom, Chen Ge halted for several seconds before he continued moving forward. There were two bedrooms in this house. One was Uncle Huang's bedroom, and the other bedroom was blocked off by flesh and blood. This second bedroom was stuffed with dead bodies.

"Initially, the room was only occupied by the landlord's family members. The landlord did not wish to be separated from them, so he would occasionally come to visit them. But I did not expect the landlord to bring more and more 'people' to come and stay with his family." Using his literal last breath, Uncle Huang revealed the truth. "Perhaps from the very beginning, I should not have promised to help him guard this secret."

The scene inside the bedroom was straight out of hell. This was the location where all the sin at Jin Hwa Apartments Block A started. It was also the first secret that manifested there. Pushing away Xiao Sun, who was stunned beyond words, Chen Ge entered the bedroom and squeezed into the 'crowd'.

"I can tell that you believe the landlord is a good person, but have you considered the alternative? What if his family did not die from an accident?" Chen Ge managed to find the dead bodies of the landlord's family, but unfortunately, he failed to find anything useful on them. These carcasses were not the source of that horrible stench. "Just what exactly is the thing that has been radiating this stench that has troubled me for so long?"

Standing alone amid the 'crowd', what Chen Ge did next shocked the people around him.

He trained his focus by closing his eyes. Chen Ge used the talent gifted to him by the black phone, Spirit Sniff, and followed his instinct to start to search inside the bedroom. Slowly but surely, he followed the trail that would lead him to the source of the stench in this building. When he opened his eyes, Chen Ge saw the arm of a rag doll. The rag doll's arm was covered in blood and other dirty stains. Chen Ge had a feeling that the arm of this doll was not stuffed with a common material like cotton but probably trash and the carcasses of small animals.

"What is this?" Chen Ge was about to pick up the doll's arm when an extremely sense of danger arose from his mind. Then there was something like a shake, and the whole building shook underneath him. It felt like the trembling of an earthquake.

"Is this rag doll's broken arm the source of the horrible smell?"

Before Chen Ge could understand the importance behind it, he heard rapid knocking coming from outside.

Dong, dong, dong.

It was the apartment's front door. Someone was knocking against it from outside. Chen Ge stood up and stayed away from the broken arm. Instantly, the knocking on the door and the tremors disappeared.

"This thing is able to affect the entire residential area. When I was about to pick it up, something in my mind warned me of an imminent danger. This does not belong to Xiang Nuan. It probably belongs to the ghost fetus."

This situation had not happened in any of the other doors that Chen Ge had entered, so he could not afford to be too careful.

"Back when I was in Li Wan City, the shadow used this method to cut open Xiao Bu's body and kept them hidden in different buildings, making use of Xiao Bu's power to complete his own conspiracy. This is too similar to be a coincidence. This rag doll's severed arm is probably the same as what happened to Xiao Bu. The ghost fetus cut it up and placed different parts in different building as a foundation to steady this residential area."

Chen Ge memorized the location of the broken arm. He decided to leave immediately to go and look at the other buildings.

Walking out from the 'crowd', the stench lingered on Chen Ge's body.

The smell would probably follow him until he left the door.

“Moments earlier, there was someone knocking on the front door. Have they noticed the change that has happened inside the building?”

“We will know for sure when we go out.” Chen Ge turned to look at Xiao Sun. “Are you going to follow me and leave this place in search of the truth, or are you going to stay to wait for the other tenants from the other buildings to come find you?”

“How come it feels like you have not given me a choice in your statement at all?” Xiao Sun carried Uncle Huang to the bed. “I will go with you, but someone has to stay to look after them, right?”

He was talking about Uncle Huang and Jia Fu.

“Granny Lee can stay and do that.” Chen Ge placed Granny Lee’s bowl beside Uncle Huang. “Granny, I will leave them in your care. If we can find a way out, we will definitely come back to fetch all of you.”

He gestured for a long time before Granny Lee stopped following him.

“Is this old lady not really crazy?” Xiao Sun whispered softly beside Chen Ge.

“This whole act is just her way to survive inside the building. What is so surprising about that? There are more scammers and people acting crazy in real life compared to this place behind the door.” Chen Ge came to the entrance and found the key that would open it. “This stretch of road between the two buildings will be very dangerous; you will need to stay close to me. Grab hold of my elbows and do not let go no matter what.”

The key entered the keyhole. The spring sprung for a release, and the iron lock on the door was opened.

“Follow me and stay close!” Chen Ge took out Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer from his backpack and strode into the black fog without any hesitation. Xiao Sun and Wen Qing stayed close behind him. His extremely good sense came into use here. Before Chen Ge opened the door, he had already confirmed his destination through the window. The closest building to Jin Hwa Apartments Block A was a small building that was six stories tall. This building was situated right between Jin Hwa Apartments Block A and Block B. The location was strange indeed.

The residential area behind the door was different from how it was situated in real life. Even though the number buildings had not changed, the appearance and the overall location of them had shifted. A few of the smaller buildings that should be at Jiu Hong Apartments surrounded the two apartment buildings of Jin Hwa Apartments. They twisted and leaned like the Tower of Pisa. They teetered like dead bodies being arranged in grotesque poses. They had only walked a few meters when Chen Ge saw a human shadow not far away from them. The shadow did not appear to have noticed them.

“I think I hear someone calling my name,” Xiao Sun whispered.

“Shut up if you do not want to die.” Chen Ge answered without turning his head back. Grabbing the handle of the hammer, he walked faster and faster. The front door behind him was slowly swallowed up by the black fog. The buildings around them turned blurry. The world appeared to have been corrupted by the black fog, and everything appeared behind a sheen of blackness. Two different forces were applied on his elbows. Chen Ge could feel from this physical contact that both Wen Qing and Xiao Sun were extremely afraid; they held onto Chen Ge like he was their only hope. The distance between the two buildings was only several dozen meters, but it felt like they had been trekking forever.

“We are almost there!” With his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge managed to see the outline of the building’s front door. It was open and he could look into the building. The building before them appeared much older and tattered than Jin Hwa Apartments Block A. “This is one of the buildings from Jiu Hong Apartments. Even in real life, it is a much more chaotic and dirty place compared to Jin Hwa Apartments.”

Perhaps Wen Qing and Xiao Sun had helped distract the things in the black fog, but Chen Ge was not influenced that much by the monsters in the black fog this time. However, after he strode into the building, he noticed something was not right. “Are you two okay?”

Chen Ge’s elbow was bleeding slightly because of how hard Wen Qing was holding on to him. The woman’s face was blanched, and her eyes were hollowed. It looked like she had seen something incredibly horrible during the small journey earlier, and she was still too shock to complete a simple sentence.

It was even worse for Xiao Sun. Five new wounds appeared on his back. It looked like a claw had scratched him on his back, but strangely enough, the young man did not feel anything at all. Blood kept leaking. Xiao Sun's shirt was dyed red. The wounds were extremely shallow, but for some reason, no amount of bandaging would help stop the bleeding.

"When I turned back to look, I saw a person following behind us. He was so close to us, but I was unable to see his face. It was like he was not real but a coagulation of the black fog itself." Xiao Sun had a very close encounter with the monster inside the black fog, and his words provided Chen Ge with valuable clues.

"Do you feel anything coming from your back?"

"There is this pain, a pain that drills straight to the heart."

"Try your best to hold on." Chen Ge had no better ideas. He then turned to Wen Qing. "Are you feeling better? Did you see something scary in the fog as well?"

"I saw that above our heads..." The fear was palpable in Wen Qing's eyes. "Many human heads were floating. They were biting and chomping on a large shadow. A few of the heads spotted us, and they were looking at us through the fog..."

"Human heads? Can you be more specific?"

"I really can't explain it. Just the sight of them caused my heart to roll with revulsion and fear. If not for the fact that I was holding onto your elbow, I probably would have lost the courage to move any further." Wen Qing looked as pale as a sheet of paper.

"Both of you have seen something in the fog, but I saw nothing. That is strange because my five senses should be sharper than the two of you." Chen Ge took note of that peculiarity. "In any case, we are out of the fog. We should pay attention to this new building. The front door to this building is not locked, so the situation here might be wildly different from Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, you two had better be alert and stay close to me."

"Based on the walls and the corridors, this should be one of the buildings under Jiu Hong Apartments." Wen Qing held onto the wall and started to stand up. She lifted her head to look around her before she finally found the thing she was looking for. "Chen Ge, look over there. What is written on that sign?"

"I think it reads Jiu Hong Apartments Block One?"

"That sign is used to number the buildings of Jiu Hong Apartments. It was nailed there many years ago." Wen Qing was the estate agent for the apartments, so she had a clear understanding of these two residential areas in real life.

"Let's go in and take a look. Hopefully, this building is different from the one that I currently rent, and there are not that many strange neighbors." Xiao Sun felt like he had been 'inoculated' after experiencing so many things that night. Nothing was able to scare him now.

"I hope that there are people like that staying here. In the world behind the door, the tenants back there were considered easier to deal with already." Chen Ge walked ahead with Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer. Just as he entered the building, he was hit by a familiar smell. The smell was similar to the one radiating from the doll's broken arm. "A part of the rag doll's body should be hidden inside this building as well. What does the rag doll represent to the ghost fetus? Could it be that the ghost fetus has once possessed that rag doll?"

There was no light on the first floor of Jiu Hong Apartments Block One. It was incredibly quiet. It felt like the building was unoccupied. As they walked down the corridor, Chen Ge stopped suddenly after a few steps.

There were four rooms on each floor of this building. Chen Ge saw that in front of all four doors on this floor, there was a bowl of white rice with two chopsticks stuck vertically into each of them.

But that was not the strangest discovery. Chen Ge slowly and carefully moved closer to study them. He realized that the chopsticks that were stuck into the bowls of white rice were similar to the ones from Xiang Nuan's home.

A bowl of rice represents a family, and a pair of chopsticks represents a dead person?

Chen Ge looked at the four bowls of rice that were arranged neatly in the corridor, and he was instantly reminded of the bag of chopsticks hidden under Xiang Nuan's bed. The boy covered the floor of his bedroom with chopsticks, his favorite toy.

"Hey, don't you think the bowls are very similar to the one Granny Lee was holding the whole time?" Xiao Sun asked. With a wound on his back, he used some time before he squatted down next to Chen Ge.

"They are quite similar." Chen Ge thought further than Xiao Sun. He was reminded of the recording that they saw in the landlord's room on the tenth floor. Granny Lee's son, who was in his fifties, had thrown Granny Lee's black and white picture and the sacrificial food on the altar at Granny Lee and then moved to strangle Granny Lee.

"What is this trying to express? How come I have a very bad feeling about this?" Chen Ge avoided the bowls on the ground and stuck his body close to the gap of the door.

Chapter 1089 - Cemetery Building 2 in 1

1089 Cemetery Building 2 in 1

Chen Ge looked through the gap into the room. Even with the aid of Yin Yang Vision, he could not see anything clearly. He trained his ears to listen. There was no sound coming from inside the room. In fact, the whole building was eerily quiet.

“This feels so weird.”

An empty apartment building had bowls of white rice placed before every door. That would be an uncomfortable sight for anyone.

...

“This building does not appear to be prepared for living tenants.” Chen Ge pulled back his gaze. He had been through a lot and came to this conclusion based on his previous experience.

“If it is not meant for living tenants, do you mean it is meant for dead tenants?” Xiao Sun held his back with his hands. His sidled between Wen Qing and Chen Ge. His eyes occasionally wandered to other places as if something scary might jump out at him at any moment.

“If there are places for people to stay, there must be places for ghosts to stay. What is so strange about that? Ghosts need homes like we do.” Chen Ge turned to Wen Qing. “We are now in Jiu Hong Apartments. In your mind, what is the biggest difference between Jiu Hong Apartments and Jin Hwa Apartments?”

“Hmm. There is not much difference between them. If you really insist on one, Jin Hwa Apartments was built several years later than Jiu Hong Apartments. That is all.” Wen Qing tried to think of anything else.

“Try to jog your memory and dig deeper. Maybe there is something that you have forgotten. There is no detail that is too small.” Jiu Hong Apartments obviously had a bigger problem than Jin Hwa Apartments. As dangerous as Jin Hwa Apartments was, at least it was occupied by living humans. This building from Jiu Hong Apartments was basically empty and quiet. However, Chen Ge was sure that was only its appearance.

“Jiu Hong Apartments was one of the earliest residential area to be built at the old city. The buildings here are very old, and the buildings need constant repair. The rooms have many problems. Normally, there aren’t any people who are interested in renting a room here, so I rarely bring people here for a tour.”

“The rooms have many problems? What do you mean by that?”

“Things like water leaks, bad lighting, sound pollution, and so on.”

“Wait a minute. If there aren’t many tenants like you said, why is there a sound pollution? Who is making all that noise?” Chen Ge’s one question stumped Wen Qing speechless.

“Er... Our company did not really give us a clear explanation on that. At the time, our boss did come over to investigate, but he failed to find the source of the commotion, and then the issue was kinda forgotten.”

“Your company sure is a courageous one. Now I suspect whether you guys do business with the dead as well.” Chen Ge had been to Jiu Hong Apartments in real life. Even in the morning, the place was uncomfortably eerie and secluded.

“Don’t make that kind of joke. We are serious housing agency.” Wen Qing’s face paled. She seemed to be reminded of something. “The first batch of tenants that lived at Jiu Hong Apartments all moved away. The company did not really know why. Most of them left without saying a word. the company was unable to contact them to get an explanation at all. That is why most of the rooms in Jiu Hong Apartments were left empty, and that was related to the low number of tenants that we currently have.”

“The old tenants that moved away have not returned?”

“Most of them left in the middle of the night and in a hurry. They did not even take their furniture with them.”

“Does that feel like a normal moving away to you?” Chen Ge was quite speechless.

“Once this strange incident was exposed to the public, who would dare come and rent their apartments anymore? At least I would never do so!” Xiao Sun covered his back. He was one of the victims.

“Now, you have piqued my interest regarding your agency’s boss. Just what kind of person would be brave enough to take over Jin Hwa Apartments and Jiu Hong Apartments? If my memory serves me right, your company’s name is Jiu Hong Housing Agency as well. Is your boss somehow related to Jiu Hong Apartments?” Chen Ge wanted to get some questions clarified before he started the investigation.

“Our boss is an impressive businessman. His surname is Jiang, and he has a lot of real estate under his name. They are not only in Jiujiang, but there are some in Xin Hai as well. Jiu Hong Housing Agency is one of his earliest projects, but for now, he has basically allowed it to survive on its own. He will only transfer some money to help the agency when the agency is in serious financial trouble. Most of the time, he just let us be.” In Wen Qing’s mind, their boss was an amazing person.

“Jiu Hong Housing Apartments is an investment that is leaking money, so why would a sensible businessman keep maintaining a place like this? Is there a reason behind it? Is there something he wants to hide?” Chen Ge asked. “What is your boss’ name?”

“Jiang Jiu. He is also one of the biggest shareholders in Eastern Jiujiang’s futuristic theme park. He is a partner with many big companies.”

“Jiang Jiu?” When Chen Ge heard this name, many things started to click. The so-called Jiu Hong Housing Agency was a plot between Jiang Jiu and the ghost fetus. Over this past decade, they had probably been selecting their tenants and assigned them to fixed rooms. Now that he thought about it, perhaps the boss of Jin Hwa Corps was related to the ghost fetus as well. After all, the landlord probably slowly spiraled into insanity due to the influence by the ghost fetus.

“Boss Jiang is a very nice person. He was the one who offered me a job and provided me with free accommodation. Do you know how difficult it is to find a home in a city like Jiujiang?” Wen Qing’s praise toward Jiang Jiu kept pouring out. The woman was oblivious to the fact that there was a price to all the 'kindness' that she had received in her life. All the clues had started to link together. Jiu Hong Apartments was specially prepared for Xiang Nuan. This place was probably the warm bed for the boy who was the most suitable candidate for the ghost fetus to take over.

"Was it the ghost fetus' intention for that old fox to build the futuristic theme park at Jiujiang, or has he found some hidden secret through the ghost fetus and thus wanted to build a theme park in Jiujiang?" Chen Ge had already memorized the name Jiang Jiu in his mind. He did not wish to do anything to Jiang Jiu. He just wanted to go and meet this Jiang Jiu after he left this door. "Since the man has the capability to cooperate with the ghost fetus, maybe I can persuade him to cooperate with me. No matter what, I will have to go meet the man to hear his side of the story."

After uncovering these details, Chen Ge had a new understanding of the building he was in. Xiang Nuan was different from other children, at least the ghost fetus thought so. "We have stayed here long enough. We should prepare to go upstairs."

The staircase was not locked. However, strangely enough the black fog outside was unable to roll in. It was as if each building was protected by some kind of unique power.

"One of the rag doll's broken body parts must be hidden here as well." Chen Ge led Wen Qing and Xiao Sun to the second floor. This floor looked even more dilapidated than the first floor. Paper money littered the ground, and an inverted 'Joy', written calligraphically on white paper, was pasted at the turn of the staircase.

"It does not look like any of the rooms are conducting a funereal ceremony, but how come there are bowls of white rice placed before every door? Who is the rice for?" The pair of chopsticks was placed right in the middle of the white rice. It was unclear whether they were meant for the 'people' inside the room or the 'people' outside the room. Other than the calligraphy, there was not much different between the first and second floor. Even the scratch marks on the doors looked the same.

For the sake of security, Chen Ge still gave each door a slight push. Most of the doors were wooden door. Some of the locks had already loosened, so the gap between the frame and the door could get very wide. From left to right, the numbering for the rooms on the second floor was 201 to 204. When Chen Ge pushed on the door for Room 201, he did not feel anything, but when he reached the door of Room 203, he started to sense that something was out of place.

He tried to push the door as hard as he could, but the door refused to budge. But when he stopped pushing, the door would slightly vibrate. It was as if when he applied pressure on the door, there was someone on the other side pushing back. But when he stopped, the person inside the room also stopped pushing. Chen Ge took out Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer from his backpack as he slowly found his way to the door of Room 204. This door was old and looked like it might break with the slightest touch. The surface of the door was filled with the muddy handprints of children and unclear scratch marks. There was a gap about two centimeters between the bottom of the door and the floor. The door itself was already loose. It looked like it could not close fully.

"Do not come over here. Keep an eye out on the staircase. We do not want to get surrounded and have our exit cut off."

After Chen Ge said that, he slowly moved to the side of the door. He reached out to slowly push the bowl on the ground aside. When he was halfway through this, he suddenly knelt to the ground and looked through the gap on the ground!

A pair of pupil-less eyes flashed by, and then a curtain of black hair disappeared from underneath the gap.

"There is someone inside!" Chen Ge was not sure whether that was a tenant or not, but his instinct told him that it was not a living human. It might not even be something that was created from Xiang Nuan's memories.

"Big brother, can you not scare people like that?" Xiao Sun jumped from the scare earlier. It tore open the wounds on his back, causing them to sear with pain.

"Shush, be quiet." Chen Ge stood up again. He took out the comic from his backpack to take a look, and then his grip on the hammer slowly tightened. His employees still had not awakened, but the ghosts had already started to show their presence in the building. This was the situation that he was most worried about.

Ta ta ta...

While Chen Ge was contemplating what to do next, a strange sound came from the stairs. It sounded like a child running down the corridor, but the sound soon disappeared.

“That sounds like it came from the top floor. Shall we go take a look?” Xiao Sun looked as unwilling as possible, but he still uttered that suggestion.

“There’s no need to hurry. We need to tackle this step by step. If there is extreme danger hiding on the top floor, we will have little to no chance of escaping.” Chen Ge did not choose to leave. He gripped the doorknob and gave it a few powerful shakes. After he realized the door was unable to open, he aimed at the door lock and gave it a powerful kick!

Bang!

The door fell open from the force.

The person who had been lurking at the gap had disappeared.

“I do not mean to disturb you. Please forgive my intrusion.” Chen Ge slowly entered the room, dragging the hammer.

“Be careful. Make sure to not touch that bowl of white rice.” This was the first time that Chen Ge had entered a room in Jiu Hong Apartments. The room size was much smaller than the room in Jin Hwa Apartments, and the place looked rather abandoned. It did not look like it had been occupied for a very long time.

“Chen Ge, take a look at this.” Wen Qing pointed at the calendar that hung on the back of the door. It was marked with crosses using a red marker. It looked quite ghastly. “The calendar is not marked with a year, and a large part of it is missing, but a few of the dates are jotted with some reminders...”

There was no light in the room, so Wen Qing took out her phone to use as a flashlight. When she leaned closer to the calendar, she suddenly let out a scream.

“What’s wrong?”

“There... there’s hair.” Wen Qing’s phone dropped to the group. The flashlight hit Chen Ge and Xiao Sun’s faces, turning their faces white.

“I am so sorry.” Wen Qing apologized as she hurried to pick up the phone, but for some reason, the scene from earlier was seared into her mind. Chen Ge and Xiao Sun were staring blankly at her with their pale and white faces. "They appear to be the same kind of person..."

Xiao Sun did not hear her because he was looking around the room for clues, but Chen Ge heard Wen Qing clearly. He saw Wen Qing's shaking shoulders, but he did not walk over to comfort her.

"Be careful not to stray too far away from me. The three of us must ensure that none of us leave each other's sight."

After giving that reminder, Chen Ge started to search the living room, Xiao Sun entered the kitchen while Wen Qing held the wall and slowly approached the bedroom. The wooden bed had a mattress that was moldy from the years. There appeared to be something hidden under the cover since it was bulging. The bed was close to the wall, and a white mosquito net hung at the four corners.

"I have a mosquito net at my place as well. When Xiang Nuan first saw it, he refused to even get in. He kept crying and making a fuss." The thought of Xiang Nuan calmed Wen Qing down. She entered the bedroom and opened the closet in the room. The broken closet had a few articles of clothing that were seriously moth infested.

"I have not seen this style of clothing before. Are these cheongsams?" She reached into the closet, wishing to take one out for a closer look. When her fingertips touched the fabric of the clothes, Wen Qing was about to take it out, but five fingers suddenly reached out from a corner inside the closet and grabbed her hand!

The color drained from her face immediately. Before Wen Qing could scream for help, the hand had already disappeared.

"Chen..." Wen Qing wanted to call for help, but she suddenly realized that she had lost the ability to speak. She slowly lowered her head to look, and she saw a pair of white hands strangling her neck. Strange noises were coming from the closet before her. The clothes that hung together were slowly pushed away, and a head of black hair poked out from the gap. It was followed by a pale face that slowly reached toward Wen Qing. Unable to speak, Wen Qing's body was slowly dragged into the closet by the pair of hands. Wen Qing stared into the pupil-less eyes, and all she could see was the reflection of her own face twisted in a fearful grimace.

Bang!

Just as her body was about to be dragged into the closet, the closet door was suddenly slammed shut. Wen Qing blinked, and she jumped from the shock. Then she realized that she was still standing before the closet, and her hands were holding the closet doors open.

“Are you alright?” Chen Ge dragged the hammer and entered the bedroom.

“I... I am fine.” Wen Qing shook her head. She could not tell if what had happened earlier was just her mind playing tricks on her or if it really did happen. After entering the black fog, she felt that there was something wrong with her body. For example, it appeared like she was the only one who was able to see the human heads in the black fog.

“You do not look fine at all.” Chen Ge gave Wen Qing a reassuring squeeze on her shoulder. “Do not keep these things to yourself. Tell me everything you know and saw. It might help us.”

Many horror movies had similar plots. One of the group felt that something was wrong, but when questioned, the character would refuse to say anything. That was a hidden bomb waiting to explode. Chen Ge would not allow something like that to happen to him. Once there was something off, he would need to get to the bottom of the truth.

With Chen Ge pressing her, Wen Qing finally came out with the truth. “I do not know what really happened. I believe, in a daze, I tried to open the closet. There was a pale face hidden inside. His eyes had no pupils, and he slowly squeezed out from between the clothes. He strangled me with his hands, and I was unable to call for help.”

“The eyes did not have any pupils?” Chen Ge nodded.

“Do you have any clue of what that was?”

“Not really. I just thought his method of scaring people is worth learning. It is an interesting experience.” Chen Ge looked at the closet next to them. “We will call him the closet ghost for now. Is he still inside the closet?”

“I think so.”

“What did you do earlier to make it come out?”

“I only opened the door and reached into the middle of the clothes. Then, it appeared.”

Just as Wen Qing finished, Chen Ge opened the closet and reached into the middle of the clothes.

“Just like that?”

“Yes.”

“How come he is not coming out to meet me?” Chen Ge rummaged through the clothes inside the closet. He did not find the closet ghost he was looking for, but he did find other clues in the pockets of these old clothes.

He found several bedsheets that were torn apart, and they were covered in words written in blood.

Chapter 1090 - Again and Again 2 in 1

1090 Again and Again 2 in 1

“It has come again today. It still stood at the door. I have no idea what it wanted to do. It seemed like it wanted to come in.

“It looks like my dead child. At least from the back, they look the same.

“My family saw it as well, it was not an illusion; it really exists. But why does it always face away from us? Which family does it come from, and why does it appear at the staircase every time at midnight?

...

“My husband said that he would go out to take a look, but he never returned after leaving the house. He has abandoned me and run away on his own.

“What should I do? It was getting closer and closer to me. It always leaned on the door and window, and eventually, it would come into the house.

“After I woke up, I saw it appear in our living room. It did not seem to notice me. It was standing in the middle of the living room, facing away from me.

“I finally saw its face. Why would a rag doll pace around my house? What is it looking for? Why does it come to my house? What is its purpose for coming here?

“It is too disgusting. I have never seen such a disgusting doll in my life. Its arms are filled with trash and bodies of small birds. Its stomach has a reeking heart, its face is sewn together from different skin, and its legs were bent, stuffed with bones that it picked from who knows where. It was radiating this horrible smell. The pitiable face makes it look that much scarier!

“I realized there is one thing that is very strange about this doll. Its shadow is not the shadow of a normal doll. When the light hits it, the shadow that is reflected is a boy that is much taller than the doll itself.

“Everyone hates it. Does the doll not know that? Why does it refuse to go? Why does it appear like it is trying to endear itself to me? This is crazy!

“It seemed to have treated this place as its own home, this blasted doll!

“I am not its mother, and I am not its family!

“I have to chase it away no matter what! I must!

“I have torn it into pieces, stuffed it inside the trash bags, and buried them in the ground. I thought that was the end of everything, but when I woke up, it had appeared in my room again!

“I already do not have a family life—why does this strange creature refuse to leave me be?

“I have sent it away again and again. But he started to appear at various places at my house. Inside the closet, under the bed, inside the cover, underneath the desk—it could be hiding at any places inside my house!

“What do I need to do to chase it away!”

The blood handwriting at the end had become completely twisted and hard to read. The handwriting was mixed with blood vessels and fingernails. It showed that the mental condition of the writer was at the edge of insanity. In fact, Chen Ge could easily imagine a woman with disheveled hair, biting on her nails, tearing at the cover, writing these sentences with her bloody fingers. Chen Ge moved to the last bloody sheet, and the content caused his spine to tingle in discomfort.

“I’ve finally understood what it wants. I am not its mother, and it does not want me to be its mother; he merely wanted to crawl into my stomach. When I woke up in the middle of the night, dazed, I saw the smiling face in my stomach. It was then that I realize I probably will never be able to send it away anymore.”

The blood messages on the bedsheet ended there. Just by reading them, Wen Qing beside Chen Ge felt extremely uncomfortable. Probably because they were both women, she could empathize further with the desperation and pain of the owner of the house.

“Are these bloody messages trying to warn us that the monster inside this building is actually a rag doll?” Even though Xiao Sun always found himself with his foot in his mouth, the young man was not dumb. Especially when they were in danger, his brain was able to work exceptionally fast.

“I believe so.” Chen Ge looked at the bloody sentences, and his eyes stared at one of the many statements—‘Its shadow is not the shadow of a normal doll. When the light hits it, the shadow that is reflected is a boy that is much taller than the doll itself.’

When he saw these few words, a speculation arose in Chen Ge’s heart.

The ghost that possessed the rag doll might be my own shadow. After he escaped from me, he became the shadow of this rag doll. But the rag doll itself had no consciousness. In fact, the rag doll might be the body that he had made for himself.

Inside Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, the rag doll’s broken arm was the source of all the stench that lingered in the building, but it was also possible that it was due to the presence of the broken arm that the building was safe from the infiltration of the black fog.

The rag doll should be a body that the ghost fetus had once used in the past. Based on the description on these bloody messages, he had gone through quite a bit of trouble for the sake of this ugly body that he had made for himself.

Behind Fang Yu’s door, Chen Ge was given a glimpse of a small part of the ghost fetus’ past. The ghost fetus then was completely different from the ghost fetus now. The shadow took one step after another to become a Demon God, but it had now completely lost itself, and the sign of its former self was no longer there. The bloody messages recorded quite clearly that the rag doll did not do anything to harm the tenants inside the building at the beginning. But its presence was in itself a type of ‘sin’. It was because the owner kept trying to throw him away that the rag doll took revenge. That seemed the inevitable outcome.

“Jin Hwa Apartments recorded Xiang Nuan’s life, and the ghost fetus’ past might be buried among Jiu Hong Apartments.” Chen Ge’s shadow first made its appearance at Western Jiujiang's haunted house. Some clues as to what happened next to the shadow might be found in these few buildings. Chen Ge did not move to close the closet door; instead, he took out all the clothes from inside the closet. He did not see the monster. It seemed to have left the room.

"There are children's clothes inside the closet, and there are three pair of shoes on the shoe rack, two large pairs and one small pair. All of these signs point toward a boy once lived inside this apartment." Chen Ge placed the bloody bedsheet on the ground. "The tenants at Room 204 once had a child. That was quite clear from the messages that were left on the sheet. After their child died, this strange doll started to appear. The rag doll did not appear to wish to harm them initially. If anything, it seemed to hope that it could live together with them."

"Do you think that was possible? Based on the description, the rag doll was a scary monster—who would want to stay with that kind of thing?" Xiao Sun could not wrap his head around what Chen Ge was saying.

"Both you and the owner of the house thought the rag doll was a monster, but have you tried to consider this from the rag doll's perspective? Do you think it will see itself as a monster?" Chen Ge pointed at the bloody words on the sheets. "Bones in its legs, heart in its stomach, and it even has a face albeit one that is sewn together. This proves that the doll has been trying its best to mimic a human with the only resources made available to him."

"How come it just sounds scarier when you put it that way?"

"The rag doll wants to be a person; it desires to have a life like a normal being. It desires after family and love, but he has greatly underestimated the difficulty of becoming a human." Chen Ge was being very rational. "It had no idea what a human being was, and it had even less of an idea what it represented to those around him. Actually, you could see it as a child, but due to the seduction by the demon, it had become a very scary child."

"No matter what, it is the truth that he eventually killed the owner of this house. I do not care what his intention was. If anything, I feel like he has had horrible intentions from the very beginning. I even suspect that the child of the owner's family was killed by this doll." Wen Qing's face had some color returned to it, but she still did not wish to look at the bloody messages any longer.

"I admit that is one of the possibilities as well." Chen Ge folded the bedsheet and carried it in his hands. "We have searched most of this house already. It is time to move on to the other houses."

"Are you planning to take those tattered bedsheet pieces with you?" Wen Qing and Xiao Sun asked at the same time. "The thing is such a taboo. Why don't we put it back where we found it?"

"Okay." Chen Ge had limited space in his backpack. He unwillingly placed the bedsheet pieces back into the closet.

I cannot use the comic now. When the employees wake up, I'll have time to come back.

The ghost inside Room 204 did not show itself. The room appeared like it had been abandoned for a very long time. After walking out from Room 204, Wen Qing who was the first to step out from the door halted at the door.

"What's wrong?"

"There is blood on the ground..."

The few looked at the spot that was lit up by Wen Qing's flashlight on her phone. A pool of fresh blood was left at the front door of Room 204. When they were conducting their search inside the house, it appeared like there was something standing at the door observing them, and the thing had stood there for quite a long time.

"There are blood traces on the wall as well, look! There are so many handprints!" Wen Qing pointed at the wall next to the door. There were many handprints that looked like they were left behind by a baby. It looked like a baby had rapidly crawled along the wall earlier.

"There sure are a lot of strange things inside this building." Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision to follow the trail of bloody handprints until he reached the mouth of the staircase. "It has gone up to the third floor?"

"Should we continue up? How about we return to Jin Hwa Apartments' Block A, lock the front door so that the people from the outside cannot come in, and wait for the sun to rise?"

"What if the sun will never come up?" Chen Ge ignored Xiao Sun. He moved faster and entered the staircase directly. A faded scent of mildew and some stench started to permeate the air. The building was still immensely quiet, but this quiet was different from the normal quiet. It felt like the spirit of the building had been hollowed out by some unknown object, and the souls of the previous tenants that had stayed at this place had all been sucked away.

With his sharp five senses, Chen Ge felt this the most intensely. It felt as if the moment he stepped into this building, his soul would involuntarily be trapped forever. It did not take that long to move from the second floor to the third floor, but the temperature around them had suddenly dropped tremendously. Banknotes littered the ground, and every single room had the inverted ‘joy’ calligraphically written on white paper pasted on their front door. The old doors did not have the traditional picture of Chinese door guardians but were pasted with two white pieces of paper.

“The door guardians are used to protect the house from evil spirits, so what’s the purpose of these two pieces of white paper?”

More questions awaited Chen Ge. The lock of Room 301 was completely broken; the door could not be closed at all. The door was hanging open slightly. Outside the door was a bowl of white rice with a pair of chopsticks in it, and other than that, there was a copper basin that was filled with gray dust. To enter the house, one had to walk over the copper basin. That in itself was nothing, but Chen Ge managed to see quite clearly with Yin Yang Vision that the following was written at the edge of the copper basin.

‘Those who walk over this basin will receive the torment of the mountain of blades and the torture of the sea of fire. They will have their eyes gouged out and their heart punctured.’

Chen Ge himself did not believe in these things, but now that he was inside the world behind another person’s door, that did not matter much. The key was whether the door pusher believed in such things.

“Is this some kind of curse?”

The door was left open, but Chen Ge did not dare enter it brashly. He merely pushed open the door and peered inside to look. The interior of the room had signs of being burnt. Banknotes that were half burnt covered the ground. There were four small incense burners placed in the four corners of the room. The pots holding the burners had a very strange appearance; they had the shape of a kneeling man, like they were supplicating themselves for their sin.

“Do any of you understand what this is supposed to represent?” Wen Qing asked Xiao Sun and Chen Ge. She stood at the door with a nervous expression on her face.

“It is perhaps some kind of exorcism ritual.” Xiao Sun looked at the strange décor of the room and had no intention of entering the place at all.

“No matter what it was for, they failed in the end.” Chen Ge pointed at the lock of the door that had fallen completely off. “Look at the spot where the lock is connected to the frame. It was obviously cracked by brute force. Not only did the people inside the house fail to chase away the ghost, they completely angered the ghost.”

He moved the copper basin to the corner of the wall.

“This way, we won’t need to step over the basin to get into the room. If this thing is any use, we can consider taking it with us. Whether it’s placed in the middle of the corridor or at the entrance of any room, it will serve the same purpose.”

Neither Xiao Sun nor Wen Qing knew how to reply. Both of them thought that did not sound that appropriate, but after they gave it more thought, they realized that what Chen Ge said was quite logical. After they entered Room 301, for safety’s sake, Chen Ge did not have them split up. They moved as a group into all the rooms.

“There is a lot of copper money hidden under the sofa, vermilion dust inside the closet, the incense burner pots in the corners, and a trail of salt by the edge of the wall. These are all used to chase away evil spirits.” Chen Ge was very familiar with these things. When he first obtained the black phone, he had scrolled through many different kinds of supernatural forums. In the end, he concluded that ninety percent of these things were not useful; the remaining ten percent might be useful, but the set up was so complicated that he had not tested them himself.

The three walked through the living room, but they all stopped when they reached the door to the bedroom. The wooden door before them was filled with the handprint of a small child. It felt like a child was standing outside the bedroom door, slamming his palms on the door again and again at midnight. Chen Ge slowly pushed the door open. There was a king-sized bed in the room. The bed was covered in black pills that appeared like some kind of medicine, but they were arranged in a way where the shape of a human was hollowed out in the middle of the bed.

A few pieces of yellowed paper were left around the bed. Some words were written unevenly on them.

“The first time I saw it, it was outside the window. It was leaning on the edge of the window, but I soon remembered that I live on the third floor.

“The second time I saw it, it was behind my front door. I did not notice it when I opened the door, but when I closed the door, it followed me into the room and just stood there behind the door.

“The third time I saw it, it was lying in a pile of my baby’s toys. It was mimicking the actions of my child. It was also at that moment that I threw the dirty doll away.

“The fourth time I saw it was the night I threw it away. I heard the sound coming from the living room. When I opened the bedroom door, I saw it sitting in the living room, playing with our child’s toy. My husband and I were so afraid. We switched on the light and tried to burn it with fire. We then threw the remains of this cursed doll at the heap of trash.”

“The fifth time I saw it, it was on the staircase. It pushed me from behind me. Then came the sixth time... the seventh time... The monster had decided to haunt me. I did not know what to do to make it go away.”

The words appeared to be the house owner’s call for help, but unfortunately, from the result, she had clearly failed in the end. Chen Ge picked up the yellowed paper and glanced at the cluster of bloody handprints on the bedroom door. The image of the scary rag doll slowly surfaced in his mind.

Chapter 1091 - Why Are You Crying? 2 in 1

1091 Why Are You Crying? 2 in 1

“Is the killer the rag doll again? Is it possible that everyone in this building was killed by that rag doll?” Wen Qing also read the content of the yellowed papers alongside Chen Ge. “Why would the monster do something like that?”

“Why, you ask?” Chen Ge turned back to look into Wen Qing’s eyes. He thought about it and finally decided against revealing the connection between the ghost fetus and Xiang Nuan. Wen Qing had no idea that the monster that she was talking about was actually related to Xiang Nuan. When the three were congregated inside the bedroom, having these conversations, the bedroom itself started to slowly change.

The human shape that was hollowed out on the bed started to sink like someone was lying on top of it. The stains were moving. A child’s handprints appeared on the bedsheet, and the handprints were slowly approaching Wen Qing. The three of them were all standing equidistant to the bed, but the handprints appeared to be only interested in Wen Qing.

...

“No matter what, do not move.” The set of handprints finally stopped before Wen Qing. The room was eerily quiet, and everyone held their breath.

About ten seconds later, Wen Qing opened her lips to speak. Her eyes were overflowing with fear. “I feel like someone is standing in front of me. Really, there is something standing in front of me!”

Taking out Doctor Skull Cracker's hammer, Chen Ge stared at the bedsheet before Wen Qing. The child's handprints had stopped moving. They stopped right before Wen Qing.

"Ah!" Without any warning, Wen Qing suddenly screamed. She staggered backward in a hurry, and her body knocked into the wall. At the same time, the handprints on the bed started to move away. They crawled rapidly toward the window.

"Just now, someone was touching my face. The hands were very cold!" Wen Qing's expression did not look like he was lying.

"You can sense its presence?" Even with the aid of his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge could not see anything, so he was surprised that Wen Qing could sense the thing's presence.

"Yes, I cannot hear it or even see it. I do not smell anything out of place in the air, but I just felt there was something standing before me earlier!" This kind of experience was extremely rare, and it was little wonder that Wen Qing was in such a flustered state. "Could neither of you sense it? Why would it come after me? Could it be that it has targeted me as its mother? Just like the two women who were brutally murdered?"

"You are a unique existence to it." Chen Ge also had no idea whether he should reveal the ghost fetus' backstory to Wen Qing or not. "Ever since we left Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, you kept sensing and seeing these strange things, and they include the human heads floating in the black fog, not to mention the owner of the handprint..."

"But Xiao Sun saw those things as well. Didn't he say that there was someone following us along the way when we were moving through the black fog?" Wen Qing slowly calmed down. She raised her arm to lightly touch her face, the feel the spot where she was caressed by the strange creature.

"He is an original tenant behind the door, so it is not that unusual for him to see these things. But you come from outside the door, yet you are able to see more of these things than I do. Now, there is something very strange about that."

It was not that Chen Ge suspected that Wen Qing had done something bad. There was just this question that had been bugging him ever since he entered this door. Why did Wen Qing not exist in the world behind Xiang Nuan's door?

The world behind the door was made according to the door pusher's memory. The process of creating the world was not something the door pusher could control, and the deeper the impression the door pusher had of someone, the greater the chance of them appearing behind their door. Basically, all of the tenants in Jin Hwa Apartments had made their appearance. As Xiang Nuan's mother and caretaker, it made little to no sense that Wen Qing had not appeared behind Xiang Nuan's door.

Could it be that Xiang Nuan has sent the Wen Qing from inside the door outside the door, or has the ghost fetus killed or taken control over Wen Qing inside the door to accomplish his own goal?

Seeing how long Chen Ge had not said anything, Wen Qing opened her lips to ask, "What are you thinking about?"

The only person whom she could trust in this place was Chen Ge.

"If, one day, you realize that your child is different from what you imagined him to be, would you still love him unconditionally?" Chen Ge asked with heavy insinuation.

"Of course, no matter what happens to him, I will still love him because he is my child," Wen Qing answered without hesitation. She did not even need a few seconds to think about it.

"Even if he turned into the monster that you were so fearful of earlier?" When Chen Ge tossed out that question, he kept his eyes on Wen Qing to study the change to the woman's expression.

"Even if he has turned into a monster, it does not change the fact that he is still my son." Wen Qing was confused. "Why would you keep asking me these strange questions? Do you suspect that Xiang Nuan is the monster inside this building? Impossible! You have not interacted with him before. He is actually a very nice kid."

"Yes, I believe that he is a very nice kid." Chen Ge had seen the ghost fetus' earliest memory in Fang Yu's world. In Western Jiujiang's haunted house, after the young Chen Ge fell asleep, the shadow was playing alone with the toys inside the bedroom. The loneliness that the shadow showcased was gut wrenching indeed. Initially, the shadow was pure and innocent, but after leaving Chen Ge, it had started to change. Essentially, Chen Ge's shadow had died, and in its place was a ghost that was known as the ghost fetus.

"Let's move on to the next room. The earlier we can find the remaining body parts of the rag doll, the easier we will be able to mount an escape from this place.” Chen Ge did not challenge what Wen Qing said. He did not want to linger on this topic for too long.

“Hey, don’t suddenly change the topic! Why did you ask me all those questions? You have to give me an explanation before we leave!” Wen Qing chased after Chen Ge, but the two of them stopped once they stepped out from the bedroom. The incense burner pots in the four corners had all been knocked over, the bronze basin was flipped over, and the burnt banknotes fluttered in the air.

“Someone has been in here; they were following behind us.”

“If you ask me, the chances of that someone being a ghost are much higher. We’d better leave this place as soon as we can.”

Chen Ge did not explain further. He walked through the living room and looked out at the corridor. There were more bloody handprints on the walls, a sign that the monster had been crawling up and down the corridor.

It was a child’s handprints that appeared on the bed earlier, and outside the room, there are these bloody handprints. They are markedly different though, so do they belong to two different ghosts? Are there two children’s ghosts inside this building, or is there a child’s ghost inhabiting each room?

Behind the door, Jiu Hong Apartments was occupied by dead people; they were the original tenant of this world behind the door. How many of them were there in total? Probably only the ghost fetus knew the answer to that question. The bloody handprints wandered around the third floor before they led a trail back to the fourth floor. It was as if the monster was playing hide and seek with Chen Ge.

“Do we still need to go after it?” Xiao Sun asked with a bitter face. This time, he was really afraid. Chen Ge used his action to answer Xiao Sun. With his eyes staring at the bloody handprints, Chen Ge moved toward the fourth floor.

On the staircase that led from the third floor to the fourth floor, there were many chopped up toys and the carcasses of an exorbitant number of bugs. Most of the bugs were indiscernible because their bodies had been cut up too small. The banknotes stuck to the bottom of their shoes and the air around them felt heavy. There was the sound of something rolling on the ground echoing in their ears.

The three finally arrived at the fourth floor. This floor was not that different from the previous floors, but it looked even more abandoned. The calligraphy on the wall was half torn, but the focal points were the bowls of white rice on the ground. The white rice placed outside the doors of the rooms on the fourth floor had been eaten. The chopsticks stuck out at awkward angles, and the rice littered the ground around the bowls.

“Someone really ate them?”

“The rice inside the bowls is for the ghosts. The sign that they have been eaten proves that this floor probably has the highest amount of ghost.” Chen Ge kept his eyes glued to the bloody handprints, they disappeared into the deepest room at the fourth floor. “If anything dangerous happens later, do not panic and run away from me. Staying close to me is the safest option.”

After giving them the reminder, Chen Ge walked the room at the end of the fourth floor, Room 404. The bowl of white rice placed before this door was almost finished. There were only some bits of moldy white rice left inside the bowl. Holding the door handle, before Chen Ge could apply any force, the door opened on its own.

“It’s not locked?” He slowly pulled the door open, but he stopped halfway. There was a child wearing a red dress sitting inside the living room. She was facing away from the door and facing the window. White clothes were wrapped around her body.

“A Red Specter?” Chen Ge was very sensitive to the color red. When he saw the glimpse of the red dress, he stopped moving immediately. Before his employees woke up, he had no power to deal with a Red Specter head on.

“What is a Red Specter?” Xiao Sun tapped Chen Ge on his shoulder. “Why are you so stiff? What’s happening?”

“Shush, keep quiet.” Chen Ge stood for a while at the door, and then he realized that he was merely overthinking it. It was not a Red Specter; it was just a ‘girl’ wearing a red dress. After entering the room, Chen Ge looked around. The room was covered in bloody handprints. Once he lifted his head, he saw that the whole ceiling colored in red fingerprints as if the monster would crawl all over the room once night fell.

“Is it okay for me to stay outside and not enter this place?” Xiao Sun resisted entering this horrifying location. Honestly, Wen Qing was feeling the same way. For a normal person, this room was indeed a bit too gory for their taste.

“It is the safest for you to stick with me. Have you forgotten about the ghost inside the closet in Room 204? Remember that they are always watching us. The moment we get separated, they will come after us immediately and make us stay here with them forever.”

Chen Ge took out Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer and slowly approached the girl who was sitting facing away from the front door. He could not sense any living presence from the girl. The girl was not a living person, and she was not a Red Specter. If one had to describe her, she was more like a piece of art.

Walking to the girl’s side, Chen Ge’s expression turned severe. He had no idea how to describe this girl. She looked no different from a normal human except that her soul had been sucked out of her body. All that was left of her was an empty shell. The girl’s body was fixed to the chair by the bundle of white cloth. Her head lolled back against the chair. Bloody white rice stuck to the corner of her lips. Her eyes were widely open, but there was no spirit at all in her eyes. If anything, they felt like two dark, empty holes.

“What’s your name?” Chen Ge tried talking to the girl, but the latter gave her no response. Compared to a normal person, she was more like a doll that was made from a living person. But this doll was much cuter and livelier than the rag doll that was made by the ghost fetus.

“Is this child one of the tenants of Jiu Hong Apartments?” Wen Qing also walked into the room. “Should we untie her? Maybe she can tell us something.”

“We should search the room for other clues first. We can decide whether to do that after ensuring there is no danger lying around this place.” Chen Ge found nothing on the girl, so he turned to start to search around the room. The room was very dilapidated. The furniture had seen better days. The room was inhospitable; the condition was even worse than Room 301 and Room 204.

“Why is this room filled with bloody handprints? Something must have happened to the ghost fetus inside this room.” His gaze scanned the whole room, and Chen Ge slowly noticed some problems. So far, of all the rooms they had visited, Room 404 was the only room that did not have a sofa. The owner was so poor that there was not much furniture, and what they had was just hand me downs, probably purchased from flea markets. Strangely enough, though, while the homeowner appeared to have difficulty keeping their everyday life afloat, there was a disproportionate number of toys in the room. They were so many different kinds, and they came in different variations.

“There is not even an electric fan in this place, but the owner has splurged so much on these toys. Why is that?”

As he pushed open the bedroom door, a walking stick that was leaning behind the door was knocked off balance and landed on Chen Ge’s shoe. Picking up the walking stick, Chen Ge happened to glance at a family photo that was placed on the study table.

A man who had only one leg was hugging his own son, and a woman was carefully guarding her son behind her. Next to the man stood a little girl.

In the picture, only the girl’s face was normal. The faces of the other three had gouges of scratches on them like someone had gone into tearing at them with their fingernails.

“This is a picture of a family of four, so why is the face of the girl the only one that is spared?” Chen Ge picked up the picture, and he saw a sentence that was written on the back—‘I am your real family.’

“This handwriting is similar to the names that were carved on all of the mud statuettes, so this should have been written by the ghost fetus as well.”

Putting down the family photo, Chen Ge opened the desk drawer. To his surprise, the drawer was filled with various pictures. Every picture had dates and uneven handwriting on the back. Chen Ge arranged them according to chronological order. The first picture was taken about ten years ago, around the same time the shadow left Chen Ge. The picture was of the girl alone. She looked very cute, but for some reason, she was dressed like a boy. The picture was taken at the front door of the apartment. The sky was darkening. The girl was running into the apartment, dragging a tattered bag that was covered in sand behind her.

The second picture was probably taken several days later. The girl was still dressed like a tomboy. She stood next to a pile of garbage and carried a battered rag doll in her hands.

In the third picture, the girl was standing outside the door of Room 404 with a dissatisfied pout on her face. The rag doll was dumped at the corner of the stairs. The girl's parents were lecturing her.

In the fourth picture, the girl was hiding under a tree with the rag doll and some new toys. She had a very big smile on her face. She looked so innocent and carefree, as children should at her age. The picture radiated an energy of innocence and joy.

In the fifth picture, the younger brother snatched the toys away from the girl. The mother appeared to be interrogating the girl as she kept nodding. The father with the missing leg held a broom in his hands like he was ready to mete out punishment. They appeared to have suspected the girl to have stolen money from the family and used it to buy new toys.

In the sixth picture, the little brother was sitting among the pile of toys while the girl was facing away from the door. Half of the rag doll's face was peeking out from behind the door.

The previous photos were quite normal, if a little sad. However, starting from the seventh photo, everything started to change.

Many different kinds of inexplicable wounds appeared on the little brother's body. The parents did not know what to do. In their desperation, they channeled their fury onto the girl. Perhaps, in their eyes, it was her fault that she did not look after her younger brother, or perhaps they thought that she was the one who did those horrible things to her younger brother.

The following pictures only got crueler and crueler. In the eleventh picture, there was a rag doll that was pressing the little brother by his head as it tried to push the young boy out the window. The girl screamed for the rag doll to stop.

In the twelfth photo, the boy hid behind his parents, with tears and complaints. The girl was punished severely. She was forced to stand outside the front door. Behind her, she was holding the rag doll, which was hidden from view.

In the thirteenth photo, the rag doll was dumped at the trash site. It did not look that much different from the other trash around it, but when the heavy rain fell on its face that was sewn together by different human skin, it looked eerily like a child who was silently crying.

Chapter 1092 - Misery Is a Kind of Illness 2 in 1

1092 Misery Is a Kind of Illness 2 in 1

The rag doll in the thirteenth picture looked rather pitiful. It was picked up by the girl from a heap of trash and ended up being abandoned in a heap of trash again.

“There are no other pictures in the drawer. This is the last one.” Chen Ge looked at the collage of pictures on the table. The family portrait that was heavily damaged and the picture of the rag doll being abandoned at the trash heap formed a stark contrast. “This should be the first time it was abandoned.”

Chen Ge was just speculating. The doll was willing to put its trust in others, so that proved, at least at that time, that it had not started down the path of the ghost fetus. It believed that it could really befriend the girl. Perhaps, even at a certain moment, the girl had treated it as her friend, but reality had delivered the doll a heavy slam.

...

“The girl’s family were probably all murdered by the doll, and the girl herself became the rag doll’s own doll.” Chen Ge closed the drawer and returned to the living room. The girl was leaning against the chair. She did not appear like she could stand on her own. If not for the white cloth that bound her, she probably would have had trouble sitting up on her own.

“Can you hear my voice? If you can, please blink or at least nod ...” Chen Ge helped remove the white cloth from the girl’s body. Throughout the whole process, the girl did not resist or give any response. She allowed Chen Ge to handle her freely like a toy that did not have her own consciousness. When all the white cloth had been removed, the girl's body tipped to the side. When Chen Ge reached out to catch her from falling, several bloody pictures fell out from her body.

These pictures were different from the ones that Chen Ge had found earlier in the bedroom drawer. The pictures there were all taken at midnight, and the backdrop was one of blood. The main focus of the pictures were the girl's family members and the horrifying ways that they had died. In a way, they were a macabre collage of a tragedy that befell a family.

"These are the pictures of its revenge?" Chen Ge studied the pictures closely, and he noticed something very strange. In the bloody pictures, other than the girl's family and the rag doll, there was another person that had not shown up before.

One of the pictures had a room number in it. It was taken at the door to Room 504. The girl's father was lying on the ground, and the rag doll was dragging him along by his remaining leg. Other than these two inside Room 504, there stood a doctor wearing a white doctor's coat.

"Is he the tenant of Room 504?" Upon closer inspection, Chen Ge noticed that this man had shown up inside almost all of the bloody pictures. However, Chen Ge was unable to recognize him because his face had been scratched out of them all. Nevertheless, the white coat that he wore set him apart. It was filled with small holes burnt out from cigarette butts, and it was stained with something that looked like fat.

"After the rag doll was abandoned, it looked quite pitiful, but it did not turn to revenge at the first given moment. It stayed on its own inside the trash heap. Could its change of nature be related to this doctor?"

Chen Ge felt that he had found another key clue. The shadow's first change was probably because it had entered the world behind the door at the haunted house, and the second change might have been caused by its encounter with this doctor.

"Wen Qing, did a doctor once stay at Jiu Hong Apartments?"

"Yes, I think so, but I do not have a good memory of him." Wen Qing gave it some thought. "I cannot be sure whether that person was a doctor or not, but when I first got the job at Jiu Hong Housing Agency, I often saw this man wearing a white doctor's coat walking out from Jiu Hong Apartments."

"There is such a thing?"

"Yes, but after me and Xiang Nuan moved to Jin Hwa Apartments, I rarely saw that man. The doctor in the white coat did not show up that often again."

"I see." A speculation arose in Chen Ge's heart. He held the several bloody pictures in his hands. "We should go to Room 504. We should be able to find all the answers there."

Ever since he discovered the presence of the cursed hospital, Chen Ge had been very sensitive around those in the medical business. Perhaps it was a force of habit, but whenever he saw someone wearing a doctor's coat, he had an urge to follow them.

"Xiao Sun, how are you feeling? Are your wounds getting better?" Chen Ge suddenly turned to Xiao Sun.

"I feel like the wounds have worsened. The pain is becoming more and more intense, and they do not show any sign of recovering at all." Xiao Sun shook his head. "Why would you suddenly care about me?"

"I actually wanted to ask you to carry this girl with us, but since you are still injured, forget about it." Chen Ge laid the girl flat on the sofa.

"We are not bringing her with us?" Wen Qing felt quite sorry for the girl. The latter looked like she needed protection and love. She was no different from a doll who had been abandoned by her owner.

"The pictures that we've found have practically reconstructed what happened, but there are too many details in the middle that we're clueless about. It's too dangerous to carry her with us for no reason." Chen Ge gave a very simple example. "What if we are in the middle of escaping but she suddenly wakes up, strangles you, and refuses to let go?"

"Okay then, we will leave her here for now."

"After we have explored the whole building and ensured that there is no hidden danger, we can come back to fetch her." Chen Ge took the few bloody pictures and exited Room 404. When he stepped out of the front door, he noticed the bloody handprints in the corridor had increased. The handprints appeared to be completely random, but at the same time, it appeared like the thing that left them behind was crawling around Chen Ge's group.

"I have a bad feeling about this. We'd better speed up and head to the fifth floor!"

More broken toys appeared out of nowhere. No matter how lightly they tried to move, the toys would squeak and make noise when they were stepped on. These strange noises appeared particularly harrowing in the eerily quiet corridor. With Chen Ge leading the way, the group did not stop until they reached the fifth floor. The stench in the air thickened significantly. This floor had an obvious difference compared to the previous floors. The walls were filled with bloody handprints of varying sizes, and scratch marks as well as random doodles could be seen everywhere.

The doodles appeared like they were the handiwork of a child. They had very simple lines, but the content was extremely scary. This kind of contrast between innocence and horror left a scarring impact on the adults. Other than that, Chen Ge noticed something that was quite out of the ordinary. The walls of the fifth-floor corridor had the calligraphy of the character joy as well. However, unlike the previous floors, the characters were not inverted on this floor.

"It is customary during Chinese New Year to have inverted calligraphy of the Chinese character for joy because, in Chinese, it sounds like an invitation for joy. The few floors below us all have inverted calligraphy, but the calligraphy on this fifth floor is not inverted. Is it a way of telling others that 'joy' has already arrived at this floor?"

After seeing so many inverted 'joy's, the sudden sight of the whole wall of upright 'joy's stunned Xiao Sun quite a bit. They were something that he needed to get adjusted to. Chen Ge ignored him and walked directly to the door of Room 504.

The bloody handprints of different sizes in the corridor all congregated around this place. Chen Ge used his finger to trail along some of the handprints. He noticed that all the handprints crawled out from this room, and then they would crawl back into this room.

"The secret of this whole building should be inside Room 504." Chen Ge stopped outside the door. He glanced at the half-open door, and his eyes scanned the door number. Xiao Sun and Wen Qing walked over to join him. The three of them stood together, and they were as ready as they could be.

Raising his arm, Chen Ge reached out to grab the door handle. Before he could push, however, the door was suddenly pulled open slightly from inside. Something reached out to grab at Chen Ge's wrist. Wen Qing gasped in shock, and Xiao Sun retreated out of the fear. Even Chen Ge was jolted back by surprise. However, the man recovered and reacted as fast as he could. Just as he was about to turn around to grab at the door, a ball of cloth was shoved through the gap.

"You all saw it, right? The door opened on its own!" Xiao Sun pointed at the door. "Do we still need to enter it?"

Xiao Sun and Wen Qing stood behind Chen Ge, and they stayed far away from the door. Chen Ge inspected the spot of his wrist that had been grabbed earlier. He had lost complete sense of that part of his limb; it felt ice cold like it had turned into a block of ice.

"We're already here. Of course, we are not going to stop here. We are going in to take a look." Chen Ge knelt down to pick up the ball of cloth that had fallen through the gap. It was a bolt of fabric that was rumpled together. It had a bloody message written on it—"Do not come in."

"The monster seems to be reminding us not to come in. Is it doing that on purpose?" Xiao Sun looked at the message on the cloth. "Then we'd better go. Even the ghost inside the building is warning us. Isn't it a bit rude for us to stay and not listen to them?"

"Wait a minute!" When she saw the handwriting on the cloth, Wen Qing became quite agitated. "Do not move yet. The handwriting on this cloth looks similar to Xiang Nuan's handwriting."

Wen Qing grabbed the cloth to study it closer. After some time, she said with confidence, "Xiang Nuan is still learning his letters, and he always miswrites 'come' as 'come'. Yes! This is written by him!"

Holding the cloth tightly, Wen Qing's eyes were reddening from emotion. "Xiang Nuan is inside this room! He is behind this door! We have to go get him!"

"Please calm down." Chen Ge tried to make Wen Qing calm down, but the floodgates had already opened, and Chen Ge was unable to do anything to stop her. "This whole building is filled with bloody handprints, so the ghost who left them behind will have blood on their hands. But the hand that reached out from inside the door earlier was invisible. Other than the intense chill, there was no stain of even one drop of blood on its hands. Therefore, that is proof that this person is different from all the other ghosts inside this building.”

“That is because it is not a ghost but Xiang Nuan!” Wen Qing was desperate to get the door open, but she was held back by Chen Ge.

“Have you really thought this through? It might not be Xiang Nuan behind the door but something else.” Chen Ge wished to clarify himself. When they saw the white handprints on the bedsheet inside Room 301, Chen Ge had felt curious about its appearance. Why was the ghost that particular about Wen Qing and only targeted her?

If the source of the white handprints was Xiang Nuan, then perhaps it meant that Xiang Nuan had been following Wen Qing, but no one was able to see him. Only when Wen Qing was very close to him would they be able to sense his presence.

“I am ready. No matter what, I have to open this door and enter this place to take a look.” Wen Qing was determined. No matter what Chen Ge said, his words fell on deaf ears.

“You want to enter this room to find him, but he has already given you the hint that forbids you from entering this room.” Chen Ge sighed heavily. “Oh well. The two of you had better stay close behind me. If there is any danger, we will retreat from the room as fast as we can; there shall be no hesitation.”

Chen Ge grabbed the doorknob and slowly pushed the door of Room 504 open. The door shook, and a horrible stench hit him in the face. “Looks like a part of the rag doll is hidden inside this room.”

Once the door opened, Wen Qing took out her phone and shone the flashlight into the living room. When she saw what was inside the room, the expression on her face froze. The small room was occupied by bloody handprints, but other than the children’s handprints, many faces of children were printed on the walls. All the faces were painted red; they did not have any expression, and they all looked different from each other.

“How come it feels like every face is a representation of a living child? It feels like they are going to open their eyes at any moment!” Xiao Sun walked at the back of the group, and he sucked in a cold breath.

“Xiang Nuan!” Wen Qing started to scream inside the room.

“Can you two be quiet for a moment?” Chen Ge pulled on the strap of his backpack, and his hands gripped the handle of Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer tightly. His nerves were tense. He was on high alert. There were many tables and chairs placed inside Room 504. If not for the bloody faces and handprints, this place could easily be mistaken for a tuition center. A smiling mask was placed on each of the chairs. The materials that made the mask were probably the banknotes on the ground; the banknotes had the same yellowed paper quality to them.

Chen Ge picked up a random paper mask to take a closer look. This smiling mask that was cut out from paper money had a great contrast to the faces of the children on the wall. One was forever smiling while the other was bound in extreme despair.

Chen Ge looked around before he found a stack of document files inside the drawer of the television cupboard. The document files were numbered, and they appeared to be from more than a few decades ago. When he found the first file, Chen Ge stood inside the living room and opened it. The stench inside the room thickened. Chen Ge dumped the content of the file on the coffee table. It contained some documents with pictures attached to them and the dead carcass of a small bird that had been air dried.

“A patient’s list?” Chen Ge read the files, and it was a doctor’s records.

“It had no name. I found it among a heap of trash, so I shall call it Trash for now.

“Trash desires to have a life like a normal human being. It is chasing something that even it cannot clearly explain itself. Based on its description, I personally believe it is looking for the feeling of bliss.

“Trash wishes to obtain bliss, but it does not understand what bliss is. To cure its illness, I will have to first teach it what the meaning of bliss is.

“Trash does not understand any conversation or words that involve human emotions. I will have to use a different method to teach it.

“The lack of bliss or misery is a kind of disease; misery is like a cut that was left on one’s heart. All the happiness will leak out from this opening, and bliss is the bandage that will close up this wound.

“Using my perspective to explain bliss, Trash was able to understand the concept very quickly. It started to find wounds on other people’s bodies. It really is a good kid. When it first understood bliss, the first thing it wanted to do was not to create misery but to go in search of bliss.

“It looked for a long time, but it failed to find bliss. To help it understand the concept further, I persuaded it to create misery and, from the contrast, try to observe what bliss actually is.

“Trash chose a bird. Under my tutelage, it broke off the bird’s wing. The blood splattered all over the bird’s feathers. The bird was wailing in despair. That is the sound of misery.

“Under the watchful care of Trash, the bird’s wound slowly recovered. But it had lost the ability to fly in the sky. I told Trash that was the price of bliss.

“To obtain bliss, one has to give up something; it is a very fair exchange.”

That was where the first file ended. Then Chen Ge opened the second file. Other than the written documents, there was an eyeball that was encased inside a ball of glue.

“Trash is the most perfect patient I have ever encountered; it is so perfect that I do not wish to share my findings with other doctors. I will keep it here with me for now. I will not bring it back to the work. I will conduct the treatment with Trash at the comfort of my own home.

“Trash is very clever. He has created a beautiful body for himself. He used the materials that he had taken from those with misery around them.

“Even if I use all the vocabulary within my knowledge, I am unable to describe its beauty. Trash has the same eye for beauty as I do. I did not teach him that; he picked it up on his own.

“Now that he possesses a beautiful body, Trash can go and do more things, and I can conduct more intense treatment on him.”

Chapter 1093 - Patient 0004 2 in 1

1093 Patient 0004 2 in 1

Putting down the second file, Chen Ge picked up the third file and proceeded to read its content.

“Trash wanted to become a human. Everything it did was to achieve this goal. Thus, from this action, we can surmise that it is not a human being. Then, that begets the question, what is it?

“As Trash’s doctor, I have been puzzled by this question for a very long time. I wish to understand Trash’s origin. How did Trash come to be?

...

“Using the excuse to help it find bliss as a front, I asked it many questions, but I knew that it did not answer most of my questions honestly. It was hard to imagine that a monster who did not know what bliss was would know how to lie and cheat. Looks like these things are innately imprinted within every living creature. Nothing is an exception, no matter how unique it is.

“Trash is very clever, so incredibly clever that it worries me. Its ability to think and formulate thought improve by the days. I’m worried that one day he will start to suspect me and single-handedly decide to refuse my treatment on his own volition.

“The first conflict that I had with Trash came far earlier than I expected. Trash was once abandoned by the girl from Room 301. I thought it would have nothing but hatred for that girl, but I was surprised that the monster did not even understand the feeling of hatred. It had no idea what feeling that was. I trapped Trash and the girl, whom I’d tied up, inside the same room. I even prepared so many tools that were meant for its revenge for it inside the room, but when I opened the door again, all it had done was remove the rope from around the girl and untie her.

“Trash is seriously ill, but it is still not the patient that I need. There is no separation of good and evil in his heart, or rather, this monster does not have a heart.

“I passed the knife over to Trash and told him what to do to make the girl forever its possession. I taught Trash the method that I once used myself, but it did not appear like it was too keen on following my example. It started to have its own thoughts. This is incredibly different from its performance during our previous session. It planned to grow a flower that did not belong on this world on the bed of thoughts that I had prepared for him.

“For the sake of the experiment, I wish to do a test. If I kill the little girl, will it hate me enough to want to kill me? What kind of method will it use to kill me? Will its eyes when it kills me be filled with pain and despair? Just the thought of it excites me. Nothing’s going according to plan, but is that not part of the fun? I am getting more and more curious.”

When he finished reading the third file, Chen Ge had already labelled this doctor a mad person. “Better be careful. Be sure to close up your mind and have a firm belief in your principles when you read these files. They will try to pull you down to their same level and thus slowly cut through your internal defense line.”

“I do not care about these files. All I want to do is to leave now.”

“Is there anything related to Xiang Nuan in those files? Is there any information about him?”

Seeing Xiao Sun and Wen Qing’s reactions, Chen Ge sighed in relief. These two could not care less about what was written inside the files. For them, the truth was not that important. Instead, the most important thing was surviving with their lives and family by their side.

Putting away the third file, Chen Ge opened the last file. The surface of this file was soaked in blood. The fourth document file was the thinnest. It only had a few sheets of paper, but every sheet had a bloody handprint on it. The handprint matched the ones in the room perfectly.

“Trash wanted to become a human, but it did not understand what constitutes a human being. Using dead bodies and living humans as examples, I taught it many different things from many different perspectives. I told him about the difference between other living humans, dead bodies, and animals. I explained to him what bliss is, what emotions are, what warmth is, and what love is.

“Trash had grown. From a moment in time that I could not pinpoint, I was unable to read its thoughts anymore. The pair of eyes that it dug out from another person’s face were muddled and filled stench-inducing blood vessels. I could no longer see through them and access what their owner was thinking.

“Trash was different from all of my other patients. It is real, but it had no body to call its own. What it had instead was an amalgamation of sorts that it had built from many different parts. I was unable to reach into its heart as I normally would to study my patients. Eventually, I even had trouble telling at what stage his illness had advanced to.

“For a doctor to be unable to read their own patient, that is both very interesting and dangerous. I was unable to predict its next move, and I had no idea when I would be killed. Trash would always mysteriously appear behind me. I could sense its eyes on the back of my heart and the area around my neck and throat. Did it really wish to kill me, or was it also trying to help me cure the illness that I personally have—misery?

“We imprisoned the girl for a few days. In the end, Trash did not kill her, but the girl was no longer herself. Trash eventually found a compromise. It listened to my advice, but at the same time, it had retained its own uniqueness. It was the first time it had owned something of its own.

“Yes, it should be a thing. Even though Trash had seen this thing as its friend, but for me, it was just an object that had lost its soul.”

More and more blood soaked the records. The paper was getting more wrinkled. The handprints on the sheet of paper overlapped each other like many ‘ghosts’ had seen this last document before.

“I desperately wish to know what it would feel like to be killed by Trash, but with just the thought that I would lose such a perfect patient after I died, it felt like something had gone missing from my heart. I have lived for a year behind the door. It felt very uncomfortable to return to the world outside the door. It was not until

I met Trash that I suddenly understood the meaning of my existence. Yes, compared to me, Trash met the requirement of the hospital much better. If I sent it over there, all the doctors would be so overjoyed and excited.

“I really did not wish to share Trash with the others, but unfortunately, I was afraid I would not survive until the moment Trash received the treatment that it desperately needed. I shared my discovery and findings concerning Trash to my teacher. When it heard my story, it personally came to Jiu Hong Apartments. After it assessed Trash, it gave Trash a very unique patient number—Patient 0004.

“When I saw this number, I knew that my days were numbered. All of the patients at the hospital were arranged according to their number depending on the severity of their illness. The more unique the patient, the further ahead their number would be.

“Other than Patient 0001, which I have not seen before, Patient 0002 is left on the other side of the door, and Patient 0003 is hidden in Jiujiang. These three are beyond the realm of my comprehension. They are existences that I cannot completely understand. I really did not expect mere Trash to become Patient 0004. Can it suffer the weight that will be brought by this number?

“Normal doctors are unable to interact with the ten first patients. They are instead handed over to their respective teacher and doctor. Regarding the others that know about their presence, they are either sent to the other side of the door or disappear silently and mysteriously. I belong to the later camp. After all, I have instilled my own thoughts into the material that my teacher has considered to be incredibly important.

“Before I disappear, there is one last thing that I need to do, and that is to hide these records at a place that only me and Trash know about. I have no idea why I would do such a thing. Perhaps human beings are all selfish creatures, especially people like me...”

The last document ended right there. On first glance, it might appear to be the ravings of a mad doctor, but it actually contained a wealth of information. This crazy doctor was not the scariest entity; he had a teacher, and according to his statement, the hospital that he came from had many scary doctors that were just like him. In Chen Ge's mind, there was only one such hospital in existence, and that was the cursed hospital that was built on the border between Xin Hai and Jiujiang.

“This is such troublesome news. From the records, it appears that they started to investigate the doors more than twenty years ago. That’s even earlier than Doctor Gao. There’s an impossible number of doctors, and I have no clue what they are capable of. Other than that, I need to pay attention to the patients that were mentioned inside these files. The doctor’s teacher probably saw something in the rag doll, so it listed it as Patient 0004. Several decades later, the rag doll became a Demon God, the ghost fetus, but even so, it was only ranked number four. Just how scary are the three before the ghost fetus?”

Chen Ge knew that among Red Specters, there would be a great difference in their ability. For example, Men Nan and Zhang Ya before she became a Demon God. Chen Ge believed that such a difference would exist between Demon Gods as well.

“Looks like I will have to reassess the overall ability of that hospital. The best thing I can do now is try to find as many patients as I can and try to work together with them. We are all patients, so there should be a common language, right?” Chen Ge placed all four files into his backpack. These things were very important.

“The rag doll was taken by the doctor’s teacher to the hospital. The experience at Jiu Hong Apartments was the second stage of the change that happened to the ghost fetus. It was at this place that it was given an education in a twisted worldview and moral values. What happened next at the hospital should be the last stage that ultimately propelled it to become the ghost fetus.”

Chen Ge was reminded of the scenario inside the worlds behind the doors of the few children that he had entered before. When he opened his eyes, there would be a black iron door that gave off a faint scent of disinfectant behind him. The world of every child that was chosen was different, but the doors that were used to leave their worlds were the same. Chen Ge greatly suspected that the black iron door was the ‘door’ that was pushed open by the ghost fetus himself.

“The black door with the smell of disinfectant feels like the door to the zone of the seriously ill at special hospitals. Using this as a basis of speculation, the ghost fetus probably pushed open its own door at that hospital.”

The four documents tied the ghost fetus to the cursed hospital, but this was just the beginning. From what was happening now, it appeared that it had been some time since the ghost fetus had escaped from that hospital, and due to various reasons, the hospital was not that desperate to recapture the ghost fetus.

In Chen Ge's mind, there were several possibilities for this.

One, the cursed hospital was very confident in their ability. They believed that they would be able to recapture the ghost fetus any time they wanted, so they did not care about it and allowed it to grow while they observed it in the dark.

Two, they ran into some big trouble. The person who had created trouble could be another patient. After all, if the ghost fetus was able to escape, the patients who were ranked before it would naturally be able to mount their own escape as well.

Three, the cursed hospital ran into a huge challenge in Jiujiang. It was not that they did not wish to recapture ghost fetus, but they no longer dared come to Jiujiang so openly like they did in the past.

Note that these three situations were not mutually exclusive to one another. After all, with that hospital's scary ability, Chen Ge believed that just one situation would not be enough to prevent them from doing what they wanted to do. Perhaps a collection of deterring factors had contributed to the situation that Chen Ge was faced with.

"There is a high chance that the ghost fetus was once trapped at that cursed hospital. It appears like I interacted with people from that hospital when I was young. Could all roads eventually lead back to that cursed hospital? And what kind of character do my parents play in this whole incident? Is their disappearance related to the cursed hospital as well?"

"Chen Ge, Chen Ge!" His elbow was being tugged on, and Xiao Sun's call echoed in his ears. "Look at the faces on the wall. They appear to be looking at you!"

"Looking at me?" Chen Ge turned around to scan his environment. The faces of the children on the wall were bleeding. Their eyes appeared to have come alive. Their eyeballs were so lively that it felt like they would pop out from the wall at any moment. Even when he was stared at by so many strange gazes, Chen Ge was as calm as ever. He slowly took the files out from his backpack. He did not believe that he had done anything that crossed the line. The only thing that he had done was take the files from the drawer. If these children were targeting him because of that, before his employees woke up, Chen Ge could give up the documents for the time being. He could always come back to fetch them later.

A great man knows when to yield and when not to. There was nothing embarrassing about this. Chen Ge placed the documents back into the drawer, but he realized that the children were not looking at the documents; they were all looking at him. The gazes all zeroed in on him. All the children had found him as their target.

“Why are they looking at me like this?”

Chen Ge put the document files back into his backpack. He still did not wish to leave this building because he had not found the source of the stench inside this building. Room 504 was the room where the stench was the thickest. If his earliest speculation was not wrong, the remaining body part of the rag doll should be hidden somewhere inside this room.

“Let’s go now. If we do not go soon, I have a feeling that we will not be able to leave.”

“Just give me a moment.” Even though Chen Ge did not wish to stay in that room any longer, it had not been easy to make their way to this place. He would feel too much regret if he did not take a good look around the room. “According to the doctor’s files, their teacher would do their best to make everyone else who knew about their patients disappear silently and mysteriously. The tenants of this building were probably murdered by the doctor’s teacher. The dead spirit of every family lingered here, and the faces on the wall probably belong to the children who had died in that massacre.”

Even Chen Ge felt uncomfortable being stared at by these multiple faces. He did not want to waste any more time. Grabbing his backpack with one hand and the Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer with another, he pushed open the door to the bedroom and the kitchen.

“There is no sign of the rag doll?” The stench in the bedroom was more obvious. Chen Ge was about to step into it when Wen Qing screamed behind him. Both Chen Ge and Xiao Sun were given a jolt of fright. They turned to look at Wen Qing at the same time.

The color drained from the face of Wen Qing, who was walking at the back of the group. She touched a part of her hand. “Some... someone just dragged me back earlier. It felt like they wanted me to leave this place as soon as possible.”

“They are trying to warn you. Looks like this place is indeed very dangerous. It is unwise to stay here for too long.” Chen Ge picked up speed. This place was different from Jin Hwa Apartments. He did not have enough time to give the place a thorough search. He could only search as fast as possible. He could have missed some vital clues, but that was something that could not be helped at this moment. The place was simply too dangerous for his group to stay for long.

The thing that radiated the heaviest haze of the horrible smell was the bed. Chen Ge lifted the cover of the bed and saw that there was a moldy jacket placed under the cover. He used the handle of the Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer to pick up the jacket. A broken leg sewn from tattered fabric fell out from the folds of the jacket.

The horrible stench crawled into his nostril. The whole building started to shake like there was an earthquake. Their surroundings started to turn for the worse. The human faces that were painted on the wall appeared to come alive in that moment.

"The rag doll's left leg was hidden inside Jiu Hong Apartments Block 1." Chen Ge held his hand over his mouth and nose. Without any hesitation, he retreated. "We need to leave this building as soon as possible, and then we will decide what to do next!"

Chapter 1094 - Where Is My Cat?

2 in 1

1094 Where Is My Cat? 2 in 1

The horrible smell in the building originated from that severed leg. Chen Ge did not quite understand why the rag doll's body would give off such a pungent smell, and it appeared like he was the only one among them who was able to smell it.

After the leg was discovered, a startling change started to happen inside the building. The faces of the children on the wall came to life; their eyeballs slowly bulged out from the wall as they moved to follow Chen Ge. The scenario was scary to say the least.

"Brother, what have you done? How come it feels like all the painted faces have come alive?" Xiao Sun followed close behind Chen Ge. His eyes were overflowing with fear and terror.

...

"Now is not the time to explain. We need to leave this building as soon as possible!" Chen Ge blazed a path forward with Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer. He had just run out of Room 504 when he heard children's giggling coming from the room behind him. Turning back to look, Chen Ge's hair instantly stood on end. That was because he saw the rag doll's severed leg had stood up on its own on the bed. The bloody handprints on the wall became wet with the sound of dripping echoing through the room as droplets of blood dripped down from the ceiling and dyed the whole room red.

"Hehe..." Cute laughter came from above them. The eyeballs that bulged out from the ceiling kept turning. Blood was now flowing freely. Five fingers that were painted in blood splattered all over the walls. A disfigured child slowly crawled out from the bloody painting!

Blood was still lingering on his body. His face was demented and twisted. His thin lips were torn open on both sides, and his venomous gaze stared fixatedly at Chen Ge's neck. With cold sweat breaking out on his forehead, Chen Ge soon realized that things were only getting worse. More and more children appeared in the room, and they were all staring at Chen Ge.

"We need to go! Now!" Chen Ge charged ahead. With him leading the way, Xiao Sun and Wen Qing followed close behind him. The floor underneath them was shaking and many strange noises were coming from all sides of the building. The sound of marbles bouncing against each other came from the ceiling, the consistent tapping of footsteps echoed in the corridor, and more and more bloody handprints appeared on the windows that they rushed by.

"Chen Ge, the words on the note were written by Xiang Nuan. That proves that Xiang Nuan was inside that room. Is it okay for us to escape now and leave him alone back there?" Wen Qing was unable to be sure of her own safety, but even at that moment, the person that she cared about the most was Xiang Nuan. Perhaps that was what motherhood was like.

"Do not worry about him. If I am not wrong, the boy probably left this place a long time ago!" Chen Ge was being very rational. "Do you still remember the tug that you experienced earlier? That was him warning you to leave this place! As long as you are not in danger, he will not do anything stupid for the sake of saving you. Do you understand that?"

Wen Qing nodded. In those circumstances, the best and most logical solution was to escape as fast as they could. As long as they were still alive, they always had a second chance.

"Xiang Nuan..." Without stopping, when Wen Qing was about to leave the fifth floor, she could not resist the urge to turn back to look.

Many disfigured children crawled out from Room 504. They were all missing something from their bodies. It looked as if a part of their bodies had been forcibly taken away from them. Some had their skin removed, and others had their facial features taken away. These children crawled on the walls, corridor, and ceiling as well as over each other like they were crazy. However, they seemed to have locked onto Chen Ge and were rapidly closing in on him. Just the sight of this caused Wen Qing's legs to go weak. But she gritted her teeth, picked up her pace, and continued to run down the stairs.

Chen Ge also saw the children behind them. However, unlike Wen Qing, he did not feel that much fear. If anything, a piece of information from the doctor's document files floated up in his mind. The rag doll had created a new body for itself; it was a body that matched the doctor's expectation of beauty.

At the time, Chen Ge did not give the sentence much thought, but now that he saw the group of disfigured children behind him, he understood the depth of cruelty that could exist within that simple sentence. The four files appeared to be very simple and concise, and reading them would give the reader a slight feeling of discomfort. However, upon closer inspection, one would realize that it was no different from the diary of a demon.

Chen Ge tried to focus as he cut his way out of the building. As he ran down the stairs, Chen Ge encountered some strange things, but he did not stop to pay them much attention. If the thing did not actively block Chen Ge's way, he would continue past them. If they intended on stopping him or made any hostile movement toward him, then they would be given a treat of Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer.

Chen Ge had no choice. Once he stopped, all three of them—Wen Qing, Xiao Sun, and himself—would be caught by the group of children. Then they would be turned into sacrificial objects for the groups of vengeful spirits to exact their vengeance. Racing all the way non-stop, the trio finally returned to the first floor.

“Keep up with me! Don't fall back now!” The location of the several buildings appeared in his mind. Chen Ge had no time for hesitation. He ran out of Jiu Hong Apartments Block One immediately. After leaving the building, he instantly slowed down. “Grab hold of my shoulders! Quick!”

The black fog was more dangerous than the building, one could not afford to be too careful. After making sure that Wen Qing and Xiao Sun had grabbed his shoulders, Chen Ge made a beeline in a specific direction.

“Chen Ge, why would those ghost children congregate inside Room 504? The note that Xiang Nuan gave me was also tossed out from Room 504. Why is that? Do you think he was also trapped alongside those ghost children?” Wen Qing was bothered by many worrying questions. At the end of the day, she was just a normal mother. Being able to catch up to Chen Ge's rhythm was already quite impressive.

“The situation is very complicated. After we reach a safe place, I will slowly explain it to you. For now, you can just treat this place as Xiang Nuan’s nightmare, and the boy has lost himself in it. We need to try our best to help him find himself.” Chen Ge was speaking at a very fast pace. That was not his fault. Once he entered the black fog, his body would shake involuntarily, as if he would be taken out at any moment. His body was alert with the sense of danger that was so close to them.

Just as Chen Ge finished, before Wen Qing could say anything, the three of them heard a giant boom at the same time. One of the buildings in the black fog was trembling, and the giant sound came from inside that building.

Someone else has found the part of the rag doll’s body! Chen Ge narrowed his eyes. That should be the doing of the monsters from the cursed hospital! Are they also searching for the rag doll’s body?

Other than himself, there were other people searching for the remainder of the rag doll’s body. In a way, this told Chen Ge that his general direction was not wrong.

For now, I already know the location of the rag doll’s left arm and left leg. Once my employees wake up, I will come back to these places immediately to snatch these things!

The building shook for a very long time and did not stop. After the rag doll’s body part was discovered, the whole residential area started to change. More activity started to appear inside the black fog, and more unknown shadows appeared in the darkness. They stuck to the building like they were trying to enter them.

Every building should have a part of the rag doll’s body inside. It’s using its former body to ensure that this residential area is not swallowed up by the black fog.

At this point, confusion appeared in his mind.

I have been inside so many doors before, but how come this door is so distinct from everyone else’s? It is not only isolated from the red city, but it is also swallowed amid a sea of black fog.

A possibility crossed his mind, and it caused Chen Ge to frown.

Could this be the real world behind the door? The worlds that I have visited before were all very close and thus in reliance of the red city.

In other words, the door pushers pushed open their blood door at the fringe of the blood city, and their scenarios were extremely close to the red city, like the School of the After Life. And some of them were enveloped right inside the red city, like Doctor Gao's underground morgue. He assimilated the whole scenario and carried all the sin on his back. But after the scenario crumbled, one would realize that the red city was literally right outside the scenario.

A speculation arose in Chen Ge's heart.

If this endless black fog can be seen as a horizonless sea of despair, then this residential area is a lonely island of humanity within the black sea. Then is it possible that the red city is also another island among the black sea? But because too many people opened their doors there, it caused multiple scenarios and nightmares to join together, making the island continuously expand until it reached such a size that even the black sea could not do anything to affect it anymore?

Following this train of thought further, Chen Ge slowly narrowed his eyes.

The ghost fetus once entered the door at my haunted house. It has always wanted to become a human being, and it has always desired bliss, so it was mimicking and chasing the things that it wanted... Then, is it possible that the ghost fetus is trying to build its own version of the red city?

Whether or not the ghost fetus wanted to create another red city was not that important; the key was that the individual whom the ghost fetus was the most envious of was Chen Ge himself. But after entering the door at the haunted house, the ghost fetus saw something, and it was those things that caused it to leave and abandon Chen Ge. The whole sentence just sounded impossible and absurd. After his own shadow saw the other side of his persona, it escaped in the middle of the night. That in itself was something worth considering and contemplating.

If I manage to survive this ghost fetus' mission and if Zhang Ya has woken up from her hibernation, I will have to go and take a look behind the door at the haunted house.

Chen Ge still had quite an impression of the hint given to him by the black phone about the ghost fetus' mission. The most important clue had always been beside him.

The trio continued a few meters ahead. Chen Ge felt the grip on his shoulders tightened so much that it had start to cut into his thought.

“Wen Qing?”

Looking back from the corner of his eyes, Chen Ge’s eyes widened in shock!

Wen Qing and Xiao Sun had disappeared. The hands that grabbed his shoulders were two pale arms that were covered in livor mortis.

Sucking in a cold breath, Chen Ge did not do anything too brash. He continued to lead the two dead arms forward as if he did not notice anything out of place. Things had already happened; being afraid was not going to make things better after all.

Whisperings kept drifting into his ears. The black fog was roiling. Giant shadows sluiced through the fog. These monsters were beyond Chen Ge’s comprehension. Just the sight of them caused his heart to wrench with fear. A giant shadow that had the shape of a spider was crawling on the outside wall of the building. Not far away from him were several headless sticks that were several meters tall that walked past. Occasionally, big holes appeared around him. Through the fog, Chen Ge was unable to tell how deep the holes were. Perhaps, with a careless trip, he would fall straight into another dimension.

The many different monsters in the black fog have come alive compared to before. The ghost fetus probably used the remains of its past body to guard these few buildings. The monsters in the fog sensed that someone had touched the rag doll’s body and realized that this was their chance.

It was impossible to stop moving in the black fog. Chen Ge looked at the shadows around him, and he lowered in his head again and continued to pick up his speed.

Behind this door, he not only had to be careful of the door pusher and the outsider, he also had to be cautious of the monsters in the black fog. In a way, enemies were everywhere. He would not know how he had died if he did not pay attention to his surroundings.

The outline of the building before him became clearer and clearer. Based on his memory, Chen Ge had successfully arrived at the next building.

The layout of the two residential areas behind the door were different from the layout outside the door. The two tallest buildings from Jin Hwa Apartments stood in the middle of the fog, like two hands that reached up high into the air. The smaller buildings from Jiu Hong Apartments were scattered around these two buildings; they formed the foundation to strengthen the base.

Even with the arms of two dead people hanging on his shoulders, Chen Ge did not turn around. He led them toward the building like that was the plan all along.

The monsters from the black fog should not be able to get inside the building. Once I run into the entrance, I should be able to shake them loose.

That was a very good plan, but the closer Chen Ge got to the building, the tighter the grip on his shoulders. Just as he was about to enter the building, he even felt the two arms actively trying to pull him back. They were trying to drag him into the black fog. Chen Ge, who had never resisted, who had allowed the two hands to hang on him obediently, chose to show his other side at that moment. He took aim behind him and swung the hammer as hard as he could!

Chen Ge had been preparing for this moment for a long time, but when Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer fell on the arms, he did not hear the sound of bones breaking. Nonetheless, he did feel the grip on his shoulders lightened.

Using this opportunity, Chen Ge darted right into the building. Running out of the black fog, Chen Ge gasped greedily for air. He felt faint and tired. Fatigue overwhelmed him like a wave, and his physical energy was heavily drained. With his back against the wall, Chen Ge used his Yin Yang Vision to study his own body. The black fog stuck to his body. Some of it dissipated immediately once he stepped through the entrance, but a part of it appeared to have crawled right into his body.

"Chen Ge!" A familiar voice rang out. Chen Ge lifted his head in shock. He noticed two human figures running toward him through the black fog outside the building. Holding the hammer, Chen Ge stared at the black fog before he eventually sighed in relief. Wen Qing dragged Xiao Sun as they ran into the building. They appeared to have been following Chen Ge all along.

"What happened to you? You suddenly picked up your speed and did not tell us about it. We almost lost you in the fog." Xiao Sun looked very much worse for wear. His whole body was covered in scratches made from nails. He looked like a doll that had been cut.

“Chen Ge, did you encounter something bad?” Wen Qing, in comparison, looked much better. Her body was unscathed. The only difference was that she looked rather pale in the face. With the two of them standing together, it gave off an impression that there was a mysterious force protecting Wen Qing.

“I saw two hands of the dead hanging on my shoulders, and they wanted to drag me into the black fog.” Chen Ge made use of this down time to recover as much energy as he could. If possible, he did not want to speak to conserve energy.

“This black fog appears to have the ability to twist one’s memory and then use a very scary method to show them back to the person...” Wen Qing hesitated for a moment. “The invisible hand returned. Originally, I was heading your way, but as the distance between us grew, it was that invisible hand that patted me at the crucial moment to point me in the right direction. That’s the only reason Xiao Sun and I did not get lost in the black fog.”

“When we were at Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, the hands never appeared. Does he only appear when Wen Qing is in danger? Is he really Xiang Nuan?” Chen Ge looked around and asked in a whisper, “Wen Qing, can you feel his presence now?”

“Yes. If I am not mistaken, I’ve felt his presence since the first time you entered the black fog.”

“Since the first time I entered the black fog?”

“Yes, it was on the rooftop of Jin Hwa Apartments. After you came back from the black fog, I felt like he was accompanying me,” Wen Qing explained.

“Could it be because of this thing?” Chen Ge took out the headless statuette that had Xiang Nuan’s name on it from his pocket. “This was something that I picked up from the rooftop. It should be related to Xiang Nuan.”

“Perhaps.” Wen Qing could not tell for sure.

“Other than this mud statuette, I also found this in the black fog... Wait a minute!” Chen Ge looked around and then pulled his backpack open. “What the f*ck! Where is my cat?”

Chapter 1095 - Memory of the Hospital 2 in 1

1095 Memory of the Hospital 2 in 1

Chen Ge had not been so flustered ever since he entered the door. He rummaged through his backpack to look for White Tiger, but the cat was nowhere to be seen. When he was at Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, he had been in a gamble of life and death with a bunch of crazy murderers. The main concern on his mind was how to survive. After leaving Jin Hwa Apartments, his concern had shifted to the discovery and unearthing of the truth.

This world behind the door had given him a lot of pressure, and it demand his full attention. He knew that he would not be able to split his attention elsewhere, lest he missed some important details, but who would have thought that meant that he would lose White Tiger, who was supposed to be following him? Honestly, it was not until this moment that Chen Ge realized that the white cat had gone missing.

“The poor kitty,” Xiao Sun grumbled softly beside him. “By the way, why would you carry a cat with you? I have heard that black cats can be used to bring good luck, but I do not think a white cat has the same effect as its black counterpart...”

...

“You know that it is a white cat? That means that when you saw me, the white cat was still around me?” Chen Ge turned to look at Xiao Sun.

“The cat was quite obedient. It stuck close to you at pretty much every moment, as if the rest of us would try to harm it or something.” Xiao Sun had no idea that the white cat disliked them because they were dead people from behind the door. He continued to sigh. "Actually, I am envious of you. I also want to have such an obedient cat as a pet. He looks so cute all curled up around you."

"That is just an illusion. The cat only sticks close to me when we are behind the door." Chen Ge shook his head. "Can you still remember the last time you saw that white cat?"

"It was when you and your big sister went onto the rooftop. At the time, Granny Lee and I were waiting for you to return on the third floor. The white cat was following you when you went onto the roof, but when you returned... My memory is a bit fuzzy at the moment, but I believe it was then that it went missing." Xiao Sun's revelation provided a huge hint for Chen Ge.

As I expected, I separated from the white cat when I first entered the black fog. Does that mean it went missing inside the black fog, or did it not follow me into the black fog at all?

With White Tiger's courage, Chen Ge felt that the chance of it being the latter was much higher, but if that was the case, why did the white cat not follow Chen Ge back and stick close to him when he returned from the black fog? Chen Ge was hung up on that question. The white cat was very clever. It knew that in the world behind the door where danger was everywhere and one could die with any wrong step, staying close to Chen Ge was the safest bet. But it had chosen to leave Chen Ge at a certain moment. Did that mean that it had sensed something that would pose a danger to it around Chen Ge? Was it no longer safe for it to stay around Chen Ge?

With his brows slowly creasing together, Chen Ge was reminded of the encounters that happened to him at Jiu Hong Apartments Block 1's Room 504. The ghost children on the walls were all staring at him. It was as if Xiao Sun and Wen Qing did not exist in their eyes. Now that he thought about it, that was something that was very strange as well.

"Why would I be so targeted?" Chen Ge still had not recovered from his overwhelming fatigue. If anything, he felt weaker and weaker by the moment. "Is it really possible that something has possessed me? Has it been feasting on my body?"

Most of the ghost children in the Room 504 were disfigured physically. So many years ago, the rag doll had 'stripped' parts of their body to make a 'new clothes' for itself. The thing that these ghost children hated the most should be the rag doll. "Is it possible that the rag doll has found a way to possess my body?”

Using his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge scanned his whole body again. Other than his back, which he was unable to twist his neck around to see, he checked every other inch of his body, and he did not discover anything out of place. “Xiao Sun, can you check if there is anything weird on my back?”

“There is nothing on your back! If such a large cat was hanging on your back, wouldn’t you think you would be able to feel its presence?” Xiao Sun did not quite understand the meaning of Chen Ge’s instruction.

“I am not talking about the cat. There might be something else possessing my body. In any case, if we run across any mirrors later, please remind me.” Chen Ge dragged Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer along the ground. The ghastly looking hammer felt like it had increased in weight. It drained Chen Ge to drag it along.

“Okay.” Xiao Sun pouted. “Seeing how nervous you were, and I thought you were worried about that cat of yours.”

“It should still be hiding at Jin Hwa Apartments Block A. It has probably found a safe corner to hide. In terms of the ability to protect itself, I still have quite the confidence in it.”

White Tiger did not have much going for it, but taking care of itself and staying away from danger were its top talents.

“It should be able to hang around until we return to fetch it.”

Even though the white cat was very cowardly, it could prove to be quite useful at times. Its sense of danger was much stronger than Chen Ge’s. It would provide Chen Ge with a warning even from the smallest twitch in their surroundings.

“After the white cat got separated from us, it was also the same time the invisible hand showed itself more often. Did it not do so before because it was afraid of being discovered by the white cat? But why would it be afraid of being discovered?”

“Chen Ge...” Wen Qing, who stood at the door, moved to lightly pull on Chen Ge’s shirt sleeve.

“What is it?”

“This building looks rather different from the other buildings that we’ve visited so far.”

Chen Ge was so concerned about the white cat that he did not give the building that they were in a good look. After he heard what Wen Qing had to say, he used Yin Yang Vision to scan the surroundings. A plaque hung on the wall of the entrance. The words Jiu Hong Apartments Block 2 could barely be made out from it. For some reason, the words had been carved out from the plaque using some kind of blade.

After entering the corridor, the difference between this building and Block 1 became more obvious. The walls were painted with a layer of incredibly white paint. A strange smell lingered in the air. Yellowed white paper was scattered on the ground.

“Jin Hwa Apartments Block A was made from Xiang Nuan’s memory, and Jiu Hong Apartments Block 1 was the ghost fetus’ first memory. So, whose memory is this building modelled after?”

Based on Chen Ge’s previous speculation, he believed that the entirety of Jiu Hong Apartments was made up from the ghost fetus’ memory, but from the look of it, that might not be the case.

“This block is even cleaner than Jin Hwa Apartments, and it does not look that old. There is not even a speck of dust on the banister. This proves that this building is occupied. Some tenants are living here.” Xiao Sun contributed a useful observation for once. “When we were still in Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, the tenants once said that the landlord would occasionally leave the building to go to the other blocks to have a meeting with the other landlords. That proves that there should be living tenants occupying the other blocks; not all the buildings are like Jiu Hong Apartments Block 1.”

“Xiang Nuan’s world behind the door is very different from all the other doors that I have entered in the past. It is shrouded in black fog. Only these few buildings are not infiltrated by the black fog, so does that mean that his memory is split into multiple parts and preserved in different buildings?” Chen Ge was feeling rather faint. He wondered if it was because he had been using Yin Yang Vision for so long. Then again, he had no other choice. He had to keep using this power of sight.

Xiao Sun thought for a while and earnestly replied, “I do not quite understand what you are talking about.”

“There is no need for you to understand. I only need you to help me find a mirror as soon as possible.” Chen Ge leaned against the wall. He knew very well that the ghost fetus’ memory was hidden among these few buildings. Exploring these buildings was equivalent to exploring the ghost fetus’ past. He wanted to know what had happened in the past, what had transpired to cause the origin of the ghost fetus; this was a chance that he would not allow himself to miss.

“You do not look well,” Wen Qing commented as she stood beside Chen Ge. She was quite worried about him. “We should find a safe room and take a good rest for now.”

“I’m fine. We should keep moving.” Chen Ge dragged the hammer and moved up the steps. The layout of Jiu Hong Apartments Block 2 was completely different from Block 1. There was a palm-sized window on the top part of every door, so one could look into the rooms by standing outside the door.

“How come this place give me the feel of a hospital’s intensive care unit?” Chen Ge walked to the window and looked into the room. The interior of the room was very strange as well. The walls were all painted white. The floor tiles, furniture, and the ceiling were all white in color. “The room is so white. How obvious the blood would look if blood was to splatter inside the room.”

“Big brother, perhaps the owner has a taste for the color white, or maybe they like to see everything neat and clean.” Xiao Sun sometimes felt scared being around Chen Ge because the latter would often casually drop such statements that would make people overthink and shiver with fear.

“They are both buildings at Jiu Hong Apartments, so how come this building is much neater and cleaner? In my memory, there is no such building at Jiu Hong Apartments.” Wen Qing was the estate agent responsible for these two residential areas. She had no memory at all of this place, so it meant that this building that they were in probably had nothing to do with Jiu Hong Apartments in real life.

Pushing lightly on the door, Chen Ge walked right into it after he realized that the door was not locked. All the things in the room were arranged neatly. The floor was plainly tiled. There was barely any dust. There was not even a black stain on the snowy white walls.

“Is it possible that the owner has an obsession with cleanliness?” Xiao Sun sighed in relief. After leaving Jin Hwa Apartments, he had finally entered a room that appeared relatively normal.

“Do not move anything in the room. Someone probably died in this room before.” Chen Ge stood next to the wall in the living room and used his finger to scratch at the wall surface.

“How do you know that?”

“The coat of paint on the wall is too thick. That means that it has been applied many times. Normally, a home owner will only choose to repaint a whole wall in such a way when they encounter a large stain that is hard to remove by hand.” Chen Ge could not have been clearer if he tried. “The room might look white to you now, but in reality, the room might be blood red in color.”

Pointing his finger upward, Chen Ge looked at the debris that was stuck in his fingernail. “The innermost layer of the paint has already turned black.”

“Chen Ge, come and take a look at this.” Wen Qing found a diary on the couch. It did not have a name on it, just a number—0097.

“0097 is probably the patient’s number, just like how the rag doll was numbered 0004 at the beginning.” Chen Ge flipped through the diary. Initially, he just wanted to give it a quick read, but after looking through some of the content, he realized that he was unable to move his gaze away.

“x Month x Day, today is a day worth remembering. The doctor told me that my condition has gotten much better. I will probably be able to leave the hospital soon. How I have missed the outside world. I cannot wait to see it again.

“x Month x Day, today a new patient arrived at the hospital. His patient number was blocked off. The doctor had it temporarily stay with me. I was not expecting to one day have a roommate again. This new patient is very weird. It does not appear to be afraid of me at all. This is the first time I have encountered such a patient. Perhaps there is a chance for us to be friends, unlike my previous roommate.

“I tried to talk to it, but unfortunately, it is very stupid. It cannot even communicate normally. Such a poor little child. I like ugly people and things. No, it is more like ugliness is normal people’s eyes is seen as beauty by me. The doctor said that I suffer from an obsession with ugliness, and it is a very common form of fetish.

“x Month x Day, today will be the third day the new patient has lived in the room. The doctor comes to see it every day. They seem to anticipate something happening? What is it that they are waiting for?

“x Month x Day, the new patient’s body has started to reek of this horrible smell. It is like a movable body. I suggested for it to go and take a shower. This poor thing does not even know what a shower is. It does not know that one needs to take off the clothes before taking a shower. I took a long time trying to explain to him before he finally got it.

“Hmm, how shall I put this? I told the new patient he would need to remove his clothes to take the shower, so why did he go into the kitchen to grab a knife? Does one need a knife to remove one’s clothing? The sound of water was mixed together with the sound of bones being peeled off. I feel like my condition might have gotten worse.

“The new patient has finished its shower, and the whole bathroom was dyed red. It even left one of its arms in my bathroom. I feel very disrespected. Perhaps because it has not taken any shower before, the new patient and I have gotten closer due to this small incident. In the end, I’ve found myself enjoying spending time with it because it has become uglier and uglier.

“x Month x Day, today is our seventh day living together. No one was able to stay with me for so long because those people could not understand my perspective. Then again, I helped them become more beautiful when they were sleeping at night. Every patient at this hospital has their own number. Normally, we refer to each other by our numbers, but the new patient’s number is covered up, so I will have to ask him for its name. I know this is a great taboo at this hospital, but as long as neither of us tell, the doctors will never know.

“The new patient was initially reluctant to tell me its name, but after much persuasion, it finally told me its name was Trash. Or rather, people called him Trash. I could not believe my own ears. Even though it is as ugly as one possibly can be, no one should be called Trash. Why would someone expose their deficit like that?

“I told it that a person’s name is very important to a person; it carries with it many beautiful wishes. I told it that it should try to give itself a new name. Make one up.

“x Year x Month x Day, the new patient finally figured out a name for itself. It said that the name was Chen Ge. It likes the name very much.

“x Month x Day, I started to refer to the new patient as Chen Ge. We spent quite an enjoyable time together until the adjacent room started to complain about the stench that reeks out from our room.

“The new patient’s ‘clothes’ cannot be worn anymore. It will need a new set of clothes, but the doctors do not seem to be doing anything to help it. They merely come every day to do their records and then turn their expectant eyes on me. Honestly, I do not know what they are expecting.

“x Year x Month x Day, the fact that I told the new patient to come up with its own name was exposed. Initially, I did not think that was such a bad thing until I saw the new patient’s patient number. 0004. It was just a normal child—why would its number be ranked so high?

“x Year x Month x Day, I finally understood why his number was ranked fourth. The reason was that name, but unfortunately, I cannot tell it the truth anymore because I will be made into its new clothes by the doctors soon.”

After reading the whole diary, Chen Ge’s emotions were extremely complicated. For one, he did not expect to see his own name in the diary, and he did not expect the fact that his own name was the reason the ghost fetus was placed at number four.

No, the Chen Ge mentioned in the diary is probably not me but that child that cannot be killed no matter what.

Holding the diary in his hands, Chen Ge stared at the dates that had been crossed out, and his eyes suddenly narrowed. His instinct told him to open his backpack to take out Zhang Ya’s bedtime stories.

The formatting is rather similar, but that is where the similarity ends. I am probably overthinking this.

Placing both the bedtime stories and the diary inside his backpack, Chen Ge gave the room a quick inspection. After coming up with nothing, he prepared to leave.

Chapter 1096 - The Ghost Fetus“ Special Power 2 in 1

1096 The Ghost Fetus“ Special Power 2 in 1

After walking out from the first room of Jiu Hong Apartments Block 2, Chen Ge turned back to look. The door had the number 0097 on it. The number on the door was identical to the patient's number jotted down inside the diary entry.

“There is no fixed arrangement of the numbering of the rooms in this building. From my observation, they do not appear to be arranged according to the floors that they are on. But it should be the case where every room here corresponds to one of the patients from the cursed hospital.”

Chen Ge turned to look at the second room on the first floor. The number for this room was 0049.

...

“At the cursed hospital, the lower your number, the more serious your illness is deemed to be. That means that the room that I just visited belong to a patient who suffered from a mild illness.”

Chen Ge walked to the door of the second room on the first floor. Once again, he leaned on the window and looked through it. The interior of Room 0049 was also mainly white. The furniture and wallpaper were all white, giving it a very clean finish. The door was not locked, so Chen Ge walked in directly.

“Hey! I don't think we should wander into people's rooms. We might get chased out by people again like how in Block 1.” For now, Xiao Sun just wanted to survive safely until dawn. What had happened that night was indeed a bit hard to swallow for a ‘normal person’ like himself.

Chen Ge ignored Xiao Sun.

As he entered the room, he was ready to use Yin Yang Vision when he suddenly felt lightheaded. It felt like the world had suddenly given way underneath his feet.

My body seems to be weakening due to the multiple uses of Yin Yang Vision.

Every time Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision, it would cause a certain amount of pressure on his body. Chen Ge had never noticed this before, but in this world behind the door, he could feel the damage brought upon by the Yin Yang Vision very clearly. Every time he used Yin Yang Vision, his body temperature would experience a very slight change.

“Chen Ge, are you okay?” He felt someone hold him by his elbow. Chen Ge turned back to look and realized that Wen Qing had moved to stand beside him. This mother was a good caretaker.

“Don’t worry about me, I’ll be fine.”

To give himself a break, Chen Ge stopped using his talents like Yin Yang Vision, Spirit Sniff, and Ghost Ear. This meant that the world around them was soon enveloped in darkness, and the only source of light in the room came from Wen Qing’s phone.

After closing the door behind them, Chen Ge dragged Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer as he walked around the room. Out of his expectations, he found nine diaries inside Room 0049. The material for each diary and their cover looked identical, and the patient’s number for all nine diaries was 0049. With unbridled curiosity, Chen Ge flipped through the diaries one by one, and he realized that the content of all the diaries had little variation to them. They were practically the same.

“Why would the patient inside Room 0049 record the same thing nine times?”

After Chen Ge gave them a closer read, he slowly understood the reasoning behind it. Even though the content of these nine diaries was the same, the tone and angle of description for the events that transpired were wildly different. In other words, the diaries gave the impression that there were nine different people inside this room describing the same thing that occurred from nine different perspectives. None of the nine diaries had the date written down anywhere. If he just read one of them, he would have been utterly confused by its entries. But when he placed all of the diaries together and read them at the same time, he made a startling discovery.

“These nine diaries should be written by one single person.” Chen Ge laid all nine diaries on the ground and turned them all to the first page.

The first diary: “A new patient just arrived at the hospital. Its patient’s number was blocked off. Its body was wrapped in bandages used for dead bodies, so you could not see its face at all. This is all so mysterious. I stood at the window and looked for half an hour. The doctors appeared to be hesitating which sickroom to place the new patient in.”

The second diary: “It has been so long since this floor has welcomed a new patient. My big brother told me to mind my own business. He has gotten so old that he has become afraid of even the smallest thing. I swear I will never become someone like him when I grow up.”

The third diary: “There are practically no empty rooms from Room 1 to Room 50. Which room do you think they will deposit the new patient in?”

The fourth diary: “I personally hope that it will move in together with us. Do you know how nauseous I feel because I have to face the eight of you day in and day out? What can I do to get away from you people? How about each of us pick a body part and then we can go our separate ways from there? That sounds like a good idea, right?”

The fifth diary: “Every one of you wants to claim the head. Obviously, that is unrealistic. I suggest we separate and split the body parts according to their weight. That is the fairest method.”

The sixth diary: “Stop arguing! You b*stards that have taken over my home! I am the real Patient 0049! You bunch thieves! Madmen! Idiots! Crazyies! Get out of my home!”

The seventh diary: “Sister Six has started her mad ravings again. Can any of you kindly make her shut up?”

The eighth diary: “Calm down now. Stop arguing. In terms of pathology, all nine of us are split personalities. There is no difference in superiority among the nine of us. We should see each other as an equal.”

The ninth diary: “So tell me again, why did the nine of us agree to consume and tear up the main persona again? If we continue to split mentally like this, this room will only get more and more crowded.”

Nine diaries represented nine different personalities. Just a skim through them caused Xiao Sun’s skull to go numb, but Chen Ge appeared to have quite the blast reading through them.

“I feel like these nine diaries are random ramblings by a mad person. It is filled with crazy words. None of the content can be trusted.” Xiao Sun had placed all his hope on Chen Ge. He was worried that Chen Ge might be influenced by these diaries.

“You think they are crazy, but they will mock you for being an idiot.” Chen Ge knelt on the ground. By reading through the nine diaries again, he had a new discovery. “Patient 0049 suffers from schizophrenia, but his situation is rather unique because the personalities that he has created have somehow murdered the main persona, or to quote their own words, they have consumed the main persona.”

“A persona can be consumed?”

“Well, I am no expert on that. Who knows? This might be a case where their main psychiatrist purposely planted this impression in their mind.”

Chen Ge shook his head. The cursed hospital had no bottom line. Instead of treating their patients, they would often exacerbate the smallest psychological disorder into full on mental illness in their patients.

“All nine personas have their own background and experience. In fact, they have their own occupations and personalities. The eldest brother is the most cowardly and is a middle-aged man. The second brother is a lawyer. The third brother is a plumber. The fourth sister is a night club bartender with a horrible temper. The fifth brother is a murderer with an obsession for cleanliness. The sixth sister is a celebrity. The seventh sister is a piano teacher. The eighth brother is a psychiatrist. The ninth persona is the youngest and has the closest personality to the main persona.”

“Are you reading these diaries as a story book? Brother, I do not need a narration of their lives. We'd better find a safe place to hide for now." Xiao Sun had a very bad feeling about this place. He felt like this place was far more dangerous than Block 1.

"There is no place that is one hundred percent safe behind the door. The only thing we can do is keep on moving, chasing after the weakest light we can find." Chen Ge sat on the sofa. Even after resting for so long, his physique had not only not recovered, he only felt much more tired. "The new patient stayed with them for nine days, and every day a persona of Patient 0049 would die. The further in the diary I read, the more despairing the entries became. On the ninth day, only one of the nine diaries was updated."

Chen Ge held the last diary. "The owner of this diary is the ninth persona, the youngest persona and the persona who is closest to the main persona. He wrote the last diary entry."

"x Year x Month x Day, I do not know whether the heaven the doctors speak of exists or not, but I know that there is definitely hell on earth because I have witnessed a living demon with my own two eyes.

"Yes, a demon has a face just like it. Its heart is completely demented, and it cannot express its emotions like a normal person. Or rather, it has no idea what an emotion is. To this demon, love is equal to death, and hope is no different from despair. It desires all the goodness in the world, but it will not stop throwing curses at everything. It will find some other ways to destroy those that it cannot obtain, and after it has obtained them, it will personally destroy them itself.

"Madness is too weak of a term to describe it. None of the vocabulary that the human race currently has is evil enough to describe someone like it!

"Now I finally understand why the doctors arranged for it to share a room with us inside Room 0049. The doctors wanted to see what kind of reaction they could get out of it after it murdered people with different identities. Before I met it, I always thought I was different from everyone else. There were nine family members living inside me. No matter how harsh the situation outside got, we would figure out a way to deal with it. We had a lawyer, a psychiatrist, a celebrity, and even a murderer among us. With our collective power, we were able to deal with most of the hardships that life could possibly throw at us. It was not until the new patient moved in with us that we realized how laughably weak we were.

“The new patient appears to have a superpower that is invincible. It burns the hatred, resentment, and pain inside its heart to create a curse. No matter how harmless this curse is, it will slowly turn into reality after a period of time.

“Once the seed of the curse is sown, it will never be broken. My big brothers and sisters died one after another. I saw them disappear in the agony of pain and despair like they were never a part of me to begin with. Today is the ninth day, and I know it will be my turn soon...”

The content of the nine diaries was quite a lot to go through, but in reality, they were all interconnected, and they were all pieces of the same puzzle. On the afternoon of the day the new patient moved in Room 0049, patient 0049 attempted to kill the new patient.

It was the latent murderer personality that put this plan into action. The reason was merely because he could not stand the horrible stench that reeked from the new patient. After he made his move though, he realized that the new patient was not even a person but a monster wearing the coat of a dead body. He tried many methods but failed to kill the new patient until the doctors rushed in to stop him.

Normally, when a patient attempted something as dangerous as murder, they would be severely punished, but this time, there was an exception. The doctors merely came to question them about the whole process before they left in a hurry. That night, the nine personas gathered together to have a discussion. Just as they were at the height of their argument, the murderer’s persona started to self-mutilate. It was as if some kind of madness had taken hold of the man. He repeated the things that he had done to the new patient on himself.

The other eight personas had no idea what had come over him. However, they knew that they had to stop the murderer from harming the physical body that they shared, so they had no choice but to bond together to consume the murderer’s persona. After the murderer was killed, the remaining eight personas started to look for the reasoning behind this. In the end, they realized that all the problems originated from the new patient. To protect the physical body from actual harm, the psychiatrist and the lawyer used the oldest persona among them, the middle-aged man, as bait to conduct an experiment. They discovered, to their surprise, the new patient’s scary power—the power of curses.

As long as it was something that was uttered by the new patient, there was a chance of it becoming a part of the reality. After multiple experiments that they had done on the new patient, they became more and more afraid for their own lives, and there was a good reason behind it. This was because they discovered, the more despairing, cruel, and vicious the curse that the new patient said, the easier it would turn into reality. In contrast, the happy, beautiful words that it said had never once been realized.

The remaining personas decided not to associate themselves with the new patient anymore, but alas, it was already too late. From the moment the murderer made his move, the new patient had started to curse all of them. With the death of each persona, the stench on the new patient would heighten slightly. That appeared to be the sacrifice that he had to pay for using this power.

After reading all nine diaries, the biggest reward that Chen Ge gained was that he managed to discover the ghost fetus' power. All of the curses that came out from his lips had the chance to become reality, and the more vicious the curses, the greater the chance of it becoming real. This power could be said to be the scariest that Chen Ge had ever encountered. It was not something that could be evaded, and nothing could be done to prevent it. At least, that appeared to be the case.

"Everything has a balance to it. Won't the ghost fetus need to give up something every time it curses someone?"

After reading all the diaries, other than the increasing stench on the new patient, it did not appear to have received any other negative influence.

"Looks like the best solution as to kill the ghost fetus because it has the chance to speak."

That was easier said than done. The ghost fetus was a Demon God. It would be difficult to even harm it, much less to attempt to kill it before it was given a chance to speak. Furthermore, if he made a move and failed to deliver the fatal blow, then he would suffer the monster's vicious revenge. Chen Ge replaced all nine diaries that he had found. He picked up his backpack again and prepared to go to the third room on the first floor to take a look.

"Chen Ge, why don't you take a longer rest? You do not look so good." Wen Qing was quite worried about Chen Ge. She held the phone and stayed close to Chen Ge as if worried that the latter might faint at any moment.

“I’m fine. Since the building still has not acted up, it is the perfect chance for us to conduct our investigation. When the place becomes chaotic, it will be too late to do anything.” Chen Ge’s senses had become much duller compared to before. In fact, even his voice carried the lethargy of an ailing man.

The third room of the first floor was number 0011. Chen Ge hesitated when he saw the number, but in the end, he chose to push open the room door. Room 0011 was rather different from the previous two rooms he had visited. Even though the walls were also painted white, one could see the dark red splotches of blood that the white coat of paint was trying to cover up.

“The first ten patients at the cursed hospital had special doctors to look over them. From the patient’s number, Patient 0011 could be considered the patient with the most serious illness among the ranks of ‘normal’ patients.”

Three different rooms had recorded the experience that had happened to the rag doll after it was sent to the hospital. The last trace of humanity that it had was wiped out from its body, and it became a complete monster. The cursed hospital appeared to be doing this on purpose; they were purposely pushing the rag doll to become some kind of monster, and who knew what kind of goal they were trying to achieve out of this?

The cursed hospital appeared in Jiujiang about twenty years ago. They wasted so much energy on the rag doll. Could it be because they knew that it was my shadow and the real person that they were trying to target is me?

The thought crossed Chen Ge’s mind, but he soon shook his head.

I am just a person who owns a haunted house. There is no reason for anyone to target me. The real target that they are after is probably the version of myself that cannot be killed no matter what. My parents’ disappearance probably has something to do with them as well.

Ever since he obtained the black phone, everything that Chen Ge had done was to find his own parents. At that moment, he felt like he had never been closer to the truth.

Chapter 1097 - Monster with All the Sin 2 in 1

1097 Monster with All the Sin 2 in 1

After entering Room 0011, Chen Ge noticed this room was rather different from the previous two rooms he had visited. The interior design and the placement of the furniture was pretty much the same, but the place had a very suffocating presence to it. Just standing in the living room would give one the feeling that one was running out of air. The sense of pressure came from all sides, as if something extremely dangerous was left on every single piece of furniture in the room. “Xiao Sun and Wen Qing, don’t touch any of the furniture in this room. Something is very wrong about this place.”

Many coats of paint covered the walls, but they were still not enough to cover up the large blood stains. The tiles were arranged neatly on the ground, but the gap between the tiles was black and red in color. From these small details, it seemed to suggest that something extremely scary had happened inside this room, and there had probably been more than one such incident.

“Three different sickrooms, and the patient inside each room is scarier than the one preceding it. The cursed hospital appears to be cultivating some kind of monster by moving the rag doll into different sickrooms, using the other patients to unleash its full potential by completely and utterly destroying and twisting its worldview.”

...

Chen Ge wandered about inside Room 0011. He looked through many drawers, but he was unable to find a diary.

“Strange, did the patient inside this room not leave behind any clues?”

For the most part, the world behind the door was made up from the door pusher's memory, but Xiang Nuan's door was quite unique. His memory had overlapped with the ghost fetus' memory, just like how the few buildings from Jin Hwa Apartments and Jiu Hong Apartments had mixed together. They intertwined and intercepted one another's existence peacefully, and it created this unique situation where two worlds were co-existing at the same time.

"These few sickrooms should be a part of the rag doll's memory. As long as it has seen the patient's diary, then the diary should show up inside the room somewhere, unless of course Patient 0011 did not have the habit of keeping a diary."

Chen Ge's condition was getting worse. His vision was getting blurry, and his body was slowly being assimilated by the darkness. Thankfully, though, he had Wen Qing accompanying him. This world behind the door appeared to have no effect on Wen Qing. Whenever Chen Ge's mind was fraying, Wen Qing was the first to remind him of it. She was extremely worried about Chen Ge.

It took almost half an hour for Chen Ge to find the diary of Patient 0011 inside a hollowed-out space underneath a tile. The diary was old and used. Every page was soaked in blood, and it had signs of being burnt. Weirdly enough, it looked rather similar to Zhang Ya's bedtime stories.

"It appears like the owner of the diary wanted to destroy this diary many times, but after realizing that was impossible, they chose to find a very secluded spot to hide it inside the room."

Chen Ge sat on the sofa inside the room, placed Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer next to his legs, and flipped open the diary.

"Many people said I have the natural talent needed to become a psychiatrist. They say I have endless so-called qualities that would make a good psychologist, but only I know that those are the things that I showed the world because I wanted to become a psychiatrist to begin with. I chose this career not because I wanted to help those who were lost but because I wish to cure myself. From the very beginning, I knew that I am sick, and as I furthered my studies, my conviction of that truth has only become more affirmative.

"x Year x Month x Date was a very important date to me. I was forced to remove my white doctor's coat and put on the patient's garb. The hospital has imprisoned me together with a monster who reeks of this horrible stench. I hate to write in a diary, but writing diary is one of the most effective and forced methods of treatment enforced by the hospital. I do not know whether I should write down the truth or insert some lies. How about I mix both of them together and see whether it will be able to force the doctors that they have assigned me to go crazy?”

Chen Ge looked at the handwriting on the diary and felt that it was oddly familiar. He felt like he had seen them somewhere before, but when he put his mind to try to remember it, the name eluded him. It was just out of his touch.

“Everyone has a part of their memory that is the most precious. For me, my daughter, who is just learning how to speak, and my wife are my everything. My story is very common. To provide them with a better future, I have chosen to work at this private hospital that is built at the border of Jiujiang and Xin Hai. Honestly, before I received their invitation, I did not even know such a hospital existed on the edge of Jiujiang. Initially, I wanted to reject the offer because the location was too far from my home, but the salary that they offered was too high for me to refuse. The income would have done wonders to improve my family’s living condition.

“Skipping over my years of internship, the first day I arrived at work, I noticed how different this hospital was from a normal hospital. There were only a few doctors that worked in the day, and there were barely any patients in sight. However, strangely enough, there were many night doctors. The hospital was built at an isolated location. It was incredibly difficult to even find transport to and from this place. The closest bus stop would require a forty-minute walk. On the third morning of my posting, the leader asked whether I was willing to stay at the hospital at the staff dormitory. I adamantly rejected the offer.

“Two days ago, I discovered many problems about this place. This hospital has many doctors and pictures of many doctors hung on the walls. But for the two days that I have worked here, I have only met a few of them, and they were all new doctors that had just been hired like myself. The one that had worked there the longest had worked there for only a month.

“The salary was insanely high, but there was practically nothing to do in the morning. The ratio of payment to workload was seriously imbalanced. If this was not a charitable institution, then it could only mean that they were after something else from the doctors. Actually, it was at this moment that I prepared to hand in my resignation letter.

The leader saw my intention to leave, and he arranged for me to work the night shift for one day. Then, he would have the accountant calculate and hand me the salary that I was owed for my few days of working there.

“He did not say anything to get me to stay, and that made me feel very unsettled. There were already so many doctors on night duty. They were not in need of an extra pair of hands, so why did he want me to work a night shift before I left?

“Anything that was illogical had a hidden danger. I would not risk such danger for some money. Perhaps it would look idiotic to others for me to forfeit three days’ salary, but I do not wish to explain my own action to anyone.

“I did not report to work that night. In fact, I did not even finish my shift in the morning that day and returned home after leaving the leader’s office. My wife thought I was being paranoid, and I hoped that she was right, but what happened later proved that I was far from wrong.

“No matter who you are, be it a patient or a doctor, if you are reading this, I have some advice for you. Try everything you can to leave this place. If there is a place on earth that is closest to hell, then this place will be it. After I escaped the hospital to come home, a series of unfortunate events trailed behind me. Many tragedies started to befall me and my family. None of these events could be explained using scientific theories. I used everything within my capability to protect myself, but I was unable to ensure the safety of my family.

“I knew what the hospital wanted, so on one of the nights, I had returned to the hospital. This time, I reported as a night doctor. And it was then that I understood the meaning of those pictures on the wall. So far, my story could be considered normal, but be warned, things are going to get real absurd in a minute. Common sense will not help you to understand them. But strangely enough, I started to have this feeling that perhaps at this hospital, I will be able to cure this illness that I have.”

At this point of the diary entry, a few pages were torn out. The missing pages were probably a description of the doctor’s working situation at the hospital during the night.

“The detailed information about the hospital has been removed. Is it the work of the rag doll, or did someone enter this building before me?" Chen Ge continued to read.

"I have successfully assimilated into this hospital and become a well-respected night doctor. To seek the treatment that would cure my own illness, I started to conduct some interesting experiments on the patients. Of course, I was probably the only doctor at the whole hospital who was sincerely trying to rescue the patients. The other doctors at this hospital were trying to lead them deeper and deeper into a despairing abyss.

"As time went on, my ability gained the approval of everyone around me. One night, I finally met the director of this hospital. He was a very serious-looking man, but he had a very common face, the type that you would forget after you had met him. I had a very weak impression of the man, but with regards to why, even I could not explain it to myself. He seemed to have tempered with my memory somehow.

"The director had a very long chat with me, and it was all because of one task that he wished to bequeath onto me. He wanted me to take care of Patient 0010. This would be the first time I would gain contact with patients in the first ten numbers. Before this, I'd only heard rumors about these patients at the hospital but never met them in person. It was like God often mentioned paradise, but not one living individual had seen paradise before. It was the same thing.

"I was thankful for the director's trust in me, but I shall not die. I still have my family that needs me. That was the first time I entered the door, and it was also the first time I saw 'hell'.

"The patients numbered one to ten were all kept behind that door, and the hospital behind the door was at least ten times larger than the hospital outside the door."

At this point, the diary had a few more pages torn out of it. Chen Ge could do nothing to help this. All he could do was continue reading.

"I have cured the illness of Patient 0010, but in the process, I have exposed my own illness. It was on that day that they removed my doctor's coat, I was no longer the Doctor Gao among the patients but Patient 0011 among the doctors. I have lost my name, but I will never forget my past."

At this point, Chen Ge's heart skipped a beat. He stared at the name on the entry, and his eyes did not blink for a long time.

“Doctor Gao? The same Doctor Gao that I know?”

Chen Ge envisioned the timeline in his mind. The shadow left Chen Ge when Chen Ge was six years old, and it was locked inside the hospital in the shape of a rag doll. The diary mentioned that this Doctor Gao’s wife was still alive then, and his daughter was just learning how to talk. Then it later mentioned that Doctor Gao worked for some time as a night doctor before he was exposed, turned into a patient, and locked together with the ghost fetus.

Chen Ge was about to be twenty-seven, and Gao Ru Xue was twenty-two. In terms of age, everything made sense.

“Could Patient 0011 really be Doctor Gao?” Chen Ge focused his attention on the handwriting in the diary. The sense of familiarity hit him again. “This does look familiar to Doctor Gao’s handwriting.”

“x Year x Month x Day, the patients that the doctors at this hospital hate the most are patient like myself because if they let their guard down, they will slowly be convinced by our argument and then gradually lose themselves, joining us. I know that I am hated. Many people at the hospital wish me dead. That’s probably why they locked me up with this monster. They want me to die in here. Perhaps, in their eyes, I am just a tool to incite this monster. They all believe that I will die by its hand, but in reality, they have all underestimated me.

“The monsters were called monsters because we were looking at them from the perspective of humans. Perhaps in the eyes of a monster, what differentiates us humans from a twisted and pitiable monster?

“To prevent myself from getting killed by my roommate, I started a systematic treatment on him. I have never tried my best to cure someone in my life before. Of course, the aim was not to cure him. I just wanted to try everything I could to turn him into my helper, to aid me in escaping from this godforsaken place.

“Everyone called him a monster, but I was willing to refer to him by his name. I needed a whole night to uncover his name. The monster gave himself the name ‘Chen Ge’. Whether I escaped this place or not, I probably would remember this name for life.”

The entries that followed were sporadic, and many pages were missing. Chen Ge had no clue what exactly happened inside this room, but he was certain of one thing. The ghost fetus’ collapsed and twisted worldview was slowly being rectified with Doctor Gao’s help.

He was no longer a monster possessed by curse and hatred but an 'anomaly' who had a way of thinking that was different from normal. The doctors at the hospital hoped that Doctor Gao would be killed, but several weeks had passed, and Doctor Gao was still alive.

In fact, he managed to gain contact with the other patients under the watchful gaze of the doctors. In the later part of Doctor Gao's diary, Patient 0005 and Patient 0006 were mentioned several times. With the cooperation of most of the patients and a small number of doctors, the preparation was long and tedious, but they finally found the chance that they were waiting for.

The diary did not go into detail about what that chance was, but from side notes and allusions in the diary, Doctor Gao's chance was related to Patient 0002. Something happened in the hospital behind the door. Doctor Gao latched onto this opportunity that rarely presented itself and prepared to escape with the rag doll. They almost succeeded, but ultimately, they had underestimated the hospital's horror.

Doctor Gao's diary did not mention how he was recaptured; it merely detailed the consequences of being captured. The rag doll was imprisoned behind a black iron door while curses were applied to Doctor Gao until he almost died from it.

A normal person would have submitted at this point, but Doctor Gao was not a normal person. He chose to lie low for a while. To survive, nothing was beyond the man. Time was meaningless behind the door. He had started to accept the illness that he had, the one that he was born with and the one they gave him. Many unfortunate events were happening to him, but from the entries in the diary, the words were all uplifting and inspirational.

This was more than a simple change of the mind; he had completely accepted the illness as part of his own making. He no longer sought ways to cure it but chose to accept it. The diary did not mention the illness in detail. Chen Ge believed that was Doctor Gao's greatest secret. After all, he had encountered the maddened Doctor Gao in Li Wan City before. He was entwined by chains and was impossibly strong.

The dates in the diary had all been crossed off. Who knew how long passed before Doctor Gao got his second chance? Similarly, the details of this second chance were not mentioned. It merely alluded to Patient 0001 and the red city. After learning the lesson from before, Doctor Gao and the ghost fetus, who had been preparing for a long time, managed to escape from that hospital with most of the patients.

That was where the diary ended, but it had left a lasting impression on Chen Ge. Many pieces had started to fall into place. If his prediction was not wrong, many questions would be answered.

“When Doctor Gao first heard my name from Gao Ru Xue, he became interested in me. When I was doing the mission at Mu Yang High School, he even personally called to give me guidance in the middle of the night. Other than that, I found a lot of information about the haunted house that Doctor Gao had collected at his house. He probably started the investigation into my haunted house a long time ago. Now that I think about it, perhaps the death of Doctor Gao’s wife was related to this hospital. The whole thing that he had set from when he was still alive to after his death was not only to revive his wife but perhaps to seek revenge as well.”

Closing the diary, the question that Doctor Gao asked when they were at the underground morgue appeared in Chen Ge’s mind.

“Good versus evil and sin versus punishment, there is a dichotomy to everything in this world.” The man held up the head in his palm.

“Then, what is the opposite of human?”

Now that he had gotten a better sense of Doctor Gao’s past, Chen Ge had a renewed understanding of this statement.

Chapter 1098 - The Black Phone“s Real Purpose? 2 in 1

1098 The Black Phone“s Real Purpose? 2 in 1

The diary in Room 0011 was missing a lot of pages, so it was all Chen Ge could do to fill in the blanks with his own educated guesses as he flipped through the pages. It took him half an hour to finish reading the diary and put it down.

“What do you think? Did you find anything?” Wen Qing noticed how strange Chen Ge was acting, which in itself was a strange event. So far, Chen Ge had not been fazed by anything that they had encountered in this world behind the door, while when he was perusing the pages of the diary, the man’s expression had changed many a time.

“I have understood some very crucial things. Everything that we see now is the consequence of an action that was committed a long time ago.” Chen Ge placed Doctor Gao’s doctor inside his backpack, alongside Zhang Ya’s bedtime story. The man’s physical condition was worsening, and he found it very difficult to keep his emotions from running wild. From the Ghost Stories Society to Eastern Jiujiang’s Li Wan City, there had been some kind of connection between the ghost fetus and Doctor Gao. Chen Ge did not quite understand it then, but now he finally apprised himself of the reason behind it.

...

Perhaps, from the very beginning, the members of the Ghost Stories Society were made up from the patients that have escaped from the cursed hospital. They knew that they were sick, and they were using their own method to cure their own illness. None of the patients at the hospital have their own name; they are referred to by their patient’s number. It was the same for the Ghost Stories Society. Every member had their own number that they corresponded to. There are many more similarities, so from the very beginning, some of the clues have been right before my eyes.

Chen Ge sat on the sofa and held his chin in thought.

Doctor Gao knew the ghost fetus' name as Chen Ge. So, when I first came to the Ghost Stories Society, he did not make things difficult for me. In fact, he had helped me join the society successfully. That was probably the only chance he had to kill me; even with Zhang Ya's aid, I would not have been able to handle so many society members at the same time. Is it possible that Doctor Gao still knew some other secrets like the background information of Patients 0001 to 0010? Would his interest in me be related to these ten patients as well?

Chen Ge was contemplating the many questions in his mind when the building started to shake like it had been hit by an earthquake! The aftershock of this occurrence was much more intense than the three times before it, and it lasted even longer.

"Yet another body part of the rag doll has been found in a different building?"

Things started to change inside the building. The stench in the air became more intense. Everyone's breathing became more difficult, like there was a chain that had started to wrap around everyone's neck. Many strange noises started to come from outside the building. It sounded like some kind of monster ramming continuously into the walls of the building. Harrowing screams filtered into their ears. Even if they covered up their ears, they could still hear them clearly. It was as if the screams were coming from inside them.

After the building stopped shaking, the first thing Chen Ge did was take out his own comic.

"The body parts of the rag doll are the foundation of this world behind the door. Now that the foundation has been shaken, it means that the world itself will be unstable, and thus, the limitation on my employees will become smaller."

Throughout the comic, the pages were bleeding. Every page was crawling with blood vessels, and if one looked closer, one could see many ghastly faces that were trying to surface on the pages. Seeing such a grotesque sight, Chen Ge finally revealed a rare smile.

“It won’t be long now. They are going to arrive soon!”

His tone had an undercurrent of madness to it. Holding the bloody comic, Chen Ge mumbled empathically to himself. A grin that only he would understand hung on his face. Both Wen Qing and Xiao Sun moved subconsciously away from the sofa. They thought that Chen Ge at that moment was rather scary. The presence that radiated off him was no weaker than the monsters behind the door.

“The fourth earthquake was probably the result of the other outsiders. They now know the locations of two of the rag doll’s body parts. Looks like I will have to pick up my pace.”

Standing up, Chen Ge carried his backpack and dragged Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer toward the door.

“Chen Ge, why don’t you take a few minutes of rest? You can’t even stand steadily on your feet.” Wen Qing walked over to try to support Chen Ge, but she was rejected by the latter.

“It’s okay. I am fine.”

Walking out from Room 0011, Chen Ge came to the last room on the first floor. The number on the door said 0005.

“Patient 0005?” Chen Ge thought that Patient 0011 would be the limitation of the rag doll’s memory. He was surprised to find the room for Patient 0005 in this building. “Based on the description on the multiple diaries that I have found, the patients numbered one to ten are categorically different from the other patients. But since the room for Patient 0005 has appeared at this place, will the room of Patient 0001 be upstairs?”

His heart started to race like it was going to jump out from his heart. For reasons unknown to Chen Ge, when his mind focused on Patient 0001, the blood in his body would start to boil.

Pushing open the door to Room 0005, Chen Ge entered the room. Every object inside Room 0005 was covered in a layer of blood. The furniture was heavily damaged. There was nothing that was usable or intact inside the room.

“The person who stayed here must have had a tendency to destroy.” Wen Qing carefully stepped around the trash on the ground and walked toward Chen Ge.

“Do not stay too far away from me. The three of us should look around the room to see if we can find any important clues.”

The previous three sickrooms that they had visited had a layer of paint over the walls. Even though there were traces of blood in the rooms, at least someone had attempted to cover them up, but it was completely different for Room 0005. No one tried to cover up the travesty that had happened here. The whole room was black and red in color. Chen Ge took a careful look around. He did not find any diary in the room, but he did notice many small characters that were carved out using fingernails on the walls of the bedroom. Most of the letters had been mixed with the blood, and they looked like they came right out of a scary movie.

“I really do not dare imagine the state of the person’s mind when they wrote these things. This is just madness.” Xiao Sun hid at the back of the group. His worldview had been shattered again and again that night. Now, nothing could surprise him anymore. While Xiao Sun and Wen Qing were both stunned by the markings on the wall, Chen Ge had already walked forward to inspect it. As he carefully cleaned away the stained blood, he started to read the words that were left behind.

“I have started to forget many things. A few days ago, I could still remember my name, but now there is only a number that is left in my head!

“I know my memory is failing me. I am forgetting more and more things, but there is one thing that I will never forget—kill the hospital director!

“I do not know why such a directive has been stuck in my mind, and I do not have a clue as to why I would want to do something like that. Perhaps the hospital director is the reason I am in this state. But what exactly has he done to me? Why can’t I remember anything about it?

“The new roommate died beside my bed. When I woke up, he was already dead. There are no other people in the room. If we rule out the possibility of suicide, then the only logical explanation is that I have murdered him, but how come I have no memory of that at all?

“The doctors said I am seriously ill, but how come they do not conduct any treatment on me? All they did was rotate new roommates for me so that every morning I will wake up to a fresh dead body next to my bed. I have gotten used to opening my eyes to a fresh body every morning until the day my wife moved in with me. She was still as beautiful as I could remember. I asked the doctors about my wife's condition. The doctors only told me that she was sick, and they clammed up after that. I could not get them to tell me more about my wife.

"I tried to communicate with my wife, but she refused to utter even a word. I could see that she is very afraid. She is afraid of the environment that she has been deposited in, and she is afraid of me. But why should be afraid of me? She is the one person that I love the most in the world. Why would I actively harm her?

"That night I did not sleep. When the sun rose, my wife was still cowering in the corner of the room. She is still alive!

"I have beaten myself. I slammed repeatedly on the iron door. I wanted the doctor to move my wife to another room. But the only answer I got from the empty corridor was the echo of my own voice. What should I do? No one was there to tell me the answer. I tried various method to keep myself awake, but it was getting more and more difficult.

"I forgot when I did eventually fall asleep, but when I opened my eyes, I was already sent to the other side of the door. In the deepest part of hell, the line between life and death is blurred. The hours of my consciousness became less and less. Most of the time, I have no idea what I am doing, or perhaps I am no longer myself. My body was taken over by the monster who had been hiding inside me. All the patients around me and the doctors have seen that monster before, but I am the only one who has not met him.

"Everyone is afraid of that monster, but I personally am desperate to meet him because I need to ask him whether my wife is still alive or not.

"When I am conscious, the doctors make me suffer all kinds of curses. The curses were yanked out from strangers' bodies. They died from the curse, so the curses carried their memories and despair. Being a vessel of other people's curses was no different from carrying their past. These things were nothing but pain for me, but it appeared to be some kind of nutrition for the monster inside my body.

"The life behind the door was spent in a haze of mindlessness and blurriness. Only a few words were left in my brain—kill the hospital director, my wife, and my patient's number. Just as I thought my life would end in this miserable way, I met a doctor wearing a patient's outfit. His surname was Gao, and he had a rag doll with a horrible smell following behind him. The smell that the doll gave off was no longer something that could be put into words.

"We are all trapped inside the nineteenth floor of hell. There are no friends and family in the world of black and white. Trying to converse with others in this place is something very dangerous because no one knows what will happen next. When I first saw him, honestly I felt some pity for the man because I knew that the next time I woke up, he would turn into a dead body.

"When I opened my eyes and woke up from my coma, I was surprised that the doctor was standing beside me! He was still alive! This was proof that my wife could still be alive as well!

"He seemed to be able to see into a person's heart. Before I mentioned anything, he brought up my wife voluntarily. From his lips, I found out what I did to her. My wife is already dead. She was killed by the monster inside my body. I started to hate my body. I wanted to die alongside the monster inside my body, but I was stopped by Doctor Gao. He slowly brought me back to the world of the sane. It was not my fault that my wife is dead. After all, it was the monster who killed her, not me. And the monster was planted inside my body by the hospital director, so if anyone is to blame, it is all the hospital director's fault!

"I could die if I want to, but that would be after we murdered the hospital director. After talking to Doctor Gao, I finally understood why that directive had always lingered in my mind—kill the hospital director. He is the culprit! This is all his fault! He must die!

"I started to pretend to cooperate with the hospital's treatment. With Doctor Gao's suggestion, I pretended to faint and started to act like the other version of myself. To have the doctor believe in my amateur acting, Doctor Gao suggested I murder the first doctor that entered my room. I followed his instructions. Technically, that was the first time I have killed someone.

"That must have sounded quite ironic. For the person whose hands were already filled with blood and could not have sinned deeper even if he tried, the first time I killed a man was to pretend to be a monster. At that time, I still did not understand that once a habit had been given the chance to grow, it would be hard to stop it from progressing in the future.

“The night doctors’ reaction was all within Doctor Gao’s prediction. It was the first time I was sent into the deepest part of hell when I was fully conscious. Opening that iron door that was painted black, I saw the monster who carried the whole hospital on its back. It moved inside the endless black fog. It had a face that was not that different from a normal human face. I did not dare look directly at it because my body was shaking nonstop. I did not want to be exposed due to fear.

“The doctors were talking beside them. They were saying things that I could not understand, something about only by taking on all the sin could one gain the corresponding power. Not everyone in the world was capable of taking so much sin. The hospital had been searching for that unique soul. Me, Doctor Gao, and that rag doll that reeked were all targets that they had chosen, but none of us fit the hospital’s requirement. Their real purpose appeared to be building a blood red city. That was something that they were preparing, so they needed a soul that could support and carry the sins of an entire city.

“I do not understand why they would want to do something like that, but I did not have much time to think. The black fog invoked the monster inside my body, and it was slowly consuming the part of myself that remained.”

There were many words carved out on the walls. They were jumbled up together in a maddening entry. Most of them were too old and too stained by blood to make out. Chen Ge tried his best to decipher them, and the above was the best result he could achieve.

“I do not really quite understand what he is talking about. It is better for this kind of madman to be locked up. It is for the betterment of the society.” Xiao Sun stared at the bloody words on the wall, and his back broke out in cold sweat.

“What if they all started as normal humans like you and me?” Chen Ge had no affection to lose for that hospital. If they thought a person had the potential, they would use various methods to force them to go mad and then slowly initiate their ‘treatment’ on them. With his back on the wall, Chen Ge combined all the content of the diaries that he had read so far, and he noticed something that was quite surprising.

Doctor Gao consumed the door of the underground morgue, and he voluntarily chose to suffer all the sin that originated from the underground morgue. The morgue itself had no problem, but Doctor Gao made use of the Ghost Stories Society and its members to feed the morgue with sin. A person as clever as him had to know what that represents. It feels like he was actively trying to accept the sin of the entire the Ghost Stories Society.

Then we look at the ghost fetus. He has rebuilt Jiu Hong Apartments behind Xiang Nuan's world and locked up the sins behind each building, using them to counter the black fog, forming a deserted island of humanity. This is, in a way, a precursor to the formation of a red city.

Lastly, it is the hospital's way of operation. Through the records in this room, we know that Patient 0005 saw the monster that carried the sin of the entire hospital in the world behind the hospital's door. It moved amid the black fog, and he exposed that the real purpose of the hospital was to create a red city.

Everyone is working toward the red city in their own way. What is so attractive about the red city that compels them to do so? And to create such a city, must there be someone who steps forward to suffer the sin of the whole city or it won't work?

With this train of thought, Chen Ge suddenly turned to look at his hands.

Based on the missions given by the black phone, I have slowly taken steps toward a goal. Now that I look back, it seems like I have already involuntarily taken on all the sins and the pasts of my ghost employees that I have met along the way. Could that be the black phone's real purpose? Is it trying to build a red city through me as well?

Chapter 1099 - Red and Black World 2 in 1

1099 Red and Black World 2 in 1

All the question led back to the red city. Chen Ge himself had a deep impression of that city, but he could not understand why it appeared like everyone wanted to build a similar city in their own way. Some old questions had been answered, but that only led to the formation of a new series of questions. Chen Ge took out his phone and snapped some pictures and videos of the wall. Even though he could not tell for sure whether they could still be playable after he left the door, this was not a resource to be wasted. They had already checked all four rooms on the first floor, but the group did not find the body parts of the rag doll there.

“Brother, you aren’t planning to go upstairs, are you? Have you already forgotten what happened to us in Jiu Hong Apartments Block 1? I guarantee that there are very dangerous monsters hiding up there!” Xiao Sun gnashed his teeth and made a scary face to try to stop Chen Ge, but unfortunately Chen Ge was never one who could be easily persuaded. Once he had made a decision about something, he would pursue it until its very end. Just like how he had first taken over the haunted house after his parent’s disappearance, even if he had to cough up his own money to maintain the place because the income was not enough to even cover the utility bills, he was not going to give up.

The Doctor Skull Cracker’s hammer in his hand was getting heavier and heavier. Chen Ge felt like he could barely drag it along with him anymore.

...

There must be something possessing me, or else this would not have happened!

Green veins popped on his neck. Chen Ge swung a heavy fist at the air before him. He hated this kind feeling of weakened feeling a lot.

“Chen Ge, I think you should take a longer rest. I am more worried about Xiang Nuan’s safety than you are, but if you continue to force yourself like this, I am afraid that before we can find Xiang Nuan, you will be the one to collapse first.”

Wen Qing had noticed how strangely Chen Ge was acting. It did not appear that he was exhausted from fatigue, but he was falling under a serious illness. His teammates were all trying to persuade Chen Ge, but the latter only shook his head.

“I have a very bad feeling about all this. The peace will soon be shattered. If we are unable to find enough trump cards before the tragedy arrives, we will not even be given the chance to sit at the card table. Do you understand what I am trying to say?”

“I honestly cannot say that I do. What I can understand is that you look incredibly tired, like a child who has just attempted a marathon for the first time. Your body has reached its limits, but you still want to force yourself to finish the whole journey.”

Wen Qing still wanted to add something, but she was interrupted by Chen Ge with a quick wave of his hand.

“The failure to finish a marathon can only be considered a regret, but if we stop here, then there is a high chance we won’t even have the chance to move forward anymore.”

Chen Ge walked out of Room 0005 and entered the staircase. At this point, Chen Ge could not tell whether it was his mind playing tricks on him or if he really did catch a sniff of disinfectant in the air. This smell intermingled with the stench that had been following them to form a very strange and pungent smell. It made people want to cover their mouth and nose involuntarily.

The black iron door inside the worlds of the other children’s door also give off this smell of disinfectant. Does this mean that I am getting closer to the ghost fetus’ deepest secret?

Holding the banister as support, Chen Ge reached the second floor. This whole corridor was sealed up. All the windows were blocked out by cement, but interestingly enough, someone had drawn out a new picture of the windows using blood on top of the original windows that had been cemented.

“Blood represents pain and tragedy, but the window represent the outside world and hope, so what does a window painted by blood mean?”

The second-floor corridor was extremely suffocating. It was like an enclosed space. There was not even a draft that could be felt. Walking down the corridor, Chen Ge studied the doors that led down the walls, and he stopped moving. The doors of the rooms on the second floor were different from the doors of the rooms on the first floor. They were no longer sickroom doors with small windows on them but many pure black iron doors. These doors were more like prison doors that were used to imprison criminals. Most doors had blood and other unknown stains lingering on them, and they had a large lock on them.

“They can’t be opened?” Chen Ge used the ring of keys that he found at Jin Hwa Apartments to give them a try. None of the keys matched.

“Black iron door and the smell of disinfectant in the air. These few doors should be hiding the ghost fetus’ last secret behind them.”

Resisting the tearing pain from his corneas, Chen Ge used his Yin Yang Vision as he leaned at the gap of the first iron door and looked through it. There was complete darkness in the room, and many broken and shattered toys were littered on the ground. The toys reminded Chen Ge of the toys that he once played with when he was still a child. Chen Ge guessed the hospital probably purchased most of them based on the ghost fetus’ requirements and demands.

“All of the toys have been ruined. Not one remains intact. Looks like the ghost fetus has already understood that even if he was playing with the toys from way back when, he could no longer return to that time of innocence anymore. He was no longer anyone’s shadow. He was just a child who was being pushed to the edge of his sanity.”

Since the door was locked, this was the only way Chen Ge could study the room. Just as he pulled back his gaze and was ready to walk toward the second door, the whole building started to shake again. The shock this time was much stronger than any of the quakes that preceded it!

“Kneel down! Get close to the wall!” Chen Ge gripped the hammer tightly. His knees gave away underneath him. He crumbled to the ground, and his face was startlingly pale. The screaming and wailing from outside the building became more intense. The monsters that were hiding inside the black fog appeared to be attacking the buildings inside the residential area madly. More cracks appeared on the walls. Some of the black fog had already started to leak into the interior of the buildings!

“Ah!” Wen Qing, who was not that far from Chen Ge, let out a scream. Her body appeared to be dragged along by an invisible force. Someone was trying to pull her downstairs.

“Chen Ge!” The panicked Wen Qing called Chen Ge for help. At that moment, the shaking still had not stopped. Chen Ge had no better idea; he could only watch as Wen Qing was being dragged down the stairs.

“Xiao Sun, we need to go after her!” Crawling on his hands and knees, Chen Ge had never been so flustered in his life. Xiao Sun and Chen Ge followed Wen Qing to the first floor, and as they turned the corner, they arrived just in time to see Wen Qing being dragged by that invisible power into Room 0097. “We will get into that room as well!”

Just as Chen Ge and Xiao Sun crossed the threshold into Room 0097, a loud thud came from the floor above them. It sounded like one of the iron doors had been shoved open, and the door slammed heavily on the wall.

What escaped from the room?

The trio hid inside Room 0097. Chen Ge stood closest to the door as he paid full attention to the corridor outside the door. A continuously banging sound came from the staircase, and the sound was getting closer and closer. A few seconds later, Chen Ge saw a head that was completely mutilated pass by the gap in the door. Connected to the head was a body made from curses. The threads that gave off an air of misfortune were intertwined together to keep the shape of the body intact. It was radiating this horrible smell.

Was it the rag doll’s head that ran out from the building just now?

The human head moved so fast that Chen Ge did not have the chance to see the front of its face. He only caught the glimpse of the back of the head that was covered in stitches. After the head rushed out of Jiu Hong Apartments Block 2, the building that Chen Ge’s group was in shook even harder like the whole building could collapse at any moment.

The rag doll’s different body parts are placed inside different building to use as foundation to steady the entire residential area. So, why would the human head in this Block 2 walk out on its own? Is it because the situation has gotten so dire that it must make its move?

Chen Ge realized that he had greatly underestimated the people from the cursed hospital. They had a very good understanding of the ghost fetus. This time, their entry behind the door should have been preceded by thorough preparation. They had brought a lot of pressure for the ghost fetus.

Looks like most of the ghost fetus' attention would be turned onto the people from the cursed hospital. This is good news for me.

With his back against the wall, Chen Ge slowly slid to the ground. He was currently incredibly tired. The tiredness appeared to come straight from his soul no matter how long he tried to rest, and the fatigue refused to go away.

But I still cannot let my guard down. I am not in such good condition. After all, this is the world behind the ghost fetus' door. Perhaps it wants to deal with both the people from the cursed hospital and me at the same time, killing two birds with one stone.

The ground was shaking as if the whole building was starting to teeter on its edge. Many spidery cracks appeared on the wall as more and more black fog leaked into the building.

This is not good. Since the head has left, the building is not safe from the black fog. This place is no longer safe for us to stay or explore.

Chen Ge struggled to stand up, but he was really too tired. His muscles refused to cooperate. Lethargy and tiredness overwhelmed his mind; he felt like fainting. His body felt like it was trying to take back all the taxing efforts that Chen Ge had forced upon it in the past at once. The white paint on the wall started to peel and exposed the walls behind them that were completely covered in blood. Room 0097 was like a peeled fruit, but underneath the pretty skin was not the delicious flesh of fruit but a mess of guts and blood.

"Move the table and closet over here. We will hide at the corner of the wall." The earthquake safety knowledge that Chen Ge had learned in kindergarten came into use then. The trio squeezed themselves in the corner of the room that should be the most structurally stable. "Later, more black fog might seep into the building, and that means the monsters inside the black fog will follow it as well. We have to be more careful of our surroundings."

Xiao Sun opened his lips to ask weakly, "Can we only stay here passively and wait for this to pass?"

"Why? Do you have an idea that can help us to fight back?"

"No, I just think that it might be safer for us to return to Jin Hwa Apartments Block A. That building appears to be relatively safer than this place."

"Don't worry, when the time is right, we will definitely return to that place. After all, my cat is still there." Chen Ge had never felt so drained in his life. Now, even talking was a taxing exercise. The quake not only did not stop, it only started to get more intense. Both Xiao Sun and Wen Qing worried that this old building would not be able to survive, and it would tumble upon itself. Chen Ge was not worried about that. The main buildings were made up from the ghost fetus' memory. Unless something serious happened to the ghost fetus, these few buildings would not crumble so easily.

"Do not panic for now. I have a few questions that I need to clarify with the both of you at this moment." Chen Ge turned to Wen Qing. "You were the first to run earlier. I saw that you appeared to be pulled by someone..."

"It felt like Xiang Nuan." Before Chen Ge finished, Wen Qing already provided him with an answer. She hugged her arms in front of her chest. "When he was very young, I was leading him cross the road. Halfway through, he started to pull me back with as much force as he could muster. I stopped moving, and before I could ask him why he was doing that, a car that appeared to have gone out of control flew past the spot where I was standing earlier. Later, I heard from the news that the driver was drunk out of his mind when he was behind the wheel."

Slowly lifting her hands, Wen Qing crossed her fingers together.

"The feeling reminded me of that when I was pulled along by the invisible hands earlier. He would only reach out to grab me voluntarily when the situation was at its most dangerous. The child rarely allows other adults to touch him, much less taking the initiative to reach out and grab another person's hand."

"In other words, this proves that Xiang Nuan has always been by our side, but we are unable to see him. But is this Xiang Nuan the same Xiang Nuan that we are looking for?" Chen Ge's one sentence had completely befuddled Wen Qing and Xiao Sun. They had no idea what Chen Ge was talking about or worried for. His physique was greatly decreasing like someone was continuously feasting on his energy. He suspected that someone was Xiang Nuan. The thing was invisible, but he was definitely there.

I am one of the nine children, but I still do not understand what I represent. Perhaps the ghost fetus wishes to take over my body. After all, it has shown many times that it has wanted to become me.

Leaning against the wall, Chen Ge's body vibrated alongside the whole building. He closed his eyes and an extremely scary thought crossed his mind.

Could the ghost fetus have predicted that the people from the cursed hospital and myself would enter his door at this time? He probably predicted that we would have found the other children before entering this last door and took the power away from the children.

The powers of those children were incredibly attractive to the people behind the door. After all, they represent part of the power of a demon god. Most of the patients would attempt to take the power for themselves when they were faced with the children with that power, just like the monsters from the cursed hospital and Jia Ming. If we'd taken all the powers for ourselves and then entered this last door at the same time, doesn't that also mean that we have helped the ghost fetus gather all his power and then bring them back to him inside his door? After killing all of us, the ghost fetus will be able to complete a perfect rebirth!

Chen Ge was frightened by his own thought, but moments later, he calmed down again.

The people from the cursed hospital might have killed the children to take the power for themselves, but I did not do that. I returned the children's powers back to them so that they can return to a normal life.

Wiping away the cold sweat that slid down his forehead, Chen Ge did not expect his accidental acts of kindness to possibly become his saving grace behind this door.

I was not greedy, so the ghost fetus was destined to be deprived of a perfect rebirth. It will be missing many important powers. There is still a chance.

More cracks appeared on the wall, and the black fog in the corridor thickened.

Bang!

The fog gushed down the corridor, and it carried some strange noises.

“Chen Ge, do you hear children crying?”

“No.” When Chen Ge turned around, he saw Wen Qing standing beside him. Her hands were lifted up in the air like someone was pulling her along. “What is going on with your hands?”

“He is here. He is just standing in front of you...” Just as Wen Qing finished, her body leaned forward. The door of Room 0097 was pulled open, and Wen Qing ran out.

“Has the woman lost her mind?” Xiao Sun was still kneeling on the ground. He was confused by this turn of events. He had no idea what Wen Qing was up to.

“Follow her!” Chen Ge gritted his teeth as he forced himself to stand up. He grabbed Xiao Sun by his shoulders. “This place is probably not safe anymore.”

The black fog rushed into the corridor. Rows of human heads lined up together in the fog. They crawled along the wall like some kind of centipede.

“What kind of monsters are those?”

Holding each other as support, Chen Ge and Xiao Sun rushed out from the black fog and headed upstairs. The monsters were unable to leave the protection of the black fog, but they seemed to have discovered Chen Ge and Xiao Sun. They kept wiggling their disgusting and ugly bodies in the fog. When they reached the fourth floor, Chen Ge’s condition could not have been worse. It was Xiao Sun who had been carrying him up the stairs and brought him to the sixth floor where Wen Qing had gone. From the third floor onward, all the doors were the black iron door. Most of them were locked; only the end room on the sixth floor was open.

“The rag doll’s head probably ran out from his room.” Chen Ge did not give it much thought, but after he entered the room, he was stunned because the interior decoration of the room was similar to Chen Ge’s bedroom that was in the attic of the haunted house from ten years ago.

The head is where the memory is stored. The ghost fetus has been living in my old room? Does it not know that this is just a part of the illusion that it has created for itself?

Every black iron door should be hiding the ghost fetus' memory, and this last door was no exception. Chen Ge just did not expect the ghost fetus to still have such fresh memory of his own home. Lying on the familiar bed, Chen Ge's memory was fuzzy. When he was young, both his and his parent's bedrooms were situated on the top floor of the haunted house. After he moved out for school and work and when he returned to take over the business, his parents had already disappeared, and the attic of the haunted house had been transformed into a storage room. Actually, most of Chen Ge's childhood memories were related to the attic as well. More than that, it was in the attic that he had found the black phone and the first doll that he made himself.

I have already forgotten this feeling, but the ghost fetus still remembers it. This is quite surprising.

With this thought in mind, Chen Ge suddenly sat up. He struggled to open the other door in the room. This was the bathroom that was attached to his bedroom. With his hands on the sink, Chen Ge lifted his head to look at the mirror above the sink!

Everything is similar to how I remembered it. Even this mirror and you inside the mirror have not changed...

Chen Ge's hands were popping with veins. His pupils narrowed as he stared straight at the mirror before him. The surface of the mirror that was stained dirty reflected the faces of two children that looked identical to each other.

But one of them had a soft countenance and a light that refused to be extinguished in his eyes, while the other had hollowed sockets, and the eyes appeared to be vessels for all the sins that existed in the world!

Chapter 1100 - The First Employee to Wake Up 2 in 1

1100 The First Employee to Wake Up 2 in 1

His mind appeared to have been struck by lightning. The layer of ice that had sealed up his memory started to crack, and flashes of images that Chen Ge thought he had forgotten floated up in his mind.

“Ghost fetus...” Two similar faces stared at the mirror at the same time. They managed to see the other version of themselves inside each other’s eyes. Chen Ge’s body shook harder and harder; his whole body was going numb. He was losing control from head to toe. It was as if someone had trampled so viciously on his heart several times that simple breathing became an arduous task for him.

On the blurry mirror, the child with the hollowed eyes strangled the other child by his neck. His hands that closed around the neck slowly gathered strength. The eyes that were filled with sin and despair appeared to have some other emotions flowing through them as well. They appeared like sadness and at the same time like pain.

...

“Chen Ge!” Both Xiao Sun and Wen Qing finally noticed the strange way Chen Ge was acting. They both rushed into the bathroom to try to support Chen Ge, but the latter’s condition did not appear to get any better. Every nerve on his body was pulled taut, and every muscle in his body was shaking. The blood was roiling madly in his capillaries as many different scary and cruel images flashes across his mind. He had no memory of these images that just appeared. In other words, they left no impression on him. He would forget about them after they had left his mind.

He could not recall the exact circumstances behind any of these images, but he could see clearly that there were two children inside each picture. These were the ghost fetus' memories, or rather, Chen Ge and the ghost fetus' shared memories.

"M-mirror..." As he gritted his teeth, Chen Ge's mind was a huge blank. He could not control his body at all. It was as if he had lost control of his body at that very moment. The body no longer belonged to him. The hands that gripped the edge of the sink slowly let go. Chen Ge's body tipped dangerously backward. He looked at the faces of the two children in the mirror, and the very last image surfaced in his mind.

In the dark city, three red doors were pushed open at the same time!

Pa!

The mirror shattered into smithereens, and the pieces cut Chen Ge's cheeks. The mirror flew everywhere as Chen Ge's body landed heavily to the ground. He slowly returned to normal. The mirror on the wall had been shattered, and the two children's faces were no longer visible on the surface of the blurry mirror anymore.

"Chen Ge!" Putting down the wooden chair she was holding, after Wen Qing shattered the mirror, she squatted down beside Chen Ge. "Are you feeling better?"

"All I can say is that I am still alive." Chen Ge was lying on the ground. Weakened was no longer the correct word to describe his condition. He could now sense quite clearly that someone was trying to take over his body. "I am also one of the nine chosen children by the ghost fetus. The thing that the ghost fetus wants from me should be my physical body."

When he was helping the other children, he did not feel a sensation as strong as this. But now that it was his turn, he finally understood how painful and helpless this feeling of having something so crucial to your existence forcibly taken away from you was. The building was still quivering, and strange noises kept echoing around the residential area. The black fog had rolled up to the top floor. The situation had reached the most dangerous hour.

"Let me help you up." Xiao Sun carried Chen Ge to the bed. Wen Qing went over to help Chen Ge pick up the backpack that he had dropped on the ground, but just as she was about to touch the backpack, her body was pulled back by an invisible and dragged away from the backpack. Both Xiao Sun and Chen Ge saw this rather clearly.

“What’s inside your bag?” Xiao Sun tried to grab the backpack. He was just trying to help Chen Ge by returning the backpack to him, but as his hand touched the backpack, trails of fresh blood climbed onto his arms like they were ready to consume his body and soul.

“Stop what you’re doing! Do not act rashly!” Chen Ge used the last ounce of energy he had in his body to scream. “Give the bag to me.”

Xiao Sun was startled and scared. Of course, he let go of the backpack and did not dare get near it anymore. He quickly moved the backpack and Doctor Skull Cracker’s Hammer to Chen Ge’s side.

“Brother, I think your bag is bleeding.” Xiao Sun did not dare ask too many questions. He stood quietly and obediently beside the bed. His hands gripped the headboard to prevent himself from falling. There were forces fighting inside the residential area. Something appeared to slam into the building repeatedly. The shaking was so hard that if the people inside the building did not hold onto something, they would fall easily.

“How come I feel like this place is going to collapse at any moment, and why haven’t either of you said anything about it?” Xiao Sun looked at Wen Qing, whose face was pale like a sheet of paper, and Chen Ge, who was collapsed like a dead man on the bed. Who would have thought that he would one day become the leader of this group? “Looks like I will have to do something, or we will all die!”

Chen Ge ignored Xiao Sun. He used all the energy that he had to place his hand on the backpack. When the tip of his finger touched the backpack, his heart also slowly calmed down. A shade of red curled around his arm. Chen Ge could feel the energy of his body recovering, but at the same time, his body temperature continued to drop.

“One of the Red Specters is helping me?” The ghost fetus wanted to take over Chen Ge’s body. Chen Ge alone would not be able to stop that. He was too weak to fight against the ghost fetus, but the equation would not be the same if his employees were added into the mix. Even though the Red Specters were still limited by the rules behind the door so that they could not unleash their full potential, the ghost fetus was not at its peak. Its body was split and hidden in many different places. While he needed to maintain the stability behind the door, he had to deal with the intrusion of the other outsiders.

He slowly regained control of his body and his senses. Chen Ge realized that as more cracks appeared on the building, the limitation of the world behind the door on his employees became weaker and weaker. There were two sides to a coin. After losing the rag doll's head, the black fog started to seep into Jiu Hong Apartments Block 2. But at the same time, without the suppression from the rag doll's head, the restriction on Chen Ge's employees also was weakening by the minute.

His hand reached into the backpack. Chen Ge pressed on the play button on the recorder. The tape turned, but the sound of the static did not come. He then reached for the blood-soaked comic. He flipped through the pages. When he reached the page where Xiao Bu was, he got the response that he wanted. Blood vessels reached out to curl around his hand. The page pictured the sight of a dancing and flitting blood spirit. The picture that was supposed to be so scary was surprisingly heartwarming.

"It is Xiao Bu who is helping me."

Xiao Bu was incredibly strong, but she still managed to help Chen Ge without fully breaking through the limitation placed on her by the rules of the world behind the door. This had surprised Chen Ge somewhat.

"My parents once made a deal with Xiao Bu to have her become my shadow. Is that because they had noticed some kind of special power in Xiao Bu?"

Based on Chen Ge's parents' plan, it should be Xiao Bu accompanying Chen Ge at this moment, but things very often did not go according to plan. No one would have expected the appearance of Zhang Ya. Putting away the comic, Chen Ge turned to inspect the other objects inside the backpack. Zhang Ya's bedtime story was still the same. The ballpoint pen and the other small objects had not changed either.

"Wait, it appears like one thing is missing..."

There was no change to Chen Ge's expression as his hand continued to reach deeper into the backpack. At the innermost part of the backpack, Chen Ge's hand found the pair of red high heels. The heels were sticky and wet like they had just been taken out from a pool of blood water. The red high heels appeared to be have almost broken through the limitation placed on her by the rules behind the door already?

Resisting the excitement in his heart, Chen Ge did not utter a word.

He maintained the same posture and did not even take an extra glance into the backpack. The red high heels were hidden underneath all the other objects. She was working her way to break down the barrier around her silently like she was trying to do while avoiding the intrusive gaze of a certain someone.

The ghost fetus' main persona was hidden behind Xiang Nuan's door. In other words, this world behind the door was shared between Xiang Nuan and the ghost fetus. With the influence of a Demon God, the restriction placed on the other Red Specters was incredibly high, but one 'person' was the sole exception. The red high heels had consumed all the curses that had been left behind in the ghost fetus' previous doors. In terms of manipulation and understanding of curses, the red high heels was the closest existence to the ghost fetus, and she could be considered the Red Specter that knew how the ghost fetus operated best.

Perhaps she had discovered the presence of the ghost fetus, so she did not want to expose herself. The red high heels hid herself at the deepest part of the backpack. Chen Ge understood her intention immediately. Internally, he was rather shocked, but his expression did not betray that. This human and ghost duo did not need to communicate in words to complete a perfect exchange of mind.

Taking a slow breath, Chen Ge leaned against the wall, and he started to consider the situation that he was in. After seeing the child earlier, many memories that did not belong to Chen Ge crowded his mind. Most of the images had flashed in the blink of an eye. He could not capture a close look, much less take a more detailed look at them. However, the very last image did leave behind a very deep impression on Chen Ge.

"Why would these three blood doors keep appearing in my memory?" Chen Ge made some calculations in his mind. There was a door at Jiang Yuan Apartments. That was probably the first door to appear in the whole of Jiujiang. The door was probably pushed open by Chen Ge when he was very young, so that was the first door. The second door was the black iron door that was pushed open by the ghost fetus at the cursed hospital. It radiated the heavy cocktail of disinfectant, so it should be inside the cursed hospital. The ghost fetus was once Chen Ge's shadow, so the door that it opened could technically be counted as one that was opened by Chen Ge as well. The third door was directly related to Chen Ge, and that was the door inside the bathroom at his haunted house.

These three doors had always been following Chen Ge. The door that appeared the most normal could very well be the scariest one. After all, it had once given Doctor Gao the fright of his life.

The quivering of the building became more obvious, but Chen Ge and Wen Qing did not appear to notice it at all. They were both caught up in their own thoughts. Only Xiao Sun was anxious like an ant on top of a boiling pan. This tenant behind the door was ironically acting most like a normal person.

“Should we consider leaving this place? When there is an earthquake, we should be hiding outside in an open space. I have not heard of advice that tells us to move higher up the building before.”

Seeing no one had given him any response, Xiao Sun sidled up to Wen Qing and asked, “Are you sure it’s wise for us to keep on hiding here?”

Wen Qing did not answer him immediately. She instead glanced at Chen Ge on the bed. “We will wait for him to recover slightly first. It is too dangerous to leave this place now.”

Xiao Sun still had something else to add, but at that moment, the iron door from the living room suddenly gave off a strange sound. The sound was very hard to describe. It sounded like a very large centipede had just crawled over it. The consistent footfalls landed on the metallic door, and the sound was enough to make one’s head go numb.

“Stay far away from the door!” Chen Ge now had trouble even breathing. Before his employees awakened, the best solution was to stay inside the room. The sound that came from the front door became clearer and more intense. Both Xiao Sun and Wen Qing moved away from it. No one dared speak inside the room. It became incredibly quiet. Everyone held their breath. The rustling sound kept moving around the iron door until it stopped right outside the iron door like it had finally decided on something.

“It appears to have discovered us.” Xiao Sun held his hand over his mouth. His eyes were overflowing with fear. The unknown was always the scariest. A thin layer of black fog leaked from the gaps into the room. It was extremely chaotic outside the building, but the building corridor was curiously quiet.

“Has it left?” Xiao Sun held the wall and was about to head toward the living room when the doorknob started to violent shake.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Something kept hammering itself against the black iron door. A large amount of black fog was leaking into the room!

“The windows on the top floor are all sealed up behind a wall of cement. This whole floor is fully enclosed. The only exit is the living room door.” Chen Ge’s mind was spinning wildly. The conclusion was that they were currently stuck inside this room.

“Chen Ge! What should we do now?”

“Don’t just ask me for answers! I am already in this state. What else do you expect me to do?” Chen Ge said with a bitter smile on his face, but his eyes were scarily calm. He held the backpack, and his hands were holding the red high heels inside the back. The red high heels inside the bag was covered in blood, and they dyed Chen Ge’s hand red, but the man did not seem to mind it at all.

In fact, upon closer inspection, one would realize that the black pattern on the red high heels was crawling onto Chen Ge’s body. The black treads were not harming him; they were looking for something inside his body. The backpack blocked all of this from view. No one inside the room realized what Chen Ge was doing. The doorknob kept wiggling as the thing slammed continuously into the door. The rustling sound became more and more obvious.

Half a minute later, the black iron door was knocked out of shape. The gap between the door and the frame became larger as a result. Black fog spread inside the room. Chen Ge, Wen Qing, and Xiao Sun helplessly watched as the iron door was pried open slowly. The gaping hole revealed faces that were covered in scars. They were connected together like a large centipede. They were all squeezed into the gap as they tried their best to enter the room.

“The door and the windows are all blocked! This is the end! This is the end!” Xiao Sun threw himself into motion at the most crucial moment. He moved everything that he could grab to block the door. “Why don’t the two of you think of something to do?”

He moved all the furniture within reach to block the door. Xiao Sun tried his best, but at the end of the day, he did not have the experience and mental stability that Chen Ge possessed. When he encountered the human heads at close distance, his legs started to shake, and his strength left his body. The rustling noise came again. This time, Xiao Sun clearly saw that the sound originated from the human heads. Their orifices had black threads that dangled out of them. It was these threads that bound them together, and similarly, they used these threads to crawl on the ceiling and the wall.

"If the defense cannot be held, I need both you and Wen Qing to go hide in the bedroom. When the monster starts to attack me, the two of you will run away from the living room door." Chen Ge wanted to use himself as bait. At the same time, he wanted to use this opportunity to ascertain something.

"No!" Wen Qing and Xiao Sun said at the same time. Neither was willing to abandon Chen Ge and run away on their own.

"Just follow my instructions, or we are all going to die!" Just as Chen Ge said that, the closet that blocked the door was toppled over, and the black iron door was cracked open!

"Get out of the way!" Wen Qing and Xiao Sun retreated to the side. The monster that was made from multiple human heads crawled into the room and wiggled on the ceiling.

"Go! Now!" Black fog rolled into the living room. The way out was revealed to them. Neither Wen Qing nor Xiao Sun moved. But the next moment, Wen Qing was dragged along. The invisible force practically pulled Wen Qing out into the corridor.

"Xiao Sun, look after her! I cannot run anymore! Do not let me die for no reason!" Chen Ge shouted at the top of his lungs. He was trying to pull the monster's attention to himself. Xiao Sun very desperately wanted to stay to help Chen Ge, but when he saw the monster in person, his legs became wet noodles. Just the sight of the thing caused him to lose his breath. He teetered backward, and his instinct pushed him away from the monster.

"Go! What are you waiting for!"

After Xiao Sun and Wen Qing left, Chen Ge sighed in relief. He sat up on the edge of the bed as he lifted his head to look up at the strange monster. But his lips were saying things that were completely unrelated to the monster.

"After Wen Qing left, the power that the red high heels fear has disappeared. The invisible child that no one can see, is it the ghost fetus or Xiang Nuan? Or have they combined into one? Can they not be separated from one another before the ghost fetus finds a new body?"

Chapter 1101 - There Is Someone Else in My Shadow 2 in 1

1101 There Is Someone Else in My Shadow 2 in 1

Sitting by the bedside, Chen Ge leaned against the wall for support. His one arm was inside his backpack as he lifted his head to study the monster that was crawling on the ceiling. There was no fear in his eyes. If anything, there was more than a trace of befuddlement. This was something the monster had not experienced before. The two looked at each other like that quite for some time, and neither of them was quick to make any move lest they were caught in a trap.

“Wen Qing has been rescued again by that invisible child. Assuming that child is the ghost fetus, why would he care about Wen Qing’s safety at every moment? Based on what I know of him, he is not the kind of person who would do any sacrifice for another person’s mother. After all, in the worlds of the other children, he never once offered aid to rescue the family members of the other chosen children.” Chen Ge gave it some more thought. The most logical explanation was that Xiang Nuan had joined himself with the ghost fetus. Or rather, Xiang Nuan did not exist at all in this world, and Xiang Nuan was the ghost fetus from the very beginning.

The rustling sound kept coming from above him. The monster made up from multiple human heads crawled on the ceiling. Black threads that gave off a horrible smell dangled out from the many orifices of the many heads. The monster was much more careful than Chen Ge expected. Many pairs of vicious and heartless eyes stared at Chen Ge. It hesitated for a long time before it started to approach this prey before it that was quite unusual. Chen Ge was nothing like the other human beings that it had encountered before.

...

The stench enveloped Chen Ge. The human heads were inching closer and closer. This scene was enough to scare any grown man until they fainted, but for Chen Ge, it caused his brows to crease slightly.

The monsters from the black fog and red city appear to be quite different in nature. They give me a completely different feeling.

The confusion in Chen Ge's eyes gradually dissipated. He was like a biologist in real life, studying a species facing extinction that he had not seen before at a close distance.

Most of the monsters in the red city are covered in blood. The baleful Specters, Half Red Specters, and Red Specters had their power determined based on the amount of blood they have and the level of resentment they carry with them, but it's different with the monsters from the black fog. Their ability does not seem to correlate to the amount of blood they have on their body. They give off a deep sense of hatred and the urge to destroy.

The essence of a Specter is a lingering obsession. When faced with a Specter, I rarely feel the emotion of disgust. In fact, sometimes, I feel pity for them. But these monsters from the black fog elicit the disgust from my heart. It appears like the chance for me to recruit these creature as my haunted house employees is close to zero.

His mind working on overtime, Chen Ge looked at the monster before him. He finally uttered the thought that he was thinking. "I cannot give up on any 'person' so easily. When all my employees wake up, I should try to capture a few of the monsters from the black fog alive and bring them home with me to see if I can help them correct their irregular and incorrect life view."

Chen Ge himself knew how difficult the challenge he had undertaken was, but he still wanted to give it a try. Perhaps he was being naïve, thinking everyone could be rescued.

The monsters from the black fog lacked humanity, but that did not mean that they lacked the faculty of thought. These monsters were incredibly cunning. The human heads on the ceiling probed again and again before finally confirming Chen Ge pose no threat to it. The feeling of being tricked angered it greatly. All the human heads that made up its body opened their mouths at the same time. To be honest, what before Chen Ge was rather scary. More than ten human heads were twisting inches away from Chen Ge's own face. Many black threads dangled down from the monster's body. They wanted to use the threads to pierce through Chen Ge's body and then bind around Chen Ge like a giant snake.

Just the thought of this image would make one feel uncomfortable. If a man was bound by a giant anaconda, he would at most suffocate to death, but if he was bound by this monster, the human faces on the monster's body would latch onto his body, and the ghastly mouths would start to gnaw on his flesh and bones.

They cannot be communicated with, and they lack any sense of empathy. There are only sin and destruction in their eyes. Why would such a creature even have the need to exist in this world? What is the purpose of their existence?

Chen Ge looked at the human faces that were almost touching his face. His hand that had been placed inside the backpack finally reached out. In his palm was a red, high-heeled shoe that was covered in fresh blood. He extended the heel before the monster's face. Before the monster could react, Chen Ge moved his arm and stabbed the sharp end of the heel right into the monster's face.

This thing is quite sharp.

This was the first time that the human head monster had been attacked by such a weapon. The thin strands of black threads that had come out of its mouths rushed at Chen Ge like a bunch of piranhas who had found their living prey. But just as they were about to reach Chen Ge's body, the red high heel that was stuck into the monster's face started to have many strange patterns appear on its surface. Every pattern represented a pleading soul begging for mercy. Upon closer inspection, one would realize that each of the patterns was twisted from living human faces, and they were harboring their deepest curse and darkest despair. The black pattern spread on the human head monster. In less than a second, it had enveloped and captured the giant monster like a web.

It does not appear that a Specter can directly consume the monsters from the fog. It is more difficult than usual for them to even kill them.

The red high heels had not fully eliminated the restriction of the rules placed on her by the world behind the door. She could not leave her item of possession and appear in person. Therefore, Chen Ge had to resort to this method to deal with the monster from the black fog. He dared to do this because when his palm first touched the red high heels, the shoes' blood vessels and curses voluntarily entered his body to help him search for the reason behind his continuous weakening of strength.

At the time, he knew that even though the red high heels still was not able to leave the item of her possession, she could use part of her ability already. The human head monster was twisting like a giant centipede on the ground of the living room. Looking at the torture it was in, Chen Ge took out the other red high heel from his backpack and stuck the heel steadily and firmly into the monster's neck.

Even though the red high heels could only use part of her power, but she is the presence among my employees that is closest to becoming a Top Red Specter. How come she has such difficulty killing a mere human head monster? It's taking her so long to deal with just one of them.

Chen Ge did not mean that as an underestimation of the red high heels' power. He merely thought that the monsters from the black fog were surprisingly resilient and hard to deal with. After all, the human head monster could only be considered a more normal monster among the ranks of the creatures in the black fog. He had seen much bigger shadows moving through the fog earlier.

The black patterns that covered the human head monster's body gradually tightened and closed upon itself. It took a full ten minutes before the human head monster was killed. Its body crumbled. Many onyx-colored threads came out from its broken head and morphed into black smoke. They returned to become a part of the black fog again.

Picking up the red high heels, Chen Ge studied the patterns on the surface that were getting clearer. He knew that the red high heels were about to break through the barrier soon.

After the body of the human head monster collapsed, the black fog in the room turned thicker. If anything, it gave off the feeling that it had not died but merely changed into a different form to continue its life. Using his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge found some black bits where the human head monster's body used to be. They looked like ash that would be left behind after some banknotes were burnt.

"What are these?" Chen Ge found a thermos in one of the rooms and filled the black bits inside it. He had no idea what these things would be good for. He planned to bring them back with him to study. Perhaps he would be able to find out more secrets about the black fog from them.

Moving his body, Chen Ge noticed that even though his limbs were incredibly cold and his body temperature was low, the fatigue that rose from the bottom of his soul had decreased significantly.

After the invisible child took Wen Qing away, my physical energy gradually returned. Looks like the weakening of my body has something to do with him after all.

Chen Ge's eyes were calm. When he entered the world of the other children, none of the children were willing to help the ghost fetus. They were hostile toward the ghost fetus, and in the end, they would end up becoming an aid to Chen Ge.

It was completely different in the world behind Xiang Nuan's door. Ever since he entered the door, Xiang Nuan appeared to have sided with the ghost fetus from the very beginning. In the real world, Xiang Nuan was a child who refused to communicate with the world. No one knew what the real Xiang Nuan was like. Even his own mother did not know him well enough.

Before any of my employees woke up, I was following Wen Qing because Wen Qing is being protected by the ghost fetus. Through her, I got some protection and evaded some of the danger that would have come my way. But now that my employees are almost waking up, there is no reason for me to stick with them.

Chen Ge, without the aid of his employees, was not much stronger than a normal human being, but once he gained the aid of his workers, the situation would be completely different.

The workers' power is my power. I am still the same self, but the power that I possess will keep on increasing. That should be my only advantage.

The power at the haunted house kept improving, but the corruption of power never went to his head. Chen Ge kept his sanity intact, and his soul was shining with the brilliance of humanity. That was what separated him from his adversaries.

The cursed hospital was much stronger than him, but to achieve their own goal, their humanity had been completely twisted. Their patients had almost become synonymous with the term 'monster'.

Doctor Gao was smarter than Chen Ge, and he had seen the maximum potential of humanity a long time ago. To achieve his own goal, from when he was still alive to until he died, not only had he abandoned his own humanity, he had even given up on the right of being a human.

Chen Ge's power was gradually increasing, but the path that he had taken was completely different from everyone else. The road that he had chosen was very dangerous. He had practically handed his life over to the Specters. Just how much confidence in his workers did he need to be able to make a choice such as this? He tried to shove the red high heels into his pocket, but he tried for a long time and failed to do so because the pocket was too small for the heels. In the end, he had no choice but to place the red high heels back into his backpack.

The Doctor Skull Cracker's Hammer is just a disguise. The real damaging weapon is the red high heels. I doubt anyone would expect me to wield a pair of woman's heels as my actual weapon.

Dragging the hammer along, Chen Ge took another brief rest in the room. It was not until the building was slammed into again and the quiver became more intense that he decided to leave.

The cursed hospital obviously came prepared. In fact, I bet that they made better preparations than me. This will be a horrible tragedy for the ghost fetus.

The hospital had a clear goal from the very beginning. At Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, when they discovered Chen Ge stirring the pot, they left without hesitation to avoid having a direct conflict with Chen Ge. Between the ghost fetus and Chen Ge, they had chosen to deal with the ghost fetus. Apparently, that was because they had been preparing for this day for a very long time.

Chen Ge's physical energy was slowly recovering, and the color of blood on the comic was deepening. When he played the recorder, he could hear a slight static sound. The employees were waking up one after another. The good news was flowing in. Chen Ge's expression was slowly returning to normal.

Zhang Ya is a Demon God. The cursed hospital probably has a Demon God or at least something close to the power of a Demon God among them. The ghost fetus wanted to suppress both of them with the rules of the world behind its own door, but that's very difficult. He cannot keep this up for much longer.

With the protection from the red high heels, Chen Ge was no longer that afraid of the black fog. He slowly moved down the stairs, listening to the sounds that came from outside the building.

Fight to your heart's content. We will see who will stand to have the last laugh.

He followed the stairs and finally arrived at the first floor. Before Chen Ge left Jiu Hong Apartments Block 2, he turned back to take in the sight. This building was originally hiding the rag doll's head. Every door behind this building was filled with the ghost fetus' memories. Even though it had turned into a monster, it had not forgotten its past. Every time he pushed open a door, he would be greeted by a former version of the ghost fetus.

Even the ghost fetus has held on so strongly to its past, but why would I have forgotten about such important things from my childhood? Is it because someone does not want me to remember anything from that period?

Standing at the entrance, Chen Ge did not hurry to leave. The world outside the building had completely changed. Black fog shrouded everything, but there were bursts of red amid the fog. The whole world behind the door was like an abstract painting of a nightmare. The black and red were mixed together, twisting every 'person' that resided behind the door.

Before this world goes fully out of control, the ghost fetus will definitely send Wen Qing to a secure location. After Wen Qing's safety is ensured, the biggest possibility is that he will come back to find me.

Chen Ge stood in the ghost fetus' shoes and tried to analyze the situation.

Now is the most crucial moment for its birth. No matter how loud the interruption, he will focus on the rebirth as his most important goal.

Until now Chen Ge had no idea what form of rebirth the ghost fetus would make, but he had a feeling that the ghost fetus would return to find him because his own body was the best choice for the ghost fetus.

I do not need to have a direct conflict with the ghost fetus. I should try to buy as much time as I can.

For Chen Ge, the interior of the apartment buildings that were the territory of the ghost fetus was no safer than the black fog. His employees were slowly awakening, and the red high heels could already use part of her power. He had enough to ensure his own safety. He could hide safely inside the black fog that was beyond the ghost fetus' control until all his employees broke through the limitation of this world.

If the child did not choose to rescue Wen Qing, it would most likely have taken over a large portion of my body by now.

There were some truths in the world that could not be refused. One of them was that the child cared deeply about Wen Qing. Based on what Wen Qing had told Chen Ge, Xiang Nuan had never uttered a full sentence to her before. He had not even called her mom once. But from the child's various actions when they were stuck behind the door, Wen Qing occupied a position in his heart that could not be replaced by anyone else.

Walking alone in the black fog, Chen Ge carried the backpack, dragging with hammer with one hand and carrying the red high heels with another as he silently worked his way to the small garden at the residential area. Finding a hiding space, Chen Ge looked around him. The place looked like a scene from an apocalypse.

The buildings were teetering, and giant shadows crawled on the surface of the buildings. The ground was shaking, and the world mixed with red and black had echoes of screams coming from everywhere. Chen Ge was completely enraptured by his surroundings when he felt a pinprick of pain from his palm. He turned to look, and he saw the red high heels bleeding.

"Someone is coming?" Chen Ge seemed to feel something. He whipped his body around, and his eyes zeroed in on a point. There was a child standing behind him. He was standing right on top of his shadow like he was used to that position.

"Found you."

The boy had his head lowered, so his face was shaded from view, but from the voice and the tone, it sounded very similar to Xiang Nuan. Chen Ge took one involuntarily step back. As he did so, the boy took one step forward.

The distance between them remained unchanged like a man and his shadow. No matter how he tried, the man was unable to shake his shadow off. Seeing that this was unavoidable, Chen Ge stopped wasting time. His eyes were calm as if he knew that this would eventually happen sooner or later. But the expression on his face was rather complicated. “It was you who voluntarily escaped, so why did you come back to find me?”

The boy did not speak. He kept his head lowered as if staring right into Chen Ge’s shadow.

“Get out of my way. From the moment you escaped, there was no connection binding us together.”

Chapter 1102 - Me and My Employees

1102 Me and My Employees

The boy stood on top of Chen Ge's shadow. No matter where Chen Ge moved, he would follow, just like his shadow. With his head lowered, the boy kept his eyes on Chen Ge's shadow. After the 'found you', he had not opened his lips to say anything else.

The endless black fog was like a sea of despair; the broken building in the memory became a lonely island in the ghost fetus' heart. He stood before the twisting buildings, under the black and red sky, inside Chen Ge's shadow, and following quietly behind him. That was how things were many years ago. He saw how Chen Ge had everything, everything that he wished to possess for himself. He wanted to be a butterfly, but ultimately, he was just a shadow. The desire was slowly twisted. He did not stay there and wait, slowly waving his hands and trying his best to chase after the butterfly that was fluttering in his heart instead.

He had no idea why he would do something like that. He did not even know what would happen the day he caught up to the butterfly, but he knew to keep on running after it. Finally, at this moment, ten years later, inside the door, he had caught that butterfly.

...

The lowered head slowly rose, and the boy looked up at Chen Ge. Their eyes met in the nightmare, and it felt like they had crossed the limitation of time. Chen Ge saw himself from ten years ago, and the ghost fetus saw a demon that he could no longer recognize. In this world filled with despair and pain, only one's heart would be the receptacle for light. But if one's heart was devoid of light, everything that one saw would be ghosts and Specters.

“Did you leave at this age?” Chen Ge had seen part of the ghost fetus’ memories in Fang Yu’s world, but the boy before him was completely different from the ghost fetus in Fang Yu’s world. In the worlds behind the doors of the other candidates, the ghost fetus appeared in the form of a baby, but the boy before him had the same face as the childhood Chen Ge. The facial features were rather undefined, but one could tell that this was Chen Ge.

“You...” Chen Ge had many things that he wanted to say, questions he wanted to ask. He had imagined this encounter with the ghost fetus many times in his mind and rehearsed many different statements, but when he was really standing before the child, the things that he had prepared were stuck in his throat.

A monster that had ruined multiple families; a monster without humanity; a soul twisted and cruel like the demon; a child who was abandoned, tricked, harmed, and made insane.

Chen Ge did not know how to judge the ghost fetus. He would not pity him, he would not help him, but he merely did not wish to lie to the ghost fetus anymore. Even if one of them would die the next second, he would not deal with the ghost fetus like he would other enemies, using many things to deceit and trick him. The ghost fetus gave Chen Ge a strange feeling, like he was looking at mirror, but the reflection inside the mirror was trying to come up with ways to kill him.

“Do not stand on my shadow anymore. That is no longer a spot reserved for you.”

No matter what Chen Ge said, the ghost fetus showed no sign of speaking. He kept staring at Chen Ge’s face, the picture of a ghastly demon reflecting in his pupils. His body leaned slowly forward, giving the impression of one’s shadow standing up and trying to crawl into Chen Ge’s body. Just as the ghost fetus was about to touch Chen Ge, a wall of blood vessels blocked his way. A heavy stench of blood radiated out from Chen Ge’s body.

Drip drop, drip drop...

The blood dripped. The ghost fetus moved his gaze away from Chen Ge’s face and turned to look at the red high heels in his hands. He slowly raised his arm, and the ghost fetus’ fingertip touched the layer of blood vessels. His expression did not change. It was like a child reaching out to touch a spiderweb out of curiosity. The blood vessels were snapped one after another, but at that moment, a giant explosion sounded from one of the buildings!

Jin Hwa Apartments Block B started to bend. A large shadow was pressing against the side of it. Who knew what kind of monster it was? After the explosion, the ghost fetus had obviously slowed down. The few buildings appeared to be the foundation of this world and they influenced the ghost fetus' condition greatly.

"You voluntarily left me, and I have not tried to harm you. It was the cursed hospital that put you in this state. I have seen your memories. You should hate them the most. They are right there now. Are you sure you still want to waste time with me?"

Chen Ge could see that the ghost fetus needed his body, so the child did not go for the jugular. As one of the nine children, the ghost fetus could not kill Chen Ge that easily. This, he had discerned from the way he treated the other candidates.

As long as the child had some power taken away by the ghost fetus, even though they would be seriously injured in terms of soul and mind, their lives had never been threatened. It appeared like the ghost fetus needed to fulfil certain criteria to obtain a candidate's power. Only that would explain why the ghost fetus did not kill Chen Ge directly after he entered his body but chose to slowly take over his body from the shadow.

"You do not have a chance now."

After that last explosion, the surface of the other buildings started to crack as well. The chains that bound this world had loosened. The ground shook, and the buildings teetered, but the ghost fetus only had his eyes on Chen Ge. His hand was reaching through the layers of blood vessels. No one knew why he was doing this. He appeared to not only want to take control of Chen Ge's body but also appeared to grab the version of himself that he had been wishing for.

As the ghost fetus' hand slowly approached, the smell of blood around Chen Ge intensified. Just as the ghost fetus' hand was about to touch Chen Ge's eyes, a slender hand wrapped in bandages appeared to grab the ghost fetus' wrist. A bright shade of red appeared in the thick black fog!

The red high heels had broken through the world's limitation!

Her appearance had shifted slightly from before. Part of the bandages had slid off her body, and the exposed skin was branded with dark black tattoo-like patterns. The patterns were mysterious, eerie, and scary. Just being in close distance of them would make one feel suffocated.

The ghost fetus paused but just for a moment. His sharp nails soon continued to reach toward Chen Ge. The sound of a book flipping entered both Chen Ge and the ghost fetus' ears. Before they could react, a blood wave rushed out from Chen Ge's backpack and knocked back the black fog around them. A blood mist had settled.

Pairs of arms reached out from the mist, and they grabbed at the ghost fetus from different angles. The sharp nails stopped before Chen Ge's eyes, but they were unable to move one inch further.

"I know you are using the greater part of your power to deal with the hospital and the monsters in the black fog. You believe that I am the weakest, or perhaps you think I was just lucky to have survived so far."

Chen Ge took another step backward. The ghost fetus' body was held in place by the gauntlet of hands and was thus unable to follow Chen Ge anymore.

Chapter 1103 - Killing the Past 3 in 1

1103 Killing the Past 3 in 1

Even though he was held down by multiple hands, the ghost fetus still wanted to get close to Chen Ge. The expression on his face slowly changed. Cracks started appeared in his pupils, which looked perfectly normal. Black threads that carried misfortune leaked out of the boy's eyes like tears. They squirreled their way toward the hands that held him back. Chen Ge's employees had blocked the ghost fetus' path, but the latter did not really stop to try to understand why. His shattered pupils remained still on Chen Ge, and he was ready to kill every human and every Specter who dared stand in his way.

The cursed threads wanted to crawl into the employees' bodies, but when they approached the employees, they were bounced back by an invisible force. The curse was unable to take effect. The ghost fetus once again turned to look at the red high heels that were covered in bandages. He sensed a curse of the same origin from the red high heels. The reason the ghost fetus had this kind of feeling was not only because the red high heels had consumed the curse that the ghost fetus had left behind the other doors. It appeared like the reason the red high heels was in her current state had everything to do with that cursed hospital.

The essence of the curse was pain. Using it meant paying a sacrifice. The cause was linked to the consequence. Whenever the curse was used, both parties would be seriously affected by it. The ghost fetus carried multiple sins, but the sacrifice that he had given up for the usage of the curse was perhaps his whole life that had been twisted by despair. But the boy was on a path of no return. Even if he knew that he would sink deeper into the abyss of despair, he would still continue to spread the curse.

...

Chen Ge still did not know that much about the red high heels' past, but there was one thing that he was very clear about. The 'people' who were familiar with curses were normally accompanied by misfortune. If possible, Chen Ge did not wish for the red high heels to continue using her power anymore. The fight between two Specters who were armed with curses was something extremely scary. The way that they decided who would survive was different from a fight between normal Red Specters.

The fight appeared calm and uneventful on the surface, but the actual battle was happening at places that he would not be able to see. Every single one of the black threads that came out from their bodies carried the most vicious and venomous of curses. Once the thread crawled into one's body, if one did not clear them away in time, the consequences would be unfathomably bad.

Chen Ge also knew about the danger of the curse. Compared to the ghost fetus, he was more worried about his employees' safety. "Work together! Take him down together! Do not hesitate! We must try to kill him now while we still have the chance!"

Determined and direct, there was no compromise and pity in the world behind the door. In this place, it was either the ghost fetus' demise or theirs. Any kindness toward the enemy would be cruelty toward himself.

Hearing Chen Ge's order, the red high heels blocked all the curses. The other few Red Specters held the ghost fetus' body in place, and they prepared for Xiao Bu to deliver the final blow. The employees appeared to have communicated among themselves when they were inside the comic. The Red Specters were very familiar with each other's abilities. They knew that Xiao Bu, who appeared the softest and weakest, was actually the most dangerous Red Specter among all of them.

The red wave washed away the blood fog. Xiao Bu used her own special power for the first time before Chen Ge. The red dress that she was wearing melted together with the blood wave that splashed around her. The gray and black ground was dyed red. Buildings that were constructed fully out of blood vessels crawled up from the ground like giant arms that tried to reach toward the sky.

Li Wan City!

Xiao Bu appeared to be stepping on the entire Li Wan City, and the city forced itself through the black fog, tearing out a piece of red amid the world of blackness. The harrowing wails of endless souls rushed out from the blood wave and bit at the ghost fetus, who was unable to move. Even the buildings started to collapse on top of the ghost fetus' body. The blood vessels pulled taut on the ghost fetus' skin. Xiao Bu intended to use the whole Li Wan City to bury him alive.

The other employees at the haunted house worked flawlessly together. They each found a spot that was left untouched by the crumbling buildings and started to focus their individual attacks. The ghost fetus' body instantly turned dim and twisted. Scars appeared. Before the previous one could heal, more and more scars appeared on the scabs. The cracks in the ghost fetus' eyes had spread to his entire body. He knew that there were many ghosts and Specters hiding inside Chen Ge, but he did not expect them to be so powerful.

The pupils that were about to shatter looked directly at Chen Ge through the endless crowd of baleful Specters and Red Specters. The ghost fetus' expression still had not changed much. His body was slowly being ground down until he was buried under the Li Wan City that was beneath Xiao Bu's feet.

"Is it all over now? Has the boy been torn beyond repair?" The boy who stood on Chen Ge's shadow earlier had completely disappeared, but Chen Ge felt no joy at all. The ghost fetus' reaction was too out of place. He did not put up much resistance. In fact, it could be said that he was taking all the damage head on. "Something's not right."

The red Li Wan City under Xiao Bu's feet was a heavy contrast to the black fog that surrounded them. The strange shadows among the black fog were soon attracted by the red and started to head their way.

"Xiao Bu!" Chen Ge had Xiao Bu pull back the blood wave. As the blood disappeared, the monsters inside the black fog also gradually lost interest. When the red completely disappeared, Chen Ge saw a small shadow walk out from one of the buildings that was not far away. His brows started to crease. The shadow was wavering in the blackness of the fog. The distance between him and Chen Ge was slowly closing. Even with the aid of his Yin Yang Vision, Chen Ge could not capture his real appearance.

Several seconds later, endless blood vessels suddenly enveloped Chen Ge. His employees were all ready for a big battle. They stared behind Chen Ge. Chen Ge had already sensed that something like this would happen. He turned back to look, and the boy who looked just like him when he was younger had reappeared, and he was standing atop his shadow just like before.

“Another one? Can he not be killed?” Chen Ge appeared to see the young version of himself in the ghost fetus. He saw the child who could not be killed no matter what. “No, these boys are probably not the ghost fetus’ real persona. It is not that he cannot be killed; it is just that I have not found the real him.”

The boy behind Chen Ge wanted to grab him. His shattered pupils kept staring at Chen Ge’s face. The fact that he had been killed earlier did not seem to have left any impression on the body. What happened earlier repeated itself. The ghost fetus was stopped by the employees so that he was unable to get close to Chen Ge. Chen Ge did not dare stay too far away from his employees, and thus, they entered into a stalemate.

“It is not untrue that the ghost fetus wants to take over my physical body, but I have a feeling there is a bigger conspiracy at work here. He seems to be purposely buying time. The ghost fetus did say that the ghost fetus will be born tonight, but it did not specify how it would be born. Now I only know that his birth will definitely be related to me, and if I do not stop him, I will be one hundred percent dead.”

The threat of certain death made it so that Chen Ge had to be extra careful. Even if his employees had broken through the barrier of the world behind the door, he had to be careful at every single moment. This door was different from every other door that he had entered before. All his experience from the other doors would not prove much use to him there.

“Looks like I will have to go and find the cursed hospital and see how they are doing at the moment.”

Chen Ge chose to voluntarily interact with the cursed hospital, but he would definitely keep a safe distance away from them. After all, they both knew that neither party could wait for the other to die.

“After killing this ghost fetus, other children might come out from the other buildings. I might as well bring him with me to find the people from the cursed hospital.” Chen Ge’s original plan was to reap the rewards while the ghost fetus fought with the people from the cursed hospital, but with the ghost fetus tailing him so closely, he was not given the chance to do that at all. “If you wish to follow, then so be it. Come along now.”

The boy wanted to get close to Chen Ge, but he was stopped every time by Chen Ge's employees. They put their lives on the line to keep the ghost fetus at bay. The conflict between the black curse and the red blood caused quite a stir. It had attracted the attention of the some of the monsters inside the black fog. Perhaps this was one of the ghost fetus' plans. He wanted to make use of Chen Ge to distract part of the pressure that came from the black fog and use Chen Ge to help him clear away some of the monsters inside the black fog.

To prevent that from happening, Chen Ge had his employees limit the range of their fight. He wanted them to keep the fight as contained as possible. Chen Ge's side had become completely hostile toward the ghost fetus. The ghost fetus was familiar with the abilities of Chen Ge's employees, and Chen Ge also realized how unoptimistic the ghost fetus' current situation was. Before his birth, he did not have the power to handle the whole situation.

The world behind the door had sunk into complete chaos. The numerable large shadows in the black fog were attacking the bigger buildings. All the buildings inside the residential area were seriously shattered. Among them, the most damaged one was Jin Hwa Apartments Block B. Most of the sound came from there as well. It should mean that the people from the cursed hospital were around that building. With his employees leading the way, the black fog was unable to get close to Chen Ge. He was protected in the middle of a veil of red mist. He studied the monsters that flickered in and out of the shadows through the fog.

As intense as this moment was, Chen Ge had a feeling that he was taking a stroll through the zoo. The monsters from the black fog were completely different from the monsters that resided in the red world. They looked scarier and more absurd. A normal person probably would not have dreamed about them even in their strangest nightmare.

"If the ghost fetus was not following me, I would have been able to catch some monsters to conduct some experiments. But it does not matter. Even if I cannot bring these monsters out with him, I have now gained some understanding of their features and personalities. In the future, perhaps I can build them with my own two hands. A manmade nightmare might not be less authentic than a real nightmare."

After the employees showed up, Chen Ge's nerves that had been pulled taut relaxed slightly. He turned back to look at the ghost fetus. The boy was like a shadow. He had been following Chen Ge, like a stubborn fly that refused to be chased away.

As Chen Ge moved toward Jin Hwa Apartments Block B, the ghost fetus did try to resist violently a few times, but he was brought down by the employees every time. He failed to harm Chen Ge, but that did help Chen Ge confirm his suspicion. The ghost fetus did not wish for Chen Ge to go there. Perhaps he was worried that Chen Ge might work together with the people from the cursed hospital. The sound of fighting became clearer in his ears. The color of blood also became more obvious in the black fog. When Chen Ge arrived, he too was shocked by the scene that he was greeted with.

There was a man who had no face that stood at the entrance to Jin Hwa Apartment's Block B. His whole face only had a ghastly scar that cut through it vertically, giving it the look of the number '1'. He was wearing a coat that looked like a doctor's coat. It was not a normal doctor's coat, however, because not only was it dyed completely red, the coat was also sewn together by many human faces. Upon closer inspection, each of the human faces was still moving and talking.

What is that thing? It does not appear to be a Specter, but nor does it look like a living human.

Chen Ge realized that the presence given off by the man was completely different from a normal Red Specter. It was very hard to describe, but there was one thing that was certain. The presence was extremely powerful. Even Xiao Bu and the red high heels did not wish to get too close to him if necessary. The man with the doctor's coat also noticed Chen Ge's arrival. He turned his body. The slanted scar on his face somehow felt like it was 'looking' at Chen Ge as more blood gushed out from it.

"Chen... Ge!" A voice instantly exploded in Chen Ge's mind. He took several steps back. It was not until he realized that the ghost fetus was just right behind him that Chen Ge quickly stopped himself. At that moment, Chen Ge's heart was rolling with giant waves. He did not expect the monster that he had not encountered before to be able to say his name so clearly the first time they met.

Is this monster the doctor that once treated me?

The scenario of the nightmare mission at Jiang Yuan Apartments entered his mind. The voice in Chen Ge's memory was different from this monster's voice. There was nothing similar about them at all.

Other than the doctor that first treated me, are there other doctors that are familiar with me from the cursed hospital?

The man was able to call him out by his name at first glance, and there was an almost sadistic and twisted hatred in the voice. This proved that their relationship did not stop at a surface level of recognition. They were definitely more than mere acquaintances. Perhaps the doctor that was missing his face turned into his current state because of Chen Ge or something to do with Chen Ge.

How come it feels like no one wants to see me at all? Everyone has some reason to hate me, even though I have done technically nothing!

Although Chen Ge did not plan to work with the people from the cursed hospital to begin with, the attitude of this strange doctor only confirmed his decision further. If not for the heavy pressure given by the ghost fetus, perhaps the two of them would have been locked in a deathmatch already.

The faceless doctor had probably broken through the barrier of the world behind the door earlier than the red high heels, but he was not in a good condition. His body was pierced through by many threads of thin black lines. With every movement of his body, black blood would squirt out from the holes. The long and slow torture caused the scar on his face to contort in a horrible grimace. Every face on his coat was screaming. Some of them were in extreme pain, and others were biting on the doctor's physical body.

The doctor can't be a living human, can he?

The more Chen Ge looked at this, the more horrified he felt. With his Yin Yang Vision, he could still differentiate between a Specter and a living person. The monster doctor before him was a creature of flesh and doctor. His physical feature was also similar to a normal person.

Is the thing that is giving off the horrible presence not the man But his coat?

A Red Specter was called a Red Specter because they were surrounded by an air of resentment. Hatred and despair morphed into soluble blood that made up their bodies. But the Red Specter on the faceless doctor was different from any of the Red Specters that Chen Ge had encountered. Even though it was red, it was made up from many different human faces. It was incredibly scary. Its strange appearance did remind Chen Ge of how Zhang Ya looked like when she morphed into a Demon God. When he was at the School of the Afterlife, many ghost shadows appeared on Zhang Ya's bloody dress. They were all the Red Specters that she had consumed before.

Could the faceless doctor be an object of possession? The real final trump card that the cursed hospital has is the 'Demon God' that is actually hiding inside the red doctor's coat that's made up of human faces?

When a normal person saw the faceless doctor, they would be scared witless by his appearance. They would spend time further contemplating the existence of this thing.

But Chen Ge was different. He had literally spent his every living moment with Zhang Ya, so he knew some secrets about Demon Gods and Top Red Specters.

When the faceless doctor dies, it is probably the moment the Demon God on him will appear.

Currently, the faceless doctor was punctured by many cursed threads, and the human faces on the coat were consuming his flesh, but the man appeared like he could still hold on for quite some time. The monster appeared to experience this kind of pain and torture often. His pain threshold and curse resistance were extremely high.

It is hard to imagine that such a monster who literally has his face wiped away is still a living person. The voice that filled up my brain earlier was filled with resentment. Could it be because I am somehow related to the reason he is in his current state? Perhaps this doctor encountered me in Jiujiang a long time ago, but he failed to complete that mission that was bequeathed upon to him by the cursed hospital, and he was given some sort of punishment because of it.

Chen Ge had no impression of these things at all. To be fair, he was feeling quite out of sorts about the whole arrangement as well.

The younger version of myself could not be killed no matter what, but if no one had tried to kill, how did they even find out that version of myself is unkillable? They must have attempted many different methods to kill me. To be able to be heartless enough to do that to a child, these people can barely be called human.

A loud noise came out from the interior of Jin Hwa Apartments' Block B. While the faceless doctor was distracted by Chen Ge, the few faces on his coat that were closer to his chest were instantly torn apart by some kind of force. The scream of pain echoed in the black fog. It was also then that Chen Ge discovered there was another monster residing at Jin Hwa Apartments Block B.

It was a rag doll with only four limbs and one head. Its legs were stuffed with trash and bones, its arms were both filled with the dried bodies of small birds, and the head was fitted with cotton that was dyed red with blood and blackened meat. It had two eyes. One of them was a black button that was sewn onto the face, and the other was an eyeball that was bloodshot. The rag doll appeared to have not found its body yet. Numerous cursed threads bound its four limbs and head together. The monster guarded the entrance to Jin Hwa Apartments Block B. What the rag doll and the faceless doctor were fighting over was the specimen of a heart that was punctured with nails.

The way the people from the cursed hospital treated the candidates chosen by the ghost fetus was different from Chen Ge. They had murdered Nie Xin in cold blood and taken the ghost fetus' power that was related to its 'heart' for themselves. Unfortunately, they had brought that same power into this door, so the ghost fetus was coming back to claim its power for itself. When ghost on the faceless doctor was still limited by the rules of the world behind the door, the ghost fetus had probably stolen the heart. The thing that appeared to be a Demon God on the doctor had exhausted plenty of energy to stop it, but it had still failed to stop the ghost fetus. It only managed to keep the faceless doctor barely alive.

When the limitation was broken, the faceless doctor and the Demon God on him started to actively search for the ghost fetus. They knew that this moment before the ghost fetus' birth was the period when he was the weakest. The cursed hospital had probably known of the ghost fetus' plan all along. They had not done anything because they wished to use the least amount of effort to kill the ghost fetus or recapture the ghost fetus.

Both parties knew of each other's bottom line. The battle between them might appear to be horrid and ghastly, but Chen Ge had a feeling both parties still had some reservations. They had not given it their all yet.

The ghost fetus is a Demon God, but he only sent out a broken rag doll in his place for now. The human face coat is probably a Demon God as well, but the thing is hidden even deeper than the ghost fetus. Lastly, there's Zhang Ya...

Chen Ge turned back to look. The boy was standing on his shadow, but Zhang Ya gave no reaction. This was completely unlike the Zhang Ya that Chen Ge knew.

“It appears like all three Demon Gods are waiting for something...” He was lost in thought when the ground started to shake. All the buildings behind the door started to tremble, and the black fog around them had thickened least ten times over!

“What’s happening?” Chen Ge tilted his face upward to look, and his mouth fell open from surprise. Within the black fog that enveloped everything like a black sea, there was a shadow appearing that was larger than both Jin Hwa Apartments and Jiu Hong Apartments combined!

The suffocating presence made itself known immediately. Everyone present could feel the danger that it represented.

The faceless doctor and the broken rag doll stopped fighting. Even the boy who had been following behind Chen Ge also lifted his head. At that moment, every person and ghost was looking up at the black sky.

No one was speaking. It was not until the giant black shadow was about to press against the tallest building at Jin Hwa Apartments that the boy behind Chen Ge finally had a change to his expression. He started to smile.

“The past has finally arrived.”

Chapter 1104 - She Is Stepping on a Blood Red City 2 in 1

1104 She Is Stepping on a Blood Red City 2 in 1

Ever since the black shadow showed up, the ghost fetus' expression had been different. This was the first time he had shown a smile on his face. The corners of his lips were turned up as he looked at the monster that covered up the sky, looking like a child who was waiting for praise from his parents.

“The past? The monster’s name is the Past?” Even though Chen Ge had been paying close attention to the ghost fetus, but the current situation had gotten fully out of his control. All the plans and tricks appeared so harmless and pointless before the ten years of preparation that had gone into the Demon God’s set up. The giant shadow in the sky suppressed all the buildings behind the door. The ground started to crack, and the floor was sinking downward. The other monsters that hid in the shadow dispersed to save themselves. Echoes of harrowing screams filled the air.

The giant body hidden in the black fog continued to press down until Chen Ge finally saw it for what it really was. This monster by the name of the Past had a horrifying appearance. It was like a cicada that was about to crawl out from its giant shell. Its body was made up from shredded flesh. It contained various human body parts as well as innumerable abandoned and forgotten memories. The ginormous upper body leaned steadily on the top of the two main buildings from Jin Hwa Apartments. Behind its body, it was dragging a shell that was even larger than all of Jin Hwa Apartments combined.

...

The monster appeared to be trying to crawl out from its shell, but how could the Past abandon its shell so easily?

Its body was running with black-colored blood. The wounds were like gaping maws, and every monster that was unlucky enough to get too close would be torn open by the mouths and then consumed by them. With each consumption of the monster, its body would grow slightly bigger. It appeared that the monster wanted to use this method to grow big enough to break its shell from the inside, but the shell had joined to its flesh. It had already become part of its body. No matter what it did, it was unable to shake off that heavy and restrictive shell.

Sinking in the past and unable to move forward, every person and every memory that constructed its body was continuously torturing itself. In the end, it was this curious combination that created this strange amalgamation of a monster. The shell of the past grew into the flesh, but the surface still maintained the shape of a human. But with a slight movement, the shell would cut the body, and the wounds would bleed out black blood. The giant monster had overshadowed all the buildings. It had no actual facial features to speak of, but there was a child situated at the middle of its head. The child's body was bitten by multiple human faces and held in place by many arms. He was deep inside the monster's head. He had a face that looked identical to Xiang Nuan's.

"Xiang Nuan!" A heart-wrenching scream came out of Jin Hwa Apartment's Block A. Wen Qing's shout shattered the stunned silence of the night. Everyone present heard her cry and scream, but no one dared respond. The heart-breaking voice was a great contrast to this world that fed on cruelty; it was clear that she did not belong to this place.

After the boy who stood behind Chen Ge heard Wen Qing's voice, the smile on his face disappeared. A trace of emotion that should not have been present crossed his eyes, but he soon returned to normal. When everyone was on high alert, the boy suddenly reached out and rushed toward Chen Ge without warning. His eyes tore open, and black blood leaked out from all of the boy's orifices. His body suddenly picked up speed. The speed was at least ten times faster than before. Instantly, he broke through Chen Ge's employees' shield. It appeared like he would do anything to grab hold of Chen Ge!

The boy's hands touched the blood vessels left behind by the employees. This time, his hand easily passed through the layers of them. The face locked in an ugly grimace rammed past Xiao Bu and the red high heels. He had paid everything just to touch Chen Ge!

His body was shredded by the sharp blood vessels. His face was torn open, and black blood dropped to the ground, but one of his arm successfully breached through the employees' defense and reached Chen Ge's face. The fingers that were covered in black blood started to break out in wounds. The maggot-like curses crawled out of the wounds and slithered toward Chen Ge's eyes. They wanted to crawl into his eyes.

"The former me! Look closely! This will be your future body!" the boy shouted loudly at the monster in the sky. Xiang Nuan, who was encased deep in the monster's head, appeared to have a focus in his eyes, which were previously soulless, after he heard the boy's voice. In the dark pupils, the curse threads wiggled like worms. Xiang Nuan turned to look at where Chen Ge was standing. At the same time, the whole upper body of the giant monster moved as if the monster had set its target on Chen Ge as well.

Exhausting everything, the boy's finger that was coated in black blood finally managed to touch Chen Ge. Just as the sticky liquid was about to make contact with Chen Ge's eyelash, an extremely overpowering presence swept all over Jin Hwa residential area like a lashing whirlwind!

The calm shadow started to boil, and gray soil bubbled with blood. The black fog around Chen Ge was dispersed as if a Demon God had opened her eyes!

Not only the monster in the sky, even Chen Ge himself was surprised. Everything had happened too suddenly.

"Zhang Ya?" Turning back, Chen Ge looked at his own shadow. In that bottomless darkness, it appeared to be someone looking gently and softly at him. This was a gaze that had not been felt by Chen Ge before. It was unclear whether it was because Zhang Ya had gained access to a wider range of emotions after she became a Demon God or this was the aftereffect of the memory that Chen Ge had experienced with her in Yu Jian's world.

When Chen Ge was focusing on his own shadow, the faceless doctor who was not far away gave out a startling scream. The development there was completely different from what was happening to Chen Ge. The coat that he was wearing appeared to come to life and wrapped tightly around him. The human faces started to tear into the faceless doctor's body like it was a free-for-all feast until all traces of life had dissipated from the doctor's physical body. His whole body was covered in blood, and the coat that was made of human faces became his new layer of skin.

Different wounds started to surface on the face that did not have any facial features. The presence that radiated off the faceless doctor was now completely different from before. Currently, all the monsters at the residential area were attracted by Zhang Ya and Chen Ge. The faceless doctor made use of this opportunity to make his move. After he showed up, he made the determination to go after the ghost fetus' heart. The heart specimen that was stuck with nails appeared to be something very important. The Demon God on the faceless doctor had decided to show himself just to take it back as soon as possible. The faceless doctor finally did not hold back. Every face on his body gave off the presence of a Red Specter. With their combined effect, he pushed through the black fog easily.

The broken rag doll was about to regain its heart, so naturally, it would not allow the faceless doctor to do what he wanted, but it was too weak to stop the faceless doctor. They were now on completely different power levels!

Seeing as the nailed heart was about to be taken away, the rag doll suddenly had a smile appear on its face. It tore off its left arm voluntarily. This appeared to be some kind of signal. After the left arm was torn off, this world behind the door started to crumble. The buildings teetered, and the ground shook. In the space between Jiu Hong Apartments and Jin Hwa Apartments, a body that was stuffed with trash, cotton, toys, and pictures crawled out from the ground. This appeared to be the body that the rag doll was missing!

After the body crawled out, it was as if some kind of barrier had been lowered. The black fog rushed madly into the residential area. The buildings from Jiu Hong Apartments that were situated at the fringe were easily knocked over by this surging wave. The chain effect continued, and the other buildings were shaking precariously. The rag doll's body appeared to be the foundation of the whole world behind the door. When it had left the ground, it meant that the foundation of this world had been shaken.

Two legs, the head, the body, and the right arm—the rag doll appeared to have returned to its most original form in its memory. It had turned back to the poor child who had just escaped to Jiu Hong Apartments and was desperate to use the trash heap to form its own body. The shadow had lived for a long time inside the rag doll's body, so the rag doll possessed its most painful and despairing memories and experiences. In the world behind the door, both despair and pain represented a great store of power.

The presence that surrounded the rag doll was no weaker than the faceless doctor's. It had given up maintaining the stability of this world behind the door. It had taken back most of its body, other than its left arm. The rag doll appeared to purposely place its left arm back into Jin Hwa Apartments Block A. It had abandoned the whole world, but it would do anything to protect that one building.

The button that was sewn on the face was twined together by blood vessels. The eyeball that nobody knew where it came from was showing the extreme evil within humanity. The rag doll had suffered all the pain of the shadow, and it had also inherited the most powerful ability of the shadow—the power to curse.

The faceless doctor obviously knew the rag doll very well. He did not give the rag doll any chance to make a sound. Before the rag doll's body had fully crawled out from the ground, he had already made his move. As the Demon God from the cursed hospital, it was no coincidence that he was familiar with dealing with curses. The black fog was replaced by black threads. All the monsters that were unlucky enough to wander within a hundred meters of their fight would be torn apart for some unknown reason, and each death was more harrowing than the one preceding it. They had such horrible deaths.

The faceless doctor was locked in a match with the rag doll that had lost its left arm. Chen Ge's situation was not looking so good either, but one would not be able to tell that from Chen Ge's expression and mannerisms. As the exterior of the buildings around them started to peel, more and more 'people' started to run out from the buildings. Some of them should be people from Xiang Nuan's memory, while others had the same face. They looked just like younger versions of Chen Ge.

These children were like mud dolls that someone had made when they were bored. All of them possessed a small part of the ghost fetus' memories. Each child carried a different chapter of the ghost fetus' past. The ghost fetus appeared to have been sharing his pain with others, so he had created so many 'Chen Ge's. But at the same time, this also showed just how much he desperately wanted to become Chen Ge. The deeper the resentment, the harder it would be to turn back. The tragedy that happened to the ghost fetus was heavily related to the resentment that he carried with him. Of course, without this resentment, he would not have become a Demon God in the first place.

All the children and the original tenants of this world behind the door charged at Chen Ge. But not only them, even Chen Ge's own employees had difficulty getting close to him at this moment. The children's memories appeared to be connected to the monster that was looming over them. Every single one of them gave everything that they could to try to grab at Chen Ge. They wanted to slather Chen Ge's body with the black blood that leaked out from their bodies. After every single one of them died, they would repeat the same sentence to the giant monster in the sky.

"The former me! Look closely! This will be your future body!"

When the body of the last boy was decimated and morphed into a puddle of blood, the giant monster that loomed over the entire residential area finally decided to make its move. The body that was made up of countless memories and torn flesh started to reach downward. An impressive amount of power was pressing down on Chen Ge. It felt like the entire sky was falling, and Chen Ge was Atlas trying to hold it up.

"The ghost fetus is that scary?"

Even though the faceless doctor's power was not as powerful as Zhang Ya at the School of the Afterlife, he was already way more powerful than a normal Top Red Specter. He was able to wave away the black fog easily with the sweep of his hand, so that proved undeniably that he was a Demon God. However, the rag doll's broken body was able to stand on the same level as the faceless doctor, which also indirectly proved that the rag doll had reached the level of a Demon God. But the scary thing was that the rag doll was just a part of the ghost fetus' power. The monster that the ghost fetus called the 'Past' was the real trouble here.

The ghost fetus had been preparing for years behind the door. The monster appeared to have been combined with his past, and it was created by forcing it to consume the other monsters inside the black fog. Even though the monster did not seem to possess much sentience, and it lacked its own consciousness. From the absurd sky that literally blocked off the sky, one could tell that this was not an easy enemy to defeat. As powerful as a Red Specter was, they would be unable to deal with 'the past'.

Standing before the 'Past', it appeared like one was facing the whole world. If Chen Ge only had his employees with him at this time, he probably would have chosen to give up. He would have ordered his employees to abandon him and try to find ways to survive and then escape from this world. But the reason he was still standing there was because of the shadow behind him. The ghost fetus was once his shadow, and Zhang Ya was now his shadow. The ghost fetus represented the past while Zhang Ya represented the present and the future.

This showdown had been destined since ten years ago. Only by killing the ‘past’ would one have the chance to chase after the future. If one was unable to walk away from the past, the future would forever be out of grasp. When no one dared approach Chen Ge, that giant shadow covered the entire sky that was above Chen Ge. A giant gap appeared on the face of the ‘Past’, and multiple memories were torn apart. The ‘Past’ wanted to consume Chen Ge in one gulp!

Xiang Nuan, who was deeply encased in the ‘Past’s head, looked at Chen Ge blankly, but suddenly, his gaze moved away from Chen Ge to the spot behind Chen Ge like his line of sight was attracted by something there. That was the spot where the ghost fetus had been standing earlier. Blood was boiling like crazy.

With Chen Ge as the center, all the surrounding ghosts and Specters were knocked and pressed to the ground by a powerful blood wave. Even the rag doll and the faceless doctor who were fighting among themselves were affected by this sudden turn of events, but the blood wave did not seem to care about what it was doing.

The giant ‘Past’ was like a sky that was falling while the shadow behind Chen Ge was like a blood sea that spread over the horizon. In the world filled with black fog, the sky and sea had clashed together!

The whole world was shaking. Blood rain started to fall from the sky, and it washed away plenty of the black fog. When people came to, they finally saw the new figure that had appeared to stand before Chen Ge.

The red dress was fluttering in the wind! Under the dress was a bottomless sea of blood!

“Zhang Ya!” The familiar back entered Chen Ge’s eyes. The person from Yu Jian’s world and the person before him now overlapped together. It felt incredibly surreal to Chen Ge. He raised his hand before finally deciding to put it down again. He knew now was a crucial moment where their life and death would be decided, and he also knew how precarious his condition was at that moment.

There is a new change to Zhang Ya's body again. She did not use black hair like she used to in the past. The dress that she is wearing now has even more patterns of Specters' faces, and the blood sea that is under her feet...

Using his Yin Yang Vision, the more Chen Ge looked, the more surprised he became. Zhang Ya was not stepping on a blood sea at all. Among the redness, Chen Ge could make out the outline of multiple buildings.

She seems to be standing atop a red city! Is she borrowing the power of that red city?

Chen Ge had found out from the old headmaster of the School of the Afterlife that Zhang Ya knew a path that could lead deep into the red city, and Zhang Ya herself had been to the center of the red city.

Chapter 1105 - Too Close

1105 Too Close

The battlefield behind the door had been split into the two parts. The faceless doctor and the rag doll appeared to be cautious and limited their fighting to a smaller range. Zhang Ya and the ‘Past’, however, did not hold back at all. They could not care less about what would happen to this world. They did not care that more monsters would be drawn over. Once they made their move, they would not stop until one of them was dead. After the first collision, Zhang Ya became the focus of everyone’s attention.

With her every appearance, she became stronger than before. Even when facing the enormous ‘Past’ alone, she did not take even a step back. But as her power increased, so did the mystery surrounding her. There appeared to be some kind of connection between her and the red city. The Past’s first attack was neutralized by Zhang Ya. A long wound was left on its body. It was the result from that first attack.

Countless people’s memories were shredded, but Xiang Nuan, who was embedded in the Past’s head, was still looking as confused as ever. His eyes had no soul inside them as if he had no idea what he was doing, but he was unceremoniously staring at Zhang Ya and Chen Ge.

...

This monster does not feel pain, and it does not appear clever enough to contemplate anything too complicated. Even though it’s powerful, it’s unwieldy and hard to control. Why would the ghost fetus create a monster like this?

The battle went into a stalemate. Chen Ge was situated at the center of the storm, but he was not worried. He was focused on a question that had been troubling him—what was the ghost fetus’ goal? The black phone had told him to prevent the ghost fetus’ birth because once the ghost fetus was born, he would definitely die, but what exactly did the ghost fetus need to do to get born?

Chen Ge failed to deduce the answer from the ghost fetus' preparation. Be it the broken rag doll or the 'Past' above them, they were not the complete version of the ghost fetus.

My once shadow appears to have split itself into multiple versions of itself. It wants to be reborn, so it should need to gather all the split versions of itself back into a ready body.

When Zhang Ya was fighting the 'Past', most of the buildings were broken. The walls of the buildings collapsed around them, the crumbled blocks appeared to fall irregularly, but actually, it would seem like they had subtly surrounded Jin Hwa Apartments and Jiu Hong Apartments.

Chen Ge had a very bad feeling. The cursed hospital had a very good chance of knowing the ghost fetus would probably be reborn on this day. They had been waiting for this day to come because they wanted to use the least amount of effort to accomplish their goal. And the ghost fetus itself had escaped from the cursed hospital. It had learned a lot from Doctor Gao. It was not a Specter that was dominated by brute force and hatred. It not only knew how to think, it also had a complete yet twisted and sick worldview. The ghost fetus would anticipate the arrival of the cursed hospital on this day, but it did nothing to stop them.

Chen Ge's eyes calmed down.

Let's imagine I am the ghost fetus, and I am hiding behind the door. I have prepared for over a decade for this day, so I definitely do not want any disturbance at this crucial moment. Thus, I must do everything within my power to stop the cursed hospital from entering the world behind the door.

With the rag doll and the 'Past' as well as many original tenants, the ghost fetus could already deal with two Demon Gods at the same time before his time of rebirth. With that kind of power, it should not have been hard to him to seal up the blood door, but the ghost fetus did not do it. Be it Chen Ge or the faceless doctor, they did not encounter any resistance when entering this door. It felt like the ghost fetus was purposely letting them in.

Nine children represented nine different powers that were taken away. If it was another person who entered those children's worlds, most of them would not have been able to resist the seduction of power, like Jia Ming and the cursed hospital. None of them would give up the chance to take part of the ghost fetus' power. In the face of such rewards, they would enter one door after another until they arrived at Xiang Nuan's world.

The weakened ghost fetus that they anticipated did not exist, but what they would find were two monsters that rivalled the power of a Demon God. The death of the intruders would return the ghost fetus' power to him. If everything went successfully, the ghost fetus would have a perfect rebirth. But did the ghost fetus need to undergo such a big risk just to take back the powers that it had lost?

Chen Ge looked at the 'Past', which was still growing. The monster blocked out the sky and loomed over the two residential areas. Its shell dragged on the ground, and it had involuntarily joined together with the ground.

Blocking out the sky and joining to the ground, the monster wants to envelope everything and everyone inside the whole residential area!

A maddening thought appeared in his mind. Chen Ge narrowed his pupils.

The ghost fetus' plan couldn't be to consume both Demon Gods, could it?

In Chen Ge's mind, a Top Red Specter was already a very scary presence. He was stunned by the ghost fetus' plan.

The door pusher's power is doubled behind their own door. The ghost fetus must have prepared everything already. His ten years of work was all for this day.

Chen Ge and the cursed hospital were looking for the ghost fetus, but at the same time, the ghost fetus was waiting for them behind the door. Taking in a deep breath, Chen Ge tried to make himself calm down. He did not really expect the ghost fetus' real plan to be to swallow everything, but equally, the ghost fetus probably did not expect Zhang Ya to have become so powerful.

I finally understand the true meaning of the words that the shadow told me at Li Wan City. His presence was to make me show all my trump cards, to test my limits! The shadow was sent by the ghost fetus to me as a test!

As a Demon God, the ghost fetus knew many things. He did not give much attention to the current Chen Ge. At most, Chen Ge was only one of his nine chosen candidates, one of the things he needed to make the perfect body.

It was not that long from the death of the shadow at Li Wan City to the birth of the ghost fetus, so the ghost fetus predicted that my ability would not have evolved too much during this short period, but he greatly underestimated Zhang Ya.

Zhang Ya, who had been hibernating, became the only variable, one that neither the ghost fetus nor Chen Ge's parents had predicted!

If Zhang Ya was still a Top Red Specter, if she was still wounded, then she would have had trouble dealing with this enormous 'Past'.

Chen Ge's back was soaked in cold sweat.

So, the ghost fetus planned everything. He believed I'd be weaker than the cursed hospital, so he directly used the powerful and scary 'Past' to deal with me, to take me out of the battle as soon as possible. If I die, everything that I have will become the soil on which the ghost fetus will grow. By then, the monster from the cursed hospital will be no threat to him. Being consumed by the ghost fetus would be a matter of time.

Consuming two Demon Gods at the same time just for his perfect rebirth, the ghost fetus' madness was hard to imagine, but the scariest thing was how close he was to succeeding, just that one step away.

Chapter 1106 - He Has a Name; It's Xiang Nuan

1106 He Has a Name; It's Xiang Nuan

The giant Past blocked before everyone. No matter what, everyone had deal with the Past. After its first fight with Zhang Ya, the Past's body was slowly changing. The black threads made from multiple memories and blurry shadows joined together to form thick limbs that extended in four directions, becoming a prison that trapped everyone inside the residential area.

The Past's upper body, which looked like a giant cicada, started to crack like it breaking through the cocoon. The fluttery cicada wings melted into the black fog. The fog that had been blown away earlier thickened again. The monster's wings appeared to have the power to attract the black fog.

The sky was sealed, and to make matters worse, the ground was becoming unsafe as well. The Past's lower body was sunken into the ground. The shell covered in ghost faces dragged on the ground. Old shell continued to peel, but whenever that happened, new shell grow out of the exposed location soon enough. Compared to the upper body, the monster's lower body was more akin to a person's normal understanding. It was unable to be shaken off. No matter how hard one tried to forget about it, it would continue to return.

...

This happened again and again until a wounded monster was left behind. The monster's name should be 'I', but he was unable to refer to himself as the Past.

Painful faces appeared on the gray ground. A strange sound came from the inner core of the ground. It sounded like a beating heart. The faceless doctor had many ways to deal with the rag doll because he was familiar with all of the rag doll's powers. Even at its prime, the doctor would be able to hold the rag doll back, but now there was a new monster behind the door—the Past. The cursed hospital knew that the ghost fetus would have a hidden power, but they probably did not expect the ghost fetus to voluntarily join together with the monsters from the black fog. As a Demon God from the cursed hospital, he was more familiar with the scariness of the monster compared to Chen Ge.

It is impossible to bring Patient 0004 back alive now. He must have figured out the hospital's plan, so he blocked that option from the very beginning.

When the faceless doctor was fighting the rag doll, he still had time to think about other things.

Patient 0004's obsession is the pursuit of bliss, but he has been misdirected by Patient 0011 to believe that he will gain bliss once he becomes a human being. From the beginning, his path was wrong, so he is destined to fail.

The faceless doctor kept getting close to the rag doll.

Since I cannot bring Patient 0004 back alive, the other option is to shatter its soul and eliminate this unstable variable. The patient that the hospital really cares about is Patient 0001. Everyone else is just a replacement. The director will forgive me for doing this, but how am I supposed to kill Patient 0004?

One of the faces on the clothes glanced at Chen Ge. The face grimaced in hatred.

Join forces with him? Impossible! Compared to Patient 0004, the desire to kill him is stronger. The desire has overridden everything. Blast it, if I ran into him outside the door, I wouldn't have to worry so much.

The sky and ground kept changing. The rag doll stopped the faceless doctor while Zhang Ya stayed beside Chen Ge. Both Demon Gods did not leave the residential area. Everything was within the ghost fetus' calculations. The beating heart sound came from under their feet, and it started to match the rhythm of Chen Ge's own heartbeat. Each powerful beat caused extreme discomfort to Chen Ge. He gripped his chest tightly, but it was to no avail. Not only him, every Red Specter and monster from the fog inside the residential area felt the same negative effect. Everyone's heart was disrupted by the sound that came from underground.

Chen Ge looked around him. His employees' bodies started to change for the worse.

Even the Red Specters' hearts are influenced!

This was especially clear on the red high heels, who had consumed most of the ghost fetus' curses. The bandages on her body had almost all fallen apart, and the curious black pattern on her skin was bleeding like wounds that were branded on her body.

If you have taken something from the ghost fetus, now is the time to pay him back with interest. The monster plans to swallow everyone!

The sky was joined to the earth. The Past had enveloped the whole of Jiu Hong Apartments and Jin Hwa Apartments. Multiple curses twined together to morph into a black rain. Zhang Ya, stepping on the red sea, took on most of the pressure. She could not spare any energy to protect the other employees.

The black rain showered down. Chen Ge immediately took out the comic to summon back all his employees. Before the Demon Gods, normal Red Specters were just dead weight. Only Top Red Specters could be of some use. With the employees inside the comic, even though they had been saved from the corruption of the curse, their hearts were still affected.

After decades of preparation, the ghost fetus had finally initiated his plan. The first move was to be his last. He had calculated everything. This prison formed using the Past's body was tightening and strengthening. Now, only a Demon God could escape, but both Demon Gods present were held back. Even Xiao Bu, who was one step away from being a Top Red Specter, was unable to shake off the negative influence.

The heartbeat from underground assimilated itself to everyone's heartbeat. Every time it beat, it would grip at everyone's heart.

How did he manage to do this?

If this continues, my employees will be in serious trouble. They cannot hold on much longer.

Chen Ge did not look well. Even Red Specters were struggling, much less the normal Specters.

The heartbeat's coming from underground. To locate the heartbeat, I will have to find the heart that is hidden underground.

The sky was howling with a black storm. The curse that the ghost fetus had gathered for ten years lashed at everything behind the door. It was impossible to shield against the rain and then to find the heart at the same time. Even Zhang Ya could not manage that.

I cannot be a dead weight to Zhang Ya. It is because she needs to guard before me that she cannot evade the rain freely. She can only take it head on. Facing such a huge monster, that is not a wise choice.

The ghost fetus had probably calculated that as well. Chen Ge was still a human, so the ghosts on him would have to suffer the giant monster's attacks to protect him. In a way, he was Zhang Ya's weakness. However, could the same not be said of the ghost fetus?

The ghost fetus' plan was perfect, but he did not calculate for Wen Qing also entering the door.

The rag doll's missing arm should have been sent back to Jin Hwa Apartments' Block A. Every other building is crumbling, but that building alone is unaffected. The ghost fetus, or rather, Xiang Nuan is protecting Wen Qing.

Once a person had something they needed to protect, their weakness would be exposed. This was the only crack in the ghost fetus' perfect plan, and this crack was the last trace of humanity he had left.

"Zhang Ya, go to that tallest building!" Chen Ge shouted. But before he moved, the faceless doctor had already darted toward Block A. This Demon God from the cursed hospital had observed this anomaly as well. Initially, he was held back by the rag doll, but the rag doll did not fight him head on. It mostly just avoided the doctor's attacks. However, once the doctor moved toward Block A, the rag doll dragged its broken body to stop him.

Chen Ge saw this clearly. Wen Qing was probably the only person the ghost fetus still wished to protect.

Actually, he already has a family, but he just hasn't realized it himself.

Chen Ge was reminded of the first time he encountered Wen Qing and Xiang Nuan. Wen Qing would take Xiang Nuan to Eastern Jiujiang Dam every day. Wen Qing always accompanied Xiang Nuan, but Xiang Nuan was looking for the obsession that was buried deep inside the hole at the bottom of the dam. The hole was filled with numerable mud statuettes of Chen Ge's parents. They seemed to represent the ghost fetus' past desire for familial warmth.

It could not let that obsession go. The pair of eyes stared at the dark and still surface of the water, but it did not realize that there was already someone willing to accompany him by his side.

Chapter 1107 - The Ghost Fetus“

Last Choice 2 in 1

1107 The Ghost Fetus“ Last Choice 2 in 1

The ghost fetus had never experienced bliss, so it did not understand what real bliss felt like. It only knew how to be envious of other people, but it forgot to look around itself. When the faceless doctor started to launch an attack on Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, the rag doll dragged its broken body to try and stop him. It did not even understand why it would do something like that. It appeared like its body was acting on instinct. The rag doll was missing an arm, so it was at a disadvantage. Currently, the faceless doctor had the upper hand. The rag doll's condition worsened, and the wounds on its body increased. Its body and limbs were shredded multiple times, but the rag doll forced them to stay together via the black curse threads.

When the faceless doctor saw the rag doll come after him voluntarily, he confirmed the suspicion in his mind. The faces on his red coat all revealed a sinister and wicked smile.

“Four, you still have something that you care about, huh? Looks like the director was not wrong. You are only close to Patient 0001, but there is still a gulf between you and him.”

...

The mad faceless doctor kept using his words to disrupt the rag doll. Normally, these words would not have any influence on a Demon God, but if the words were laced with curses, it would be a completely different story. Every single word could be a trap. When a person or a Specter started to doubt themselves, they would easily fall for the trap. The basis of all the Specters was their obsession. If their own obsession was shaken, it would be an attack directly on their soul.

All the faces on the faceless doctor's coat showed horrible and disgusting expressions. The doctor moved even faster as more and more curses gathered around him. Earlier he was probably holding back because he was cautious about Zhang Ya and the Past.

"When I capture the woman inside Block A, I will bring her back to the hospital. She will be given the treatment that you have gone through. I believe that even after you have successfully reborn, you will come back to find her, right?"

The mouths tore open, and the shrill voice travelled very far down the distance. Even Chen Ge and the Past, who was floating above everyone, were able to hear the doctor clearly.

Xiang Nuan, who was embedded inside the Past's head shuddered his shoulders. Something seemed to return to his blurry eyes. The arms that were bound by endless broken carcasses and memories started to tighten. It appeared like the boy wanted to gain control over the Past. Compared to the Past, whose size had blocked out the sky, Xiang Nuan's body was so small that it was negligible, but at this moment, he wanted to use his small body to control that ginormous monster.

The faceless doctor was already very close to Jin Hwa Apartments Block A. Using Wen Qing as a threat, he slowly approached the tallest building as he delivered fatal blows on the rag doll. This monster from the cursed hospital was extremely greedy. On one hand, he wanted to take control of Wen Qing, but he did not want to lose this precious opportunity to deal heavy damage to the rag doll either. He appeared to be envious of this body that the ghost fetus had occupied.

The rag doll alone was obviously too weak to stop the faceless doctor. Xiang Nuan wanted to control the Past, but that appeared to be beyond the boy's power. Everything the Past was tasked to do was swallow everything and everyone inside Jiu Hong Apartments and Jin Hwa Apartments. The Past that was made from endless memories and materials sourced from the black fog did not want to ruin that plan just for the sake of Wen Qing.

The faceless doctor was rapidly approaching Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, and Zhang Ya was also hurrying toward that building while protecting Chen Ge. Unlike the faceless doctor, Chen Ge did not plan to use Wen Qing as leverage against the ghost fetus. He merely wanted to protect his own employees at that moment. Everyone had something that they wanted to protect; it was no exception for Chen Ge, even though he was normally the party being protected.

With Zhang Ya acting as his guardian, Chen Ge managed to get into Jin Hwa Apartments Block A before the faceless doctor. With the rag doll's arm placed safely inside the building, the building was safe from the black fog's influence. Basically, the place had not changed compared to the last time Chen Ge left it. Chen Ge entered the building easily and without any trouble, but just as Zhang Ya was prepared to enter the building, the rag doll's broken body that was not far away let out a shrill scream, one that appeared like it would have pulled harshly on its vocal chords.

After making that sound, the rag doll's movement slowed down. Its power was gradually slipping, but strangely enough, when the Past in the sky heard the rag doll's scream, its giant body started to slowly turn. As the rag doll's weakened, the light in Xiang Nuan's eyes appeared to return; the blankness in his eyes was being chased away.

The Past slowed down the speed of strengthening the prison. The period between each heartbeat was getting longer and longer. It instead turned its focus on Zhang Ya as if the moment Zhang Ya dared step into Jin Hwa Apartments' Block A, he would not hesitate to start attacking like crazy. Zhang Ya did not dare act too recklessly, but she kept her eyes on Chen Ge, who had entered the building.

There was no black fog inside Block A, but he could still feel the heartbeat that came from underground clearly. Chen Ge carried his backpack, and his fingers were tightly gripping his chest. The literal heart-wrenching feeling was hard to describe. It was as if his heart was trying to jump out of his physical body.

"Calm down, I have to calm down!" Cold sweat soaked his forehead. Chen Ge tried to remember where he had heard Wen Qing's voice coming from. "Wen Qing appears to have been placed on the top floor. The sound of the heartbeat came from underground. The top floor is furthest away from the ground, so she would be least affected if she was placed there! The ghost fetus must have considered that before he decided to fetch Wen Qing and place her on the top floor!"

Rushing into the stairwell, Chen Ge stumbled and climbed his way up to the top floor. The heartbeat kept interrupting him, and his fingers that covered his heart were already white from the force. Using both his legs and hands, Chen Ge gasped hungrily for air as he climbed on all fours up the steps. When he reached the fifth floor, the influence of the heartbeat on his body had weakened conspicuously.

"It's working!" The condition of the workers inside the comic was turning for the better as well, but Chen Ge did not dare let his guard down because the sound of the heartbeat coming from the underground was getting louder and louder as well. If it could not be stopped from its core, then it would be pointless even to run and hide at the top floor. The ghost fetus had spent decades preparing this trap. From the very beginning, the plan was to swallow everyone. It would not have left behind a blind spot that would allow a person to hide for safety.

When it was making the plan, it had nothing but hatred for everything. The ghost fetus himself must have been as surprised as everyone else that when his plan was put into motion, he would have someone that he cared about who got mixed into the plan. Chen Ge climbed upward, higher into the building. He was glad that he had taken the pains to clear away all the mad people inside the building earlier, or else they would have been a great impediment to him at this moment.

Without wasting any time, Chen Ge climbed to the seventh floor. Right at that moment, a giant boom came from outside the building. The building shook violently, and Chen Ge almost lost his balance and rolled down the stairs. Looking through the window, Chen Ge saw that Zhang Ya had gotten into another fight with the Past, but this time, Zhang Ya did not face it head on. Instead, she perfectly utilized the agility and dexterity that the Past did not possess to avoid most of the damage. Without Chen Ge holding her back, it was very difficult for the Past to really injure Zhang Ya.

The several parties had gotten into a stalemate again, but this was extremely beneficial to the ghost fetus. It would be able to accomplish its final goal. All the people and Specters, including the two Demon Gods, would become nutrients for its rebirth. With three Demon Gods as the foundation, if the ghost fetus successfully reborn, even if his body had some deficiencies, he would an extremely scary presence, so scary in fact that he might even be capable of breaking the limitation between life and death.

Everything was still moving in the direction as the ghost fetus was hoping, but his plan that appeared thorough actually had many loopholes. When all these loopholes were gathered together, it would knock one of the steps of the plan way out of place.

The rag doll, whose energy was rapidly depleting, was still trying its best to stop the faceless doctor, but without its arm, heart, and under the influence of Chen Ge, it had ultimately failed. The body that was a macramé of trash was broken up and reconstructed again and again. The rag doll was very familiar with this process. Since it had become the item of possession for the shadow, it had been repeating this process day in and day out.

For other people, this pain would literally tear at the heart, but shattering its bones was an everyday event for the rag doll. It would never give up because of pain. It told itself that it would never feel pain because it was just a mere rag doll. With each reconstruction, no matter what happened, it would try its best to regain and reform its body. That was until this day when the cursed threads inside its body were all severed and the curse that bound its body together was replaced by the curse from another Demon God.

The injuries on its body could not be healed anymore. The button that was sewn on its face started to slip, and it slid down the side of the building and landed on the ground. This body that had been reconstructed who knew how many times finally crumbled on this day. Its head was eviscerated by the most familiar curse. It looked at the smiles on the faceless doctor and then glanced at the dried avian bodies inside its right arm. Its gaze gradually moved until they landed on Jin Hwa Apartments Block A.

The mouth that was sewn together wished to open. The black rain fell steadily on its face. The rag doll's head eventually rolled and stopped next to the button. When the rag doll was defeated by the faceless doctor, Jin Hwa Apartments' Block A started to vibrate violently. Endless black fog rushed into it. The arm that guarded the building until now had lost its use.

The black fog seeped into the building. When Chen Ge saw the black fog enter the building, he knew what had happened outside the building. The rag doll that had once been occupied by the ghost fetus had been destroyed. The body that had borne witness to the pain that the ghost fetus had suffered was torn apart by the faceless doctor. The trash that was previously stuffed inside the rag doll littered the ground.

"It cannot be used anymore? Did it give everything that it had to the Past before it died?" Even though the faceless doctor had managed to 'kill' the rag doll, he did not look too happy about it. "Patient 0004 was willing to give everything that he had to the monster inside the black fog and did not keep a shred of power for himself. Does he have such confidence that the plan this time will be successful?"

The faceless doctor failed to find the thing that he wanted among the rag doll's broken body. Before this, he appeared to have this belief that the ghost fetus would leave some insurance for himself. As long as there was something of the ghost fetus left inside the rag doll, then the rag doll could still be reconstructed, but apparently the faceless doctor had guessed wrong. The angered faceless doctor turned his focus to Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, which was almost toppled over.

"The person that Patient 0004 cares about is still in there. If I can capture her, then I can still find a way to escape. I can use her as a medium to place horrible curses on the ghost fetus to seek a way out from this tragedy."

The faceless doctor did not plan to get into any fight with the Past. He took a glance at Zhang Ya, and his gaze darkened.

"With her drawing the Past's attention, this is quite a good development for me."

Of course, the faceless doctor was not going to lose this precious opportunity. After the faceless doctor killed the rag doll, he rushed toward Jin Hwa Apartments' Block A without any hesitation.

With the rag doll dead, no one was able to stop the faceless doctor anymore. As he was getting closer and closer to Block A, Chen Ge, who was about to reach the top floor, screamed loudly at Zhang Ya, "Lead the monster over to the doctor! You have to find a way to destroy the heart that is hidden underground!"

Zhang Ya understood him perfectly. Actually, before Zhang Ya pulled the Past's focus to the doctor, the Past had already moved its attention to the faceless doctor. All Zhang Ya needed to do was astutely move aside for the Past to pass. Hearing this, the faceless doctor really wanted to tear out Chen Ge's mouth, but there was no other way out of this. However, fortunately for the faceless doctor, he had already discovered Wen Qing, and he was very close to her!

After the rag doll's death, Xiang Nuan, who was encased in the Past's head, was slowly recovering his consciousness. Spirit started to return to his eyes. At that moment, the Past's giant body was lying between Zhang Ya and the faceless doctor. Due to the size of its body, it would need to take some time even if it just wanted to twist its body around. The faceless doctor was getting closer and closer to Wen Qing while Zhang Ya listened to Chen Ge's suggestion. The bloody sea leaked underground. The black hair pushed the ground open like waves, and she soon found the source of the heartbeat.

The Past's shell that it could not shake off was buried in the ground. On the spot where the shell was joined to the ground sat a blood red heart that was beating. That was the heart that the ghost fetus possessed when he became a Red Specter. It was a blackened heart. Part of it was heavily shielded by the shell. It was an analogy of it being heavily bound by the painful past, and it could not shake it off no matter how hard it tried.

The remaining part was wreathed in a cage of fresh blood vessels. It was joined to the Past's upper body, and from the top of the heart extended multiple blood vessels. The blood vessels were joined to all the buildings and the ground of the entire residential area. With every beat of the heart, the blood vessels would ingest the monsters and Specters that had been killed inside the residential area. The more the ghosts that it consumed, the bigger the red part of the heart became. Currently, the heart was enormous.

The ghost fetus had turned all the ghosts that he had consumed into energy to help him shake off the shell. Based on the normal speed, he would need to consume a lot of Specters and require a lot of time before he could use this method to turn his heart fully red. But to counteract this, the more the monsters from inside the black fog he consumed, the bigger the Past would become. The heart would grow bigger, and so would the black part. It was as if the events that had happened today would eventually become a part of the past.

Zhang Ya had found the source of the heartbeat. The city in the red sea under her feet was becoming clear. She seemed to be ready to destroy this heart directly.

According to the ghost fetus' original plan, the rag doll was supposed to hold off the monster from the cursed hospital while the Past would be tasked with killing Zhang Ya. After he had obtained Chen Ge's body, he would be invincible. Then, he would gather all his power to slowly torture the monster from the cursed hospital to death. It was a flawless plan, but unfortunately, the plan had strayed wildly from its path.

With the rag doll dead, the Past was stuck between Zhang Ya and the faceless doctor. It was placed in a difficult position. Zhang Ya was about to destroy the Past's heart, and the faceless doctor was about to get his hands on Wen Qing. The faceless doctor would not hesitate to implant a Demon God's curse on this innocent woman. The Past had to make a choice between its own heart and Wen Qing!

‘I’ die, or ‘she’ dies.

After a short hesitation by the large Past, it turned its focus to bite at Zhang Ya, but as it made that decision, Xiang Nuan, who was embedded in its head, started to cry tears of blood!

Both of his arms struggled free from the Past’s giant body like the wings of a free bird as they extended to the spot where Wen Qing was!

“Trash desires to have a life like a normal human being. It is chasing something that even it itself cannot explain clearly. Based on its description, I personally believe it is looking for the feeling of bliss.

“Trash wishes to obtain bliss, but it does not understand what bliss is. To cure its illness, I will have to first teach it the meaning of bliss.

“The lack of bliss, or misery, is a kind of disease. Misery is like a cut that’s left on one’s heart. All the happiness will leak out from this opening, and bliss is the bandage that will close this wound.

“Using my perspective to explain bliss, Trash was able to understand the concept very quickly.

“It looked for a long time, but it failed to find bliss. To help it understand the concept further, I persuaded it to create misery and, from the contrast, try to observe what bliss actually is.

“Trash chose a bird. Under my tutelage, it broke off the bird’s wing. The blood splattered all over the bird’s feathers. The bird was wailing in despair. That is the sound of misery.

“Under the watchful care of Trash, the bird’s wound slowly recovered. But it had lost the ability to fly in the sky. I told Trash that was the price for bliss.

“To obtain bliss, one has to give up something. It is a very fair exchange.”

Chapter 1108 - You Were Not Supposed to Be in This World 2 in 1

1108 You Were Not Supposed to Be in This World 2 in 1

The ghost fetus made the final choice. Xiang Nuan, who was embedded in the Past's head, was covered in blood. His eyes were no longer lost. Roaring, he crawled as fast as he could toward Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, where Wen Qing was. The Past's giant body was being dragged along. It blocked out the sky and tore open the ground. Perhaps it knew that this was the last chance that it ever got, so it did not hold back and launched the scariest attack that it could muster against the faceless doctor!

The faceless doctor sent by the cursed hospital could not fathom the choice made by the ghost fetus at that moment. They had spent more than ten years studying the ghost fetus, and they could be said to understand the ghost fetus like the back of their hand. From his perspective and understanding of the ghost fetus, he should not have done something like this.

"Why?" By now, the faceless doctor had seen Wen Qing, who was hiding on the rooftop. The faces on his face darkened with malice, and then they all broke out in a maddening laughter. "No matter, the more you care for her, the more I need to capture her!"

...

Numerous thin, black strands wiggled out from the faceless doctor's body. The human faces on his coat were slowly disappearing one by one. With the disappearance of each face, there would be a person constructed fully from curses that appeared beside him. The figures were about as powerful as the faceless doctor, but they moved much faster than the doctor. At this crucial moment, the faceless doctor had used his own power. He had to obtain Wen Qing no matter what.

“As long as I can capture Wen Qing and then use the curse to control her, perhaps I can use her to threaten the ghost fetus!”

When the faceless doctor was fighting the Past, Zhang Ya stood above the Past’s enormous heart. Her pale and slender hands reached out to press on the Past’s ugly shell. The five fingers easily phased through the hard shell. The blood wave and the black hair slipped into the Past’s heart through the opening. Zhang Ya wanted to destroy the Past’s heart but things were not as simple as she hoped. As soon as she did that, many curse and dead souls appeared from inside the Past’s body. They weaved together to form a sturdy layer over the heart to protect it. The wounds that he had experienced, the pain and despair from the past, became the shield that protected the Past’s heart.

Zhang Ya tried many different ways, but she failed to shatter the layer of crust around the heart. The expression on her face slowly changed. The pale fingers gradually tightened, and the blood sea under her feet bubbled with violent waves. The buildings that were previously hiding inside the blood sea became clearer. They changed from an outline of themselves into actual buildings. The black fog was chased back, and an indescribably scary presence exuded from Zhang Ya.

She looked closely at the Past’s heart and slowly raised her fingers. As the slender fingers rose, following them were the many buildings submerged in the red sea!

Chen Ge, who was climbing up Block A, saw this as well. He was so surprised that his mouth was hanging open. Zhang Ya was currently using the same kind of power that Xiao Bu had used earlier. The difference was, Xiao Bu summoned the shadow of Li Wan City to source her power, but Zhang Ya was stepping on the red city itself!

“Xiao Bu was able to summon the bloody projection of Li Wan City because she is the door pusher at Li Wan City. There is an undeniable connection between her and that place. Zhang Ya is now using the same power as Xiao Bu, but she is summoning the bloody projection of the red city! Does this mean that Zhang Ya has some kind of deep connection with the red city?”

After he reached the rooftop, Chen Ge looked down at the distant Zhang Ya.

“Zhang Ya’s most basic power is to control her black hair. Other than this power, she can use the powers of the other Specters, including the Specters that she has consumed and the Specters that are related to me. Xiao Bu used her power earlier, and Zhang Ya is using the more powerful version of it now. This appears to be her real special power.”

The appearance of the red city had shaken the whole world behind the door. Many Specters and souls were screaming inside the red city, and the black fog was forcibly pushed back. Zhang Ya was borrowing the energy from the red city to steamroll over the Past’s heart!

At the same time, the faceless doctor had also finally arrived at the rooftop of Jin Hwa Apartments Block A. The Past’s giant mouth was just hovering above his head.

“Wen Qing, stay away from him!” Chen Ge shouted at Wen Qing, who was standing at the edge of the rooftop. The roof was barren, and there was no place for her to use as a cover. Then again, Wen Qing did not look like she was trying to hide either. Her eyes were locked on Xiang Nuan, who was deeply entrenched in the Past’s head. Be it a Demon God or the monster that blocked out the sky, they did not stop her from continuing to call Xiang Nuan’s name.

In reality, before a Demon God, it would be pointless for a normal person to try to hide. The faceless doctor approached her at lightning speed. He had multiple shadows trailing behind him. Each of them was carrying a face that had been peeled off from his doctor’s coat.

Bang!

The Past’s head was torn open, and the disformed mouth directly moved down to swallow the faceless doctor. The souls were wailing. Both parties were experts at curses. The black threads were like blades dancing in the air, cutting and shredding the black rain that was falling constantly. Ultimately, the Past still cared about Wen Qing. It was willing to suffer some damage to protect Wen Qing by swallowing the faceless doctor. It would only feel better once the faceless doctor was inside its stomach because it was too easy for a Demon God to kill a normal human being.

The faceless doctor’s curse crawled into the Past’s flesh. Pieces of memory were peeling. Black blood dripped along with the rain, but the Past did not seem to mind it at all. Xiang Nuan, who had long since stopped caring about his life, would not pay attention to these injuries.

His bleeding eyes were following the faceless doctor closely. The black threads that bound his mouth were torn open, and the doctor screamed from pain. The Past was doing the same thing as him. The Past's giant mouth bit off the man's chest, and the black blood splashed all over the rooftop. Just like that, the Past swallowed the faceless doctor and the shadows behind him in one gulp. The giant mouth closed. The scene was extremely shocking, but before anyone could recover from this scene, a shrill laugh came from the edge of the building.

"Damn it!" Even though Chen Ge also wanted to kill the ghost fetus, he did not want Wen Qing to get injured, so he ran to help her at the first notice, but he was still too late. There was a shredded face stuck to the wall near Wen Qing's feet. The face had been forcibly yanked off by the faceless doctor. It was still dyed with fresh blood on its back. The faceless doctor had split up numerous shadows, and every one of them was incredibly powerful. Just as everyone thought that was the end of his tricks, he had reserved one more hand. He had silently torn off one of the faces from his coat without anyone noticing.

No one knew when he did that, and no one saw how that face managed to crawl to the Wen Qing's feet. Before anyone could react, the face had already crawled onto Wen Qing's body. It branded itself like a tattoo on Wen Qing's leg. An eerie and scary smile came from the face on Wen Qing's skin. Immediately, black lines that grew like briars expanded from Wen Qing's flesh!

Wen Qing's face paled instantly. It felt like her whole body was being punctured by sharp needles.

"Release my body immediately, or I will kill her in the most painful way before your eyes," the face that grew on Wen Qing's flesh warned. A normal human being was powerless before a Demon God. The faceless doctor literally had his hand over Wen Qing's life. The painful wails echoed on the rooftop. It showed that Wen Qing was in a pain that a normal person would never have the ability to imagine. Before the bloody tears at the corner of his eyes had dried, Xiang Nuan's face fully contorted.

The cage had been prepared, but his only family was trapped inside the cage as well. The black rain continued to fall in greater intensity. Xiang Nuan looked at Wen Qing. The memory pieces kept dropping from the Past's body. He appeared to wish to open the mouth that he had closed.

“Do not mind me!” Wen Qing collapsed to the ground while suffering the pain from the curse. She suddenly raised her head to shout at the Past, “I do not need you to take care of me, and I do not want anything from you! I only wish that you will be able to grow up healthily and live on happily!”

Green veins popped on her neck. The black threads swam under her skin like many little snakes. Wen Qing’s nails that gripped the ground were peeling off. She stared at Xiang Nuan, who was looking like a monster. Xiang Nuan, sunk deep inside the ghost fetus’ head, was shaking all over. The wounds on the boy’s body were increasing. The pain that Wen Qing was in continued to increase, but somehow, she had stopped screaming. The black blood capillaries pulsed under her skin. Different types of curses were applied to her body. Her face started to lose its features, and her body shape started to change, but she resisted the urge to scream. She kept her mouth clamped shut.

Xiang Nuan saw all this clearly. The bleeding eyeballs stared at the woman on the rooftop. In the end, he still slowly opened his mouth. The Past’s giant mouth was slowly opened again. The faceless doctor was only swallowed for about ten seconds, but his body had already become quite translucent. The Past appeared to have the ability to kill a Demon God.

“A brilliant choice if I do say so myself.” The ghost face on Wen Qing’s body laughed wickedly. “Now, I need you to...”

Before it finished, it realized something was wrong. Wen Qing, who was carrying multiple curses on her, had already crawled to the edge of the building.

“What are you doing!”

The blood capillaries surfaced on all parts of her body. Wen Qing, who had been tortured until she had lost a basic human shape, did something that no one expected. With a final glow of determination in her eyes, Wen Qing jumped over the edge of the rooftop of Jin Hwa Apartments Block A!

“I do not know what you have done in the past, I also do not understand why you have become the way that you are now, but I am always ready to trust you, to accompany you, and to protect you.” Wen Qing voluntarily jumped into the Past’s open mouth. Along with the faceless doctor’s last remaining face, she fell into the monster’s maw. When she fell, she kept her eyes on Xiang Nuan, who was bound at the monster's head.

"Because... you are my son."

Wen Qing, having been cursed by the Demon God, had her life in the faceless doctor's control. She did not want to be the chip that was used to control Xiang Nuan. Even if Xiang Nuan had turned into a monster, even if a normal human was nothing more than a piece of dust in the presence of a Demon God, she had found a way to protect Xiang Nuan. All forms of love in this world pointed toward the need to stay together. Only a parent's love could bear the pain of separation.

When the Past's mouth closed, the faceless doctor and Wen Qing fell into the Past's body. Other than the ghost fetus, no one knew what was inside the Past's body. The people present only saw that the faceless doctor had been swallowed earlier. A mere ten seconds had passed, and his body had become much weaker than before. He appeared to have suffered greatly from that attack. The Past's stomach appeared to be the guillotine that the ghost fetus had prepared specifically for Demon Gods. It was a place where even a 'God' could be digested. So, what would happen to a normal human?

The pounding of the heart inside the world that was shrouded in the black fog travelled far and long. The Past's stomach bloated and expanded. The faceless doctor appeared to be resisting as much as he could, but ultimately, the resistance slowed. The sound of that heartbeat became louder and louder. All the Specters and monsters inside the door were affected. It felt like their hearts were about to explode.

Chen Ge went to hide at the rooftop of Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, but he was still unable to avoid the influence brought upon by the heartbeat. He looked down the building. The red sea had enveloped the dual-colored heart. The buildings inside the red city had punctured the blood vessels that were hidden underground. Zhang Ya had already shattered the crust that had formed over the surface of the heart earlier, and now she was using the whole city to clash against the Past's heart. She was forced to do that, or else the ghost fetus, who had consumed the faceless doctor, would kill everyone there!

The cold, hard shell of the heart was broken, and the black and red heart was being smashed into pieces by the red city!

Blood rain fell from the sky, and the ground split open. The blood vessels snapped one after another. The location where Xiang Nuan's heart was started to leak blood as well. The more he moved his hands to slow the bleeding, the more the blood continued to flow. The blood riddled with curses turned his shirt into a dark red color. His body was slowly peeling away from the Past's giant body. His eyes were no longer soulless. Instead, there was a cocktail of complicated emotions. It was not sadness, nor was it despair. Perhaps the boy himself did not know how to identify this feeling he was experiencing.

With his hand over his heart, Xiang Nuan made a very difficult decision after a long time. He did not heal his wound or chose to attack anyone. He used the last ounce of his energy to start to suck in all the black blood and the curses from inside the Past's body!

Many strange wounds and curses appeared on his body. He had taken on all the sin again. Xiang Nuan's body was slowly sinking. All the tragedy, all the pain, and all the despair from the past had sedimented inside the boy's body. The Past's gigantic body was changing at the same time. The core of this giant monster was the ghost fetus' past, the past that Xiang Nuan had decided to carry from now on. So, once the core had shifted, the Past no longer looked as scary as it originally did.

The clamped mouth broke open again. The Past's stomach was filled with past versions of himself. Children that were made from curses and negative emotions tried their best to stop the faceless doctor from escaping. Some of the children, meanwhile, were protecting a woman who was dying. The Past was a creature that the ghost fetus created to kill a Demon God. It had never wondered what would happen to a normal human after they had been swallowed.

Curses were still travelling and growing on the woman's body. Her life was entering its final countdown. The children helped to move the woman to the head of the Past, the location where Xiang Nuan was bound to earlier. After all of this had been done, Xiang Nuan, who now carried all of the sin, walked to the Past's heart that had been shattered.

The Past's upper body was like a cicada while the lower body was like a heavy shell that dragged it down. The heart was right in the middle. One half of it was red, the other half black. Currently, Xiang Nuan was standing at the part that was black. He lifted his head to look at the dying Wen Qing.

“It is time to bid farewell to the past now.”

Raising both of his hands, Xiang Nuan grabbed the Past's upper body while his feet were standing on top of the Past's heavy shell. Once again, he had started to consume the sin that was originally inside the Past's body. This time, he did not hold back at all. He had transferred all of the bad things that had happened to him to his own body. His legs grew into the heavy shell because the amount of sin consumed continued to increase. The Past's lower body became scarier and scarier looking. It was covered with spikes and needles, and many screaming faces started to fill up the surface of the shell.

However, in contrast, since all the sin and bad things had been taken by Xiang Nuan, the Past's upper body became softer and fuller. The broken wings started to repair themselves and became firmer in existence. Wen Qing, who was dying, slowly regained consciousness. The pain that was brought on by the curse was lessening.

“I am unable to save your life. This is the only way I can help you. Everyone fears me because I am a Demon God, but I am actually no more than a lonely ghost.”

The voice of ghost fetus came out of Xiang Nuan's mouth. They were one and the same from the very beginning. The sin was amplifying. Xiang Nuan's body and legs were sinking and joining with the shell underneath him. His skin was also gradually turning into the appearance of the Past's shell.

“My heart is dirty and muddled, filled with pain and dirtiness. I have been searching in the raining night, envious of the sun in other people's eyes. I have reached out in hell, but no one came to save me until the day you appeared in my life. But at the same time, I was worried of dragging you into the abyss with me.

“I know what you have been anticipating of me, but I would rather be a patient isolated from the world than have you step into my world. You were not supposed to be in this world behind the door.”

By taking on all the sin, Xiang Nuan's consciousness started to flag. Over the past ten years, the Past had consumed too many things in the black fog, and now Xiang Nuan was going to shoulder all the sin on his own. His consciousness was weakening. His body joined together with the thick, heavy shell, and he would not be able to tear himself away from it anymore.

When Xiang Nuan sucked away the last shred of the Past's sin, his consciousness reached its limit. His body was completely joined to the dark shell. He would never leave this world surrounded by black fog anymore.

At the same time, the Past's upper body opened its wings. Its winged body was soft and gentle, like a miracle in this black and hopeless world. When Xiang Nuan released his hands, it started to float into the black fog. But it never intended to leave. It fluttered about the boy like a whale protecting a deserted island.

Chapter 1109 - The Demon God who Swallowed a Demon God 2 in 1

1109 The Demon God who Swallowed a Demon God 2 in 1

The black fog that spread over the horizon was like an endless expanse of black sea, and Xiang Nuan was like an island that was placed at the center of the ocean. By carrying all the sin, his body assimilated with the shell of the Past, and he was unable to separate itself from it anymore. His consciousness started to fade, and Xiang Nuan's eyes focused on the giant whale that swam around him. The sin and curses that were far beyond his limit of acceptance consumed his body. The giant shell that was now part of Xiang Nuan was sinking into the world of the black fog. His skin was starting to turn into the same color of the ground of the world around him.

The giant whale appeared to be wailing. It sounded like it was calling someone's name, but Xiang Nuan was unable to hear it anymore. His actions became slower and slower until sin covered his entire body. His last shred of consciousness was snuffed out like candle in the night. His lips moved slightly. Xiang Nuan appeared to say something, but no one could hear him clearly.

Everyone watched as the boy's body gradually assimilated into the shell of the Past, becoming part of the world of the black fog. The last shred of consciousness was consumed by the black fog. The ghost fetus carried all his sin and dispersed into nothingness, leaving behind an island of humanity in the world of the black fog. The sin of this place was so heavy that even the ghost in the black fog did not dare come too close to this place, but the giant and beautiful whale guarded closely beside it. The black fog was corrupting her body, but she did not mind it at all. The giant body slowly swam around the small island, splashing away the black fog that dared to come close to the small island and blocked away the black rain that dropped from the sky.

...

Chen Ge stood at the rooftop of Jin Hwa Apartments Block A and looked at everything silently until the temperature around him suddenly dropped, and a faded scent of blood drifted into his nostril. Turning his head back, Chen Ge realized that Zhang Ya was standing beside him. She was looking at Xiang Nuan, who had turned into the island, and Wen Qing, who had morphed into the giant whale. The two stared at this scene for a long time until a pale hand poked out from underneath the Past's blackened shell. The hand was covered in shredded human faces.

The faceless doctor struggled to crawl out from under the shell. His coat of blood had already disappeared, his body was covered in wounds, and the faces that were on the coat had now been transferred to his physical body. He was lucky to have survived this ordeal, but the faceless doctor was still not satisfied. He cursed the ghost fetus under his breath while his eyes kept following the giant whale above his head, unblinking.

"She has not been touched by the influence of sin at all, huh? Has the ghost fetus delivered everything that it has gathered for the past ten years to that woman?"

The faceless doctor's eyes were overflowing with greed, but before he could take any further action, an extremely scary presence materialized behind him. He whipped his body around, and the expressions of the broken faces on the faceless doctor's body all changed. He saw Zhang Ya and Chen Ge were standing near him.

"I know you are targeting the ghost fetus as well. You won't be able to consume all of the power he's left behind by yourself, so why don't we work together?" The faceless doctor was very apprehensive of Zhang Ya. He was seriously injured, and the fact that he was still alive was already in itself a miracle, so he had no energy left to fight Zhang Ya.

"There's no problem with us working together, but before that, you have to answer a few of my questions honestly." Chen Ge walked out from behind Zhang Ya. When he noticed that the faceless doctor was still alive, he had gotten Zhang Ya to follow him and take a look. The thing that the ghost fetus had given to Wen Qing, Chen Ge did not wish to take away from her, but he was not going to let this Demon God go so easily.

“What do you want to know?” This appeared to be the first time the faceless doctor had conversed with a normal human being. All the faces on his body focused their scary countenance on Chen Ge. The chilling and eerie feeling gripped at Chen Ge’s heart, but to the faceless doctor’s surprise, Chen Ge did not react in any way toward it.

“The first question, when did you guys start to target the ghost fetus?”

“When he escaped from Jiujiang,” the faceless doctor admitted easily. For someone like him, they would do anything for their lives. “We had close surveillance on him, so we knew basically everything that he was doing. As long as one’s been a patient of our hospital, they will have the hospital’s curse on them. Even if they manage to escape, in the future, one day, the hospital will appear before them again.”

“In other words, you’ve known for a while that the ghost fetus was hiding inside Xiang Nuan?”

“Of all the nine children selected by the ghost fetus, only Xiang Nuan did not have self-consciousness. He almost died during childbirth. The ghost fetus literally protected his life, but at the same time, he took over his life.” The faceless doctor made use of this time to recover. “We not only knew the ghost fetus was hiding inside Xiang Nuan—we also knew that he was destined to fail. No one can bridge the gap between life and death, so we have been waiting for this very last moment to come and recapture our patient.”

“Recapture your patient? Before becoming your patient, he was my shadow.” Chen Ge’s tone made it very difficult to read his thoughts.

“You wish to use that as leverage to claim a greater share? No problem, I only need thirty percent of the power left behind by the ghost fetus. the rest can be yours.” It was unclear whether the faceless doctor was trying to stall for time or really thought that way to try to be on Chen Ge’s good side. Either way, the man was not to be trusted.

“I can give you all the power of the ghost fetus, but I hope you can honestly answer the next few questions that I have.” Chen Ge slowly lowered his head so that no one would be able to see his current expression. “Why didn’t the people from your hospital dare appear that freely in Jiujiang? Is there some kind of secret hidden here?”

“What are you talking about? Aren’t I here now? I do not know how to answer this question of yours.”

“Patient 0004, the ghost fetus; Patient 0011, the doctor; and many more patients have hidden in Jiujiang, but over the past ten years, the hospital did not send anyone to come to Jiujiang to recapture them. It was not until recently that you people dared come into the territory of Jiujiang. I suspect that it is because the thing that you guys were afraid of has disappeared, so there was nothing to hold you guys back.”

Chen Ge used Yin Yang Vision to the extreme. His head tilted up slowly and captured all the expressions of the faces on the doctor.

The faceless doctor did not speak. All the faces on his body were all looking back at Chen Ge. After a few minutes, the faceless doctor finally admitted, “Yes, you’re right. Before this, we were not allowed to enter Jiujiang freely because of a curse, or rather, it was more of a deal. But now that curse has been abolished.”

“It has been abolished?”

“Yes, because the party that created the curse is now dead.” The faceless doctor was also closely following the change in Chen Ge’s expression.

“Do you know the name of the party who created the curse?”

“It was a husband and wife, but as for their names and appearance, these details are only known to the hospital director.” This was not the first time that the faceless doctor had mentioned the hospital director. It appeared like he had great respect and admiration for the director from the bottom of his heart.

“How does one get to meet the hospital director?” Chen Ge asked expressionlessly. No one was able to tell what he was thinking.

“The only known method for now is to become one of the patients, and you will have to be one of the patients ranked in the top ten.” The faceless doctor did not appear like he was lying. He gave it some serious thought before he provided Chen Ge with the method that was most easily achieved.

“One last question, as a Demon God, the ghost fetus was only ranked number four at your hospital. How scary are the first three patients? Tell me everything that you know about them.”

“I am sorry, but the details of the three patients are themselves part of the curse. Once you mention them, bad things will happen.”

“Sounds like you are not prepared to answer my questions anymore...”

“Actually I have already told you many things, but you have to understand that the more you know, the more dangerous your situation will be.” The faceless doctor had slowly recovered. Even the shredded faces on his body were slowly coming back together.

Chen Ge had chatted with the faceless doctor for a long time, and the latter had merely been brushing off the former. Even though the faceless doctor had technically answered all of Chen Ge’s questions, none of the answers that he gave were clear and traceable. But even so, Chen Ge managed to derive the information that he wanted from their conversation.

My parents have formed some kind of deal with the cursed hospital, their disappearance therefore has to be related to this hospital!

With that point confirmed, the rest did not matter that much to Chen Ge. Now, he only wanted to do one thing, and that was to kill the faceless doctor as soon as possible, to tear open his soul and deprive him of the chance to survive. This way, the cursed hospital would lose the power of one Demon God!

“I have answered all your questions. We have just experienced a bloody war; now is the time to enjoy the spoil of war.” The faceless doctor’s greedy gaze moved to fall on the giant whale. He desperately needed the power left behind by the ghost fetus to help with his own convalescence.

“I can give you all the energy that is left behind by the ghost fetus, but...” Chen Ge flipped open the comic as he took a step back. “You will have to be alive to enjoy it!”

Both Xiao Bu and the red high heels appeared at the same time. They guarded beside Chen Ge while Zhang Ya made her move toward the faceless doctor as if on cue. The faceless doctor had done a lot of preparation to deal with the ghost fetus, but that preparation was never meant for Zhang Ya, and he had suffered heavy wounds from his battle with the rag doll and then the Past.

The battle between the two pushed away the black fog. This was for the first time Chen Ge had seen the power of a Demon God up close, and it was on a completely different level from a Red Specter. The battle took much longer than Chen Ge anticipated. The faceless doctor was scarily resilient. His body was broken again and again, but he always found a way to recover himself. During the battle, he even tried to come after Chen Ge several times, to attempt to use Chen Ge as leverage to threaten Zhang Ya, like how he used Wen Qing to limit the ghost fetus, but he was stopped every time by the red high heels and Xiao Bu.

Chen Ge was not Wen Qing. With strong mental acuity and the protection of several Red Specters, he even dared to use his employees' special powers to help intervene between the fight of the two Demon Gods. The faceless doctor fought with everything he had, and that exposed some of Zhang Ya's problems. She could not use other people's powers for too long because it would cause serious damage to her own body.

The two fought until the very end. Bloody rain rained down on the residential area. The faceless doctor was ultimately trapped inside the projection of the red city by Zhang Ya. The congealed resentment burst through the black fog. The Specters did not dare move close to this place. They did not dare step onto the island. When the bloody rain stopped, the faceless doctor had disappeared without a trace, and only Zhang Ya stood alone amid the sea of red.

"The ghost fetus had already heavily injured the faceless doctor, but even so, Zhang Ya had to sacrifice a lot before she managed to trap and kill the faceless doctor. Looks like it is not that simple to kill a Demon God." The sea of red slowly ebbed. The red city also disappeared along with it. The faceless doctor's body reappeared on the ground like a beached carcass. Black curses still travelled on his body. The man's soul had been broken and shattered, but his body appeared to still be alive in some weird way.

"Even though the faceless doctor, Zhang Ya, and the ghost fetus are all Demon Gods, the faceless doctor gives off a different feeling from the other Demon Gods. He appears to be slightly weaker than Zhang Ya and the ghost fetus. His presence is not that stable."

The faceless doctor must have other secrets hidden on him, but Chen Ge did not plan to ask for more details. He planned to hand the faceless doctor over to Zhang Ya, and he hoped that through that, Zhang Ya would have a new breakthrough in her power.

"As the scariest presence at the haunted house, Zhang Ya getting stronger will only benefit everyone. Furthermore, she killed the faceless doctor. It's only fair that she should get the freedom to deal with the doctor."

Chen Ge was the kind of person who would focus on a single path to the end. Along his journey, he had practically poured all the resources that he had obtained into Zhang Ya. That was why Zhang Ya had been able to morph from a normal Red Specter to a Top Red Specter and then breakthrough to become a Demon God in such a short period of time. Walking out from the sea of blood, Zhang Ya stopped beside Chen Ge. She glanced at the ghost fetus, who had turned into an island, and then moved her eyes to follow Wen Qing, who had been transformed into a giant whale, before her eyes finally fell on Chen Ge.

The resentment and despair that were palpable in her eyes slowly faded away. This time, Zhang Ya did not return directly into Chen Ge's shadow. She seemed to be touched by the scene before them and stood silently beside Chen Ge to observe it. Both Zhang Ya and the ghost fetus were Demon Gods, but their experiences and lives were completely different.

The ghost fetus had spent his whole life struggling. Everyone feared him as a Demon God until he met Wen Qing, but by then, he had made too many mistakes. His love was like an abyss. Even he did not dare let Wen Qing get too close to him. In comparison, Zhang Ya was much luckier. At the very early part of her 'life', she was given the chance to meet Chen Ge. No matter how other people viewed her, in Chen Ge's eyes, Zhang Ya was always Zhang Ya.

"It's finally over." Chen Ge turned to look at Zhang Ya beside him. The female teacher who held out the umbrella for him in the rain from his memory overlapped with the person before him. He raised his hand subconsciously to reach out to touch Zhang Ya's cold fingers. Zhang Ya did not shy away. She pulled back all her presence. At that moment, she was like a normal person. Chen Ge nudged closer to Zhang Ya. Just as he was about to hold her hand, a man's excited scream came from behind him.

"Brother! You are still alive! I've found your cat! Can you believe it?" Xiao Sun carried the white cat as he raced out of Jin Hwa Apartments Block A. His face was plain with excitement to have been able to survive until now!

He practically flew toward Chen Ge. He did not notice that the Red Specters present had all stayed away from Chen Ge. Even the white cat that was trapped in his embrace was struggling as best he could as Xiao Sun moved toward Chen Ge.

“Do you know how afraid I was earlier? I think I heard the sound of your big sister. I was really worried about you guys...” Xiao Sun held onto the white cat and refused to let go. It was not until he got close to Chen Ge that he realized the woman in the red dress next to Chen Ge was not Wen Qing. “Brother? Where is your sister? The one who has been following you earlier was not her?”

Xiao Sun—who had moved into a demon’s apartment alone, who had voiced his analysis out loud in a crowd of murderers, who had treaded the territory of murderers and madmen in one night—had unlocked a new level of fearlessness.

At that moment, Chen Ge really did not know how to answer. The white cat in Xiao Sun’s embrace had already given up its struggle. The expression on its face seemed to say, Just let me die.

“Well, it’s a long story...” Before Chen Ge could say anything, the presence that Zhang Ya pulled back earlier exploded. The black fog around them was blasted back, and the ground beneath them cracked. But actually, all Zhang Ya did was pull her hair back behind her ears.

Xiao Sun sat down to the ground. It appeared like his soul had left his body. The white cat was convulsing in his arms. Its eyes appeared to be watering.

The Red Specters who had dispersed several hundred meters away were all busy with their own things. Some of them were studying the monsters in the black fog, some were trying to poke through the ghost fetus’ shell, and some were just looking up at the sky.

The water ghost, who was the haunted house’s latest ‘involuntary’ worker, only took a glance this way before he was pulled away by Men Nan. “Well, just pay attention to someone like Xiao Sun, remember to stay away from him. Otherwise, one day, when he’s struck by lightning, even if you’re not caught in the blast, you’ll be covered in his blood.”

Chapter 1110 - Rewards from Completing the Mission 2 in 1

1110 Rewards from Completing the Mission 2 in 1

Chen Ge reconstructed the events that transpired and resolved the misunderstanding. Zhang Ya also returned to Chen Ge's shadow. She had used other people's powers way too many times and had fought two Demon Gods consecutively, so her body was already at its limit. To kill the faceless doctor, Zhang Ya had paid a lot, but compared to the reward, everything was worth it. Just how scary a Demon God who had swallowed another Demon God would be, Chen Ge did not dare even imagine it. At least he lacked a target for comparison.

"Come on, Xiao Sun." Chen Ge helped Xiao Sun, whose body was still shaking, up from the ground. "If you are still alive in real life, I feel like I can make use of your luck to scam the insurance company. I will use every penny I have to help you set up a life insurance."

Xiao Sun's expression was not that natural. During this moment when he was not himself, the white cat quickly struggled loose from his arms and jumped out to hide behind Chen Ge like it was greatly wronged. All the employees had gathered back together. They stood on the island that was transformed by the ghost fetus and lifted their heads to look at the giant whale that was swimming through the sea of black fog.

...

Chen Ge tried many methods, but he failed to communicate with Wen Qing. At this moment, even though Wen Qing had acquired all the ghost fetus' power, untainted by the curses, her consciousness was not strong enough to support it. She was merely acting on instinct for now.

“Looks like she is not going to leave this place.” Chen Ge looked at the giant whale above them and the wings that fluttered behind her.

“If she continues to stay here, what will eventually happen to her?” Even though Xiao Sun had not spent much time with Wen Qing, he could sense that Wen Qing was a good person.

“Have you heard of something called whale fall?” Chen Ge answered as if to himself without turning around. “After a whale dies and sinks down to the depths of the ocean, its body will decay to help provide nutrients to the barren ocean floor.”

“But what does that have to do with her?”

“The giant whale, I believe, will continue to protect this island until the end of her life. When that day arrives, she will collapse on this island formed by the ghost fetus and provide a bit of hope and life to this painful and despairing world.” Chen Ge turned around. With his many employees and Zhang Ya following close behind, he was able to empathize greatly with that feeling. “We should prepare to leave. The sun should be coming up outside the door already.”

The ghost fetus’ four-star trial mission had spanned nine days and nine nights, and it had pushed Chen Ge’s physical body to its limit. His body temperature was far lower than a normal person’s, and he was in a very bad state. Chen Ge had also only just noticed the problem. After Wen Qing turned into a giant whale, Chen Ge became the only living person behind the door, but his body temperature was no different from the ‘people’ around him.

The black fog, the curse, the remaining blood vessels, Chen Ge desperately needed a rest. The employees started to search for the ghost fetus’ door amid the wasteland. The red high heels made use of this time to madly consume the curses that were left behind by the ghost fetus. When the ghost fetus separated the Past’s body, he had given all the pure and beautiful things to Wen Qing while he suffered all the sin on his own. Endless curses that Wen Qing could not support lingered around the island.

A curse was something that even a normal Red Specter would not dare approach; only the red high heel would be able to absorb and use them. Chen Ge had no idea how many curses the ghost fetus had left behind. He only understood that the red high heels, who had swallowed all the ghost fetus’ curses, was now even scarier than Xiao Bu, and this was when she was trying to reign herself in.

“It is surprising that the ultimate winner will be the red high heels. When she completely digests the ghost fetus’ curse, she might be able to breakthrough the limitations of a Red Specter.”

It was not easy to become a Demon God. Chen Ge did not expect the red high heels to break through the barrier so easily. Then again, this kind of thing could not be forced. A journey of a thousand miles would begin with a single step, after all.

After the ghost fetus’ consciousness dissipated, most of the original tenants behind the door had disappeared, but Chen Ge realized something quite interesting; Xiao Sun did not disappear. In fact, other than Xiao Sun, there were some original tenants in the ruins who had survived. Chen Ge predicted that it was because the people who had died in real life probably had their soul transported into this world behind the door by the ghost fetus, and those who were still alive in the real world had their facsimiles created by the ghost fetus based on his own memory behind the door. Thus, they were not real per se.

Inside Jin Hwa Apartments Block A, the elder who was tasked with guarding the first floor and Granny Lee who was abandoned by her son had both disappeared. This was, in a way, good news because at least it meant that they were still alive in the real world, and there was a chance for their tragedy to be salvaged and their wounds to be healed. Chen Ge and the Red Specter employees herded all the tenants who were lucky enough to survive into the comic. They also found some of the objects left behind by the ghost fetus in the ruins. All of them were surfeited with extremely scary curses. All those objects were handed over to the red high heels to look after. When the curses on them had been fully cleansed, Chen Ge would go and inspect them.

After looking for a full hour, the employees basically had dug three feet into the ground, but they still failed to find the ghost fetus’ door. Everyone had gathered around Chen Ge around, and the atmosphere was quite dampened.

“How are we supposed to leave this place without a door?”

“Why would the ghost fetus’ door disappear just like that? Theoretically speaking, even if the door pusher is dead, the door will go out of control until a new door pusher appears to take his place.”

“We need to calm down.” Chen Ge looked at the island that was morphed by the ghost fetus, and he was reminded of Doctor Gao at the underground morgue. At the time, Doctor Gao had also chosen to take on all the sin behind the door. When he made that choice, the door in the underground morgue had been destroyed. That memory was still fresh to Chen Ge. The underground morgue behind the door started to crumble, and it was also the first time he had been given a glimpse of the red city. "When the door pusher chooses to take on the sin behind the door, the door will be destroyed."

"The door is destroyed? How are we supposed to leave this place? Don't tell me, we are forever trapped inside this world of black fog?"

If they were trapped inside the red city, things would not have been so bad. After all, there would be other doors at the red city, and they could use those to return to the real world, but this place was completely surrounded by black fog. Jin Hwa Apartments and Jiu Hong Apartments were like the only island amid a black sea. There was only one door here.

"Don't tell me we have to traverse the black fog to go in search of that red city?" Men Nan grumbled with a bitter face. "I personally do not mind it myself, but can your body go through something like that?"

"It does not matter that the ghost fetus' door has been destroyed. We still have another door with us." Chen Ge removed his shirt to expose the ghastly spider tattoo on his back. He summoned out the tunnel lady's son. "There is a door inside his body. We can return to the real world through that door."

Behind surrounded by multiple Red Specters, the Spider Boy was surprisingly nervous. He was afraid that Chen Ge might suddenly decide to turn on him. To let the boy calm down and earn his trust, Chen Ge found the Tunnel Lady and asked her to help communicate with her son. The Tunnel Lady's son gave Chen Ge a concrete reply. They could indeed leave this place through the door in his body, but once they left, they probably would never be able to come back. The ghost fetus' door had been destroyed, and the only other door was inside the Spider Boy's body. They could leave through it, but it also meant that Wen Qing and the ghost fetus would be left stranded here forever.

Hearing that, Chen Ge once again tried to yell up at the sky to try to transmit his voice, but unfortunately, the whale that Wen Qing had changed into only had animalistic instincts left in her. They hesitated for quite some time on the island before finally deciding to leave. Xiang Nuan and Wen Qing's story would forever be sealed inside the endless world of the black fog. One day, perhaps someone would find an island filled with blooming flowers amid the sea of despair.

Pulling all the employees except the Spider Boy into the comic, Chen Ge picked up the white cat, gave this world one last glance, and took his parting steps. Black water washed all over his body as he walked through dreamscapes that were constructed by spider webs. It felt like his worlds were turning. When Chen Ge opened his eyes again, he was already inside Eastern Jiujiang's White Dragon Tunnel. After leaving the world behind the door, Chen Ge collapsed directly to the ground. He coughed out a great amount of black blood. His face was deathly pale, and green veins pulsed under his skin. Many thin, black threads crawled toward his heart.

At this dangerous moment, the red high heels materialized beside Chen Ge. The bandages on her body had peeled off a lot, and the curses that covered her body transformed into blood vessels before they travelled to land on Chen Ge's arm. After coughing out several mouthfuls of black fog, a light mist of black fog dissipated from inside Chen Ge's body. It then turned into the shape of nine children. With maximum power shown by the red high heels, it took quite some time before all nine children were taken care of.

"Looks like I spent too long inside the world of the black fog. The ghost fetus must've planted some curse on me when I first entered the door." Chen Ge leaned against the tunnel wall and sat on the ground. He gasped hungrily for air. "Thankfully, the red high heels has inherited most of the ghost fetus' curse, and she was there to help neutralize the curse that was planted on me by the ghost fetus."

The curse had been broken, but Chen Ge's body temperature was still much lower than a normal person's. After this entry into the world of the black fog, his body temperature had sunk to a new low. This appeared to be an irrevocable process.

"Oh well, now is not the time to worry about that. What I need to do now is go and get a good, well-deserved rest." The ghost fetus had sacrificed himself to protect Wen Qing. The sword that dangled over Chen Ge had now been removed. He did not need to worry day in and day out anymore, passing his days in constant fear for his life.

"Zhang Ya did not appear to go into hibernation this time. Even if the people from the cursed hospital come at me, I have confidence that I can make their journey a one-way trip."

Actually, Chen Ge anticipated the people from the cursed hospital coming to find him. With each Red Specter that he took down, the other party's power would be further limited.

“Even though the faceless doctor told me that my parents are dead, if I think about it seriously, if my parents are really dead, the cursed hospital would not have sent their weakest Demon God to come and recapture the ghost fetus, so the faceless doctor's words cannot be trusted fully. Therefore, what I needed to do next is locate my parents and...” Chen Ge took out the black phone from his pocket. “... get to the bottom of the truth regarding this phone.”

After Chen Ge left the world of black fog, the black phone kept vibrating. It appeared like he had received multiple messages at the same time. Sliding open the screen, Chen Ge read through the messages inside the abandoned tunnel.

“Congratulations, Red Specter's Favored, for completing the four-star Trial Mission ‘Ghost Fetus’!

“Mission completion rate is eighty percent! Extra reward obtained, The Handbook to Jiujiang's Psychopaths!

“The Handbook to Jiujiang's Psychopaths (Unique Item): All the psychopaths, madmen, and murderers that you have encountered will be recorded inside this! How scary this handbook will be is dependent fully on your own life experience.

“Optional mission of the highest difficulty, Salvation, completed! Unlocked unique infrastructure—Jiu Hong Apartments (The World of Black Fog)!

“Jiu Hong Apartments (The largest unique infrastructure in terms of size): The ghost fetus replaced you as the ninth child. Jiu Hong Apartments is a reconstruction of the ghost fetus' past. It has been watching every single soul that enters the residential area. Will you choose salvation, or will you be dragged further into the abyss by the ghost fetus?”

When Chen Ge read until this point, he paused for a moment. When he completed the highest difficulty quest at the School of the Afterlife, he also obtained a unique infrastructure—The Red Specters' Art Room. The art room contained thirteen different paintings left behind by thirteen Red Specters. It was a scary place. Now that he had completed the ghost fetus' mission, he had obtained yet another unique infrastructure. This place was related to the ghost fetus, and the black phone even specifically pointed out that this place was tied to the world of the black fog. These warnings caused Chen Ge to be careful. After all, he had to keep in mind that the ghost fetus was ultimately a Demon God.

“Before I can open the place to the visitors, I will need to go through the scenario to experience it once for myself first for the sake of safety.”

Clicking open the next unread message, Chen Ge continued to read.

“Optional mission, Jiang Ming, completed! Your talent, Ghost Ear, has been greatly improved. Unlocked a new scenario, The Soundless Home.

“Optional mission, Ying Tong, completed! Your talent, Yin Yang Vision, has been greatly improved. Unlocked a new scenario, Spire of Darkness.

“Optional mission, Yu Jian, completed! Zhang Ya’s affection level has increased! Unlocked a new scenario, the Haunted Avenue.

“Optional mission, Wu Sheng, completed! Obtained a unique item, the skin tailor’s Costume! Unlocked a new scenario, Voiceless Small Town.

“Skin Tailor’s Costume: At midnight, you will encounter such a person in the Voiceless Small Town. His whole body is covered in thick fabric. His clothes are sewn together by different fabrics, and they are stuck to his body like his second skin.

“Optional mission, Xiang Nuan, completed! A new life force has been injected into your body. You have been resuscitated by a long-awaited warmth! Unlocked a new scenario, Death Apartment.

“Optional mission, Fang Yu, completed! Unlocked a new scenario, White Orphanage! Other than that, you will receive a hint regarding your own memory! The hint only consists of one paragraph, but it will be immensely important to you.

“Hint of your own memory: When the day comes, should you have to forget everything, what will be the last thing you wish to forget? Hold on fast to it. It will bring you back to find your real self!

“Optional mission, Liu Wen, completed! Unlocked a new scenario, House of Strange Odors.

“Optional mission, Se Xin, completed! Unlocked a new scenario, The Room of My Heart.”

All the children selected by the ghost fetus represented a side mission. The combination of all these scenarios made the real ghost fetus’ scenario. To Chen Ge’s slight surprise, even though he had not done the missions related to Liu Wen and Se Xin, the scenarios represented by the two children had been normally unlocked as well. He was not given any extra rewards for them, though. The rewards for completing a four-star mission were extremely lucrative. Chen Ge was still not yet done reading through the messages.

“Congratulations, Red Specters’ Favored! The ghost fetus’ Trial Mission’s completion rate is at eighty percent!

“Red Specters’ Favored, congratulations for successfully unlocking the four-star scary scenario, Ghost Fetus! The scenario is made up of nine normal scenarios and one hidden scenario! Please inspect them closely before opening them up to the public!

“Warning! You are already in possession of two four-star scenarios. The haunted house will upgrade from a Maze of Terror into a Theme Park of Despair! The expansion will be completed at midnight tomorrow!

“Congratulations Red Specters’ Favored for successfully upgrading your haunted house into a Theme Park of Despair. You will obtain a unique infrastructure—the Door of Salvation!

“Door of Salvation (Extremely rare and one-off unique infrastructure): The most beautiful accident is often hidden in the deepest despair! This Door of Salvation is hidden somewhere inside the Theme Park of Despair! Push it open, and you will understand the true meaning of salvation!”

Chapter 1111 - Take Good Care of Yourself 2 in 1

1111 Take Good Care of Yourself 2 in 1

The rewards for completing the four-star scenario were far greater than a three-star scenario's. Even Chen Ge needed quite some time before he went through everything and managed to memorize all the information inside his mind. "The things mentioned by the black phone are too general. I will have to return to the haunted house to see what these rewards are for myself."

His finger slid across the many messages. Looking at the numeral new scenarios that had just been unlocked, Chen Ge sighed a long sigh from the bottom of his heart. "This time, my visitors sure are lucky. They only need to spend a few RMB to experience a scary atmosphere created by a Demon God. Where else are you going to find a steal like that?"

The haunted house had been upgraded to become a Theme Park of Despair. Its general sense of horror would continue to increase, and the authenticity level would increase as well. Sometimes, Chen Ge would even have a feeling that he was back behind the door when he was walking through his own haunted house. "When the haunted house reaches its final upgrade, perhaps the line between the world outside the door and the world inside the door might be blurred. It will become a kind of a pitstop between the living and the dead."

...

When he put the black phone away, Chen Ge had regained some strength. He surveyed his surroundings. The red high heels had returned to her original form. The woman who was covered in bandages was staring closely at the giant spider that was dangling upside down on the ceiling of the tunnel. The Tunnel Lady's son was covered in cobwebs and blood vessels. It appeared that the door inside his body could not be opened recklessly; it would cause serious harm to the boy's body. Of all the Red Specters that had followed Chen Ge into the world of black fog, it was the Spider Boy who was most injured because of this.

"One has to be pay that greatly to leave the world of the black fog, huh?" Chen Ge tried to communicate with the Spider Boy, but the boy was not in the mood to respond to Chen Ge. He was too busy focusing on the effort to remove the curse and the black fog that lingered inside his body.

"Even though the ghost fetus has been eliminated, I have also gained some very bad news from the faceless doctor. The cursed hospital that is much scarier than the ghost fetus can now freely enter and leave Jiujiang. In your current state, if they come to find you, I am afraid you will not be able to survive the encounter. How about..." Chen Ge was silent for a while for his proposed suggestion to sink in. "How about you follow me for now? You can return to this place when your wounds are healed."

The Tunnel Lady's son was dangling from the roof of the tunnel. For some reason, he was struck by a sense of déjà vu. He felt like he had already heard the words that Chen Ge was saying some time ago.

"Most of the dreams that you have accumulated inside the tunnel have been destroyed. It is very dangerous for you to stay here, especially in your current weakened state." Chen Ge glanced at the giant spider above his head. "You have helped me kill the ghost fetus, and it was me who was responsible for the wounds currently on your body. I hope you will give me a chance to recompensate for what you have sacrificed for me. My haunted house has a Red Specter who specializes in curing curses. She will aid you in your treatment. When your body is full recovered, you can come back to this tunnel any time you want. When you are a guest at my haunted house, you will be treated like an esteemed guest. As a matter of fact, you might even experience some good memories there."

Chen Ge's words were very sincere, and there was nothing that was too out of place in his request. It was a simple story of a man repaying someone who had lent him a hand. As if to help Chen Ge in his persuasion, the red high heels reached out to place her hand on one of the spider's appendages. In just ten seconds, a spray of black mist evaporated from the spider's body, and the Spider Boy appeared much better. After giving it a long thought, the Tunnel Lady's son decided to give Chen Ge this opportunity to repay him. After all, it would take far too long for him to cure himself of the curses on his own.

"The child trusts me so implicitly. I must not fail his trust." Chen Ge looked at the giant spider that had crawled back onto his back. "With a door inside his body, this talent is exceptionally unique and overpowered. Without him, I might have been trapped in the world of the black fog forever and would have no means to leave at all."

Chen Ge wanted to keep the Tunnel Lady's Son at his haunted house. Compared to the cold and eerie White Dragon Tunnel, Chen Ge felt that his haunted house was a far better lair for the boy. At least he would be able to get endless negative emotions and screams without actually harming anyone there.

Carrying his backpack, Chen Ge led the white cat and walked out from White Dragon Tunnel.

"Of those who know about the Spider Boy's talent, other than my own employees, the rest either already have their souls destroyed or are forever left behind in the world of the black fog. In other words, this is a trump card that my enemy still do not know I have. When I have to deal with the cursed hospital in the future, the Spider Boy might yet have the chance to shine."

The sunlight showered down on his body. The warmth of the sun finally made the man give out a sigh of relief. His heart that was strung taut finally had the chance to relax.

"Did you find something to eat behind the door? How come it feels like you have gotten fatter again?"

...

Chen Ge returned to New Century Park at around 8:50 am. By then, a lot of visitors had already queued up outside the theme park's entrance. Most of them were there for Chen Ge's haunted house. Seeing the crowd getting larger and larger but Chen Ge who had the key to the haunted house still not appearing, Uncle Xu, Xu Wan, and the rest were desperate enough to want to call the cops. "I am so sorry. I left in such a hurry last night that my phone ran out of battery."

As Chen Ge apologized, he quickly unlocked the haunted house's gate. When he left the previous night, he had taken all of the useable Specters with him. All that remained at the haunted house were some lingering spirits.

“As long as you are safe, everything is fine.” Compared to the business, everyone, including Uncle Xu, was more worried about Chen Ge. Over the past few days, they had all noticed how tired and lethargic Chen Ge was looking. After entering the haunted house, Chen Ge first had Xu Wan lead the team to the dressing room while he summoned out Yan Danian and Ol’ Zhou and had them take the comic and reassign all the employees to their posts.

Chen Ge was so busy that he did not even have the chance to stay for a chat. He hurried to help with other people’s makeup. With some rushing here and pulling there, they finally managed to open for business right on time. Currently, the haunted house had many playable scenarios. It could allow more than one hundred visitors to enter it at the same time. As the operating hours lengthened, the number of visitors who had successfully cleared the three-star scenario had increased, and so everyone had their eyes now on the four-star scenarios.

Both online and offline, on all sorts of forums, there were predictions on who would be the first person to clear Chen Ge’s haunted house’s four-star scenario. The haunted house app that Director Luo had made specifically for Chen Ge’s haunted house also became quite a popular download. Naturally, most of the haunted house aficionados would download it, but other than them, the greater number of download came from various ‘cloud’ users.

This batch of users did not dare come to challenge the haunted house on their own, but they enjoy watching other visitors go into the Haunted house in their stead. The app had a forum where the visitors were allowed to share their visitation experience, and these strange and scary stories had become a kind of source of joy and interest for this batch of ‘cloud’ visitors. Other than the sharing of the visitors, Chen Ge’s haunted house was now also popular enough to attract the attention of many online celebrities. Chen Ge naturally welcomed these people, and he even allowed some of them to record a video during their visitation provided that the request was not too over the line.

The internet celebrities came to the haunted house for clicks, and the haunted house relied on these people of influence to spread its fame. They would both benefit from this relationship. Of course, the most important reason was because Chen Ge was not afraid that his secret would be exposed. The speed by which he unlocked the new scenarios was far beyond his visitors' speed to explore them. This was something that was unprecedented in the haunted house industry.

Furthermore, even if the visitors had gone through all the guides and videos and came over to visit, expecting to clear the scenario, when they were inside the haunted house in person, they would realize that everything was different from what they had imagined. The atmosphere, sense of horror, and real ghosts were not things that could be captured through the lens of a camera. For an example, if the horror feeling felt through the video was at a ten, the feeling one would have when experiencing the horrors inside the video in person would be at a hundred or even more. This was why some of the visitors felt so scammed by the guides that they saw.

The popularity of Director Luo's app that aided the haunted house made the futuristic theme park copy him and come up with the same strategy. They spent a lot of money on the marketing for the app, but the effect was not as good as they expected. There were many reasons behind this, but one of the reason was that the futuristic theme park would never show their haunted house's ranking to the public because they did not wish for the public to know that their haunted house had been grabbed and ground on the floor by a certain someone, not once but twice.

"Now that the issue with the ghost fetus has been handled, I can finally give myself a good rest." Chen Ge handed the responsibility to look after the visitors over to Ol' Zhou and Duan Yue while he squirreled into the staff breakroom. Closing the curtain, Chen Ge took out the comic that Yan Danian had just returned to him. He released Xiao Sun and the other remaining tenants from behind the door. Surveying the new and strange environment, Xiao Sun was much more honest this time. He rubbed his eyes, and the young man seemed to sense that something was wrong.

"Xiao Sun, I have something that I need to tell you." Chen Ge sat at the side of the bed as he rubbed the white cat on its head. "Actually, you are already dead."

When Chen Ge said that, not only Xiao Sun, even the rest of the original tenants behind the door had very strange expressions.

"I need you to really think about it." Chen Ge took out several pieces of white paper and pens and placed them on the table. Then, he summoned out Zhang Yi from the comic to help these tenants recover their original memory. The memory of being murdered was naturally the most painful memory. The tenants' faces paled instantly, and they refused to accept that they were already dead. Of course, that would be a hard pill for anyone to swallow.

"Life that has been lost cannot be recovered, but the only thing that I can do is help you find your murderers and offer them to the police." Chen Ge pointed at the stack of paper on the table. "Write down the name of your murderers and the exact details of your murders. I know how cruel that must be, but this is the only way I can bring you justice."

After Chen Ge said that, some of the 'people' started to move to the table and write. In the end, only Xiao Sun stood where he was.

"What is the problem? Do you not feel well?"

"It is not that." Xiao Sun shook his head. He hesitated for a long time before he spoke. "I actually ran away from home. I remember now it was because my family did not support my career in music..."

"You wish to go back to see them."

"Yes."

"Okay, I will take you home this afternoon. Why don't you write down your original address on the paper as well?" Chen Ge turned to the other tenants. "I will also help the rest of you fulfill any regrets or final wishes that you have. Please do write them all down."

Overwhelmed by drowsiness, Chen Ge placed the white cat and Xiaoxiao next to the bed and then slumped down to sleep. His body had reached its limit long ago. He slept until noon. Chen Ge sat up and went to collect the paper on the table. He then asked the tenants some questions one by one before he sent them all back into the comic.

"This is truly a tragedy. Some people have achieved unimaginable success due to their unflinching obsession, but others became ghosts with human skin due to the same reason." After he read all the information left behind by the original tenants, he took out the black phone because it had a few more unread messages on it.

"Congratulations, Red Specters' Favored, for gaining a new employee—Sun Xiaojun (Cursed Seed): A walking attraction for bad luck. He is a very special Specter. The ghost fetus once considered using him as one of the candidates, but due to various accidents, the ghost fetus ultimately chose to forgo him. In a way, that was the luckiest thing that ever happened to him.

“Congratulations, Red Specters’ Favored, for gaining a new employee—Huang Mei (Baleful Specter): A soul that was dragged into the door by the ghost fetus. Due to her resemblance to Wen Qing, the ghost fetus never harmed her.

“Congratulations, Red Specters’ Favored, for gaining a new employee...”

Chen Ge gained seven new workers. However, these employees did not have much loyalty toward him or the haunted house, and they had not been given professional training, so Chen Ge did not plan on letting them ‘interact’ with the visitors for the time being. “After I help the other tenants with their last wishes, I probably will have more employees who are willing to join me.”

After taking a whole morning of rest, Chen Ge still felt incredibly tired. He went to the toilet to wash his face, and then he collected all the evidence and documents that he had so far and shoved them into his backpack.

“I need to go to the police station to file these cases and hand the information over to the police. Then I shall bring the new employees to have a reunion with their family.” Chen Ge had already planned the rest of his day.

“Finally, things can go back to normal for a day.” Just as he said that, the phone that was charging suddenly rang. When he saw the caller ID, Chen Ge’s expression twisted with disbelief. “Lee Zheng? I haven’t gone to find him, yet he is already calling me on his own?”

Taking the call, Lee Zheng’s voice came from the other side of the line. “Chen Ge, where are you now? And how come your phone was switched off all of last night?”

“I was at... how about we talk about this in person?”

“I am afraid you will have to come and see me in person whether you like it or not.” Lee Zheng’s tone was extremely severe. “The blind man who stayed with you at the mental hospital before this, he died last night. It was a horrible death. I need you to come to the People’s Hospital of Jiujiang as soon as possible!”

“Chang Gu is dead?” Chen Ge was so distracted by the ghost fetus that he had almost forgotten about Chang Gu. Now that he was given this sudden news, his brain was struck numb. He was still expecting Chang Gu to help him finish a movie.

“Okay, I will be there in a minute!”

After explaining the situation to Uncle Xu, Chen Ge carried his backpack, hailed a cab, and hurried to the People’s Hospital. One of the sickrooms on the second floor at the hospital had been cordoned off. Chen Ge was only given entry after he dropped Lee Zheng’s name.

Pushing open the door, Chen Ge was hit by an extremely cold presence. He narrowed his eyes, and he realized that Chang Gu was just standing behind the curtain. The man was expressionless. One of Chang Gu’s eyes had been dug out, and his other eye was completely white. At that moment, Lee Zheng and two police officers as well as two medical workers were inside the room. When they saw Chen Ge walk in, they directly surrounded Chen Ge.

“Brother Zheng, what time did Chang Gu die last night? Do you suspect that this is a homicide?” Chen Ge’s eyes glanced toward the curtain. Chang Gu did not seem to notice that Chen Ge was looking at him.

“The patient woke up at around midnight last night. His eyes started to bleed, and he kept screaming a person’s name. Then he went completely silent. We tried our best to rescue him, but ultimately, we were unable to keep him around.” The doctor sighed. “Honestly, this is the first time I have encountered a patient like this. His body temperature was far lower than a normal person’s should be, but his physique and vitals were far stronger than a normal person’s. He was unable to resuscitate from the coma. Until last night, his internal organs started to atrophy, and even now, we still cannot find the reason behind it.”

“The doctor is not wrong. The patient’s body has been sent for autopsy. The official statement given by the coroner is that the patient died from organ failure, which then led to his death.” Lee Zheng turned to Chen Ge. The gaze that struck him caused Chen Ge’s heart to quiver.

“That was a strange cause of death, but that does not have anything to do with me, right?” When Chen Ge spoke, he kept his eyes on the curtain.

“The name that the patient kept screaming before he died was your name, Chen Ge.” Lee Zheng carried over a chair. “I also do not understand why, but it feels like everything is somehow related to you. Can you explain to me again what your relationship is with this patient?”

“I guess you can say that he approached me for a favor. His younger sister is missing, and he wanted me to help look into that.” Chen Ge stared at the curtain. His brain was not focusing on how to deal with Lee Zheng but on the reason behind Chang Gu’s cause of death.

Body temperature lower than normal but physique stronger than normal, these ‘symptoms’ were similar to his. Chen Ge was worried that he would one day end up in the same state as Chang Gu.

Chapter 1112 - Who are you talking to 2 in 1

1112 Who are you talking to 2 in 1

“You said Chang Gu asked you for a favor? So, in other words, he can be considered your client?” Lee Zheng looked at Chen Ge with blatant suspicion on his face. “But you have not met him before. Why would he come to a person who owns a haunted house to help him finding a missing person? That does not make sense at all.”

“How does it not make sense? This person who owns a haunted house has a sparkling record of helping the police solve their cases, right? That only proves that I have a wide range of hobbies and am interested in many things.” On the surface, Chen Ge was conversing with Lee Zheng, but he kept his eyes glued to the curtain. No one in the room could see Chang Gu but him. They had no idea that this patient who had already been sent for autopsy was currently standing behind them.

“Helping us with our cases? Well, you sure are quite open with your self-praise.” Lee Zheng was about to counter that claim, but there was nothing that he could say to overthrow it. There were many haunted house operators in the country, but a boss like Chen Ge was indeed exceptionally rare. One would probably come just once in a hundred years.

...

“Brother Zhang, other than calling out my name, did the patient say anything else before he died?”

“No, he only kept screaming your name before he died.” Lee Zheng creased his brows into a frown. “Please be a little bit serious. We now suspect that it was you who put him in this state. After all, at the mental asylum, you were the only one who shared the room with him. In other words, you are the only one who has had any contact with him.”

“Brother Zheng, I swear this is a misunderstanding!” Chen Ge immediately jumped to his explanation. He told Lee Zheng about Chang Wenyu and the parents of the children who were sent to the door behind the School of the Afterlife. However, he did not tell the full story. He chose parts of it that could be shared and used that to distract Lee Zheng’s attention. In reality, Chen Ge himself had no idea what Chang Gu’s goal was. After all, when he was at the School of the Afterlife, he was technically scammed by the Chang Gu and his sister. The real victim of that situation was Chen Ge.

Of course, Chen Ge was not going to take issue with a dead person. He planned to take Chang Gu home with him after this. At the end of the day, they had been through many things together, and Chen Ge had a feeling they had many things that they could talk about.

If it was another person who had come to drop these things on Lee Zheng, the latter would not have given the person any chance and would have taken him to the station in cuffs for questioning. But Chen Ge was different. No matter how ridiculous his stories were, they would be confirmed later, especially when it came to the prediction of a murder case. It was almost a prophetic power that the young man had. His stories were scarily accurate.

Seeing that Lee Zheng was still hung up on the suspicions, Chen Ge decided to pull open the zipper of his backpack and said in the severe tone, “Brother Zheng, can we put the issue about this patient aside for now? I have something more important to report to you. Actually, when you gave me the call, I was already prepared to go to the police station to find you in person.”

“What could be more important than the loss of a human life?” Not only Lee Zheng, even the doctor in the room was irked by what Chen Ge said. They all felt Chen Ge was being a bit too unfeeling and harsh.

“The loss of several human lives.” Chen Ge took out the information from his backpack. When he said that, the sickroom was shrouded in silence. Everyone turned to look at the stack of white paper that he was holding.

“I went to the old city last night and came upon a big discovery at a place called Jin Hwa Apartments.” The actual statements and crime scene reconstructions written by the dead were hidden inside Chen Ge’s backpack’s compartment. What Chen Ge took out was a simplified version that he had personally written when he was in the cab. It only contained several names and several important clues. For murder cases, it was best that things were not that detailed. After all, if a normal person managed to reconstruct the murder scene perfectly, it would only be logical for the police to suspect them of being the murderer.

Chen Ge handed the papers over to Lee Zheng. “Why don’t you take a look at it yourself?”

Even though it was already the abridged version, it was enough to shock and stun Lee Zheng. After all, the whole apartment block was filled with murderers and madmen. To accomplish his own goal, the ghost fetus had conducted a careful screening process when he chose his tenants. He denied those who had a kind heart, those who did not have a mind that he could corrupt, and those who were too simple and naïve.

After collecting for ten years, instead of saying that all the crazies at Jiujiang had chosen to move to Jin Hwa Apartments and Jiu Hong Apartments, it was more like the ghost fetus had found them and lured them into one spot. When Lee Zheng was skimming through the papers, Chen Ge made use of this chance, grabbed his backpack, and moved to the window.

When Chang Gu saw him approach, his body started to shake slightly. He lifted his head and used his remaining eye to look at Chen Ge. His lips opened and whispered in a tone that only Chen Ge could hear, “I can still see my little sister, yes?”

Chen Ge nodded. He took out the comic from his backpack, flipped it over to a random empty place, and then turned to look at Chan Gu silently. The meaning was clear. It was inconvenient for them to talk there. If he wanted to see his sister, then he had to go with Chen Ge. Chang Gu did not have much choice. The reason he called out Chen Ge’s name before his dying breath was probably for this express reason. Chen Ge managed to extrapolate that much from the fact that his lingering spirit had not left the sickroom after he died as if he was there waiting for Chen Ge to come. The two shared a silent connection. Chang Gu entered the comic without resisting. Chen Ge put the comic away like nothing had ever happened.

“Is the air conditioning broken? How come it suddenly feels so hot?” The doctor lowered the temperature of the air conditioning, and he moved several steps toward Lee Zheng as if he was curious about the content on the white paper. Hearing the shuffling footsteps, Lee Zheng immediately put the papers away. His expression was severe when he turned to look at Chen Ge. There was fury burning inside his eyes, but the fury was not directed at Chen Ge. Lee Zheng was a man of justice; this was one of the reasons Chen Ge admired him so much.

“Chen Ge, you have to follow me back to the police station after this. This is too serious. We have to inform Captain Yan about it.” Then, Lee Zheng turned to address the doctor and the nurse. He told them to keep the room where Chang Gu died vacant for a while. He then left the hospital with the other police officers and Chen Ge in tow.

...

At the police station, once Captain Yan was briefed of the situation, he immediately summoned all the important personnel to have an emergency meeting. Everyone was seated inside the conference room. Even Chen Ge was given his own seat, and most importantly, none of the officers felt that Chen Ge’s presence was out of place. The staff had compiled the information provided by Chen Ge and compared them to the missing person records and the unclosed cases from many years ago. The police discovered that the murders mentioned on the papers matched some of the cases almost perfectly.

“Round up the teams immediately. We are going to Jin Hwa Apartments now. By the way, call all the people who are on leave back to the station as well!” Captain Yan was going to lead the team personally. After he had assigned everything, a few police cars left the station in a group.

Hugging his backpack, Chen Ge was squeezed between two other police officers. He appeared rather cautious and reserved. “Er... should you guys send in some plainclothes to do some investigation first? If you go in directly like this, you might scare some of the innocent tenants there.”

The atmosphere inside the car was serious. Neither officer answered Chen Ge’s question. Ten minutes later, they arrived at Jin Hwa Apartments. The parade of police cars rumbled through the streets. The sirens echoed through the air of the old city. Karma might be late, but she would never miss out on the party.

Most of the tenants had no idea what was going on, but some of the tenants had already prepared to sneak away. When the police arrived, however, they directly sealed up the whole of Jin Hwa and Jiu Hong Apartments. No one was going to escape.

The ambush was so sudden and without any warning. In a way, this was the first time Chen Ge had seen Captain Yan in action. He carried out his action with drive and determination and had a scarily accurate instinct when it came to crimes and cases.

Everyone at Jiujiang Police Station was a well-trained member of the law enforcement. After all, they had been ‘baptized’ by a shower of heavy crimes. Even a newbie would grow exceptionally fast in this environment. For those working there for just a month, they would have been exposed to a number of heavy crime cases that would rival the total number of those at other stations in a year.

In just ten minutes, they had managed to apprehend many suspects. Captain Yan and the rest had also noted the mysterious disappearance of Xiang Nuan and Wen Qing. The crime scene investigators managed to find Chen Ge and other strangers’ fingerprints at the scene. The police had also discovered a large amount of death notices with Xiang Nuan’s name.

“You were here last night?” Both Captain Yan and Lee Zheng were staring at Chen Ge. They took on a different persona when they were working a case, and that brought some amount of pressure on Chen Ge.

“Wen Qing is the estate agent who is responsible for these two residential areas. She has worked here for ten years already. She’s the one who told me most of the information that I handed over to you.” Wen Qing’s occupation meant that she needed to have a close relationship with the tenants there, so there was a chance that she would know about everything that had happened. Other than that, Wen Qing was now trapped on the other side of the door. The police could not summon her for questioning, so Chen Ge could come up with any story that he wanted.

“So, where is she now? Weren’t you with her last night?” Lee Zheng peppered Chen Ge with questions. This time, the case involved so many people that even this experienced police officer who had been through a lot was quite nervous.

“Wen Qing noticed the strange actions of the tenants here a long time ago, but she was too scared to speak up because she had a feeling someone was onto her and might hurt her or her son. However, she did not know who that person was.”

“Someone was threatening her?” Even Captain Yan’s expression changed. This case was getting worse the more he dug into it.

“Yes, you can see that from the flyers in the corridors all over the building that slander her reputation and the stack of death notices that were addressed to her house. There are some people who could not wait for her to die.”

“Some people? More than one person?” Captain Yan very astutely captured the choice of words that Chen Ge used. “There are many people who wanted this poor woman dead? Is it because she found out about their secrets?”

“I do not know the details either. I am afraid you will have to find her and ask her in person.” Chen Ge changed the subject. “But Wen Qing did mention something to do. She did say that the person that wanted to kill her was related to a hospital.”

Chen Ge decided to bring up the non-smiler and the cursed hospital now. He could push all the blame behind the murders and the disappearance all on the cursed hospital. When Chen Ge could not find the solution, he decided to pin the blame on the cursed hospital.

After all, it was indeed the faceless doctor sent by the cursed hospital that framed the ghost fetus and killed Wen Qing; that was truth. Even if Chen Ge was given a lie detector test, he would pass with flying colors. Not only Wen Qing’s disappearance, Chen Ge had also pinned all the wicked things that the ghost fetus had done onto the cursed hospital. The ghost fetus was corrupted by the hospital, but the ghost fetus was dead now, so the crimes committed by the ghost fetus should be shouldered by the hospital. That was quite sensible in Chen Ge’s eyes.

Earlier, when Se Xin died mysteriously on the operating table, Captain Yan’s people spotted the non-smiler on the surveillance camera outside the hospital. Then, they had once again spotted the presence of the non-smiler on the street outside of Jin Hwa Apartments. Combined with the ‘crucial clues’ given by Chen Ge, the investigative direction of the entire Jiujiang police department would be targeted at the cursed hospital.

Several murders were exposed, and the murderers were apprehended on the spot. The owner of Jiu Hong Housing Agency who rarely showed himself was also summoned to the crime scene. The police interrogated them one by one. This continued until the afternoon. Interestingly enough, after the police finished their questioning of Jiang Jiu, they had him sit together with Chen Ge to wait for the next round of questioning. Of the two of them, one was the last to see Wen Qing alive, and the other was the last to talk to Wen Qing on the phone.

The actual lynchpins of Western Jiujiang New Century Park and Eastern Jiujiang futuristic theme park were seated side by side. This was a scene that was hard to imagine. After the police left, when there were only the two of them in the room, Chen Ge leaned back in his chair and glanced sideways at Jiang Jiu next to him. Time had not left much of a trace on Jiang Jiu. He was supposed to be around the same age as Director Luo, but he appeared much younger than Director Luo. However, he was dressed his age. It made him look very formal.

“It is quite difficult to schedule a meeting with you. This is indeed a rare chance for us to meet.” Chen Ge took out the comic like he was looking for reading material and casually flipped through it. Jiang Jiu did not reply. He appeared to think that it was beneath his level to speak to Chen Ge. Perhaps he might have responded if it was Director Luo.

“The ghost fetus that threatens you is no longer of this world.” Chen Ge flipped the comic to the page where Zhang Yi was hiding and stopped.

When the term ghost fetus was mentioned, Jiang Jiu’s hands trembled slightly, but he soon caught himself. “I do not know what you are talking about.”

“If that were true, you would not have responded to my statement.” Chen Ge stared at Jiang Jiu, and his pupils slowly narrowed. After he used Yin Yang Vision, the presence about him completely changed. Even the temperature inside the room started to drop.

“From how I see it, you have lost your mind from spending too much time designing the haunted house.” Jiang Jiu refused to admit it no matter what. He turned his head to the side, but his body was shivering out of fear.

“I do not care about the rest. I only want to know one thing.” Chen Ge stood up and looked down on Jiang Jiu. “Did you hear any information about my parents from the ghost fetus?"

Jiang Jiu was a pure businessman, for benefit and gain, he could accept working with a ghost. One could not expect honesty from such a person, but by giving him enough benefits, he could be urged to spill the beans on everything he knew. The room temperature continued to drop. While Jiang Jiu was hesitating, Chen Ge realized his own body temperature was dropping as well. That caused a twinge of fear to curl around his heart. He was reminded of a very bad memory.

"I have never heard the ghost fetus mention your name before, but he likes to make mud statuettes that resemble you. He appears to want to become you."

"Is that all? Then, did he mention anything about my parents?"

"He did go to find your parents before." This statement excited Chen Ge. It caused the blood in his veins to boil.

"When did that happen?"

"I cannot remember it that clearly anymore. I only know that after that incident, the ghost fetus never stepped into Western Jiujiang again." Jiang Jiu slowed down as he gradually calmed down. He tried to wrest the control away from Chen Ge. "I can tell you something even more important. The city of Jiujiang is very unique. Your parents were forced to stay here, or rather, they were not allowed to leave, due to some unique reason."

"They were forced to stay here because they were needed to guard over something." Chen Ge thought back on his more than twenty years of life on this earth, and his lips were pursed together. "Were they protecting me or the door at the haunted house?"

Jiang Jiu had quietly memorized everything Chen Ge had said. Naturally, that did not escape Chen Ge's notice either. Thankfully, he had the perfect solution for this problem.

"I did not want to do this initially, but you are too cunning, and I am afraid that you might use my words to harm in the future, so..." Chen Ge waved at Zhang Yi. "Make it quick."

Jiang Jiu had no idea what was happening. He frowned deeply. "Who... who are you talking to?"

Chapter 1113 - She Is the Female Main Character for this Movie! 2 in 1

Chapter 1113 She Is the Female Main Character for this Movie! 2 in 1

Jiang Jiu soon understood whom Chen Ge was conversing with. He saw a thin and lanky young man walk out from behind Chen Ge and proceed to use both hands to press against his head. “Do not be afraid. It will be over soon.”

Suddenly, there was one extra person in the room. Jiang Jiu soon realized what was happening. However, before the man was given any chance to struggle, his memory started to get muddled. The memories related to the ghost fetus were hidden away, and he soon collapsed unconscious to the ground. Summoning Zhang Yi back into the comic, Chen Ge glanced at Jiang Jiu, who leaned on the seat unconscious, and he quickly yelled at the top of his lungs, “Hey! Are you okay? Hey! Wake up! Can you hear me? Brother Zheng! Brother Zheng! He has fainted! I need help!”

Hearing Chen Ge’s cries for help, the police officers on duty quickly hurried over. They conducted first aid on Jiang Jiu. They concluded that there was nothing wrong with Jiang Jiu. He was not injured, but the problem was that he refused to wake up. “We’d better get him to the hospital stat!”

...

After the police sent Jiang Jiu away, Chen Ge was again left alone in the room. He took out his phone to give Uncle Xu a call to get an update on the haunted house. After ensuring that everything was running smoothly, he walked to the side of the bed, hugged his backpack in his arms, and curled up and slept. After who knew how long, Chen Ge was shaken awake. He opened his eyes blurrily and saw Lee Zheng and a few of the officers looking down at him.

“You guys are finished with your work?”

“I really did not expect someone to be able to fall asleep at a crime scene. Do you think we summoned you here to provide a place for you to rest?” Lee Zheng was rather speechless when it came to dealing with Chen Ge, but he could see that Chen Ge was indeed incredibly tired.

“Well, that’s because I know you guys are around. I’ve helped the police apprehend so many killers. Naturally, there are many people who are out to get me. Normally, I have to sleep with my eyes open. Only when the people’s guardians are by my side can I sleep peacefully.”

“That’s enough nonsense out of you. You’d better get ready to go back home. And please do not leave Jiujiang for now. We might summon you to aid in the investigation at any moment.” Lee Zheng and the police were very busy. After they said that, they left in a hurry. Chen Ge looked out the window; the sky was already dark.

“Indeed, it’s time to go back. I should have a nice little chat with Chang Gu tonight.” Chang Gu himself was not that unique. He was just a Specter who had a talent in directing, but Chang Wenyu was different. She was the second Red Specter who had her own special page other than Zhang Ya in the black phone. Technically speaking, Chang Wenyu’s soul should have been destroyed at the School of the Afterlife already, but the black phone stated that she was not yet fully dead, and she appeared to know some secrets about the black phone. That was something that Chen Ge minded a lot.

When he returned to New Century Park’s haunted house, the living employees were cleaning up and ready to go home while the ghost employees were all busy with their own things. Chen Ge did not disturb them. He walked straight into the staff breakroom and flipped through the comic to summon out Chang Gu. “There are no outsiders here, so there is no need for you to hold back. Tell me everything that you know.”

The white cat gave the single-eyed person that appeared before it a once over before it jumped to the side with disdain. The cat was always meek before the strong but strong before the meek.

“My little sister’s soul is probably still alive. She that said she has kept a life as a backup.” Chang Gu’s first sentence was so shocking that grabbed Chen Ge’s attention immediately.

“What do you mean by that? Where is this life then?” Chen Ge stared into Chang Gu’s eyes.

“I do not understand it either. That was what she told me. Whether the plan failed or succeeded, as long as I could leave the School of the Afterlife, I needed to hurry to come find you because she wants to make a deal with you.” Chang Wenyu had indeed prepared some insurance. The siblings were not as simple as they seemed.

“What kind of deal?”

“She knows you have a black-colored phone on you, and she even knows that phone has once appeared on another person before. She is willing to tell you everything that she knows and help you complete their favors.” Chang Gu extended out three fingers.

“You guys sure have planned ahead. To ensure that you are not lying to me, I will have to first rescue Chang Wenyu’s spirit.” Chen Ge glanced at Chang Gu. “This is a deal where you guys have nothing to lose.”

“My sister’s eye has seen many things. She will not lie to you.”

“You two sure share a deep and firm relationship. She is directly responsible for your death, but even now, you are still doing everything you can to help her. Even I am getting a little bit touched by it.” Chen Ge stood up and walked a circle around Chang Gu. “There is no problem with me helping Chang Wenyu, but three favors are far from enough.”

“Then, what else do you want?”

“I will tell you later. First, I need you to tell me what kind of help you want from me.” Chen Ge first needed to completely finish all the issues related to Chang Wenyu. This was a mission given by the black phone, and it was a rare chance for him to get to know the black phone a little bit better.

“My sister has hidden a lingering spirit in Xin Hai. The lingering spirit is inside the body of a student. You only need to resuscitate the memory of that lingering spirit.”

“Will the student die after the lingering spirit’s memory has been activated?” Compared to saving Chang Wenyu, Chen Ge was more worried about the innocent student’s life. After all, Chang Wenyu was a Top Red Specter; a normal human would be able to suffer her memory and survive.

“No.” It appeared like Chang Gu was still hiding something else from Chen Ge. “The student is currently enrolled at Xin Hai First High School. She is a girl who was almost dragged into the School of the Afterlife by the door, but my sister saved her.”

“Do you have any other information beyond that?”

“No, that’s all I was told.” Chang Gu had already finished all the words that he was supposed to say. He stood in the middle of the room with a lack of expression on his face except the small trace of melancholy that lingered in his eyes.

“To be able to have been selected by the School of the Afterlife’s door, she must have been bullied at her school before. That helps narrow down the search a lot, so I believe it will not be that difficult to find this girl.” Chen Ge suddenly changed his tone. “But I do not intend to go to Xin Hai any time soon.”

“Why?” Chang Gu felt like Chen Ge was purposely making things difficult for him.

“I have a nemesis currently residing at Xin Hai. If I go there now, they will definitely come for my life.” Chen Ge’s hand phased through Chang Gu’s shoulder. “Before I have everything prepared, my advice is for you to stay here and work. I risked my life at the School of the Afterlife for you and your sister, and in the end, I got betrayed by both of you. Don’t you think it is time for you to work for me to repay your debt?”

“How long do you need to prepare? Can you at least give me a time frame?”

“I guarantee you it will be done within a month.” After saying that, Chen Ge took out his phone. He was now ready to complete another promise that he had been delaying for a long time. Sliding down the screen, Chen Ge called a number. A dial tone came from the other side of the phone. Just the dial tone was enough to make the temperature inside the room dropped several degrees. Several seconds later, the call was connected. A hoarse male voice came through. “Chen Ge? Do you need anything from me?”

Zhang Wenyu!

“I do not need anything from you. It’s like this.” Chen Ge took a deep breath. Even though he was talking on the phone, it felt like the Red Specter’s voice was directly echoing in his mind. “I have expended a lot of energy to help you find a rather famous director within the industry to help, and I believe I have all the required actors. Furthermore, I have more than enough locales at my haunted house to use as set pieces, like schools, an isolated village, a small town, a mental asylum, an underground morgue, and so on. The only thing that I am lacking now is the script.”

“You wish to help the author complete his dying wish?”

“Of course. Wasn’t that our promise from the beginning?” Chen Ge smiled. “Not only him, I will help carry the dying wishes of the other suicide victims out as soon as I can because I might not have much time left.”

“Did something happen to you? Do you need any help?” The male voice on the other end of the phone was chilly and icy. Those who did not know him would think that Zhang Wenyu was a very scary ghost, but those who knew of his past would know how much he loved and cherished this world.

“This has nothing to do with you. If I do need your help, you can be sure that I will tell you.” Chen Ge wanted to form a good relationship with Zhang Wenyu because this Red Specter was someone that he drew from the black phone, and he was extremely rare. It was much more difficult to get him compared to Zhang Ya. In other words, this suicide line operator who died from committing suicide carried many secrets and was incredibly powerful.

Actually, after meeting Zhang Wenyu for the first time, Chen Ge had secretly gone to investigate the man. He realized that the man had left his presence around both Northern and Southern Jiujiang. The reason these two places could be so peaceful probably had plenty to do with this unique Red Specter. Western Jiujiang had Chen Ge’s haunted house, and Eastern Jiujiang had the ghost fetus. Even though neither Southern nor Northern Jiujiang had any powerful Red Specters, that also indirectly proved how unique Zhang Wenyu was. Perhaps, like Zhang Ya, he had many important secrets about him.

No matter the reason, Chen Ge wanted to befriend Zhang Wenyu. Of course, if the latter was willing to become his employee, that would be the best. Zhang Wenyu shouldered many things on his back; he had shouldered all the dying wishes of the suicide victims. In a way, this was very similar to Doctor Gao and the ghost fetus, who had chosen to carry all of the sin that had collected behind the door. But Zhang Wenyu obviously did not lose his mind over this. He still maintained his rationality and sentience after what he did.

Chen Ge had a feeling that Zhang Wenyu was treading a third path. This path was different from Doctor Gao and the ghost fetus, who voluntarily took on all the sin behind the door, and also different from Chen Ge, who opened a haunted house to help all his employees fulfil their wishes, but eventually, all paths would converge to the same destination.

"I will help you complete all the victims' dying wishes. I know it is inconvenient for you to do certain things, so just leave them all to me." Chen Ge had gotten information about the author's bibliography from Zhang Wenyu, and at the same time, he had gained some affection from the man. After the call was ended, Chen Ge went online to search for the author's published books. After he ordered all the official publications, he turned to discuss the direction of the movie with Chang Gu.

"The camera that Liu Gang's team carried with them when they came to challenge my haunted house is still with me. Do you think it will work?" Chen Ge had utilized the term 'recycling' to its maximum.

"The author's dying wish is to make a film that will become popular, and you plan to accomplish that with a simple camcorder. Don't you think that is a bit disrespectful toward the author and his work?" Chang Gu was surprised that the first thing Chen Ge wanted him to do was make a movie, but he did not hate this kind of feeling. At least his talent would not be wasted. "Other than that, making a movie is not as simple as you think. We need to make many preparations, like casting, preparing sets, and gathering props and machinery."

"Other than the cameras, I basically have everything else here."

"Well, I do have some camera equipment," Chang Gu said with a hint of wistfulness. "Do you still remember the holiday villa where we first met? The equipment that I used when I was still alive is all stored there. You can go and take them out. I can lend them to you."

"The word lend is wrong here. Furthermore, you will be the one using the equipment. I am just returning the equipment to its owner." Chen Ge picked up Xiaoxiao and signaled for Chang Gu to follow him. "I will first give you a tour of this place. Along the way, you should see if there are any suitable sets."

Pulling open the door that led underground, the chill wind brushed against the face, and it almost toppled Chang Gu over. This place was indeed scary because even a ghost like him thought the place had an eerie feeling about it.

"Guys, it is time to gather round! We are going to make a movie!" Chen Ge took out the comic, stood at the top of the stairs, and shouted at the underground scenarios. It did not take long for ‘people’ to react. The first was the mannequins from Mu Yang High School, who came out chasing after their heads that had rolled ahead of them. Then came the rustic ghosts from the Living Coffin Village. Lastly, the doctors arrived from the underground morgue. In a few months, Chen Ge’s haunted house had become quite a big family, and the family size was only growing bigger and bigger.

“These are all the actors at my haunted house. They have great experience in how to play a ghost. Perhaps they might not work as the main character, but I believe they have great potential to be side characters.” Chen Ge looked at his employees with satisfaction, and he did not notice that Chang Gu’s face had gone green. This scene from hell was actually a casting opportunity.

Chang Gu’s lips twitched slightly and nodded out of habit. “Okay then.”

“I have seen the movies that you’ve made. They are not bad, so I will leave the rest to you.” Chen Ge shoved Chang Gu into the countless lingering spirits, baleful Specters, and Red Specters. “Let me make the introduction. This is Director Chang. He will be responsible for the production of the movie, so please try to cooperate with him.”

Being stared down by a gauntlet of flaring gazes, Chang Gu had a feeling that his body was being torn apart. He could take the searching views from the normal ghosts, but he felt very uncomfortable being scrutinized by the Red Specters.

“I will leave you guys here to discuss the script and come up with the direction of the plot. I will instead go to the holiday villa to collect the necessary equipment.” Chen Ge called over the driver of Bus Route 104. Before this, after Xiao Bu had taken back the control of Li Wan City, Chen Ge had the girl help him find the bus that had gone missing. Xiao Bu did exactly that. The bus had been placed at the theme park for quite some time after it was moved back from Li Wan City. The reason for that was because it was too easy for this bus to become an urban legend after it got on the road. “Even though I do not have my own Mercedes or a race car like other bosses, but I do at least have my own personal driver.”

The journey took quite some time. After Chen Ge finished moving all the equipment and returned to the haunted house, it was already 3 am. He drove the bus directly to the haunted house, and he had his employees help move the equipment underground.

“Chang Gu, how did the discussion go?” Chen Ge noticed that many of the employees were in preparation or memorizing lines. He realized that Chang Gu had great organizational skill.

“I have skimmed through the work of the author. The easiest among them to be adapted into a movie is a novel about a high school comedy romance—Summer That Year, I Was Eighteen. Of course, this is not to say that his other works are not popular. Every single one of his other books has enjoyed quite the popularity, but this book is the easiest to be adapted into a movie format. Furthermore, we have a lot of students here, and we have an assortments of schools, so we can make the movie from many different angles...”

Chang Gu continued with some professional lingo that confused Chen Ge, so all the latter could do was to nod along. “Well, I see that you have already decided on the setting. What about the casting?”

“I noticed one who has an exceptional talent in acting. When I saw first her, I knew that she would be the main female character.” Chang Gu pulled the Pen Spirit over to him. “She is practically the embodiment of the main character in the book. She is the epitome of youth and has that brooding presence about her that suggests something deeper in her personality. But most importantly, look at her eyes. They are deep with anxiety, suspicion, brashness, as well as anticipation and hope. What is youth? This is youth!”

Chapter 1114 - “Peaceful and Warm” Daily Update 2 in 1

Chapter 1114 “Peaceful and Warm” Daily Update 2 in 1

the pen spirit stood blankly next to chang gu. she still did not understand what had just happened. earlier, everyone was called to casting, and she merely ran through the expressions as per chang gu’s direction.

“i am surprised that the pen spirit will be the first actor from my haunted house to debut. at least the daily lectures that i have given have not gone to waste.” chen ge looked at the pen spirit like a proud father looking at his accomplished daughter. he asked chang gu, “then, how about the casting for the male main character?”

“about the male main character, i am still hesitating. there is a problem. in terms of acting skills, your worker by the name of zhou is very impressive. his acting skill is far better than all of the actors that i have worked with in the past, but the main problem is his age. we are going to shoot a high school drama. with his age, he is more suitable to be the main character’s father.” chang gu glanced at ol’ zhou and bai qiulin, who were purposely wandering around the area, and he sighed weakly. “theoretically speaking, the most suitable person at your haunted house to be cast as the main male character is xu yin. his eyes appear to be hiding a sea of sadness, and he carries a natural air of melancholy with him. age-wise, he is also the most suitable, but most importantly, his face can practically ‘slaughter’ most of the male actors his age, so i would say he was born to become an actor!”

...

“then it’s decided. xu yin will be the main male character.” it really did not matter to chen ge who the male main character was. he had even more hope that xu yin would be able to slowly walk out from his own world through this experience and see what the outside world had to offer. of all the workers at the haunted house, xu yin was the most loyal. to protect chen ge, he had almost lost his soul several times, so no matter what, chen ge also wished to help xu yin regain his hope.

“if you agree with that, then i will need you to have a good chat with him and help him with some counselling. the main male character has a lot of lines. it won’t work if he just keeps on repeating the words ‘so painful’.” chang gu was rather afraid of xu yin. he did not even dare raise his voice when he was talking with xu yin.

“certain things can’t be forced. why can’t you try to shorten the script for the male character, cut out most of the lines or use another method to express the main male character’s intention?”

“that will be very difficult. after all, we are different from the other teams on the market who ruin the source material that they were given. we have to be able to say that we have not disappointed the original author who has already passed away.” in a way, chang gu had his professional ethics when it came to his work.

“okay, i will go and talk to him in a bit.” chen ge followed chang gu as he paced between the school of the afterlife and mu yang high school scenarios. “how about the other main characters? have they been cast? previously, i promised one of the employees that i would help her fulfill her dream of being in a movie. her name is duan yue. she was an english teacher before she died.”

“the investor forcing an actor into the film crew? that feels oh so familiar.” chang gu wanted to reject it initially, but after he remembered who duan yue was, he changed his mind again. “oh, i think i remember her. that female teacher is quite a good actor as well. how about i cast her as the main female character’s class teacher? in the original story, the class teacher helps the female main character, and in the end, she even marries the girl’s father and lives happily ever after.”

“what the... if ol’ zhou heard this plot, he’d probably die again from laughter.” chen ge nodded. “i think you need to communicate with duan yue some more to see whether she is willing to take this role or not.”

“okay, i will run through the rest of the characters and casting with you for now.” chang gu was a very talented director. the characters that he had chosen and the cast that he had assembled were so perfect that the actors basically did not need to overact in their roles; they only needed to be themselves, and they could easily bring the characters that they were assigned to life. the extras aside, there were only nine main roles in total. this high school comedy did not have a convoluted plot. it focused around a girl from a single parent family and how she managed to walk out from the mist of depression with the aid of her family and her company at school.

it was a story about youth; it was a story about growth. it was filled with positive energy and the pain that one had go through as one grew up into adulthood. a series of seemingly unimportant events were lined up together to form an interesting and captivating story. the story itself was not that long, but it had a great dramatic effect and obvious conflicts. it was not that difficult to shoot. these were all the reasons chang gu had selected this source material to adapt.

“you’d better work as fast as you can. i will leave the rest to you. i hope that everything will be done in a week.” chen ge did not know when the cursed hospital would come to find him. the easier he gained zhang wenyu’s trust, the better. there was only positive benefits and no downsides.

“i am surprised that i’ve been given more time to do the things that i love after death. this is so ironic. but don’t you worry, i will not disappoint you this time.” chang gu gave chen ge a promise. he would let chen ge see the result within five days. chen ge also thought that chang gu was quite a reliable director, so he did not ask more questions. like he said, he handed everything over to chang gu. he was just a normal person. he could not be compared to baleful specters and red specters. after working without rest until midnight, he was already very tired.

the moment chen ge left the underground scenario and chang gu was going to continue with his shooting, a small figure silently pulled on the corner of chang gu’s shirt. chang gu, who was startled, turned back to look and saw a red specter whose height reached his knees staring up at him.

do red specters roam this place freely? chang gu’s body was frozen to the spot. he noticed that chen ge’s haunted house was scarier than the school of the afterlife.

“director chang, my name is men nan. do you think there is a character suitable for me in the script? since i was young, i’ve dreamt of seeing myself on the big screen. i guess you can call it one of my biggest dreams.” chang gu could ignore the request of a child, but things were different if that child was a red specter.

“of course, there is no problem with that. how about i assign you the role of the female main character’s younger brother? there is such a character in the source material, but he does not appear that often.”

“that does not matter as long as i can show up on the screen at least once.” men nan left satisfied. chang gu also sighed in relief. he moved his feet and was about to walk away when his whole body shivered. a mist of blood enveloped him. he turned back to look, and a female red specter was standing at the corner gazing at him with the head that she carried in her arms. she did not say anything; she only continued to stare at chang gu with the head in her arms.

“hello...” chang gu said cautiously as he forced himself to move forward to meet this newcomer. this was because he felt that it would be safer for him to get close to the woman rather than show her his back and allow her to follow him everywhere. the headless woman could understand chang gu, but the accumulated resentment and hatred made it so that she was not used to express her own opinion.

“you also wish to be a part of the movie? actually, i have a role that is perfect for you. the character has no lines. she only needs to give her silent blessing to the main couple.” chang gu’s face was pale, and he was speaking very carefully. making a movie at other places required money, but making a movie at this place might require your life!

the headless woman did not say anything. she merely held her head and nodded it several times before she silently left. chang gu only sighed in relief after the headless woman disappeared from his view. “i should hurry back to work, or else some other red specters might appear to accost me.”

...

at 8 am the next day, the first thing that chen ge did after waking up was enter the underground scenario. he needed to remind chang gu that all the movie-making business had to be done at night because the haunted house needed to operate like normal in the day. the ghost employees did not need to rest. even after a whole night of shooting, they were still very energetic. everyone was excited to welcome the visitors. they were the most professional actors whom chen ge had ever met.

the employees returned to their workstations while chang gu used the morning break time to edit and cut the drafts that he had shot the night before. even though he had worked through the night, he could still continue working. the director was as impressive as the actors.

xu wan and the gang arrived at around 8:15 am. chen ge helped them with their makeup and then walked into the staff breakroom alone. he complied and arranged all the dying wishes that he had gotten from zhang wenyu's suicide victims. most of the suicide victims came from northern and southern jiujiang. a small portion of them died somewhere between xin hai and jiujiang.

"there are so many of them?" chen ge printed out all the information and shoved it into his backpack. he planned to go out that morning to help zhang wenyu complete part of the dying wishes of the suicide victims. most of the dying wishes were not that complicated, but zhang wenyu, who was a ghost, had trouble doing them due to obvious reasons.

before he even stepped out from the door, chen ge's phone rang. pressing the accept button, director luo's voice came from the other side of the line. "chen ge, i have just received two pieces of news. i need you to be prepared."

"what's the news?" chen ge heard an undercurrent of worry in director luo's voice.

"there has been an adjustment among the higher ups at the futuristic theme park. jiang jiu is hospitalized, and now the theme park's administration has been taken over by someone called ma feng. i know this man very well; he is callous and ruthless. he is young, but he's advanced very quickly through the ranks. that is because he is swift with his decision and merciless with his actions. the people below him all refer to him as the quick slasher."

"the man's name is ma feng?"

"he is very capable and always goes for the kill. because of his merciless nature, he has offended quite a long list of people. if not for jiang jiu's accident, he would not have gotten the chance to rise to the top."

"do we need to pay special attention to this person?" chen ge knew the reason behind jiang jiu's hospitalization. he just did not expect the chain effect to be so strong.

"ma feng operates on benefits. from the very beginning, he was vocally against the many traps that jiang jiu set up against us. he thought they were a waste of money and time. now that he has taken the reins, he will launch to another counterattack on us. if he is successfully, then it will highlight how good he is and how useless jiang jiu was; if he fails to accomplish anything, then he will probably give up the haunted house idea and other related projects for the futuristic theme park to avoid competition with us.”

“is that not a good thing? if we teach him a good lesson, in the future, the two theme parks will exist in a peaceful, symbiotic relationship, and they will not keep a target on our back anymore.”

“the world of business is like a war; only the winner takes all. even if ma feng fails, the futuristic theme park will only temporarily remove the target from our back, but being able to gain that period of time where we do not need to worry about the competition is very valuable already. i will not sit idle in the meantime. our theme park has already to upgrade and improve with the time.” director luo’s words had hidden a very important message. “and in the future, when we have everything that they have and we also have everything that they do not have, if you were a visitor, who would you choose to visit?”

“of course, i will choose to come to our theme park.” it was not until this moment that chen ge realized that when director luo said ‘the winner takes all’, it meant that he wanted to swallow up the entire futuristic theme park.

“this will not take too long. before the upgrade is completed, i am afraid you will have to work a little bit more to shore up the deficiencies of the other halted attractions.”

“understood.” chen ge and director luo were on the same ship. their fate was tightly linked together. “by the way, didn’t you say you receive two pieces of news? what’s the other one?”

“it’s news from the special sickroom at the people’s hospital of jiujiang. the people that have fainted at your haunted house have mostly recovered and left the hospital. these people spent almost every day consoling and encouraging each other. other than that, the hospital workers heard that they have been planning and plotting to come back for revenge. it is like some kind of cult.”

“you are afraid that they might come back to take revenge on me?” chen ge could not help but laugh. “these fainted visitors have watched too much of the avengers, haven’t they?”

“do not be overconfident. a collective wave can capsizes a boat.” director luo ended the call after that. the smile still had not left chen ge’s face. yes, a collective wave could capsizes a boat, but no matter how big the wave, it would not shake an aircraft carrier. chen ge welcomed their return. if they came openly through the front entrance, the doors of the four-star scenario would be open for them anytime; if they sneaked from behind, the demon god and red specters would be their welcoming crew.

after greeting uncle xu, chen ge carried his backpack and left new century park to hurry to northern jiujiang. following his own plan, he started to help the suicide victims complete their dying wishes. during this process, chen ge noticed something peculiar. as more and more dying wishes were completed, a red number appeared next to the title of votive master in the black phone. whenever he finished a victim's dying wish, the number would increase, and the amount it increased would differ each time. the amount appeared to be related to the difficulty of the dying wish. currently, the number next to the votive master title was 127. chen ge predicted that the title would somehow change when the number counter reached 200. chen ge busied himself until late afternoon, and he returned to new century park. he asked his employees for an update. it was yet another peaceful day with no accidents.

“there are more and more people who are courageous enough to challenge the four-star scenario, but their progress from completing the scenario is still very very low.” from the report given to him by ol' zhou and bai qiulin, in the past week, there had been almost two hundred visitors who entered the school of the afterlife, but the scenario had such a high intensity of specters in it. after all, chen ge had found all the souls of the dead students who had been dragged into the door and had provided these homeless souls with a sanctuary at his own school of the afterlife scenario.

this caused a direct consequence where no visitor was able to full explore the school of the afterlife. basically, most of them called to surrender with tears and screams, and they were led out of the scenario by actual ghosts. various rumors about the school of the afterlife started to appear on the internet. the popularity of this topic was so high that it had far expanded beyond the small circle of haunted house enthusiasts.

“one four-star scenario is still too little. i should consider opening the ghost fetus' scenario to the public. i should go and give it a good inspection tonight.” the theme park closed for the day at 6 pm. after sending away all the visitors, he had xu wan and the gang go home, and he entered the underground scenario alone.

chang gu had started to organize people for his shoot. meanwhile, chen ge hugged the white cat, carried the comic, and entered the ghost fetus scenario. originally, there was only one ladder that led underground, but now, there was a second ladder that led to the second basement level. the whole second basement was occupied by one scenario, the ghost fetus' scenario. the voiceless small town, the white orphanage, the spire of darkness, the haunted avenue—all these scenarios were joined and pieced together. there were many dark paths that extended deeper into the ground. the ghost fetus' despair and twisted spirit shrouded the entire scenario.

the ghost fetus' scenario was, in essence, different from the school of the afterlife scenario, probably because this scenario once belonged to a demon god. once one entered it, one would feel the pressure on one's heart like a demon had just entered it. it kept evoking the bad memories that one had buried deep in one's mind. all the negative emotions would be amplified. a person's sin and guilt would find release there to become the nutrient for the ghost fetus' scenario.

after experiencing the worst despair, perhaps the visitors would feel lighter after they left. perhaps they would gain a new insight toward life and their future. with only some short period of unconsciousness as sacrifice, one could welcome a new life. for chen ge, this seemed like such a valuable trade. flipping through the comic, chen ge summoned out all the specters he had encountered in the world behind ying tong's door. miss dress, mr. wood, auntie wu, and miss red silently appeared around him.

“i believe bai qiulin and ol' zhou have already updated all of you on what is going on. the spire of darkness will be your home from now on. other than the rules of the employees that you need to follow, you are free to do anything you like.” chen ge conversed quickly with his new employees. “soon, you will see the allure of this job, and i trust that you will learn to enjoy it and love it.”

after that, chen ge summoned out all the specters and spirits that he had obtained from all the ghost fetus' nine doors. he assigned them positions one by one until xiao sun was the only one left.

xiao sun had accepted the fact that he was already dead. he was surprisingly open about it. at this moment, seeing that he was the only one who was not assigned a job, he felt quite left out. “brother, what do you need me to do? i also want to help scare the visitors. i am quite good at that.”

“i do not need you to do that.” chen ge looked at xiao sun with expectation. “instead, i need you to pretend to be part of the visitors and mix into them. that is the only way for you to unleash your full potential. utilize your uncanny ability to bring down the luck of the people around you.”

“you want me to act as one of the visitors?” xiao sun did not quite get it. he did not understand that this was something a haunted house could do.

“that is the only way your talent will not be wasted. i fully believe that with your talent, it will be very easy for you to cause bad luck to befall your teammates.” chen ge nodded with a smile. “after all, you are a unique talent who managed to use a single statement to make a demon god go on a rampage.”

Chapter 1115 - Why Is Your Comedy Breaking the Records of the Horror Shorts and Movies Ranking? 3 in 1

1115 Why Is Your Comedy Breaking the Records of the Horror Shorts and Movies Ranking? 3 in 1

“but i have no experience! i am not that good a liar. i will be so easily exposed.” xiao sun had a helpless smile on his face. this was the first time he had been so valued greatly in his ‘life’.

“there is no need for you to act. you only need to be yourself.” chen ge had great expectations for xiao sun. he planned to train this young man well. “after ol’ zhou is done with the shoot, you should go and ask him for some pointers. he is one of the most experienced employees here, and he has a lot of experience acting as part of the visitors.”

“okay.”

...

“good luck, i believe in you.” chen ge had xiao sun familiarize himself with the scenarios while he carried the white cat to continue inspecting the ghost fetus’ scenario. “ol’ zhou and duan yue have become far too popular for their own good. many visitors become alert once they see someone similar to them in their midst.

“in fact, i was told that some of the more experienced visitors purposely ask for the names of their teammates before entering the haunted house. if there’s a member with the surname zhou in their team, they stay far away from them. this has greatly increased the difficulty of ol' zhou and duan yue's work. a new employee joining the big family is a good thing. i believe that xiao sun will be given his chance to shine in the haunted house and greatly showcase his unique talent."

the cursed seed that was abandoned by the ghost fetus found a new 'job' at chen ge's place. after assigning the posts for all the ghosts, chen ge personally taught him the tactics to scare people, and at the same time, chen ge himself was getting more familiar with the ghost fetus' scenarios. the ghost fetus' scenarios were slightly bigger than the scenario for the school of the afterlife. the nine sub-scenarios were already extremely scary, and that was not counting the hidden scenario that was the scariest—the world of the black fog.

chen ge realized that the biggest difference between a three-star scenario and a four-star scenario was that all four-star scenarios appeared to have a hidden scenario embedded within them. the hidden scenario at the school of the afterlife was the red specter's art room. the school compound where the art room was located was dyed completely red, and it was a perfect replica of the world behind the door. the hidden scenario at the ghost fetus' scenario—jiu hong apartments—was a perfect replica of the world of the black fog.

wandering souls and negative emotions that morphed into the black fog shrouded the scenario. the only difference here compared to the world behind xiang nuan's door was the lack of man-eating monster fleeing through the black fog. wading through the black fog, chen ge closed his eyes. he tried to seriously sense the terror that was brought on by the black fog around him.

"what exactly is this black fog? why is my heart still palpitating even though i know that i am in a perfectly safe state? it feels like i have been brought out of the real world and deposited into someone else's nightmare. everything is an unknown, and nothing is familiar."

the world of the black fog was filled with abandoned memories. the black fog was brimming with pain, despair, and terror. walking through it, one would have the sense of being assimilated by the atmosphere within it. as one continued to walk, one would subconsciously be sucked into being a part of the black fog and become a walking vessel for pain and despair.

"if a visitor is able to walk out from the world of the black fog with their own determination, then they must be someone incredibly powerful and impressive," chen ge commented as he walked through the black fog and entered jiu hong apartments. the few buildings there were located in similar positions to the world behind xiang nuan's door. the ghost fetus' most important memory and most painful past were all buried there. chen ge even found the rag doll's broken body. similar to the jiu hong apartments behind xiang nuan's door, the rag doll's body was cut into many different parts and hidden within different buildings.

"i could have the mission be the collection of the rag doll's body. after the visitors have found all of the body parts and successfully bring them all out from the scenario, they will have cleared the scenario." with that in mind, chen ge started to find the body parts of the rag doll himself. the original intention was to take a picture of the compiled rag doll to use as part of the mission explanation, but who knew an accident would happen.

when the rag doll was fully collected, the whole ghost fetus' scenario started to change!

crying children appeared from inside the black fog, numerous haunted spirit flickered in and out of the darkness, and various curses climbed over all the buildings at jiu hong apartments like some kind of dark vines.

"what the... what the hell is happening now?" chen ge quickly summoned the red high heels. he was worried that he had triggered some kind of trap left behind by the ghost fetus. after the red high heels examined the situation, she gave chen ge a clear answer. the ghost fetus' soul had already been destroyed. his consciousness was no longer of this world, and he would not return anymore. the reason the scenario had changed was because the malice of a demon god was so heavy that even though the ghost fetus had been destroyed, because he had suffered and carried all the sin behind the door, something of the ghost fetus would be left behind. that was the difference between a demon god and a top red specter.

the ghost fetus' scenario had recorded everything there was about the ghost fetus. this place would be a location that was closest to hell for any unsuspecting visitors, but it was heaven for the red high heels. she was treading the same path as the ghost fetus. her expertise was also similar to the ghost fetus. furthermore, she had consumed most of the curses left behind by the ghost fetus. this scenario that recorded the process of how the ghost fetus became a demon god would be incredibly helpful for the red high heels in her journey to become a demon god herself.

“then, you shall stay at this scenario. with a top red specter like yourself watching over this place, i will not need to be worried.” after chen ge said that, the red high heels who was covered in bandage walked over to him. waving her hands, the woman used multiple black threads to weave out an army of ghosts and monsters. these monsters that were formed from pure curses were extremely scary. they were about as powerful as half red specter.

“you plan to use them to scare the visitors?” chen ge wiped away the cold sweat that slid down his forehead. “that won’t be necessary. that’s too much overkill. calm down! you only need to guard this scenario so that nothing goes wrong. please do not use the curses to harm the visitors.”

chen ge did not make use of the red high heels’ idea, but it had given him a reminder. “i have memorized the features of many monsters from inside the black fog. when i have time, i should go and make mannequins for all of them. a perfect haunted house scenario needs to have a mixture of mannequins and actual ghosts.”

leaving behind zhang yi to aid the red high heels, chen ge followed a hidden path and left the hidden scenario. this was another difference between the ghost fetus’ scenario and the scenario for the school of the afterlife. at the ghost fetus’ scenario, every sub-scenario had a hidden path that could lead to the hidden scenario. whether they could be found depended fully on the visitors’ capability.

the employees busied themselves with their chores. those who were involved in the movies were busy with their scripts, and those who had just joined the haunted house were studying to get familiarized with their new identities. chen ge did not sit idle either. he entered the prop room and started to draft the blueprints for the monsters in the black fog and planned to go to the mannequin workshop to customize yet another set of equipment.

when dawn had almost arrived, chen ge returned to the staff breakroom. he lay in bed, but no matter what, sleep eluded him. after spending almost every night the past week working through the night and risking his life, he was rather unused to the fact that he was suddenly given a chance to take a breather. with his mind wandering about, chen ge could not tell when the drowsiness overwhelmed him, but when he opened his eyes again, a new day had begun.

the group of people that director luo had cautioned him about still had not appeared, but the amount of visitors who decided to challenge the four-star scenario, the school of the afterlife, had a drastic increase. many of them came from very far away, and their sole purpose was entering the school of the afterlife to experience it. these people did not appear like they were there to create trouble for chen ge. they were so polite that some of the employees felt too embarrassed to scare them. when they encountered a ghost, it was like they had met their seniors. they were so obedient and reserved. but even so, none of them were able to clear the scenario.

“this is too strange. something must be behind this. most of the visitors that came to visit the four-star scenario today bought their ticket in a group via the internet, and they appeared to know each other fairly well.” chen ge took a glance at the haunted house app that was designed by director luo. he noticed that in the past few days, someone had madly been collecting all the information about the school of the afterlife. in fact, there were threads on other forums and platforms where people had given out hard cash to purchase information related to the school of the afterlife. chen ge reflected this to director luo. around noon, director luo confirmed that this was probably ma feng’s doing.

a real general would never fight an unprepared war; that was from the art of war. the heavy collection of information conducted by ma feng was probably to rechallenge the scenario that had made the people from the futuristic theme park greatly lose face.

as the idiom goes, pick yourself up where you fell down.

the plan was to regain the face that jiang jiu had lost. in a way, there was nothing wrong with what ma feng was doing. if he was up against a normal foe, he probably would have succeeded, but the key problem was that chen ge already had a new scenario. this kind of speed where a new scenario was unlocked surprised everyone in the haunted house industry, including ma feng.

“have you finished your scouting? when you are all prepared, i will then announce the opening of a new scenario, the ghost fetus.” chen ge watched from the sidelines as the batches of ‘visitors’ entered to challenge to the school of the afterlife and were eventually wheeled out in the carts. he was feeling quite proud with himself. “i am surprised that a mere haunted house operator like myself could help raise the income of the nearby medical facilities. i am truly a stand-up citizen.”

it was a peaceful day, and it passed without much fanfare. chen ge carried his backpack and left theme park to continue to help the suicide victims complete their dying wishes. actually, during this process, chen ge had gained some small epiphanies. the bridge between life and death was uncrossable. the rules of the world were that harsh, but sometimes, a gentle person would be able to ease the harshness a little.

he busied himself until sundown. by now, zhang wenyu owed chen ge more than ten favors. his attitude toward chen ge was turning better, his tone was no longer that stiff, and occasionally, he would let his real self peak out. when he called chen ge on the phone, it began to feel more like two old friends catching up on the phone. the more chen ge got to know zhang wenyu, the more he realized how scary this red specter was. northern jiujiang and southern jiujiang used to have the presence of many scary specters, but in the end, only zhang wenyu was left watching over these two locales.

chen ge returned to new century park at around 6 pm. he had just finished getting an update from ol' zhou about the daily operation when chang gu rushed out from the underground scenario. "director chang, are you looking for me? how can i help you?"

"the film has been finished. do you want to take a look at it?" chang gu's eyes were bloodshot, and his face was as pale as a sheet of white paper. even his body had turned more transparent compared to a few days ago. it felt like the man had just been through a harrowing battle.

"you finished the movie in just a few days? that is incredible!" chen ge could not hide the shock on his face.

"be it tv series or movies, making one is not as simple as you think. based on the rules, we first have to get affiliated to a management unit who possess a movie-making permit and then apply for a movie-making request form from the local film industry unit with their name. after the request form is approved, it will be passed above. the government will issue the permit after they have gone through the request and found no problem with it. but all of that is just getting project approval. in other words, that's just the first step." chang gu's tirade had successfully confused chen ge.

"so, what did you mean earlier when you said that the film has been finished?"

"the film i am talking about is a concept film. i suppose you can see it as an online short film that contains the main points of the main plot. as long as this concept film can get enough traction on the internet, it will naturally grab the attention of related companies. we have a lot of wiggle room then. after all, all of our actors are very special.” chang gu was a member of the industry, so naturally, he understood the ins and outs better than chen ge. “but i do not wish to raise your hopes too high. this might not end up as anything. but at least everyone has enjoyed the shooting process, and they are eager to see the final result.”

“there is no living audience, but there is a bunch of eager dead viewers. i wonder if the author will accept this kind of result or not.” chen ge followed chang gu underground. they entered the temporary theater. when they arrived, the theater was already bustling with the employees.

“the film itself is not that long, but every frame is exquisite. this is the hard work of everyone combined.” after saying this concluding statement on the stage, chang gu walked down the stairs. then the lights went off, and the film started to play. the source material was called ‘summer that year, i was eighteen’. the main plot was about a female high school student walking out from the influence of depression with the aid of her family and school to welcome a new chapter of her life. this was supposed to be a high school comedy filled with positive energy, but the feeling captured by chang gu’s movie was a bit out of place. before the image even appeared, just as the background music started to play, chen ge could feel the hairs on the back of his hand stand on end.

“what do you think of this melody? it is an original by xu yin. the man is a genius. he is incredibly handsome, good at acting, and knows how to compose music and play various instruments. how i wish i had an actor like him when i was still alive,” chang gu whispered softly. his tone was gushing with admiration for xu yin.

“the melody was composed by xu yin. then, who is the singer? how come it sounds so horrifying?”

“the singer is a student at the music club from the school of the afterlife. her nickname is monitor. she’s actually quite a cute girl.”

“the melody is already scary enough, and you even found a ghost to help add to the singing?” chen ge felt that the song was scary enough to be used as the background music at the haunted house as it was.

“is it scary? i personally felt the atmosphere that it created is quite comfortable! the aim of a comedy is to make the viewers feel comfortable and at ease.” chang gu stared at the screen. the director appeared to be quite nervous.

“big brother, you are already dead. what seems comfortable for you will be a wildly different concept for the audience.”

“but even the audience thought it was not bad. alright, the show is starting. the short is about to begin.” chang gu shushed chen ge and signaled for him to focus. honestly, chang gu had done a good job. he had expressed his talent as a horror movie director to its maximum. chen ge only watched the short for about one or two minutes before he was completely sucked in by the plot.

however, the whole short was no longer focusing on the positive story of a girl with depression overcome her psychological illness. instead, it turned into a journey through the macabre and absurd where the girl accidentally found herself living inside a world of illusions. she ran, she escaped, and she went through many inexplicable scenes like alice through the looking glass before she finally woke up from her nightmare. the moment she woke up, it was also the moment where real life echoed with the nightmare. all the clues and symbolism had matched up.

at the last scene of the short, the girl looked at the version of herself in the nightmare and yanked out the rose that grew on her heart in the nightmare. the rose pricked the girl’s finger. the blood dripped from the nightmare into real life, and as if through mist, the gentle and familiar voice of the male main character could be heard. “is it painful?”

even though the ending was left open for interpretation, the story was well constructed. even chen ge was quite shocked after he finished watching it.

“it is far better than anything that i could have imagined. job well done... but wait a moment. what was the plot of the source material again?” chen ge turned to chang gu.

“the girl with depression overcoming the ordeals brought on by her illness. however, i have adopted a more visual approach to explore this whole project. high school, drama, youth, positive energy, all these elements could be found! the plot is basically left untouched, but the plot is merely moving at the same time in both real life and in the nightmare world. the nightmare world is the representation of the depressed girl's inner world, and the real world is, well, the real world. the two worlds intertwine and influence each other. it is, if i do say so myself, perfection!" chang gu took out the author's book and specially marked out the changes and description to the girl's inner turmoil.

"a normal shooting method is very difficult to express this kind of inner change, but we are different. you should understand the concept of hiding the shortcomings and highlighting the positives." chang gu had great confidence in himself.

seeing the rowdy bunch of employees who had started to celebrate, chen ge also did not know what to say. "in any case, copy the short for me. i will give it to the original author to take a look. if he gives his approval, we will directly upload it onto the internet."

after he got the copy, chen ge hurried without stopping to northern jiujiang. he saw zhang wenyu again. this red specter looked just like a normal person. there was no trace of negative energy around him. he was very different from the rest of the red specters that chen ge had encountered in the past. the author was given a private screening of chang gu's short and gave chang gu a very high review. he appeared to be saying that chang gu had managed to capture so perfectly the inner essence of his work.

"these people who are in the arts, they are impossible to understand..."

after getting the approval of the original author, chen ge rushed back to the haunted house. he had a very long discussion with chang gu before deciding to upload this concept short on many different platforms for short videos or platforms that chen ge had used in the past to promote his haunted house. the idea was to use the popularity and the number of fans that chen ge's haunted house had amassed to garner a kickstart for the short.

his personal account, the biggest website for short videos, platforms for video-sharing, and the livestreaming platform that chen ge was a part of as well as the haunted house app that director luo had designed—chen ge decided to release the short on all the platforms that he could think of. he did not care about the money that he might need to burn. as long as this short could gain popularity and attract the attention of a potential investment company, he would have completed the dying wish of the author. in just ten minutes after the short was uploaded, the views, comments, and shares started to skyrocket. this was far beyond chen ge's wildest expectation.

"what in the world? a haunted house is releasing a movie about high school comedy and romance?"

"what kind of black hole script is this?"

"the moment when the female main character confessed her love to the male main character, why did the head of the red-dressed extra in the background suddenly fall from her shoulders? what is the meaning of this? is there a symbolism behind this?"

"have you ever seen a movie where the extra committed suicide simply because a love confession had occurred between the main characters?"

"are you sure this is supposed to be a comedy? the female teacher who led the two main characters into the classroom, when she turned around, her legs disappeared! what the f*ck! what kind of comedy is this?"

"the ending is godlike! jesus, i'm still trying to get over it!"

"the main male character is so damn handsome! xu yin fan club incoming. come and join. as long as you profess to guard xu yin with your life, we will be brothers and sisters from different parents!"

seeing the data that continued to rise, both chen ge and chang gu were stunned. most of the editing and cutting was done by chang gu alone, and due to the restriction of time, there was bound to be some mistakes in some of the frames. but these mistakes taken in chen ge's haunted house would be real special effects in other horror movies, and they were special effects that needed a lot of money to simulate.

"what do we do now?"

"i feel like we are wandering further and further away from the category of comedy." before chen ge could finish what he had to say, his phone rang. seeing that it was a call from director luo, chen ge quickly picked it up. "director luo? what's wrong? is there anything i can help you with?"

"you know how to make movies?"

"it was my employees' handiwork." chen ge did not even know how to explain himself. “director lu, have you seen the short that we’ve made?”

“it was an old friend of mine who called me up to inform me of it. he said that he had noticed a video that had gone viral on the internet. the production company of the short was listed as new century park’s haunted house. he thought about it and realized, wasn’t that my theme park? so, he quickly called me to confirm it with me.” director lu’s tone had calmed down a bit.

“is that friend of yours from a film and television company?”

“in any case, he comes from an impressive background. chen ge, once your short was uploaded, its data directly steamrolled over all the shorts of the recent horror films. their website has a ranking for overall data. your short has already broken the record for their horror-type shorts and movies, and it is still setting new records as we speak!” director lu’s voice was laced with surprise and admiration. “chen ge, you have given me too many surprises.”

“it’s good thing to break records, but i have something to reinstate and reaffirm.” chen ge scratched his head. “we are actually shooting a high school teen romance. it is supposed to be a comedy filled with positive energy.”

“comedy? then why is your comedy breaking the records of the horror shorts and movies ranking?”

Chapter 1116 - You Sure You Want to Challenge the Most Difficult Scenario? 3 in 1

1116 You Sure You Want to Challenge the Most Difficult Scenario? 3 in 1

“I also do not understand why our comedy broke records for horror films, but I swear we meant to produce a comedy from the very beginning,” Chen Ge said with a bitter smile. As the saying goes, one aims for the goose but hits the gander.

The original author had died and become a ghost, but he was very satisfied with Chang Gu’s short and said that Chang Gu had captured the essence of his work. The original author was satisfied, the director was satisfied, the audience was satisfied, and the film and television company was satisfied; everyone was satisfied. As strange as Chen Ge felt this whole thing was, he had slowly learned to accept the truth. “Director Luo, the short that we uploaded is just a compressed concept short. If your friend wishes to cooperate with us further, we can sit down and talk about it.”

“I believe that is his intention. I will give you his contact information in a minute. You guys can discuss this among yourselves.”

...

“Thank you.”

“Make use of this opportunity. The popularity of a film will be very good advertisement for the theme park. If the ensuing web series can maintain this popularity, it will be far more effective than any conventional advertising method.” Director Luo ended the call. At that moment, the legend of this comedy-cum-horror flick was still spreading on the internet.

Initially, Chen Ge's intention was to use the haunted house's popularity to give the short some traction, trying to attract one or two investment companies, but to his shock and surprise, in just a few hours, the popularity of the short started to overwhelm the popularity of the haunted house. Many viewers who had never been interested in the haunted house and horror games became interested in it. After all, it was rare for a haunted house to have the ability to produce a comedy short.

A comedy produced by a haunted house even became a gag on the internet. The many 'unintentional' takes became instant classics and were soon included in the educational syllabus for horror movie production. This kind of accidental horror caused the viewers to have a hard time sleeping at night. The more they thought about it, the more uncomfortable they felt. As a result, more and more people started to discuss this 'comedy'.

The source material was first a good one. The description of the clues and the psychological changes of the main characters were well done and to the point. Chang Gu's direction and production were uniquely perfect as well, and the unilateral plotlines of both the real world and the nightmare world could elicit various symbolic readings of the analogies and metaphors. To conclude, this web short produced by Chen Ge's haunted house exploded on the internet, and many users anticipated the sequel.

Even though he had not gotten a wink of sleep that night, Chen Ge was still quite energetic. He and Chang Gu rotated through the various platforms. The data for the short for all platforms was still continuing to rise. The employees at the haunted house were very excited as well. Even though they still did not quite understand how popular this short was, they were satisfied and very happy when they saw themselves appear on the screen. The employees chatted among themselves, citing each of their cameos. Chen Ge, who overheard them, almost had a heart attack. Many employees came to join the shoot during the recording process. They used multiple methods to enter the shot, methods that one could not imagine—for example, a floating head inside a glass of water, a small shadow under the table, a severed hand that floated behind the door, and so on.

One would miss these details unless one took a close look at the short. As the popularity on the internet continued to increase, to prevent an unnecessary exposure, Chen Ge decided to directly and openly admit that the haunted house had hidden one hundred easter eggs in the short and challenged the viewers to find them all. With the popularity at an all-time high, Chen Ge decided to stop ‘pretending’ and told the viewers directly that all the extremely scary details and frames that they saw were Easter Eggs that were purposely left in by the haunted house. That statement attracted yet another batch of fresh viewers.

“This has become viral too suddenly. I am totally not prepared for it.” Chen Ge saw his mailbox that was exploding with messages at the back end of the platform. Some people planned to group up and visit the set, and some planned to enter a haunted house for the first time tomorrow. The sole reason was to see the main male character in person. There was even a talent agency that dropped Chen Ge a message stating their intention of offering the Pen Spirit a contract. There were so many messages that Chen Ge could not run through all of them. He glanced at the sky that was getting bright, and he put the phone away. “Yet another sleepless night.”

He got a quick wink and hurried to get up from bed to prepare for work. Today, Xu Wan and Xiao Gu and the rest came early. Once they saw Chen Ge, they rushed over immediately. That was especially so for Xiao Gu; he was holding the phone and stammered nervously, “Boss! Did we really produce this video? When I saw the video on my recommended list last night, I was stunned beyond words.”

“Yes, it was indeed produced by our haunted house.”

“When did you have the time to do something like this? This is too impressive!”

“What do you think I was doing every night not sleeping for the past few days? To produce this film, I have exhausted so much stamina and a lot of time, but thankfully, from the result, the sacrifice was worth it.” Chen Ge stopped answering Xiao Gu’s questions because he did not know how to spin the story anymore. He ushered his workers into the dressing room to help them with the make-up and ordered them to prepare to welcome the day’s visitors.

At 9 am, New Century Park opened for business. The visitors rushed into the gates. When they were queuing up, the comedy made by the haunted house became the central topic. Two groups of people who did not know each other would be able to engage in titillating conversation because of it.

“The number of visitors today is even greater than the previous days. What is going on?” Uncle Xu was worried that there might be a problem, so he hurried to find Chen Ge.

“Uncle, you do not use the internet much, do you? We uploaded yet another advertisement last night. The effect is not bad.” Chen Ge was outside the haunted house helping with the ticket sales. Seeing the visitors coming to visit his haunted house, joy emerged sincerely from his heart. However, he made sure that he was not blinded by this joy. While he was selling the tickets, he was paying close attention to potential troublemakers among the crowd.

The number of visitors coming to challenge the four-star scenario, School of the Afterlife, had tripled or even quadrupled. The scenario could hold at most twenty people at the same time, and that day, almost every session was full. This had naturally attracted Chen Ge’s attention. The visitors who were there because of the internet short were mostly newcomers to the theme park, so they needed to start their challenge at one-star scenarios. Therefore, most of the visitors who could challenge the School of the Afterlife would be experienced visitors.

There was nothing wrong with this in itself, but Chen Ge noticed that there was a specific batch of people who kept repeating the process of buying the tickets to challenge the same four-star scenario, the School of the Afterlife. It appeared like they would not stop until they had cleared this scenario. After paying a heavy price of their sanity, money, and physique, this batch of people managed to explore about seventy percent of the scenario, but of course, they were still far away from clearing the actual scenario.

To protect the other innocent visitors, Chen Ge pulled the few most difficult missions out from the drawing box, missions like finding all thirteen oil paintings, searching for the club president of the Red Specter’s Club, exposing the secrets behind the old headmaster’s disappearance, and so on. These missions were specifically left for the troublemakers. Normal visitors would almost never have the chance to draw these certain-death mission.

These people got missions that ranged from simple to medium difficulty, but even so, their mental tenacity was still seriously tested. After the last of them fainted, there would be members among the visitor group who escorted them out. It was clear from Chen Ge’s perspective that this was a group of people who were attempting to tackle his haunted house, but they had seriously underestimated the difficulty of Chen Ge’s haunted house.

After this group of people who kept challenging the School of the Afterlife left, the same afternoon, they were replaced by another group of people. They appeared to be sharing the same information. The map and the location of the scare points that had been collected by the previous batch using their 'lives' provided a great amount of help to the latter group. This batch of strange visitors had attracted the attention of the employees as well. Ol' Zhou even came over to Chen Ge to ask whether they should increase the difficulty of the scenario.

Chen Ge directly rejected Ol' Zhou's suggestion. He told Ol' Zhou that only by dangling the possibility of clearing the scenario before the players would they continue to play the game. It was a simple theory of the donkey and the carrot. But that was just a front taken by Chen Ge. What he was really thinking was that he would let this group of people try the School of the Afterlife again and again until they let their guard down, and then he would surprise them with the announcement of the new scenario, the ghost fetus.

The haunted house began its operation at 9 am and closed for the day at 6 pm. Throughout this period, the scenario for the School of the Afterlife was never empty even for a minute. Even though the group of people had thrown their lives into challenging the scenario, they ultimately failed to clear it. But they appeared to have managed to compile the full map of the school's eastern and western campus. With the map in mind and a clear marking of the various scare points' locations, as long as they were not that unlucky to draw any mission related to the hidden scenario, clearing the scenario was only a matter of time. Dusk had already fallen. After the visitors left, Chen Ge sat on the steps of the haunted house alone.

"The popularity of the comedy produced by the haunted house is still climbing, and this is just a conceptual short. If we really manage to produce a sequential web series, not only the comedy itself, the film set at New Century Park will become famous through it as well. Perhaps Ma Feng has sensed fear from this, which is why he's so desperate to clear my scenario, to stifle the haunted house's wave of popularity." Chen Ge studied the numbers on the income ledger, and the corner of his lips could not help but curve upward.

The School of the Afterlife could fit twenty people at the same time, and a session would take around forty minutes, but most of the time, rarely could the visitors hold on until the full forty minutes, so in reality, a real one session would last around thirty minutes. The ticket price per person was forty RMB, so one session could earn Chen Ge eight hundred RMB, and in that day alone, the scenario of the School of the Afterlife had been used twenty times. Normally, this kind of four-star scenario was rarely challenged. In fact, just finding people to fill up a group was hard enough. Most of the income normally came from the lower star scenarios, and these higher difficulty scenarios were prepared for the expert haunted house aficionados. Compared to using them as a money-making machine, they were more of a symbolic presence to Chen Ge's haunted house.

"I sure hope this gang of people will return tomorrow." After giving the place a quick clean, Chen Ge carried his backpack and arrived at the mannequin studio. He paid the boss and then directly chased the boss out of the place. He turned to lock the door and quickly summoned out his ghost employees and had them help him produce the mannequins of the monsters from the black fog. They worked until dawn. Chen Ge then called Tang Jun to drive Bus 104 over to transport all the manufactured black fog monsters back to the haunted house.

When Chen Ge returned to the haunted house, he was told that Chang Gu had been hit by new inspiration, and he was prepared to shoot a new short. That did not bother Chen Ge. The latter summoned some of the employees who were not involved in the shooting to help him decorate the ghost fetus' scenario. After inspecting the scenario several times, Chen Ge finally left the scenario after making sure that there were no hidden threats lying around the scenario at around 4 am.

"Now that the ghost fetus' scenario can open for visitation any time, I wonder which batch of visitor will be so lucky." After three hours of sleep, Chen Ge was woken by the alarm that he had set. He sat and observed the rising sun and stretched lazily. "If only life could continue like this."

After taking a cold shower, Chen Ge changed his clothes and opened the gates of the haunted house. The theme park opened punctually at 9 am. The visitors entered the park, and the place was instantly filled up by the noise and ruckus of the crowd. A long queue had already been formed at the haunted house. Some of the old players had run to the resting hall to occupy a seat and found their familiar buddies to start an intense discussion on the latest guide that they had come up with. Ever since Chen Ge obtained the black phone, the haunted house had accompanied these visitors for quite some time. More and more people had fallen in love with this place, and the haunted house had left lasting marks on their lives. Many of their bittersweet memories could be traced back to this theme park.

Most of people's lives were flat and uninteresting, but at Chen Ge's haunted house, they were given a glimpse into a different version of life. Group after group of visitors was welcomed into the haunted house, but to Chen Ge's surprise, the batch of people who repeated the challenge of School of the Afterlife the day before did not show up again. Just as Chen Ge was wandering whether they had already given up, a shocked scream came from the resting hall.

"What is going on?" Chen Ge was quick to walk over. Many old visitors recognized him so when they saw the boss came over. They automatically opened a path for him to walk through.

"Boss Chen! Quick, you have to take a look at our haunted house's app. Someone has started a thread saying that they want to challenge and clear our haunted House's most difficult scenario. It is the thread with the most replies and views!" A student from Jiujiang Medical University ran over to Chen Ge, holding his phone out to show the thread. There was indeed a new thread that appeared inside the app. It was commented on by a fifty-cent army, and that made it so that the thread would always remain at the top of the posts.

The content of the thread itself was incredibly incendiary. First, they started with the admission that Chen Ge's haunted house was scary, but it was not as scary as many people made it out to be. It was all an exaggeration. The thread stated that most of the visitors had been lied to and misdirected. That was a quintessential start for a drama post. In essence, it said that Chen Ge's haunted house was scary, but it did not scare them. Even though they had not visited the place themselves, that was how they felt.

The thread gained support from many other haunted house owners in the business. They helped to analyze Chen Ge's haunted house from many different angles, and they came up with the same conclusion. Chen Ge's haunted house did not live up to its name; it only had twenty percent real ability and eighty percent hype and sensationalism.

The fact that Chen Ge's haunted house enjoyed such high popularity was a disrespect to those who ran their business with heart and hard work. It was unfair to them, so they were going to join forces to expose Chen Ge and his haunted house to the public. The whole thread was written like a real call to arms, and it indeed had its effect of getting one's blood boiling, but then if one just thought about it, most of those people had not even visited Chen Ge's haunted house before, so how did they come to this absurd conclusion? Via their super powerful imagination?

The thread not only appeared on the haunted house app, but it had popped up at the same time on most other platforms. A fifty cent army had been hired to repeatedly comment and maintain the multiple threads' popularity and relevance. Interestingly enough, the platforms where these threads mushroomed were exactly the platforms where Chen Ge's haunted house's fans were most active. Once the threads were posted, they garnered various sarcastic responses and caustic replies. After all, the last person who made this kind of claim was still lying in the hospital.

However, it was clear that whoever was behind this was well prepared. They did not respond to the fans' mocking words. They seemed to be biding their time to prove the fans wrong. They had done all the preparation that they could, and that was the confidence behind their courage to dare to post inflammatory posts like these at platforms where Chen Ge's haunted house's fans were most active. Their aim was for those who supported Chen Ge's haunted house to see their thread and then clear the haunted house's most difficult scenario before these people's eyes. That way, they would have won back their face, they would have proven themselves right, and they would have broken the legendary record of no one being able to clear Chen Ge's haunted house.

When he saw all that set up, the name 'Ma Feng' instantly floated up in Chen Ge's mind. This man's method of doing things was definitely different from Jiang Jiu's. He was swift, fast, accurate, and deadly. All the cards had been laid on the table, and when given an opening, he would strike for the jugular.

"He should have prepared for a long time." Just as Chen Ge finished reading the thread, another problem started outside the haunted house. Nine visitors blocked the entrance of the door. They refused to queue up like the rest of the visitors and requested to see Chen Ge. Of the nine visitors, there were both males and females. They were dressed differently and had different accents. They appeared to come from different parts of the country, but Chen Ge did manage to recognize two of them.

One of them was called Shang Guan Qing Hong, the boss of the haunted house at Xin Hai; the other was Qin Guang, the streamer who was the first to compete with Chen Ge on the livestreaming platform. When he saw the two of them, Chen Ge felt quite happy to see their familiar faces. He walked out from the resting hall to welcome them. "Long time no see, guys. I am quite busy at theme park, so I did not have the time to go to the hospital to visit you. I am so sorry."

Just the sound of Chen Ge's voice was enough to make Qin Guang grit his teeth in anger. He was about to fire something back when he was held back by Shang Guan Qing Hong from the side.

"Boss Chen, you are being too kind. Today, we just wanted to visit your haunted house. There is no problem with that, right?" Shang Guan Qing Hong had once been a victim of Chen Ge's sharp tongue, so he tried to not give Chen Ge any chance to speak to rope them into more traps. "I have the top designers and creators of many haunted houses from all over the country with me. We are all very curious about your haunted house. We wish to see what kind of haunted house is hailed as the scariest haunted house in the whole country."

"I would not say my haunted house is the scariest in the country, but a mutual exchange within the industry is a good thing. We can always learn from each other." Chen Ge was cautious with his words, using the term exchange. He had memorized the faces of these few visitors. "It is fine that you wish to challenge the scenario, but I have a rule at my haunted house. All visitors have to start their challenge from one-star scenario, and then after clearing that, you can only challenge the two-star scenario. If you wish to challenge the most difficult four-star scenario, you will have to clear the previous scenarios first."

"Challenge? Where does your confidence come from? We already told you we are here to visit, not to challenge. We give an inch and you take a mile?" A young man who was fashionably dressed gave Chen Ge a side eye. "Unlike you, the rest of us do not have the time to play with you."

"The rules that I have set are for the visitors' own good. Only by slowly increasing the visitors' threshold for fear can one prevent the occurrence of accidents to the maximum degree." Chen Ge was trying hard to 'persuade' them, but this persuasion sounded like Chen Ge had no confidence in the group.

"That won't be necessary. The reason we are here today is to visit the most difficult scenario that you have. We just want to see what is so special about this haunted house that is so popular on the internet." This time, it was a man who was wearing a pair of sunglasses who spoke. More and more visitors started to gather at the entrance of the haunted house. Some of them even took out their phones to start recording.

Hearing what the man with the sunglasses had to say, Chen Ge uttered with plain difficulty on his face. "But that is against the rules..."

“Rules are manmade. We came from so far not to visit a one-star scenario. We are all experienced members of this industry. Don’t use the tricks that you apply on your visitors to trick us. We are not so easily fooled,” the man in the sunglasses grouched with impatience. He appeared to be melting under the sun, and he shifted uncomfortably.

“Boss Chen, is it because you lack confidence that you have been trying to find excuse to deny us entry?” The man who was fashionably dressed smiled. “Do not worry, we will be sure to save some face for you.”

Since the exchange had reached this point, it was unsuitable for Chen Ge to continue to say no anymore. He looked around him, and he realized that many of visitors were armed with the camera phones and were recording their exchange. Some of them were innocent visitors who were attracted by this drama, but Chen Ge believed that part of them were people sent over by the futuristic theme park because Chen Ge realized that there was a live update of their exchange on the haunted house app and the many other platforms, and the comments were all extremely slanderous toward Chen Ge and his haunted house. It felt as if someone was purposely leading the wind of the conversation.

“Since you people insist on challenging my most difficult scenario, I have no choice.” Chen Ge turned to face the cameras. “I will need everyone here to be my witness. I have already tried to persuade them. They have insisted on challenging the most difficult scenario.”

“You sure know how to spin a yarn. Are you going to let us in or not? To visit your cr*ppy haunted house, we need to be subjected to a lecture from you, huh? This is unbelievable!” The person who spoke was a woman with an explosive temper. There was a tattoo of a black skull running down her arm. She looked like a person one would not wish to cross at any time.

“I am doing this for you own good.” Chen Ge stood before the nine people. “I need to check with all of you one last time—do you really insist on challenging the most difficult scenario at my haunted house?”

“Yes, we do! Stop wasting our time!” The nine visitors urged him on. They appeared to be more anxious than Chen Ge. It was like they could not wait to get this started.

“Okay!” Chen Ge nodded in agreement, and then his tone suddenly changed as he turned to all the phone cameras and said loudly. “Since we are all in the same haunted house industry, a pure visitation is so boring, right? So, how about we add a bet on top of it? If you successfully clear the most difficult scenario that I have at my haunted house, I will add a statement on all of my social accounts and even order a custom banner to hang over this haunted house’s entrance that my own haunted house is not as scary as the rest of yours, and I will admit that most of the popularity of my haunted house came from sensationalism and produced hype.”

Chen Ge’s haunted house was incredibly popular on the internet. If Chen Ge did something like that, it could really bring some serious income to the other business owners. This caused the other owners to be attracted by Chen Ge’s offer of a bet. Only Shang Guan Qing Hong felt that something was not right, but before he could say anything, the other eight had already agreed to take Chen Ge up on his challenge.

“Do not hurry to agree so soon. Because if you lose, you have to hang a banner of my haunted house’s name over the entrance of your own haunted house and admit that my haunted house does live up to its name on the internet.” Chen Ge looked at the gang of people with a smile on his face. The few communicated among themselves for a while. They had the map of the School of the Afterlife and all the scare points in their possession. Other than that, they had also spent the whole previous day looking over the videos that had been secretly taken in the scenario. They had gotten used to the scary atmosphere. From how they saw it, there was nothing stopping them from clearing this scenario.

“We agree. That is a very fair bet.”

“All of you are respected members of the industry from big cities. I believe you will not go back on your words, right?” The corners of Chen Ge’s lips curled up into a smile. He turned to face all the cameras and shouted at the top of his lungs, “Come on in then. Follow me. You are going to challenge the four-star scenario—ghost fetus! Inside the deepest part of the black fog, there are nine children waiting for you.”

“Ghost fetus?” Shang Guang Qing Hong and someone inside the group shared a look. They wanted to make sure that they had not heard wrong. That was indeed what Chen Ge had said, right?

Chapter 1117 - I“ve Never Believed in the Supernatural 2 in 1

Chapter 1117 I've Never Believed in the Supernatural 2 in 1

"is ghost fetus another name for the school of the afterlife?" shang guan qing hong quietly asked the teammate beside him. the latter was equally confused. "probably. a scenario the size of the school of the afterlife takes more than a year to design and build. the fact that their haunted house has one of them is already quite impressive."

"you have a point there. it appears to be just a name change."

"how come i do not feel like that is the case? i feel like we've been tricked." shang guan qing hong had interacted with chen ge before, so he knew what kind of person chen ge was. with chen ge's personality, he would never cave under pressure and admit defeat so easily. when chen ge's tone changed earlier, shang guan qing hong had noticed a bad feeling rising in his heart.

...

"it is too late to say anything now. we have already given the man our promise. there is no way we can back out now. i am not going to lose this face." the man with the sunglasses overheard the conversation between shang guan qing hong and the other person. he opened his mouth to say, "do not worry. even if this ghost fetus is a different scenario, it won't affect us that much. all of us have been in this business for more than half a century; we already know everything there is to know about the ins and outs of the business. it is easy for him to scare the normal visitors, but to wish to use the same tricks on us, it is almost impossible."

the man with the sunglasses was very confident. he appeared to be one of the top haunted house designers in the country. even though chen ge did not know him, he appeared to be well respected among the other members within the business. once the man in the sunglasses said his piece, the others were quick to nod along. the nine visitors followed behind chen ge to uncle xu.

"uncle, i need nine tickets to the ghost fetus scenario." chen ge's request had cornered uncle xu. after all, the experienced ticket seller had not even heard of this ghost fetus scenario before, but he knew it was unwise to point that out before the crowd, so he just randomly printed nine general tickets for shang guan qing hong's group.

the surrounding visitors also heard about the news of the ghost fetus scenario for the first time. a wave of excitement travelled through the crowd. many of the experienced visitors who were sitting at the resting hall rushed out to look.

"the four-star scenario 'ghost fetus' will be open to the public for the first time today! so, there is a fifty percent ticket discount promotion! those are interested shouldn't let this opportunity go! the first trial of a new scenario is the most exciting. it is like watching the livestream of a sports game. you never know what will happen the next second. this kind of facing the unknown is the most exciting feeling there is!"

once chen ge said that, shang guan qing hong's face turned green immediately. now that he had confirmed that ghost fetus and school of the afterlife were two different scenarios, it meant that the information that they had collected beforehand had all been rendered useless. he tried his best to control the expression on his face. shang quan qing hong tried to capture the attention of another member in this team, but the latter was stunned beyond belief, unable to give shang quan qing hong any attention.

"a brand-new scenario, an extreme experience, all that for just a mere twenty rmb, what are you guys hesitating for?"

the nine visitors all knew each other, so it was inconvenient for chen ge to stuff his own employees into their ranks. therefore, he needed more visitors to fill up the visiting team. whenever chen ge went through such promotional spiel, the frequent visitors at the haunted house would all instinctually take a step back. they would get as far away from chen ge as they could.

the opening of a new scenario would always capture a few visitors to use as 'sacrifices'. the experienced visitors quickly retreated. they were very familiar with chen ge's agenda. other haunted houses giving a discount might be to celebrate some kind of holiday or anniversary, but whenever chen ge's haunted house gave a discount, it could only mean that something bad was about to happen. everyone had learned their lesson. no one stood out to answer chen ge's call. just as chen ge was about to give up, a voice suddenly travelled through the crowd.

"haven't you guys been skipping class to come here to play? how come all of you are as silent as a mouse at a moment like this?" a middle-aged man wearing a pair of glasses walked out from the crowd. "students of forensic science skipping classes to come to a haunted house to play every day and still not being able to clear the game. in a way, you students are the worst batch that i have ever taught."

"mr. wang, shh! now is not the time to speak. do not let boss chen make a target out of you." the students standing beside the middle-aged man quickly spoke. one of them was very familiar; it was one of chen ge's oldest friends.

"he san, i heard you were the first to come to this haunted house. you alone have dragged all of your seniors down into your bad habits, and that has raised the university's truancy rate by three hundred percent. when we return, we will need to have a good sit down and talk about this." the middle-aged man was very stern. he san did not even dare raise his head during the lecture.

"he san! long time no see!" chen ge was troubled over the lack of volunteers, so when he saw the students from jiujiang medical university, it was like he had just seen his long-lost relatives. he ran over to them happily. "is this your lecturer? how shall i refer to you, sir?"

"my surname is wang. i am a senior lecturer at jiujiang medical university." the students beside him kept making faces at mr. wang, but mr. wang ignored all of them. "my students often skip class to come to your theme park to play after classes and even during classes. they only talk about how to clear your scenarios. their parents have paid for their tuition, and the country has given them such a conducive education environment. is that for them to think about how to clear a haunted house day in and day out?"

mr. wang was a very stern but responsible lecturer. that could be seen from the fact that he had personally purchased the ticket to come to the theme park to capture the students who had skipped class by himself. furthermore, this lecturer had probably been observing this for quite some time already because once he showed up, he managed to capture so many of his students in the act.

"all work and no play makes jack a dull boy. skipping class to come to a theme park is something wrong, but with a proper time management, a visit to a haunted house can help a student greatly release their stress. it is a very good method to relax after a long day of studying.” chen ge did not mind the expression of the other visitors around them, and he continued to speak in a serious and open tone. “how about this, mr. wang? you should give it a try in person. after that experience, perhaps you will be able to understand why your students have such passion for my haunted house. after all, my haunted house is distinctively unique from other haunted houses. it is hidden with many puzzles and unsolved cases. during the visitation process, the visitors can improve their observation, analysis and logical thinking abilities.”

“sir! you really have to think about this!” he san quickly grabbed mr. wang by his arm. “a four-star scenario is very scary. it is not a joke!”

“do you have such little faith in your lecturer?” mr. wang stared harshly at he san. “i have participated in many heavy crime investigations. i only retired from the front line two years ago. what kind of gory and bloody crime scene have i not seen before in my career?”

the innocent he san felt wronged. “sir...”

“a real crime scene is one hundred times scarier than a scenario made up inside a haunted house. when you are there in person, you can sense the presence of the lives that once occupied the space. the smell, the wounds, any traces could be hiding a true horror.” mr. wang shook his head. “when you graduate and become a qualified coroner, you will naturally understand these things. by then, you will know that these so-called haunted houses can only bring you temporarily shocks, but they are far from being actual terrors.”

“well said, i agree with that whole-heartedly.” chen ge finally understood the confidence behind mr. wang. this mr. wang was not a normal lecturer; he was a coroner who had just retired from the front line two years ago. he had actual experience dealing with murders and homicides under his belt. unfortunately, it was because mr. wang had retired from the front line two years ago that he had not heard of the record where chen ge had helped the law enforcement solve so many actual cases in the past few months. the number of heavy crimes already could not be counted. just considering super heavy and serious crimes, there were already quite a few. chen ge admired people like mr. wang who had actual experience to back up his words. of course, he also wished that he could undo the prejudice that mr. wang had toward his haunted house. “mr. wang, ticket sales are this way.”

“there has to be a reason why your haunted house enjoys such high popularity on the internet. i am here today not to ruin your reputation. i just want to instill a lesson in my students. nowadays, the kids are too used to not taking things seriously, but i need to make them understand that the occupation of a coroner is a very serious one.” after saying that, mr. wang grabbed the two students closest to him and walked ahead. “come on, we will experience this today. actually, after listening to you people doing research about this place day in and day out, i am quite curious about it.”

mr. wang was surprisingly strong. when he san felt his body being pulled along, he took a moment to realize and snapped out of it. “we’re entering the haunted house together with you, sir? what the f*ck!”

“how could you curse before your teacher?” chen ge chided he san with a smile. he was reminded of the first time he encountered he san. that day, he san had come to visit his haunted house with gao ru xue.

“no, wait! sir! wait a minute!” not only he san, the other student from jiujiang medical university who was closest to mr. wang failed to escape, and he was half dragged and half pulled to the ticket sales booth.

“three tickets to the ghost fetus scenario, please.” mr. wang was quick and efficient. after he purchased the students, he dragged the students through the gates of the haunted house.

“this lecturer is not as brash as he seems. he purposely grabbed he san and the other student, who are already familiar with the rules of the haunted house, to prevent accidents from happening.” after chen ge saw the other people from jiujiang medical university retreat back into the crowd, he turned to lead the other nine visitors into the haunted house. “please sign the disclaimer forms first. i will go out and see if there are any other visitors who are willing to join. it costs quite a bit to open a four-star scenario to the public, so i wish to fill up twenty people in a team before we start.”

moments later, chen ge came back with three new visitors. one of them was xiao sun, and the other two were a couple from xin hai. the couple appeared to have just finished an argument. in the heat of argument, the girl grabbed the man and registered to join. chen ge initially wanted to reject them, but to his surprise, he realized that there was a heavy air of yin energy around the man. he suspected that this was a unique visitor, so in the end, he did not stop them. after all fifteen visitors had signed the disclaimers, chen ge put the forms neatly away and then started to explain the background of the ghost fetus scenario and the rules of the game to them.

“even though most of you are experienced members of this industry, there are certain things that i need to warn you about.” after signing the disclaimer, chen ge’s tone and expression changed. it was as if he had changed into a different person compared to the smiling man who had welcomed them warmly outside the haunted house. at this moment, he looked quite scary. “this ghost fetus scenario is different from any of the haunted house scenarios that you have ever designed or visited. you will meet life threatening danger inside there, but you might run into some very interesting events.”

“why is your scenario called ghost fetus?” the lights inside the haunted house were dim, but the man with the sunglasses did not appear like he was about to remove the glasses.

“there was once a shadow who wanted to become human. he yearned for bliss, but during the process of chasing after bliss, he ran into many twisted and crazy monsters who left scars and incorrect values in him. in the end, he turned into a ghost fetus that was feared by everyone. you will soon experience his slow process of descending into the dark abyss. i hope you will treat every choice that you face seriously because every choice that you make will greatly influence the plot that will come in the future.” chen ge heard a grunt of impatience coming from the team, so he quickly wrapped things up. “the time limit is one hour. you need to find a rag doll inside the ghost fetus’ scenario.”

chen ge took out two pictures that he had taken beforehand and handed them separately to mr. wang and shang guan qing hong. “this rag doll has been severed into many parts by a doctor. you only need to find all the broken pieces within an hour and piece them together to clear the scenario!”

“the goal is that simple?” the man who was fashionably dressed asked to confirm.

“if you ever want to give up, just scream loudly for them. other than that, i have to give you one last piece of advice. do not have any physical contact with anyone inside the haunted house, including your teammates.” chen ge led the fifteen visitors down the steps into the underground scenario. “take good care of the pictures and pay attention to the people around you. most importantly, do not wander off on your own.”

chen ge gave the visitors a lot of warnings. he was being sincere; he did not want anything bad to happen to these people. after all, the memory of the demon god lingered throughout the ghost fetus’ scenario. opening the steel door that headed underground, the ambient temperature dropped immediately. chill winds rushed out from the ground, and among the visitors, three of their expressions changed immediately.

one of them was the man from xin hai, the one who had heavy yin energy on him. the second one was the woman with the black skull tattoo on her arm. she touched her earring and opened her lips as if to say something, but in the end, she quieted down again. the woman with an explosive temper suddenly became curiously quiet. the last one was mr. wang. his brows were heavily creased together, and the bridge of his nose twitched like he could smell something special in the air.

“stick close to me.” chen ge led them underground. they walked past the first floor and then headed to their destination, the underground second floor. another black iron door appeared before them. this door was embedded into the ground like it had grown out from the walls. it was giving off a fainted disinfectant smell.

“everything you need to know about the ghost fetus is behind this door.” chen ge used quite some strength before he managed to push the heavy door open. his eyes narrowed as he studied all the visitors coldly. “you can go in now. the timer will start once this door closes.”

standing outside the iron door, the visitors all stopped at the same spot as if they had discussed this earlier. no one appeared to wish to make the first step. after some time, the man with the sunglasses took off his glass. he coughed several times and grabbed another person to walk past the door. the other visitors moved to follow. after they had all walked in, chen ge stayed to look at them. his eyes were like he was looking at a group of walking corpses, and the corners of his lips curled upward. “welcome to the four-star scenario, ghost fetus. i hope you enjoy yourselves.”

bang!

the heavy black iron door was slammed shut. the chains grinded against the rusted railings, and the iron door was locked tight.

“i think it’s better if i follow behind them. after all, i am one of the nine chosen children.” chen ge returned to the dressing room to touch up his make-up and then went to the specter’s changing room to pick up a costume. after he was ready, chen ge went to survey the other scenarios and called over some of the employees who were free. “now, there should be no problem already.”

...

the black iron door closed heavily. none of the visitors wandered away from the team. the haunted house was a completely different world aboveground and belowground. it was as if before this group of people was ready, they were kicked down from heaven into hell.

“buildings that are completely unfamiliar, the video information did not provide us with any details related to this scenario at all.” shang guan qing hong’s scalp was numb. he leaned against the iron door, and it felt like the air that entered his lungs even chilled his organs. “we have worked together to plan this for a whole month and wasted so much money to have people collect information for us, but in the end, we were ushered into a new scenario that is completely unknown to us.”

for some reason, shang guan qing hong was suddenly reminded of this quote from zhu ge liang’s memorial on sending out the troop—’the late sovereign was taken from us while his life’s work, the restoration of the han, remained unfinished.’

“snap out of it. as the initiator of this proposal, you cannot give up now.” the man who had been exchanging glances with shang guan qing hong before they entered the haunted house whispered to him.

“director ma, you have no idea how scary the owner of this haunted house is. the man is evil incarnate!” shang guan qing hong also lowered his voice to a whisper. he did not want to lower the group’s morale.

“i personally have never believed in the supernatural because i only believe in myself.” the man patted shang guan qing hong on his shoulder. his gaze was as sharp as a knife.

Chapter 1118 - A Conclusion That Overturned My Entire Understanding of This World 2
in 1

Chapter 1118 A Conclusion That Overturned My Entire Understanding of This World 2 in 1

“director ma, i know you don’t believe in these things, but certain things are truly impossible to explain via scientific means.” shang guan qing hong’s face was stretched into a mirthless mask. he really was no in mood to smile.

“since we are already here, we shall take things as they come. we should always remain calm whenever we run into something serious. other than that, stop calling me director ma. you can just refer to me as brother ma.” this was the man’s first time entering such an eerie scenario, but he was able to maintain his composure. this proved that he was indeed better than others. at least in terms of mental strength and stability, he was already stronger than most normal visitors.

“now, i have a very bad feeling about this. director ma, how about we come back another day? today, we’ve obviously been tricked by that chen fellow. there must be many unknown traps laid in this scenario. i do not mind it myself, but you can’t get injured in here!” shang guan qing hong looked at the dark and creepy buildings around him, and his legs refused to take a single step forward.

...

“i do not believe that a visit to a haunted house can injure someone. furthermore, if you see it from another perspective, if i am really found injured inside his haunted house, wouldn’t that be perfect as well? i can use that to bring his haunted house down.” the man raised his arm. “there are many ways to bring down a haunted house. to me, open competition is the stupidest way to do it.”

“you have other plan in mind?”

“you do not need worry yourself about that. today, i came in person to see what is so impressive about a haunted house that could make jiang jiu stumble so hard. at the same time, i want to let the other people at the company know that i can do what jiang jiu cannot do, and what jiang jiu can do, i can do much better.” the man had ability to back up his words. whenever he spoke, there was a confident and sharp air that surrounded him. shang guan qing hong realized that his persuasion had fallen on deaf ears. he did not have the face to surrender now, so all he could do was ignore the bad feeling in his heart and follow the rest deeper into the scenario.

“if a perfect score is ten marks, given the creation of the atmosphere, the set design, and the combination of the lighting and sound effects, i will give it 8.5 marks.” the man who was fashionably dressed touched the wall and felt the sensation that came from the tip of his fingers. “the set pieces feel very real, like they have been moved from an actual haunted site. it is not completely based on luck that this haunted house was able to gain its massive popularity. there is actual backing behind it.”

the man was mean to others, but when it came to his professional field, he was rather fair and honest.

“but other than the authenticity, i cannot see any other positive points about this place.” the man with the sunglasses crossed his arms before his chest. he continued with more than a hint of derision. “the story background is so unspecified. the visitors do not have a fixed role, so they are unable to emerge themselves into the plot fully. this kind of haunted house enjoys so much praise on the internet? i do not believe one bit that he did not hire a fifty cent army to bulk up his positive reviews.”

“it is your freedom not to believe it. just remember what you said now when you cry for mercy.” he san was getting annoyed by the man in the sunglasses. he knew how scary a four-star scenario was. after being forcibly dragged in there by mr. wang, he was in a very bad mood.

“we are all professionals in this industry. his little tricks might work on normal visitors like you guys, but they will never work on professionals like us.” the man with the sunglasses took out his phone and searched for chen ge’s haunted house on the general review website. “of all the visitors that purchased the tickets, about ninety-seven percent of them thought their experience was horrifying, and ninety-five percent gave it a very high review. do you think that is possible?”

“that is indeed impossible.” he san shook his head. “i think one hundred percent of the visitors would have thought this place is scary if they’d really visited it. that three percent are probably the real fifty cent army hired by other members within the industry to bring down boss chen's overall rating."

"haha." the man with the sunglasses said caustically, "i will let you in on a real industry statistic. even a top haunted house will not make sure that every visitor that has gone through its doors feels fear, so normal data will be around seventy-five percent. the fact that this haunted house's statistics are so high is obvious proof that he has hired a fifty cent army to fluff up his marks. sometimes, i find it ridiculously funny that a haunted house that depends on sensationalism and a fifty cent army to get so popular online was hailed by so many idiots as the scariest haunted house in the country. if that is not the joke of the century, what is?"

"even if you are a professional in the industry, and even if you have the real statistics, i still do not understand how that gives you the right to slander someone else's haunted house like this." the other student from jiujiang medical university had spoken. normally, they were tortured enough by chen ge's haunted house, but if there was someone who dared mock chen ge's haunted house, they would be the first to jump out to defend it.

"because my name is fu bole."

the man with the sunglasses appeared to be very famous in the industry, but it was clear that the students from jiujiang medical university had never heard this name before.

"why should i care what your name is? am i supposed to know you?"

"that is why i say you visitors are innocent, like pieces of white paper. have you heard of the ling family? the biggest chain of haunted houses in the country. we have in total thirty branches, and i am the ling family's main designer." the man with the sunglasses pointed at the people around him. "every single one of us here is more experienced and accomplished than that chen ge fellow. how long has he been in the business? if you really want to talk about it, we are all his seniors."

the man wearing the sunglasses introduced the others in his group one by one. the man who was fashionably dressed was called wei chaochao. he was a designer for the aotsuka family's haunted house from japan. the woman with the skull tattoo was nicknamed sister snake. she was involved in the design projects of many large-scale, international haunted houses. when she returned to the country, she opened an escape room whose good reviews were just second to chen ge's haunted house—bewitched.

the other two fatties were twin brothers. the elder one was called liang er, and the younger brother was liang san. according to rumors, they had an elder brother who died young. a fortune teller had purposely persuaded their mother to name them liang er and liang san to prevent the eldest son from coming back to grab them as scapegoats. the brothers worked together to run the fifth most popular haunted house in the country—dreamscape. they were both designers and, at the same time, actors who specialized in scaring others.

among them was a middle-aged woman who had spoken very little since they appeared at the theme park. she appeared to be very afraid of the cold and impervious to heat. even when they were outside, she was still wearing long sleeves and had her body wrapped up tightly. the middle-aged woman was very reticent, and the man in the sunglasses, fu bole, did not give her much of an introduction. he merely went through the haunted house that she ran—the castle of lost memories.

the six of them could be considered the top haunted house designers in the country. scenarios that would be very scary for normal people would only be considered normal in their eyes because they had seen too many similar scares in their career. this year, they were hit by the low economy as well, and some of their haunted houses had seen an obvious decrease in their visitor count. to see chen ge's haunted house suddenly rocket in popularity naturally ate their ego and made them feel slightly indignant; that was only natural.

“a group of haunted house designers coming to challenge a haunted house? that is very interesting. i am so lucky to have run into something as epic as this.” the male visitor from xin hai smiled wickedly. he turned to look at the other people around him. “why don't we also introduce ourselves? i believe we will need to work together to clear this scenario.”

after the male visitor said that, no one present accepted his suggestion. they all ignored him, but that did not seem to faze him. he continued on his own. “then, i will start. my name is gu ren, and this is my girlfriend, fang ying. the two of us like to watch horror movies, and we are greatly interested in these things. we have been to many haunted houses in the past. i suppose you can see us as experienced players.”

“we are students from jiujiang medical university. i am he san, and this is my senior, zuo han. he is the person with the highest accumulative score at our school.” he san pointed at the other student next to him. the other student did not appear like he was a chatterbox. he was quite a handsome young man, but he did not seem to be interested in anything. he had that brooding presence about that. “and this other person is my lecturer, mr. wang.”

“accumulative score? what is that?”

“boss chen’s haunted house has a ranking system. if you clear a scenario, you will be awarded a point. the higher the difficulty of the scenario, the more points you will be given. senior zuo han is ranked third on the ranking. he is one of the most experienced visitors at boss chen’s haunted house,” he san explained patiently. he was a nice person; he was naturally kind and innocent, but unfortunately, he had been given a glimpse into the danger and darkness of humanity during his many visits to chen ge’s haunted house.

after everyone had made their self-introduction, they all turned in unison to xiao sun. he was quite nervous under their combined scrutiny. “my name is sun xiaojun. i come from the old city.”

xiao sun wanted to act as normal as he could, but he could not control himself. but if one really thought about it, it was quite ironic. a ghost was being stared at until he became nervous by a few living humans.

“alright, now that we have gone through all the introductions, we should start to discuss how to clear this scenario.” the sunglasses man, fu bole, stepped out to take the center stage. it was clear that he was expecting everyone to just accept him as the team leader.

“you can save your time trying to clear the scenario. this is the first time this four-star scenario has been open to the public. our main goal should be to ensure our own safety, and that is all,” zuo han said plainly.

“you are being drawn too deep into the trap by the boss. oh, never mind, it is a waste of time trying to explain it to you people who do not know anything.” fu bole did not care at all about the other visitors’ feeling. after all, this was not his haunted house; the worse the experience was for the other visitors, the happier he would be. “we have a one-hour time limit. it will be extremely difficult to find all the broken parts of the rag doll within such a large scenario, so i suggest we split up into groups. four people a group, that will greatly increase the efficiency of completing the game.”

“i can tell you very clearly right now that if we split up, we will be actively searching for death.” zuo han walked directly to face fu bole. “do you know how we ended up clearing the three-star scenario ‘coffin village’?”

“a three-star scenario is much simpler than a four-star scenario. your experience is of no use to us right now.”

“i just want to tell you that, at the time, ten of us entered the scenario at the same time. we were moving in a group. to transfer the red wedding dress out of the scenario, we watched our teammates disappear one after another with our own eyes.” zuo han stared into fu bole’s eyes. “even if we are gathered together, the teammates will still disappear without reason, much less when we get separated.”

“based on what you said, since we will disappear either way, why the insistence on us sticking together?”

“it’s to buy time. i do not know how the haunted house came up with the design to make people disappear before everyone else’s eyes, but at least the person who was lost could use his own ‘life’ to buy precious time for the others. his ‘death’ could not be wasted for no reason. do you understand it now?” zuo han’s tone was getting impatient. to be honest, he did not want to spend so much time persuading this stubborn and arrogant fu bole, but it could not be helped. this time, nine of the group were fu bole’s people. to clear this scenario, he would have to work together with these nine people.

“use their own lives to buy time?” fu bole and the other haunted house designers all laughed at him. “have you people lost your mind from visiting this place too many times? hey! you are their lecturer, right? how do you normally teach your students? they are about to enter society soon; how can they still be so naïve?”

the few haunted house designers were making fun of jiujiang medical university, but mr. wang’s eyes did not even wander over to them. he kept his eyes on zuo han.

he knew how brilliant zuo han was. he was the top of his class at the university. zuo han’s overall marks for all his courses—autopsy class, medical high grade mathematics, medical physic, forensic pathology, forensic psychology, and criminal psychology—had broken the records of jiujiang medical university for the past ten years. mr. wang knew that zuo han would not lie and knew that the young man was not just blowing air. that was why, when he entered the haunted house, he grabbed zuo han's arm and never let go.

he san was the person who was most familiar with the haunted house's boss and the environment, while zuo han was the student with the highest accumulative score from the university. mr. wang only had two hands, so he had chosen the two most reliable students. when he decided to enter this place, mr. wang had lowered the chance of him humiliating himself to the minimum, but after he was really inside the haunted house, he realized that he might have underestimated this place. everything felt so real. that authenticity even brought up many of his bad memories from the past.

"you can humiliate me all you want for now, and i will not waste time arguing with you. i am just telling you the way to ensure our survivability that has the highest probability. it is up to you whether you accept it or not." zuo han's words were clean and cutting. his eyes scanned through fu bole's group before finally landing on ma fang. "if there is a clever person among you, then it would be best if you followed my instructions. after all, we are all on the same boat."

zuo han appeared to have picked out the fact that ma feng was the real core of this group through their micro-expressions, so his last statement was meant for ma feng only.

"i also agree that we should stick together." shang guan qing hong was quick to agree. "do you still remember the warning that the haunted house's boss gave us before we entered the scenario? he told us not to have any interactions with anyone else, including the people beside us. this was clearly meant to sew discord among us. he could not wait for us to fight among ourselves."

the group got into a heated argument. xiao sun stood at the side and did not dare speak. he thought to himself that the reason chen ge said that was probably because he was afraid that the other visitors might abandon xiao sun, so he purposely said that so that xiao sun would be stuck with the rest of the group.

"stop arguing, it is safer for us to stick together," ma feng decided, and fu bole did not dare argue against him. so, the team of fifteen moved together. "but since we are on a time limit, squeezing together like this will waste too much time. we will split into three groups, and each group will have five people. when we are outside on the streets, we move together, but once we enter a building, we will move according to our designated groups, and then we will meet up again at the entrance of the building."

ma feng was the top leader, and he found a compromise between the two options.

“it won’t work.” zuo han rejected that idea without even giving it much thought. “you are not familiar with the boss’ tactic. once we split up, he will have a way to make us separate from each other. other than that, how can you make sure that there are no actors among us?”

that one statement from zuo han made everyone nervous. before they came to chen ge’s haunted house, they had heard similar rumors before. some of the visitors there could be disguised workers from the haunted house, and it caused people within the same group to have difficulty trusting each other.

“the nine of us came together so there are certainly no actors among us, but the rest of you are very suspicious.” fu bole glared at zuo han and he san. “it is quite rare for a university lecturer to bring his students to visit a haunted house. are you guys really a lecturer and students from a university?”

“before you people suspect us, i wish to tell you one thing, and i hope the nine of you will remember this clearly.” zuo han said in a cold tone. “based on our previous experience, i believe this haunted house has an actor that can mimic people’s voices. he can perfectly replicate our voice, so you cannot confirm a person’s identity through their voices alone. and other than that, make sure to take good care of your phone. even if you get a phone call or any information from your partner, do not trust it implicitly.”

“would a haunted house go to such lengths?” it was noticeable that fu bole’s tone was no longer as confident as before.

“that is not even the worst,” zuo han said hesitatingly. “personally, when i run into a problem, i use every method to find a solution. after visiting this haunted house so many times, i’ve gradually come to a conclusion that overturned my entire understanding of this world.”

“what conclusion is that?”

“this haunted house... might really be haunted.”

Chapter 1119 - Voiceless Small Town 2 in 1

Chapter 1119 Voiceless Small Town 2 in 1

“Haunted?” The few haunted house designers all turned toward Zuo Han. Even Mr. Wang had started to frown. He really did not expect to hear such a declaration from his best student.

“Certain things cannot be answered in this world, or rather, the answer cannot be found through my current store of knowledge. It can only be explained via the supernatural.” Zuo Han’s tone was very serious. This was the first time the scenario ‘ghost fetus’ had been open to the public. Based on his previous experience, the difficulty for every scenario that was open to the public for the first time would be abnormally high. Even Zuo Han was feeling unconfident about this. That was why he shared the suspicion that he had long buried inside his heart with his teammates. He wanted to search for the truth, but he knew that was impossible when paired with these deadweight teammates. In fact, he knew just keeping their sanity intact would be a huge problem.

“Before we’ve even started the game, you have already brought the supernatural?” The sunglasses man, Fu Bole, laughed out loud immediately. “Little brother, you made quite a bit of sense at the beginning. In fact, I will admit that you almost got me, but when you suggested that this place is really haunted, you exposed yourself as the hired actor. As an experienced member of society, I will give you some advice that will be valuable for you in the future—haste makes waste.”

...

In such an eerie and disturbing environment, when Zuo Han suggested that the haunted house was really haunted, everyone’s heart skipped a beat, but after they heard Fu Bole’s analysis, they all slowly but surely started to calm down. There were no ghosts in this world. Since the young man had said such a thing inside the haunted house, there was a very high chance that he was a hired actor working for the haunted house.

The few haunted house designers looked at each other with a knowing smile on their faces. Even Ma Feng took a few extra glances at Zuo

Han. For people who had never believed in the supernatural in the first place, telling them that a place was really a haunted house, they naturally thought that he was playing a prank on them.

“The goal of the first thing you said was to insinuate that there might be haunted house actors among us, and then you proceeded to tell us many details that we will need to pay attention to inside the haunted house. All of that created a scary atmosphere. Honestly speaking, as an employee, you have been a really responsible one. That Chen fellow is lucky to have hired someone like you.”

The fashionably dressed Wei Chaochao had spoken as well. The group of haunted house designers chimed in one after another. The more they talked about it, the more they were convinced that Zuo Han was an actor hired by Chen Ge. They provided one example after another to prove their points until Xiao Sun himself was made confused. He started to wonder if Zuo Han was someone Chen Ge had sent in to support him because this was his first time working at the haunted house.

“I know all of you are very capable, and that’s why I wanted to cooperate with you. Unfortunately, conceit and envy have blinded your eyes. All you can see now are illusions that you have constructed before your eyes, and you refuse to even consider the possibility of the truth.” Zuo Han shook his head. He turned to He San and Mr. Wang beside him and said, “This time, we won’t be able to rely on anyone else. But no matter what, the three of us cannot get separated from one another.”

He San and Mr. Wang had understood the severity of the situation, so they nodded in agreement. Seeing how serious the three visitors who were supposedly from Jiujiang Medical University were, Fu Bole could not help but laugh. “You guys are still acting even though you have been exposed. Don’t you feel awkward about this?”

“This haunted house came up with this kind of method to help build the atmosphere and introduce the scenario’s details. It is quite interesting. It is something that we can learn.” The fatty Laing Er waved at Fu Bole. “Let’s prepare to enter the scenario. Now, I am quite excited to see what they have in store for us.”

Even though each of them had their own reasons for being there, the fifteen people had gathered together again. They followed the rutted street and officially entered the ghost fetus scenario. The black iron door appeared to wander further and further away from them. After they turned a corner, the first junction appeared before them. A strange, faded smell lingered in the air. The shadows of the buildings of varying sizes appeared to dance in the darkness. They looked around and found nothing, but they could swear that there was a feeling that there were people hiding in the recesses of the darkness watching their every move.

“Which path should we pick?” Fu Bole turned back to ask Ma Feng for his opinion. Ma Feng turned to look at Shang Guan Qing Hong.

“Just standing here is not going to help us in any way. How about we just pick a random path, leave behind a marking, and if we run into any trouble, we can always come back and pick another path?” After saying that, Shang Guan Qing Hong followed Ma Feng and walked down the path on the left.

“Wait a minute!” Zuo Han wanted to say something, but the rest of the team did not give him a chance. They all sauntered down the left path. The old-fashioned lights that adorned the street flickered on and off. The shadows that they created on the walls of the buildings appeared to possess strange human shapes. Occasional whispers came from the buildings from both sides. It sounded like people were talking. They appeared to be hiding from something and, at the same time, searching for something. The nonexistent wind carried with it words like ‘body parts’ and ‘rag doll that is unkillable’.

“Our mission is to find the rag doll’s severed body parts, but the boss only gave us a single picture. He did not even mention how many parts of the rag doll there are, so I think we should not leave any one of the buildings unchecked.” Wei Chaochao stopped moving. His body leaned against the door of one of the old buildings next to him. “I heard someone speaking inside. There should be a scare point hidden behind this door.”

“I would advise you against opening any random doors. At this haunted house, it is better to do less than to do more.” He San was kind enough to warn him, but the few haunted house designers had already confirmed that he was one of the haunted house’s actors, so naturally, they did not heed his advice.

“Normally, when you are designing a haunted house, the first scare point is very important because, for that first scare, you will be able to discern the overall style and features of that haunted house.” Wei Chaochao gripped the door handle and said with some excitement, “Are you guys ready?”

Even though the haunted house designers had been mocking Chen Ge's haunted house nonstop, when they were about to really trigger a scare point, all of them became incredibly cautious.

"Open the door. I want to see how scary a haunted house with more than ninety percent good reviews on the internet can be." Fu Bole stood at the front of the group. He was like a general leading his army, impervious and unafraid.

Zuo Han, who had voiced his objection to this earlier, had decided to pipe down. He stared at Wei Chaochao and Fu Bole coldly like he was coldly observing cadavers on an autopsy table. He really did want to work together with these haunted house designers, but the latter was unwilling, so now, he had changed his mind and was prepared to use these people as bait. Since they were going to 'die', why not make their 'deaths' a little bit more valuable? Zuo Han's thought was that simple. Everyone held their breath as their eyes followed the movement of Wei Chaochao's arm.

His five fingers gripped the door handle tightly. Wei Chaochao opened the door a sliver, and then he suddenly stopped. He used his body to block the door that was not fully open.

Dong!

The haunted house actor who was hiding inside the house saw the door open and instantly jump out to scare the visitor as he had been told, but he did not expect the visitors outside the door to only open it a sliver, and more than that, the visitor purposely leaned his weight against the door to stop it from budging so that the door could not be opened fully. Without expecting this, the haunted house actor inside the house rammed directly into the door. The actor did not anticipate something like this happening at all. After his head knocked into the door, he tumbled to the ground, landing on his butt.

"That's all?" When the group of haunted house designers saw the actor who had stumbled inside the room, their nervous hearts relaxed greatly. Then they all revealed expressions filled with condescension and revulsion.

"A scare tactic that cannot be more cliché combined with obvious inexperience. Does not know how to adapt to the situation and has such horrible reflexes." Wei Chaochao now opened the door fully and started to give his criticism. "If the set design is worth 8.5 marks, I can only give the actor three marks."

“This has to be a joke. Why would they assign someone like you to act as a ghost to come scare the visitors? You are more suitable to be a comedy actor.”

“You have all seen this, right? I believe you are all familiar with the standard of this haunted house now. Now, I can be one hundred percent sure that the good reviews on the internet are all from the fifty cent army hired by the boss himself.”

The group of haunted house experts' words were ruthless and cutting. They surrounded the poor actor and kept insulting him. Thankfully, the actor was not that easily offended. He rubbed his bruised forehead and slicked back his single ponytail as he climbed up from the ground. He did not seem to mind that he had just been tricked. He brushed it off like nothing had happened. He lifted his head to reveal the face that was made up by Chen Ge earlier.

“Please quiet down. Speak too loudly in the Voiceless Small Town, and you will be heard by the ghosts.” The male actor's expression was very serious. It appeared like he had practiced his facial expression before the mirror many times before.

“If all the ghosts are someone like you, what does it matter if we are overheard by them?” Fu Bole shrugged. “I was expecting something new and interesting, but what do I get? Same old tricks reused and recycled.”

“I am not a ghost. I am a human being like you, but there are ghosts inside this small town.” The male actor was not lying. With his hand on his heart, he was telling the truth.

“Even with the bruise on the head, you still have not forgotten your designated lines. Okay, that is quite professional. The rating that I gave you has risen to 3.5 marks.” Wei Chaochao patted the dust on his shoulders.

“Everything that I say is real. My son and myself were trapped here after dark. We were forced to play a game of hide and seek with a bunch of ghosts. If you are found and captured by them, the consequences are unimaginable!” The male actor's expressions were all to the point, but the few haunted house designers still took issue with him.

“That is the background of the story? Looks like a four-star scenario is not that scary after all.”

When the haunted house designers were still continuing their mockery, Zuo Han and He San waded through the crowd. They kept their stares on the male actor and said with a serious expression, “Just now, you said that if you speak in this small town, you will be heard by the ghosts, correct?”

“Yes, this small town is called the Voiceless Small Town. Whenever you make a sound, you will attract the ghosts’ attention.” The male actor tried his best to explain the scenario.

“What will happen if you are found by the ghosts? Earlier, you said that you were here with your son, but I see that you are here alone now. Where is your child? Has he been taken away by the ghosts?” Zuo Han’s mind was sharp. It was rare that one could find an actor that could be communicated with inside Chen Ge’s haunted house, so he wanted to obtain as much information as he could.

“At the time, my son and I were both chased by the ghosts. I volunteered to distract the ghosts from him and left him alone inside a storage building on the northern side of the small town.” The male actor lowered his voice. “If you can help bring my boy back to me, I will tell you a secret about this world.”

“A hidden mission?” Zuo Han nodded. “I will help you find your boy. By the way, what is your name? Can you give us something to prove your identity? We need to prove to your child that we are acting on your favor.”

The male actor was startled. This was not part of the plot, but the man was quick on his feet. “My name is Wu Jinpeng. After you find my boy, just tell him my name, and he will follow you.”

“Then, what does your boy look like? I am afraid that the ghosts might get to your son before we do, and then we might mistake the ghost as your son.” Zuo Han had considered all the possible scenarios.

“He is very short and wears a red shirt. His name is... Wu Nan.”

“You were obviously hesitating earlier. Is there something that you have not told us?” Mr. Wang also walked over. The lecturer and student worked together perfectly, and they applied a ton of pressure on Wu Jinpeng.

“The children here like to play hide and seek. Actually, from the moment you enter this small town, you have been forced to join this maddening game already.” Wu Jinpeng suddenly reached out to grab the door handle. "Remember, be careful of the ghosts, and be on the lookout for places to hide!"

After he had said everything that he needed to say, Wu Jinpeng closed the door and returned back to the house.

